"On October 14, 1799, Admiral Sir Henry Digby, then captain commanding the British frigate 'Alcmene,' on a cruise off the Spanish coast, had shaped his course for Cape St. Vincent, and was running to the southward. At eleven o'clock at night, when in the latitude of Cape Finisterre, Sir Henry rang his bell to summon the officer of the watch. He asked the lieutenant, 'How are we steering?' 'South-south-west, sir,' was the reply. 'What sort of weather?' 'The same, sir, as when you left the deck—a fine, strong breeze, starlight night.' 'Are we carrying the same sail as at sunset?' 'Yes, sir; double-reefed topsails and foresail.' Digby looked at the officer of the watch attentively for a moment, and then asked him whether, to his knowledge, anyone had entered the cabin. 'I believe not, sir,' was the reply; 'but I will inquire of the sentry at the cabin door.' 'Sentry!' called the officer of the watch at once, 'has there been anybody in the captain's cabin?' 'No, sir, nobody.' 'Very odd,' rejoined Digby; 'I was perfectly convinced that I had been spoken to.'

"The officer of the watch then left the cabin and returned to the quarter-deck. At two in the morning the captain's bell was again rung, the same questions again repeated to the then officer of the watch who had relieved the former one, and the same answers given. 'A most extraordinary thing,' said the captain; 'every time I drop asleep I hear somebody shouting in my ear, "Digby, Digby, go to the northward!" I shall certainly do so. Take another reef in your topsails, haul your wind, tack every hour till daybreak, and then call me.' The officer of the watch went back on deck and acted in strict accordance with these orders.

"When relieved at four in the morning by the third lieutenant, the officer of the morning watch, that officer expressed great astonishment at finding the ship's course altered. 'What is the meaning of this?' he said to his messmate. 'Meaning,' replied the other; 'why, the captain has gone stark staring mad, that's all.' And then he told his story, at which they both laughed heartily. There being no help for it, of course the captain's orders were strictly obeyed, and the frigate was tacked duly at four, at five, at six, and at seven o'clock. She had just come round for the last time, when suddenly the man at the mast-head called out, 'Large ship on the weather bow, sir!'

"On nearing the strange sail a musket was discharged to bring her to. She was promptly boarded, and proved to be a Spanish vessel, laden with an enormous booty in dollars and a very rich cargo of cochineal and spices as well. By this prize the fortunate dreamer secured a large portion of the great fortune which he amassed from Naval prize-money.

Digitized by Google

Literary News.

EVERYTHING that is written by Captain Mahan will necessarily receive great attention in England, and his new book, "Lessons of the War with Spain" (Sampson Low), is peculiarly welcome, because it shows such an excellent spirit towards this country, with due recognition of the circumstances which, in the course of the war, caused Great Britain, and Great Britain alone, to appear the friend of the United States. The book is full of the discerning insight, wide grasp of facts, and powerful presentment of them, which is always found in the writings of Captain Mahan. I shall say little about the book, because to do so with justice would demand much space, and because the major part of the volume originally appeared in the form of letters published in America and in the Times. I think it important to point out that the reader must not forget that the book was written for Americans, and that the argument in favour of fortifications does not apply to a strong Power like ourselves. They will discern that Captain Mahan is illustrating how the alarm of the American people led to a false strategical distribution of the fleet, which, if they had not been so timorous, might have been better used. They would, it seems, have been fortified by fortifications. In this country, at least, there can be no doubt that money is much better spent upon ships, and Captain Mahan himself admits that fortification must depend upon special conditions, and is not a truly constant factor. No one who would understand the necessities implied in Naval defence should fail to read this masterful treatise.

* * * *

The publishers have been busy in their useful work of equipping men and women—thinkers, writers, and workers of all classes—for their occupations in the New Year. It is truly amazing to find how many annual volumes are now published, and to discover that scarcely any department of activity is without its manual published true to the date. Of diaries of all kinds the name is, of course, legion, and he must be difficult to please who cannot find the issue to his taste. "The Royal Navy List Diary and Naval Handbook," which Messrs. Witherby publish, is special in its adaptation for the use of Naval officers, and is admirable. Apart from diaries, the stately volume of old "Debrett" (Dean) claims precedence by real merit and ancient right. "The Peerage, Baronetage, Knightage, and Companionage" is indeed a splendid volume. The pristine vigour of the book is nowise diminished; but, on the contrary, has grown with the century, and to contrast the new volume with the old "Debrett" would be a revelation. Famous are the associations of the book. Great statesmen and notable heroes like Nelson and Wellington have thumbed its pages, and looked with rather eager scrutiny at its presentment of themselves. The new volume differs in nothing from the last, except that it includes some new features, adding to its usefulness. The same care that has always distinguished it has presided over the preparation of the fresh issue, and the publishers point out, with legitimate pride, that no other peerage can boast of having borne the index numbers of three centuries upon its title pages. It saw the light in the eighteenth, it rose to its high position in the nineteenth, and it enters with great promise upon the twentieth. There are rivals in every sphere, but fortunately in the matter of peerages there is rivalry with a difference. "Debrett" is sui generis. "Whitaker's Peerage" (J. Whitaker and Sons) is a different book entirely. It is made for the man who runs while he reads, and has just been developed out of "Titled Families," a book which, by bringing every titled person with genealogical and descriptive accuracy into a single alphabetical list, made itself a useful companion. Practically it is the same book, but there are many improvements here and there, and the accuracy is unimpeachable, though the information is necessarily brief. The book is the size of "Whitaker's Almanack," which also has just been published for the year 1900. To commend it is unnecessary. There are few Englishmen who have not found its use, and it still combines something of the qualities of an encyclopædia with its calendar features.

* * * *

A true encyclopædia of the year is "Hazell's Annual." "Avaunt, Perplexity!" is its appropriate motto. It is everybody's handbook. If you look for politics, national or international, for the progress of institutions or of States during the year, the events which have arisen in regard to them, or any other like subject, you will find it here. It ranges from the Anglo-American Commission to Old-Age Pensions, from anthropology to Stock Exchange movements, and from the Licensing Laws to yachting. The Dreyfus case, to single out one feature, is extremely well recorded. The "Annual" again is particularly good in its treatment of Naval and Military matters. Here, among such volumes, it is far ahead of its rivals. The British Navy, for example, is treated exhaustively under the headings of finance, personnel, the Naval Works Act, Royal Marines, Royal Naval Reserve, the ship-building programme and work, launches and trials, administration, incidents, appointments, etc., and there is a complete account of the Naval Manœuvres. The Army is treated in a similar way, and, with the "Occurrences during Printing" is well up to date. Foreign Navies and Armies are also dealt with very fully. To illustrate how well the book is up to date, let me add that it contains the particulars of the Samoan Agreement, and records events in South Africa up to Lord Methuen's advance to the Modder and the retirement of the Boers on the Tugela. "The Englishwoman's Year Book and Directory" (Black) is, in its way, just as useful. It deals with everything that engages the activity and interest of women—art, literature, music, science; sports, pastimes, and diversions; nursing, teaching, employments generally, and religious work, with much else. Particulars of homes and institutions of all kinds are also included. A book to be commended emphatically. With an allusion to "Who's Who" (Black) I must conclude this survey of annuals. The book has been issued for more than half a century, and, as everyone knows, is an annual biography of public men in all spheres of life who personally, or through their work, are known and talked of. In these pages you may learn not only who they are and what they have done or are doing, but how they occupy their leisure, and what are their individual tastes. There is something curious and original about this feature, which I think can scarcely have been found in the first edition of "Who's Who."

"SEARCH-LIGHT."

Publishers' announcements and books for review should be addressed direct to the Editor of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED, 20, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden.

Food for the Boers.

By CALLUM BEG.

ACCORDING to regulation, 309 rounds are always officially at the disposal of the infantry soldier in the field. Of this number he carries at all times 100 in his pouches, 77 rounds are carried in small-arm ammunition carts and on mules (of which more hereafter), 77 are found with the divisional ammunition column, and the remaining 55 rounds are stored in the ammunition park.

Before "a general action" is about to take place each man receives 50 rounds from the S.A.A. carts (for so they are officially styled), and has therefore 150 rounds when he commences his target practice against the Boers; but the supply is kept up in a most systematic manner, and it can hardly prove anything short of disastrous if the firing line is left, even for a few minutes, without cartridges.

We have said that 77 rounds per man are carried in S.A.A. carts and on mules. Four of the former and two of latter are attached to each battalion.

Here it may be explained that an infantry brigade consists, on an average, of four battalions. Thus, in the Guards Brigade of Lord Methuen's Division are battalions of the following regiments: Scots Guards, Coldstream Guards (two battalions), and Grenadier Guards. Two brigades constitute a division, as far as infantry is concerned; and besides other troops, the Army Corps as despatched at the outbreak of war consisted of three complete infantry divisions (i.e., twenty-four battalions, with other arms added). When fire is about to be opened, after the troops have taken up a battle formation, the two mules of each battalion are moved as close to the firing line as possible, having regard to their safety.

For the present purpose let it be presumed that the mules are well disposed, and are, therefore, to be found in rear of the supports carrying their share of the 27 rounds per man still remaining on their backs and in the four S.A.A. carts after each soldier has been supplied with 150 rounds.

Behind the firing line in action is a sufficient number of reliable men (provided with canvas bags), whose duty it is to serve out cartridges to the men as their supply runs short. These bags, containing 600 rounds, can from time to time be replenished from the mules, one of which is in rear of the centre of each half battalion.

The mules' store is in turn made up from the S.A.A. carts, two of which follow in action the reserve of every battalion. The two other carts are at a convenient distance in rear, and form with others of the brigade, amounting to eight in all, the brigade ammunition reserve, which in turn supplies the two carts with the battalion reserves.

The brigade reserve is commanded by an officer specially appointed, who, as well as being responsible for them in action, takes command of the eight S.A.A. carts on the line of march. In action this important part of the brigade is situated at a convenient distance in rear of it. As soon as the carts in front are emptied they are sent back to the brigade reserve, and replaced by full carts. When there are four empty carts with the brigade reserve it is time for the officer in charge to look to his supply, and with this view he communicates with the divisional ammunition column, with which, as has been mentioned, are 77 rounds per man. This column is some 2,000-yds. in rear of the first position taken up by the Artillery in an attack, and commanded by the officer in charge of the Artillery with the division. It consists of 5 officers, 201 of other ranks, 236 horses, 12 S.A.A. carts, and 29 other waggons.

It supplies the brigade reserve ammunition whenever the officer commanding the latter signals or sends for ammunition, but its S.A.A. carts do not proceed further to the front. On arrival at the brigade reserve they exchange the full for empty carts, but retain their own horses, and move at a trot with the empty carts back to the ammunition column. Four S.A.A. carts are sent to one brigade at a time, and the ammunition is received by the officer commanding the brigade reserve on the strictest business principles, for a receipt has to be signed by him for every cart received.

In turn, the officer commanding the ammunition column can replenish his supply from the ammunition park, which is under the G.O.C. Royal Artillery of the South African Field Force, Major-General Marshall, R.A. One ammunition park accompanies the Army Corps, and is well in rear of the troops in action. With it are 20 officers, 672 of other ranks, 848 horses, and no fewer than 119 vehicles. It is divided into three sections, and replenishes from the advanced depôt on the lines of communication. The divisional ammunition column, it may be mentioned, supplies not only the infantry, but other arms of the division, and similarly the park carries ammunition for all arms of the Army Corps.

Digitized by Google

In Ladysmith.

OUR pictures illustrating the various sights and scenes connected with the famous siege of Ladysmith continue to afford a vividly descriptive idea, such as is only produced by photographs, and only by photographs, too, which have been taken literally "from inside." It wants no very great stretch of imagination to realise the circumstances in which these pictures were produced, in view of the abundance of warlike intelligence, some of it in very graphic literary shape, which has been flooding our daily journals for many weeks past. But, apart from any such sensational considerations, the subjects chosen have a distinct value, as indicating just those matters of detail in connection with the active pursuit of war which the historian cannot stay to mention, and which even the contemporary chronicler is apt to pass by.

Most of these pictures are more or less self-explanatory, but they will certainly bear a little talking about. The first two have a curiously pathetic interest. One can imagine that not a few wistful glances have been cast at that railway station, and that it has been repeatedly, even when ordinary communication with the outside world had ceased, the centre of many anxious hopes and fears for the success of the armoured train in its work of reconnaissance. Of the hospital it is enough to say that it is difficult to imagine a much more trying position than that of a sick man during a siege. The mere fact of his sickness, depressing as it is, is naturally accentuated by the reflection that the next transition may be from hospital to something still grimmer, namely, the inside of a prison in the enemy's country.

The Devonshires, who have borne a conspicuous part in the siege, are shown in their own camp, which they have protected, laager-

LADYSMITH RAILWAY STATION.
Line Clear for Armoured Train Only.

THE BASE HOSPITAL, LADYSMITH.
Convalescents and Anxious Friends.

Photo. Copyright. IN LAAGER—THE CAMP OF THE DEVONSHIRES AT LADYSMITH. Laws Caney.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. GALLANT NATAL—MOUNTED RIFLES WHO HELPED TO CAPTURE "LONG TOM." Laws Caney.

PREPARING FOR A SORTIE.
The 62nd Field Battery "Takes the Floor."

WARNED FOR OUTPOST DUTY.
The Devonshires Leaving Ladysmith for a Long Day's Work.

fashion, against a sudden rush. The Natal Mounted Rifles honourably distinguished themselves in the sortie of the 8th inst. under General Hunter, in which "Long Tom" and another big gun were blown up with gun-cotton, and a Maxim captured and brought back in triumph to the camp. Of the work of the Field Artillery during the siege it is needless to say much more than we have said on several previous occasions. "Ready, aye, ready" they have been, as they always are, and have lost no chances of acting up to the glorious traditions of the corps of which they form the backbone.

Photos. Copyright. BELEAGUERED INDEED—LADYSMITH FROM THE BASE HOSPITAL. "Navy & Army."

Digitized by Google

With Kekewich and Rhodes at Kimberley.

ONE of the brightest features of the war has been the gallant defence of Kimberley. It is all the more noteworthy as the garrison is entirely composed of colonial troops, except for a detachment of the 1st Battalion Loyal North Lancashire Regiment. Every despatch from Kimberley tells of the garrison steadily holding its own against tremendous odds, and of the general cheeriness of the gallant defenders. Lieutenant-Colonel Kekewich of the Loyal North Lancashires is in command, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Cecil Rhodes. Lately Mr. Rhodes has been engaged in the construction of his "Siege Avenue," which stretches right out into the veldt. One of our illustrations shows the Diamond Fields Club, where, after a hard day's work, the officers meet for a little relaxation. There, too, may often be seen Mr. Cecil Rhodes, always cheerful and ever full of resource.

Photo. Copyright. THE DIAMOND FIELDS CLUB. Stewart.
Where Mr. Cecil Rhodes may be Found in the Evening.

In another illustration we see the scouts who were commanded by the late Major Scott-Turner, who was killed in one of the sorties. He was universally beloved, and on the day of the funeral of the gallant officer and his comrades who fell in that sortie the whole of the population of Kimberley turned out to do them honour. Six volleys were fired over the graves by the firing party, and six blasts were blown on the bugles. In spite of almost daily bombardments, the news from Kimberley has lately seemed to be a stereotyped "All's well."

Among the defenders may be mentioned the Diamond Fields Artillery, which has done remarkably good service.

Our illustration shows the regiment on parade. The men, it will be observed, are not in their fighting kit, like Major Scott-Turner's scouts, but are in review order paraded for inspection. Another of the corps in Kimberley that is particularly worthy of mention is the Diamond Fields Horse, which is depicted in our illustration, also in parade uniform. This regiment has the honour of having Mr. Cecil Rhodes as its honorary lieutenant-colonel.

Photo. Copyright. KIMBERLEY'S GUNNERS—THE DIAMOND FIELDS ARTILLERY WITH THEIR GUNS. B. Fyne.

Photo. Copyright. RECONNOITRING ON THE VELDT—THE LATE MAJOR SCOTT-TURNER'S SCOUTS. "Navy & Army."

Photo. Copyright. THE DIAMOND FIELDS HORSE ON PARADE. B. Fyne.
The Regiment of which Mr. Cecil Rhodes is Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

was a clear and clean reverse, accompanied by what in all war is the surest sign of defeat—the loss of guns. Ten of our pieces remained in possession of the enemy. We have to go back far beyond the Peninsular War—to the surrender of Whitelocke at Buenos Ayres, of Fraser in Egypt, of Cornwallis at York Town, and of Burgoyne at Saratoga—to come to anything like such a loss. To be sure, all these cases were worse than the fight on the Tugela, for they were accompanied by capitulation; but once more it must be remembered that none of them was quite so much of a cruel surprise. York Town, too, though the report of it made the Prime Minister (Lord North) throw his arms out and stagger as if he had been shot, was an inevitable thing, and the force opposed to us was overwhelming. Nobody could well have felt amazed that a small British force should surrender to superior numbers of the Americans, whom Washington had turned into good soldiers, supported by a corps of fine French troops. It is another thing that we should have to fall back before the Boers, leaving ten of our guns in their hands, and a hard-pressed British garrison unrelieved. As for the fight itself, one foresees that it will be the subject of not a little discussion in future. The reputation of a general from whom his country hoped great things was tarnished in the popular mind. The question at once suggested itself, What had been done with all our scouts that we should walk into a trap with our eyes open—or rather that we should shut our eyes and walk in? But the list of questions was endless, and they all in the long run came to the enquiry, What is the good of studying the art of war if at the end of it all we are to fight on the principles of some hot-headed Spanish general of the old Peninsular type, whose one idea of arranging a battle was to go blindly ahead? For that is what it looked like. Examples of individual valour, as in the case of the officers and men who strove so gallantly to redeem the guns, are a consolation, but we must not make too much of them.

Photo. Copyright. BRITISH CAMP AT ESTCOURT. The Starting-place for the Advance. H. W. Nicholls.

Photo. Copyright. THE NAVAL GUNS ON THE TUGELA. Jack Ashore. Williams.

Photo. Copyright. NATIVE CAMP FOLLOWERS. Black Warriors—Reduced. "Navy and Army."

In every army belonging to a courageous people there will be found those who hold their lives cheap in comparison to honour; but they do not avert defeat. They only save it from absolute shame. More is wanted than that. It is unpleasant to look at the picture of Buller's native camp followers and speculate on what they thought. They could not well have come to the conclusion, some said, that their British masters were cleverer than the Boers.

It was very painful, but what was to be done except to say, like poor Braddock when he was mortally wounded in the defeat at Fort Duquesne, "We will do better next time"? And we did better without a doubt. Taken in that spirit, there is some use in a defeat; it is the stimulus that braces men to good work.

Digitized by Google

The Second Boer War.

Photos. Copyright.

PANORAMA OF THE PRINCIPAL BASE

THE interest shown from the first by the public in Lord Methuen's column for the relief of Kimberley has been very keen, and, moreover, extremely natural. Although the position of the town of diamonds was not then critical, it was felt that no time should be lost, and it was with great satisfaction that the details were received of Methuen's vigorous and sensible preparations for speedy movement. That opposition would be forthcoming was easily foreseen, but it was hardly anticipated that the relief of Kimberley would be delayed by such a series of engagements as those at Belmont, Enslin, Modder River, and Magersfontein, and that a succession of heavy losses, as well as the presence of the enemy in considerable strength, would necessitate the despatch of reinforcements on a large scale. In connection with these reinforcements, the accompanying pictures are highly interesting. The panorama of Cape Town is especially so, since it shows, in a very graphic and comprehensive manner, the capabilities of that important capital as a base of operations. In the centre of the picture may be seen Table Bay breakwater, under the shelter of which no fewer than sixteen transports were lying at the time the photograph was taken. It would be difficult to quote better evidence of the contention advanced that Cape Town is a truly exceptional "base." Prominent among the transports is the Cunarder "Servia," inshore of the P. and O. "Nubia." In dock several other transports are discernible. The long building to the right of the breakwater is the military hospital, where several Boer prisoners have been lodged. The castle-like edifice to the left of the breakwater is the New Somerset Hospital, and between that and the cycle track is to be seen the camp of the Cape Garrison Artillery. Further east, some of the Regulars are encamped between Fort Wynyard and the race stand. The mountain above Fort Wynyard, on the opposite side of the bay, is Blaauwberg, the scene of the battle between the British and the Dutch a century ago, just prior to our occupation of the Cape. The picture of the horses of the 12th Lancers being landed on the jetty from the transport "Mohawk" recalls the fact that this regiment was the first reinforcement which Lord Methuen received, and one which, we may be sure, was peculiarly welcome. For undoubtedly we have lost many opportunities in the present campaign through lack of cavalry, more particularly in pursuit of the enemy when beaten. There is nothing that

ORDERED TO THE WESTERN BORDER.
Horses of the 12th Lancers being Landed from the "Mohawk"

Photos. Copyright. "JOE CHAMBERLAIN." "Navy & Army."
A 4·7-in. Gun from the Flag-ship "Doris."

Digitized by Google

Reinforcements for Methuen.

OF OPERATIONS IN CAPE COLONY. C. F. Juritz.

turns a defeat into a rout more quickly than the thunder of the hoofs of pursuing cavalry, and the knowledge that at any moment they may be in the midst of the fugitives, cutting with their swords or thrusting with their lances as the case may be.

The picture showing the Black Watch landing at Cape Town is rather painfully interesting in view of the terrible losses suffered by the regiment at the fateful battle of Magersfontein. In common with all the regiments of the Highland Brigade the battalion—this is the 2nd—lost a number in killed and wounded, but it had further, and specially, to deplore the death of the gallant Brigadier-General A. G. Wauchope, who formerly commanded the battalion and was almost worshipped by it. General Wauchope's funeral, with its mournful surrounding of officers and men of his old corps, is described as one of the most touching and impressive scenes which the war has produced.

The 4·7-in. Naval gun has been frequently illustrated of late, but never, perhaps, so brightly and so instructively as in the accompanying two pictures. The gun here shown is one belonging to the "Doris," the flag-ship on the Cape of Good Hope station, and the efficiency of the travelling carriage is indicated by the steady workmanlike manner in which the weapon in the second picture is moving off to the front.

CLEARING THE "MONGOLIAN."
One of the Last to Leave.

This is the gun which has been named "Joe Chamberlain," and, powerful speaker as is the Colonial Secretary, he never spoke to such good purpose as did his namesake from the vicinity of Modder River Camp.

It should be clearly understood that the term "reinforcement" must be here applied in quite a different sense from that in which it was used at an earlier stage of the war. In the case of a column actually on the move, reinforcements must necessarily be supplied under conditions involving considerable strain upon those responsible for organisation at the front, and in this particular instance there were circumstances which rendered it by no means easy to give Lord Methuen all the assistance he so urgently required. But the thing was done, and done quickly.

At a later stage in our advance there will probably be large "diversions" from the Western Border of the Orange Free State, and, when that occurs, it will be satisfactory to recall that at a time when things were in anything but a forward state we were still able to send "reinforcements for Methuen" in his advance to the relief of Kimberley.

Photos. Copyright. HOW "JOE CHAMBERLAIN" WENT TO THE FRONT. "Navy & Army."
This is the Gun that Cleared Out the Boer Trenches at Magersfontein.

Digitized by Google

With Gatacre's Column.

"PERHAPS," writes one of our correspondents at the front, "none of the separate columns acting against the enemy have had greater difficulties to contend with than has the force which, under Major-General Gatacre, advanced by the line that runs from East London, via Queenstown and Stormberg Junction, to Bloemfontein and Pretoria." Some views in connection with this advance which he sends us are here reproduced. In one the destroyed bridge at Leeufontein is shown. This bridge was destroyed not by the Boers, but by our own troops, so as to render the line unavailable for the enemy within those districts of the Cape Colony which are populated by the Dutch who are siding with the enemy. It is on the line half-way between Stormberg and Burghersdorp, the former place being the objective of Gatacre's disastrous attack from his advanced post at Molteno, a few miles to the southward of it. Gatacre is under tremendous difficulties, for he is fighting in a country swarming with Boer sympathisers. But the provinces south produce some of the finest of the many fine Volunteer corps that the Colony is so freely giving to the service of the country. Notable amongst them are two, types of which are shown in our second illustration, these being the Kaffrarian Rifles—an infantry corps—and the Frontier Mounted Rifles. Of the eight executive officers with the former regiment five have seen service in one or other of our recent South African campaigns. These corps are now forming part of Gatacre's force which is concentrating at Sterkstroom for a fresh advance. Not only has the general to make his advance through what is practically a hostile country, but through one that bristles with natural difficulties, and the utility to him of these colonial troops who know the country it would be hard to over-estimate. Our third picture gives a view of Molteno, from which Gatacre's advance on Stormberg was made. It will be the base for the next push forward, and is some sixty miles to the north of Queenstown, where the first concentration of the column operating on this line took place.

THE BRIDGE DESTROYED BY GENERAL GATACRE AT LEEUFONTEIN.

THE FRONTIER ADVANCE GUARD.
An Old Corps with a New Name.

"Navy & Army."

Photos. Copyright. A VIEW OF MOLTENO—WHERE GENERAL GATACRE HAS HIS HEADQUARTERS.

Digitized by Google

"RED CROSS."—With regard to your enquiry, I cannot speak from personal experience. There are, as you must be aware, many improvements, which have been introduced of late years, in disinfectants, surgical dressings, and sanitary clothing, but the latest development is a substance called "Petanelle." Not having seen the new material actually applied, I can only give you, in effect, what has been said of it by eminent medical and surgical authorities. It is antiseptic, deodorant, destructive of micro-organisms—in fact, a natural hygienic material, at once absolutely harmless and perfectly effective. Surgical pads of Petanelle can be left, it is said, longer on a wound than any other material, and without becoming offensive. Horse-clothing and flannels made of it absorb moisture without getting wet, owing to its natural capacity for evaporation; and disinfecting powder from the same substance, while itself pleasant and refreshing, annihilates the worst odours. These qualities are derived from peat, the preservative virtues of which have long been recognised. Now that they are made available for practical purposes, our brave defenders should have the benefit of them. Mr. John Burke, of the Wool Exchange, should be communicated with if further information be desired.

* * * *

"ANGLO-INDIAN."—Rimington's Horse, mention of which you have seen in telegrams from South Africa, is a corps of guides raised by Major Rimington, of the Inniskilling Dragoons, soon after the outbreak of the war. It is mainly composed of English and Scotch farmers from the Orange Free State. As members of a corps of guides, the men were carefully selected. Knowledge of the country and familiarity with the Kaffir language were essential for recruits in this fine corps. The men supply their own kit, and receive 10s. a day. They are known as "Rimington's Tigers," because of the leopard's tail they wear round their hats. Major Rimington is well known as a smart cavalry officer, and is a first-rate polo player. He captained his regimental team when it won the Inter-Regimental Polo Tournament two years in succession. He went out to South Africa on special service in July last.

* * * *

"A. E."—Major Charles Heaphy, of the Auckland Militia, won the Victoria Cross for his gallant conduct at the skirmish on the banks of the Mangapiko River, in New Zealand, on February 11, 1864. He was gazetted for the decoration on February 8, 1867. Captain Andrew Scott, 4th Sikhs, on July 26, 1877, saved the life of an officer at Quetta by his personal bravery, bayoneting two Pathans and closing with a third, who was finally killed by some men of the 4th Sikhs. For this plucky act he was gazetted for the Victoria Cross on January 18, 1878. I cannot find the names of Private Samuel Hoope and of Lieutenant Beyer in the list of recipients of the Victoria Cross, nor do I remember their winning the decoration since the publication of the last list.

* * * *

D. POWELL.—You are confusing regimental ranks with staff appointments. Generals rank according to their seniority. There are seven generals in the cavalry and infantry, two in the Artillery, one in the Engineers, three in the Staff Corps, and one in the Indian Army. The post of Adjutant-General to the Forces is held by Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C., but he is sixth in the list of generals, and his staff appointment does not give him any higher rank.

* * * *

"J. E. M." (Jersey).—The "Victoria" was lost on what was practically her first commission. Lord Armstrong drove the first rivet in her keel plate at Elswick in June, 1885, she was launched on April 9, 1887, and went through her steam trials in June, 1888. Prior to launching, her name was changed from "Renown" to "Victoria," in honour of the Queen's Jubilee. She was commissioned at Chatham on March 19, 1890, by Captain J. E. Stokes, to relieve the "Camperdown," then the flag-ship on the Mediterranean station. She recommissioned on April 29, 1890, with officers and crew turned over from the "Camperdown," Sir Anthony Hoskins hoisting his flag in her as C. in C. in the Mediterranean, his flag-captain being Captain J. C. Burnell. Sir George Tryon relieved Sir Anthony in command, and hoisted his flag in the "Victoria" on August 20, 1891, his flag-captain being the Hon. Maurice Bourke. The disaster occurred on June 22, 1893. The guns carried in the "Victoria" were breech-loading 111-ton guns, with a calibre of 16·25-in. The charge was 960-lb., and the weight of projectile 1,800-lb. Perforation at muzzle was 38-in. of wrought iron. Only six of these guns were ever brought into the Service. Two are now in the sister ship the "Sans Pareil," and the other two in the "Benbow," of the Admiral class.

* * * *

"BARFLEUR."—I propose publishing in the course of the next few weeks an article setting forth, as near as possible, how many Scotsmen, Irishmen, Welshmen, or Englishmen there are in the various British regiments.

* * * *

I HAVE to thank an old subscriber for the following letter: "In 'Afloat and Ashore' you answer a correspondent and describe therein the flag of the Orange Vry Hout and of the Zuid Afrikaansche Republick. Your description is a little incorrect. The Free State flag has thirteen stripes (like the U.S. flag), seven orange, six white. Top corner next the pole, the Dutch flag. What you describe as the Transvaal flag is altogether wrong. You describe the old flag, a private one (like a standard), once the fancy of the late President Burgers, and so far as I know only sported by him when abroad. The Transvaal flag is the same as seen round the coat of arms, on stamps, on coin, on the President's breast. It is the Dutch flag with a vertical green stripe along the pole. I have been fifteen years in that country, so I know it well. I was at the siege in 1880—Pretoria—and left after the Kaffir Wars in Zoutpansberg, 1895. On commando every field-cornet takes a flag with him, on which very often is printed in black or gold letters, on the white stripe, the name of the ward where he and his men hail from. Also the commandant of a district takes with him a flag, also mostly with the name of the district; this comes in handy by laager formation. The flags are invariably carried on horseback attached to a long bamboo whip-stick. A small flag is also attached to the waggon of commandant or field-cornet. The flags vary in size, from 6ft. by 4ft., and larger, and are made of bunting, very seldom of silk. It is heavy work carrying the flag in a little wind."

* * * *

L. PERRY.—Entry as assistant clerk in the Royal Navy may take place up to the age of eighteen. There is no direct admission to the rank of paymaster. The examination is divided into two classes. Class I.: Mathematics.—Arithmetic as far as interest; algebra to easy quadratics; Euclid, Books I. to III. English.—Dictation, composition, precis. English history to present times, especially the period subsequent to Queen Elizabeth. Geography.—Elements of physical and political. French and Latin.—Translations, grammatical questions, and in regard to French dictation and conversation. Class II.: Shorthand or drawing (a) Freehand and simple rectangular model, or (b) Geometrical. Additional Mathematics.—Elementary trigonometry, harder questions in arithmetic, algebra and geometry, Euclid, Book VI., 1-12. German.—Same as French, with knowledge of German written characters. Natural science, i.e., Mechanics with either (a) Physics, or (b) Chemistry. In Class I. all the subjects have to be taken up. In Class II. shorthand or drawing and one other subject are requisite—shorthand is the more advantageous. The medical examination takes place before the educational examination. Two or three defective teeth, if properly stopped when decay had only slightly advanced, should not operate against a candidate. The examination may be considered the hardest of any for young gentlemen on first entry. About four candidates are nominated for each vacancy in the Navy; the competition is therefore keen, and the candidates must obtain such an aggregate of marks as will satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners.

* * * *

"F. B. G." (Ormskirk).—If you are anxious to obtain a commission in a Volunteer corps you ought, in the first place, to write to the adjutant of the corps you select, who will no doubt furnish you with full particulars. It is always an advantage, however, to be personally acquainted with the commanding officer, who, to all intents and purposes, has the power of appointing you. Should he consider you a suitable candidate, a paper will be sent you to be filled up. On this form are entered particulars as to age, profession, etc. After answering the questions specified thereon, you must be examined by a medical man, who will fill up a form of certificate (attached to the paper mentioned) to the effect that you are physically fit to perform your duties. A certificate as to moral character from a clergyman or schoolmaster must also be sent with your application for a commission, which is eventually sent to the War Office. If deemed a suitable candidate, you are then "gazetted," that is to say, your appointment appears in the London Gazette. With reference to the annual expense of holding a Volunteer commission, no rule can be laid down. You ought certainly to be prepared to spend £15 annually for the good of the corps, but in certain "crack" corps the minimum is about £40. The adjutant of the corps you wish to join could no doubt give you full particulars.

* * * *

"G. H. B." (Maidstone).—1. The "star" given for the Ashanti Campaign of 1895-96 is a four-pointed star crossed by a St. Andrew's Cross, there being in the centre an Imperial crown surrounded by a raised band inscribed "Ashanti, 1896." The ribbon is yellow, with a narrow black stripe down each edge. 2. No special medal was granted for the Tirah Campaign, but to the troops employed the third Indian General Service Medal (just issued for the Chitral Campaign) was given, with clasps inscribed "Punjab Frontier, 1897-98," "Malakand, 1897," "Samana, 1897," "Tirah, 1897-98," according to the district in which recipients were employed. The medal is a shade thicker than the old issue, weighing ½-oz. more. The ribbon has three stripes of red and two of green, of equal width. 3. For the last phase of the Soudan Campaign, the medal given by the Khedive in 1897 was issued, with clasps for "Khartoum" and "Gedaref." This was in addition to those already earned with it, viz., "Firket," "Hafir," "Atbara," "Abu Hamed," and "Nile, 1897." The ribbon is yellow, with a blue stripe down the centre, all the stripes of equal width. This medal is rather larger in diameter than our usual size, viz., 1·4-in. The Queen also gave a medal for this campaign after the fall of Omdurman. The issue was, however, to be retrospective, and it goes to all Queen's troops who served with Kitchener since the commencement of the advance in 1896. The ribbon is half black, half yellow, with a narrow stripe of red running down the intersection of the colours. 4. This question would take up too much of my space to answer. You can see them all if you get a permit to visit the "pattern-room" at the Army Clothing Factory at Pimlico.

THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

The Omnibus War Horse.

By Lieutenant-Colonel John Graham.

NOTWITHSTANDING the amusing raillery of which the "Omnibus War Horse" has been the innocent occasion, that deserving quadruped must be taken seriously. It cannot, of course, be imagined by anyone possessed of the most elementary equine knowledge that the reserve of working horses at the disposal of the Government could ever be employed in the cavalry or artillery. These animals have not been trained to the rapid and precise manœuvres which are essential to the efficiency, and even to the existence, of a cavalry regiment or a horse battery. For combatant purposes, horses must be not merely in hard condition, but must have undergone a most thorough and careful training in the drills and exercises prescribed for the education of military horses.

"Cavalry," says Major Maude in one of his thoughtful essays on "Attack and Defence," "is the arm which has made, perhaps, the greatest relative progress of all since the last great European wars. In precision of movement and shock-power nothing like it has been seen, except in individual regiments, since the days of Frederick the Great, but in actual mobility depending on the breeding and care of the horses, it is far ahead of all former standards." Of two opposing armies, equal in strength and training, with apparently even chances of victory, success will fall to that which is possessed of the most carefully schooled and most intelligently managed cavalry and artillery horses.

While, therefore, our reserve cannot supply animals capable of taking a place in the fighting line, it relieves us from anxiety as to the equally important matters of transport and distribution. The roads by which ammunition, stores, and the necessary food and forage are brought up, frequently become impracticable. Even the lightest of railways cannot be everywhere laid down in the wake of a marching force, and the tasks assigned to transport animals have a way of becoming excessive, notwithstanding the exercise of care and forethought. In these circumstances, horses, especially if young and green, rapidly lose condition; many of them get into a miserable plight, and either drop down and die or are put out of their pain by a "merciful bullet."

The bearing of loads and the draught of waggons in the rear of an army account for the untimely death of more horses than are killed in action. The omnibus horses would thus seem to have made good their claim on our gratitude. They are in splendid condition, seasoned, matured, and in hard work. In point of fact, they are in every respect the very best kind for transport duties, and when they are taken over, there will be less suffering and less pecuniary loss, although a good price may be paid, than when cheaper, but younger and softer, animals are employed.

The exigencies of a campaign are such that some degree of cruelty seems unavoidable. It may, however, be minimised by skilful management, and by attention to the numerous small matters that make for the comfort and efficiency of the pack or harness quadruped. If good work is to be got out of him, it is evident that he must not be placed hors de combat in the first few days of his service, and this remark, of course, applies equally to mules, which are considered more suitable than horses for the labours of transport in South Africa.

Ill-fitting pack saddles, badly distributed weight, and improperly stuffed collars, are among the preventable causes of sores, suffering, and loss of power. Overloading should be included, but that is looked on as a necessary evil, when the lives and success of the troops at the front are considered. We cannot, however, get away from the fact that the prevention of overloading is just one of those things that should be insured by the skill and prescience of the responsible officers. It would diminish both the cruelty and the cost of transport.

When an animal has been gradually accustomed to the collar, his shoulders become hard, like those of the omnibus horses, and no amount of fair draught will cause a sore; but if, on the other hand, he is put into the collar when his shoulders are soft, and given a good weight, and a good day's work to start with, the probability is that his shoulders will soon be raw, and that he will be a jibber in consequence. It is evident that the presence of an animal in the latter state is worse than useless, and that it was a wise policy to enrol a reserve of sound harness horses, in the prime of their age, and ready for immediate work. The existence of such a reserve produces a feeling of security with regard to the probable requirement of military draught horses.

At the same time it must be admitted that we are not in so good a position in so far as cavalry are concerned. It should be understood that we cannot afford to lower the attainments of our cavalry horses, whose "mouths and manners" are already regarded by experts as hardly up to the form of past years.

Real Ghosts in the Army.

By A. B. Tucker.

THERE is a general supposition that it is only sailors who see ghosts, and that soldiers are never given to being visited by the inhabitants of the unseen world and to receiving impressions beforehand of their own deaths or the deaths of their comrades. But the Army has its legends of ghosts and presentments which are just as well authenticated as those of the Navy. Real ghosts? I think I hear my readers exclaim. I can only reply that the stories here set down are not invented, but are properly authenticated cases, and my reader may explain them how he will. Here, for instance, is a case about which many enquiries have been made from time to time in Notes and Queries. I mention my authority in order to show that the story is not pure fiction.

In 1785 the 33rd Regiment, which at that time was commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Forke, was stationed at Sydney, in Cape Breton Island. Among the officers of the regiment were Captain (afterwards Sir John) Sherbroke and Lieutenant (afterwards General) George Wynyard. These two young officers were great friends, both being of a somewhat studious disposition. Their similarity of taste threw them much together, and kept them very much to themselves. On October 15, 1785, these two officers were sitting talking before the fire in Wynyard's room. It was in the barracks that had lately been built, and the room had two doors, one opening on an outer passage and the other into Wynyard's bedroom. As these young men sat talking together over some literary question in which both were deeply interested, Sherbroke happened to glance towards the door that opened to the passage and observed a tall lad of about twenty years of age, pale and emaciated, standing beside it. Taken aback at the appearance of a perfect stranger, Sherbroke turned to his friend and drew his attention to the unbidden guest. Wynyard turned to the stranger and showed in his face inexplicable agitation. "I have heard," said Sherbroke, in recounting the story afterwards, "of a man's being as pale as death, but I never saw a living face assume the appearance of a corpse except Wynyard's at that moment." As the two friends looked at the stranger they did not speak; Wynyard, indeed, seemed to be deprived of speech, and Sherbroke, from sympathy with his friend, was also silent. As they gazed intently and silently on the mysterious and pallid stranger, the figure slowly glided into the bedroom, passing quite close to them. As it passed them it cast its eyes on Wynyard with a look of affection. When the figure had left the room in which the friends were sitting, they seemed to recover themselves, and Wynyard, grasping Sherbroke by the arm, said, in a voice trembling with emotion, "Great God! my brother." "Your brother! What can you mean Wynyard?" Leading the way, Sherbroke immediately took his friend into the bedroom, whither the figure had gone. Imagine their astonishment when they found the room empty. At that moment Lieutenant (afterwards Colonel) Ralph Gore joined them, and the three searched the cupboards and other likely places of concealment for the stranger, but in vain. The bedroom had but one door, which opened into the sitting-room, and there was therefore no possibility of anyone escaping them. Wynyard was convinced that he had seen the apparition of his brother. Sherbroke, on the other hand, was equally convinced that some delusion had been practised on them. For the satisfaction of both, Lieutenant Gore took a note of the day and hour of the occurrence, and it was agreed that no mention should be made of it in the regiment. Gradually, even Wynyard, though he could not help expressing anxiety as to the fate of his brother, became persuaded that they had been the victims of some practical joke on the part of their brother officers, though they could not imagine how it had been carried out. At any rate, they were ready to believe anything rather than admit the possibility of anything supernatural. Wynyard's anxiety for his brother's health at length made him reveal to his comrades the events of that mysterious night. His brother officers assured him that they had had no part in the affair, and soon the fate of Wynyard's brother became a matter of the deepest interest to the whole mess. At length the long looked-for mail from home arrived. There were letters for everyone except Wynyard. The newspapers were examined, but they contained no mention of the death of Wynyard's brother. The officers were at mess when the letters arrived, and it was noticed that Sherbroke left one of his letters unopened for some time, regarding it as if he dreaded to read its contents. At length, when the conversation had begun to hum again and men were beginning to discuss the news brought by the mail, Sherbroke opened his letter. The first lines of the letter were as follows: "Dear John,—Break to your friend Wynyard the death of his favourite brother." It was then found that the young man had died on the very day and at the very hour that the pallid stranger had appeared to Wynyard and Sherbroke. Now, in discussing the merits of this story, we must remember that Sir John Sherbroke and General Wynyard were gentlemen whose veracity could not be called in question for a moment, and both of them in after years shared the belief that they had seen a ghost or spirit. I should add that the young officer who died on October 15, 1785, was Lieutenant John Otway Wynyard, of the Scots Guards.

Digitized by Google

Here is another story told by a Chelsea pensioner sixty years ago, and preserved in an old history of the hospital, which, by the way, contains more stories of the same kind. The regiment to which the old fellow belonged was serving in Canada during the American War, and it was there that the scene of his story was laid. There was a man in his company named James Sweetlove, who was married, and, having left his wife and children in England, never ceased to bewail his hard fate at being parted from them. All jokes, all arguments, all remonstrances failed to cure him of his habitual melancholy. "Well, well," he would reply, "you may say what you like, but when I embraced my wife and little ones on the beach at Portsmouth something whispered in my ear that it was for the last time; and you will see whether or not it spoke truly." On the night of July 15, 1814, Sweetlove was on picket duty not far from Niagara, on the St. Lawrence. About midnight it came to his turn to mount sentry by the river side. Half-an-hour later a musket shot was heard, and our old friend, the Chelsea pensioner who tells the story, was ordered by the officer in charge of the picket to take a file of men and ascertain the cause. As he approached Sweetlove's post they saw him—there was no moon, but it was a bright starlight night—cast his firelock from him, dash towards the river, and jump in. The current of the river being strong, the man was carried down stream some considerable distance before he was dragged out, drenched and scared. When Sweetlove recovered himself at the picket fire he was pressed for an explanation of his extraordinary conduct. After some hesitation, he said:

"Seized my firelock and strove to take it from me."

"It's all over with me, corporal! You have often laughed at me when I said that I should never see my wife and family again, but before many hours pass you will change your note. I shall be a dead man to-morrow."

Of course the corporal laughed, and told Sweetlove that he was more likely to die of lack of heart than by sword or bayonet, and wound up his exhortation to Sweetlove to cheer up by asking him why he fired. "It was not I that fired," said the wretched man. "My piece went off in the struggle—but I never touched the trigger."

"What struggle, Jem? For Heaven's sake don't talk in riddles! There was nobody near your post when we came up. With whom did you struggle?"

"With my wife, corporal," replied Jem. "Listen and I will tell you all. You had not left me more than ten minutes when, on starting on my rounds, I saw my wife standing near me. Margaret looked very pale and very thin, and she was dressed in a long white wrapper. Her hair had come undone and was streaming down below the cap she was wearing. She looked ever so sad. For a moment she gazed at me without speaking, and then her thin white lips moved and she said to me: 'Jem, leave this place or it will be too late.' I heard the words distinctly; I was not dreaming. I told her that I could not desert my post, and, moreover, that nothing would induce me to do so. She argued with me, persisted in her entreaty, and, finding that I was not to be persuaded, seized my firelock and strove to take it from me. In the struggle the piece went off, and then Margaret, letting go her hold, drew back from me, I don't know how, for her limbs never turned, and her face was still towards me. Her face was terribly sad to look at. I looked at her without being able to keep my eyes off her. All at once I saw her with our two babies in a canoe. She sat there as pale as she was when I saw her first, but the babies were as red as my coat; and in the stern sat a horrid red savage, who grinned as he steered the boat towards the rapids. Margaret waved her hand to me and said: 'We meet to-morrow.' They were getting into the current. I could hear the water roaring. What could I do? I cast my firelock from me and jumped into the river to save them."

Sweetlove told his story quietly and impressively. There was no doubt that he was telling the truth as far as he knew. In the morning his hair, which had been dark brown, was grey, almost white. That day the enemy attacked our men and our pickets were driven in. Sweetlove, who behaved with great gallantry in the engagement, was killed. But the story is nothing without its sequel. Six weeks after the battle letters arrived from England, one of which gave an account of the death of Mrs. Sweetlove and her children. The latter had died from an attack of scarlet fever, and the mother had sunk into a decline and had followed her babes.

In no portion of the British kingdom are ghost stories more abundant than in the Isle of Man. Waldron, whose account of the island is well known, contains one that is especially curious. An apparition called the Manthe Doog, in the shape of a spaniel, was formerly supposed to haunt Peel Castle, which was then a military station. The dog particularly haunted the guard-room, where it would come constantly and lie down by the fire at candle light. The soldiers lost much of their terror of it by the frequency of the sight, yet as they believed it to be an evil spirit waiting for an opportunity to injure them, their belief kept them so far in order that they refrained from swearing and even from talking while it was present. None of them liked to be left alone with such a companion. Now, as the Manthe Doog used to come out and return by the passage through the church, by which one of the men had to go to deliver the keys every night to the captain on duty, the men used to do this duty in couples, and never would a man do it alone. One of the soldiers, however, on a certain night having taken more drink than was good for him, insisted on going with the keys alone, although it was not his turn. His comrades in vain tried to dissuade him from what they felt to be a dangerous and foolhardy freak. At length he snatched up the keys and departed on his errand. Some time afterwards a great noise disturbed the men in the guard-house, and, while they were sitting wondering and awe-stricken, the adventurous soldier broke in upon them. He was inarticulate with horror and fright. He could not even make signs to convey to his comrades what had happened to him. The man was distracted, mentally paralysed, and in an hour or two he died, with his features distorted, obviously in mental agony. After this no one would go through the passage, which was soon closed up, as it remains to this day. The apparition was never seen again. Waldron says that this event took place about sixty years before he wrote the account, and that he heard it attested by an old soldier, who assured him that he had often himself seen the Manthe Doog.

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

THE present is an eminently favourable moment for temporarily checking the course of our narrative of the events in South Africa, for the purpose of "taking stock." As a matter of fact, owing to the exigencies of newspaper productions at Christmas-time, it would be impossible to make this week's chronicle a really up to date one, but, apart from this, there is no question that we have just reached one of those halting-places in the history of a war at which it is expedient to take breath, and, more or less, "admire the view."

Casting up the record of the past ten weeks is not altogether a pleasant task from either a national or a military standpoint. But it is absolutely essential to a proper understanding of this great and really epoch-making conflict, that the lessons of the war should not be obscured by any attempt to minimise the seriousness of significant failures or exaggerate the importance of minor successes. Let us then be plain-spoken, as well as systematic, in our present attempt to describe our military position at the end of the year by the light of what has happened since that eventful Eleventh of October, when the time fixed by the Boers for compliance with their ultimatum expired, and Great Britain and the two South African Republics—for by its own act the Orange Free State was from the first day associated with the Transvaal—were definitely at war.

The catalogue of our unquestioned mistakes is not particularly pleasant reading. In the first place, we were strategically wrong, as it turns out, in attempting to defend Mafeking, and in neglecting to hold in some strength the entire line from De Aar to Stormberg. Secondly, there is no doubt either that we were utterly misinformed as to the real strength of the Boers and their resources, or that, having good information, the War Office neglected to take precautions which would have been obvious to a Sandhurst cadet. As the Intelligence Division is part of the War Office, it is absolutely impossible to regard the latter as free from some serious blame in this connection. Thirdly, the supply of artillery and cavalry has been hopelessly inadequate, the provision of guns of the proper description having been strangely neglected. The authorities in due course will have to answer the question "Why were not howitzers sent out at the commencement of the war, and why was not common shell supplied to the Field Artillery?" and it is already evident that no satisfactory reply will be forthcoming. Fourthly, some of the early transports were a simple disgrace to our maritime resources and to the credit of the Department of the Admiralty which looks after these things. Fifthly, the Army Corps organisation has proved a comic failure, having already gone to pieces in the most ludicrous fashion. Sixthly, the conduct of the operations has revealed an absence of intelligence, and a neglect of proper precautions in the way of scouting, reconnaissance, and maintenance of touch, which have caused us the loss of hundreds of lives and of not a little national prestige.

On the other hand, the fighting quality displayed has been superb. At Talana Hill, Elandslaagte, Belmont, Enslin, and Modder River, where we triumphed, and at Magersfontein and on the Tugela, where we failed, the gallantry of the British troops was truly magnificent. Time after time they faced a fire before which the bravest soldiers in the world might well have recoiled, and where retirement has become absolutely necessary it has been effected in an orderly manner and with such a show of vigorous pugnacity that the enemy has had no thought of following it up. The work of the Artillery throughout has been as perfect as first-class material and the ne plus ultra of training and splendid spirit would make it. Wherever the cavalry could get a chance they have taken it, and, among the infantry, England, Scotland, and Ireland have vied gloriously with one another to "get there" at all hazards, proudly indifferent to some genuine hardships and to losses occasionally of quite an appalling character.

It is now apparent that the task to which we have set ourselves in South Africa is far more serious than at first we imagined it would be. But the temper of the nation is such that this has, if anything, accentuated our determination not only to, as Lord Rosebery has said, "See this thing through," but to do so with a completeness which may possibly surprise some of our good friends across the Channel.

From about the middle of December an entirely new position, so far as we were concerned, was set up in South Africa, and, though as yet it is impossible to forecast what the result will be of the changes then effected, it is instructive to note that most of the warnings we have received have borne fruit in very definite and sensible action. Two generals have been appointed, one as Commander-in-Chief in South Africa, the other as Chief of the Staff, whose names are household words for brilliant leadership and organising capacity. Reinforcements are being prepared which will ultimately bring the British force in South Africa up to an aggregate of about 150,000 men, and war material is being hurried out in fast transports.

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

CAVALRY.

5th Dragoon Guards	E	Natal
6th " "	B	Cape Frontier
1st Royal Dragoons	D	Natal
2nd Dragoons (Scots Greys)		Cape Colony
5th Lancers	E	Natal
6th Dragoons	B	Cape Colony
9th Lancers	A	Cape Frontier
10th Hussars	B	Cape Colony
12th Lancers	A	Cape Frontier
13th Hussars	D	Natal
18th "	E	Natal
19th "	E	Natal

ROYAL ARTILLERY.

G and P Batteries, R.H.A.	A	Cape Frontier
O and R " "	B	Cape Frontier
4th Battery, R.F.A.		Cape Colony
7th " "	D	Natal
13th " "	E	Natal
14th " "	D	Natal
18th " "	A	Cape Frontier
21st " "	E	Ladysmith, Natal
37th " "	B	Cape Frontier
38th " "	C	Cape Frontier
42nd " "	E	Ladysmith, Natal
53rd " "	E	Ladysmith, Natal
61st " "	D	Natal
62nd " "	A	Cape Frontier
63rd " "		Cape Colony
64th " "	D	Natal
65th " "		Cape Colony
66th " "	D	Natal
67th " "	E	Ladysmith, Natal
69th " "	E	Ladysmith, Natal
73rd " "	D	Natal
74th " "	C	Cape Frontier
75th " "	A	Cape Frontier
77th " "	C	Cape Frontier
79th " "	C	Cape Colony
No. 4 Mountain Battery	D	Natal
No. 10 " "		Natal
14th Co. W. Division, R.G.A.	D	Cape Colony
23rd " "		Kimberley

INFANTRY.

1st Northumberland Fusiliers	A	Cape Frontier
1st Liverpool	E	Natal
1st Devonshire	E	Natal
1st Leicestershire	E	Natal
1st Gloucestershire	E	Natal
1st Border	D	Natal
1st North Lancashire*		Kimberley
2nd Berkshire	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Yorkshire L.I.	A	Cape Frontier
1st King's Royal Rifles	E	Natal
2nd " " "	F	Natal
1st Manchester	E	Natal
2nd Gordon Highlanders	E	Natal
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers	E	Natal
1st Munster Fusiliers	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Royal Dublin Fusiliers	E	Natal
2nd Rifle Brigade	E	Natal
2nd Devon	D	Natal
2nd West Yorkshire	D	Natal
2nd West Surrey	D	Natal
2nd East Surrey	D	Natal
1st Royal Welsh Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Irish Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Scots Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Highland L.I.	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Coldstream Guards	A	Cape Frontier
1st Scots Guards	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Royal Irish Rifles	C	Cape Frontier
2nd Northamptonshire	A	Cape Frontier
3rd Grenadiers	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Black Watch	A	Cape Frontier
1st Coldstream Guards	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Scottish Rifles	D	Natal
1st Argyll and Sutherland	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Seaforths	A	Cape Frontier
1st Durham Light Infantry	D	Natal
3rd King's Royal Rifles	D	Natal
1st Rifle Brigade	D	Natal
1st Welsh	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Somerset L.I.	D	Natal
2nd Northumberland Fusiliers	C	Cape Frontier
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Connaught Rangers	D	Natal
1st Royal Dublin Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Royal Scots	C	Cape Frontier
1st Gordon Highlanders	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Shropshire L.I.		Cape Frontier
2nd Cornwall L.I.	B	Cape Frontier
1st Suffolk		Cape Frontier
1st Essex		Cape Colony
1st Derbyshire	D	Natal
1st Yorkshire		Cape Colony
2nd Royal Warwickshire		Cape Colony
2nd Dorsetshire		Cape Colony
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers		Cape Colony
1st South Lancashire		Cape Colony

NOTE.—The units are thus distinguished: A denotes those under General Methuen operating on the Western Frontier; B, troops on line of communication from Cape Town, and those who under General French are holding the railway systems whose termini are Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, and East London; C, those under General Gatacre's command in the North-Eastern Province; D, those troops in Natal who under Sir Redvers Buller are operating for the relief of Ladysmith; E, those beleaguered in Ladysmith under the command of Sir George White.

The regiments leaving or en route are: Cavalry—Composite Regiment Household Cavalry, and 14th Hussars. Artillery—R.H.A., Q, T, and U Batteries; R.F.A., 19th, 20th, and 28th Batteries; 15th Co. W. Division, and 20th Co. S. Division, R.G.A.; and a siege train of 32 officers and 1,104 men. Infantry—2nd R. Lancaster, 1st York and Lancaster, 2nd Middlesex, 2nd East Kent, 2nd Bedford, 1st Royal Irish, 1st West Riding, 1st Oxford L.I., 2nd Wilts, 2nd Worcestershire, 2nd Gloucester, 2nd Lincoln, 2nd Norfolk, 1st Scottish Borderers, 1st East Lancashire, 2nd Cheshire, 2nd Hampshire, 2nd South Wales Borderers, 2nd North Staffordshire, 1st Lincoln, and 2nd East Yorkshire.

* Left half battalion with Methuen.

Digitized by Google

Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories.

By Frederick G. Engelbach.

WALTHAM ABBEY.—II.

THE GENESIS OF GUN-COTTON.
The Acid Mixing Shed.

MIXING ACIDS BY COMPRESSED AIR.

BEFORE describing the working-up of the new product, it is as well to closely examine the manufacture of its chief constituents. Taking 90 as the whole, the proportions are as follows:

Nitro-glycerine	43·5
Gun-cotton . .	27·75
Acetone . . .	15·1
Mineral jelly .	3·75

As regards the mineral jelly or vaseline, this is used simply to render the resulting mass softer and more readily moulded. It takes no part in the explosive force, and acts quite mechanically. The acetone, mentioned in the preceding article, is derived by the destructive distillation of acetate of lime. Its function is to dissolve and to amalgamate the gun-cotton and nitro-glycerine for the purpose of moulding. This object achieved, the manufacturer gets rid of the solvent by drying under gentle heat.

The exigencies of space require nitro-glycerine, or N.G., as it is familiarly known at Waltham, to stand over until the next article, and hence gun-cotton, although second in point of proportion, is taken first. This powerful explosive can be watched in all its processes, being altogether most amenable to treatment. It is produced by the action of nitric and sulphuric acids upon cotton, a chemical process sufficiently marvellous, seeing that it converts that innocuous material into an explosive second only to nitro-glycerine in its power.

A STUDY IN THE COTTON-PICKING ROOM.

To begin with, carboys of acids made in the factory are brought into a huge shed, where they stand in batches ready for use. By means of a lift, shown in Ill. 1, the carboys are hoisted up some 10-ft. and tipped into a lead conduit. First nitric and then sulphuric acid is poured out, the corrosive stream flowing into large cylindrical boilers (Ill. 2).

By means of tiny tubes seen at the extremity of the boilers, a jet of compressed air bubbles through the acids, making their union complete. For the manufacture of gun-cotton, the finest cotton waste is bought in Manchester, and arrives in bags weighing 1-cwt. In spite of great care in packing, various foreign bodies get into the cotton, and hence it has to be hand-picked and teazled. This essentially feminine occupation falls to the lot of nine women, who are either the widows or relatives of men employed in the factory. When picked

Photos. Copyright. OVEN FOR DRYING COTTON. "Navy & Army."
The Cotton Passes into the Oven on the Right of the Picture.

Digitized by Google

NITRATING SHOP.
In the Dinner Hour.

POACHING MACHINE FOR "WASHING" GUN-COTTON.

Photos. Copyright. MOULDING GUN-COTTON DISCS. "Navy & Army."

and teazled (Ill. 3), the cotton is thrown on to a wide revolving band, which carries it through a species of window into the drying-room. Here is a vast oven with a multitude of tiny doors (Ill. 4), each one of which opens on to the cotton as it passes through. In the oven is arranged an endless band, which, as it passes backwards and forwards, carries the cotton from the top to the bottom of the drying chamber. The journey takes 20-min., and the heat is kept up to 180-deg. before the charge is considered absolutely dry. Finally, when at the lowest tier, it passes out, still on the band, up an inclined shoot and drops into a bin. From this receptacle it is weighed into tins, each holding 1¼-lb., and is sent forward for the nitrating process in the next shop.

It must be understood that these buildings are only subdivisions of one large factory, and are thus side by side, a fact which reduces the handling of the charge to a minimum. In Ill. 5 small tunnels will be noticed under the chimneys, and it is through these that the dried picked cotton is thrust to fall into the bath of acid below. The 1¼-lb. of waste soaks up nearly 14-lb. of the fuming acid, some of which has to be removed. The workmen, armed with iron wringers, squeeze the free acid from the cotton and place it, after 5-min. immersion, in covered pots, which can be seen standing in water in the foreground of Ill. 5.

At this stage innocent cotton makes its exit and "explosive" enters, and the normal care has to be increased or explosions will inevitably occur. The fumes given off by the acids in this airy shop are very corrosive, and men working long in the nitrating-house find that their teeth suffer. Worn-out Army clothing is served out for use in the factory, as the acid plays havoc with cloth of any kind, and this produces a most bizarre effect upon the visitor. After a due period of cooling, the contents of six pots are placed in a centrifugal wringing-machine, and in it the bulk of the superfluous acid is removed. The much-harassed cotton is then washed by machinery, until almost every trace of the acid is removed. The washing finished, there remains the boiling, which takes place in huge vats closely resembling elephantine casks in appearance. In all, twelve different waters are used in this process, and the boiling takes seventy-two hours to complete.

When wrung out, the cotton is placed in bags and carried to the pulping-machine shop, where rapidly-revolving knives so mince it that it forms an impalpable powder, rendering milky white the water with which it is flooded. The paddle-wheel machine, or poacher, as it is called, shown in Ill. 6, is used for thoroughly washing every particle of the powdered gun-cotton, and by the rapid revolution of the paddles this purpose is completely achieved. Then with a funnel, shown to the right of Ill. 7, the workman draws off the supernatant water, leaving the explosive as a white precipitate. From these machines the gun-cotton is carried into a large receiver styled the "stuff-chest." From this, smaller tanks are filled, called gauge-tanks, seen in Ill. 7 (high left), which hold enough to fill the moulder shown in the same illustration. Then by means of rails the soft mass is carried to the press, where, under a pressure of 34-lb. to the square inch, it is moulded into discs of gun-cotton.

Digitized by Google

These still contain far too much water, and after being drilled like so many wooden blocks they are carried to another press (Ill. 8). There, under a pressure of six to seven tons per square inch, the disc is reduced in size to half, and the moisture brought down to about 14 per cent. The workman is guarded from injury by a heavy rope mantlet, which protects him far more than thin iron or steel would do. Fortunately for the comfort of the visitor, gun-cotton requires lighting and confining in a closed space to develop its terrific power, otherwise the pressing-room would be a trying one to visit.

The gun-cotton intended for cordite manufacture is, of course, not compressed, but is dried and sent to the N.G. factory, where in the next article its progress can be watched.

Photo. Copyright. A SILENT GIANT. "Navy & Army."
Machine for Pressing Gun-cotton Discs.

(Previous articles of this series appeared on July 15 and October 14.)

Durban and the War.

WHEN this war is over Natal will have owing to her by the Empire a very deep debt of gratitude. It would be hard to over-estimate the splendid services that its colonists have rendered to the Imperial cause. They have seen their country overrun by the enemy, and their property destroyed, without a murmur or complaint, and the gallant little colony has put the cream of her manhood into the field to fight the Empire's battle. Truly they "come of The Blood; slower to bless than to ban; little used to lie down at the bidding of any man." And the Empire will never forget Natal's work for it in the hour of stress. Although Pieter Maritzburg is the capital and seat of the Government, Durban is by far the largest and most important town; doubly important in that it is the only port in the colony, whose coast-line extends along 170 miles of the Indian Ocean. It is a wonderfully well-watered country, for in this small stretch of coast-line no less than twenty-three distinct rivers debouch into the sea. Two of our pictures illustrate a couple of phases of life at Durban that are to-day strongly in evidence, one the landing of troops, the other the camp of the refugees from the Transvaal who have made Durban their temporary home. Troops to form the force for the relief of beleaguered Ladysmith continued to pour into Natal for weeks, and, of course, by its only port, Durban. Thanks to the ingenuity of that splendid engineer, the late Sir John Coode, the bar at Durban has now been made possible for the largest steamers. But a few years back steamers had to discharge their cargoes in the open roadstead into lighters, as only ships of very light draught could cross the bar. The bulk of the destitute Uitlanders, who at scant notice had to clear from Johannesburg, gravitated from Lourenco Marques to Durban, the first British territory where they could find succour and shelter. Many, moreover, flocked in from Zululand when the Boer inrush on the north-east forced our farmers and traders located on the borderland along the line of the Tugela to fall back into Natal. Two of our illustrations show scenes on the Zululand border of the colony.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."
THE LATEST ARRIVALS FROM ENGLAND—TROOPS DISEMBARKING FROM A TRANSPORT.

Digitized by Google

TUGELA RAILWAY STATION.
Waiting for the Train to Durban

One is of the railway station, where the line ends that runs from Durban along the coast to the point where the Tugela debouches into the Indian Ocean, and the picture is of special interest, for the two seated under the signboard "Tugela" are the Mayor of Durban and the Right Hon. Harry Escombe. Mr. Escombe is one of the most prominent of Natal's public men. He has been Attorney-General, Minister for Education, and Prime Minister.

He is one of the most popular of Durban's citizens, and has represented that town as its premier member in the Legislative Assembly of Natal since 1872. He is also honorary commander of the Natal Naval Volunteers, who are now doing such good work at the front, and was from 1881 till 1894 chairman of the Natal Harbour Board, and it is in a great measure due to his exertions that the colony has got the fine seaport that it now possesses. When, two years ago, the Empire celebrated Her Majesty's Diamond Jubilee, it was Mr. Escombe who represented the loyal little colony of Natal in London, and on that occasion the University of Cambridge, of which he is a graduate, conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D. Mr. Escombe is, moreover, a very fine chess player, and an astronomer of some repute. Another illustration shows a bullock waggon crossing the Tugela, and very typically depicts the country method of transportation.

CROSSING THE TUGELA.
Leaving Zululand to Escape the Boers.

All the Boer transport service is done by these bullock waggons, and the one here shown with its team of trek oxen is that of one of the raiding parties that crossed the Tugela where that river forms the boundary line between Natal and Zululand.

Great improvements have been made at Durban since the troops were landed there for the Zulu War. Then the troop-ships were forced to lie some three miles off the bluff, but nowadays, as we have explained, large steamers can enter the port with ease, as there are 27-ft. of water on the bar at high tide, and disembarkation can be carried out with ease and safety.

In the Zulu War every man and horse had to be landed in lighters, whereas everything can now be taken direct to the wharves, and bad weather does not delay the work in the least.

REFUGEES AT DURBAN.
The Temporary Home of Transvaal Uitlanders.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

NEVER more than now were the officers and men of Her Majesty's Services, both ashore and afloat, keener to know how their compatriots who are fighting the Empire's battles are doing; and so it is little to be wondered at that the group here illustrated are conning their NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED with the keenest of interest. Good pictorial illustration helps the man who has but little time to spare to follow events, which is one reason why the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED is so popular in our war-ships.

The diverse duties that devolve upon the Naval officer whilst guarding our sea realm

NEWS FROM THE FRONT.
Petty Officers Reading "The Navy and Army Illustrated."

American ensign, upside down to show distress. The vessel when boarded was found to be derelict. And no wonder her crew had abandoned her, as for about 40-ft. amidships, on both sides, her bulwarks were washed away, the sea had completely gutted her upper works, and had reduced her to a condition in which she floated with a free-board of something like 18-in. The "Crescent" took her in tow, but had, owing to weather conditions, to abandon her when nearing Bermuda. But a derelict like this, if left floating almost submerged, is a danger to navigation, and so the "Crescent" again put out to seek her. The hunt was suc-

Photos. Copyright.

A DANGER TO NAVIGATION.
A Derelict Timber Ship in Mid-Atlantic.

SALVAGE WORK BY THE NAVY. "Navy & Army."
The "Crescent" Preparing to Take a Derelict in Tow.

—which means the British realm—are always onerous, and very often quaint. One of the little duties self-imposed on Her Majesty's Navy fell to the lot of the "Crescent," the flag-ship on the North American station, when she was the other day crossing from Halifax to Bermuda. A heavy water-logged timber ship, the "William E. Downes," from Newhaven, Connecticut, was seen flying a ragged and torn

Photo. Copyright. THE SOUTHERN INDIA ARMY RIFLE TEAM, 1899. Barton, Son, & Co.
Winners of the Match "Army v. Volunteers."
C.-Sgt. Worsley, Rl. Warwick. C.-Sgt. Hornsey, E. Yorks. Sgt. Shipway, Cheshire Reg. Major E. J. Lamb, Cheshire Reg. Sgt. D. E. Instone, E. Yorks. Sgt. Scriven Middlesex Reg. Sgt. Evans. E. Yo ks.
Hon. Lt. W. Church, Lincoln Regt. Capt. Dixon, Rl. Warwick. Major H. R. Blyth. Rl. Warwick. Lt.-Col. Mackenzie Kennedy, 1st Madras Pioneers. Major Pagnal, E. Yorks. Capt. How, Secretary.

cessful. She was found, with considerable difficulty, as a heavy sea was running, got again in tow, and brought into Bermuda. In our pictures are seen first the derelict, and in the second the "Crescent" preparing to get her in tow. And now the question comes in of who is going to get the salvage. The ship and cargo are estimated to value at least £4,000. As will be seen from our picture, she was a well-found ship in spars, and her mainmast alone is valued at £70. Bermuda, the writer believes, has a law under which all derelicts become the property of the local government, and whether that law is going to override the ordinary settlement of salvage is an interesting point.

Digitized by Google

The team illustrated over-page is that which, at the recent meeting of the Southern India Rifle Association at Hebbel, in the Madras Presidency, was selected to compete in the annual match of Regulars and Volunteers. The match was won by the Army. In all regiments, and especially those stationed in India, there will be found many officers who are exceptionally keen on musketry, and first-class rifle shots, and, as will be seen from our illustration, a good percentage of the team consisted of officers.

There is no truer saying than that all things change, and nothing does so more rapidly and consistently than second-class cruisers. On the East Indies station a second-class cruiser is usually the flag-ship. We have jumped well within ten years from the "Apollo" class, of 3,400 tons, to the "Highflyer," of 5,600 tons, and this latter ship, here depicted in dock at Keyham, now goes out to replace, as flag-ship on the East Indies station, the "Eclipse," of the same size but just four years older. And the four years' difference makes her a ship of considerably higher gun-power and speed than the cruiser she replaces. As will be seen from our illustration, a very low free-board ship like the "Polyphemus" is not the most comfortable vessel to be on board of in bad weather. At present it is evident that the officers have found the usual mess routine rather rudely broken in upon. But the carpenter's crew are busy at work, and it will not be long before a stop will be put to the inrush of salt water amongst the breakfast cups and dishes.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

A NICE COMMAND.

The "Highflyer," New Flag-ship for the East Indies Station.

UNCOMFORTABLE BUT AMUSING.

The Low Free-board Torpedo-ram "Polyphemus" Shipping a Sea.

It is not often one sees a lady seated in the centre of a group such as that here given. In this case the lady is Mrs. Goodrich, and the officers and crew are those of the "Pearl," the third-class cruiser which her husband commissioned some two years back for the North American station. Mrs. Goodrich is exceptionally popular on board, and it was by a general wish that she should be in the group.

Photo. Copyright. Notman.

THE OFFICERS AND CREW OF THE "PEARL."

Digitized by Google

COLONEL BADEN-POWELL and his opponent at Mafeking, Commandant Snyman, may not, and probably do not, know it, but they have been holding a modern version of a famous military conversation which took place more than two thousand years ago. The colonel says to the commandant: "Sitting there and looking at Mafeking is not the way to take it." His proposition is of dubious accuracy, since all fortresses can be taken by sitting and looking at them, if you do it long enough. Yet it served its turn, which was to worry the Boer commandant, who answered: "Why do you not come out and drive me away?" Now, in the Social War of Rome, when the subordinate Latin States took arms against her, this very exchange of taunts went on between Caius Marius, who commanded for Rome, and Pompedius Silo, who commanded for the enemy. This is how it is told in North's Plutarch: "It is said also that Pompedius Silo, who was the chiefest captain of reputation and authority the enemies had, said unto Marius on a time: 'If thou be Marius, so great a captain as they say thou art, leave thy camp and come out to battle.' 'Nay,' said Marius to him again; 'if thou be a great captain, pluck me out by the ears, and compel me to come to battle.'" In one form or another this little dialogue has passed between many fighting men. The French generals in the Peninsula were often much annoyed by the Duke's caution, but it was never found that he allowed himself to be drawn by their sarcasms. Indeed, unless it be for the purpose of heartening his own followers, one does not see why any leader utters them. He must be an innocent general who allows himself to be trapped into doing what his enemy wants by such a very obvious device.

* * * *

Our excellent friends on the Continent go on making the same old foolish assertions about the constitution of the British Army. In fact, as is but natural, they are making them rather more than usual at present. Here, for instance, is an article in the usually sane and well-informed Revue du Cercle Militaire, signed "Count H. de Missy," which repeats all the old platitudes. The British Army, it seems, is composed of the cream and the scum, of officers who are all aristocrats of the bluest blood and soldiers who are the dregs of the people mostly forced into the ranks by hunger. Count H. de Missy repeats all the old common-places, and makes the stock quotations from Wellington—his complaints of his own drunken blackguards, and his praise of the French armies, because the conscription brought many of the best elements of the population into their ranks. Of course, there is an element of truth in all this, and yet it is mostly nonsense. It was never true that the bulk of English officers were "aristocrats" in any rational sense of the word. As for the men in the ranks, there were ruffians among them, no doubt, but their French equivalents were swept into the ranks of Napoleon's army by the conscription. If the French armies of that time were kept better in hand than ours when their generals chose to control them, which was not always the case, the reason was not so much the presence of better elements among them, as because the Emperor's armies had a fine military police in the gendarmerie.

* * * *

Do Frenchmen when they talk like this forget that, after all, Wellington beat them? It was a difficult thing to do, and for a long time he had to be very cautious; still, it was done. His delays were not due to the quality of his army, but to its size. The troops which turned Soult out of Oporto would have been perfectly capable of making an end of Victor at Talavera—if there had been enough of them. It was the want of solid British and German troops (for we ought not to forget that some of the best of Wellington's men were Germans), the inexperience of the Portuguese, and the utter want of organisation and good officers in the Spanish armies, which forced the English general to play a very careful game for long. But the mere fact that his army stood the strain, and continued to grow steadily better, ought to make critics pause before asserting that it was so badly composed. As for the French armies, there is a good deal to deduce from what is said about them as proofs of the excellence of a conscription. The truth is that the excellence of the Imperial armies was mainly due to the professional soldiers. They were the survivors of the vast hosts of the early wars of the Republic. Napoleon kept them permanently with the colours, and recruited his Guard among them. As they were worn out the quality of the French troops sank rapidly. There was a great fall in the armies in Spain when the Emperor drew the older men of every regiment away for service in the Russian Campaign and replaced them by conscripts, who perished in enormous numbers in the hard Spanish climate. When the Grand Army was destroyed in Russia the French armies became decidedly inferior to the Allies. The great host which the Emperor led into Germany in 1813 practically disappeared in one campaign. It was the veteran element of professional soldiers which alone came through. What the history of those wars really proves is the superiority of the man to whom war has become a trade. Of course, large numbers of them can be got by making a national levy, by using them up in tens of thousands, and then combining the survivors into corps d'élite—which is what the French did. But it takes years of war to do that, and it is a very costly process. We reached the same result by voluntary enlistment at a much cheaper rate.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

* * * *

The sentimental vein of the French comes out very strongly in the last sentence of Count H. de Missy. After drawing his fancy picture of the British Army, all aristocrats and scum, he ends by saying: "Such are the soldiers called to fight the Boers, who are animated by the most ardent patriotism, and are supported by that most powerful moral factor, the defence of the hearth, independence, and freedom." Our French friend begs the question freely; but supposing he is right, were not his countrymen fighting for the hearth, for independence, and freedom in the Army of the Loire, and yet they were beaten? If ever armies had this moral factor on their side, the Spaniards had in the Peninsular War, and yet they were routed over and over again by the so-called French forces, which were largely Germans and Italians, Poles and Dutchmen, recruited by the Emperor against their will. The successes of the Boers do not need to be accounted for by such superfine reasons. They have a good practical system of fighting, which they thoroughly understand; they are well armed, are cleverly led in the main, and have fought, as they are perfectly entitled to do, on the conditions most favourable to themselves. Also they come of a tough race, with plenty of fight in it. Therefore, their successes are in no wise miraculous. If we have played part of their game for them, which appears to be very much the case, so much the worse for us, and we must arrange to do better next time. When all is said, we have not suffered more from the Boers than the French did from the Chinamen at Lang-Son.

* * * *

If one must cast about for a moral reason to explain the successes of the Boers, one can be got without the use of high falutin'. War, when science has done its best, is a business of making holes in other people at the risk of having a hole made in yourself. That is to say, it is essentially brutal. The more civilised a race is, the higher its standard of comfort, the more keen its humanity, the more will it suffer from the hardships of war. It will not become less brave at any given moment, but it feels the pressure. So it requires a special training to harden it for the business of war. Now the Boers, in the Transvaal particularly, lead a harder life than Englishmen, and are the coarser of fibre in consequence, which, so far, is all to their advantage. There is a large element of truth in the old doctrine that "luxury," by which what is really meant is the love of comfort, unfits men for war. The French have only to remember their own experience in 1870-71 to see so much. They did not compare very favourably with the Germans, of whom the large majority had been brought up on rye bread and potatoes.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

JANUARY 7, 1602.—Attack on Ostend repulsed. Archduke Albert of Austria attacked the town, but was repulsed by Sir Francis Vere. 1760. — Action at Eybach. Major Keith's Highlanders — afterwards the 87th—attacked a regiment of French Dragoons, and supported by Lackner's Hussars defeated them, taking eighty prisoners, 200 horses, and the baggage of the regiment. 1809.—Engagement near Cayenne. A force of British and Portuguese, under Sir James Yeo, defeated the French. 1841.—Capture of Chuenpee. Major J. L. Pratt, with a force composed of Royal Artillery, with a howitzer and two field pieces, and detachments of the 26th and 49th, a battalion of Royal Marines, the 37th Madras No. 1, a detachment of Bengal Volunteers, and some Bluejackets, aided by the guns from war vessels lying near the town, carried the enemy's works, and the British flag was planted on the upper fort. 1898.—Taking of the Sangho Pass—Tirah campaign.

January 8, 1782. — Sortie from Tellicherry. Hyder Ali's army defeated by Major Abington. 1795.—Battle of Beueren. Defeat of the French by Lord Cathcart. 1806.—Sir David Baird defeated the Dutch at Blue Mountains, Cape of Good Hope. 1809.—Capture of Cayenne completed. 1812.—Redoubt of San Francisco captured—Peninsula War.

January 9, 1753.—Action near Trivadi. Defeat of the Mahrattas, by Major Lawrence. 1779.—Surrender of Sunbury, America, to General Prevost. 1806.—Surrender of the Cape of Good Hope by the Dutch, after the battle of Blawberg.

January 10, 1781.—Repulse of Hyder Ali, at Vellore. Colonel Lang successfully repulsed an attack on the town by a strong body of Mysoreans. 1782.—Sir Eyre Coote succeeded in lodging a convoy of provisions within the walls of Vellore. 1818.—Mahrattas routed by Major-General Brown, at Ranpoora.

January 11, 1757.—Hoogly taken. Sir Eyre Coote took this city with the loss only of three Europeans and ten Sepoys. 1782.—Trincomalee captured by surprise. 1879.—Zulu War began, in consequence of Cetewayo refusing to deliver up the perpetrators of an outrage in British territory.

January 12, 1809.—Capitulation of Cayenne. 1810.—Capture of Booloe Comba. This Dutch settlement to the south-east of Macassar was captured by a small party of troops and sailors landed from the "Cornwallis," and led by Captain Forbes and Lieutenant D. Stewart. 1842.—Action near Candahar. Major-General Nott attacked Prince Suftur Jung five miles to the west of Candahar, and routed his army. 1879. — Lord Chelmsford crossed the Tugela, and entered Zululand.

January 13, 1782.—Surrender of Calicut. The Mysoreans, without waiting to be attacked, surrendered to Major Abington. 1814.—The French driven from Merxem. During a reconnaissance of Antwerp, by the Prussians under Bulow, and the British under Sir Thomas Graham, the French were dislodged from the village of Merxem by Colonel M'Leod's brigade. 1849.—Battle of Chillianwallah. The British, under Lord Gough, utterly defeated the Sikhs, who lost between 3,000 and 4,000 men, while our casualties were 26 officers killed and 66 wounded, and 731 men killed and 1,446 wounded.

JANUARY 7, 1806.—Capture of the Spanish 16-gun brig "Raposa," by the boats of the "Franchise," 36, in the Bay of Campeachy. The boats pulled in five leagues, and attacked in broad moonlight, picking the "Raposa" out of a flotilla in which were two other Spanish gun-brigs, an armed schooner, and seven gun-boats. Carrying the "Raposa" by boarding, they then, with her own guns, beat off the rest of the Spaniards, and then brought their prize off safely.

January 8, 1758.—French privateer "Vengeance," 32, taken by the "Hussar," 28, the prize became the first "Vengeance." 1761.—The French frigate "Vestale," 32, taken by the "Unicorn," 32, prize—renamed—became the first "Flora." 1780.—Rodney's capture of Spanish convoy off Finisterre. French privateer "Betsey," 16, taken by the "Kingfisher," 18. 1880. — Promotion of the Duke of York to midshipman.

January 9, 1734.—John Jervis, Earl St. Vincent, born. 1801.—Capture of the cutter "Constitution," by two larger French cutters, off Portland, and recapture by the "Harpy," 18, and the "Greyhound," cutter. 1811.—French privateer "Aimable Flare," taken in the channel by the "Princess Charlotte," 38.

January 10, 1806.—Dutch "Bato," 68-gunship, and "Atalante," 40-gun frigate, destroyed by a British squadron at the Cape. 1810.—French privateer "Saratin," 20, taken by the "Plover," 18.

January 11, 1782.—Capture of the "Trincomalee," by the seamen and marines of Sir Edward Hughes's fleet. 1794.—Daring escape of the "Juno," Captain Samuel Hood, after entering Toulon Harbour. 1810.—French privateer "Aimable Nelly," 16, cut out of Dieppe by the "Cherskee," 10. Naval medal.

January 12, 1617.—"Dolphin," 18, beat off five Turkish cruisers. 1806.—Naval force assists at the reduction of the Cape of Good Hope. 1810.—French "Oreste," gun brig, taken by the "Scorpion," 18, under the batteries of Basse Terre Guadeloupe.

January 13, 1797.—Action between the "Indefatigable," 44, and the "Amazon," 36, with the French "Droits de l'Nomme," 74. 1829.—Admiral of the Fleet, Sir J. E. Commerell, G.C.B., V.C., born.

Heroes We Mourn.

THERE is not in the Empire one soul whose heart does not go out in sympathy to the veteran who, when plunged in grief for the loss of his only son, finds himself called on to assume a responsibility as onerous as can fall to the lot of any soldier. Poor young Roberts died in a gallant effort to save the guns on the banks of the Tugela. So gallantly, indeed, that he carried recommendation for the same cross that his father won forty-one years ago. Let us hope that a posthumous award may, at any rate, give a glow of pride to the hearts of the bereaved parents, a procedure for which there are several precedents. Roberts—who was only twenty-seven—joined the Service at the age of nineteen, and in eight years had seen four campaigns. He took part in the Izazai Expedition in 1892, in the Waziristan Campaign of 1894, in the Relief of Chitral in 1895, and in the capture of Omdurman in 1898. The poor lad had received an abdominal wound, and, though Sir William MacCormac operated and removed the bullet, there was from the first but faint hope of his recovery. Lieutenant Roberts vacated the appointment of A.D.C. to his father to go on active service.

Two other of those whose portraits are given also fell at the Tugela on that sad December 15. The 1st Dublin Fusiliers lost their senior company officer in Captain A. H. Bacon, the erstwhile most popular adjutant of their 4th Battalion, the Royal Dublin City Militia. Another Irish Fusilier Battalion, the Inniskilling, lost its most junior captain, Cochrane Loftus. He had only quite recently returned from active service with the West African Rifles, and when he went to Natal with his regiment was scarcely recovered from a severe wound received in the late fighting in Sierra Leone. Five of those whose portraits are given in this issue met their death at Magersfontein. One, Colonel G. L. J. Goff, had been for close on eighteen months in command of the 1st Argyll and Sutherland, a battalion he had joined as a youth of twenty, a little less than a quarter of a century ago. He was not seeing service in South Africa for the first time, for with the battalion he was commanding he had as a subaltern been through the Zulu Campaign of 1879, and served both at Ginginhlovo and at the relief of Eshowe. One of the most popular officers of the Coldstreams was Major A. J. H. Beaumont, Marquess of Winchester. Head of one of the most ancient of our noble families, he was premier Marquess of England, and hereditary bearer of the Cap of Maintenance, an heraldic emblem of dignity carried before the sovereigns of England at their coronation. He also was not seeing his first war service, for, as A.D.C. to Sir John M'Neill, he had shared in much stiff fighting in the Soudan in 1885, notably at "Machill's Zereba," or "Tofrek" as it is officially termed. The Northumberland Fusiliers have both battalions suffering heavily in the Old Colony, and at Magersfontein they lost one of their best young officers, who was detached for duty with mounted infantry. In eleven years Ray, who was only thirty-one when he lost his life trying to save a comrade, had gained a brevet majority. He had been adjutant of his battalion since 1895 up to last October, and it was his service in that capacity that had won him his brevet in Kitchener's Khartoum campaign. Portraits of two of the subalterns killed in the fighting—both Highlanders—are also here given. One was Lieutenant E. Cox, the second senior subaltern of the Seaforths, who, although he had barely completed eight years' service, had already made his mark. For he was one of Gatacre's A.D.C.'s in the Khartoum Expedition, and served with such distinction that he earned mention in despatches and received, in addition, of course, to the two medals given for the campaign, the Fourth Class of the Medjidie. Poor Campbell, of the Gordons, was senior second lieutenant of his battalion, though he was under twenty years of age, and had not been quite seven months in the Service. Lieutenant Fergusson of the Rifle Brigade had some three years' service in the 2nd Battalion of his regiment, the one now with White in Ladysmith. He met his death in the sortie made by his battalion on the night of December 10, when the Boer heavy gun mounted on Surprise Hill was captured and destroyed. He was a son of the regiment, his father, Colonel Fergusson, Professor of Tactics at Sandhurst, having been a quarter of a century in the brigade. He served with his battalion through the last Soudan Campaign.

Major Plumbe, R.M.L.I., was the senior officer of the Marines belonging to the Naval Brigade who behaved so superbly at the battle of Graspan. Plumbe's dying shout to his lads was, "Go forward, men, never mind me." He had seen service in the Egyptian Campaign of 1882, and was wounded in two places at Tel-el-Kebir. Finally, in the person of Major E. W. Grey, the Royal Army Medical Corps lost the first of its number to fall in this campaign, in the action fought at Farquhar's Farm, outside Ladysmith, on October 30.

Digitized by Google

Coercion and the Volunteers.

By Callum Beg.

MOST of us know something of Volunteering. Indeed, there are but few families in Great Britain which have not a more or less personal interest in our Citizen Army. It is, however, very rarely that we encounter anyone—be he volunteer or civilian—who has the slightest elementary knowledge of the rules to which volunteers are subject in peace and war. It is commonly believed that the volunteer "Tommy Atkins" is subject to no such rigid discipline as is his brother of the Regular Army. It is imagined that a volunteer may go out and come in as he thinks fit, and obey no order of which he does not approve; but this is far from being true.

Generally speaking, a volunteer corps is governed by the Volunteer Act, 1863, and the details of discipline, etc., are set out in this Act and in the "Regulations for the Volunteer Force," but there are times when our gallant defenders, although they undertake their arduous duties without hope of reward, become subject to the Army Act, and are liable, then, to be tried by court-martial for any offence they may commit. Before touching on the punishments which may, in these circumstances, be meted out, it will not be out of place to make some mention of discipline as it exists under ordinary circumstances—let us say on a Saturday afternoon parade.

Among the finest corps of volunteers are the Queen's Westminster and London Scottish in London; the Queen's Rifle Volunteer Brigade in Edinburgh; the 1st V.B. Warwickshire Regiment in Birmingham; and the 1st V.B. Hampshire Regiment in Winchester. It is not suggested that the battalions mentioned are superior to any others in the Force, but those we have mentioned are all renowned for their smartness and efficiency, and we feel sure that one or other of them is known to the majority of the readers of the Navy and Army Illustrated. Let us suppose, then, that some private in one of the corps named—despite the fact that all alike are known as well-disciplined battalions—is foolish enough to "kick over the traces" when marching through the streets of his native city. It may be that he continues to smoke when the word of command "Attention!" is given, and refuses to remove his pipe when ordered to do so by his company officer. What mode of procedure would be adopted? A simple method might be found in knocking the briar from between the teeth of the offending party; but this is not according to the military "Cocker." The case would at once be reported to the commanding officer, who would place the offender in the custody of another private or non-commissioned officer. He would be deprived of his arms, and return to headquarters a prisoner. This power is allowed by the Volunteer Act, but, unfortunately, the colonel has no power to keep the offender in custody after the corps is dismissed. Therefore, if he were anxious to make an example of the insubordinate volunteer, he would of necessity be obliged to keep the corps on parade while he administered the "telling off."

Now on such an occasion the commanding officer could not award imprisonment or any similar punishment, because the corps would not be subject to military law; but he could, there and then, by the power vested in him, dismiss the erring one from the corps without further ceremony—a punishment which, for any but the most abandoned, would be hard enough to bear. Although discharged, the ex-volunteer would still be obliged to deliver up in good order his arms, clothing, and appointments, and to pay any money due to the corps by reason of his discharge or otherwise.

There is practically only one other punishment which can be inflicted on a volunteer when not subject to military law, and which is in itself most degrading. Everyone knows how proud are all ranks of the volunteers of the Officers' Volunteer Decoration or of the Long Service Medal, but there are occasions on which Her Majesty is wont to deprive the recipient of one of these honourable decorations. This is only done when the wearer of the V.D. or medal has been guilty of some dishonourable conduct, such as misappropriating the funds of the corps. In addition to this deprivation—itself a punishment—the individual stigmatised in this way would, if still serving, be "gazetted out" if an officer, and if a non-commissioned officer or man, dismissed from his corps. When an officer is removed from the Volunteer Service, it is usually stated in the London Gazette that the Queen has no further need of his services.

In the event of a volunteer failing to attend sufficient drills to qualify himself as "efficient," he is straightway applied to for the amount of the capitation grant paid by the Government and lost by his carelessness. If he refuses to pay, he is summoned before a magistrate, and unless he can show some very good reason for not having made himself efficient, is fined the amount, with costs. This, however, can hardly be regarded as a punishment, seeing that the volunteer is merely sued for debt due to the corps.

Careless of Consequences.

So much for the punishments to which volunteers are liable when not under military law, if, indeed, they can be called punishments.

When the amateur "Tommy" comes under the grasp of the Army Act, the strings of discipline are drawn considerably tighter; but before touching on the penalties which may be enforced by our military code, it may be well to explain in what circumstances and at what times volunteers become subject to military law.

First, then, if called out on actual military service, the citizen soldier becomes to all intents and purposes a soldier. Nor can he disregard the call to arms. In the event of invasion he would be disciplined in exactly the same manner as his comrades of the Line, and would be placed under similar régime if attached at any time to regulars or militia when out for training. When, therefore, a volunteer proceeds to Aldershot for training and is attached to regular troops, he at once becomes a soldier "within the meaning of the Act," but cannot be compelled to subject himself to military law by being so attached unless called out for "actual military service." Thus, if a brigade of five or more battalions takes the field in mimic warfare, at Easter or in summer, unaccompanied by regular troops, the men composing it cannot be punished in a more severe manner than is sanctioned by the Volunteer Act and the "Regulations for the Volunteer Force." If, on the other hand, a body of regular troops is brigaded with the volunteers, the latter at once change their status as far as discipline is concerned, no matter how small may be the number of regular soldiers "told off" to assist them in acquiring some knowledge of field manœuvres. At such times the volunteer may be tried by a court-martial, if he be guilty of any offence liable to trial, and punished, in accordance with the Army Act, by "death or such less punishment as is in this Act mentioned." Capital punishment is, of course, only allowed in the cases of murder or of certain offences committed on active service.

Digitized by Google

A "HISTORY of the British Army" (Macmillan, 2 vols. 36s.) should have many readers at the present time, for the military glories of the country are now appealing very largely to popular and patriotic feeling. The book, however, has very great permanent value, and, though brilliant in style, is serious and scholarly in manner. It is by the Hon. J. W. Fortescue, and its two volumes are the introduction to the series of four which will bring down the history from early times to the year 1870. So far as the work has at present gone, it recounts our military history up to the end of the Seven Years' War. Though the period was full of sounding achievements, it was certainly not the most important in our military annals; but, at the same time, we do not forget that it was in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries that the British Army actually took shape, and that the most far-reaching changes in armament and tactics were made. Since that time there has been no change so important as the veritable revolution which was caused by the introduction of firearms, and by the creation of the military caste. In earlier periods our forces had been more comparable to a militia, and although the English archer had been the pioneer in reducing the value of the mediæval heavy mounted arm, and had taught the lesson to the Continent, it was from the Continent that we received our instructions in the tactics of firearms. Perhaps the most successful part of Mr. Fortescue's book is in his treatment of the important changes of that period, and of the constitutional questions that were raised by the creation of a standing army. It was largely the excesses of Cromwell's military despotism that led to the national fear of a standing military force, which was regarded as a menace to the liberties of the people, and the prejudice which was engendered existed even into the nineteenth century.

* * * *

The book contains a particularly good account of the campaigns of the Duke of Marlborough, and of the tactics and strategy of the time. It was chiefly due to the Duke of Cumberland, and to the Great Commoner, that the Army was raised from the state of chaos into which it afterwards fell, and that the force was created which was used so effectively by Wellington. The men who swore so terribly in Flanders had left a tradition of iron discipline, which came from the armies of Frederick. But, under enlightened leaders, a more powerful and a more flexible organisation was created, which added largely to the means of victory. It would have been a pleasure to quote many passages from Mr. Fortescue's book. He is a brilliant writer, who has recounted splendid achievements with becoming enthusiasm, and his chapters glow with the fervour of personal gallantry, even where they do not record the accomplishment of military triumph. For the rest, they contain an adequate account of all our military transactions during the period under review. It is, perhaps, to be regretted that we have not a clearer picture of military life at certain periods, but in writing a book of this kind there is the necessity of choice, and, on the whole, Mr. Fortescue has chosen exceedingly well. One extract may suffice to illustrate his style. It is in an account of Abercromby's attack at Ticonderoga: "And then came such a scene as had not been witnessed since Malplaquet, nor was to be seen again till Badajoz. The men stormed forward anew, furious with rage and heedless of bullets or grape shot, through the network of trunks and boughs, against the invisible enemy. Behind the breast-work, the French were cheering loudly, hoisting their hats occasionally above the parapet and laughing loudly, when they were blown to pieces, but pouring in always a deadly and unquenchable fire, while the British struggled on, grimed with sweat and smoke, vowing they would have that wooden wall at any cost. . . . They had no ladders, and as fast as they hoisted one another to the top of the breast-work they were shot down. . . . Men who had passed through the ordeal of Fontenoy declared that it was child's play compared with Ticonderoga. Nevertheless, not once only, but thrice more, the British, and the Americans with them, hurled themselves desperately against the French stronghold, only to be beaten back time after time, until the inner abatis was hung with wisps of scarlet, like poppies that grow through a hedge of thorn, some swaying with the contortions of living agony, some limp and still in the merciful stillness of death." Such is the manner in which Mr. Fortescue tells his great and heroic story, filling it alike with the fruit of his laborious enquiries and the fervour of military enthusiasm. His marshalling of facts is masterful, and his book is one of the most interesting military works, other than biographies, produced for a long time. Though exhaustive, Mr. Fortescue is not diffuse, and he never fails to attract the reader.

* * * *

Sir George Clarke has done a very good work in preparing for the press a "student's edition" of Kinglake's "Invasion of the Crimea" (Blackwood, 15s.). It is really a condensation of the nine-volume edition of the famous book, and is just as useful for the general reader, or even for the Lang-despised "man in the street," as for the student. There are reasons why it should be read now. Once more we are embarked upon a great war, and once more, though not in the same sense, we are unprepared. Then we were utterly ignorant of the military art of feeding men in the field, and giving them the very necessities of life. Now we hear nothing in South Africa of bad or insufficient food, but we appear to be just as unready in the matter of "information" or in knowledge as to how to send men out in order fittest to undertake the work we have in hand. Just as in 1854 we are learning the business, while we prosecute it, in the hard school of experience. The war in the Crimea was a splendid testimony to the qualities of the British soldier, and we all believe that the present hostilities, when the full story is told, will be the same. Now, as then, politics as well as military considerations have ruled the course of events, and though we remember, as a thing for ever departed, what Sir George Clarke calls "the amazing administration which successfully maintained the semblance of a working system in time of peace and proved disastrous in war," we cannot shake off a belief that we still have something of an "amazing administration," in the inability it has shown to appreciate the work it had to do, or to forecast the conditions in which that work must be done. These are thoughts suggested by a fresh glance at Kinglake's brilliant chapters, moulded by Sir George Clarke in a wholly satisfactory way for general use. Sir E. Hamley remarked that no kind of history so fascinated mankind as the history of wars, and there will always be abundant fascination in the Russian War in 1854-55. I would heartily commend the book to readers of every class.

* * * *

While war is in the air, it has seemed appropriate to write of military books, and there is another of importance that claims attention. We have learned, no doubt, a great deal from the events of the Franco-German War, even if we have studied the ponderous tomes of the German Staff History with rather blind devotion. If we could have mastered the spirit of the masterful strategic combinations of Von Moltke divested of some of the tactics of the European battlefield, it might have been better for our war in South Africa, and it may be doubted whether the German Army Corps system, enthusiastically adopted under the prestige of victory, is suitable for any war in which we are likely to be engaged. However, the story of 1870 is great and impressive, and the date was epoch-making. Lately it has been told to German readers by many prominent writers, not purely from the military point of view, but from the standpoint of wider interest, and the book deserved to be translated. "The Franco-German War, 1870-71," by generals and other officers who took part in the campaign (Sonnenschein, 21s.), is an extremely handsome and a profoundly interesting book, translated by Major-General J. F. Maurice, C.B., Captain Wilfred J. Long, and Mr. A. Sonnenschein. The German writers thus introduced are Dr. J. von Pflugk-Harttung, Lieutenant-General von Boguslawski, Major-General von Pfister, General von Kretschman, Lieutenant-General Colmar Baron von der Goltz Pasha, General von Holleben, General von Heinleth, Colonel Cardinal von Widdern, Naval-Captain Stenzel, and several more. Speaking generally, the translation is good and easy, though from time to time one comes across rather wooden passages, and the grammar limps occasionally. The narrative is spirited and informing, and is characterised by accuracy, though, of course, the French appreciate some of the events otherwise. The violent controversies and personal recriminations which arose out of the war—and of which some, like that concerning the conduct of Lieutenant-General von Schwartzkoppen, commanding the 19th Division, on August 16, are not yet stilled—are scarcely reflected in these pages, which is just as well, considering the popular character of the book. As General Maurice says in his preface, even a casual glance over the illustrations, portraits, plans of battles, and maps, which, indeed, are of the first excellence, will show that this great national work has been a labour of love, and with what exhaustive effort the task has been carried through. The volume probably adds little to the knowledge of students, but where it excels is in presenting the encounter of mind against mind, of leader against leader, of nation against nation, and in showing the underlying causes of strength and weakness as they made manifest their effects in the campaign. Dr. Pflugk-Harttung deals with the causes of the war, and, as a Keeper in the Department of Secret State Archives in Berlin, he should be well equipped for his work. On the whole, he has written dispassionately, but Bismarck's memoirs have since been published, and General Maurice embodies the new version of the famous Ems telegram in a useful note. Nothing is so good in the book as Baron von der Goltz's graphic narrative of the events of St. Privat and Metz. It is impossible, however, to deal individually with the chapters, and I must be content to say that they are all of great excellence, and will be as useful to the general reader as to the soldier. This is a very important and an extremely admirable book, and nothing is wanting to the excellence of its form.

* * * *

The Household Brigade Magazine for December, published late, includes particulars of the sailing of the Composite Regiment, and of casualties at Belmont and the Modder River. A noble tribute is paid to the memories of the officers killed. "We all as soldiers feel that there is no worthier end to life's career than death in action, but for the friends and relations of the killed at the battle of Belmont the return home of the regiments without such comrades as Lieutenants Blundell and Fryer will sadden our thoughts." It is pleasant to read accounts of smoking concerts on board the "Goorkha" and "Nubia," the former gladdened by a jovial song concerning what will happen when the Guards "take pot-luck with Mr. Kruger," the latter by a capital Scotch song by Lance-Sergeant Murray, with the chorus:

"John Bull and Sandy and a',
Paddy and Taffy and a',
What a spree we will hae on returning
With Kruger, his whiskers, and a'."

"SEARCH-LIGHT."

Publishers' announcements and books for review should be addressed direct to the Editor of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED, 20, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden.

Digitized by Google

The Natal Railways and the War.

SO much depends on the means of communication between the base depôt and our troops at the front in war time, that our special attention is naturally directed to our railways in South Africa, and especially so in the case at Natal.

Starting from Durban, the port of Natal, the line wends its way up along the Ichanga range towards Pieter Maritzburg, in a very short space of time getting some thousands of feet above sea level, thence on via Howick on the Umgeni to Mooi River and Colenso on the Tugela River, and then on to Ladysmith and Newcastle, after which, on the border, it joins the Transvaal Government line, tunneling through Laing's Nek. By the way, if this tunnel had been destroyed by our forces when Newcastle was evacuated, the Boers would have experienced great difficulty in bringing their heavy guns to besiege Ladysmith. The greater part of the line is over undulating country, interspersed with stretches of heavy hill, kopje, and rugged kinds of ground, so much so that in many cases the gradient or slope of the line is 1 in 30, whilst, owing to the sharp curves the radius is 300, in both cases the maximum allowed by the Natal Government Railway. To show the steepness of the hills which the rail skirts, the construction of the 13-ft. permanent way in many cases showed a difference in excavating of 20-ft. to 24-ft. in depth, between the top and bottom, to reach level; this also means great precaution being taken to protect the line from rolling matter on the upper slopes.

The use of armoured trains is quite a new idea in Natal, but is now being put to a thorough practical test, all the lines being fitted with war rolling stock, and facilities are also being completed for quick despatch to any point under control.

This line, in Natal called the Ladysmith Extension, was constructed by Messrs. Perry and Co., under the personal supervision of the chief, Mr. Izard, at a very great cost to the colony. Junctions tap this central line at various points, communicating with the Free State and Cape Colony, also by branch lines with districts in Natal.

The bridges, though not imposing looking structures, are well built, and on splendid foundations, as owing to the rush of water, during freshets which occur in the rainy season, a river, 3-ft. deep, running three miles an hour, may suddenly become a roaring torrent, 15-ft. to 20-ft. in depth, rushing at the rate of about twenty miles an hour; hence the strong foundations required.

In other cases the culverts are extensive and many, and require careful attention, as, if blocked, the water collects against a railway bank on the side of a hill, and washes the permanent slope away. All these vulnerable points on our line of communications are now being watched, patrolled, or otherwise guarded, as circumstances permit, for with the great number of mouths that require to be fed at the front, which food must come from the base, the railway is a prime factor in the eventual success of our arms.

THE RAILWAY AT FIELDS HILL.
A Sharp Curve in the Line.

Photos. Copyright. BRIDGE NEAR BOTHA'S HILL. Schwabe.
In the Dry Season.

Photo. Copyright. THE GRADE RAIL TO LADYSMITH. Navy and Army.
Blown Up in the Raid.

Digitized by Google

From Continent to Continent.

THE AUSTRALASIAN CONTRIBUTION TO THE IMPERIAL IDEA.

WHEN the first shock of Buller's repulse on the Tugela River had passed away there were many thoughtful students who began to reflect that, after all, the aggregate consequences of this untoward reverse might be to our distinct Imperial advantage. Putting aside the prompt bringing of the Militia, Yeomanry, and Volunteers into line with the Regulars, as part and parcel of our offensive, as well as defensive, military strength, there was a distinct and general feeling of satisfaction that, serious as the crisis was, it should have produced an opportunity for utilising, on a broader scale than had hitherto proved possible, the magnificent loyalty of the colonies to the Imperial Idea.

There is no doubt that the very partial acceptance of previous offers made by Colonial Governments of contingents for service in South Africa had caused widespread disappointment and, here and there, perhaps, a little irritation. The Australian colonies and the Dominion of Canada, in particular, felt a little hurt that with their magnificent resources they should only have been called upon to supply contingents amounting in all to a very small fraction of the entire Field Force.

Annoyed as some of the greater colonies undoubtedly were when offers of 1,000 men were only accepted to the extent of 10 per cent. or less, there was no diminution in the zeal with which the smaller number was got ready and sent to the front, while, in more than one instance, the Imperial Government were given to understand that the balance was still there to be drawn upon if need arose.

The need did arise, the Imperial Government sought further aid from the colonies in the matter of mounted troops, and once more from the uttermost parts of the world there came over the wires the now familiar message, "We are ready, as we always have been, to show the world that we, Australians, Canadians, whatever else we are, are Britons first and colonials afterwards!"

MARKSMEN ALL.
Volley Firing by the Victorian Contingent for the Cape.

FAIRLY STARTED.
Departure of Australian Contingents in the "Medic."

The Continent will not fail to perceive the import of this glorious demonstration of the fact that the bigger the trouble in which the British Lion finds himself, the more anxious are his full-grown cubs to come bounding to his aid.

Photos. Copyright. Mann.

THE GOVERNOR'S GOOD-BYE—LORD BRASSEY AND LORD BEAUCHAMP INSPECT THE N.S. WALES CONTINGENT.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A Tribute to Empire.

OUR GALLANT SLAIN.

MAJOR E. W. GRAY,
Royal Army Medical Corps.

LIEUT.-COL. G. L. J. GOFF,
1st Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

MAJOR G. L. S. RAY,
1st Northumberland Fusiliers.

MAJOR J. H. PLUMBE,
Royal Marine Light Infantry.

LIEUTENANT HON. F. H. S. ROBERTS,
King's Royal Rifles.

CAPTAIN A. H. BACON,
1st Dublin Fusiliers.

CAPTAIN F. C. LOFTUS,
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.

MAJOR The MARQUESS of WINCHESTER,
2nd Coldstream Guards.

LIEUTENANT ERNEST COX,
1st Seaforth Highlanders.

LIEUTENANT G. C. D. FERGUSSON,
2nd Rifle Brigade.

LIEUT. RONALD McORAN CAMPBELL,
1st Gordon Highlanders.

THE HEROES WE MOURN.

Photos. Bassano, Mayall, Lafayette, Thomson, Chancellor, Knight, Heath, Hill and Saunders.

Digitized by Google

Citizen Soldiers for South Africa.

THE VOLUNTEER CONTINGENTS FOR THE FRONT.

"IT'S an ill wind that blows nobody any good," so says the proverb. This may, indeed, be said with truth of our recent unfortunate reverses in South Africa. One might have thought that the news from General Buller would have served only to depress the nation; but British citizens are not thus to be discouraged. Failure at the first trial makes them only more eager to follow it with success.

The turn of events has led to an increase in our South African forces, and it has greatly rejoiced the hearts of all our citizen soldiers to learn that the Government has decided to employ them in vanquishing the Boers. It is well known that at the beginning of the campaign many patriotic commanding officers placed their regiments at the disposal of the War Office for the campaign, but at the time the authorities did not see their way to make use of the offers so freely made. Doubtless the military authorities appreciated the spirit which led the various officers to volunteer for service, and have been glad that the opportunity has now offered for allowing the auxiliary forces to participate in the Empire's work.

Of course, it is hardly necessary to tell our readers that the entire Volunteer Force is not about to start for the front; only a limited number will be taken. To this end the War Office has announced that it will accept offers of service from the Volunteers. Companies are to be carefully selected, numbering 110 men each, with a captain in command, assisted by three subalterns; and one such company is to be raised from the Volunteer battalions of every territorial regiment serving in South Africa. Each Volunteer battalion from which a company is accepted is also to form a waiting company in reserve at home. The men are called upon to enlist for one year, or until the end of the campaign, and, needless to say, only those efficient will be selected. All will be young men, good marksmen, and of excellent physique, equal in every respect to our regular soldiers.

THE LONDON SCOTTISH.
How the Men Learnt Campaigning.

THE ARTISTS.
Some Types of the 20th Middlesex.

Photos. Copyright. Gregory.

A LEAD PUMPER.
The Machine Gun of the 3rd London Rifle Volunteers.

The City of London has very quickly responded to the call of the Government. As is the case with all patriotic movements, it leads the van. The Lord Mayor has corresponded with Lord Wolseley to some purpose, and a regiment is in course of formation to be styled "The City of London Imperial Volunteers." It is to number no fewer than 1,000 rank and file. Besides the subscriptions generously given by private individuals and the Livery Companies of the City, the Court of Common Council has granted for this object no less than £25,000 out of the City cash. The regiment will be equipped and transported to Africa without any expense to the Government, and Messrs. Wilson have generously placed a ship at the disposal of the City for three months. It is only in times of national stress that those at home who are accustomed to lead quiet lives are aroused to enthusiasm in so good a cause.

For service in the Lord Mayor's regiment, if we may call it so, offers have been received in abundance. Without exception every Metropolitan corps has sent in a number of names to the Mansion House, and, in addition, has freely volunteered through the usual channels to form a company of 110 men in the manner laid down by the authorities.

Digitized by Google

The enthusiasm is not, however, confined to London. All over the country Volunteers are rallying round the British flag. The difficulty is, therefore, not to get men for the scene of war, but to select from among those who wish to give their services.

The accompanying pictures illustrate some of the leading corps which will certainly furnish detachments for the Cape. The independent companies thus raised are to take the place of mounted infantry companies attached to battalions at the front, an excellent method of creating and fostering esprit de corps.

The Queen's Westminster Volunteers is one of the most distinguished of London corps. It was organised in its present form by the Duke of Westminster in 1859, and his Lordship commanded the regiment until 1881. He is now the honorary colonel of the regiment.

Every officer has passed through the School of Instruction, and the men are nearly all of them good shots. In 1888 Colour-Sergeant Fulton, who is now serving in the regiment, carried off the Queen's Prize at Bisley, and since then many other valuable cups have fallen to the share of the 13th Middlesex.

The regiment has two bands, and cycling, signalling, and mounted detachments. It may be noted here that Viscount Belgrave, heir to the Dukedom of Westminster, joined the ranks as a private, and expressed his intention of passing through all the intermediate grades before taking a commission in the battalion.

The London Scottish were raised in 1859, as the result of a meeting of Scottish residents in London, who decided to form a volunteer rifle corps, to be designated the London Scottish Rifle Volunteers, for the purpose of strengthening the defensive resources of this country, the Continent at that time being in such a state of unrest.

The 20th Middlesex were raised in 1860, and have always been known as the Artists. The name arises from the fact that the ranks are largely filled by painters, architects, sculptors, actors, medical students, and musicians.

The senior Volunteer regiment in London is, however, the City of London Rifle Brigade. It was organised in 1859, and since then has always maintained a position second to none in the Volunteer force. It has been fortunate in securing a succession of commanding officers who have previously served in the regular Army. To this fact is no doubt due in great measure the extreme smartness and soldierly bearing of the brigade. There is no lack of recruits for the regiment, although every man on joining is compelled to pay the full expenses of his outfit. Khaki suits will, of course, be issued to all Volunteers sent to the front.

A POST OFFICE CORPS.
A Few of the 24th Middlesex Rifle Volunteers.

WILLING AND READY.
Samples of the Civil Service Rifle Volunteers.

Photos. Copyright. ON GUARD. Gregory.
The Queen's Westminster Rifle Volunteers.

Digitized by Google

The Wounded from the Front and Reinforcements.

IT is always depressing to look at the seamy side of anything, and there are few more terribly sad sights in this world of sorrow than the aftermath of a battle-field. Yet it is essential that we should not seek to put such painful pictures with their faces to the wall, nor try to forget that war is not all made up of glorious charges and inspiring deeds of individual derring-do. For one thing, it would indeed be hard upon the poor fellows who may happen to be struck down in the prime of manhood by bursting shell or long-range rifle bullet, if we simply regarded them as unpicturesque objects, to be kept as much in the background as possible, in order to make room for war in its more spectacular aspects.

The first of the accompanying pictures shows the ambulance train which brought down the wounded of the Naval Brigade to Simon's Town after the battle of Enslin. The train was fitted out at the Cape Government Railway Works, and, as will be seen from the illustration, is admirably equipped for the purpose for which it is used. One can imagine how grateful a wounded man must be for such comforts as are here indicated, comforts which, so far as railway travelling is concerned, constitute indeed an advance upon the treatment of the wounded in wars well within the memory of the present generation. It is exceedingly sad to have to add that, in spite of every precaution, three Marines died in the train on the way down.

Among the passengers by this train was Captain Prothero, who was wounded at Enslin when in command of the Naval Brigade, which he led with conspicuous coolness and gallantry. Captain Prothero was shot in the shoulder; and it is an instructive example of the speedy methods of modern war that he was back in hospital at Simon's Town just ten days after he had left the Naval Headquarters with his brigade to join Methuen and fight with him at Belmont and at Enslin.

Another picture shows our wounded Bluejackets being brought from the train at Simon's Town to the hospital. Some of the poor fellows had to be carried in cots, and one can imagine with what tenderness they were handled by their stalwart comrades.

The "wastage" of war, as it is rather grimly called, has to be made up, if possible, and in this case it happily was possible, as is shown in the accompanying picture. Here we have a draft of Bluejackets and Marines leaving Simon's Town, in charge of Commander De Horsey, of the "Monarch," to replace those of the Naval Brigade who were wounded at Belmont and Enslin. "What luck!" is probably the prevailing sentiment in every one of these gallant bosoms, most of which had probably heaved with genuine regret a few days previously when their owners had watched Captain Prothero and his men leaving on their way to join the Kimberley relief column.

Among the reinforcements sent up to Lord Methuen, when it became

Photo. Copyright. IN THE AMBULANCE TRAIN "Navy & Army."
Which Brought Down the Wounded from Methuen's Relief Column.

Photo. Copyright. AFTER ENSLIN. L. Jenks.
Wounded Bluejackets Being Carried from Station to Hospital.

Photo. Copyright. NAVAL REINFORCEMENT. "Navy & Army."
Draft, to Replace the Killed and Wounded, Leaving Under Captain De Horsey.

Digitized by Google

evident that his task was a good deal heavier one than had been anticipated, was a Horse Artillery Battery—G, R.H.A.—which has since done excellent service. There are only four Horse Artillery Batteries at the time of writing in South Africa—G, O, P, and R. Of these, O and R belong to the Cavalry Division under French, while P, like G, was moved up to the line De Aar-Belmont, and is either at De Aar or at Modder River at the present moment. We give pictures of O and P as they were leaving the docks, very thankful, no doubt, to quit shipboard, for, with the best of good arrangements, a sea voyage is terribly trying to horses, and we may be sure these R.H.A. gunners were only too anxious to get their animals back into condition again in order to get speedily to the front.

The want of Horse Artillery in South Africa has been greatly felt, and it is not too much to say that in several instances they would have helped us to reap a far greater advantage than we did from our victories.

LEAVING THE DOCK.
O Battery, R.H.A., now with French.

Where, as in the case of the Boers, our troops were opposed to long-range siege artillery, the 12-pounders of the Royal Horse Artillery are not of much use for purposes of attack, but when a position has been carried, they are simply invaluable in pursuit.

The two remaining pictures show the 6th Inniskilling Dragoons in camp at Maitland, from which they were afterwards sent to join the force operating under Major-General French on the line Port Elizabeth-Nauwpoort-Arundel. The officers' mess is delightful in its bowery simplicity, and provokes a smile when one thinks of the very different surroundings of a "swagger" cavalry corps in quarters. But it has always been, and, let us hope, always will be; a feature of our crack regiments that they can not only be swagger, and occasionally a little luxurious into the bargain, in the piping times of peace, but can cheerfully undergo privations, and both give and take uncommonly hard knocks in the way of business. The 6th Inniskilling Dragoons, it will be remembered, were included in the brigade under Colonel Porter which, on December 13, sallied out from Arundel and "headed off" a Boer force which was trying to get round with the intention of attacking Nauwpoort.

AL FRESCO.
Officers' Mess, Inniskilling Dragoons.

This was a very brisk little action, and one which admirably illustrates the use of cavalry against an enemy like the Boers. The latter are splendid mounted infantry, but they do not understand the working of cavalry, and by all accounts are rather afraid of it.

JUST LANDED.
P Battery, R.H.A., now on the Western Border.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

THE INNISKILLINGS IN CAMP—THEY ARE NOW UNDER GENERAL FRENCH NEAR ARUNDEL.

Digitized by Google

"C. R. F."—Speaking generally, the point is more deadly, but the cut more disabling. The cavalry fight at Llerena, in Estremadura, on April 11, 1812, is a case in point. The French force consisted of the 17th Dragoons, 27th Dragoons, 21st Chasseurs, and 2nd Hussars, in all 1,900 sabres. The British regiments were the 5th Dragoon Guards, 3rd and 4th Dragoons, and the 12th and 16th Light Dragoons, in all 1,826 sabres. The fight lasted but a few minutes, for the British charging broke the French formation. The latter had twelve men killed, and lost 128 prisoners, all suffering from sword cuts, whilst we had nine men killed, and forty-seven wounded. All the killed were slain by the "point," and the wounded, in practically every case, had received their injuries by the "cut." The European cavalryman is, as a rule, taught to depend to a great extent upon the point, and his sword, long and nearly straight, is built principally for this purpose. Napoleon the Great was a great believer in the point. At the battle of Wagram he shouted to his cuirassiers as they passed him at the trot, "No sabreing; give point! give point!" and kept plunging his sword into the air to emphasise his orders.

* * * *

"NORTHUMBRIAN." — The Northumberland Fusiliers, the old "Fighting Fifth," which is now in South Africa, is one of the very few regiments in which a woman fought for many years side by side with the men. The story is told on the tombstone over her grave at Brighton, which is kept up by the officers of the regiment. The inscription reads: "In memory of Phœbe Hessel, who was born in Stepney in the year 1713. She served for many years as a soldier in the 5th Regiment, in different parts of Europe, and in the year 1745 fought, under the command of the Duke of Cumberland, in the battle of Fontenoy, where she received a bullet wound in her arm. Her long life extended from the reign of Queen Anne to that of George IV., from which monarch she received comfort and support in her later years. She died at Brighton, December 12, 1821, aged 108."

* * * *

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "In an interesting note concerning Frederick the Great, you commented on an instance of how a very small thing might influence the fate of a great man, and thereby the future of nations. Let me give an instance of how a very small thing can produce a panic in an army. It is a well-known one to Service men, but will, perhaps, bear repetition. When the French army was landed in Algiers, a stray horse appearing in front of the line in the middle of the night startled the sentry into firing his rifle, so giving the alarm. Immediately all the adjoining troops began firing at an imaginary enemy in the shadow of the night. Then the rest of the troops caught the contagion, and for an interval estimated at over a quarter of an hour the firing continued, with the result that, instead of the horse (like the famous mule at Santiago) being killed, four men were killed and ten wounded by their own side! What would have happened had the magazine rifle been the weapon in those days?"

* * * *

"LECTOR."—There were thirty standards and eighty-three colours captured at Blenheim by Marlborough. No one knows what has become of them. They were brought to London in 1704, and were carried in triumph through the streets from the Tower to Westminster Hall. There they were exhibited for a short time, and finally they were taken to St. Paul's Cathedral. More than sixty years ago Canon Sydney Smith, writing to General Sir Henry Taylor on the subject of these interesting battle trophies, said that not a rag or a staff remained of them. It is sad to think how little care can have been exercised in the preservation of trophies of which the country ought to have been proud.

* * * *

"LADY LYTTON."—According to the last returns, there were the following British troops in India: Seven cavalry regiments, forty-three infantry battalions, seventy-seven batteries of Artillery, and four companies of Engineers. Taking the average number of men in each of these units, you arrive at a total of between 47,000 and 48,000 men. The troops in Burmah are not included in this total.

* * * *

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "The tone of the Army has been immensely raised during late years, and only one thing remains to be done to altogether redeem the barrack-room from its old evil influence. The system of a common living and sleeping room is indefensible, and until cubicles are provided the padre must fight an uphill battle. In the cheapest lodging-houses a man may have a tiny room of his own, open, it is true, above to the general atmosphere, but having iron walls at least 6-ft. high, which secure him absolute privacy. It is easy enough for the stay-at-home critic to urge that men should have the moral courage to go down on their knees before their comrades and then and there say their prayers. It must be remembered, however, that many a man until he joins hardly realises that religion is anything more than a vain thing, and it is too much to expect him to make such a sacrifice as braving the mockery of the room would imply. Cubicles will remove this ordeal, and many a man who, brave in all else, acts the coward's part in this, will be thankful for his four tiny walls."

* * * *

"J. S." (Llanfairfechan).—The Volunteer officers' decoration, or, as it is usually termed, the "V.D.," was instituted by Her Majesty as a reward for twenty years' commissioned service in the Volunteer Force, and is an honour greatly valued by officers of the Citizen Army. It should be mentioned, however, that half the time served in the ranks is reckoned as qualifying service. An officer cannot demand the "V.D." as a right. The regulations are plain on this point, specifying that the decoration is granted as a reward for good and long service, and that commanding officers, when applying on behalf of anyone under their command, should state in general terms the reasons which give the officer concerned a claim to the distinction. It is commonly believed that the Volunteer officers' decoration is given only to those who have served continuously for twenty years, but this is not the case. An officer who has resigned his original commission, and, after several years of absence from the Volunteer Force, rejoined another, or the same, corps, may yet apply for the "V.D.," provided he has served the required number of years. Officers who have been granted the honour may be identified by the letters "V.D." opposite their names in the Army List.

* * * *

IF the correspondent who asks about the fighting costume our troops would wear in the event of a European war would turn to the issue of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of September 2, he would find in "Notes and Queries" a paragraph in answer to "Khaki" which would interest him. One thing is certain, that whatever colour may be adopted in the future, our troops will never go into action encumbered with the tight-fitting uniforms worn on parade, but will be provided with a loose fighting kit. With regard to the same correspondent's second question, the distance within which a steamer can be brought to a standstill when travelling at 20 knots depends almost entirely upon the tonnage of the steamer. Of course, something also depends upon the build of the steamer, and the manner in which she is handled. It is impossible to lay down a hard and fast rule.

* * * *

"D. T."—On March 13, 1884, General Graham advanced to capture Osman Digna's camp at Tamai, close to El Teb, and there occurred what was almost a dire disaster. The Arabs made a wild onslaught on the British square, and a number of them creeping up actually broke it, and captured some Gatlings. A desperate conflict ensued, until some well-timed charges of Colonel Wood's troops saved the day, and enabled the infantry to re-form the square and recover the guns. Again, on December 30, 1884, Sir Herbert Stewart, on his march from Korti for Metemmeh, found the enemy 10,000 strong at the wells of Abu Klea, whilst his own troops numbered barely 1,500. The British formed a square with the camels in the centre. The Dervishes charged with characteristic fanaticism, and hurled themselves on the British bayonets. A large portion of them, making a sudden rush on the left rear corner of the square, broke it, and fierce hand-to-hand fighting ensued. The camels saved the situation, for they checked the onward rush of the Arabs; the British rallied, and the square was re-formed. These are the only two occasions I can call to mind of a square being broken, but "D. T." must remember that the square formation is seldom employed.

* * * *

"W. T. H." (Fettes College).—John Denton Pinkstone French put in all his regimental service in the 19th Hussars, for though his first commission—dated February 28, 1874, when he was just twenty-one years and five months of age—was to the 8th Hussars, he was appointed to the 19th ten days later, and passed through every rank till he was appointed to the command on February 7, 1885. His only war service, prior to now, has been the Soudan Campaign of 1884-85, for which he holds the medal, with two clasps—the Nile, 1884-85, and Abu Klea, and the Khedive's bronze star. He has held important staff appointments, for he was A.A.G. at Army Headquarters from August 24, 1895, to April 30, 1897, and commanded the Cavalry Brigade South-East District from May 1, 1897, to January 11, 1899. Since January 12, 1899, he has commanded the Cavalry Brigade, a post he only vacated in September last to proceed to South Africa. For an answer to your second question you must wait until the official despatches are published. Several names have been rumoured.

* * * *

"C. A. H." (Poole Park, Fulham).—If you had taken the trouble to describe the decoration to which you allude, I could have answered your question better. There is no "Spanish Legion of Honour." There is an "Order of Military Merit"; but this cross could not have been conferred for the Carlist War of 1835-37, for the order was not founded until 1864. A medal was given for San Sebastian, May 5, 1836, to the troops under De Lacy Evans. It was issued in pewter to men, and silver to officers. It is rare, especially the latter. The naval contingent at Bilbao, on December 24, 1836, received a medal, which is very scarce. Special crosses were also issued for San Sebastian and Bilbao. Finally, the cross of the Order of Maria Isabella Louisa, founded in 1833 to reward those below the rank of "Chef de Battailon," was in some cases bestowed on the officers and men of the Foreign Legion. Write to me and accurately describe the cross, and I may be able to tell you precisely which it is. It would help me also if you told me the rank and employment of the wearer of the medal to which you refer.

* * * *

"FOLLOWER OF THE DRUM."—The "Old and Bold" is the nickname of the 5th Northumberland Fusiliers.

THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

The Bombardment of Saltport.—I.

By J. Tuthill Dreyer, R.A.

It is unnecessary to enter into the causes of our recent war with the two great Powers, the Aeduans and the Lusatians. This story is only intended to be an account of the part played by Saltport in the war.

When peace had been declared, I went about among my surviving brother officers and collected from them notes of what they had seen of the actions that I am now about to describe. Each man had seen but a few of the incidents of the bombardment, but by putting all their accounts together and fitting them in with my own, I have, I trust, put down most of the facts with accuracy.

As battery commander of Fort Ben Bolt, I could only know how our fire was telling on the enemy, and was more or less unaware of our casualties, except for the reports I received from the various group officers.

Now when I inspect my company on parade, and I look at the line of great strong men with the war medal on their broad chests, and a few made conspicuous by the coveted cross for valour, I sigh to think of the day when I shall get my promotion, and have to leave the stout hearts who enabled me to successfully assist in the defence of Saltport.

To visit the scene of the narrative told in these pages, I must take the reader to the old town of Saltport, on the South Coast of England. The harbour at the end of the well-sheltered bay is an ideal one. The bay has a narrow entrance, only about 1,000-yds. wide, running between high cliffs, towering some 250-ft. above the sea-level. At its entrance the bay is open to the sea from the south, but the fairway turns somewhat abruptly to the east, leading to the anchorage off the town, which is completely sheltered from the Channel gales by the ridges of hills surrounding it on all sides. Vessels can also be moored inside the two long arms of the breakwater enclosing the harbour, and comfortably discharge their cargoes, while their less fortunate brethren outside are unable to do so owing to the ruffled waters of the bay.

The dockyard lies within the breakwater, the mouth of which can be closed by a boom to keep out torpedo-boats in war-time. On the ends of the breakwater are mounted some small quick-firing guns and a search-light.

But Saltport is not only made famous by the excellence of its harbour, but also by the extreme beauty of its environs. The great sheet of water enclosed among the wooded hills, and dotted over with ships flying the flags of all nationalities, makes it one of the most beautiful maritime towns of England.

Imagine that the reader has got a pass to visit the forts at the entrance to the bay, and I will describe what he will see. Let us first visit Fort Ben Bolt on the eastern side. We have a steep climb of over 200-ft. to the top, and then we have before us the two long lean guns of F group. (The guns of a battery command are divided into groups, each under the command of a subaltern or non-commissioned officer; the groups are designated by letters of the alphabet.) Their calibre is only 9·2-in., but they are wire guns of the latest type, and can each fire a 380-lb. shot with enormously high velocity at a rate of one every minute. Look at the small and compact mountings, quite dwarfed by the great length of the guns; note the loading arrangements and the automatic sights. This sighting arrangement provides that the gun has only to be laid on the target without previously manipulating the sights, and the correct elevation is thereby given to the gun; in other words, the gun is its own range-finder, whose base is the gun's height above sea-level; there is no calling out of ranges, adjusting tangent scale or giving quadrant elevation to the gun by means of a range indicator; the gun-mounting does it all as the gun-layer revolves the elevating wheel. Now you will see what the ingenuity of Woolwich Arsenal can produce.

Next come over to H group. It is only 150-yds. distant to the south-eastward. What a contrast these guns are to the last—short and very stumpy, without any of the finish in themselves or their mountings which characterised the 9·2. But these guns were the pride of the Arsenal some thirty years ago. They are only muzzle-loaders, as the observant visitor notices, but that does not prevent them from shooting with accuracy, though their shells do not strike the target with the tremendous shock of the 9·2. Their calibre is 12·5-in., and their large 820-lb. shell is very effective.

To reach the next group we go down this long staircase, hewn in the solid rock, and stand in the narrow confines of I group, the only casemate in the two forts. Ah! here you must feel very secure, you think. Yes, there is about 20-in. of wrought iron between the gun-detachments and the sea. That is quite enough to keep out any common shell. Above your head there is about 50-ft. of rock separating you from the outer world. The two guns are of the same type as the last, but smaller, the calibre being 11-in., firing a 550-lb. shell. They have an uncanny look with their coat of white paint in the subdued light of the casemate.

I forgot to point out the position-finder dials to you in the other groups. You see these two clock-faced dials, they are connected with the distant position-finder by means of electric cables, and give the range and training of the target from the gun group. This enables the group officer to fight his guns without seeing the target; the range and training shown on the dials being given to the guns, they are thereby laid so as to hit the target.

Let us go up the staircase again, for there is more to show you in Fort Ben Bolt. We retrace our steps past I and H groups. Here are the two groups A and B of 12-pounders Q.F. (the abreviation Q.F. is used for quick-firing throughout, and R.M.L. for rifled muzzle-loading) commanding the entrance. Before you looked at giant guns mounted on massive mountings, now you can handle a weapon that balances like a shot-gun, and which can fire at about the same rate. Put your shoulder to the shoulder-piece, take the elevating wheel in the left hand, the pistol grip in the right, and you will see with what ease you can get the sights on that dredger steaming into the bay. You think already that it is impossible to miss with it, but let me tell you this is only too easily done. If that dredger was rushing in at 20 knots instead of 6 knots, and her errand was to destroy the shipping and stores under your protection, you might find the sights a little contrary. Remember also that this gun plays its rôle generally on a dark night, when you have to lay on a target lit up by the dazzling rays of the search-light, and instead of clearly seeing the sights you can only see the reflected glow of a tiny electric light on each.

Now we must go down to the little jetty at the foot of the cliffs, and get into the boat that is to take us across to Fort Wellington. You observe that little dark entrance into the side of the rock behind us, from which two narrow-gauge rails run into the sea. That is the launching way of the Brennan torpedo. These marvellous engines of destruction contain two drums upon which a great length of piano-wire is wound. The running end of the wire from each drum is fastened to a large drum ashore. By revolving the large drums by means of a steam-engine, a rotary motion is given to the drums in the torpedo, which by a suitable gearing revolves two screw propellers, which drive the torpedo through the water at about 30 knots. The torpedo can be steered from the shore by revolving one drum faster than the other, which change actuates a vertical rudder on the torpedo. The head of the torpedo contains 500-lb. of gun-cotton which is fired on impact.

Here we are at Fort Wellington, with another climb of 250-ft. before us to reach the battery. We will first have a look at A group. It is armed with four 12·5-in. R.M.L. guns, just the same as the guns we saw on the other side. If we walk 200-yds. towards the entrance of the bay we find the guns of B group. There are four 6-in. Q.F. guns looking like the big brothers of the 12-pounders, and a sort of distant relation of the majestic 9·2-in. guns of Fort Ben Bolt. They, too, are the very latest outcome of the genius of the master minds of Woolwich Arsenal. If you get up on the sighting step on the left side of the mounting, you have the elevating and traversing wheels to hand, and also the pistol grip for firing. Could anything be better arranged for speed. Now step down and I will open and close the breech. This small lever is pulled across and the breech is opened. Push the lever back and the breech is closed. All these ingenious contrivances enable the gun to fire five 100-lb. shells every minute with a very high velocity.

Digitized by Google

Next this group you can see the two groups F and H, each armed with two 12-pounder Q.F. All these Q.F. guns are automatic-sighted.

Each fort is provided with a wandering search-light. Formerly we had depended on two fixed beams across the entrance, but when war broke out the alterations had just been completed.

Such were the means at our disposal. A clear head taking the full advantage given us by the beautifully-designed instruments at our command would give to us victory against tremendous odds, and a victory we determined it should be when our chance came, for would not defeat spell death to us, and destruction to the harbour and shipping claiming our protection?

The two forts were manned on mobilisation by two companies of the Royal Garrison Artillery and the Fearnought Artillery Militia. The men were told off to the guns and were exercised at night alarms. All ranks were very anxious for a visit from the hostile fleets, and we envied our Naval friends who could go out and look for the enemy instead of waiting for him. Our fears were, however, unnecessary, as we saw plenty of the enemy before many days were over. At the time war was declared there was only one war-ship in the harbour, the first-class battle-ship "Repulse," which was having the wreck of her fore barbette repaired. One of her big guns had burst at practice, causing great havoc to the fore part of the ship. The first-class cruiser "Diadem," of 11,000 tons, was lying at anchor in the roadstead for men-of-war, with her torpedo-nets rigged out, but as she is not fitted with bow or stern net defence, a very keen look out was kept, the gun's crews sleeping by their guns with ammunition ready at hand. Her starboard propeller shafting had broken, and a new length was being put in. The dock-yard authorities were working day and night to complete her for sea.

On the night of the second day after the declaration of war, about midnight, fire was suddenly opened on the search-light of Fort Wellington. The light was at once swept round, and five torpedo-boats were discerned in what had just been the dark ray, one close inshore, the others in a cluster further out. They had mistaken the search-lights for fixed ones, and had sent one boat in to destroy the light at Fort Wellington, hoping to dash in unobserved in the confusion. Great must have been their astonishment when the dazzling glare of the search-light at close quarters blinded them. By a chance shot they managed to smash the light, but found themselves illuminated by the light from Fort Ben Bolt. Then the 12-pounders of Fort Wellington rang out and sank the close in-shore boat at almost the first shot. Round swept the light, and found the remaining boats coming in at full speed. The eight 12-pounders got on the leading boat, as the only available search-light could only pick up one of the now scattered boats at a time. The firing, however, was very erratic, owing probably to letting all the guns take part, it being very difficult for each group to correct the range, owing to the difficulty of knowing where its own shells were falling. But meanwhile the two 11-in. guns in the casemate at Fort Ben Bolt were waiting for the boats, laid on the first running-past point, and loaded with case shot. Suddenly the boat on which the search-lights glared, showing the 12-pounders' shells breaking up the water all around her, came across the sights of the 11-in. guns, and one of them roared forth its charge of iron balls. The boat was seen to crumple up like a piece of paper under the awful storm of death that ploughed up the sea for hundreds of yards. The search-light now picked up two more of the remaining three boats; the two were rushing through the water almost abreast, and about 100-yds. apart. Each fort now fired at the boat nearest, and by stopping the fire of one group on each side for a few moments the range was rapidly corrected and the firing became deadly. Soon one boat was sunk, and after being the mark for eight guns, whose automatic sights had all found their error of the day, the other boat soon followed its consorts to the bottom.

The Assailants Destroyed.

The light swept round and round, but no sign could be seen of the fifth and last torpedo-boat. We had failed to keep her out. But great beams of light had burst from the "Diadem's" decks and masthead platforms, and, sweeping rapidly across the bay, soon discovered the torpedo-boat making straight for her, and about 2,000-yds. off. The sailors opened a deadly fire on her, and sank her before she had come close enough to use the torpedo. This success made us all feel much more confident, and we thought we would do even better if we got another chance, now that the first novelty of actual warfare had worn off. We had to remember, however, that we had had the game all our own way, and had not had any disconcerting casualties among ourselves, but had only been shooting at what was for us personally an inoffensive enemy.

The place was in a less secure state than before the visit of the torpedo-boats, owing to the loss of the search-light at Fort Wellington. By great exertions, however, we managed to rig up a portable search-light, which we obtained from the dockyard authorities, and which, although not nearly so powerful as its predecessor, proved fairly efficient.

The next night was again one of little rest for us. About ten o'clock the search-lights revealed two large cruisers, which we identified as the "Depulomus" and the "Brutus." On being observed they immediately opened a rapid but ill-directed fire on us. We did not think they would try to run past, and only kept them under observation with the portable light, while we swept the sea for any torpedo-boats with the Ben Bolt light in case any should try to repeat last night's experiment. We were rewarded for our foresight by discovering that four torpedo-boats were approaching, having crept in under cover of the shore while our attention had been taken up by the two cruisers.

A well-directed fire from the 12-pounders was opened on them, and the leading two were soon sunk. On this the remaining two turned and made off, seeing that to persist in trying to force an entrance into the harbour meant certain destruction.

The 6-in. Q.F. battery at Fort Wellington and the two 9·2-in. breech-loading guns at Fort Ben Bolt had, meanwhile, been directed at the two cruisers. The great advantage of the automatic sights was soon made evident. Having only one search-light, we had, in order to keep both cruisers under observation, to shift the light continually from one to the other. This created no error in ranging, no delay being occasioned by sending fresh ranges, as the sights had only to be got on the fresh target, and the error of the day being once determined, held good however the target was changed. The effect of the fire of the 6-in. Q.F. guns could not be seen, but they must have caused a great deal of damage and loss of life; but one round from the 9·2-in. was seen to cross the beam of light directed on the "Depulomus" in a lambent flash and strike the ship amidships close to the water-line. It evidently burst inside with terrible destruction, for she was soon seen to lose way and lay helpless on the long Atlantic swell. Lying broadside on to the two forts, she was for a few minutes a target for the bursting shells that fell on her decks with the fearful precision of modern weapons. The end was not far off, and before long she began to settle down, and with a final plunge went down by the bows.

(To be continued.)

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

IT was to be expected, perhaps, that a comparatively lengthy period of all-round inaction should follow the battle on the banks of the Tugela on the 15th ult. There is no question that, hard hit as we were on this unfortunate occasion, the enemy also suffered pretty severely, and were, further, deterred by the fighting qualities of troops which, notwithstanding as terrible a fire as perhaps has ever been maintained by an enemy of equal strength, advanced with superb gallantry and only retired with the greatest reluctance.

For more than a fortnight, then, the situation both at Modder River and Chieveley, while it indicated no forward movement on our part, was equally devoid of any incident tending to show that the enemy had a thought of taking the offensive. On the contrary, the Boers appeared to give themselves up wholly to improving their defences, entrenching and arming their positions until their great natural strength was enormously increased by art. They were not in either case suffered to do this without let or hindrance. Day after day the Boer trenches near Colenso and at Magersfontein were steadily shelled, and frequent adventurous reconnaissances were made, with the result that the enemy began to suffer from evident nervousness, turning out on several occasions and keeping up for some time a heavy fire in order to repel purely imaginary night attacks.

Although the opportunity given to the enemy to improve their positions was somewhat disadvantageous to us, neither Buller nor Methuen failed to profit by the lull in really active operation.

In both instances a stream of reinforcements was kept up, and by the end of the year the fighting strength of each had been notably increased. Sir Charles Warren had been deputed to join Sir Redvers Buller in Natal, and with his division the force at Chieveley must have aggregated nearly 30,000 men. The strength at Modder River cannot be estimated at all accurately, but it had probably been brought nearly up to a level of that of the Boer forces in front of it, which was reckoned at between 15,000 and 20,000.

Gatacre and French, being handicapped by the smallness of the force at their disposal, could make no further move of importance, although the former created a useful impression by occupying Dordrecht, and the latter was commendably active in harassing the enemy beyond Arundel. From these quarters reports of disaffection among the Cape Dutch have of late been particularly rife, and it may well be hoped that, as Gatacre's force grows stronger, he will be able at no distant date to create a little diversion of his own which will more than wipe out the memory of his unhappy attempt to surprise Stormberg on the 10th ult.

Turning to the beleaguered garrisons, in all three there continued to be evident the same alertness, the same lusty determination to let the enemy understand that British forces when isolated neither go to sleep nor twiddle their thumbs. Within the past few days fresh sorties from Ladysmith, Kimberley, and Mafeking have been reported, and the security of the first two seems to be assured for some time to come. In the case of Ladysmith the bombardment was becoming more severe, the enemy having mounted fresh guns and found the ranges with great accuracy. But on the 29th and 30th ult. their artillery was strangely silent, owing, it is said, to the capture of one of their positions by a force sent out by General White in the early morning of the 29th. The outlook at Mafeking, it must be admitted, was not cheering. Although "all well" was reported up to the 20th ult., the garrison must have, indeed, been hardly pressed, and nothing but the indomitable pluck and astonishing resource of Baden-Powell could have saved it from being literally overwhelmed.

Outside these broader features of the campaign there continued to be a pretty plentiful crop of incidents, the most generally interesting of which, perhaps, was the escape of Mr. Winston Churchill from prison at Pretoria. In highly romantic fashion the adventurous young war correspondent got away from Pretoria to Lourenço Marques, and, taking ship thence to Durban, rejoined the force at the front within a mile or two of the spot at which he was captured.

At home, so far from the nation being discouraged by the reverses at Magersfontein, Stormberg, and Colenso, every effort was made to put the war on an entirely new footing as regards both men and material. An Eighth Division was announced to be in course of formation, and during the past week the embarkation of the Seventh has been commenced, that of the Sixth having been completed by the end of the year. The response to the Government proposals with reference to the despatch of Yeomanry and Volunteers has been simply magnificent, and on all sides offers of men, horses, and money have been pouring in. Meanwhile, Lord Roberts has been met by Lord Kitchener at Gibraltar, and in a few days these two distinguished leaders will have landed at Cape Town, perhaps with a concerted plan of operations which may soon put a very different complexion upon the war, and possibly even bring a satisfactory conclusion of it within measurable distance.

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

CAVALRY.

Household Regiment		Cape Colony
5th Dragoon Guards	E	Natal
6th " "	B	Cape Frontier
1st Royal Dragoons	D	Natal
2nd Dragoons (Scots Greys)		Cape Colony
5th Lancers	E	Natal
6th Dragoons	B	Cape Colony
9th Lancers	A	Cape Frontier
10th Hussars	B	Cape Colony
12th Lancers	A	Cape Frontier
13th Hussars	D	Natal
18th "	E	Natal
19th "	E	Natal

ROYAL ARTILLERY.

G and P Batteries, R.H.A.	A	Cape Frontier
O and R " "	B	Cape Frontier
4th Battery, R.F.A.		Cape Colony
7th " "	D	Natal
13th " "	E	Natal
14th " "	D	Natal
18th " "	A	Cape Frontier
19th " "	D	Natal
21st " "	E	Natal
28th " "	D	Natal
37th " "	B	Cape Frontier
38th " "	C	Cape Frontier
42nd " "	E	Natal
53rd " "	E	Natal
61st " "	D	Natal
62nd " "	A	Cape Frontier
63rd " "	D	Natal
64th " "	D	Natal
65th " "		Cape Colony
66th " "	D	Natal
67th " "	E	Natal
69th " "	E	Natal
73rd " "	D	Natal
74th " "	C	Cape Frontier
75th " "	A	Cape Frontier
77th " "	C	Cape Frontier
79th " "	C	Cape Colony
No. 4 Mountain Battery	D	Natal
No. 10 " "		Natal
14th Co. W. Division, R.G.A.	D	Cape Colony
23rd " " "		Kimberley
Siege Train		Cape Colony

INFANTRY.

1st Northumberland Fusiliers	A	Cape Frontier
1st Liverpool	E	Natal
1st Devonshire	E	Natal
1st Leicestershire	E	Natal
1st Gloucestershire	E	Natal
1st Border	D	Natal
1st North Lancashire*		Kimberley
2nd Berkshire	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Yorkshire L.I.	A	Cape Frontier
1st King's Royal Rifles	E	Natal
2nd " " "	E	Natal
1st Manchester	E	Natal
2nd Gordon Highlanders	E	Natal
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers	E	Natal
1st Munster Fusiliers	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Royal Dublin Fusiliers	E	Natal
2nd Rifle Brigade	E	Natal
2nd Devon	D	Natal
2nd West Yorkshire	D	Natal
2nd West Surrey	D	Natal
2nd East Surrey	D	Natal
1st Royal Welsh Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Irish Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Scots Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Highland L.I.	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Coldstream Guards	A	Cape Frontier
1st Scots Guards	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Royal Irish Rifles	C	Cape Frontier
2nd Northamptonshire	A	Cape Frontier
3rd Grenadiers	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Black Watch	A	Cape Frontier
1st Coldstream Guards	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Scottish Rifles	D	Natal
1st Argyll and Sutherland	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Seaforths	A	Cape Frontier
1st Durham Light Infantry	D	Natal
3rd King's Royal Rifles	D	Natal
1st Rifle Brigade	D	Natal
1st Welsh	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Somerset L.I.	D	Natal
2nd Northumberland Fusiliers	C	Cape Frontier
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Connaught Rangers	D	Natal
1st Royal Dublin Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Royal Scots	C	Cape Frontier
1st Gordon Highlanders	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Shropshire L.I.		Cape Frontier
2nd Cornwall L.I.	B	Cape Frontier
1st Suffolk		Cape Frontier
1st Essex	B	Cape Frontier
1st Derbyshire	D	Natal
1st Yorkshire		Cape Colony
2nd Royal Warwickshire		Cape Colony
2nd Dorsetshire	D	Natal
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st South Lancashire	D	Natal
2nd Royal Lancaster		Natal
2nd Middlesex		Natal
1st York and Lancaster		Natal

NOTE.—The units are thus distinguished: A denotes those under General Methuen operating on the Western Frontier; B, troops on line of communication from Cape Town, and those who under General French are holding the railway systems whose termini are Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, and East London; C, those under General Gatacre's command in the North-Eastern Province; D, those troops in Natal who under Sir Redvers Buller are operating for the relief of Ladysmith; E, those beleaguered in Ladysmith under the command of Sir George White.

The regiments leaving or en route are: Cavalry — 16th Lancers (from India), 7th Dragoon Guards, 17th Lancers, and 14th Hussars. Artillery—R.H.A., A and J (from India), and Q, T, and U Batteries; R.F.A., 20th, 43rd, 86th, 87th, 83rd, 84th, 85th, 76th, 81st, and 82nd Batteries; 15th Co. W. Division, 2nd Co. E. Division, and 20th and 16th Cos. S. Division, R.G.A.; Infantry—2nd East Kent, 2nd Bedford, 1st Royal Irish, 1st West Riding, 1st Oxford L.I., 2nd Wilts, 2nd Worcestershire, 2nd Gloucester, 2nd Lincoln, 2nd Norfolk, 1st Scottish Borderers, 1st East Lancashire, 2nd Cheshire, 2nd Hampshire, 2nd South Wales Borderers, 2nd North Staffordshire, 1st Lincoln, 2nd East Yorkshire, 3rd Durham L.I., 3rd S. Lancashire, and City of London Imperial Volunteers.

* Left half battalion with Methuen.

Digitized by Google

Cricketing Soldiers.

SOME NOTABLE MEN OF THE SEASON.

THE Briton's love for field sports is both proverbial and world known. Whether in the cold climate of a Northern commercial or military centre, or in some hot and enervating spot in the tropics, it is the same, and, especially in parts of the globe where indolence on the part of the natives is a supreme characteristic, the way in which the Britisher works at his play is a continual source of wonderment to the home-born spectator. Indeed, this affection for vigorous pleasure is one of the factors by which the foreigner forms his idea of the composition of that, to him, peculiar individual, the Englishman. And it is well that such a love should exist, for undoubtedly that something in the "make-up" of the Britisher which causes him to hate inaction is the same characteristic that has enabled his country to take front rank in the roll of the nations, and to occupy the first place in the field of commerce. As is right, perhaps no sport or game takes pre-eminence over cricket—the national pastime. No sooner does the Englishman leave behind the white cliffs of his native land than he commences, on ship-board, to show that he has not forgotten, but still loves, the game of his fathers. Cricket matches are speedily arranged and played, to the amusement and enjoyment both of those who take part in them and those who are mere spectators. It would be possible, were it advisable, to give descriptions of the humour of such matches, but this is not the place for that. If the voyage is one to the tropics, the necessary fibre matting which composes the pitch is a capital introduction to the prepared fibre that serves there for the billiard-table greens of the old country. But if this can be said of the Englishman generally, it is especially true of Service men, and of soldiers in particular. With the innate love of athletics possessed equally by his fellow-countrymen, the soldier frequently has superior opportunities for practice, so it is little to be wondered at that military men can often show high powers, both as batsmen and bowlers, when opposed to civilian teams. It is also no cause for surprise that from time to time there are soldiers who can compare favourably with the best exponents of the game, professional or amateur. Very likely, if our soldier cricketers could give the same time and attention to the game as their civilian friends who play in county cricket, they would be able to bring together a team that a picked eleven from our first-class counties would find a hard nut to crack. Even as it is, an eleven could be chosen from the different regiments which, when opposed to any of the leading cricketing counties, would not disgrace the colours.

MAJOR R. M. POORE.
At the Head of the Batting Averages.

In the fact that a soldier has headed the list of batting averages, no small honour has fallen to the share of the Army, and it is one that is not begrudged anywhere. Major R. M. Poore, of the 7th Hussars, with a total of 1,551 runs for twenty-one innings, has the remarkable average of 91·23. Granted that this high figure is partly brought about by several "not out" innings which Major Poore has played, his performances are none the less worthy of commendation. Look at the high scores he has compiled with consistent success, and remember that a big score in first-class cricket means both high skill and some amount of endurance. With the best of players it is no easy matter to record such scores through a season. Often a spell of bad luck sets in, as it did with Major Poore himself last season, and time after time the disappointed player is sent back with a small figure against his name on the score sheet. Then a change comes about, and century after century is piled up.

Thanks to his fine physique and long reach, Major Poore is able to play forward with as much power as most men use in their drives. He was recently described as a strong player all round the wicket, with a great liking for off-side strokes. Some people have said that Major Poore is a hitter in the same sense as is Mr. G. L. Jessop, the Gloucester amateur and Cambridge captain. This is a mistake. Undoubtedly he does hit vigorously, but he cannot properly be described as a "slogger." He is a natural cricketer, with a style that is undoubtedly his own, and one quite marked off from that of the Photos. Copyright.

CAPTAIN A. J. H. LUARD.
A Popular Secretary.

LIEUTENANT C. S HICKLEY, R.N.
A Naval Player.

Russell & Sons.
LIEUTENANT E M. SPROT.
Plays Polo too.

Digitized by Google

ordinary player. One stroke between cover and cover-point is peculiar, and gives much pleasure to the spectator. Altogether the major showed last season that he is as great a batsman as he is a swordsman and polo player. With the exception of a few unimportant village matches in which as a schoolboy at Cheam he took part, the future major had no real opportunity of learning the game until he joined his regiment in India, where, as is so often the case with soldiers, most, if not all, of the cricket knowledge he has was gained. But it was on the removal of his regiment to South Africa that Major Poore began to be known to English cricketers, and on his return home his reputation enabled him to at once obtain a place in a M.C.C. team, and to become a member of the Hampshire eleven. His record in 1898 reads differently from that of the last season, but the promise then shown by Major Poore determined the authorities not to exclude him from the eleven, and their decision has been more than justified.

CAPTAIN F. W. D. QUINTON.
An Orthodox Player.

Captain F. W. D. Quinton is another prominent member of the Hampshire eleven, whose services cannot be given to the county as often as the executive might wish. As it is, whenever his duties permit, Captain Quinton is generally seen in the field. His county average last season for twelve innings was 24; in the previous year it was 37 for thirteen innings. If he were able to appear more frequently, there is little doubt that he would take a high position amongst the batsmen of the day. A more orthodox player than Major Poore, Captain Quinton has a graceful style and plays a careful game. His driving is particularly safe, but he is both resourceful and good all round the wicket. Like many other first-class cricketers who are played for their batting, Captain Quinton is able to "bowl a bit," and, with his simple lobs, has more than once been the means of dissolving a dangerous partnership that the regular bowlers could not end.

LIEUTENANT C. E. ATCHISON.
A High Delivery.

Captain A. J. H. Luard, the Superintendent of Gymnasia for the Southern District, is perhaps as well known to Service players as any other cricketer. As honorary secretary and treasurer of the United Service ground, he is brought into touch with numberless cricketing sailors and soldiers whose headquarters for the time are fixed in the neighbourhood of Portsmouth. Captain Luard, who is an excellent batsman and an all-round athlete, has appeared for the county, but is not seen in the field so frequently as other Service members of the Hampshire team. Of the other soldier cricketers to whom reference must be made, Colonel J. Spens, who has a reputation for hard hitting, is perhaps the best player, but he has not, perhaps, the same chances of improvement that his juniors possess. Like Major Poore, in addition to being a good cricketer he is known as a fine polo player, as is also Lieutenant E. M. Sprot, another soldier whose cricketing powers have been used by the county.

COLONEL J. SPENS.
Knows how to Hit.

As is to be expected, the Hampshire authorities are always ready to test the abilities of budding soldier and sailor cricketers. Of those whose privilege it has been to be thus chosen brief mention may be made of Lieutenant C. E. Atchison, of the 2nd Shropshire Light Infantry, and Lieutenant H. W. Kettlewell, of the same regiment. The remaining cricketer can scarcely be called a soldier, but as mention has been made of so many Service members of the Hampshire team, it is a fitting thing in conclusion to refer to Lieutenant C. S. Hickley, an officer of the Royal Navy who has had the honour of appearing for the county.

Photos. Copyright. Russell & Sons.
LIEUTENANT H. W. KETTLEWELL.
Watching the Ball.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories.

By Frederick G. Engelbach.

WALTHAM ABBEY.—III.

THE greatest constituent by bulk of cordite is nitro-glycerine, one of the most powerful explosives known. It is obtained by the action of nitric and sulphuric acids upon glycerine, the resultant being a heavy, oily fluid, straw-like in colour. N.G., as it is familiarly known, is exceedingly sensitive to concussion, and an explosion may occur at any moment.

Prior to 1894 its manufacture was carried on in flimsy buildings, surrounded by massive brick traverses, but a disastrous explosion which occurred in May of that year caused a different plan to be adopted.

BEFORE AND AFTER INCORPORATION.
Two Charges of Cordite, one of which consists merely of N.G. and Gun-cotton, the other being a Mixture of N.G., Gun cotton, Acetone, and Vaseline.

house. In appearance the cordite at this stage resembles damp china clay, showing white against the same material when ready for pressing into cordite. The incorporating machine is one of a type used nearly universally by bakers for mixing their dough. It consists of a number of spiral knives which so cut abroad the mass of crude cordite that in 3½ hours it presents quite a different aspect.

The 15-lb. 10-oz. of acetone is mixed with it before incorporation and renders this process feasible. Then 3¾-lb. of mineral jelly is added and the mass sub-

A MACHINE IN ITS TIME PLAYS MANY PARTS.
Baker's Dough Incorporator Used for Cordite Mixing.

GENTLE PERSUASION.
Cordite being Forced into Cords under Enormous Pressure.

The pictures which were taken shortly after the catastrophe, show the crater characteristic of this explosive, hardly one brick being left on top of another. Now, in lieu of masonry, huge banks of earth are piled up round the N.G. houses, which are also slightly sunk below the surface of the ground. The illustrations give a good idea of these typical danger buildings. The nitro-glycerine, by bulk 43½-lb., is mixed with 27½-lb. of gun-cotton in the N.G. houses, and the charge is carried in tubs to the incorporating jected to 3½ more hours of mixing. The jelly gives a ductility to the cordite and renders it fit for pressing.

Photos. Copyright. BLENDING—CORDITE! "Navy & Army."
Winding Sixty Strands into One Rope.

The men in these "shops" work eight-hour shifts, and, work being continuous, a large amount of the explosive is manufactured weekly. About 50,000-lb. can be dealt with in the various incorporators, and yet, in spite of these quantities, not one precaution is neglected. The most scrupulous cleanliness reigns everywhere, and the mop and pail are perpetually in evidence, removing dirt

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

The 3rd Battalion Royal Welsh Fusiliers.

BROUGHT up in a country in which every village and town contributes its quota to the Volunteer force we are too liable to forget that there exists, in addition to the Regular Army, an older constitutional force, the Militia.

We forget, too (except when we are reminded from time to time by the gallant Lord Wemyss, who advocates conscription so strongly in the House of Lords), that the Government has power to enforce the Militia Ballot.

We are not, however, concerned with the Militia as it might be, but with the Militia as it is, more especially with the 3rd Battalion Royal Welsh Fusiliers.

THE GUARD TENT.
A "Canteen" of Tea.

The accompanying pictures represent scenes at the annual camp at Rhyl, where the battalion assembles for its training, lasting, practically, for a month. During the whole of that time the militiaman's time is fully occupied, and his life is similar to that of the regular soldier.

THE CAMP CLOCK.
"Ring the Gong, Watchman."

In most cases he passes his period of training in camp, and is early astir every morning, going through a series of progressive drills. The style of tent used is "bell" shaped, as shown in one of the illustrations. In it are seen three men on guard—a corporal and two private soldiers—enjoying a cup, or rather a "canteen," of tea.

It may be noticed that all are wearing belts and bayonets, ready to go on duty or to "turn out" when required. When "on guard" men are not allowed to leave the guard tent for meals, nor are they permitted to take off any of their accoutrements or clothing; and it is not to be wondered at that militiamen, as well as regular soldiers, are never over-anxious to "go on guard."

A corporal in another illustration is seen sounding the gong, but this is not in order to summon the battalion to dinner, as might be supposed; a bugle is used for that purpose. Clocks, however, are not officially provided, and the hours as they roll on are sounded on the gong placed outside the guard tent. The men of the guard, therefore, are not only charged with the good order of the camp generally, and the safe custody of prisoners committed to their care, but are in effect the timekeepers of the battalion. The gong, it will be noticed, is not mounted on an ornamental stand, but hangs from a tripod, which, as all who have served will know, was not originally intended for that purpose, but to assist the recruit to aim when learning his first lessons in musketry.

In the remaining picture is seen the regimental goat, a Welsh emblem, under the charge of an old soldier. This valued animal is to be seen regularly heading the regiment on the march.

H. Pratt.

Photos. Copyright.
THE REGIMENTAL GOAT AND HIS CUSTODIAN.
"Two's Company."

Digitized by Google

IT is always pleasant to come across signs that war, in spite of the invention of the most fire-eating weapons, grows more humane. On the whole, it clearly does in a variety of ways. The percentage of loss certainly tends to diminish, which is one gain, and the details of the business are greatly softened. A Times correspondent told us the other day that the Boers showed signs of shame and compunction when their attention was called to the fact that the bodies of our dead had been stripped on one occasion. It has also been made a reproach against them that some of their prisoners have been robbed. Now, we may feel quite certain that if either complaint had been made to the most civilised soldier of the last century, he would have stared in amazement that anybody should find fault with a universal practice. The bodies of the dead and the prisoners were habitually plundered down to the end of the Napoleonic wars. If it was not done by the soldiers of the victorious side, it was by the camp followers, a hateful race which has disappeared from modern armies. Smollett, who rarely passed over a barbarity when he had a chance of describing one, has drawn a wonderful picture of one of these wretches in the mother of Count Fathom. They hung about all armies, engaged in various discreditable ways in garrison and in the field. After a battle they prowled among the dead and wounded, armed with long knives, which they used without scruple when they found life in anyone they wished to rob. On the other hand, they were knocked on the head without pity, not only by the enemy, but by those of their own side who caught them going too far.

* * * *

The old theory was that one was fully entitled to the prize of one's bow and spear. The knights of the Middle Ages, though mirrors of chivalry, took ransom from their prisoners, besides depriving them, as a matter of course, of their horses and armour, which were then sold for what they would fetch. There were men who made a trade of buying prisoners from their captors for money down, and then screwing big ransoms out of them by ill-treatment. The famous Sir John Falstolf, whose name is supposed to have been adapted by Shakespeare into Falstaff, made a great fortune in this way in the wars of Henry V. and Henry VI. He built Caister Castle out of it, and was going to endow colleges; but much of his money ended by coming to the Pastons. In the Navy plunder was a recognised institution. It consisted of all furniture and so on found above the upper deck, and of all the portable property found on prisoners. Regulations were made that prisoners should not be robbed of their shirts, nor female prisoners of whatever jewels they had on. These restrictions would not have been imposed if they had not been needed. But whoever has read even a little in Naval history knows how common are the complaints that prisoners had been rifled. The soldiers did as the sailors. We know how Wellington's men scrambled for King Joseph's treasure after Vitoria. Napier says it was not only the common men who were found seizing what they could lay hands on. Of the mass of money the plunder of Spain which King Bottle, as his unwilling Spanish subjects called him, carried in his train, amounting, it is said, to a million, not a tenth part found its way into the military chest. We have, perhaps, reformed all that, and yet who knows the effect which might be produced on the British or any other soldier by the sight of a waggon-load of gold doubloons turned out on the roadside?

* * * *

It begins to look as if we were nearing the time when another Naval Defence Act, or some equivalent, will be needed. The German Emperor is steadily bringing his subjects to see the need for a great Navy, and now the French are preparing to spend £20,000,000 on theirs. An anonymous admiral, writing in the Figaro, has just explained the case very fully. Need one remark that it is all the fault of Perfidious Albion? This gallant officer points out the danger to all our neighbours arising from our insolent claim to universal dominion, and from the "Imperialism" which will survive our disasters in South Africa, because "it flatters the intimate sentiments of the English—that is to say, of the most self-satisfied people in the world." Admiral X. is quite sure that when we have been beaten by the Boers (the beating he considers a settled thing) we shall feel the necessity for taking it out of somebody, and then we will infallibly fall upon the French, a mild, inoffensive, long-suffering people, whom we have already bullied most atrociously, everywhere and always, and for no reason whatever. Therefore he is most desirous to see his country get ready in time, lest the English come upon them like the thief in the night. It is eminently probable that the admiral will find most of his countrymen prepared to agree with him.

* * * *

It is instructive to observe that he has not the least doubt of the power of his country to rival the British Fleet if it likes. He allows that we can build more ships, but he discounts this power of ours by saying that we cannot find officers and men for them, seeing that we are at the end of our tether already. France, on the other hand, has the immense resources of her inscription maritime, and can easily excel in number of men. The admiral is a hopeful person, and does not, for one thing, allow sufficiently for the financial difficulty. France is nearer the end of her tether in the matter of tax-paying than we are to ours in the capacity for finding men. It is all very well to vote £20,000,000 to be raised by loan for ships and guns. The financial world will see no objection to that; the money will be welcome to the ship-building trades. But the upkeeping of the ships and the votes for officers and men will be a permanent charge. The French tax-payer, who already thinks (and very rightly) that he pays an enormous sum, will look rather blue at the large additions. Yet the vote will probably pass, and will have its effect on us and on our charges, which, with the prospect of £60,000,000 or thereabouts to pay for the war in South Africa, and a big permanent addition to the Army, is a serious prospect. With a much larger Army to maintain, with Germany growing at sea by leaps and bounds, and France keeping pace, so that the calculation of equality with any two Navies threatens to become insufficient, an increase of £10,000,000 a year or so in our taxes is no impossibility. But if you want your whistle you must pay for it.

* * * *

The cool way in which the admiral takes it for granted that we shall be beaten on land by an heroic little people is amusing. So was the excited effusion of a Russian gentleman—an officer of Engineers—in the same paper, who was describing the other day the utterly rotten state of our Army, and was pouring out all the old platitudes about our mercenaries as briskly as if they had never been heard before. There is nothing like a good well-grounded ignorance to give confidence. Admiral X. and the eloquent Russian gentleman have plainly never heard of our previous achievements in the way of land wars. We who remember the kind of figure we cut at the beginning of the Seven Years' War and the Great Revolutionary War, know that we never were so well prepared or suffered so little at the beginning of a struggle for want of preparation as in this case. One has to come to the conclusion that things might have been better managed, and that we need not have put ourselves so much in the way of fighting at a disadvantage; but after all where are the terrible disasters? There have been checks, repulses, and a considerable loss of life, for which there has been less return than one could wish; but what has there been that can be called a great disaster? The disappointment of hasty people who thought that the drawing of the Transvaal badger was going to be a little holiday is the nearest approach.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

The Editor would be much obliged if photographers and others sending groups would place the name of each person on the pictures so as to plainly indicate to which figure each name refers.

The Editor will also be glad to hear from Naval and Military officers who are willing to write descriptions of sporting adventures they may have experienced. He would like to see any photographs that may have been taken, especially those of the "bags" made.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

JANUARY 14, 1676.—Destruction of the Tripoli Fleet, in Tripoli Harbour, by the boats of Sir J. Narborough's Fleet, led by Cloudesley Shovel. 1779.—Captain Cook killed. 1797.—Wreck of the French "Droits de l'Homme," and the British "Amazon," 36, in Audierne Bay, after the battle of the previous day. 1809.—Surrender of the "Cayenne" to Captain J. L. Yeo, of the "Confiance."

January 15, 1743.—Action between the "Sapphire," 40, and five Spanish privateers, under the Vigo forts. 1814.—Cutting out of the "Heure" privateer by boats of the "Castor" frigate, off Barcelona. 1815.—The American "President," 50-gun frigate, taken by the "Endymion," 40.

January 16, 1704.—Action between the "Lyme," 32, and a French 46-gun privateer, off the Deadman. 1780.—Rodney's victory over Langara, off St. Vincent. 1798.—Cutting out of the "Desirée," 6-guns, by two boats of the "Babet," 20, off Martinque. 1808.—Sinking of the French "Courier," 18, by the British "Linnet," 14, off Barfleur. 1814.—The French "Alcmène," 40-gun frigate, taken by the "Venerable," 74.

January 17, 1801.—Taking of the French "Eclair," 4-guns, by the "Garland," schooner, off Guadaloupe. 1809.—Withdrawal of Sir J. Moore's army from Corunna by British Naval force. 1885.—Naval Brigade at the battle of Abu Klea.

January 18, 1695.—Captain James Killegrew slain in action. 1783.—The "Argo," 44, taken by the French "Nymphe" and "Concorde," 40-gun frigates.

January 19, 1677.—Captain James Harman, of the "Guernsey," 26, killed in action with the Algerine "White Horse," 50-gun ship. 1783.—The "Leander," 50, after a fierce action beats off French "Couronne," 80. 1839.—Taking of Aden by landing party from the "Volage." 1885.—Naval Brigade at the Battle of Metemmeh.

January 20, 1783.—Recapture of the "Argo," 44, by the "Invincible," 74. 1810.—Capture and destruction of large French convoy in Basque Roads by boats of the "Christian VII.," 80-guns, and "Armide," frigate. 1814.—French "Iphiégnie," 40-gun frigate, taken by the "Venerable," 74.

JANUARY 14, 1812.—Severe fighting before Ciudad Rodrigo—Peninsula.

January 15, 1706.—Action near St. Estevan. Colonel Wills, with English and Dutch troops, attacked by a superior force, under Chevalier D'Asfield, the advanced guard of the French Army. The enemy repulsed and driven back in confusion. 1761.—Surrender of Pondicherry. The town taken from the French by Colonel Eyre Coote with the 102nd Madras Fusiliers, assisted by a detachment of sailors and marines. 1898.—Major Macdonald defeated Mwanga, in Buddu, East Africa.

January 16, 1705.—Attack on Gibraltar repulsed. The Round Tower stormed by the Spaniards, who were eventually repulsed by a charge led by Colonel Moncol. 1809.—Battle of Corunna. While the British were embarking after the retreat, 20,000 of the enemy, under Soult, advanced, and were opposed by Sir John Moore with 14,000 troops. After a terribly obstinate conflict, the victory of the British was complete. Sir John Moore was fatally wounded, and died the same night. The French lost 2,000 men, while our casualties were 900. 1890.—Lord Napier of Magdala died.

January 17, 1818.—Action near Malasunky. Three large bodies of Mahrattas utterly routed by Major Doveton, with a squadron of the 22nd Dragoons, two squadrons of the 7th Madras Light Cavalry, aided by a brigade of galloper guns, under Major Cleaveland. 1885.—Battle at Abu Klea. Sir H. Stewart, with a force of 1,400, consisting of the 19th Hussars, Mounted Infantry, Heavy Camel Corps, Sussex Regiment, Naval Brigade, and three guns defeated 10,000 Arabs. Colonel Burnaby killed. 1896.—British troops occupy Kumassi.

January 18, 1806.—Surrender of the Cape of Good Hope. The Batavian Army, under General Janssens, together with the whole Settlement of the Cape of Good Hope, surrendered to Brigadier-General Beresford and the British Army, under Major-General Sir David Baird, at Hottentot Hollandskloof. 1826.—Storming of Bhurtpore. Lord Combermere, on December 10, appeared before the walls of Bhurtpore with 20,000 men, and eight days later the fortress was taken by storm.

January 19, 1812.—Capture of Ciudad Rodrigo. The siege of this fortress had only lasted twelve days when it was successfully stormed by the third and light divisions of Wellington's army, commanded by Generals Mackinnon and Crawford respectively. Both these generals were killed. The whole loss of the allies was about 90 officers and 1,200 men.

January 20, 1807.—Engagement at Monte Video. A force of 4,000 British having landed about nine miles from Monte Video on January 18, were met outside the town two days later by 6,000 of the enemy, who were driven back with heavy loss, and our force were enabled to lay siege to the city.

The "Frobisher's" Escape.

By THOMAS LEANDER.

EVERYONE says to me, when coming on board the "Brigand," "What a nice cabin you have—pity it's so near the pantry." I always assent, but all the same I wouldn't change my cabin for any other in the ship—that is, so long as Figgins remains our wine steward. Figgins is a thorough Cockney. The love of streets and crowds is in his marrow. On a "make-and-mend" afternoon at sea the stillness worries him so that he cannot sleep. "'Ell," he said one day, "is nothink more than a heverlastin' Thursday in the middle of the hocean." You see yourself that a man entertaining such opinions about "make-and-mend" must, if not mad, be an extremely original person. Originality is always interesting, especially in the Service. That is why I like to lie in my bunk and hear Figgins discourse of men and things. His criticisms of many distinguished officers are singularly acute, but are wasted, I fear, on the heavy Plymouth marines we have as ward-room servants. I think, though, that they appreciate Figgins when he merely tells them a straightforward story of his own experiences. They feel that no one in the West Country could spin such variegated yarns.

The other afternoon the pantry was discussing a lieutenant who had lately gone into the Coast Guard.

"He was a chump," said one of the marines; "I remember 'im in the 'Tosser' goin' on board a steamer for mails. There was a pal of his among the passengers, an' when 'e goes aboard 'e 'as three or four drinks wiv 'im. About 'alf-an-hour after 'is pal says that 'is boat is still waitin'. 'Good Lor!' says Baker, 'I'm awficer of the guard,' and tears back to the ship, gets piped hover the side, and asked 'ow many bags there was. You should 'a seen the skipper when 'e says 'e'd quite forgot to tell 'em 'e wanted the mails."

"Yes," agreed Figgins, "'e was a bit barmy at times, but for hall that 'e onct saved 'Er Majesty a bran-noo cruiser an' habout six 'underd o' a mark-one ship's company."

"I never heard of it," said the messman.

"No," replied Figgins, "there aint many as knows habout it; but why 'as Lootenant Baker got the best gobby billet there is—because 'e run into a fishin' smack hevery time they lets 'im loose in a destroyer?"

"Yes," said the messman, "I often wondered why he got that job."

"I'll tell you 'ow it was," said Figgins. "I was hin the 'Frobisher' then, flag-ship Pacific, an' a more gawd-forsook lonesome station I 'opes I may never see. Heveryone knows the 'Frobisher'—twin-screws fust-claws cruiser, twenty knots, with a big nine-pint-two haft. The time I'm talkin' hof we was hanchored in a bay in one hof the Galapagos Hislands. There we lay, 'underds o' miles from a livin' soul, not a thing to do, 'alf the awficers bein' hashore hall day shootin', though I never sees no bag but two teals an' a lizard.

"The bay we lay in was long an' narrer, with a pint stickin' well hout at heach side hof the hentrance. There was a 'ill at the back o' the bay wot was halways smokin' at the top, and sometimes hof a night flames'd be showin' against the sky. I 'eard the gunnery hexpert hask the navigator one day hif it wasn't a volcano, but the navigator, 'oo was by wye of a science bloke, says hall volcanoes hin the group is hextinct for hages. 'E learns better afore 'e'd finished.

"The day we was to sail come round hat last, an' bloomin' glad I was. Leave was hup at five, an' we was to sail 'alf-an-hour later, startin' the trip with a four-hour full-speed trile. That hafternoon was as huncomfortable a time has I hever 'ad. The hair 'ad a sorter dull, sultry feel, an' heven the marine servants couldn't sleep, halthough they did belong to Plymouth division. The Hadmiral was livery, an' 'is bell was goin' hevery two seconds. Baker was awficer hof the watch, an' was near hoff 'is 'ead.

"'Where's that awficers' boat?' the hold man would say; 'damme, there'll be no more leaf—keepin' me waitin' in this 'ades hof a place.'

"'It's just comin' hoff, sir,' Baker'd reply.

"'Comin' hoff! It ought to 'a been 'ere an hour hago. I told 'em I'd sail at 'alf-past five.'

"'It's honly a quarter to five now, sir.'

"'Don't contradict me, sir, or I'll 'ave you put hunder harrest. You've been puttin' the clock back. Leave my cabin.' An' Baker would come flyin' hout with the hold man still growlin' hafter 'im like a mad dog.

Digitized by Google

"At last the cutter came halongside. The shootin' party was full of a yarn habout flames bustin' hout of the mounting on the hother side, an' some of 'em was still spinnin' it to Baker when the awficers' call went.

"The Hadmiral was walkin' hup an' down the hafter bridge, when suddently 'e stops an' looks at the beach. 'Gad!' says 'e, 'we're draggin' on to the shore,' an' sends a message to the skipper. The skipper sends the midshipman back to say as 'ow the hanchor was hup, and 'e was goin' slow a'ead. 'Tell the capting to come haft 'ere hat onct.'

"The skipper comes halong, an' as soon as 'e sees 'ow close the beach was 'e gives a reglar jump. 'The hinfernal hengineers must be goin' hastern,' says 'e, an' tears for'ard to the speakin' toobe.

"'Wot are ye doin' down below?' says 'e.

"'Goin' slow a'ead, sir.'

"'There must be the 'ell of a set-in,' says the skipper, an' then down the toobe 'e tells 'em to let 'er go.

"Haft 'e comes hagain, an' sees the shore has close as hever.

"'Wot are you playin' hat?' hasks the Hadmiral; 'you'll be hashore in a minute.' The skipper near goes hoff 'is dot, an' sends the chief below to hinvestigate. The chief comes back in 'alf a second to say they was doin' sixty revolutings, an' workin' hup to full speed has fast has possible.

"'Twelve knots!' hexclaimed the skipper; 'we must be hup agin a rock.'

"'Rock be dashed,' says the Hadmiral; 'there aint no rock within six 'underd mile. Mr. Buller,' says 'e to the chief, 'your blank propeller must 'ave got tired an' fell hoff'; but there was the screw kickin' hup a reglar foam hastern. 'Well,' 'e hadds, 'please get hup full speed with hall despatch,' so the chief trots below agin, an' the stokers digs hout like divils. Still the bloomin' beach seemed has close has hever. At last the Hadmiral turns round, an' says, solemn-like, 'Capting Wilson,' says 'e, 'that three blanks his land is blank well chasin' hus'—and, s'elp me, but it blessed well was. 'Look at the bow waves them two pints makes,' says 'e; 'they're goin' ten knots or I'm a Dutchman.'

"A 'uge bust o' flame spurted out o' the 'ill.

"Well, you'd 'ardly belief it, but the two pints at the hentrance to the bay was boomin' halong like battle-ships, chuckin' up the water like the hold 'Thunderer' in a breeze. The sea, hof course, was risin' in the bight an' runnin' round the foot o' the 'ill like mill-races. The 'ands was starin' haft like looneys, an' 'alf the awficers looked as cheerful as if they'd swallowed skim milk in mistake for whisky. The stokers 'ad the hold packet going by this, an' she was racin' halong at sixteen knots an' beginnin' to gain a bit. We was near 'alf way along to the pint, an' still creepin' a'ead. There was a cloud o' smoke an' steam risin' behind the 'ill, an' I see Baker a-studyin' it. 'Jove!' 'e says, 'I've got it,' an' rushes to the Hadmiral. The boss was so hanxious that 'e never bothered with discipline. 'Wot is it, Baker?' says 'e. 'A volcano, sir,' says Baker, 'that's wot's up. There's a heruption goin' on, an' the gas 'as busted out the hother side of the 'ill, an' the 'ole hisland is a blessed rocket shootin' halong the top o' the water.'

"'Gad!' says the Hadmiral, 'I belief ye're right. But we're trapped in 'ere.'

"'Leave it to me, sir,' says Baker; 'gimme a gun's crew and some shot an' we'll get hout of this 'ole.'

"'Right y'are. Take wot ye want,' the hold man tells 'im, but 'e was hexpectin' to be corpsed by the mad hisland, I could see.

"By this time the hold 'Frobisher' was buckin' halong at nineteen, an' gettin' very close to the hend o' the pint, but o' course the 'elm couldn't be put hover, or the hisland would 'a been right on top hof us in 'alf a shake. Hall the hengineers was below diggin' hout like mad to put hon the twenty knots, but book speed aint sea speed, an' it was a 'ard nut to crack.

"The 'eat was gettin' hawful on the q.-d. The sentry on the life-buoy was sweatin' walkin' hup an' down—fat lot o' good 'e'd 'a done if hanyone 'ad fell hoverboard; but that's halways the wye in the Nivy. 'Owever, Baker comes halong, an' tells 'im to get for'ard if 'e didn't want 'is 'ead blew hoff. The crew o' the nine-pint-two was there, an' some shell an' harmour-piercin' shot was 'isted hup. Baker 'ad a Joey wot was in cells most on 'is time, but was heasy the best shot in the ship, as number one.

"'See that 'ollow 'alfway hup the 'ill?' says 'e. 'Well, fire a common shell right hinto that.'

"There was no waitin', an' in 'alf a mo bang goes the gun an' the shell roots hout a tremenjus 'ole in the very spot.

"'Good,' says Baker, watchin' through 'is glawses; ''it 'er again,' and kerwump goes hanother in the same place.

"'That's bared the rock,' says 'e agin; 'put in a harmour-piercer.' At the same time 'e sends for'ard to put the 'elm 'ard a-gilbert when the next shot was fired, an' a message to the hengine-room, for 'eaven's sake to let 'er rip.

"There wasn't a sound in hall the ship but the buzzin' o' the bulgines as the Joey lays the gun. 'When y'er ready,' Baker tells 'im.

"Bang went the gun, hover went the 'elm, and the ship quivers hat a 'underd an' five revolutings. A 'uge bust o' flame spurted hout o' the 'ill where the shot 'ad made a split air through hinto the crater. The 'elm was hover honly just in time; has it were, the paint was blistered hoff the gun-hield, an' the steam'n' covers fell down hall singed to bits.

"It looked as hif we was hin for a collide with the pint, but o' course the spout o' gas in front nootralises t'other be'ind, an' checks the hisland, an' hour stern just swings round it like a racin' bicycler on a 'igh-banked track.

"We was 'ardly a mile clear when the 'ole top o' the hisland suddently blows hup with a terrible smash, an' 'avin' lost hits wye, down goes the 'ole show in a cloud o' steam."

"But," interrupted one of the servants, "why didn't no one ever hear of a thing like that?"

"Why!" answered Figgins, with fine contempt, "the Hadmiral couldn't very well report has 'ow 'e'd run away from a furrin hisland—a Henglish man-o'-war aint supposed to run from anythink less than a bloomin' continent. Still 'e didn't go forgettin' Lootenant Baker when the gobby billets was whacked hout."

"Yes," retorted the marine; "but what about the crew?"

"The crew," replied Figgins, glibly—"the crew did yarn habout it at fust, but hevery hunbelievin' man has 'eard the tale said if 'e could spin such benders 'e'd never want hexcuses for breakin' 'is leaf forty-eight hours; so, seein' wot reputations they'd 'ave, the 'Frobishers' soon knocked hoff tellin' the yarn."

"A little thing like that won't hurt your reputation," said the messman, after an eloquent silence.

Digitized by Google

PERHAPS no soldier was ever so universally popular as the famous Marquis of Granby, and it is no small tribute to the genuine esteem in which he was held that his physiognomy still appears upon the swinging sign-boards of many public-houses throughout the country. If any man ever deserved a Boswell it was he, and no one ever possessed one in smaller degree, for Horace Walpole, rich in peevish prejudice, held him up to the ridicule of his time, and it is Walpole's picture of the Marquis that still "holds the field," while the harsh things said by "Junius" are not altogether forgotten. Mr. Walter Evelyn Manners has set before himself the task of vindicating "the sign-board hero" from the aspersions cast upon him by the wits of his time, in a volume entitled "Some Account of the Military, Political, and Social Life of the Marquis of Granby" (Macmillan, 18s.). He has succeeded in presenting his subject to us as an upright, unselfish, generous, and patriotic man. It does not appear that Granby can ever be regarded as a really great soldier, although the Oxford Newsman of 1767 declared

"There was a time when Granby's Grenadiers Trimm'd the lac'd jackets of the French mounseers."

The real cause of the popularity of the Marquis seems to have lain in his open character, his sympathy with his soldiers, his anxiety to share their hardships, his familiarity with them—for the Tommy Atkins of those days "dearly loved a lord"—and, perhaps, more than all in the exceeding zest with which he entered into fox-hunting, racing, cock-fighting, and all the sports of his time. Granby began his military career as colonel of a foot regiment raised by his father, the Duke of Rutland, on the occasion of the Jacobite rising of 1745. He was in Flanders with the Duke of Cumberland, and, after a fox-hunting interlude and some years spent at home, went abroad in command of cavalry at the beginning of the Seven Years' War. In the great battle of Minden—in remembrance of which six of our infantry regiments wear roses on August 1—the cavalry played no part that was creditable, but the fault did not lie with the Marquis of Granby. A great opportunity was lost, but the failure was due to the conduct of Lord George Sackville, through whose slackness and disobedience of orders Granby, who was in command of the second line of the cavalry, was informed of the state of affairs too late. The trial of Sackville caused a great sensation at the time; it resulted in his being dismissed from the Service, but the whole affair is now forgotten. The Marquis of Granby afterwards wiped out the defeat by the victory of Warburg, though even at this Walpole sneered, and he fought also at Vellingshausen and Wilhelmsthal, and defeated De Rochambeau. That the success in these various actions was due in large part to Granby's ability appears to be true, but the fact that he served under foreign officers enabled his critics to depreciate his qualities. With the populace this distinction did not count, and when Granby appeared at race meetings at Nottingham, Newark, Scarborough, and elsewhere he was greeted as a glorious hero, while a song with a refrain of "Granby O, Gen'rous Granby O!" was sung by discharged soldiers from one end of the country to the other. Mr. Manners has done exceedingly well in giving us his new portraiture of this "all-round eighteenth century gentleman," who was known and beloved by a more extensive and varied public than any man of his period, and whose kindly familiarity with all ranks neither bred pride in him nor contempt in others, unless they were men of the Walpole school. The biographer knows the period well, and he gives a very vigorous picture both of the military events and of the social life of the time. Many excellent portraits and maps of military operations add interest to the book.

* * * *

The spirit of sport has been, and happily still is, strong in many soldiers, besides the Marquis of Granby. Captain F. E. S. Adair is an excellent example of this. He has just written, under the title of "A Summer in High Asia" (Thacker, 12s. 6d.), a capital record of sport and travel in Baltistan and Ladakh. Very modestly he says that his book is without any literary pretensions whatever. Without formal bookmaking character it may be, but it is full notwithstanding of acute observation, and abounds in excellent description, and nothing more than this is really necessary. Captain Adair was fascinated by the mountains of that land, and he had heard with envy many stories of the hunter's paradise. He accordingly set out upon a journey, which took him ultimately to Leh, through the beautiful Scindh Valley, with its fertile fields, and the great mountainous country beyond. The smiling landscapes of Kashmir were left behind, and the wilderness of desolate hillsides was entered. The road in many parts was of the roughest, and involved the crossing of rickety cantilever bridges, and the traversing of stony valleys that were almost pathless. Sir Martin Conway has described the country extremely well, and Captain Adair shares his enthusiasm. He gives excellent expression to his feelings of admiration for the splendid group of mountains forming part of the main Karakoram range—all of them over 25,000-ft. high—which he saw when he reached his camping ground at the entrance of the Hushe Nallah, a deep, narrow valley leading up to the Mustagh Hills. I do not intend to describe the sport he met with here or on his journey to Leh. His story is full of interest, and those who are attracted by tales of hunting prowess, or by the facts of natural history, will thoroughly enjoy it. He encountered excellent luck, and returned, having far exceeded his expectations in shooting napoo, goa, and nyan; and, quite apart from the sport, he had had a most delightful time. Others will doubtless profit by his experience. Incidentally, the book throws light upon the commerce of the country, and in relation to that subject there is an excellent appendix by Captain S. H. Godfrey, late British Joint Commission of Ladakh, upon the trade of that region with China and Thibet. Captain Adair's book is well illustrated.

* * * *

Mr. R. T. Pritchett, marine painter to the Royal Thames Yacht Club, has a true artistic eye for the picturesque attractions of all classes of shipping. His "Pen and Pencil Sketches of Shipping and Craft all Round the World" (Arnold, 10s. 6d.) is a most delightful book. It is not only full of admirable sketches, but also of charming descriptions, which show that the author has penetrated into the very spirit of his subject. He looks back with regret to the great frigates and line-of-battle ships, with their vast spread of canvas, to the East Indiaman in full sail, to the China tea clipper in the trades, and with some apprehension regards the all-pervading advance of steam, which seems to threaten not only the picturesque craft of our coasts and the quaint vessels of Venetian lagoons, but even the fibre and mat sailed craft of countries that are savage. Mr. Pritchett begins by describing and illustrating the Royal yachts and some vessels of the Royal Yacht Squadron. He passes on to tea clippers; the colliers which used to be one of the sights of the Thames; the Yorkshire cobles, in one of which Grace Darling performed her feat of courage; the Medway barges, with their tanned sails, ranging in colour from yellow ochre to vandyke brown, and their lee boards; and to the fishing-boats of our Southern coasts. This is how he describes the Brixham trawlers in Torbay: "When the fleet, numbering some 200 vessels, goes out in the 'dumpsey' of the day ('dumpsey' being a Devonshire term for twilight), the crowd of dark-coloured, tanned sails produces a very grand effect, the intense depth of tone in the hulls being relieved by the flicker of the fishermen's side-lights, whilst the rich colour of the last crimson of the setting sun catches the upper cirri, the wavelets in the foreground sharing its glory, and throwing the dark mass of the fleet into deeper shade than ever." We feel in reading excellent prose like this that Mr. Pritchett is an artist in words, as well as with brush and canvas. It would be tedious to name all the classes of vessels which he depicts. They include American river barges, Norwegian herring-boats, Danish coasters, Dutch pinks, galliots, and eel schuyts, which last may still be seen lying off Billingsgate exactly as they did 300 years ago, and various craft of the Mediterranean. He gives us also most graceful Nile luggers, Arab dhows, the formidable pirates of the Persian Gulf, Singalese outriggers, and the junks and fishing-boats of China and Japan. One of his latest pictures is of King Thakambau going out in a Fijian levuka to meet the flying squadron in 1881. I have said enough to show the fascination of Mr. Pritchett's subject, to which he has done an ample measure of justice, and it only remains to say that his drawings are beautifully reproduced, and that the volume is printed and bound in excellent taste.

* * * *

With very great pleasure I draw attention to the publication of a second edition of Lieutenant-Colonel W. Hill James's "The Battles of the Nivelle and the Nive" (M'Lagan and Cumming, Edinburgh). "Battles Round Biarritz" is the general title which the gallant author has given to a charming little series, "with maps, and how to see the ground," the other brochures being "Sir Rowland Hill's Great Fight of St. Pierre" and "Garris and the Bridge of Boats." Many an Englishman has gone to Biarritz, scarcely realising how the country thereabouts speaks of the final scenes in Wellington's great triumph in the Peninsula. The five days' fighting ended with Hill's grand victory (sometimes called Mouguerre), in which his 14,000 defeated 35,000 Frenchmen. Colonel James's admirable descriptions, his excellent maps, and his capital illustrations, are just the thing for the tourist, and are sufficient for the military student also. He writes, moreover, very picturesquely, and his pages are a decided addition to the volumes of Napier. When Her Majesty visited Arcanges in the winter of 1888-89, she expressed regret that there was nothing to commemorate the gallant men who fell in the battles round the village in 1813. Colonel Hill James patriotically made good the want, by placing in the village churchyard, on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee, 1897, a very characteristic monument, illustrated in this pamphlet, being a recumbent cross like that of the Distinguished Service Order, surrounded by a multangular stone edging. The Army should be grateful to him for this act.

* * * *

I shall sound but one roll upon the South African war drum, but before I do so let me say that those who wish to find excellent Sunday reading which is neither didactic nor dull should possess themselves of the Sunday Strand, which is like, and yet unlike, the well-known Strand Magazine, being excellently illustrated, and having such contributors as Ian Maclaren, Sir Walter Besant, and Headon Hill.

* * * *

The war note is that of the "Cape Marching Song," by Leonard B. Leonard (Hawkes and Son). It is a vigorous and tuneful production, with a stirring military quality about it, and has been played by the bands of the 2nd Life Guards, the Scots Guards, the King's Own, and other regiments, and has, I believe, been much approved. The words might have been better, but in such matters words do not seem to count. The tune's the thing, and here Mr. Leonard has been successful.

"SEARCH-LIGHT."

Publishers' announcements and books for review should be addressed direct to the Editor of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED, 20, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden.

Digitized by Google

The War: In the Cape Colony.

WAR, like misery, as we know, makes unexpected bedfellows, and close comradeship alters their views of one another, even as between foes fighting leads to a kind of comradeship. It is one of the good things of war, evil as it is, that the practice of exchanging blows in a manful way tends to make the combatants think better of one another. The rule hardly holds good where all the successes are on one side, and when the methods of both, or one, of the combatants are purely barbarous. But where there is a reasonable amount of give and take, and where the hardship of imprisonment and wounds is softened by reasonable good-fellowship on the part of the victor, a war almost always ends by making the parties think more honourably of one another. In spite of the rather savage notion which some of them hold of what makes a legitimate ruse de guerre—which notion they appear to have acquired from the Matabele—the Boers have behaved fairly well to our prisoners. Meanwhile, they have probably got a higher opinion of our prowess than they had a year ago. We also think better of them than we did at that period, and though neither of us will fight the less stoutly on that account, still we shall not improbably end on reasonably good terms—or, at any rate, with a better disposition to make them. If opponents in war are only comrades after a sort, there is no need to qualify the word as applied to those who stand together. Certainly we all feel bound to our colonial brethren, whose portraits we give here, far more than we did some three or four years ago.

Photo. Copyright. GATACRE'S SCOUTS. Witness.
Who Fought with Lieutenant de Montmorency at Labuschagne's Nek.

Photo. Copyright. C COMPANY CAPE MOUNTED RIFLES. Stad.
Lieutenant Boardman, Captain C. F. J. Goldsworthy, and Lieutenant Wally Seated in the Middle of the Front Row.

These colonial uniforms were first known to us as parts of picturesque shows, ranging from the Agricultural Hall up to the Jubilee Procession. Now they form an integral part of the British Army, and we are wearing them ourselves The papers are full of the doings of those who wear them. Dalgety's men are as familiar to us as the Grenadier Guards. The Cape Colonists have, one hears, been a little annoyed because they thought that their services were not sufficiently recognised. It is a pity that this should be so, but the feeling will not last. Mr. Chamberlain most surely did not mean to omit the Cape Colonists when he praised the Natalians and the exiles from the Rand, who as some supposed, were all capitalists and millionaires, but who have been found "side by side, shoulder to shoulder" with our own soldiers and their equals in gallantry at Mafeking, Kimberley, and round Ladysmith. It was only because their field of war was not most in the public eye at the moment that he did not mention them at Leicester. There will be no oversight of the kind in future. The fighting along the frontier will stop any risk of that. Nobody can have supposed that colonials could not fight. The only fault they ever had was a certain restiveness under discipline, which was partly a consequence of their habits of life, partly a want of experience. But the good sense of the colonists, which is a quality no less essential to military efficiency than courage, has amended that. The colonists are as well aware as the most rigidly trained of European soldiers that good order is as much needed as good will. Experience has had its effect on the professional military world also. Soldiers have sometimes been great pedants about the merely formal parts of their business. We know what Braddock thought of the Virginian Militia, because they did not come up to his standard.

Photo. Copyright. PRINCE ALFRED'S GUARDS. Green.
A Parade Prior to Their Departure for the Front.

Digitized by Google

A DAILY SCENE AT CAPE TOWN DOCKS.

THE WEST AUSTRALIAN INFANTRY READY TO ENTRAIN.

THE WEST AUSTRALIAN INFANTRY DRAWN UP FOR INSPECTION.

Photos Copyright.
THE NEW ZEALAND LANCERS DISEMBARKING.

We know also what he paid for his foolishness when he marched to death and defeat in the expedition against Fort Duquesne, which now is Pittsburg. The colonials have even taken a pretty ample revenge, for the Yeomanry and Volunteers, who are organising to-day for service in South Africa, take them, and not the orthodox military figure, for their model. Indeed, the professional Army has dropped most of its tight tailoring and pipeclay, and has approximated to them. What would good old Sir David Dundas, or any other "real soldier" of the high-stocked, stiff-backed, wooden Prussian school have said of the soldiers of to-day with their easy khaki jackets and their putties? Horror would have filled them. The ideal officer of that stamp was the Russian Grand Duke who said he hated war because it spoiled soldiers. He meant that it ruined all the neat dressing and meticulously exact carriage of the parade ground. There were officers of ours who were terribly shocked by the appearance of the regiments which came back from the long campaigns of the Peninsula, where they had learnt to do things in the most convenient fashion. To do things conveniently, with the minimum of strain, and not only to do them with the utmost exactness of form, is fast becoming the ideal of the modern soldier. If some of the veterans who came back from the Peninsula could be brought to life again and put down amid the scenery of the Tugela, they might, perhaps, think themselves back in Spain once more. They crossed not a few rivers exactly like it, and climbed up many such hills. The Iberian rivers have very much the same exasperating character attributed to the "Fear," which is the meaning of the name Tugela. They are for the most part of the year wide sandy courses, nearly, or at places quite, innocent of visible water. A succession of pools and a narrow thread of stream represent the river. Then, when the rains come, or the snows melt, what was a dry course at sundown is a raging torrent by morning. Most rivers are liable to sudden increase, and can be fatal to military bridges. The Danube on one famous occasion played Napoleon a terrible trick, when it swept his bridge away, and confined him for weeks to the island of Loeben. Snow plays no part in South Africa, but its work is effectually done by the

LANDING MULES FROM THE "MONTEZUMA."

LANDING HORSES FOR O BATTERY, R.H.A.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN INFANTRY MARCHING OFF.

"Navy & Army."
THE NEW ZEALAND LANCERS GOING TO ENTRAIN.

Digitized by Google

thunder-storms, which fill the empty bed in a few hours.

The Tugela has the reputation of being capable of rising 40-ft. in a night. A river of that erratic character is an ugly enemy to have behind when an armed foe is in front. So the Zulu armies of Chaka and Cetewayo used to think, for they did not like to get to the south of it in the time of flood. So the Boers have discovered by the destruction of their bridge.

Colonel Pilcher's very smart example of the minor operations of war at Sunnyside was far from being the first instance of good work done by colonial troops in this war, but it was the most complete success in which they had yet taken part. It was also a capital little example of how to turn the methods of irregulars against themselves. The Peninsular War, to which this bears in some respects a considerable resemblance, and to which one naturally goes for comparison, gave scope for a good deal of work of the same kind. One may say that this consists largely in a combination of that of the regular and the irregular soldier. We may say also that Pilcher's operation was a very happy illustration of a combined movement, for while he was making a forced march from Belmont, General Babington was diverting the attention of the Boers by a cavalry reconnaissance from the Modder River.

Just as brilliant in its way was Lieutenant de Montmorency's reconnaissance to Labuschagne's Nek, six miles north of Dordrecht, and the devoted gallantry with which Lieutenants Milford and Turner, of the Frontier Mounted Rifles, refusing to abandon their wounded comrade, Lieutenant Warren, Brabant's Horse, defended their position with forty men against 800 Boers through the night, until Captain Goldsworthy, of the Cape Mounted Rifles, arrived with 115 men and four guns in the morning, and drove the assailants to the hills. These colonial troops and their officers covered themselves with honour, and the courage and readiness of Captain Goldsworthy, who acted promptly on his own authority, and whose portrait will be found in one of our pictures, deserve the highest praise.

INVALIDS IN WYNBERG HOSPITAL.
With Lieutenant-Colonel R. D. Hodson, R.A.M.C., in Command.

Photos. Copyright. THE WOUNDED AT WYNBERG HOSPITAL. H. Sharpe.
After the Battle of Graspan.

Photo. Copyright. L. W. Ford.

THE OFFICERS OF THE NAVAL BRIGADE SENT TO ASSIST LORD METHUEN.

1. Commander A. P. Ethelston, Killed at Graspan, Nov. 25, 1899. 2. Major J. H. Plumbe, R.M.L.I., Killed at Graspan, Nov. 25, 1899. 3. Lieutenant W. T. C. Jones, R.M., Wounded at Graspan, Nov. 25, 1899. 4. Captain Guy Senior, Killed at Graspan, Nov. 25, 1899. 5. Midshipman Huddart, Killed at Graspan, Nov. 25, 1899.

Digitized by Google

ON THE RIET RIVER.
Crossed by Our Troops in the Battle.

AT LOW WATER.
The Modder River when not in Flood.—Lord Methuen's Force is Encamped on the Other Side of these Hills.

AT MAGERSFONTEIN.
Showing the Protection Afforded the Boer Marksmen.

THE MODDER RIVER.
The Tombstone-like Formation of Rocks in the River Bed.

THE WAR: ON THE MODDER RIVER.
From Photos. by Our Special Correspondent.

Digitized by Google

GOING TO LOMBARD'S KOP.
Artillery Limbers Leaving Ladysmith for the Battle-field.

"TAKE HIM UP TENDERLY."
Wounded Boer Carried to the Ambulance by Our Men.

BACK FROM THE BATTLE.
Batteries Returning to Ladysmith from Lombard's Kop.

AN ILL-STARRED COLUMN.
The Regiments Leaving for Nicholson's Nek.

FULL OF FALSE HOPES.
The Detached Column Passing Out of Ladysmith.

THE WAR: SCENES IN LADYSMITH.
From Photos. by Our Special Correspondent.

Digitized by Google

The War: With Our Forces in Natal.

DISEMBARKING AT DURBAN.
Civilians Gathered to Welcome Fresh Troops from Home.

Photos. Copyright. FRETTING TO BE OFF. Stranack.
An Irish Regiment Just Landed from a Transport.

Photo. Copyright. FROM TROOPER TO TRAIN. Jove.
No Time is Lost in Sending Regiments to the Front.

GREAT as has been the interest aroused by Methuen's operations on the Western Border, and by Gatacre's and French's excellent work in Cape Colony, the situation in Natal continues to be an absorbing one for obvious reasons. It is here that, from the first, both Britons and Boers have put forth their chief strength; it is here that the greater part of the fighting has taken place, under the most prominent leaders engaged in the war. The siege of Ladysmith alone gives the campaign in Natal a distinctive character. But it has several other claims to particular attention, and these are pleasantly and instructively illustrated by the extremely interesting and many-sided series of war pictures here presented.

On the preceding page will be found a set of scenes in Ladysmith, which have the peculiar merit of having been photographed by one of our Special Correspondents during the siege itself. It must be remembered, in this connection, that it is impossible to be as smartly up-to-date with war pictures as with war correspondence. Although communication with the beleaguered garrison has been maintained to some extent throughout, it is only occasionally that packets of photographs can be "got through," and even in these cases there has been loss and delay. The greater fascination should, therefore, lie in these vivid presentments of life within a besieged town to the accompaniment of a pretty continuous bombardment, and with the constant risk of still more exciting developments.

On these two pages a somewhat less thrilling, but still instructive, idea is afforded of several features of the war as it affects the Colony of Natal. In view of the continued demand for reinforcements it is well to keep in mind the position and capabilities of Durban, which, from some points of view, may be not inaptly described as quite one of the most important spots, for the time being, in the British Empire. A glance at the three pictures showing the disembarkation and entraining of troops will give a fair idea of the excellent facilities which local forethought and enterprise have provided at this important port. In a very recent number we had occasion to mention the services of the Right Hon. Harry Escombe, the ex-Premier of Natal, in connection with the improvement of the harbour of Durban. Since that article was written this fine colonial statesman has passed away. But he has left behind something more than the mere record of a useful and honourable career, and in apportioning the credit for what has been and is being done in the matter of pouring reinforcements into Natal, we must not forget that not half of this would have been remotely possible if Escombe had not been a man of quite extraordinary determination as well as of keen foresight and level-headed patriotism.

The two pictures of the Kaffir war dance usefully recall the grave influence which the presence of a large native population must have upon a warlike situation in a colony only very partially opened up by railways. In centres like Maritzburg the Kaffir may be loyal by conviction, but even if he is not, it does not matter much, as he can readily be dominated at any moment. In districts remote from the railway, to the neighbourhood of which troops not well provided with transport are often much restricted, the Kaffirs are undoubtedly a menace, and from private advices it is to be feared that this is the case to a more serious extent than is commonly admitted. The advent, however, of continued reinforcements, and the prosecution of the campaign on broader lines, may gradually serve to remove apprehension on this score.

Digitized by Google

Our remaining pictures are chiefly devoted to those local corps which Natal has furnished with such splendid liberality in aid of the Imperial forces. The Natal Carbineers and the Border Mounted Rifles have made such a name for themselves, and have already received such constant allusion in these pages, that further literary description of them is unnecessary. But a word must be given to Murray's Horse, which was composed of farmers who knew the country thoroughly and made splendid scouts. For some unexplained reason the corps has been disbanded, and it is said that the authorities sincerely regret having taken this step.

Another most important organisation, of which we give several pictures, is the Pieter Maritzburg Rifle Association, a very fine body of men, who have recently been called out for active service. The association is under the command of Mr. Beaumont, the chief magistrate of Maritzburg, and the adjutant is Mr. Hüneberg, the chief accountant of the Public Works Department. Both these soldier-civilians have seen a deal of war service. Mr. Beaumont formerly held a commission in the 75th Highlanders, and Mr. Hüneberg served throughout the Franco-German War of 1870-71, and, as a one-year volunteer, was one of the first six Germans to enter Paris on March 1, 1871. The Pieter Maritzburg Rifle Association numbers about 800 all told, including a mounted troop of sixty, a cycle section of twenty, and an ambulance detachment of eighteen.

IN HONOUR OF A BRITISH VICTORY.
Loyal Kaffirs Dancing the War Dance at Maritzburg.

A RISKY SNAP-SHOT.
A Military Officer Photographing a Kaffir War Dance.

The President of the Rifle Association is the Hon. H. Bale, Q.C., the Attorney-General of the Colony.

From Photos. By Our Special Correspondent.

NOW ON ACTIVE SERVICE.
The Maritzburg Rifle Association with Mounted Detachment on Parade.

Digitized by Google

Photos. Copyright. COMMISSARIAT.
Useful Members of the Natal Carbineers.

THE BORDER MOUNTED RIFLES. Laws Caney.
With the First Maxim that was Used in the War.

Photo. MR. HUNEBERG. Laws Caney.
Adjutant, Maritzburg Rifle Association.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."
A LOCAL MOUNTED INFANTRYMAN.
A Trooper of Murray's Horse Scouting Near the Tugela.

Photo. MR. BEAUMONT. Laws Caney.
Commandant, Maritzburg Rifle Association.

Photo. Copyright. CAVALRY ON FIELD SERVICE. Ridley.
Group of the 5th Lancers Taken in Camp in Natal.

Photo. Copyright. A WELL-SEASONED CORPS. Laws Caney.
A Troop of the Natal Carbineers Photographed in Ladysmith.

Digitized by Google

The Bombardment of Saltport.—II.

By J. Tuthill Dreyer, R.A.

SEEING that the attack had failed we ceased fire, and the "Brutus" lowered what boats we had left her, and we could only hope rescued some of the unfortunate survivors of the unequal conflict who were to be seen swimming about on the sea, lit up by the search-lights. After cruising about for a few minutes, the "Brutus" followed the example of the retreating torpedo-boats and steamed away from Saltport.

We were now at liberty to look round and see how we had fared. Very few shells had struck the works, and only one of them had done any damage. A mélinite shell bursting in rear of the 6-in. Q.F. battery had killed one man and wounded two others severely.

At the outset, when war seemed probable, the Channel Squadron was despatched to Gibraltar, where they filled up with coal and ammuntion, the ships being cleared for battle, and all unnecessary gear sent ashore. On war being declared they steamed into the Mediterranean to join forces with our squadron in those waters. The Reserve Squadron had been called out, and assembled in the harbour of Portland, and when the general mobilisation of ships took place the dockyard authorities were found equal to their task, and twenty-four hours after the declaration of war saw England with over 100,000 men afloat, and the Channel alive with our torpedo-boat destroyers searching for the enemy.

The Reserve Squadron, now largely reinforced, still remained at Portland ready to put to sea when the whereabouts of the enemy's fleets had been determined.

The day after the sinking of the "Depulomus" the news reached us from Portsmouth that the Reserve Squadron had fought an action with the Lusatian Fleet. The British Squadron had destroyed the enemy, sinking six of his battleships, but in doing so had lost the "Collingwood" and "Thunderer," which had been rammed and torpedoed respectively.

Next day a small steamer came into the harbour in the morning and reported that one of our torpedo-boat destroyers had that morning raced past her, ordering her to report to the forts at Saltport that the Aeduan Northern Fleet was heading in towards them. The destroyer then tore on to signal the news to the nearest linking-ship, whence it would be transmitted over gaps of from five to ten miles from linking-ship to linking-ship till our admiral had the news.

All our preparations had been made long before, so there was nothing to do but man the guns, load them with common shell, and wait the appearance of the Aeduans.

It was a beautifully clear morning, and would have been an ideal day for practice, but the very calmness of the water made it all that could be desired for the enemy, as their gun-platforms must have been almost as steady as ours. Their approach was heralded long before their masts came in sight by dense volumes of the villainous black smoke foreign ships seem so fond of banking up. Presently they appeared above the horizon in two divisions in line ahead disposed abeam. We soon identified them all. The division heading for Fort Ben Bolt was composed of the "Duperitus" (flag), "Cometa," and "Desolator." Opposite Fort Wellington were the "Fortuna," "Redemptor," "Bodissina," and the cruiser "Brutus."

The "Duperitus" has a complete belt along the water-line 21½-in. thick. Her barbettes are protected by 15½-in. She carries four 13·3-in. guns, fifteen large, and eleven small Q.F. guns. The four barbettes for the 13·3-in. guns are arranged one on each beam forward the funnels, and the two others abaft the funnels along the centre line of the ship.

The "Bodissina" and the "Fortuna" carry the same armour as the "Duperitus." They have two 14·5-in. guns in barbettes, one forward and one aft, along the centre line, sixteen large and nine small Q.F. Four of the large Q.F. guns are in casemates on the upper deck, the others being on the main deck without protection.

The "Cometa," "Redemptor," and "Desolator" are central battery-ships. The belt is 14¾-in. thick, and extends almost the whole length of the water-line. The citadel has 9½-in. The armament is four 12·5-in., four 10·6-in., and six large Q.F. The four 12·5-in. are disposed, one firing over the bows, one over the stern, and two amidships, one on each beam on the upper deck in the citadel. The four 10·6-in. are on the main deck, one at each corner of the citadel.

The "Brutus" is an armoured cruiser with plating 3¾-in. thick, and the armoured deck is 2-in. thick. She carries two 7·5-in. and twenty Q.F. guns of all sizes.

The groups were told off as follows: At Fort Ben Bolt, F group (two 9·2-in.) to the "Duperitus," H group (three 12·5-in.) to the "Cometa," and I group (two 11-in.) to the "Desolator." At Fort Wellington, A group (four 12·5-in.) to the "Fortuna," and B group (four 6-in. Q.F.) to the "Redemptor" and the "Bodissina," the cruiser "Brutus" being left alone.

The position-finder dials soon showed the range to be about 6,000-yds. The enemy now changed course eight points to starboard and port, and each division commenced to describe a circular course opposite each fort.

The "Duperitus" fired her great port bow gun at Fort Ben Bolt, and sent the great shell flying over our heads far inland. The "Fortuna" fired almost simultaneously at Fort Wellington from her forward heavy gun, the shell bursting on the rock at the base of the fort with a fearful explosion.

It was now our turn to see what we could do. F 1 gun was laid on the "Duperitus," and under the action of the elevating and traversing handles the long muzzle could be seen to quiver slightly, and suddenly following the sharp explosion of the cordite charge the shell could be seen cleaving the air, apparently aimed too far forward. But no mistake has been made, for the projectile is seen to drift off to the right and strike the "Duperitus" about the foot of the foremast, followed instantly by the flash of the bursting shell. The second gun of the group was fired, and the shell was seen to strike the forward port barbette and put the great gun out of action. The "Duperitus" and the "Fortuna" were firing furiously, but had done us no damage as they had not got the range.

While the 9·2-in. were being reloaded, the 12·5-in. of H group opened fire on the "Cometa." The first shot struck the water-line amidships and burst against the side armour. The following rounds were better laid, and of the salvo of the remaining two guns one projectile fell in the central battery. This shell must have wrought frightful havoc, as the "Cometa" was comparatively quiet after its arrival, and only fired from her stern gun and those of her Q.F. guns which bore on the fort. The "Desolator" next received two rounds from I group, one of which burst forward in her unarmoured bow under her 12·5-in. gun, dismounting it.

Meanwhile, at Fort Wellington, all the ships had passed. The "Fortuna" had been struck amidships by a 12·5-in. shell which burst on the main deck, and the fire of the Q.F. guns on that deck ceased. The "Redemptor" and the "Bodissina" had been targets for the 6-in. Q.F. battery. They had been struck by the shells of these guns time after time, and must have lost many men in the unarmoured above-water portions of their hulls.

But now the great banks of smoke that overhung the 12·5-in. guns of both forts began to show up the position of these guns. The enemy's big Q.F. guns soon got the range, and in a very short time shells began to fall in these batteries. All the 12·5-in. guns had fired twice, the big 820-lb. shells falling on the decks with great effect; but now the enemy's fire began to find them out, and soon the terrible mélinite shells were dealing destruction in the open batteries. With desperate bravery the gunners went on loading, and two guns at Fort Ben Bolt fired again. A 2 gun at Fort Wellington was ready to fire, when a shell killed half the detachment, including the gun-captain and gun-layer. The lieutenant in charge of the group sprang up on the sighting-step and seized the firing lanyard. The remainder of the detachment mechanically obeyed the command, "Trail left—Halt!" and the great gun roared forth her last defiance. But hardly had the projectile left the muzzle of the gun when a shell, exploding against its chase—the chase is the muzzle end of a gun—dismounted it and killed the gallant detachment. Beside their silent gun lay the shattered remains of the men who, true to the spirit of the British soldier, and imbued with the stern courage that has given to that name its glory, had stood to their post undaunted by the hell that raged about them, until death, unable to conquer their proud spirit, claimed them in the rending crash of the exploding shell.

The 12·5-in. guns of both forts were now deserted. No men on earth could have remained longer in those open batteries under the hail of bursting shells, whose shattering explosions wear out the courage of the sternest soldier. The man that can unflinchingly face certain death in the mad rush of a hand-to-hand combat, on seeing men working close to him literally blown to pieces, and masses of iron and steel shivered into impalpable dust, soon finds his nerve gone, and cannot overcome the mad fear that prompts him to seek safety.

And now, for those that had time to look round, a spectacle presented itself whose awful grandeur rivalled the splendour of the tropical thunderstorm. Each gun produced its own easily-recognisable part in the deafening concert that was reverberating through the wooded heights of the neighbouring hills.

When the majestic roar of the 12·5-in. guns ceased, nothing could be heard but the never-ceasing barking note of the 6-in. Q.F. guns, punctuated by the louder crashing sound of the 9·2-in. Above this arose the explosions of the Aeduan shells, which still fell in and around the deserted 12·5-in. groups. Every minute a blinding flash could be seen accompanied by dense black smoke, and followed by a frightful explosion. This was where the mélinite shells struck. If the shell was charged with powder the sight was much grander. The flash was less vivid, but the air was filled with brightly-burning pebbles of powder, which zizzagged about in serpentine paths through the air. Then arose the kindly mantle of white smoke enveloping the scene, and shutting out all traces of the horrors that lay concealed within its folds.

Digitized by Google

The enemy's attention seemed to have been completely taken up at each fort by the 12·5-in. guns, and the 9·2-in. and 6-in. Q.F. firing cordite charges had escaped almost without casualties, these few being probably caused by stray shells. Now that the 12·5-in. guns had ceased firing, and yet the 380-lb. shells from the 9·2-in. and the wicked storm of 100-lb. shells from the 6-in. Q.F. continued to burst on the enemy's decks, while they could not answer to advantage, their admiral decided to close in to short range and destroy the forts by a concentrated fire. The two divisions formed single line ahead and came in, heading straight for Fort Ben Bolt, the guns of the two forts keeping up a heavy fire on the approaching vessels. But when the flag-ship was about 2,000-yds. distant and was still closing in, something went out to meet her. A short pole projecting out of the water could be seen dashing through the sea at a great speed. When about 1,800-yds. off, the flag-ship circled round to port and reopened fire, but the low pole altered its course too, and the Brennan Torpedo, the most beautifully designed, as she is the most devilish weapon of the 19th century, rushed at her first real victim. She struck her target fairly amidships, and with a muffled roar the "Duperitus" was hidden in the great column of water thrown up by the explosion. The 500-lb. of gun-cotton did their work well, and the mighty flag-ship went down within a few minutes, carrying some 900 men to their death. The remaining ships altered their course to keep outside the sinking ship, and were very careful to keep out of range of the deadly Brennan. The 9·2-in. had changed to armour-piercing shot, and now that the "Duperitus" was disposed of, they were turned on the "Desolator," which had so far come off very well. The great steel bolts pierced the side of the battle-ship as if it were only made of pasteboard, and soon a shot entering one of the stoke-holes, a couple of the boilers blew up, scattering death in the new and more awful form of scalding steam. The "Desolator" was now a complete wreck, and in a sinking condition.

About this time a strange chance destroyed one of our 6-in. Q.F. guns and its detachment. A light Q.F. shell, probably from the tops of the "Fortuna," entered at the muzzle just as the breech was in the act of being closed. Its explosion burst the common shell with which the gun was loaded, and the charge of cordite being also ignited the breech-block was blown to the rear, killing most of the detachment.

The fire from the tops of the ships was very annoying at this close range, as we had not got the same command over them that we had over the decks, and though the 12-pounders were well served we did not do them much damage, owing to the difficulty of knowing whether the shells were passing over or under the tops. The 11-in. R.M.L. guns at Fort Ben Bolt were ordered to stand by for shrapnel. (The body of the shrapnel-shell contains a small bursting charge, just sufficient to open the shell, and also some metal balls. In the shrapnel of the 11-in. R.M.L. there are 508 4-oz. balls. The shell is fused with a time-fuse which can be set to burst the shell at any required distance from the muzzle. When the shell bursts the balls fly on with the velocity the shell had on bursting, opening out like the spray from a watering-can, owing to the spin of the shell.) As the Aeduan Fleet circled round, and when the "Fortuna," the leading ship, was getting bows on to the fort, the guns were loaded and fired. The shell burst close to the foremast and laid all three masts bare, most likely killing all the men in them, and dismounting the guns that had been causing such mischief to us.

The "Cometa," the next in the line, met the same fate from the other 11-in. gun.

The only surviving gun-captain of the 12·5-in. guns at Fort Wellington, finding the firing had ceased at his group, collected a gun detachment from what was left of the group detail, and re-entered the scene of destruction. A 2 gun was found lying dismounted, the whole emplacement being a confused tangle of iron girders, masonry, and the dead bodies of the men who had served it so well. The position-finder dials were still signalling ranges to the dumb guns. The detachment went to A 3 gun and loaded it. They next hastened to A 4 gun, and, loading it, fired it at the "Fortuna," wrecking her main deck battery. The gunners rushed, immediately after firing, under cover until the ships ceased firing at the group, under the impression that it had been again silenced. The men then rushed back to A 3 gun, which was loaded, and fired that also at the "Fortuna." The shell passed through the ship's unarmoured side, under the after barbette, and by its explosion left the great ship practically without means of offence.

A Mélinite Shell burst in the Battery.

The "Brutus" had followed in too close for her thin side armour, and the 6-in. Q.F. firing armour-piercing shot, with the deadly accuracy of those weapons, smashed in whole plates of her armour, and sank her before she could sheer off.

Now an unexpected ally came to our assistance. The battle-ship "Repulse" steamed out of the bay. Her fore barbette was still useless, but she was nevertheless more than a match for the enemy, who had lost the "Duperitus," the "Desolator," and the "Brutus." The "Cometa" seemed little more than a scrap-heap after the hammering she had just received from the 9·2-in. The "Fortuna" was a floating ruin, from which but an odd shot was fired. The only ship that could still fight her guns with any efficiency was the "Bodissina." The "cease fire" sounded in the two forts, and we stood watching the end. The enemy directed an ineffectual fire on the British battle-ship, and a shell from one of the "Bodissina's" barbette guns burst against the side armour on the port side. But, silent and grim, the "Repulse" came on, still rushing at the "Bodissina" at full speed. When the two ships were about 500-yds. apart another shell struck the "Repulse" at the foot of the mainmast, which fell forward, bringing down the funnels and burying the upper deck guns under the débris. That was the last of the "Bodissina," for a torpedo fired from the "Repulse's" starboard submerged tube struck her, and she soon followed the fate of the "Duperitus."

Digitized by Google

Steaming past the "Fortuna," the "Repulse" sent two 13·5-in. shells crashing into her unarmoured side above her mighty belt. The Aeduan ship could not reply to this, nor to the deadly fire of the British ship's main deck battery, and hauled down her colours, an example that was quickly followed by the "Cometa."

The "Repulse" had not, however, finished the work with impunity to herself. The fall of the mainmast had killed most of the men stationed at the upper deck guns. The funnels were brought down, completing the appearance of destruction. But the Aeduan Fleet no longer existed, and the British flag had once more gained a glorious victory.

But little remains to be told now, except the reason for the apparently insane attempt of the Aeduan Fleet to silence the forts, and what the British Fleet had been doing in foreign waters.

After the action between our Reserve Squadron and the Lusatian Fleet a rumour reached Aedua that the action had resulted in favour of the Lusatians, though both sides had lost over half their ships. The Aeduans had also heard that a large number of transports and fire-ships had been collected at Saltport. Their Northern Fleet was at once despatched to silence the forts at Saltport and destroy the shipping. What happened has been already told.

When war was declared the Aeduan Mediterranean Fleet tried to meet our Channel Fleet before its junction with our Mediterranean Squadron. They, however, only succeeded in forestalling the meeting by a few hours, and at noon were discovered by our Mediterranean Squadron engaging our Channel Fleet. The Aeduans met with complete destruction at the hands of this mighty combination.

Our Wounded.

[FROM A CORRESPONDENT.]

SOME of the photographs reproduced on page 443 show groups of wounded soldiers and marines. Most of the seamen and marines who were wounded are now accommodated in the Naval hospital at Simon's Town—i.e., the most serious cases, for others who are likely to soon recover have been kept at the military camp at De Aar. The patients who were formerly in the Naval hospital have been cleared out and sent on board the "Powerful," but as the hospital is now crowded, some cases have been detained also in the military hospital at Wynberg, a place near Simon's Town. The two groups of wounded soldiers and marines were photographed at Wynberg Hospital, Lieutenant-Colonel Hodson, R.A.M.C., who is in charge of the patients there, having been taken with his group of patients.

It may be of importance, perhaps, to note in connection with the wounded the effects of the different kinds of bullets being used in this war. It is well known that the Boers are armed with a very miscellaneous collection of weapons. About 200 of these were picked up after the fight at Modder River; a few of them were Mausers, this being the rifle adopted by the Transvaal and Free State Governments, while the others consisted of double and single barrelled muzzle-loading sporting rifles, small-bore sporting rifles, breech-loaders by Westley Richards, Sniders, Martini-Henrys, etc.—all of them, with the exception of the Mausers, of fairly ancient date. But it must not be supposed from this that the larger number of the Transvaal forces are armed with such obsolete weapons, for it is well known that during the last four or five years nearly 20,000 Mauser rifles have been imported into the Transvaal, exclusive of the numbers which have also found their way into the Orange Free State.

The Mauser rifle appears to be the most humane weapon used by our enemies, and while it is quite efficient as a "man stopper," its bullet does not appear to cause such nasty and dangerous wounds as those from the Martini or older rifles. Many of the wounded men at present in hospital who have been hit by Mauser bullets and are now making satisfactory recovery would probably never have lived to see the inside of a hospital had they been struck by a larger or softer bullet making a lacerated flesh wound, or pulverising any bones that it might strike. Two or three curious and very interesting cases have happened with the Mauser bullet where men have been shot clean through the abdomen, and have suffered very little inconvenience therefrom, on account of the clean and small nature of the puncture. There have been other cases where the bullet has passed through a bone and drilled it cleanly, and without any fracture, and a soldier has been shot clean through the temples from one side of the head to the other without any important internal organs being much damaged, and whose sole inconvenience up to the present has been a headache.

AFLOAT AND ASHORE.

"MUSICIAN."—It is certainly strange that a king should become enamoured of the music of such an instrument as a Jew's harp, but Frederick the Great did, and in a very curious manner, too. The King was surprised one evening at hearing exquisite musical strains beneath his window, and, peering out to discover the reason thereof, saw a sentinel on duty playing on a Jew's harp. The King at once desired the soldier to play before him, but the man replied that he was on duty and dared not leave his post without his colonel's leave. "But I am the King," said Frederick. "I know it, sire," was the reply; "but if I leave my post now I shall most assuredly be punished for it to-morrow." The King recognised the sentinel's position, and was too good a soldier himself to press the matter further then, but on the morrow the musician was summoned to play before His Majesty, who not only rewarded him liberally, but gave him his discharge. After that the man played frequently before the King, and by travelling through the country and giving concerts before people who were anxious to discover what charm the King could have found in the music of so humble an instrument, made quite a small fortune.

* * * *

"C. M."—It is difficult to say what is the average number of soldiers who are yearly bought out of the Army, but during a recent year the Revenue was increased to the extent of some £20,000 from this source. At the present moment it would doubtlessly be somewhat difficult to purchase a man's discharge, but in the piping times of peace a soldier can become a civilian by paying £18 if he has been in the Army longer than three months, while if he has not served that period the sum of £10 will secure his discharge.

* * * *

"A. H." — Assistant Naval storekeepers in Her Majesty's dock and naval yards wear no uniform. The pay begins at £100 a year, and after a probation of two years it is raised to £120, and progresses by yearly increments of £10 to £200, and then by £15 a year to a maximum of £350. So you see that pay is given during the probationary period through which all assistants must pass. Assistants are eligible for promotion to higher appointments as vacancies occur—the salary attached to the highest appointment is £900—but this promotion depends wholly upon merit. When serving abroad, local allowances for living are made, and official residences are provided, or an allowance in lieu. The work is of that kind best defined as "office work." Successful candidates are permitted to select the department to which they may wish to be appointed, subject, of course, to the existence of a vacancy in that department. Supply, Accounts, Cash, and Expense Accounts are some of the departments. In the last two officers will not be confirmed in their appointments unless they can satisfy the heads of their respective departments that they have a sufficient knowledge of double-entry book-keeping.

* * * *

"HEATHFIELD."—The "projectile-looking object," as you term it, is the modern military balloon. It was recently adopted by our Army, but has been in use by the Germans for a considerable time, and has entirely superseded the older-fashioned type in the army of the Kaiser. The newer shape is said to be more adapted for military work, and all round a more serviceable article. The car is suspended below it. Balloons are used in warfare for the purpose of observing the enemy's doings, and they have already been used in South Africa to some purpose. Explosives, too, can be dropped from the car of a balloon on an enemy beneath with very terrible effect. Experiments have shown that it is extremely difficult to make good practice against a balloon with artillery, whatever be its shape; but even in peace-time accidents have been known to take place when projectiles have been dropped from the car of a balloon. In one instance, owing to the premature bursting of a shell, the officer who had just hurled it from mid-air lost two of his fingers. The School of Ballooning is at Aldershot.

* * * *

"J. T. M."—When a new battle-ship is proposed, it is first modelled in paraffin wax, and tested in the model-testing tank at Portsmouth, and, of course, what alterations are desired can be easily made. The models range from 12-ft. to 24-ft. in length, while the tank is 400-ft. in length and 20-ft. wide. Every suggested improvement in a battle-ship is thus thoroughly tested ere being adopted or rejected, and as there are naturally a good many failures, any great loss of money which would be entailed by the adoption of a faulty idea is obviated by this small initial outlay. A miniature tramway, on which runs a moving laboratory, fitted with the most delicate testing appliances, under the charge of a skilled operator, is stretched at a height above the tank, and the operator can watch the movements of the model below. Similar tanks are used by private ship-building firms, and all the Naval Powers, with the exception of France and Germany, possess these testing tanks.

* * * *

"G. W. J." AND "W. C."—1. If you wish to enlist as Volunteers, you should visit the headquarters of the corps, detachment, or company nearest to your home, where one of the sergeant-instructors will let you know how to proceed. You must pass a medical examination, and if found fit for service as a Volunteer you will be required to take the oath of allegiance. If you wish to leave the force at some future time, all that is required of you is to inform your commanding officer of the fact fourteen days before you leave the ranks. He cannot refuse to give you your discharge, but you are bound to hand over any property in your possession belonging to the corps in good order, and to pay all money due. Should you fail to do this, you can be sued by the commanding officer in a civil court. 2. As far as the law is concerned, there is, I think, nothing to prevent the Volunteers being called out before the Militia, but, in point of fact, the latter would first be embodied. When this has been done, individual Volunteers may offer their services for "actual military service," even though no portion of the Volunteer Force has been ordered to mobilise. In case of actual, or apprehended, invasion, any part of the Force may be called out for actual military service [Vol. Act, 1863, s. 17].

* * * *

"J. T. K."—It costs France but £3,000,000 a year and Russia £445,000 to man their Navies, but it runs us into little less than £10,000,000. The permanent Naval strength of the first-named country is 42,000 men, that of Russia 35,000, while we number 110,640 sailors. The Royal Naval Reserve totals to 25,000 men.

THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

WITH the New Year the campaign against the Boers has taken a more active turn, and several events of considerable military importance have occurred, some of them of a highly satisfactory nature. Of earlier developments the most important was a brisk movement on the part of General French, who, it will be remembered, was confronted at Arundel by a considerable force of Boers in position some few miles to the north, at Rensburg. Harassed by French's cavalry and Horse Artillery, this force of the enemy retired on Colesberg. French promptly followed them, and leaving Rensburg on the evening of the 31st arrived unexpectedly before the Boer position on the following morning. Having taken the enemy's outposts completely by surprise, he succeeded in turning the flank of the position and enfilading it with the fire of his Horse Artillery guns. The enemy lost heavily in this engagement, but maintained their position, and French was forced for the present to be content with hemming in the position as far as possible, pending the arrival of reinforcements from De Aar. On the 4th inst. the Boers made a counter attack against French, but were repulsed, the Inniskilling Dragoons distinguishing themselves by charging through a strong body of the enemy with great effect. It is unfortunate that the record of these creditable achievements should be marred by one of those untoward misadventures which have occurred with rather painful frequency in this war. On the 6th inst. half a battalion of the 1st Suffolk made a daybreak attack on a minor Boer position, and were apparently bamboozled by a false bugle-call sounded by the enemy, with the result that three-quarters retreated, while the remainder held their ground till overpowered and forced to surrender. The result of this mishap was the capture by the Boers of 70 prisoners, including seven officers.

In the meantime General Gatacre also had been actively engaged. Before the Old Year closed a bright little incident had occurred, to which reference was impossible last week, the paper having to go to press earlier than usual, but which deserves record as an instance of the value of colonial troops against enemies like the Boers. During a reconnaissance which followed our temporary reoccupation of Dordrecht, Lieutenant Milford, with a party of about 40 colonials, was cut off on the 30th inst., and forced to defend himself against about 800 Boers. The little handful gallantly held their ground, notwithstanding the usual Boer trickery with the white flag, until relieved next morning by Captain Goldsworthy and Lieutenant de Montmorency, and incidentally the enemy were rather severely handled. On the 3rd inst. the Boers from Stormberg made an unexpected attack on an outpost of the Cape Mounted Police between Molteno and Cyphergat, but reinforcements were at once despatched from Bushman's Hoek, and later a movement was made on Molteno, which resulted in the complete withdrawal of the enemy. It was subsequently found necessary on our part to evacuate Dordrecht, but Gatacre is undoubtedly more than maintaining his position, notwithstanding the fact that he has not been by any means liberally reinforced.

On the Western Border, Methuen's force continued to remain quiescent at Modder River during the early days of the New Year, communicating occasionally with Kimberley, where all was well up to a recent date. But on the line of communications an exceedingly smart little piece of work was carried out on New Year's Day, the moral and material effects of which were alike excellent. Moving out of Belmont on the 31st ult, with a force composed largely of Canadian and Queensland mounted troops, Colonel Pilcher, of the 2nd Bedfordshire, surprised the Boer laager at Sunnyside on the 1st and captured it, taking 40 prisoners, besides killed and wounded. Subsequently Douglas was re-entered, and the loyal inhabitants escorted to Belmont.

From Mafeking comes the news of a determined sortie on December 26, which, however, was repulsed with serious loss, three officers being killed, and a number of other losses being suffered. The position of this plucky little garrison now seems hopeless, and it is much to be feared that the fall of Mafeking will shortly follow that of Kuruman, which has been reported from Pretoria through Lourenço Marques.

In Natal the position at the beginning of this week was an extremely anxious one. The Naval guns with General Buller's force had continually bombarded the Boer position, but, as the latter extended for some twenty miles, the amount of real damage done was scarcely appreciable. On January 5 the Boers commenced a determined attack on Ladysmith, and Buller at once sent all the troops he had available to make a demonstration at Colenso. On January 6 a message was received from General White to the effect that the attack had been renewed, and that he was being very hard pressed. It subsequently transpired that the garrison was able to beat back the Boers at every point with loss. The news was received with the keenest satisfaction, great anxiety having been felt.

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

CAVALRY.

Household Regiment	B	Cape Colony
5th Dragoon Guards	E	Natal
6th " "	B	Cape Frontier
1st Royal Dragoons	D	Natal
2nd Dragoons (Scots Greys)	A	Cape Colony
5th Lancers	E	Natal
6th Dragoons	B	Cape Colony
9th Lancers	A	Cape Frontier
10th Hussars	B	Cape Colony
12th Lancers	A	Cape Frontier
13th Hussars	D	Natal
14th "		Natal
18th "	E	Natal
19th "	E	Natal

ROYAL ARTILLERY.

G and P Batteries, R.H.A.	A	Cape Frontier
O and R " "	B	Cape Frontier
U Battery "		Cape Colony
4th Battery, R.F.A.		Cape Colony
7th " "	D	Natal
13th " "	E	Natal
14th " "	D	Natal
18th " "	A	Cape Frontier
19th " "	D	Natal
20th " "	B	Cape Frontier
21st " "	E	Natal
28th " "	D	Natal
37th " "	B	Cape Frontier
38th " "	C	Cape Frontier
42nd " "	E	Natal
53rd " "	E	Natal
61st " "	D	Natal
62nd " "	A	Cape Frontier
63rd " "	D	Natal
64th " "	D	Natal
65th " "		Cape Colony
66th " "	D	Natal
67th " "	E	Natal
69th " "	E	Natal
73rd " "	D	Natal
74th " "	C	Cape Frontier
75th " "	A	Cape Frontier
77th " "	C	Cape Frontier
79th " "	C	Cape Colony
No. 4 Mountain Battery	D	Natal
No. 10 " "		Natal
14th Co. W. Division, R.G.A.	D	Cape Colony
23rd " " "		Kimberley
Siege Train		Cape Colony

INFANTRY.

1st Northumberland Fusiliers	A	Cape Frontier
1st Liverpool	E	Natal
1st Devonshire	E	Natal
1st Leicestershire	E	Natal
1st Gloucestershire	E	Natal
1st Border	D	Natal
1st North Lancashire*		Kimberley
2nd Berkshire	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Yorkshire L.I.	A	Cape Frontier
1st King's Royal Rifles	E	Natal
2nd " " "	E	Natal
1st Manchester	E	Natal
2nd Gordon Highlanders	E	Natal
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers	E	Natal
1st Munster Fusiliers	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Royal Dublin Fusiliers	E	Natal
2nd Rifle Brigade	E	Natal
2nd Devon	D	Natal
2nd West Yorkshire	D	Natal
2nd West Surrey	D	Natal
2nd East Surrey	D	Natal
1st Royal Welsh Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Irish Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Scots Fusiliers	D	Natal
2nd Royal Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Highland L.I.	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Coldstream Guards	A	Cape Frontier
1st Scots Guards	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Royal Irish Rifles	C	Cape Frontier
2nd Northamptonshire	A	Cape Frontier
3rd Grenadiers	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Black Watch	A	Cape Frontier
1st Coldstream Guards	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Scottish Rifles	D	Natal
1st Argyll and Sutherland	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Seaforths	A	Cape Frontier
1st Durham Light Infantry	D	Natal
3rd King's Royal Rifles	D	Natal
1st Rifle Brigade	D	Natal
1st Welsh	B	Cape Frontier
2nd Somerset L.I.	D	Natal
2nd Northumberland Fusiliers	C	Cape Frontier
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Connaught Rangers	D	Natal
1st Royal Dublin Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st Royal Scots	C	Cape Frontier
1st Gordon Highlanders	A	Cape Frontier
2nd Shropshire L.I.		Cape Frontier
2nd Cornwall L.I.	B	Cape Frontier
1st Suffolk		Cape Frontier
1st Essex	B	Cape Frontier
1st Derbyshire	D	Natal
1st Yorkshire		Cape Colony
2nd Royal Warwickshire		Cape Colony
2nd Dorsetshire	D	Natal
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers	D	Natal
1st South Lancashire	D	Natal
2nd Royal Lancaster		Natal
2nd Middlesex		Natal
1st York and Lancaster		Natal
1st Royal Irish		Natal
2nd Wiltshire		Natal
2nd Bedfordshire		Natal
2nd Worcestershire		Natal

NOTE.—The units are thus distinguished: A denotes those under General Methuen operating on the Western Frontier; B, troops on line of communication from Cape Town, and those who under General French are holding the railway systems whose termini are Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, and East London; C, those under General Gatacre's command in the North-Eastern Province; D, those troops in Natal who under Sir Redvers Buller are operating for the relief of Ladysmith; E, those beleaguered in Ladysmith under the command of Sir George White.

The regiments leaving or en route are: Cavalry — 16th Lancers (from India), 7th Dragoon Guards, and 17th Lancers. Artillery—R.H.A., A and J (from India), and Q and T Batteries; R.F.A., 43rd, 86th, 87th, 83rd, 84th, 85th, 76th, 81st, and 82nd Batteries; 15th Co. W. Division, 2nd Co. E. Division, and 20th and 16th Cos. S. Division, R.G.A.; Infantry—2nd East Kent, 1st West Riding, 1st Oxford L.I., 2nd Gloucester, 2nd Lincoln, 2nd Norfolk, 1st Scottish Borderers, 1st East Lancashire, 2nd Cheshire, 2nd Hampshire, 2nd South Wales Borderers, 2nd North Staffordshire, 1st Lincoln, 2nd East Yorkshire, 3rd Durham L.I., 3rd S. Lancashire, and City of London Imperial Volunteers.

* Left half battalion with Methuen.

Digitized by Google

"Mother, be proud of thy seed! Count, are we feeble or few?"

WHATEVER the upshot of the war may be, it has demonstrated one thing most emphatically, and that is the solidarity of the Empire. The aid so willingly and ungrudgingly given by Canada and Australasia proves to an envious world "that Our House stand together and the pillars do not fall." Our picture shows the commandants of the six colonies of the Australian continent in deliberation, arranging for the mobilisation and despatch of their separate contingents. In the hands of these officers has lain the selection and choosing of the troops that each colony has contributed, and that the task entrusted to them has been well fulfilled is fully proved by the universal praise given to the Australasian contingent. They have nobly helped the Empire in its hour of need, and the Empire will not forget it.

Photo. Copyright. THE AUSTRALASIAN WAR CABINET. R. Bishop.

The Commandants of the Colonial Forces of the Six Australian Colonies.

Col. Stuart, S. Australia. Major-Gen. French, N.S. Wales. Col. Chippindall, W. Australia. Col. Legge, Tasmania, Major-Gen. Gunter, Queensland. Major-Gen. Sir C. H. Smith, Victoria.

THE group here depicted is of those officers of the Navy and Marines who took passage out to South Africa in the Union Liner "Briton" to fill the gaps already created in the Naval personnel on the station. The whole detachment was under the command of Commander Dundas, R.N., who is now attached to the "Monarch," and is in charge of the hulk "Penelope," in which the Boer prisoners at Cape Town are quartered. He is the officer seated to the right of the officer in the centre of the group. This latter is Captain Griffin, the captain of the "Briton" and commodore of the Union Fleet. Captain Griffin is a retired commander of the Royal Naval Reserve, and wears the Egyptian medal and star for service during the Egyptian War. The contingent which the "Briton" took out comprised 100 Marines and 250 Bluejackets.

A USEFUL REINFORCEMENT.

Officers of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines En Route for South Africa.

Photos. Copyright. SONS OF NEPTUNE. "Navy & Army."

The Dramatic Company of the "Polyphemus."

THAT little low-freeboard ram the "Polyphemus" has not only the distinction of being an unique type in the Navy, but also that of possessing, perhaps, the best amateur dramatic company on the Mediterranean station. Their last play, "Captain Reece of H.M.S. 'Mantelpiece,'" has taken the theatre-goers of Gibraltar by storm. And no wonder, for could there be a more exciting moment than when the boatswain has just been ordered by Captain Mantelpiece to pipe "All Hands to Skylark," the order comes for the ship to proceed to sea immediately, her destination being "Pretoria." Immense enthusiasm prevails, and of course Neptune visits them as they cross the line. The little "middie," however, is saved the ordeal of the bath and razor, but he has to sing a song before either Amphitrite, who has begged him off, or the audience will let him go.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. HEROES OF MAFEKING. Tricker.
Captain Cowan and a Lieutenant of "B. P.'s" Colonials.

WHATEVER reverses may have been met with in the South African Campaign, whatever faults of administration or generalship may have retarded its success, one episode in it will stand out as typical of what the men of the Empire can do when the call comes, and this is the defence of Mafeking. In this defence Captain Cowan has taken an active part, and his services have earned for him special commendation. Two very typical representatives are those in our illustration of a soldiery such as no other country in the world can produce—men trained to arms and born horsemen, with pluck and grit ingrained in them, in short, ideal "irregulars."

THE new Sirdar who has so worthily won his way to the position lately held by Lord Kitchener may well be proud of the two winsome little laddies whose portraits are here given. Evidently they intend following in their sire's footsteps, for both are already faultlessly equipped as English officers in the Egyptian Army, wearing, be it noted, the medal ribbons for the long and arduous campaign in which their father was Kitchener's right-hand man. Time flies quickly, and soon we may see their names on the Army List with the sign attached that denotes "seconded for service with the Egyptian Army." Like their father, they too will be doing good work for the Empire.

Photo. Copyright. THE SOLDIER'S BISHOP. Gregory.
The Late Rev. Arthur Robins.

Photo. Copyright. A VETERAN OF PEEL'S NAVAL BRIGADE. "Navy & Army."
Seaman Harrington, who Helped to Relieve Lucknow.

Photo. Copyright. CHIPS OF THE OLD BLOCK. G. Lekegian & Co.
Sons of Sir F. R. Wingate, Sirdar of the Egyptian Army.

Digitized by Google

MANY a heart will ache and many an eye grow dim when the Guards in South Africa hear that the Rev. Arthur Robins has gone to his reward. For, in truth, the vicar of Holy Trinity, Windsor, had gained the love of the whole Household Brigade. Bright, cheery, earnest withal, and full of energy and enthusiasm, he was an ideal "soldier's parson." Windsor will miss him; but the Guards will mourn him even more than the town of which he was so prominent a citizen.

NAVAL Brigades are to-day, as they have been throughout our history, doing good work when there is fighting on hand. The aim of all Naval Brigades since the fifties has been to surpass the doings of the "Shannon's" and "Pearl's" men in the Mutiny. Our portrait is that of one of Peel's men, who took the big guns to aid Lucknow, as the inheritors of his record are to-day taking them to aid Kimberley and Ladysmith. Harrington's sons are doing their bit for the Empire, like their father did before them. One is a sergeant of Engineers at Ladysmith; another is an A.B. in the flag-ship on the North American station; a third, formerly in the Rifle Brigade, is now a sergeant in the Rhodesian Police; a fourth is also in South Africa, a seaman in the "Doris," the flag-ship at the Cape.

TRULY a strange coincidence, for the eight lads in our group were all schoolmates together in their native place, a little village near Eastbourne. All joined the Navy, and naturally separated from one another at the uttermost ends of the earth for several years. Now, curiously enough, all have been appointed to the "Canopus," just commissioned for the Mediterranean, and what is more strange, all, by a similar coincidence, have been told off to the same mess.

IN the Indian Ocean, about eighteen miles south of Java, lies a little bit of earth, known as Christmas Island, about twelve miles long by seven broad. Of course, the ubiquitous Britisher—a Scotchman in this case—has taken charge, and in the picturesque bungalow and compound here depicted Mr. Andrew Clunie Ross has taken up his abode. With him are some fifty Malays and aborigines of sorts, and with the exception of perhaps an occasional visit from a passing war-ship, he but seldom sees a white face. Mr. Ross's life at Christmas Island is but one more proof of how true to nature Kipling was when he wrote

"Never was isle so little,
Never was sea so lone,
But over the scud and the palm trees
An English flag is flown."

WHEN the tocsin of war sounded, the two battalions of the Sherwood Foresters (territorially the Derbyshire Regiment) were, the 1st at Malta, the 2nd at Aden. To-day the 1st is luxuriating on the Tugela, or somewhere near it, while the 2nd has exchanged the arid rocks of Aden for the delightful winter climate of Malta. But before the 1st left for Natal the 2nd had arrived at Malta, and so the old 45th Nottinghamshire and 95th Derbyshire Regiments of Foot found themselves together for the first time since they were linked in 1881. It is seldom—except in war time—that two battalions of the same regiment find themselves quartered in the same station, and when such an occasion occurs it is celebrated, and the Foresters were not backward in this respect. One phase of their celebration is shown in our illustration, where the men of the two battalions supped together in the barracks at St. Elmo. That the meeting cemented many friendships goes without saying, and the lads at Malta of the 2nd are following with interest the fortunes of their comrades of the 1st, who are to-day confronting the Boers.

Photo. Copyright. COMRADES IN ARMS. Russell & Sons.
An Unique Group of School Chums who have Met Together in the Same Ship.

Photo. Copyright. LONELY BUT COMFORTABLE. Fuller.
Mr. Ross's Home on Christmas Island.

Photo. Copyrig A RARE MEETING. R. Ellis.
The Two Battalions of the Sherwood Foresters at Malta.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright.

"AT THE BREECH OF THE FOUR-POINT-SEVEN."

The guns that are now doing such good work at the front, thanks to the ingenuity of Captain Scott, have a range with cordite powder of 9,800-yds. The shells that burst in the Boer trenches have a bursting charge of 4-lb. 8-oz. of lyddite, with, as an explosive, 4½-oz. of picric powder.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

The Second Boer War.

Men and Guns.

DURING the first phase of the war in South Africa there was hardly any aspect of the operations which caused warmer comment than the inability of our field artillery to cope with the long-range siege guns brought against us by the enemy at Lombard's Kop and elsewhere. Time after time the finest gunners in the world had to retire, simply because their weapons were outclassed by those of the Boers, and it was only by borrowing Naval guns that we were enabled to hold our own. Putting aside the question of field operations, it was clear that an enemy who possessed, and could use to excellent advantage, artillery of such power would not permit their strongly fortified capital to be reduced by ordinary field guns, and that Pretoria would eventually have to be attacked by as heavy and effective ordnance as we could bring against it.

Hence the despatch in the "Tantallon Castle," which arrived recently at Cape Town, of the siege train illustrated in the accompanying pictures. The commanding officer of this important unit, Lieutenant-Colonel T. Perrott, is a chief instructor at the Woolwich School of Gunnery, and his adjutant, Captain Currie, is also a member of the Gunnery Instruction Staff. We may be pretty sure, then, that in the scientific use of these mighty popguns there will be nothing wanting which knowledge and experience can devise. It will be noted that Major-General Stewart, commanding the Royal Artillery in the Southern District, is a prominent figure in the group of officers of the siege train on board the "Tantallon Castle." It would be difficult to find a more appropriate "centre-piece" for such a group, for General Stewart, besides being one of the soundest soldiers in the Army, is also a leading scientific gunner, and added largely to an already brilliant reputation by his tenure of the command of the School of Gunnery at Shoeburyness.

THE STAFF OF THE SIEGE TRAIN.
Colonel Perrott, Commanding, and Captain Currie, Adjutant.

Photos. Copyright. REHEARSING THE SIEGE OF PRETORIA. Crik.
A Howitzer Battery Ready to Open Fire.

Photo. Copyright. THE DEPARTURE OF THE SIEGE TRAIN. Gregory.
Farewell Group of Officers, with General Stewart, on Board the "Tantallon Castle."

The siege train which will eventually come into operation round Pretoria will number in all no fewer than thirty guns, all howitzers, fourteen of 6-in. calibre, eight of 5-in., and eight of 4-in., the force composing the train numbering thirty-two officers and 1,104 non-commissioned officers and men. The howitzer, as is now pretty generally known, is a short gun, fired at a very high angle of elevation. —in the picture of the battery at work some guns are shown ready for high-angle firing—and with a very heavy projectile. Even the 5-in. howitzer, which has been supplied to some of the Field Batteries usually armed with 15-pounders, throws a shell weighing nearly 50-lb.

The howitzers illustrated are of 6-in. calibre, and are breech-loading pieces, 30-cwt. in weight, and 94-in. in length. They can be fired from the travelling carriage at an elevation of 35-deg., and if the wheels of the carriage are removed and a bed formed, the elevation can be increased to 70-deg. The projectile is a lyddite shell weighing nearly 120-lb.

Digitized by Google

Singular interest is attached to the picture of the New Zealand Contingent on the point of starting to join the Imperial Forces in South Africa. Many of these fine fellows had to travel 300 or 400 miles to the rendezvous at Wellington, and the contingent is in every way a most carefully selected one. The men mostly belong to the young farmer class, and it was a stern condition of their enrolment that they should be between the ages of twenty-three and forty and unmarried. The commanding officer is Major Robin, who came to this country with the Jubilee Contingent.

The Uitenhage Volunteers here illustrated are described by the correspondent who sends the pictures as "Engineer Rifles"; whatever they are, their smartness is undeniable. Uitenhage lies near Port Elizabeth, Cape Colony.

The corps left Uitenhage for the front on the 4th ult.

Photo. Copyright. GOOD-BYE TO THE NEW ZEALANDERS. Hughes.
The Contingent Saluting as the National Anthem is Played.

THE UITENHAGE VOLUNTEERS—OFFICERS AND N.C.O.'s OF THIS CORPS, WHICH IS NOW AT THE FRONT.

Photos. Copyright. SMALL BUT SELECT—THE UITENHAGE VOLUNTEERS ON PARADE. "Navy & Army."

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

NATIONAL habits alter either not at all or very slowly, and perhaps that is why the papers have been so full of soldiers' letters from the front. The Duke of Wellington had to complain of the way in which letters written by the croakers among the officers in his army (who were a numerous body till Massena retreated from before Torres Vedras) were published in England. Nowadays the officer has learnt better than to write home half mutinous stuff, or, at any rate, to send it to correspondents who are likely to tell it to all the world. But the evil goes on in another form. It is probable that a majority of Wellington's soldiers could neither read nor write. To-day the spread of education has filled the ranks with men who handle a lively pen, and their relatives or friends have clearly no hesitation in taking their letters to papers, which put them in freely. The result is bad. Much has been published about the fight on the Modder and the battle of Magersfontein which had better not have been written. This is particularly true about the second of these affairs, for obvious reasons. I am not going to quote any of them, nor even to say where they are to be found. It is nearly as bad to spread as to begin mischief. One may protest against the appearance of what are very serious accusations against generals made by nameless soldiers in the ranks. They can only spread a very bad spirit. And there is something monstrous in the repetition of one particular story, which professes to give the last words of General Wauchope. The discipline of the British Army would be what all our continental enemies assert that it is, if an officer of his rank, in the heat of action, could appeal to his men against his superior.

* * * *

The censorship of the Press becomes a farce if this sort of thing is allowed. What more welcome or more useful piece of information could be conveyed to the enemy than that British officers and soldiers have a contempt for their superiors. It is easy to allege arguments in favour of publicity. Everybody can point out that harm and not good is done in the long run by skinning over scandals and allowing them to fester unremedied. But there are ways and ways of making enquiries and getting at the truth. In military affairs the right way is that the superiors should take the enquiry in hand in an orderly fashion and at the proper time. If they fail, that is serious indeed, for it shows a widespread weakness and unwillingness to do their duty among the very men whose business it is to maintain the standard of discipline. Very stern measures must be taken by the State in the face of such an evil, if its army is not to become rotten. But it is another thing that subordinate officers and privates should spread grievous accusations of incompetence and insubordination. There is truth in the doctrine that mere slavish obedience is bad. When Frederick the Great said that it was not the business of a Prussian soldier to think, he was laying down a rule which is capable of disastrous application, as every rule must be when it is stupidly applied and pushed to what people call its logical conclusion. Yet the doctrine (if one can give it the name) that the soldier is not only to think, but to express his thoughts, and act on them, is subversive of all discipline. Whatever men may have thought of the management which led to the disaster to the Highland Brigade, they outrage military discipline when they shout it to the world. All who help them to do so are indecently employed.

* * * *

There are ugly things which it is well to repeat. Among them I count the reports of scandals which have taken place at the embarkation of some of our troops. One knows without need of many words what they come from. They always start from the same old grovelling trick of drunkenness which is the vice of the Northern races, and also of the lower kinds of negroes. Some of the scenes (not all) to which this has given rise have been reported, and have been made the subject of comment in foreign papers. Properly managed, there need be no harm in this. It is only by creating a public opinion against conduct of this nature in and out of the Army that it can be stopped. In order that this opinion should be fostered the facts must be known. Therefore publicity is good, and foreign comment is not useless. There was a certain article written the other day by M. Paul de Cassagnac which might be read with good effect at the head of every company in some regiments it is not necessary to name. It is self-righteous enough, and the author might have remembered scenes which took place at the camp of Chalons in 1870. But we know what the makers of those were worth when it came to fighting, and the lesson is sound in spite of the teacher's oversights. He must be a worthless Englishman who does not smart to think that we have given the foreigner just occasion to say such things.

* * * *

On the whole, if the Australians want to have a little Navy of their own, as from the statement of Commander Collins it appears they do, why should they not? We do not make a point of insisting that the military forces they raise should not be their own. When they send them to fight by the side of our own troops in South Africa no objection is made, and they do very good service. Suppose now that Australia has a Naval force which is as efficient as her military, that she is willing to send it where it is wanted, and that it is put under British admirals, would any difficulties ensue? Observe, that whatever help we get by land or sea from the colonies must be given freely. Nobody supposes that we would endeavour to coerce Canada or Australia to remain parts of the Empire. They remain in it because affection and an enlightened sense of self-interest induce them to remain. Therefore, it would seem that all had better be left to their own choice. Again, there is this to be taken into account. Australia is very willing to remain part of the Empire, but she also wishes to possess all the organs of a fully-developed State, of which a Navy is one. It is a matter of pride with her, and since this is the case, the reasonable course would seem to be to let her have her own way. The argument that a special Navy told off for the service of Australia would not be of general use is not necessarily a good one. It is only valid on the supposition that the Australians will insist on keeping their vessels tied to their own coast when they might be better employed elsewhere. But if that were their state of mind they would assuredly make the fact that they contributed, say a million yearly, to the cost of the Fleet a ground for insisting, under threat of refusing to pay their quota, that some of the vessels of the Royal Navy should be tied to the coast of Australia. On the other hand, if they have ships of their own, we shall be all the more free to withdraw our squadron. We might even, when the colonial Navy was fully equipped, suppress it altogether, and add the same number of vessels to the China or any other station.

* * * *

The great argument against forming a colonial Navy is one which, for intelligible reasons, nobody cares to put forward very conspicuously. It is the doubt whether it would be an effective force when made. The conditions which tend to make a good Navy do not necessarily exist in Australia—that is, the seafaring population and the long-established habits of obedience to authority. Without them ships and guns may easily be got; but these are the weapons of a navy—they are not a navy. In the absence of these conditions, and while Australia feels the need of protection at sea which only the Royal Navy can give, the alternative is that she should contribute money, leaving the whole power of control of it to the Imperial Government. There would be a certain convenience in that, no doubt, but how long it would last with taxpayers of British descent is perhaps a question. It is not an imaginary risk that the colonists would insist on control going with contribution, that is, they would ask not only to have a say in the disposing of the Fleet, but in deciding whether war was to be made for this reason or for the other. It is by no means certain that Australia would be prepared to go to war to keep Russia out of Constantinople or France out of Morocco, and yet we might feel constrained to fight on those quarrels.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

JANUARY 21, 1759.—Sortie from Madras. During the siege of Madras by the French, under Lally, several sorties were made, one of the most daring being on this date. 1781.—Carrangooly stormed. Sir Eyre Coote carried this fortress of Hyder Ali by storm. 1819.—Action near Omeerkau, India. Captain St. Leger defeated Nowsajee Naik. 1826.—Reverse at Accra. About 1,000 troops, under Sir Charles McCarthy, defeated by the Ashantis. Sir Charles was killed and his skull preserved by the enemy as a trophy. 1879.—Colonel Pearson defeated the Zulus and advanced to Ekowe. 1881.—Sir George Colley advanced against the Boers with the Natal Field Force.

January 22, 1760.—Battle of Wandewash. Sir Eyre Coote gained a decisive victory over the French under Lally. 1879.—Disaster at Isandhlwana. The British camp surprised and attacked by about 15,000 Zulus. Five companies of the 24th Regiment and several natives killed. Total loss, 837. Lieutenants Melville and Coghill perished while saving the colours. On the same day an heroic defence was made with a handful of men at Rorke's Drift by Lieutenants Chard and Bromhead. Both these officers received the Victoria Cross.

January 23, 1597.—Action at Turnhout, near Antwerp. A strong body of English infantry, under Sir F. Vere, and about 100 horse, under Sir Robert Sydney, with Flemish troops, led by Prince Maurice of Nassau, utterly defeated the Spaniards, 3,000 of whom were taken prisoners.

January 24, 1759.—Capture of Guadeloupe. A force under Major-General Hopson landed at Basse Terre, and the final post held by the French was carried by the 3rd Regiment. 1762.—Assault of Morne Tortenson, Martinique. General Monckton drove the French from their position on this fortified height, and planted the British flag there. 1817.—Pindarees routed. Captain Caulfield with a squadron of native cavalry encountered a large body of Pindarees proceeding toward Cowreeah on their route to the country about Rainpoor. The enemy lost about 400, and plunder to the value of 6,000 rupees was taken.

January 25, 1759.—Sortie from Madras. One of the most successful sorties during the siege of the city by Lally. Captain Black, who commanded, was wounded. 1818.—Pindarees routed. A strong body of these brigands was attacked by Colonel Heath at Kurroad, Deccan, and was completely routed. 1838.—The Thakoor of Goora having plundered the village of Kehrana, in Shekawuttee, Major Forster stormed the stronghold of the chief in Toorwuttee, and the garrison was utterly dispersed.

January 26, 1793.—Action at Ghurry Ghauts. The advance of General Mathews from the Malabar Coast was constantly disputed, and at this point he met with stubborn opposition. The enemy's position was carried at the point of the bayonet by the Black Watch, aided by a battalion of Sepoys. 1885.—General Gordon killed at Khartoum. 1897.—Defeat of the Fulahs at Bida by the Niger Company's forces.

January 27, 1762.—Capture of Morne Garnier, Martinique. Morne Tortenson having been taken on January 24, this second height was successfully stormed by General Monckton, and the guns taken were turned by the victorious party against Fort Royal. 1783.—Assault of Hyderghur, Malabar. After a day's fighting General Mathews carried this fortress by assault.

JANUARY 21, 1807.—Chase and capture, off Caraccas, of the French "Lynx," 16-gun brig, by the boats of the "Galatea." 1810.—Taking of a French vessel and destruction of two shore batteries, at Baie Mahaut, Guadeloupe, by the boats of the "Freija," 36. 1837.—Admiral Sir H. Fairfax, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief at Devonport, born.

January 22, 1783.—French "Sybille," 36, taken by the "Hussar," after having been engaged by the "Magicienne," 36. 1805.—Uniform for medical officers in the Navy established. 1809.—French "Topaze," 40, taken by the "Cleopatra," 32, aided by the "Jason," 38, and "Hazard," 18. 1898.—Albert Medal presented to Stoker Lynch, of the "Thrasher." 1838.—Admiral Sir N. Bowden-Smith, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief at the Nore, born.

January 23, 1761.—Recapture of the "Warwick," 60—arrived en flute —by the "Minerva," 32. 1798.—French "Volage," 22, taken by the "Melampus," 36—prize became the first "Volage." 1801.—Spanish garda costa "Sta. Maria," 6, taken by Lieutenant M. Fitton, who with a handful of men swam to and boarded her.

January 24, 1708.—Death of Admiral Sir George Rooke. 1761.—French "Félicité," 32, taken and destroyed by the "Richmond," 32, off the Hague. 1837.—Admiral Sir R. E. Tracey, K.C.B., President of the Royal Naval College, Greenwich, born.

January 25, 1782.—Sir S. Hood outmanœuvred and checked De Grasse, off Basse Terre, St. Kitts. 1841.—Vice-Admiral Sir John Fisher, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean, born. 1887. —Naval Intelligence Department instituted.

January 26, 1782.—Sir S. Hood, at Basse Terre, twice attacked by De Grasse, and the French badly beaten off. 1841.—Hong Kong taken.

January 27, 1695.—French "Content," 60, and "Trident," 54, taken by Commodore James Killigrew's squadron. 1807.—Recapture of the "Favourite," 20, off the coast of Guiana, by the "Jason," 32.

On Guard.

By LIEUTENANT D. DALLAS.

"Adieu be vigilant, I beseech you."—SHAKESPEARE.

OF the various duties which a soldier is called upon to perform, the most important are his duties on guard. The responsibilities of a sentry are so great that it is difficult to overestimate them. On his vigilance may depend the fate of a garrison or the safety of an army; and although the ordinary individual may fail to see the necessity for a soldier armed cap-à-pie marching up and down all night inside a barrack gate which is kept securely locked, the necessity exists, for, apart from other considerations, it habituates the man to that alert watchfulness so essential in the field. For this reason any dereliction of duty on guard meets with severe punishment, and probably for this reason also the function of guard-mounting is attended with a good deal of ceremony, and, whenever practicable, is still associated with that picturesque side of soldiering which in these utilitarian days is gradually passing away.

Most sojourners in London have seen the guard changed at St. James's Palace or the Horse Guards, but comparatively few, I suppose, give a thought to the fact that the same daily routine is gone through—though shorn of much of its pomp and circumstance—not only in every garrison in these islands, but everywhere on the face of the globe where there are a handful of British soldiers; and not on land only, for one of the first things done when soldiers embark in a troop-ship is to detail a guard, and the daily relief is carried out with as much of the ceremony thereunto pertaining as Father Neptune and the state of the men's stomachs will permit.

In many stations during a portion of the year trooping the guard is carried out weekly, and is a very pretty spectacle. It is said to have originated with the Duke of York as a means of testing the sobriety of the officers for duty, and certainly it would be difficult to devise anything more likely to "give away" an unfortunate "sub." who had dined not wisely but too well on the previous night. The different "guards" being drawn up in line, each commander, having received the counter-sign for the day, placed himself about 50-yds. in front of his guard, and with his arms at the "recover" marched in slow time to the right of his command. Let any reader try this after a champagne supper, and he will appreciate the humour of the famous general who is credited with having marched his men up a great high hill and marched them down again.

In the ethics of the ranks the first and greatest of crimes is theft from a comrade. Next to this in heinousness is "putting another man in for duty," especially if that duty be a guard; and a soldier must be very ill indeed who reports sick on the morning he is for duty. The explanation of this fact is a somewhat curious one, and illustrates how difficult it is for people outside the Service to form an accurate judgment of what sometimes look like eccentricities on Tommy's part. The reason is this. It is a point of honour for a soldier to turn out for a guard-mounting parade in a condition absolutely immaculate. While it is always more or less disgraceful to be found fault with at any inspection, to be checked by the adjutant when parading for guard is considered not only a disgrace to the man himself but discreditable to the company to which he belongs. Hence in many regiments the man's comrades mark their sense of his conduct by the rough-and-ready punishment of the barrack-room court-martial. Of course getting ready for guard means hard work for the greater part of the previous day, but when a man warned for guard absents himself or reports sick in the morning, the next man for duty is "taken short," being given no opportunity for that extra amount of cleaning without which he cannot hope to pass with credit. Therefore is his shame great, but that of the man who put him in for it unpardonable.

Many barrack-room jokes are told at the expense of sentries. Some of these would hardly pass muster as likely to happen were it not that the narrator invariably shelters himself by placing them to the credit of the Militia, thereby adding to the numerous grievances under which that force labours.

The following is racy of the Emerald soil, and, having in mind the "divilment" prevalent for the last day or two of the trainings of some Militia battalions, it may be assumed that the sentry was more rogue than fool:

General commanding the district to sentry on the gate, who has allowed him to pass without saluting: "Well, my man! what the devil do you think you are here for?"

Sentry, dimly conscious that someone great in authority is addressing him, pulling himself to attention and leisurely shouldering arms: "Sure, sor, oi'm a bit av a sintry."

Digitized by Google

"Oh! you are, are you? Then I may tell you that I'm a bit of a general."

"Thin" (doubtfully) "oi s'pose oi'd betther giv' yez a bit av a presint"—brings his rifle to the first motion of the present and keeps it there.

"Well! well! Why do you remain like that? What are you waiting for?"

Sentry, with that aggravating look of wondering innocence only to be met with in the Irishmen of the South-west: "Sure, yer aner, oi was waitin' for the word 'two.'"

Of course a sentry should never under any circumstances let his rifle out of his hand, but occasionally this stringent rule is honoured in the breach. A certain guard in a South Coast town, being in an exposed position, was in the winter very cold, and although the men were provided with heavy watch-cloaks to wear over their great-coats, the weather was sometimes so inclement that the only way the sentries could manage to keep up the circulation was to place their rifles in the sentry-box and trot up and down. One dark bleak night old Bill Jenkins, the sentry on "No. 3 post," was doing a steady double up and down his beat, when he was surprised by the field officer on "grand rounds," who had to pass the post on his way to take the guard. Old Bill's blood ran cold, for the mounted officer was almost beside him, the sentry-box was 40-yds. away, and comfortably ensconced in the corner of it lay his rifle. True, the night was dark, but it was not so dark that he could hope for the absence of his rifle to pass unnoticed. His heart was in his mouth, for his punishment would be stiff—the forfeiture of a badge at least. He threw one glance at the box and another at the approaching officer, and then something else caught his eye. Lying just at his feet was a pile of iron crow-bars. To bend down and seize one was the work of an instant, and if his weapon was not all it should have been, the aggressiveness of his challenge and the darkness of the night stood him in good stead, and his badge was saved.

"Never mind my dear, I dare say I'll do as well."

Sometimes when a guard is being paraded there is some manœuvring on the part of the men as to position in falling in, with the object of securing a particular post. When the sergeant is telling off his guard he can select the men for posts as he chooses; but the usual practice is simply to reverse the numbering, i.e., if the relieved guard numbered from the right he would number from the left, and vice versâ.

In this connection the writer recalls an amusing incident. The much-desired post was the admiral's quarters, and the immediate reason the existence of a pretty maid-servant. Tom Smith, of B Company, had basked in her smiles, and whenever good fortune and the orderly sergeant had put him on that guard, he had, when the shades of night had fallen, been regaled with a little supper. The lady was not niggardly of her smiles, however, nor of the admiral's property in the way of cold meat, and Jim Thompson, of D Company, had had his fair share of both. Things had gone on all right, for the girl was circumspect, and the two men had never mounted the guard together. Now each had dropped her a line intimating that he was for guard, and would try to be on sentry from ten to twelve. This rather put her out, but she reasoned that they couldn't both be on sentry at the same time, and time would show which.

About a quarter past ten she slipped over to the sentry-box, a jug of hot coffee in one hand and a plate covered with a cloth in the other.

"Hist!"

"Hullo, my dear," said the sentry, pleasantly, "is that something for me?"

The voice was not that of Tom Smith, neither was it that of Jim Thompson.

"Wasn't Tom Smith for this post?" she asked, anxiously.

"Yes, he was," replied the sentry, eyeing the provender.

"And Jim Thompson; is he on guard?"

The sentry laughed.

"Well, you see, it's like this, my dear—they were both on guard; Jim wanted this post, an' Tom wanted this post, an' of course they couldn't both have it on the same relief, an' after the guard mounted they found out what each other wanted it for, an' the end of it was they had a fight at the back of the guard-room, an' the sergeant caught them, an' now they're in the guard-room, an' they've got to stay there; but never mind, my dear, I'm here, an' I daresay I'll do as well."

And he did.

Some years ago there was a joke going the round of the messes at the expense of an officer of the Foot Guards, who laid a wager with a brother officer on the subject of the rigid adherence to the strict letter of the drill book on the part of the non-commissioned officers of his regiment. I don't give the story as original, nor can I vouch for its truth, but, at any rate, si non é vero, é ben trovato. Here it is:

"It was a bitterly cold night, the rain falling in torrents. The one officer, whom we shall call A, contended that, notwithstanding the state of the weather, the corporal conducting 'the relief' would go through the whole routine of 'Relief, halt! Sentries, port arms! Give over your orders! Pass! Shoulder arms! Relief, quick march!' just as if it were the middle of the day and the sun shining. B doubted it, and backed his opinion. The bet was made, and the two sallied forth to put the matter to the test. They waited under the beating storm as near the sentry as they dared. Presently the tramp, tramp of the approaching relief was heard, but a good deal more hurriedly than the prescribed quick-step. Suddenly comes a voice from the depths of the box: 'Halt! who——' 'Oh! go to bl——; come out o' that, an' let the other beggar in.'"

It is almost an unprecedented occurrence for a British soldier to desert from his post, but an instance happened at Portsmouth which is worth narrating, if only for the cool impudence displayed. From the main guard at the bottom of the High Street a line of sentries extended along the ramparts. One summer morning, between two and four, the sentry on the post farthest from the guard-room was a bright youth, the son of a Church dignitary, who had a singular genius for getting into scrapes. At four o'clock the corporal of the guard marched round to relieve the sentries. Nos. 1, 2, and 3 challenged in proper form and were duly relieved, but the "Halt! who comes there?" which should have come from No. 4 remained unheard.

"The beggar's gone to sleep," said the corporal, angrily, and he appeared to be right, for in the grey light of the morning a figure could be seen apparently leaning against the sentry-box.

"What the devil do you mean——" The corporal stopped and gasped. The great-coat, cap, and belts were artistically draped round the rifle, which was stuck bayonet downward in the ground. On a piece of paper pinned to the great-coat the following words were neatly printed: "I greatly regret that I cannot wait to hand over the valuable property under my charge, but I sincerely trust that no unauthorised person will have removed the rampart between my departure and the arrival of the next relief."

Three weeks later the colonel received a letter from New York expressing much solicitude as to whether the rampart had been found present and intact.

Digitized by Google

I HAVE been reading with very great interest a little volume of high value, which is, indeed, only a text book, but may be commended very safely to all who care for our military greatness and are following with anxious eyes our fortunes in South Africa. The book in question is entitled "Outlines of Military Geography," and is by Dr. T. Miller Maguire, who is very well known as a military teacher. It belongs to the "Cambridge Geographical Series" (University Press, 10s. 6d.). The title may not convey a very good idea of the subject of the book, which is not merely military geography in a narrow sense, but embraces the methods by which military advantages can be gained from favourable geographical conditions. It touches, in a word, upon the disposition of armies, lines of advance, movements of troops, and other matters related to geography. The introductory chapter, moreover, covers very wide ground—no other than that of the importance of armies. It has a good deal of the militant spirit in it, and I cannot but commend it most highly. Dr. Maguire evidently wrote before this war began, but he bases his teaching upon history, and the past is a safe guide to the future. He dwells most trenchantly upon the colossal evils that result from ignorance on the part of authorities, and upon the folly of pious opinions uttered by people who think we are better than other men, as also of blind official optimism. Our policy, he remarks most truly, has drifted into strange blunders, not so much through lack of skill as through lack of knowledge, and Delagoa Bay, the key of Africa, is an example. Dr. Maguire is wholly of Bacon's opinion—and brings striking instances to prove its validity—that "above all for Empire and greatness it importeth most that a nation do profess arms as their principal honour, study, and occupation." It is, indeed, he says, the first duty of a nation proved weak in any point of its armour, to strengthen itself forthwith and he has no toleration for those politicians who neglect the study of their military resources and do not organise their state betimes, thus courting disgrace for themselves and disaster for their nations. "War never leaves a country as it found it; whether a nation fails or wins, its whole future is profoundly modified. No pains are too great, no expense is too heavy, no strain too severe, if the result be success when a decisive conflict comes, as come it must." These are words of weight and wisdom indeed, and the events in South Africa are speaking testimony to the soundness with which Dr. Maguire has written.

* * * *

Although I have indicated a great deal of what is good in the book, I have but touched the fringe of the subject. Incidentally very much is said that is full of light concerning the movements of armies; and when we read of the stupendous difficulty of feeding and moving great bodies of men at distances from their base, we feel inclined to be a little tolerant to those whose military mobility does not answer to our desires. On the other hand, the book presents many instances of the great mobility that has been attained under capable leaders. Thus the famous march of Crauford to Talavera in July, 1809—sixty-two miles in twenty-six hours, each man carrying from 50lb. to 60lb.—was the most rapid march during the war with France, though Clausel, the Frenchman, after Vittoria, almost rivalled it. Again, in 1804, Lake's cavalry marched seventy-three miles in twenty-four hours, and found time to smash the army of Holkar. Such is the kind of mobility that we are looking for at the present time, and we do not forget Lord Roberts's famous march from Cabul to Candahar. Dr. Maguire deals exhaustively with the question of fortification, and when we think of Ladysmith—the defence of which, nevertheless, has been very valuable to Natal—we cannot but recognise the truth of his remark, that one of the great disadvantages of fortifications is that they shut up a certain number of men, say, from one to 20,000, who might be much better employed with armies in the field; and they may have the further disadvantage, as we now see, of breaking up sound plans of campaign, and devoting great forces to the inconclusive work of relief. Dr. Maguire is perfectly sound on the matter of sea power, and he treats with the utmost competence strategic relations, routes of invasion, lines of communication, and other matters. The book is really delightful reading, and abounds in interest, and those who read it will understand what is passing in South Africa much better than they did before.

* * * *

The romance of the Wild West is full of fascination for many who were brought up upon their Fenimore Cooper and their Mayne Reid. The chase of the buffalo, the Indian raid, the reprisal, and the prairie fire, with the devices of trappers and the manners of backwoodsmen, are familiar to many who have never lived away from cities. In "Buffalo Jones' Forty Years of Adventure," compiled by Colonel Henry Inman (Sampson Low), will be found a narrative of a strange life, with a picture of a strong character possessing much of the charm of romance, and a good deal of the force of the actual. "Buffalo" Jones, or Colonel C. J. Jones, as he is often called in the book—which has its origin, let me say, beyond the Atlantic—has a wide reputation as a huntsman and prairie lover. His life, as told in these pages, has as much in it of thrilling adventure, and as many hairbreadth escapes, as I have ever encountered in a biography. Mr. Jones spent the best years of his life in the endeavour to save from absolute extinction one of the most conspicuous, in the point of numbers, of any of the large mammals of North America. He studied the life-history of the buffalo or bison, and was a keen observer of Nature in her every aspect which he discovered in the American wild. His early days were passed in Illinois, but he soon went westward in a "prairie schooner," entered upon camp life, and became first a farmer and then a hunter, and journeyed in strange places. His experiences with desperadoes, his fights with Indians, and his thrilling narratives of prairie fires and adventures, are full of interest. As the title-page says, Colonel Jones has indeed passed a very eventful life in his hunting and endeavouring afterwards to protect the bison and other wild animals, and "has survived the perils of the frozen North, the land of the Midnight Sun, and the dangers he met with among Eskimos, Indians, and the ferocious beasts of North America."

* * * *

His long experiences were well worth recording, and the book, though somewhat informal in character, is well worth reading. His account of a buffalo bull-fight, though too long to quote in full, illustrates his style. "A more startling sight cannot be imagined than that of two shaggy monsters contending for the supremacy. With muzzles lowered, pawing the earth with their great hoofs, raising clouds of dust from the hard dry sod, over which millions of their compeers have trodden for centuries, they cautiously circle round each other, measuring every possible vantage. Their great heads, matted with 'bull-nettles' and 'sand-burs,' until twice their normal sizes, are alternately tossed high in the air, then as quickly lowered until they come within an inch of the ground . . . Now, when near enough to each other, comes the supreme moment for which they have been waiting. Their eyes appear to send forth livid rays, like that emanating from an electric dynamo, as they charge each other with the rush of a tornado at the height of its fury. Their short horns lock with a rattle that sounds like the firing of a battalion, directly over where they stand in their mighty struggle." But the account of this titanic conflict described in such heroic fashion is prolonged. Buffalo Jones is a man of long and strange experiences, there is character in his face, and his personality is attractive. Colonel Inman has done well to edit his narrative, which I suppose has been widely approved in America. It should find many readers in this country.

* * * *

Last week I had pleasure in alluding to a pamphlet by Lieutenant-Colonel W. Hill James illustrating the associations of the neighbourhood of Biarritz with the Peninsular War. Now I have a booklet from the same accomplished hand directing attention to "Our Fighting King" in the same connection (Army and Navy Co-operative Society). Those who find their temporary home in the country of the Basque or the Béarnais may like to know how Cœur de Lion was associated with the region. His father, Henry, inspired by the Imperial idea—which is no new thing with us—desired to establish a great dominion in Western Europe, with his sons as tributary rulers or viceroys, hoping to weld together a great State with the tie of blood. But the sons, excellent fighting men as they may have been, had not the political instinct of Henry, and the empire he had built fell to pieces even before he was dead. Richard was to rule over his mother's inheritance of Poitou, Guyenne, and Gascony, bordering the Bay of Biscay, and was brought up in the cultured court of Toulouse, where he learned to write verses in the Langue d'Oc, and posed as a troubadour. But Richard was above all else a fighting man, and from his home by the banks of the Adour he sallied forth to wage battle with the infidel. Colonel James—whose little book is really a sketch of Richard's career—describes him as having been his mother's own son, "a typical Gascon of the Gascons, with all the qualities, good and bad, of that race, whose swagger has left the word gasconade as a souvenir in our own language," but in his case with much to justify the boasting. Incidentally the attractive little book has points of special interest, as, for example, in the account of Richard's fleet, where we hear of harsh dcipline, and of tarring and feathering, and in a good rendering of Richard's lament at his abandonment during his captivity at Worms. To many more, therefore, than to those who sojourn with the Basque or the Béarnais may Colonel Hill James's pretty little book be welcome, for it is certainly of very engaging character, and is written in a pleasant vein.

* * * *

"The Death or Glory Boys," by D. H. Parry (Cassell), is a story—fact not fiction—of the 17th Lancers. That famous regiment, which is about to leave for South Africa, has also been known as "Bingham's Dandies," and, after the Mutiny, as "The Pride of England, the Terror of India, and the Glory of the World," though this last grandiose title greatly lacks terseness. The Hon. J. W. Fortescue wrote the sober history of the 17th Lancers in 1895 (Macmillan), but Mr. Parry's book is for the man in the street and for the boy who loves his country's glories. Its style is picturesque and glowing, like its subject. There is a good deal to say concerning the services of the 17th during the American Revolutionary War, and the regiment was at the capture of Monte Video in 1806, and at Buenos Ayres in the next year, and has rendered most gallant service in India. It rode "into the jaws of Death" at Balaclava, it covered itself with honour in the Mutiny, and it has since served in Zululand. Mr. Parry's book is full of interest, and should be very popular.

"SEARCH-LIGHT."

Publishers' announcements and books for review should be addressed direct to the Editor of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED, 20, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden.

Digitized by Google

Events in Natal.

RECENT events have certainly quickened the public interest at home in the campaign so far as it affects Natal, where a somewhat dull period of enforced inaction set in after the repulse at the Tugela on December 15. In Natal itself, we may take it for granted that the notion that things were getting a trifle monotonous has never prevailed, so constant has been the stream of minor happenings, and so various the surrounding points of warlike interest. Of these last we have admirable illustrations in this lively series of pictures, in which we see the campaign in half-a-dozen different aspects.

To those who regard the war from a broad-minded standpoint there is something of special and continuous satisfaction in pictures showing arrivals at and departures from the port of disembarkation, that halfway house in any campaign over-sea, where for a moment the troops en route pause before being hurried into the Sturm und Drang of action at the front. The first picture of the present series is full of varied interest in this connection. The troops whose arms are shown piled have gone to the barrier, put up to keep back the crowd, to receive welcome gifts of fruit, tobacco, bread, and lemonade. Tommy naturally appreciates such thoughtful kindness, and, like the good sort he is, is anxious to make some return. Many Durban folk will treasure as mementoes the buttons which British soldiers have cut off from their jackets and distributed as souvenirs of the day when they passed through the port of Natal on the way, some to Pretoria, some, alas! to a much more distant destination.

The picture of the crowd saying good-bye to the trainful of troops about to start for the front speaks for itself; and we have heard so much of the performances of the Naval guns at Ladysmith and elsewhere that no special allusion is necessary to the scene in which the Bluejackets are shown passing with their guns through the streets of Durban. Later on in the series one of the guns is depicted about to be made ready for a round or two against the Boer trenches at Colenso. The aspect of the Bluejackets in their field service kit is remarkable, and might be a shock to some sailors of the old school. But it does not matter much to Jack what clothes he is in, provided they are loose and comfortable, also that he has a big gun to play with, and an enemy worth licking.

"Arising out of this question," as they say in the House of Commons, a line of particular mention must be given to the special travelling search-light designed by Captain Percy Scott, of the "Terrible," and used with great effect for signalling between Chieveley Camp and Ladysmith. One of our special correspondents at the front writes that this excellent contrivance has been "most successful." "A runner got through the Boer lines to-day, and says it is being read perfectly in Ladysmith." Here, again, the Navy has given the Army a decided lead, and the whole wide world must

WAITING TO BE CALLED FOR.
Troops just Landed from a Transport at Durban.

"BON VOYAGE" TO LADYSMITH.
Troops Leaving Durban for the Front.

Photos. Copyright. PASSING THROUGH DURBAN. "Navy & Army."
Bluejackets and Guns on Their Way to the Station.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

admit that Captain Scott, in respect of this apparatus, as well as of his travelling gun-carriage, has proved himself—if such a term can safely, and without pains and penalties of the most dreadful description, be applied to a post captain R.N.—a veritable "handy man."

The pictures illustrating the attack on the armoured train near Chieveley are of great interest, and will repay careful study. Our special correspondent writes that the Boer guns were in position only 800-yds. from the line, and were fired point blank. It will be seen that the iron plates have been penetrated as if they were paper, and it will be readily realised that the occupants of the train—Mr. Winston Churchill included—must have felt that armoured trains do not always produce that sense of security in real life which they are supposed to produce in pictures. A pathetic interest is attached to the monument erected to the brave fellows who were killed in this unfortunate affair. This tribute to their memory is a creditable instance of the good feeling of the men of the Border Regiment, who were subsequently encamped near the spot where the engagement took place, and who lettered the simple stone with empty cartridge-cases picked up in the vicinity. Another souvenir of the affair is provided "in lighter vein" by the picture in which the regimental shoemaker of the Border Regiment is plying his trade, with one of the wrecked trucks of the train as his workshop. One sees old railway carriages at home put to strange uses, but the employment of an armoured train truck which has passed through a heavy engagement as a shoemaker's shop is probably unique.

The destruction of the Frere Bridge caused us, as will be realised from the two pictures devoted to this subject, a deal of trouble, the work of demolition having been most thoroughly accomplished, and a temporary bridge being rendered necessary. The latter, of course under the skilful supervision of the Royal Engineers, was not long in course of construction, the stalwart Zulus rendering splendid assistance in carrying the great baulks of timber used as supports. Like sailors in the merchant service, they seem to find the labour lightened by "chanties," in their case epic songs recounting past victories. In the picture showing the demolished bridge, a careful scrutiny will reveal in the distance the camp of the war correspondents, who have hitherto had anything but a festive time—in Natal, at any rate.

The amount of destruction which has been wrought by the Boers in this campaign has been something terrific, and it will necessarily take months, perhaps a year or two, to restore communications to the status quo ante bellum. It is gratifying to think that during the actual progress of the war we are not nearly so heavily handicapped as we might have been by these demolitions if we had not had a considerable number of Royal Engineer companies at the front, to whom the repair of bridges and railway lines is simply the everyday work of their military lives. It is at such times that one realises the value of the corps even more fully than in sieges and other active warlike operations.

NAVAL INGENUITY.
The Travelling Search-light Designed by Captain Percy Scott of the "Terrible."

PREPARING TO SHELL COLENSO.
The Naval Brigade with Buller's Force at Chieveley.

From Photos. THE BRIDGE BLOWN UP AT FRERE. By Our Own Correspondent.
The War Correspondents' Camp in the Background.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

The Queensland Mounted Infantry.

WITH COLONEL PILCHER.

THAT Lieutenant-Colonel Percy Ricardo, the "father" of mounted infantry in Queensland, the guide, mentor, and friend of officers and men alike, should lead them in the day of battle in their own fair portion of the Empire, or in any part of Her Majesty's dominions, has been the prayer of that splendid corps of bush soldiers from the first day of its inception.

And their prayer was granted when, on the last day of the Old Year and the first of the New, 200 Queensland Mounted Infantrymen, forming part of Lieutenant-Colonel Pilcher's command, side by side with their brethren of New South Wales and Canada, received their baptism of fire.

On December 31 they greatly assisted in winning the brilliant little action near Dover Farm, whereby the Boers' laager was captured and forty prisoners taken. On January 1 they rode into the recaptured town of Douglas with Colonel Ricardo at their head. But though for the first time under fire, it was not their first experience of conditions akin to those of actual campaigning. They were called out to patrol vast areas of their colony during the great bush workers' strike of 1891. During its continuance Major King and a company marched sixty-four miles through heavy country in a day. Colonel Ricardo took a body of men over 100 miles without food or rest, and Captain Spencer Browne, the adjutant, marched 284 miles through flooded country, with thirty men carrying arms and baggage, in five days, one stretch of 109 miles over heavy roads being covered in thirty-two hours without food or sleep.

THE NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS OF THE DETACHMENT FROM QUEENSLAND.

THE QUEENSLAND CONTINGENT ON PARADE.

The regiment numbers 600 men of all ranks, but is easily capable of being extended to 4,000 or 5,000. It was organised in 1884 by Colonel Ricardo, and belongs to the Militia division of the Colonial Defence Force. Each man finds his own horse and saddlery, for which he draws an allowance, and the men are nearly all first-class shots.

The horses are rough-looking, but they can perform a march of sixty or seventy miles in a day and pick up their food from the natural grasses or herbage of the country.

The men are of excellent physique, and look well in their uniform, which is of dark khaki with claret-coloured facings, and a soft felt hat set off with a bunch of emu plumes. The force is organised on a basis of three years' service, and is recruited from the bushman and farmer class. These are frugal livers, accustomed to weapons and the saddle from childhood, broken in to a rough camp life, and are hardy, steady fellows, who know how to go from dawn till midnight without food.

Discipline and devotion to duty are points of honour among these men, whose dearest wish has been gratified in being permitted to fight for their Empress, their brethren, and their flag.

Photos. Copyright. THE OFFICERS OF THE QUEENSLAND CONTINGENT. Lomer, Brisbane.

Digitized by Google

In the Cape Colony.

UNDER THE SHADOW OF TABLE MOUNTAIN.
The Base Camp at Cape Town.

AN AL FRESCO MEAL.
The Inniskilling Dragoons "At Home"

From Photos. FAGGOTS FOR THE FUSILIERS. By Our Own Correspondent.
Native Women Bringing Fuel into Camp.

IT is pleasant to encounter the Inniskilling Dragoons, whose mess bungalow is shown in our illustration, amid the stirring events and scenes of such a war as this. Who knows but that we may some day count a Transvaal regiment in our Army? There would be nothing more wonderful in its existence than in the survival of the famous regiment which took its rise in the Irish Wars of the Revolution of 1688. The Inniskillings began with a corps not very dissimilar from the Imperial Horse of to-day. They were Protestants of Scotch and English descent who took up arms in the North of Ireland to defend themselves against the strong Irish and Roman Catholic rising in favour of James II. In their early days they represented a racial and religious quarrel far more savage than that which has now plunged us into war with the Transvaal Dutch. Yet to-day the Inniskillings are a subject of pride to all Ireland. What Irishman whose ancestors were on the losing side in that terrible conflict, compared to which our wars of to-day are mere friendly tournaments, would have the least objection to serve in its ranks? When Ireland hears that the regiment has distinguished itself—and it has never been known to fail—the whole country shares the credit. Yet in the days of the defence of Londonderry and of Newtown Butler, the founders of the regiment were among the fiercest combatants in a fratricidal war, which was wanting in no element of horror. To be sure, there are not wanting persons who would like to keep fresh those old memories of wicked times, but it is little more than talk. The time, let us trust, will also come when the Transvaaler, be his blood Dutch or English, will also have let the bitterness die; and perhaps that day will come all the sooner because the victories have not fallen exclusively to one side. Would the Southerners be as happy in the Union as they are to-day if they had not had successes to look back upon? The Inniskillings are so far in what we may call a preliminary stage with the Boers, engaged in establishing a feeling of respect by exchanging hard knocks. Their charge at Colesberg was quite in the old style both of the regiment and of cavalry in war. When it is not uncommonly stated that in these times of arms of precision horsemen cannot possibly ride through infantry provided with good rifles which they know how to use, it is encouraging to hear of our men executing a charge in the most orthodox, ancient fashion, as the Inniskillings with General French did at Colesberg. Some of the incidents of this very creditable affair are said to have been marvellous. So they must have been, if all the tales be true. There was, it seems, a trooper who, having had his horse killed under him, first lanced a Boer who was reloading his magazine, and then shot him with his own rifle—a sort of seething of the kid in its mother's milk, so to speak. That sort of story is more marvellous than credible or creditable. An Inniskilling who had disabled and disarmed his opponent would, one

Digitized by Google

THE LAST OF A GOOD SERVANT.
Troopers Removing a Dead Horse.

WATCHING THE POT BOIL.
New-comers Taking a Lesson in Campaigning.

NOT YET "SALTED."
Officers Inspecting a New Mount.

THE SOLDIERS' HOME.
Tea and Toast for "Tommies."

IN MAITLAND CAMP.
From Photos. by Our Special Correspondent with Methuen's Column.

Digitized by Google

conceives, find a better use to make of a rifle than to slay the slain. He might use it against the Boers who were not yet lanced, which would have been at once more chivalrous and more businesslike. But we need not believe that story, and the Inniskillings do not require to have their reputation bolstered up by reports of such Munchausen feats.

As for the native races, who are hewers of wood and drawers of water to both sides, their interest is to fall to the milder master. On the whole, they gain by the white man's victory, even when he is harsh. The Boers in their worst days were never such tyrants as Black has been to Black. It was better to fall into the hands of the Trekkers than into Moselekatze's. The history of all the native races in that part of the world had for generations been one of invasion, expulsion, and massacre. The predominance of the white man stopped that. To-day, when Boer and Briton are firing big guns at one another, the natives may be seen calmly ploughing, and, as far as anyone can discover, serenely indifferent to the fortunes of the combatants. They seem to care no more than the trapper's wife when she saw her husband attacked by the bear, and said she did not care a doit which whipped, the bear or the old man. Our friends of the Cape Mounted Rifles were complaining the other day that they had not had a sufficient share of the fighting. At Kuruman they had a taste, and it was not, we fear, very pleasant. To be shelled out and to have to surrender cannot be agreeable, but it was the fate of the police at Kuruman. One hopes they were not too depressed at the fortune of war. They ought not to be, for after all they have to share it with a great many other fighting men, not only in this war, but in all time. When you have a really serious enemy to fight you cannot expect to win everywhere. You cannot do better than you can. If your best cannot win success, the fault may not be yours—nor, indeed, rest on anybody. All that the soldier has to do is to execute his duty loyally. When he fulfils that obligation he is blameless, and the Cape Mounted Rifles have done it to the full.

THE GALLANT DEFENDERS OF KURUMAN.
Who Surrendered only to Overwhelming Numbers.

SOME OF METHUEN'S SCOUTS.
Officers and Non-commissioned Officers of the Cape Mounted Police.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army"

REPAIRING THE RAIL TO KIMBERLEY—THE 10th RAILWAY COMPANY OF THE ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

SINCE the last number of NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED went to press, additional details have been received respecting the determined attack—or rather succession of attacks—made by the Boers on Ladysmith on the 6th inst. It is clear that the fighting must have been of the most vigorous description, since it is explicitly stated that the Manchesters and Gordon Highlanders, who were defending Cæsar's Camp—which lies to the south of Ladysmith, and was the main objective of the attack—were enabled to drive the enemy off with the bayonet, so close up had they come. The Devons also treated the Boers to a touch of cold steel in a fine bayonet charge made towards nightfall, in order to recover a position which had remained in the enemy's hands all day. On all sides the utmost bravery seems to have been shown. The casualties included 13 officers killed and 26 wounded, and 135 rank and file killed and 244 wounded. Among the killed was Lord Ava, the eldest son of the Marquess of Dufferin, formerly an officer of the 17th Lancers, but who was accompanying the troops as a war correspondent. The enemy's losses are known to have been considerable, but, following the usual Boer practice, an absurdly small casualty list has been published, with a view, presumably, to "heartening" the Free State burghers, who are said to be growing more and more discouraged by the course of events.

General French has made, and keeps on making, further attempts to cut the Boer line of retreat from Colesberg into the Orange Free State, and apparently with some success. At the commencement of the current week it was reported that he had even succeeded, by a brilliantly executed movement to the eastward, in for the moment completely isolating the Boer position. No permanent advantage, however, seems to have been gained. Whether French does or does not ultimately succeed in not only entrapping, but actually capturing, the 4,000 Boers stated to be collected near Colesberg, he has undoubtedly handled his small force admirably, and caused the enemy the maximum of inconvenience with—putting aside the mishap to the Suffolks—the minimum of loss to himself. Another extremely interesting feature of his operations is the fact that it includes a considerable body of colonial mounted troops. During the flanking movement above referred to an attempt was made by a party of the enemy to take a position threatening our communication with Rensburg. This was frustrated by the New Zealanders under Major Rohin, who are said to have simply raced one another in their eagerness to get into action.

From Gatacre nothing in the nature of a decided forward movement had been reported up to the time of writing, but on the 8th inst. a smart reconnaissance was made which may have useful results. At an early hour a strong force, consisting of the 1st Derbyshire Regiment, the 77th and 79th Batteries Royal Field Artillery, 400 mounted men of the Cape Police and Berkshire Regiment, the Kaffrarian Rifles, and the Frontier Rifles, left Sterkstroom for the double purpose of reconnoitring the Boer position at Stormberg and of rescuing the meal and flour from the mills at Molteno. The latter operation was carried out without difficulty, and the vital parts of the machinery removed. Near Stormberg the party sent to reconnoitre found the enemy in strength, but the Royal Engineers succeeded in making a successful survey of the position, and, after an interchange of shots between our scouts and a Boer patrol, the party returned, having attained its object. Such a movement may not appear impressive, but it is emphatically "playing the game," and if a little more cautious reconnaissance and attention to detail had marked the earlier stages of the proceedings, it is quite certain that our losses and other trials would have been much fewer.

From the Western Border there is no news of any advance on the part of the main body of Methuen's column. But some admirable reconnoitring work has been accomplished, in the course of which the Orange Free State was for the first time in this campaign entered by a considerable body of our troops. Taking with him the 9th and 12th Lancers and G Battery R.H.A., General Babington, commanding the 1st Cavalry Brigade, moved into the Free State viâ Honeynestkloof, being subsequently joined by the Victorian Rifles, and by columns under Major Byrne and Colonel Pilcher, the latter officer having made a simultaneous movement from Belmont. The various parties between them scoured a considerable area and made important observations, which will be of the greatest value when the advance is resumed. In connection with this reconnaissance an amusing incident is reported. It was necessary to make careful examination of the various farms in the area traversed, and on one occasion the Queenslanders who were accompanying Colonel Pilcher were lucky enough to surprise a dozen Boers about to partake of a good meal. The Boers fled, but the dinner remained—for a time. As an "operation of war" the Australians sat down and polished it off before rejoining the less fortunate main body.

From Kimberley there had been no recent news at the time of writing, but there seems no cause for apprehension in this direction. A War Office telegram, dated Cape Town, January 13, states that all was well at Mafeking on December 28, which gives slight renewed hope that Baden-Powell's little band may continue to hold out as did Potchefstroom in 1881.

It is one of the misfortunes of pictorial journalism that not once or twice, but repeatedly, the writer of such a chronicle as this is hampered by being compulsorily two or three days behind those who read him. The case of Natal at the present moment is an exasperating one in point. It is practically certain that a great battle is impending, and it is quite possible that, by the day of publication, the whole aspect of the campaign will have been changed by the tremendous struggle on the Tugela, to which Buller is evidently a second time committing himself. But all we actually know for certain at the time of writing is that on the 11th inst. Buller seized a ferry at Potgieter's Drift, and that the river is very full. It is suggested that a great flanking movement is being carried out with Sir Charles Warren's Division; but it is quite impossible to say whether on the east or the west, and elaborate conjecture does not seem particularly desirable in such a connection. The best that we can hope to do is to leave the actual development of affairs at present more or less alone, trusting to the chance that a postscript may enable us to include a little later and more substantial news.

But in the meantime there is no harm in pointing out the immense importance of a great battle on the Tugela from the alternative standpoints of success and failure. Assuming success, the relief of Ladysmith will mean the real beginning of the real end, not merely because it will involve a serious weakening of the Boer morale, and possibly a heavy blow to their resources, but also because the troops thus set free would be of incalculable value in the future urgent prosecution of the campaign. Half of the fine force of cavalry now shut up with General White would enable French to carry on his brilliant work in an altogether different fashion, and with the certainty of obtaining substantial results, instead of having to rest continually content with holding the enemy in check. The completion of Gatacre's division would give him, for the first time, a fair chance, and enable him to seriously undertake the task of brushing away the obstacles that bar a most necessary advance. The balance remaining would be quite sufficient to guard the passes of the Drakensberg, and possibly even to clear the northern salient of Natal of the enemy.

On the other hand, it by no means follows that a failure on Buller's part to break down the wall which separates him from Ladysmith would be such a comprehensive disaster as has been foreshadowed by nervous critics. It is in this connection that the magnificent repulse of the attacks on Ladysmith on the 6th inst. is especially significant. Had those attacks been less stubbornly met it goes without saying that they would have been renewed with greatly increased vigour if Buller were once more prevented from getting through to the assistance of Sir George White. As it is, it may be taken for granted that, whatever losses Buller and Warren may incur in crossing the Tugela—and the losses are bound to be severe, even if the operation is brilliantly successful—the enemy will not emerge from the conflict in such a condition as will render them anxious to repeat their experiences of the 6th inst.

Meanwhile at home the attitude of determination and sustained effort to rise to the occasion in a manner befitting a great Empire continues to be worthily manifested. The Imperial Yeomanry is filling up rapidly, the Volunteer companies for service with Line battalions are being satisfactorily formed, and the first draft of the City of London Imperial Volunteers was embarked at Southampton on Saturday. In the colonies the most glorious enthusiasm prevails, and India, not content with what she has already done, is raising a great war fund, and sending splendid contingents of Volunteers and gifts of horses from native Princes. Ceylon, too, is preparing a force, and it is difficult to see where the movement will stop. Let us hope that the spectacle of the British Empire springing to arms will not be without its due effect in certain quarters where such an effect seems still to be badly wanted.

On the 10th inst. the "Dunottar Castle," having on board Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener, arrived at Cape Town. Needless to say, the two illustrious generals received something of an ovation, and on all sides it was felt that their landing would mark a turning-point in the history of a campaign in which the appearance of signs betokening a certain want of public confidence was beginning to be a by no means encouraging feature.

Digitized by Google

THE term "tonnage" is probably derived from "tun," the earliest method of ascertaining a vessel's capacity being the rough and ready one of taking the number of casks of wine she could stow. The earliest use of the term is in an Act passed in the reign of Henry V., which contains enactments as to the measuring and marking of keels engaged in the now supererogatory work of carrying coals to Newcastle. The practice was extended by subsequent legislation, the method of marking being to drive nails into the stem and stern posts, or into the bulkheads dividing off the cargo space. At the end of the seventeenth century the system of ascertaining tonnage by measure was altered to that by weight, the load line being marked on stem, stern, and amidships. Various changes took place, notably in 1720, 1773, and 1786, usually in a direction which was not conducive to beauty or safety in shipbuilding, the tendency being to produce deep and narrow vessels with a dangerous capacity for capsizing.

* * * *

"OLD TOM."—The story connected with the burial of General Pakeman, who fell while leading the British troops at New Orleans, in 1815, is slightly different to the version you have heard of it. He is said to have been buried in Chester County, South Carolina, but his interment did not take place until many months after his death. According to the story, the general's body was packed in a cask of rum and returned to this country. Arriving here, however, the cask, through some error, was not even opened, but was shipped back again to Charleston. From there it was sent on as a cask of rum to a Mr. McMullen, who kept a store in Chester County. Here its journey ended, but the body was not discovered until all the rum had been consumed by the soldiers who had returned from the war, and gathered nightly in the store to recount their exploits. When the cask was emptied its head was knocked in, and to the great horror of the storekeeper the body of a man was found inside. The discovery caused a tremendous sensation, especially amongst those who had drunk of the rum, but some of the tipplers who had seen the general in the battle immediately identified the body as that of General Pakeman. It was enclosed in a coffin and buried near the store. So runs the story, which may or may not be true, but so far its veracity has not been impugned by the discovery of any other grave of the general.

* * * *

"C. T."—Until quite recently Naval men were not permitted to grow beards, and probably had it not been for the Duke of Edinburgh the Navy would still be beardless. The fashion in Naval whiskers has from time to time undergone many changes. Prior to the termination of the Great War it was a rare thing to see a sailor with either a beard or moustache, but after the war there set in a craze for enormous side whiskers amongst the men, while the officers wore hair on the sides of their faces, close cut, and in the shape of a mutton chop. It was the rule to shave a space about three fingers in width from the nose over the mouth and under the chin. At one period moustachios were allowed in the East Indies. At the present day officers and men have the choice of three fashions—they may shave clean, a mode which torpedo officers seem particularly partial to; wear beards and moustachios, the former trimmed close to the sides of the face and brought to a point beneath the chin, by which fashion it is said the gunnery expert may be told; or lastly, stick to the old plan, and grow side whiskers only, which is mostly affected by elderly officers of the civil branches.

* * * *

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "It has been generally supposed that given, say, forces of British mounted infantry and Boers equal in number, the advantage would rest with the one best handled and shooting best. This is a great error, as I should like to point out. Take, for instance, forces of 1,000 British and 1,000 Boers. The British, for dismounted duty, receive order to dismount, and as for that purpose all the men are in sections of fours, numbers one, two, and four dismount, handing their horses' reins to number three, who remains mounted, and with a number of officers and non-commissioned officers retires with their horses under such cover as can be got until "Horses up" is sounded. With that party of horses quite 100 men would be detailed off to act as guard, which leaves British fighting line as follows: Section numbers three holding horses, 250; officers and non-commissioned officers with them, 30; guard, 100; total, 380. Three hundred and eighty from 1,000 leaving 620 men as effectives in the fighting line. Now note the Boer method of 1,000 men for dismounted duty: All, with the exception of 100 men, dismount and knee-halter their horses, by taking the rein fastened to the horse's head-stall, and bringing the head down to the knee of the near fore-leg and securing it there by a special overlap tie. This enables the horse to graze, and to move also at a fair rate when driven, also keeping it under control; the 100 men simply form a ring round these horses, and through practice are able to bring them up and take them away with marvellous despatch. Thus the Boer fighting line from 1,000 mounted men is 900, the British only showing per 1,000 mounted men, 620, a difference of 280 men, or nearly 50 per cent. to the Boer advantage.

* * * *

PROBABLY the largest number of French prisoners of war held in England was immediately prior to the Declaration of Peace, in 1802. At Porchester alone there were some 8,000, the other places of detention being Foston, Plymouth, up the Medway, Norman Cross, and Waltham, in Essex. There were also considerable numbers confined on board the convict ships in the Thames, but these were generally prisoners of bad character, or who had attempted to escape. The total was close on 35,000, and among them was the pick of the French Navy, besides many military officers and soldiers. Indeed, it is probable that the peace of 1802 was only patched up to enable these men to return to their country and take part in the operations up to Trafalgar. Of the prisons above referred to, Porchester Castle, although it contained the greatest number, afforded the best accommodation; the others, especially Foston, being intolerably crowded. The prisoners received a daily ration of 1½-lb. of bread, 1½-lb. of beef and vegetables—no beer or spirits being allowed. Many of the men, however, were skilled handicraftsmen, while others, driven by necessity, acquired the art of carving, straw plaiting, etc., with the proceeds of which they supplemented their prison fare by tobacco, wine, and other luxuries. At one time a very beautiful description of thread-lace was produced by the prisoners, and commanded a high price, but the English lace makers protested against such competition, and the manufacture was forbidden. The majority of the officers were allowed to give their parole, an indulgence not extended to those of inferior rank. The special fittings required for so large a body of prisoners were removed in 1802.

* * * *

"D. H. B. T."—On all sides the Army Temperance Association is well spoken of. Of the good work done by the association there can be no doubt. In 1898 it is recorded that there were 35,983 total abstainers in the Army. Of these, the force in India contributed 22,280, and the force elsewhere 13,703. The association had also 5,018 honorary members, of whom 3,342 were in India, which made its total membership 41,001. This is eminently satisfactory, especially when we consider how injurious to health is the smallest approach to intemperance in hot climates. Moreover, military crime is chiefly occasioned by drunkenness; indeed, almost any breach of discipline is directly traceable to this cause. In 1897 the total number of fines inflicted in connection with drunkenness was 14,441, and of these cases 1,505 came before a court-martial, the men being charged either with habitual drunkenness or drunkenness on duty. A considerable decrease has since taken place in the number of men charged with this offence.

* * * *

"BUNDESRATH."—The right of visitation and search of neutral vessels has always been held by the best authorities on international law to be a belligerent right essential to the exercise of the undoubted right of capturing enemy's property, contraband of war and vessels committing a breach of blockade; indeed, the practice of maritime capture could not exist without it. In the well-known case of the "Anna Maria," Chief Justice Marshall laid down the rule that the right to visit and detain for search is a belligerent right which cannot be called into question. In this case, although the ship's papers proved to be perfectly in order, the Supreme Court held that the right to search the ship in order to examine fully as to her character and the nature of the cargo was a complete right.

* * * *

"HALF-PAY."—You are quite right. No field-marshal has commanded a British army in war-time since the Russian War. Even then Lord Raglan did not go out as a field-marshal, but received his bâton after the battle of Inkerman. So the sending out of Lord Roberts to South Africa is scarcely a parallel case to that of Lord Raglan. It is curious to notice in this connection that Lord Raglan had under him only about 25,000 men, while Lord Roberts will command something like 180,000 men—a figure which constitutes the largest army that Great Britain has ever put into the field.

* * * *

"CONTRABAND."—The question as to whether coal was to be considered contraband was raised during the Franco-German War, and the French Government put on record in the Journal Officiel of July 26, 1890, that coal was not contraband. The general opinion, however, appears to be that the quantity and destination of the coal decides the question, e.g., coals may legitimately be sent for purposes of manufacture, but if consigned to a port where there are war steamers, and with the intention of supplying those vessels, they are liable to seizure. Provisions, if sent to a port where an army of a state at war is in want of food, may become contraband, and horses have been specially declared to be contraband in many treaties, even so far back as the Marine treaty between England and Holland, dated December 1, 1672.

* * * *

"MEDALS."—A correspondent points out that in the present war, which is one of the severest of recent years, there will in all probability be only one medal given, whereas in the Afghan War there was a special star given for Roberts's march from Cabul to Candahar, while the Khedive gave the familiar blue ribbon and star to accompany the blue and white ribbon Her Majesty gave for the Egyptian campaign, and in the more recent wars in the Soudan a similar course has been followed. An officer in the Crimea could get five decorations—perhaps more. But there is a picture of Colonel Wildman, of the 7th Hussars, with a medal on the jacket proper, and another medal on the sleeveless jacket. The picture was painted by James Lonsdale, about 1815, and the medals are evidently wrongly described as being the Peninsula and the Waterloo medals. The ribbon is the same, red with dark blue or green on the edge. Could any reader explain whether in the case of the 7th Hussars an officer did wear a medal on each jacket, or has the artist made a mistake?

THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

Tales of the Gun-room.

By Digory, R.N.

A CERTAIN captain, who was noted for what may in politeness be called brusqueness, on one occasion exceeded himself. The ship he commanded was going out of harbour in company with the fleet. A man fell overboard. "Away, lifeboat's crew," was, of course, at once the order. The lifeboat's crew immediately hurried into the boat; a midshipman also made the best of his way, but, being much smaller than the men, was kept back in the rush, and only succeeded in jumping into the boat just as the "falls" were started. To steady himself he placed his hand on the upper block; unfortunately, one of his fingers caught in the "sheave" and was badly crushed. This caused a moment's delay. The captain's idea of sympathy was to say, "Oh, Mr. Smith, there is always something jammed wherever you are!" This was not very consoling to the midshipman, who, although by no means the nearest, had yet managed to be the first officer in the boat. Perhaps his indignation soothed the pain, as the boy did not leave the boat, but went away in her and picked up the man.

A stout and elderly officer on board an ironclad lying in the Bay of Naples very much objected to the practice of sitting long at wine on guest nights, or any other nights; he, therefore, made a point of escaping directly the Queen's health had been honoured. The ship was an old-fashioned one, with large gun-ports on the main deck. When the guns are run in, as is the custom at evening quarters, the ports make nice large airy seats. Knowing that while the officers were at dinner no one would be likely to disturb him, the stout and elderly one, wishing to enjoy the fresh evening air as well as the lovely scenery of the Bay of Naples, climbed into a gun-port, and, with pipe in mouth and legs dangling over the side, did enjoy himself for some time. Of course, this proceeding was a breach of discipline. Now, though the ward-room officers were at dinner, the midshipmen were not. It was not long before the youngsters saw their chance for some fun. A council was held. Two boys got into a skiff and dropped under the stern to await events; two others seized the gun levers and hid behind the breech of the 7-in. gun—the muzzle was only a foot from the smoker's back; another boy wriggled along the deck until he could reach the tripper; then at a given signal by the ringleader the levers were slipped, the gun ran down the slide, and before the smoker could look round seven tons weight in motion caught him in the back and overboard he went. The skiff dashed alongside and picked him up. After this involuntary bath, the smoker confined his smokes to the usual smoking place. Being in the main a kind-hearted man, the story did not reach the captain's ears—at all events in an official manner. The midshipmen never mentioned it—oh, no, they never did!

The Cat out of the Bag.

It is well known that our merchants supply guns and rifles of all sorts and conditions to the natives and others on the East and West Coasts of Africa. Old Tower Hill muskets with bayonets complete can be bought for a rupee at Zanzibar; Birmingham double-barrelled muzzle-loaders are sold in great numbers—these guns are serviceable weapons and seldom burst; there are besides many others, rifles of first-rate make and high price, which are bought by the Arab chiefs on the East Coast. These chiefs are very particular about their rifles; they will pay a long price, but always insist on having a trial shot; neither will they believe that the powder is good unless they get a hearty kick on the shoulder. The traders are, however, sometimes equal to the occasion. The agent of a "firm" trading in one of our African Protectorates undertook one day to explain to some Naval officers the modus operandi of selling an expensive rifle. The party to be let into the secret was taken on to the roof of a coal shed; there was a row of sheds, in all about sixty yards long, each shed being connected by a plank bridge, so that one could walk from end to end. Resting against the end wall of the last shed was a thick plank; on the plank a target was painted. On moving the plank a bullet was found embedded in the wall exactly behind the centre of the bull's-eye. Thus the most important condition of the Arab buyer was satisfied; the other condition was easily met, by the use of cartridges loaded with powder of extra strength. There is nothing wrong in these arrangements, as is well known that you may sell a man a good gun, but you cannot make him a good shot.

In some of the old trading ports or forts of the Hudson's Bay Trading Company there may be seen guns, muzzle-loaders with very long barrels, standing about 5-ft. high. Should you be curious enough to ask, "What are the guns used for?" the answer will be, "Oh, we have no use for them nowadays, but before the Indians got spoilt they were our best stock-in-trade." It appears that in the good old days of barter the price of a gun was a heap of furs placed one on top of another until they reached the height of the muzzle of the gun standing on the heel-plate. This satisfied the Indians until the "wily traders" increased the length of the guns to such an extent that not only had the quantity of furs to be increased enormously, but the guns themselves became almost useless owing to their unwieldiness.

The Naval Service is said to be "free from snobs;" at all events even Thackeray could not find a specimen for his book. It may also be claimed for the Service that dandies are few and far between, though occasionally one may be found even in a gun-room mess. The senior midshipman of a big ship "up the Straits" was famous not only for the extreme smartness of his dress, but also for the remarkable elegance of his figure—a broad chest, wide shoulders, and a wasp-like waist that certain young ladies envied and many admired. Owing to the nature of the surroundings there cannot be many mysteries about the toilet of a midshipman. Consequently, suspicions ripened into certainty; heads were soon laid together, and a plot arranged. The result was that one morning a very peculiar dish appeared on the gun-room breakfast table.

The senior midshipman, who always sat at the top of the table, and was very particular that all the dish-covers should be taken off together ("make an evolution of it," he used to say), noticed on this particular morning that the dish in front of him was not uncovered. He called the steward, who whisked off the cover; the result was that instead of the usual "ham and eggs," a well-worn pair of stays appeared. At first silence, then roars of laughter, in which after a bit the owner of the "improvers" joined heartily.

"Examination for the rank of lieutenant on board the flag-ship at 9.30 a.m. to-morrow; logs and work books to be taken on board this afternoon." Such was the signal shown to Mr. Smith, midshipman. Accordingly, Mr. Smith goes on board the flag-ship about 2 p.m., taking his books with him; he is informed that he must himself deposit the books in the captain's fore-cabin. Not over-pleased, the youngster betakes himself up several ladders into the cabin. Passing a stout, elderly person wearing blue cloth trousers and a white shirt, but no coat, waistcoat, or cap, he jumps to the conclusion that it must be the steward, so in a rather patronising manner he says, "Look here, please take my books; I am coming on board to-morrow to take a first class." Much to the boy's astonishment a somewhat rough and angry voice replies, "Oh, first class, are you? It is not my place to take your books; put them on that round table with the others." Noticing that the man has some prominent blue veins on the tip of his nose, the midshipman, who has a ready if not refined wit, answers, "All right, old blue nose, don't get your shirt out," then departs, chuckling and satisfied with himself; but next morning, on presenting himself for examination, satisfaction and confidence vanish, for there, sitting at the head of the table, is his friend of yesterday, only on this occasion he is wearing a captain's uniform. At the end of the examination the President gives the boy his papers, saying, "It is my duty to give you a second class certificate, and I regret that you are not a first class." Exit Mr. Smith, and for the rest of his life he has always a kindly memory for his friend with the blue nose on board the old "Adelaide."

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

I.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar, under Methuen.

CAVALRY
2nd Dragoons.
9th Lancers.
12th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
Horse—G and P Batteries.
Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th Batteries.
Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS
7th (Field) Co.
8th (Railway) Co.
11th (Field) Co.
29th (Fortress) Co.
31st (Fortress) Co.
Two Sections 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Balloon Section.
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY
3rd Grenadiers.
1st Coldstreams.
2nd Coldstreams.
1st Scots Guards.
1st Argyll and Sutherland.
2nd Seaforths.
2nd Black Watch.
1st Highland L.I.
1st Northumberlands.
2nd Northamptons.
1st Gordons.
2nd Yorkshire L.I.
1st N. Lancashire (half battalion in Kimberley).
2nd Cornwall L.I.
1st Munster Fusiliers.

II.—Cape Colony. All Troops in and South of De Aar, on line Cape Town to De Aar.

ARTILLERY
Horse—U Battery.
Field—4th, 38th, 65th Batteries.
Garrison—15th Co. S. Division (Siege Train).

ENGINEERS
6th (Fortress) Co.
20th (Field) Co.
37th (Field) Co.
45th (Fortress) Steam Road Transport Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Field Park.
Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY
1st Welsh.
2nd Royal Lancaster.
2nd Royal Warwicks.
1st Royal Irish.
1st Yorkshire.
2nd Shropshire L.I.
2nd Wiltshire.
1st York and Lancaster.
2nd Worcester.
2nd East Kent.
1st Oxford L.I.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Nauwpoort under French.

CAVALRY
Household Regiment.
6th Dragoon Guards.
6th Dragoons.
10th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—O and R. Batteries.
Field—20th Battery.

ENGINEERS
10th (Railway) Co.
26th (Field) Co.
42nd (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
1st Suffolk.
1st Essex.

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY
Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS
12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY
2nd Irish Rifles.
2nd Northumberland.
1st Royal Scots.
2nd Berkshire.

V.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

CAVALRY
1st Dragoons.
13th Hussars.
14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 66th, 73rd Batteries.
Mountain—No. 10 Battery.

ENGINEERS
17th (Field) Co.
"A" Pontoon Troop.
Balloon Section.

INFANTRY
1st Border.
2nd Devon.
2nd West York.
2nd West Surrey.
2nd East Surrey.
1st Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Scots Fusiliers.
2nd Royal Fusiliers.
2nd Scottish Rifles.
1st Durham L.I.
3rd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Rifle Brigade.
2nd Somerset L.I.
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
1st Connaught Rangers.
1st Dublin Fusiliers.
1st Derbyshire.
2nd Dorsetshire.
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
1st South Lancashire.
2nd Middlesex.
2nd Bedfords.
1st York and Lancaster.

VI.—Natal, beleaguered in Ladysmith under White.

CAVALRY
5th Dragoon Guards.
5th Lancers.
18th Hussars.
19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS
23rd (Field) Company, Balloon Section, Headquarters and Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
1st Liverpool.
1st Devon.
1st Leicester.
1st Gloucester.
1st King's Royal Rifles.
2nd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Manchester.
2nd Gordons.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
2nd Rifle Brigade.

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY
16th Lancers.
7th Dragoon Guards.
17th Lancers.
8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—A, J, Q, M, T Batteries.
Field—43rd (Howitzer), 76th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th, 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 2nd, 8th, 44th, 39th, 68th, 88th, 5th, 9th, 17th Batteries.
Garrison—5th Co. E. Division; 15th Co. W. Division (Siege Train); 2nd, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division.

ENGINEERS
"C" Pontoon Troop.
38th (Field) Co.
47th (Fortress) Co.

INFANTRY
1st West Riding.
2nd Gloucester.
2nd Lincoln.
2nd Norfolk.
1st Scottish Borderers.
1st East Lancashire.
2nd Cheshire.
2nd Hants.
2nd South Wales Borderers.
2nd North Staffs.
3rd South Lancashire.*
4th Royal Lancaster.*
6th Royal Warwick.*
4th Derbyshire.*
9th King's Royal Rifles.*
3rd Durham L.I.*
4th Argyll and Sutherland.*
1st Sussex (from Malta).
1st Leinster (from Halifax).
City of London Imperial Volunteers.
* Militia Regiments

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38 (Supply), 40, 41, and 42.

NOTE.—The strength of the various units on a war footing is approximately as follows: A regiment of Cavalry 610; a battery of Artillery, Horse 180, Field 170 (companies of Garrison Artillery vary considerably, but may be taken to average 150; the Siege Train batteries are, however, very largely augmented); a company of Royal Engineers 210; a battalion of Infantry 1,010; and a company Army Service Corps 140.

FLOGGING in the British Army was not abolished until 1881, but years before that time an agitation began for its abolition. It is believed that the movement took practical shape in 1846, when a private named F. J. White, of the 7th Hussars, died from the effects of a severe flogging. White had been guilty of the serious offence of striking a sergeant at Hounslow. He was court-martialled and sentenced to receive 150 lashes. Two regimental farriers carried out the sentence. White bore his punishment manfully, although he had been kept without food for seventeen hours previously. After the barbarous punishment had been inflicted on him, the man went to the Station Hospital, where he died some five weeks later. Death was certified to have taken place from inflammation of the pleura and of the membrane of the heart. The Vicar of Hounslow, however, refused to bury the man without a coroner's warrant. At the inquest, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, who was called upon to make an independent examination of the body, gave it as his opinion that the man died from the effects of his severe punishment. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with this evidence. Then began the agitation for the abolition of flogging in the Army, but although in time of peace it was abolished in 1868, another thirteen years elapsed before the whole object of the movement was accomplished and flogging in the Army was completely abolished.

DURING the present year Volunteers will be called upon to give a better account of themselves than in former years, as far as musketry is concerned. Formerly, in order to earn the capitation grant, a citizen soldier was only required to fire twenty-one rounds at 200-yds. and obtain thirty points, in addition to attending a certain number of drills. Now, however, the authorities are not satisfied with such a poor test of a Volunteer's marksmanship. At 200-yds. he must fire seven rounds standing and seven kneeling; at 500-yds. and 600-yds., seven rounds respectively lying. So much for deliberate individual firing, but volleys and independent firing are insisted upon, for the first time, this year. At 500-yds., then, seven rounds are expended in volleys (single rank kneeling), and the same number in rapid independent firing under like conditions. For the purposes of sectional firing, four men at least must form a section. The total number of compulsory rounds is forty-two. A score of seventy points in individual practices obtains for the firer the classification of "marksman." A "second-class shot" must score at least forty points, and the "third-class shots" are those who score less than forty points.

"NATIONAL ANTHEM."—"God Save the King," written between 1736 and 1740, is stated to have been first sung in public at a dinner given in 1740 to celebrate the capture of Porto Bello by Admiral Vernon in the previous year; it was sung to music of his own composition by the alleged author, Henry Carey. The phrase "God save the King" is said by Froude to have been the watchword of the Navy in 1545; the countersign being "Long to reign over us." At a banquet given in Paris in honour of the Duke of Clarence when he, as Lord High Admiral, conveyed Louis XVIII. across the Channel, the following special verse was sung, the metre of which must, it is feared, have made the composer of the original anthem turn in his grave:

"God save noble Clarence
Who brings her kings to France,
God save Clarence;
He maintains the glory
Of the British Navy,
O! make him happy,
God save Clarence!"

Digitized by Google

Photo. Russell & Sons.
COLONEL LORD CHESHAM,
Now Organising the Imperial Yeomanry.

NO man in the Empire is to-day doing better work than Lord Chesham, on whose shoulders has fallen the task of organising the great corps of Imperial Yeomanry now being raised for service in South Africa. Lord Chesham is still in his prime — he is not yet fifty—and, though he has seen no war service, has fairly sampled his profession, for he started as a youngster of twenty in the Coldstream Guards, passed from them a year or two later to the 10th Hussars, and finally got his troop in the 16th Lancers. Every one of his old corps are now doing yeoman service at the front, and his son and heir will probably by the time these lines are in print be on his way to South Africa, for he is in the 17th Lancers, which is under orders for the Cape. Lord Chesham has since 1889 commanded the Royal Bucks Hussars.

FACING Lord Chesham on this page is the portrait of the officer in command of the City of London Imperial Volunteers. He also is in the prime of life, for he is not yet forty-eight. Colonel Mackinnon is a Guardsman, and has done all his regimental service in the Grenadiers, to which corps he was gazetted on June 22, 1870. For nearly five years he was adjutant of his battalion, and a man who has been adjutant of a Guards' battalion has proved himself an exceptionally smart soldier. He has been assistant military secretary to the Commander-in-Chief at Malta, private secretary to the Governor of Madras, and was for several years A.A.G. of the Home District. To this post he was again temporarily appointed last October, and he now vacates it to take up the command to which he has been appointed.

WHEN the story of this campaign comes to be written, one thing will stand out strong and clear, and that is, that our colonial troops have been tested in the most trying fashion, and have proved themselves of the best every time. The very brilliant little bit of fighting near Dordrecht on December 30 was carried out entirely by colonial troops, and the story of how forty men under Lieutenants Milford and Turner, of the Frontier Mounted Rifles, held their own against 800 Boers will be one of the episodes of the campaign. Standing by a wounded officer of Brabant's Horse, the little detachment had to defend itself throughout the night until its relief was effected the next morning by Captain Goldsworthy. The last-named officer is not seeing his first fighting in South Africa, for he fought through the campaign of 1877-79, and also in the operations in Basutoland in 1880-81.

Photo. Gregory.
COLONEL W. H. MACKINNON,
Who Goes Out in Command of the City of London Imperial Volunteers.

Photo. Copyright. Stead.
CAPTAIN H. W. GOLDSWORTHY AND LIEUTENANT E. J. WELBY,
Cape Mounted Rifles.
Captain Goldsworthy is the Hero of Labuschagne's Nek.

Lieutenant Welby, who figures also in our portrait, is one of the very few officers in the corps who are now on active service for the first time. With the exception of eleven of their twenty-four lieutenants, every officer in the Cape Mounted Rifles has seen service, and their doctor, Lieutenant-Colonel Hartley, won his V.C. for gallantry at Morosi's Mountain in 1879.

THE khaki-clad group here depicted have the honour of being the first in signalling in India for the year 1898-99. The 3rd Rifle Brigade ran them close, for they were only beaten by seven points. The group here shown fully equipped with flags, lamps, and heliograph have been doing good work on our North-West Frontier for some years, for they served through both the Chitral and Tirah Campaigns. One of them, Sergeant Race, received the medal for distinguished conduct in the field, almost as good as the V.C., and Major Logan-Home, the instructor of the squad, was Sir W. Lockhart's chief signalling officer in the Tirah Campaign, and earned mention in despatches.

Photo. Copyright. Tomar.
SIGNALLING SQUAD OF THE 1st BEDFORDSHIRE.
Champion Squad of Regiments in India, 1898-99.

IN our present fighting the experts tell us we are outclassed and outranged by our opponent's artillery. That may, or may not, be so, but at any rate it is comforting to reflect that when our foe is the Heathen Chinee our obsolete field guns will at any rate equal the cream of his ordnance. The gun looks as if it were wire-wound—with coarse string. As a matter of fact, it is made entirely of wood bound with split bamboo. The guard in charge of this mighty piece of ordnance are Marines of the "Powerful," and their main duty was to secure the gun from being carried off as fuel, for wood is scarce in those parts.

Digitized by Google

IT is lucky for the United States that in lieu of a Kruger they have found an Aguinaldo, who has not developed the Philippine artillery to that high pitch which a judicious expenditure of money in Europe might have brought it to. The guns are mainly of the gas-pipe order, with wood casing stiffened with iron. Those here shown were found in the arsenal at Manila, and curiously enough they are now in the possession of British Naval officers, and may perhaps figure some day in the museum of the Royal United Service Institution.

THE gun here shown is not a libel on modern artillery, for it was one actually used against the American troops at Santa Anna, when the United States commenced the building of their Empire. The carriage is simply the wheels and shafts of the ordinary "Carromato," the hansom of Manila. The man standing at the rear of the gun is a corporal of United States Artillery, and one can realise what he is suffering. Whether the insurgents were supplied with melinite or lyddite is immaterial, but the brave little truck in the foreground was meant to carry a small howitzer.

AN OLD-TIME RELIC.
A Chinese Gun at Wei-hai-Wei.

TO FIGHT THE AMERICANS WITH.
Types of Armament from the Insurgents' Arsenal.

THROUGHOUT the Navy, wherever any craft afloat is flying the White Ensign, the single wish in each man's heart is that he were on the Cape station. All, unfortunately, cannot be so, but from the Mediterranean to the Pacific every man is following with the keenest interest the history of the struggle. One of our illustrations on the next page was snap-shotted in an upper deck casemate of the "Renown," the flag-ship on the Mediterranean station. And can one wonder that the young officers of the Navy are keen to know how their comrades at the front are doing when one realises that the bulk of officers serving with the Naval Brigades are midshipmen and sub-lieutenants?

AND the lower deck man is as keen as his officer, but, on the whole, perhaps he takes it more calmly. The group of Bluejackets and Marines here depicted belong to the "Renown," the flagship on the Mediterranean station. Launched in 1895, the "Renown" has one of the most historic names in the Navy, for it commemorates the capture of two French ships, each called "Renommée," and both of which entered the British Navy under the name "Renown."

WHILE we are fighting for supremacy in South Africa, we must not forget that the northern length of the Cape Town to Cairo line is being, to a large extent, held by the small contingent of the Royal Navy now doing gun-boat service on the Nile. Our group is of Naval officers and men employed in this useful service. The senior

A BIT OUT OF DATE.
A Gun Used Against the U.S. Troops at Santa Anna.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

Digitized by Google

officer, Lieutenant W. H. Cowan, who is seated in the centre of the group, is an officer who has seen much service in the Dark Continent. He has served in more than one of the West Coast expeditions, and earned his D.S.O. on the Nile during the operations of 1898, including the battles of the Atbara and Khartoum. Lieutenant Cowan holds, moreover, the Royal Humane Society's medal for gallantry in saving life. Seated on Lieutenant Cowan's right is Engineer Bond, who also earned his D.S.O. in the Nile Campaign. He was specially mentioned in despatches by the Sirdar, who said: "I wish also to add my appreciation of the services rendered by Engineer E. Bond, of the Royal Navy and the engineering staff." It is worth noting in our picture the part the Marines have played in the Nile Campaign, for four of the figures in the group are sergeants of the Royal Marine Artillery, and, as our Khartoum correspondent writes us, "We were not able to get together every one, as Colour-Sergeants Sears and Muller and Sergeant Mead were away in gun-boats at the time." The names and general positions of the officers and non-commissioned officers in the group are as follows: Lieutenant Cowan, R.N., D.S.O., in the centre; Engineer Bond, R.N., D.S.O., on Lieutenant Cowan's right; Lieutenant Escombe, R.N., on Mr. Bond's right; Lieutenants Fell and Drury, R.N., on Lieutenant Cowan's left. Behind being: Chief Engine-room Artificer Milton, R.N.; Colour-Sergeant Lambert, R.M.A.; Colour-Sergeant Saddon, R.M.A.; Colour-Sergeant Evans, R.M.A.; and Sergeant Maynard, R.M.A.

MR. HENRY INGLIS ROSSLYN TRISCHLER, the latest winner of the medal presented annually to the "Britannia" by Her Majesty the Queen, is but a little over sixteen years old, as he was born at Melbourne on October 2, 1883, and it is well that now, when the Empire is testing itself, and the work the colonies are doing for it is so markedly in evidence, that the gold medallist of the "Britannia" should be an Australian. The young cadet, who has now been appointed to the "Doris" as midshipman, goes straight to the front, for the "Doris" is the flag-ship on the Cape

NEWS FROM THE FRONT.
The Gun-room Officers Smoke and Ruminate.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT.
Bluejackets and Marines Take it Calmly.

Photos. Copyright. 'Navy & Army.'

THE NAVY TO THE FORE—NAVAL OFFICERS AND MARINES DOING THE EMPIRE'S WORK ON THE NILE.

Digitized by Google

station. Mr. Trischler is also a fair athlete, and his record in that direction is not a bad one. When he joined the "Britannia" in 1898 he at once got his colours for the first "Rugger" fifteen. In his next term he gained his hockey colours. Last term he was bowling for the cricket eleven, and with some success, for an average of 16·2 runs per wicket is not one to be ashamed of. During this term also he won the bayonet v. bayonet competition at the annual assault-at-arms, and pulled stroke in three winning crews out of four races. A very good type of the Naval cadet is Mr. Trischler, and we are glad he hails from the colonies, for it is well that the men from overseas should take their part in the sea service as well as they are now doing on land.

Photo. Cooling.
MIDSHIPMAN H. I. R. TRISCHLER, R.N.
Winner of the Queen's medal in the "Britannia," and now appointed to the Flag-ship at the Cape.

IN our picture the officer of the watch is seen hailing a passing boat with that magnified ear trumpet—the megaphone. Like most American inventions, it is, without being ornamental, distinctly useful. It has found its way into Her Majesty's Service, and has proved of much use in it.

THE two Services, side by side, are well depicted in the accompanying illustration, which shows the boatswain of the "Powerful" and a sergeant-major of the King's Own (Yorkshire Light Infantry). When the trouble began the Yorkshires had their left half battalion quartered in Mauritius, and the great cruiser, speeding from China to the Cape, was detained to act as transport to bring this half battalion down to the scene of action. By their removal, with the exception of a couple of companies of Garrison Artillery, Mauritius is denuded of British troops. The troops now in garrison there are two regiments of native infantry from India and the 2nd Battalion of the British Central Africa Rifles.

Our picture is an interesting one, for in the two warrant officers depicted we have the goal that is the ambition of "Tommy" and "Jack," as both officers represent what a good man can work up to from the ranks or the lower deck.

Photo. Copyright. "WHAT HO!" "Navy & Army."
Using the Megaphone.

Photo. Copyright. "COMRADES." H. Sharps.
The Boatswain of the "Powerful" and a Sergeant-Major of the Yorkshire Light Infantry.

THE accompanying illustration gives an excellent view of the breech, recoil mechanism, and protective shield of the "four-point-seven," the gun which is now doing such good work with White in Ladysmith, with Methuen on the Western Frontier, and with Buller on the Tugela. Transported from the Fleet to the front, these guns have, thanks to the inventive genius of Captain Percy Scott, been transformed into what are practically field-pieces, and so we are able to make some reply to the heavy artillery which the Boers have in the field. The range of the gun with cordite is 9,800-yds., and it throws a shell of 45-lb. weight. The shell now being used against the Boers with such effect has a charge of 4-lb. 8-oz. of lyddite, with 4½-oz. of picric powder as an explosive. The recoil mechanism prominent on top of the gun in our picture has in the most recent designs been placed underneath the gun.

The weight of the gun is 41-cwt.; its length 16-ft. 1½-in.; and the number of grooves, 22.

In addition to the shell just mentioned, the following shells are supplied:

	Weight of bursting charge. lb.	oz.
Iron, common	2	15	powder
Steel ,,	4	2	,,
,, shrapnel	0	5	,,
Armour piercing (pointed and hardened).	1	15	,,

A correspondent writing from the camp says: "It is a peculiar sight to see the 4·7-in. fired. Many thought it would

A "FOUR-POINT-SEVEN."
The Gun that has Saved the Situation.

turn over, but Captain Percy Scott appears to have well calculated the stresses; there is with a full charge of cordite a slight rise of the fore end, which practically relieves all the fastenings. Hastily put together, and crude as it looks, it really embraces all the points of a scientific mounting, and it wants a great expert to pronounce an opinion on it."

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

VOL. IX.—No. 156.] SATURDAY, JANUARY 27th, 1900.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

WITH FRENCH AT RENSBURG.

This is a suggestive little scene from the camp of the Inniskilling Dragoons, who charged the other day with such deadly effect through and through the Boers near Colesberg. The standing figure is sentry over the regimental machine-gun, which in action is carried on a galloping carriage as mobile as the corps itself.

Digitized by Google

Delagoa Bay and the War.

Photo. Copyright. Ellis.

THE "THETIS."

The Cruiser which Captured the German Steamer "Herzog" to the North of Delagoa Bay.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

THE "MAGICIENNE."

The Cruiser which Captured the German Steamer "Bundesrath," and Towed her to Durban.

Photo. Copyright. Edwards.

DELAGOA BAY.

Showing the Old Portuguese Fort on the Left. Delagoa Bay has been described as the "Key of South Africa," but we allowed it to slip through our hands.

Photos. Copyright.

THE "INDIA."

The Portuguese War-ship in which Transvaal War Stores were Detained at Lourenco Marques.

"Navy & Army."

THE "CONDOR."

The German Cruiser which Carried the Mails and Passengers of the "Bundesrath" to Lourenco Marques after her Capture.

Digitized by Google

Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories.

By Frederick G. Engelbach.

ENFIELD LOCK.—I.

TUCKED away, so to speak, out of sight on the marshes at Enfield Lock stands the chief small arms factory of England, the birthplace of the Lee-Metford magazine rifle, and of many another good weapon. Although, by the very nature of things, not so vast as the Arsenal at Woolwich, it yet employs from 2,300 to 3,500 men, for whom the authorities have made generous provision in the shape of cottages, schools, and institutes. It is interesting to note here that the Government Service is looked upon by many as a distinct profession, and several instances of three generations of one family can be shown by the pay-sheet as working at the factory. The sluggish River Lea, which, by numerous canals, intersects the establishment, lends an air of sylvan picturesqueness to the scene unusual in a manufactory, and furnishes a cheap and efficient means of transport.

Photo. W. J. Wright.
COLONEL W. N. LOCKYER, R.A.,
Chief Inspector of Small Arms.

Photo. Lafayette.
COLONEL H. S. S. WATKIN, C.B.,
Superintendent of Enfield Lock.

The factory is an affair, comparatively, of yesterday, and has no old buildings or associations to stand in the way of enlargement. Aggressively new, it is yet being constantly added to as the tenets of the new gospel of universal peace become more generally understood!

Photo. Copyright. ENTRANCE TO THE ROYAL SMALL ARMS FACTORY, ENFIELD LOCK. "Navy & Army."

The control of the Small Arms Department was, until quite recently, vested in Mr. Donaldson, now Chief Mechanical Engineer of Ordnance Factories. By the new order of things an officer on the active list is to be appointed, and he, like his brother superintendents, will be directly responsible to the I.G.O.F. Side by side with the manufacturing branch, and inhabiting the same block of buildings, is the inspection branch. The modern rifle is so intricate that inspection of its parts has to proceed pari passu with their manufacture, and hence the two departments, although absolutely distinct, are far more closely allied than is the case at Woolwich. The Chief Inspector of Small Arms is Colonel W. N. Lockyer, R.A., who is one of the greatest authorities on rifle manufacture in Europe. His service at Enfield extends from 1884, when he was appointed captain-inspector, down to 1894, when he was appointed to his present position.

Photo. L. Sawyer.
CAPTAIN W. B. WALLACE,
Assistant Inspector of Small Arms.

Photo. A. Weston.
MR. SPEED.
Manager of the Small Arms Factory.

His services have recently been recognised by an extension of his command by five years, a fact as satisfactory to the rifle world as it must have been to him. His second in command, Lieutenant-Colonel Ward, R.A., was appointed Inspector of Small Arms in 1895, having been gazetted to the Royal Artillery in 1873.

Photo. Maull & Fox.
LIEUT.-COLONEL E. WARD, R.A.,
Inspector of Small Arms.

Captain W. B. Wallace, of the Suffolk Regiment, was appointed as Inspector of Machine Guns in 1897, having been gazetted 1885. The output from the factory is gigantic, and only when it is so can the cost of production be kept within bounds. There are 300,000 square feet of floorspace available, and it can be readily understood that to allow any of the expensive plant which such an extensive factory entails to lie idle increases the annual cost of that machinery which is running. The weekly wage-bill is an instructive document, showing as it does an amount which varies from £3,000 to £4,000, according to the work in hand. The weekly output, when the factory is working at its highest pressure, is as follows: 500 swords, 3,000 bayonets, 200 lances, 3,000 magazine rifles, and six machine-guns. Besides this, if necessary, 1,000 spare rifle barrels and 1,000 spare bayonets can be produced at a pinch, every one of the details being of the finest workmanship, and as narrowly inspected as though "easy all" was the order.

Photo. C. S. Southin.
MR. BLACK,
Principal War Office Clerk, Enfield Lock.

Digitized by Google

The factory, like the Arsenal and the cordite factory, is an eight-hour day establishment, and there is but one break, viz., the dinner-hour. Men come in at 8 a.m., knock off at 12 noon; resume work at 1 p.m., and knock off for the day at 5 p.m. The modern rifle is well shown in the illustration, by contrast with its predecessors. Mark II. has a magazine capable of holding ten cartridges, and has an effective range of 2,900-yds., its bore being ·303-in. Its weight, including bayonet, is 10½-lb., and its length over all is 5-ft. 1½-in. The French Lebel rifle measures, with bayonet, 5-ft. 11½-in., an advantage of 10-in. to the Frenchman when he crosses bayonets with Thomas Atkins. The cost, excluding all profits, of our Service rifle amounts to £2 14s. without bayonet, or £3 0s. 9d. inclusive. As may be imagined, the task of inspecting the manufacture of its 120 different parts is an onerous one; it demands the services of 190 men of all ranks. Gauges capable of detecting errors of 1-1000-in. are used by these men for testing each item, and these gauges alone total up to 305.

Photo. Copyright GAUGES FOR THE BODY OF THE SERVICE RIFLE. "Navy & Army."
The Body Requires 68 Different Gauges. The Bolt Requires 29 Different Gauges. The Barrel Requires 41 Different Gauges.

Photo. "Navy & Army."
COLONEL LOCKYER'S PROPOSED UNIVERSAL PATTERN WEAPON.
Compared with the Lee-Enfield Rifle, it weighs 2-lb. less and has a Triangular Bayonet, with the Same Handle as the Old Sword-Bayonet.

In addition to testing rifles, bayonets, and swords, trained viewers inspect periodically the arms in the charge of troops. No smartness of drill impresses these men, and woe to the commanding officer of a regiment if his rifles are found neglected. Colonel Lockyer has recently been engaged in trying to persuade the War Office to adopt the carbine as the universal arm, as he has proved that its range is as good and its shooting as accurate as that of the rifle, and it weighs 2-lb. less. The reason for the reintroduction of the triangular bayonet is based upon an incident which occurred at the battle of the Atbara. An English soldier bayonetted a Dervish, and to his disgust found that he could not withdraw the weapon, its shape rendering it peculiarly liable to be retained.

A triangular bayonet, on the other hand, is far less liable to such an accident, and, besides, requires far less force to penetrate the enemy's body.

One other point must be borne in mind, and that is that the long bayonet is of some use to a soldier unhappily deprived of his rifle. It would puzzle the most ardent fighter to make much headway with a bayonet little better than a hunting-knife.

Photo. Copyright. THE EVOLUTION OF THE MODERN RIFLE. "Navy & Army."
Matchlock of about William III., Flintlock (Brown Bess), Enfield Rifle, Snider Breech-loader, Martini-Henry, and Lee-Enfield (Mark II.).

Photo. Copyright. Col. Lockyer, R.A.
A CHARMING VIEW INSIDE THE FACTORY.

Photo. Copyright. EN ROUTE FOR WEEDON. Col. Ward, R.E.
View of the Basin at Enfield Lock—Rifles being Loaded into Barges for Transit to the Weedon Government Store.

(Previous articles of this series appeared on July 15 and January 13).

Digitized by Google

THE little unpleasantness which has arisen between ourselves and the Germans over the arrest of the "Bundesrath" and other vessels is interesting to others than international lawyers and politicians. A good deal of the history of the Navy is concerned with just such matters, and will probably continue to be in the future. Nor has that been the case with us only, but with all Naval Powers at all times. The sea being the common road and field of all nations which can reach its waters, there has never been a possibility of limiting war upon it as upon land. Belligerents and neutrals have been always so mingled together that it has been all but impossible to disentangle them, therefore the second have ever—except when they were too powerful to be made light of—suffered what they considered wrong at the hands of the first. Indeed, there were times when it could hardly be said that there ever was full peace for anybody on the sea. All sailors were more or less pirates, and were liable to be so treated. When our Edward III. fought his battle with "the Spaniards on the Sea" he was not at war with their Sovereign; he attacked them because he had to complain that they had plundered his subjects. No doubt they had, and their excuse was that they had been previously robbed by the English. The fact was, that everybody wanted the road over the sea to himself, and was disposed to treat all rivals as interlopers if he could. When two States were at war, their natural wish was to deprive one another of their whole trade, whether borne in their own vessels or by neutrals; hence the sorrows of the latter, who were liable to be crushed between the two.

* * * *

It is a natural consequence that wars on the sea have always had a tendency to become what Froissart said they were in his time, "felon," that is, peculiarly cruel and destructive. Commercial greed enters into them more than it does in land wars. We have not been the worst offenders in that way, or, at any rate, not worse than others. In the ancient world a maritime power always sought to make a monopoly by crushing everybody else. So it did in the Middle Ages, and some of the most cut-throat fighting ever known went on in the Mediterranean between Genoese, Venetians, and Catalans, all of them being intent on getting the whole trade of the Levant into their own hands. At the other end of Europe it was the same story. The Germans had once a Naval power in the shape of the Hanseatic League, which was a confederation of seaport towns on the Baltic and at the mouth of the Elbe, together with trading and manufacturing towns in the interior. The league had great privileges both in Scotland and England, where the merchants of the Steelyard were a powerful corporation. It established a regular tyranny in the North of Europe, and was abundantly greedy and overbearing. When Ivan the Terrible encouraged the English to establish a factory at Archangel, it was largely because he wished to escape from the overbearing dominion of the Hanseatic League. One of the first steps we took when our commercial development began was to overthrow the privileged position of the merchants of the Steelyard.

* * * *

In the natural course of things, when we got the upper hand we began to try to act in precisely the same fashion. So did the Dutch, and everybody else whenever they had a chance. Of course, we all talked of our rights, which in plain English meant the right to strangle the trade of a neutral. In spite of all the outcry against the tyrants of the sea, we did no worse than others, and were even less exacting than some. Our theory that we were entitled to take an enemy's goods found in a neutral ship was meant to deprive him of the chance of carrying on commerce by the help of a third party. The French claimed to confiscate a neutral's goods when found in an enemy's ship, which, of course, was meant to ruin the carrying trade of the hostile State by making it dangerous to employ his vessels. To the unlucky neutral one was quite as bad as the other. The history of our Navy is full of stories of the capture of whole convoys belonging to neutrals, even when they were under the protection of their own war-ships. It was all such an intolerable harassment and loss to neutrals that only the existence of peculiar circumstances, which may not and probably will not exist in future, rendered it possible.

* * * *

One thing which during centuries has distinguished sea from land warfare has been the very limited number of great Powers. In the seventeenth century they were England and Holland, with France as a good third during the last quarter; then Holland fell out, and England and France were left alone. All other States were so weak at sea that the choice for them lay between being dragged behind one or other of the combatants or putting up with the treatment which the "big boys" chose to mete out to them. When one of the cocks of the walk had fairly beaten the other he was absolute master of the situation. Nothing like that League of Augsburg, which counterbalanced the power of Louis XIV. on land, was possible at sea. Therefore, when we had got the best of the French we could do what we pleased. What resistance could Spain or Holland, in her decline, or Ragusa or Genoa or the Free City of Hamburg make to our dictation? Little or none. So the rights of a belligerent at sea grew to mighty proportions, and we became honestly convinced that when the Scandinavian States objected to our taking convoys of their vessels into our ports for adjudication, and keeping their perishable cargoes waiting for the leisure of the Admiralty Court, they were denying us our fair rights, and were acting in a most unfriendly way.

* * * *

The only exception to this condition of things on the sea is a very significant one. During the great American War of 1779-83, the Northern Powers united to limit our belligerent rights with a considerable measure of success. At an earlier period Frederick the Great could only retaliate for what he held to be our harsh interference with the trade of his subjects by stopping the payment of interest on a loan, owned by British subjects, but that was a small affair, and we did not feel it. Matters were very different when he joined with Catherine of Russia and the Scandinavian kingdoms to make the Armed Neutrality. Then there was a balance of force between us, and the coalition of France, Spain, Holland, and the American insurgents. Moreover, the war in America cut us off from our Naval supplies from that quarter, and made us wholly dependent on the Baltic for the means of fitting out our fleets. So we could not afford to add the Northern Powers to our enemies, and were fain to draw in our horns. The pendulum swung back to our side in the great Revolutionary and Napoleonic Wars, because France became a common enemy, and all other fleets as good as vanished. What the state of the poor neutral was at that time, his sufferings under the Berlin decrees and the orders in council show. The United States found it so intolerable that they first fought the French, and then us.

* * * *

Will the conditions which rendered the exercise of belligerent rights—as the only great Powers at sea interpreted the term in their own favour—ever recur? One may doubt it. We have already surrendered the claim to take enemy's goods from a neutral ship, except when they are contraband of war. This we did because the Powers of the Continent showed a disposition to tolerate it no longer. Those who complain that we have renounced the means of putting pressure on an enemy seem habitually to forget that we have also got rid of the risk that we shall provoke the formation of another Armed Neutrality. The storm aroused by the stopping of the "Bundesrath," though it was technically correct, is a pretty clear warning. We cannot, be our Fleet what it may, treat such Powers as Russia, Germany, Italy, France, and the United States as we could afford to treat Ragusa or Venice or Genoa or Hamburg or Sweden—that is to say, as negligible quantities.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

JANUARY 28, 1596.—Death of Sir Francis Drake. 1801.—French "Dedaigneuse," 36, taken by the "Oiseau," "Amethyst," and "Sirius," all 36-guns. 1806.—French "Voltigeur," 14, taken by the "Growler," 12, and "Sarcier," 14, by the "Attack," 12.

January 29, 1744.—The "Fly" sloop, 8 guns, took the Spanish "Rosario," 12, off the Lizard. 1801.—The "Bordelais," 24, beat off two French 18-gun brigs and a 6-gun schooner, capturing one brig, the "Curieux," 18. 1813.—Capture of the Island of Augusta, Adriatic, by the British squadron. 1856.—The "Polyphemus" wrecked. 1884.—The "Warspite" launched.

January 30, 1761.—Capture of the "Brune," 36, by the "Venus," 36, and "Juno," 32, off Scilly. 1780.—The "Surprise," 28, took the "Duguay-Trouin," 20, one of two French ships that attacked the "Surprise" off the Dodman. 1892.—The "Grafton" launched. 1893.—The "Cambrian" launched. 1895.—The "Snapper," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

January 31, 1748.—The "Nottingham," 60, and "Portland," 60, took the French "Magnanime," 74. 1761.—The "Solebay," 28, and the "Amazon," 28, drove ashore and captured the "Chevrette," 18, off Calais. 1779.—The "Apollo," 32, took the "Oiseau," 26, in the Channel. 1797.—The "Andromache" captured an Algerine corsair. 1873.—Naval Brigade at the battle of Amoaful. 1895.—The "Majestic" launched.

February 1, 1807.—The "Lark," 18, defeated and destroyed Spanish flotilla off the Spanish main. 1873.—Royal Naval College opened. 1897.—The "Bittern," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

February 2, 1747.—British squadron took the French "Bellone," 36, in the Bay of Biscay. 1894.—The "Decoy," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched. 1897.—The "Angler," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

February 3, 1781.—Rodney's fleet captured the "St. Eustatia" and Dutch squadron. 1807.—Spanish squadron, at Monte Video, surrendered to the British squadron. 1810.—The "Valiant," 74, captured the "Confiance," ex 40-gun frigate. 1812.—The "Southampton," 32, took the "Amethyste," 40, off San Domingo. 1813.—Capture of the Island of Curzola, Adriatic, by a British squadron. 1814.—The "Majestic," 56, took the French "Terpsichore," 40. 1885.—Naval Brigade at Wad Habeshi, Soudan.

JANUARY 28, 1783.—Surrender of Bednore. After the successful storming of the Hussenghurry Ghauts, General Mathews marched on Bednore, which surrendered without offering resistance. 1833.—General Gordon born. 1846.—Battle of Aliwal. Major-General Sir Harry Smith—the founder of Ladysmith, in Natal—with a force of 12,000 defeated a Sikh army numbering 19,000. Our losses were 151 killed and 413 wounded. The enemy lost nearly 6,000 killed or drowned in attempting to cross the Sutlej. 1881.—Disaster at Laing's Nek. Sir George Colley repulsed by the Boers with heavy losses, principally in the 58th Regiment. Colonel Deane and six officers were killed.

January 29, 1760.—Surrender of Chittapett. The French garrison surrendered to Colonel Eyre Coote after a show of resistance. 1813.—Capitulation of Lagosta, Adriatic Sea. Lieutenant-Colonel Robertson, with 300 men landed on the island on January 21, and eight days later the fort and island surrendered. 1818.—Storm of Juwud. 1849.—Capture of Mooltan. A British force, under General Whish, after a twenty days' siege, stormed and took this place. 1856.—Victoria Cross instituted by Royal Warrant. 1898.—Disaster at Shin Kamar, Tirah. Plan of attack on this pass failed. Colonel Houghton killed.

January 30, 1809.—Landing at Martinique. A British army of 10,000 men, under Major-General Beckwith, landed on the island, and thus began the operations which terminated in the complete subjection of the island.

January 31, 1690.—Action on St. Martin's Island, West Indies. Major-General Sir Timothy Thornhill successfully repelled a French attack, and embarked his force without further molestation. 1819.—Storm of Fort Nowah. Major Pitman, commanding the Nizam of Hyderabad's regular cavalry, laid siege to this fortress belonging to a notorious chief in Berar on January 8, and took it by storm on the 31st. 1874.—Battle of Amoaful, Ashanti. A force of 1,375 men defeated the Zulus, the Black Watch leading the attack.

February 1, 1760.—Surrender of Timery by the French. This was one of the many successes of the British arms which followed the battle of Wandewash. 1781.—Battle of M'Cowan's Ford. Americans defeated by Lord Cornwallis. 1874.—Becquah, Ashanti, captured by Sir A. Alison.

February 2, 1814.—Merexem taken. In an advance movement of the British and Prussians to destroy the French shipping at Antwerp, an attack was made on the village of Merexem, which was gallantly carried. The enemy were driven from a strong position, and two guns and several prisoners were taken. 1839.—Capture of Fort Munhara, Scinde. Kurrachee surrendered next day without resistance.

February 3, 1759.—Action at St. Thome. During the siege of Madras, Captain Preston, with a small force, was attacked near the village of St. Thomé by the French under Lally, and drove them back with considerable loss. 1807.—Storm of Monte Video. After being invested on January 23, the city was taken by storm eleven days later. Our losses were 6 officers and 112 men killed, and 17 officers and nearly 400 men wounded.

Tommy Atkins in Barracks.

By LIEUTENANT D. DALLAS.

OLD prejudices die hard, and it has taken many years to clear the idea from the minds of the lower middle class—from which a very much larger proportion of our recruits should be drawn than is at present the case—that soldiers are unmitigated scamps, that their officers are utterly oblivious to their well-being, physically and morally, and that their comfort or discomfort is entirely dependent on the caprice of non-commissioned officers, who are believed to be tyrants capable of any conceivable meanness in order to gratify their vindictive spirit

At the present day recruits, instead of joining their regiment direct, as was formerly the practice, are first grounded in their drill at the depôt. The drill, though perhaps a little irksome to some lads at first, is by no means severe, three hours a day being usually devoted to it. The instructors have great patience, and they require it; but the tact, combined with firmness, which they display is deserving of the highest praise. The use of bad language or a harsh manner is stringently forbidden, and the exercises are made as interesting as possible.

Formerly some drill-sergeants considered a ferocious manner absolutely essential in dealing with recruits. It smartened them up, they said. There used to be an enormous drill-corporal in a certain Highland regiment whose delight it was to drive fear into the hearts of the youngsters. "Roughy Reid" was his nick-name, and rough indeed he was. The great and unpardonable sin in his eyes was looking on the ground. Heaven help the unlucky wight who dropped his eyes for an instant. "Roughy" was down on him. His pace-stick pushed out in front, with half-a-dozen gigantic strides he was towering over the culprit, while in a voice like the bellowing of a bull came the dread-inspiring query:

"Hae ye ony freens in the 'ill place,' that ye're looking down there?"

This type of instructor has, however, passed away, and though they turned out smart soldiers, and were by no means bad fellows when off the parade ground, I think on the whole their successors are an improvement.

Gymnastic training takes place concurrently with recruit drill. In every large garrison there is a gymnasium, with a staff of highly-trained instructors, and fitted with every gymnastic appliance. Recruits, as a rule, thoroughly enjoy their hour daily, and the effect on their physical development is astonishing.

In addition to drill and gymnastics the recruit has yet another hour's instruction. This is in the school, of which there are one or more in every garrison. No matter how smart a recruit may turn out, or how well conducted he may be, without at least some education a private soldier he must remain. But there is no need that he should do so. The school is provided, and an excellent school it is. Many a man now holding an honourable position in Her Majesty's Service has to thank the Army schoolmaster for it.

Bullying in the Service is not tolerated, and any non-commissioned officer having a tendency in that direction would speedily find himself in trouble. At the same time, great firmness is required, for without this discipline could not be maintained.

It is a fact worthy of notice that the officers are now brought into much closer association with their men than was formerly the case, and undoubtedly with the most beneficial results. Tommy Atkins now recognises in his officer a friend who looks after his interests, ever ready to lend him a helping hand; to meet him on equal terms on the cricket or football field; and to take his punishment as good-humouredly from Private Atkins as he would from the Earl of Broadacres. The British love of sport in every shape is one of the most prominent traits of the British soldier of every rank, and thoroughly well is it carried out. The annual athletic sports gathering is a gala day in every regiment; every company has its cricket and football teams, and even when pitted against the best county teams the military more than hold their own.

In the matter of recreation the soldier has certainly nothing to complain of. Should he wish to go out, he is at liberty to do so every evening he is not on duty. If he be a non-commissioned officer or well-conducted private he may remain out till midnight. Leave for two or three days is readily obtained, while, once a year, he can have a furlough for a month, or even for six weeks in some cases. Should he not feel inclined to go out of barracks in the evening he need still be at no loss for amusement. In every barracks there are two large rooms fitted up as reading-room and game-room. In the former he has plenty of newspapers and all the principal magazines, while such periodicals as The NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED, Tit-Bits, &c., being in great demand, are provided on an extra liberal scale. In the game-room he can indulge in almost any indoor game for which he has a fancy, chess, draughts, backgammon, cards, and so forth, being supplied in abundance. There are always one or two bagatelle boards, and not infrequently a billiard table. There is also an excellent lending library.

Digitized by Google

In connection with the reading-room there is a coffee-bar, where Tommy may enjoy a by no means bad cup of coffee or basin of stew at a very modest rate. Formerly the coffee-bar was, in many instances, run by an old soldier for his own profit, and very amusing scenes sometimes occurred in connection therewith.

The writer recollects an old veteran who was the manager and sole proprietor of such an establishment in Malta. No Czar was ever a greater autocrat than he. He was in the habit of giving trust, which was, however, limited to 2½d. a night, and 1s. in the aggregate. One evening two of the "last draft," who were aware of the accommodation but not of its limitations, having enjoyed a walk in the country, returned to barracks with appetites, and wended their way to the coffee-shop, in the full expectation of being able to appease them.

"Two cups o' corffee, two 'a'porths o' bread and butter, an' two sausages, an' be quick, Mick, for we're hungry."

Mick consulted his book. Unfortunately in that grim ledger their names already appeared for the maximum amount of credit. Mick came back to the bar, his great brows overhanging his eyes and wrath on his countenance.

"Ye miserable onsaisoned atomies! D'yez dar' tu come here tu shwindle an ould soger? Sure isn't id a gud shillin's worth av tick yez 'ave had? Yez desarve a barrack-room coort-martial, so yez do; be off wid yez now, 'tis hungry tu bed yez'll go to-night!" And hungry to bed they went.

In these days, however, Tommy has no need to go to the coffee-bar to supplement his rations. Wonderful strides have been made in Army catering, and the ration is found ample. Each company has a room set aside as a dining-hall where the men have their food, instead of, as formerly, having it in the same room in which they slept. Here on tables provided with table-cloths, cruet-stands, etc. (luxuries that in the old days were never thought of), the meals are served piping hot, and excellent meals they are. Breakfast usually consists of coffee, bread and butter or dripping toast (the dripping saved from the roast meat), bacon, fried liver, or some such dainty. For dinner there is meat baked with potatoes, roasted or stewed, sea-pie, and so forth, with a pudding to follow. Frequently there is soup made from stock, but it must be confessed that English soldiers do not care much for soup. The tea-meal is usually somewhat similar to breakfast, with tea instead of coffee. There is in most regiments soup for supper for those who wish it. Mr. Atkins is, however, somewhat peculiar in his ideas regarding food, and is suspicious of innovations. One curious thing he insists on with absolute unanimity: he will have his meat overdone.

Should our friend feel disposed to indulge in a pint of beer instead of a cup of coffee, there is the canteen to which he can go. There he gets his beer of the best possible quality at the lowest possible price, and with the knowledge, in addition, that all profits accruing will ultimately come back to him in some shape or other, instead of going to swell the banking account of the landlord of the Valiant Soldier. There is usually a piano, with a man to play it, and there "Tommy" can sing his patriotic choruses to his heart's content. Not infrequently very fair professional singers are engaged for his amusement.

But it is when our friend becomes a sergeant that he, for the first time, thoroughly realises that no matter what position in life he has filled before joining Her Majesty's Service, he has by no means thrown himself away in doing so. A sergeant's life, though duty may take up a considerable portion of his day, leaves him still abundance of time for recreation. He is allowed a batman, or servant, to clean his accoutrements, boots, etc.; he has a separate sleeping-room, and he has the "sergeants' mess." It is a difficult thing to make it clear to the civilian mind precisely what the sergeants' mess is. I might describe the mess-rooms and their furnishing, the deft, neatly-dressed, respectful waiters, the games indulged in, the whist parties and billiard tournaments, the quadrille parties and smoking concerts, but I should signally fail if I tried to make anyone who has not been a soldier understand the good-fellowship, the warm-hearted friendship, the true camaraderie of the British sergeant. The man who, having been one of that happy brotherhood, leaves it, for it matters not what position, must often long in after days for the merry jest, the hearty, unaffected laugh, and as each old comrade's face rises before his mental vision, wish, with an ache in his heart, that he were back amongst them once more.

"Hae ye ony freens in the 'ill place' that ye're looking down there?"

Although the sergeants' mess is used by all warrant and non-commissioned officers (excepting, of course, those who have not been made paid lance-sergeants), it is essentially a bachelor institution. The married non-commissioned officer has his quarters, but the mess is the bachelor's home. Here he entertains his friends and dispenses hospitality in a way peculiar to the British sergeant, for who can excel him as a host?

The affairs of the mess are in the hands of a committee consisting of a president and two members, one of whom must be married and one unmarried. These officials are appointed quarterly, and are responsible to the commanding officer for the management of the mess. To them falls the duty of controlling the finances of the institution, and they are given a free hand as far as ordinary expenditure is concerned.

The details of food and drink are left in the hands of a caterer, who, according to reputation, should be a sergeant; and upon his worthy shoulders falls no small share of grumbling when the cooking or liquor is not all that could be desired. He is, however, usually an "old hand" with years of experience, and it is seldom that there is any ground for complaint as regards the menu he provides. As in the officers' mess, so in that of the sergeants the senior member is always responsible for the conduct of those present, and he is obliged at times to call his particular "chum" to order when, as will occasionally happen, he shows signs of "going large a bit."

Any sketch of "Tommy" in barracks would be incomplete without some allusion to "Mrs. Atkins." In most instances when her husband has married "with leave" she is much to be envied by her sisters who have selected their husbands from among men of more peaceful trades. She is provided with comfortable quarters in barracks and has many other privileges. Yes, during peace "Mrs. Tommy Atkins" has many comforts, but when her husband is summoned to answer his country's call and go to the front she has need of many kind friends to render her hard lot bearable.

Digitized by Google

AN extremely interesting book is that which Mr. H. W. Wilson, author of "Ironclads in Action," has written upon the Spanish-American War under the effective, but, I hope, not altogether accurate title of "The Downfall of Spain" (Sampson Low). I have not read anything so good upon the subject, and it is particularly gratifying to have a dispassionate narrative, embodying the essential information, from a competent hand. The literature which has already appeared in America relating to the war would almost fill a library, and it cannot have been an easy task to produce this lucid and accurate narrative. Mr. Wilson properly begins by dealing with the destruction of the "Maine." His conclusion is that the ship was actually blown up by a mine, but he attributes the action to the hand probably of a single traitor. I think he treats the report of the Spanish commission with too little respect, for undoubtedly there exists a strong opinion in some quarters contrary to the finding of the American Board, and it has not yet been explained how the first sharp report could proceed from an external explosion sufficiently powerful to break the back of the unfortunate ship, while the second and greater explosion undoubtedly was that of the ship's magazines. After discussing the relative values of the fleets, Mr. Wilson gives, in a very interesting form, the views expressed by Admiral Cervera and Captain Concas. Both were absolutely despondent, and the former, recognising that the fleet was doomed to destruction in West Indian waters, was apparently prepared to abandon Cuba rather than take the risk involved. A high degree of moral courage was exhibited by these brave officers in thus speaking, and perhaps few more chivalrous or gallant seamen ever walked the quarter-deck than unfortunate Admiral Cervera. But, probably, the very fact that the admiral held these views made him an unsuitable commander for the fleet. Mr. Wilson's account of the events in the Philippines and of the battle of Manila is particularly good, and, though he is full of praise for the courage of the Spaniards, he not unnaturally has censure for a certain lack of enterprise and want of training which they exhibited. His greater condemnation, however, is for the Spanish Government, which permitted things to be as they were. I do not gather that he has read the defence of Admiral Montojo by Captain Concas, published last year in Madrid. If he had done so, I think his view of the failure of the Spanish Cabinet would have been very greatly deepened.

* * * *

When Mr. Wilson comes to deal with the admirable training and conduct of the American fleet under Admirals Sampson and Dewey, he is properly full of enthusiasm. Equals in bravery, Admirals Sampson and Cervera were men of different mould. The former was eager even to attack Havana, and would have done so, for good or ill, if he had not been over-ruled. The movements of the fleet are very carefully described, and Admiral Schley meets with his share of censure for his unsatisfactory proceedings before Santiago was blockaded. When the Spanish Admiral arrived at that port he found empty bread-rooms and half-filled magazines, and felt that he had brought 2,000 more mouths to feed, and that his presence was more of a danger than a salvation. The letters which the admiral wrote and the views he expressed are well known, and it is not possible to read Mr. Wilson's pages without feeling the tragic character of his situation. One cannot but agree with the remark that General Blanco issued orders knowing little of the special circumstances which obtained at Santiago. Mr. Wilson appears to hold an open mind in regard to the wisdom of the day sortie, and sets forth ably the arguments on both sides. His description of the battle of Santiago is extremely good, and with the aid of his plans it is possible to follow almost every movement in the battle. Perhaps he has not read all the Spanish evidence, for although Captain Evans asserts that he could see no signs of any intention on the part of the Spaniards to use the ram or torpedo, Captain Eulate, of the "Viszcaya," expressly declares that he put over his helm with the intention of ramming the "Brooklyn," but that she used the same manœuvre in order to avoid him. I may remark, incidentally, that the defence of General Toral is extremely interesting, and that it embodies the opinion of Blanco, that "a place of arms once lost may be recovered, but that a squadron which perishes, perishes decisively"—a remark which he used to fortify his view that Cervera should issue from Santiago, for he seemed to think the operation was not a very difficult one.

* * * *

A brief chapter of technical deductions concludes this very interesting book, and Mr. Wilson remarks that the struggle is peculiarly instructive as showing the result of the control of navies by boards. He proceeds with an attempt to enforce some lessons in regard to our own Admiralty. "The truth is, that all sense of personal responsibility is lost in a board, and timidity almost invariably prevails"; and Mr. Wilson seeks justification for this view in the opposite excesses of rashness and caution on the part of Spaniards and Americans. It cannot, however, be said that our own Board of Admiralty stands condemned on these grounds, because, as is well known, the responsibility is ultimately vested in the First Lord, and the fault will be his if he does not use his power well. Neither, perhaps, is it altogether accurate to say that the tendency of our Admiralty Board is to make its admirals and commanders-in-chief mere puppets of which the strings are pulled from Whitehall. However, these questions are not intimately connected with the downfall of Spain, which, from the naval point of view, Mr. Wilson has discussed and described with very great competence, and in a manner which will add to his reputation. The book is very well illustrated.

From the war so well described, I must turn to that in which we are now engaged. Newspaper readers are no doubt at a loss to understand some facts presented to them, and Mr. Fisher Unwin has just published a booklet which he entitles "How to Read War News: A Vade Mecum of Notes and Hints" (1s.). The idea is to describe technical military terms, local, African, and Dutch phrases, and other special matters of interest. Undoubtedly the book will be useful, because it finds room to describe equally a Maxim gun and a Mauser rifle, the life and services of Sir Alfred Milner, Mr. Rhodes, and Lord Roberts, and the situation of places like Krugersdorp and Mafeking. We are told what are a "daal," a "dorp," a "drift," or so forth, but I looked in vain for "hoek," and failed to find that very interesting place Bushman's Hoek. It might have been better, too, instead of entering into doubtful disquisitions as to the status of the Naval lieutenant, for example, to tell us something about local forces—about the origin and constitution, let me say, of the Diamond Fields Artillery, the Natal Carbineers, or Thorneycroft's or Bethune's Horse. Perhaps in another edition something of this kind may be included.

* * * *

We have been hearing a good deal lately of "How Soldiers Fight," the title chosen for a new book by F. Norreys Connell (James Bowden, 3s. 6d.). Mr. Connell is undoubtedly a writer of great vigour, with a picturesque style, who throws himself with enthusiasm into his subject. He is very thorough-going, for he brings us up from Palæolithic times, or even from the Simian period, through the Bronze Age to the phalanx of the Iliad and the Legions of the Romans. There is a wonderful picture of a number of Roman soldiers on the back of an elephant crossing a river on a raft. I have no fault to find with Mr. Connell, except that he is apt to generalise too hastily and upon inadequate grounds. For example, he asserts that Southern peoples have never been able to aim correctly; and it is doubtful whether his similes are always appropriate. Thus he says: "Reduced to the simplest form of comparison Napoleon's cavalry rolled over the field of battle like assorted brazen balls showered forth profusely, and of which the gross weight was enormous, but liable each to be deflected or arrested by mere accidents of terrain, or even sundered through their interior jostling." The appreciation presented of foreign soldiers is good and striking, as is also the account given of the various characters of the three arms, and of their work in the field. Finally, there is a vigorous attempt to describe the battle of the future. Altogether it is a very interesting book, conveying much information, and it is extremely well illustrated by Messrs. Caton Woodville, Stanley L. Wood, W. H. Overend, and others.

* * * *

Those who are acquainted with the "Almanach fur die k. u. k. Kriegs-Marine," published by Gerold at Pola, will be glad to know that the issue for 1900 has appeared. The Austrian Navy is fortunate in finding official support for certain useful publications, and this admirable little volume is issued officially. It is a Naval pocket-book, containing admirable lists of the ships of the world, with ample particulars, and excellent tables of guns. I note some improvements in the new volume. Thus, as in the "Naval Annual," space is found to indicate the types of water-tube boilers. There are also excellent chapters on international law and Naval ceremonial. The diagrams of ships are very numerous, and the general arrangement leaves nothing to be desired. Absolute accuracy is impossible, but the mistakes are very few.

* * * *

There has been latterly so much of the blare of the trumpet and the roll of the drum in the organs of the press, that many familiar notes have been silenced by the martial din. Literature is all too heroic to tolerate much of its lighter vein, and this page has borne testimony to the public engrossment in warlike affairs. Yet I shall find space to allude to two good novels, very different in their character, but equally worth reading. "The Lost Emeralds of Zarinthia," by Henry Beauchamp (Sands), is a tale of mystery and adventure, with a complicated scheme arising out of a deep-laid plot, possessed of a touch of Boisgobey and Sherlock Holmes. Striking incidents and sudden developments, with a well-contrived love affair, make the story thoroughly readable and attractive, and the clever writer who hides his personality under the pseudonym of Henry Beauchamp desires no more than to interest and amuse. "Gilian the Dreamer," by Neil Munro (Isbister), depends almost wholly upon its style and upon the personality of a single character in its pages. The writing is delightful, for the author of "John Splendid" is a master of the pen, and many passages are exquisite. As for Gilian, he, too, is attractive, though singular. He is a selfish, introspective dreamer, heroic in petto, but a weakling in the larger world. The enthusiasm of the ideal being is lost in the action of the real man. Such characters are not uncommon, and are not confined to the Scotch scenes where we encounter Gilian. He loves as such youths do love, but fails to express his passion, and the adored being slips from his grasp. The development of the character is excellent, and power is displayed in other personages in the story; but the great charm of the book is in its polished and penetrating style.

"SEARCH-LIGHT."

Publishers' announcements and books for review should be addressed direct to the Editor of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED, 20, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden.

Digitized by Google

The Engagement ON THE Modder River.

TO STRENGTHEN THE FIGHTING LINE.
Reinforcements Advancing to the Front.

A LULL IN THE ACTION.
The Crew of a Naval Long Twelve Resting.

AFTER THE FIGHT.
The Boer Trenches.

LOOKING OUT FOR THE ENEMY.
Scouts on the Bank of the Riet River.

TO SUCCOUR THE WOUNDED.
Bearer Parties of the R.A.M.C. in the Field.

From Photographs Taken by Earl De la Warr, Special War Correspondent of the "Globe."

Digitized by Google

The City of London Imperial Volunteers.

THE EMBARKATION.
The City of London Imperial Volunteers Marching on Board from the Train.

ON BOARD THE "GARTH CASTLE."
The Corps Listening to the Lord Mayor's Speech.

Photos. Copyright. A HOBBY HORSE. Cribb.
For Training Purposes on the Voyage Out.

IT is the proud boast of the City of London that whatever it does it does well, and assuredly the formation and despatch of this special corps of Volunteers for South African service has been no exception to the pleasing rule. It occurred to the City that such a corps was desirable, and within a week or two not only was the corps raised and equipped, but a first draft 500 strong was already on its way to the Cape. Funds? Well, of course, funds are wanted for this sort of thing, but there happens to be generally some loose cash lying about the City, and no difficulty arose on that score. In the course of a little conversation at a meeting of the Common Council a trifle of about £50,000 was raised to go on with, and since then a good many cheques have been drawn for the same object. Men and officers? It is not too much to say that, if half-a-dozen picked corps had been wanted, they would have been as readily available. In fact there has been an embarras de richesse of highly-qualified candidates for the C.L.I.V.

It is unnecessary to recapitulate the numerous details which have appeared during the past few weeks with reference to the personnel and equipment of the C.L.I.V. But it may be briefly recalled that the corps consists of an artillery battery, an infantry battalion, and a mounted infantry section. The battery is a four-gun one, armed with Messrs. Vickers and Maxim's quick-firing 12½-pounder guns, the only one of the kind in this country. It is officered and manned from the Honourable Artillery Company. The infantry battalion is commanded by the Earl of Albemarle, and the mounted infantry section by Colonel Cholmondeley, of the London Rifle Brigade. Among other staff appointments may be mentioned that of Captain W. Triggs, retired list, Army Pay Department, who has accepted the post of paymaster of the corps. Captain Triggs is favourably known throughout the Service as manager of the Army Assurance Association, an institution to whose good work we have had occasion more than once to refer in these columns. The C.L.I.V. as a whole are commanded by Colonel W. H Mackinnon, whose name is a "household word" in the Home District, in which he has had extended staff service as A.A.G.

The send-off of the first draft of the C.L.I.V. to South Africa, which is happily illustrated in the accompanying pictures, was a function in which ceremony and enthusiasm were delightfully blended. The "Lord Mayor's Own," as the corps is popularly called, had, prior to its departure from town, been most hospitably entertained at the Inner Temple by the "Devil's Own."

Among the pictures will be noted one of a hobby horse for the use of the corps during the voyage, the idea being that it would be serviceable in teaching even good riders how to mount and dismount while carrying a rifle These horses were made to the order of the War Office, at twenty-four hours' notice, by Messrs. Heath and George, the well-known manufacturers of gymnastic apparatus.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Operating on the Orange River.

TO THE MANNER BORN.
Australian Mounted Infantry and Their Horses.

A PARCEL FOR DE AAR.
A 6-in. Naval Gun being Landed from the "Scot."

AN ARMY SERVICE CORPS CART.
Specially Adapted for South African Transport.

From Photos.

BELMONT STATION.
The Most Important Point between De Aar and the Modder River.

IN the preoccupation caused by events in other quarters, the public has perhaps given too little attention to the long line of communications which stretches between Cape Town and the great entrenched camp at Modder River. To some extent this is as might have been expected, since considerable reticence has been displayed by the authorities with regard to the disposition of troops on this line, and it is very difficult to form any accurate estimate of what is the actual strength at either De Aar, the base of Lord Methuen's advance for the relief of Kimberley, or Belmont, which, since the battle of Modder River, has been a place of singular importance, both from an offensive and defensive standpoint.

As a rule, a station on the line of communications gives very little opportunity for an offensive movement. But it was from Belmont that one of the neatest and most successful operations of the campaign was carried out under Colonel Pilcher, of the Bedfordshires, a special service officer of whom we are likely to hear a good deal in the not very distant future, if opportunity is forthcoming for the display of his really remarkable abilities. The capture of the Boer laager at Sunnyside, on New Year's Day, was a piece of work which was simply faultless, both in conception and execution, and was followed some ten days later by an extended reconnaissance in co-operation with General Babington's Cavalry Brigade from Modder River, the results of which may have an important bearing on the future advance upon Bloemfontein.

Among the considerable body of troops ranged along this line, the Australian and Canadian contingents must be accorded an honoured place. It will be remembered that a strong body of mounted Queenslanders and Canadian infantry accompanied Pilcher against Sunnyside, and distinguished themselves greatly by their coolness and handiness under fire.

The accompanying pictures are all self explanatory. Some of them are highly instructive, particularly, perhaps, those showing a 6-in. gun being landed from the "Scot," and the class of Army Service Corps cart in use in this particular camp.

"KITTLE CATTLE."
Drilling Mule Teams at De Aar.

"FOR THE SAKE OF THE HORSES."
Landing of a Field Veterinary Hospital from India.

FOR THE LINE OF COMMUNICATIONS.
The Shropshire Light Infantry Going North.

By Our Special Correspondent.

BAGGAGE FOR THE CAMP.
At Belmont Station on the Arrival of the Cape Town Train.

Digitized by Google

The Battle of Colenso.

THE EYES AND EARS OF THE PRESS.
Special Correspondents Watching the Fight.

WITH HILDYARD'S BRIGADE.
Some of the Supports Taking Cover.

With Buller in Natal.

THE RED CROSS IN ACTION.
Bringing Up the Ambulance Waggon.

AMBULANCE PARTIES AT WORK.
The R.A.M.C. Bringing in Wounded.

A 47-in. IN ACTION.
The Bluejackets Clear the Enemy out of Fort Wylie.

From Photographs Taken by Our Special Correspondent.

Digitized by Google

In the Central Theatre of War.

ON THE LINE OF COMMUNICATIONS.
A Temporary Home on the Veldt.

PRINCE ALFRED'S GUARDS STARTING.
A Trainful of Courage

TROOPS FOR THE FRONT.
From Our Base of Operations the Sea.

Photos. Copyright. Goldsbrough.

WHILE the struggle has been hot at the two extremes of our line, it has been a day of little things, comparatively speaking, in the centre. We say comparatively speaking, because Colonel Pilcher's first raid against the Boers would have been counted a rather considerable operation on the North-West Frontier, while the manœuvres of General French would deserve the name even better. As for the Stormberg affair, if the like had taken place in the Pathan country, it would have shaken all India. But all things are comparative, and in this war, which is no longer little, and, as we now see, ought never to have been so ranked, these movements, events, and fights are overshadowed. Yet their real is far greater than their apparent importance. We have to remember that our enemies have counted on being largely supported from within our borders. Some help they have got, but not what they expected. That this has been the case is largely due—in fact, may well be altogether due—to the check which the officers we have named, and the forces with them, who are largely colonials, have kept on the ill-disposed Dutch Afrikander element. Colonel Pilcher's well-delivered blow helped to prove that an insurgent movement within the Cape would not necessarily bring opponents into the field who are of very formidable quality. His colonials, and the regular soldiers whom his direction has taught the ways of irregular war, proved themselves better men at partisan fighting than the commando they broke up. The sweeping reconnaissance in which he has taken part with the cavalry from the Modder, again, is a sign that in the open the enemy is by no means venturous. Once turned out of the kopjes which he uses so astutely, and the trenches he makes indefatigably and cleverly, the Boer may not be found a very tough customer. We have discovered that he can attack when he thinks he sees a good occasion, but it is not his favourite method, and he does not do it well enough, as a rule, though Majuba is always quotable to show that he can be superior even in that line in a happy hour. Meanwhile, he prefers on the whole to stand on the defensive, though not in a stupid way. Certainly he has given Colonel Pilcher, and the other officers whose function it is to keep the railway clear behind the camp on the Modder, much less trouble than was expected. Except one futile dab at the station at Enslin, he seems to have done practically nothing in that line, and when General Babington and Colonel Pilcher look into his country they do not find him. He tries to slip away from General French. In that art he is clearly very superior, and it is not one to be despised. A force which is being continually threatened on its flanks, and which is not prepared to make counter attacks, must keep a very sharp look-out, and must have its mind made up as to what it is going to do next, if it is not to be caught at a disadvantage. Still, with the best management in the world you cannot go on slipping away for ever. The time comes when you must either run for good or stand and fight. Even running away for good is not always possible if your enemy is alert, for he may cut your line of retreat, and then, as Marmion said before Flodden, it is "fight he must." Till that happier day arrives it is a business of dry manœuvring. It is upon this duty that our friends, home and colonial, with French and Gatacre have been engaged. It is more arduous and necessary than showy. When properly done it is very brilliant, but its merits become conspicuous only in the results. Meanwhile, Prince Alfred's Guards and the other forces there are leading the life of the camp in all its beauty. We see them here on the veldt and on their way to it, with the sea as the background and base of operations. One satisfactory feature there is about this war. With us it has often been the case that where the sea ended we found it difficult to be strong. The trouble with us has generally been to find the means of "stretching the trident of Neptune over the land." We have in Europe for some centuries been able to do so only by securing allies. In South Africa we have experienced something of the old inability, and the allies have again been needed; but this time they have been of our own blood, which is a vast change for the better, and a hopeful one, for when the scattered divisions of the Empire have filled up, we shall be able to show front on the most distant frontiers, and to more numerous enemies than the Boers.

Digitized by Google

HORSES AT THE TROUGH.
Thirst Assuaged.

MULES AT WATER.
Obstinate but Indispensable

From Photos.

OFFICERS OF THE ROYAL IRISH RIFLES—ROUGH AND READY.

By Our Own Correspondent.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

IT is now practically certain that by the time this number is published the relief of Ladysmith will have been accomplished, and an end put to a state of affairs of a most unsatisfactory, not to say humiliating, description. Since November 2 Sir George White's garrison, comprising between 9,000 and 10,000 splendid troops, and including a large force of cavalry and some forty guns, has been enclosed in a ring of fire from heavy artillery, and latterly, at any rate, must have suffered a good deal from diminishing supplies and sickness. The bombardment has been nearly continuous, and on at least two occasions, namely, November 9 and January 6, very determined efforts were made by the enemy to carry the town by assault. But the garrison has held out manfully, winning the admiration of every honest critic by its combined fortitude in resistance, and its readiness to sally forth and strike a blow whenever a chance presented itself. The memory of the disaster of Nicholson's Nek has been well-nigh wiped out by the defence of Ladysmith; and Buller's repulse on the Tugela on the 15th ult. has been finely compensated by the able and far-seeing plan he has been carrying out for a second advance to the relief of the beleaguered town.

The story of the operations to this end is a stirring one. The advance commenced on the 10th — the very day that Lord Roberts arrived at Cape Town—Lord Dundonald moving forward with the Mounted Infantry and one battery to Springfield Bridge on the Little Tugela, fifteen miles from Frere, where all the direct roads crossing the Upper Tugela converge. The river having risen, the Boers had left the south bank and crossed over, evidently intending to return, as they had entrenched many of the hills. Dundonald, however, skilfully prevented this, and at the same time secured a passage for our infantry by seizing Mount Alice, a high hill eight miles from Springfield, immediately above Potgieter's Drift, from which a road runs through comparatively flat country to Ladysmith, twenty miles distant. As a counter to this bold move, the Boers began to arrive rapidly from the east with waggons and guns, and busied themselves in entrenching the kopjes opposite Potgieter's Drift, and Spion Kop, a hill overlooking the river to the west.

Meanwhile, the infantry had commenced an important movement from Frere, of which the object was soon clearly apparent. The advancing force comprised the whole of Sir Charles Warren's Division, and the brigades under Hildyard, Lyttelton, and Hart, General Barton's Brigade being left behind to watch and hold the Boers at Colenso. Upon Sir Charles Warren was to devolve the important task of carrying out a great turning movement on the west, while Buller, having under him Hildyard's, Lyttelton's, and Hart's Brigades, superintended the attack on the enemy's position opposite Potgieter's Drift. The infantry advance was an extremely difficult one, owing to the two days' heavy rain which had preceded it, and which rendered the roads well-nigh impassable, and converted even streamlets into rushing torrents. A train of transport some miles long accompanied the troops, and it could only have been by almost superhuman efforts that the force contrived to reach Springfield in the three days allotted to the movement. Happily the men were in splendid health and spirits, and further stimulated by a spirited order from Sir Redvers Buller, beginning "We are going to the relief of our comrades in Ladysmith. There will be no turning back!" With such an appeal from such a leader ringing in his ears the British soldier was not likely to be deterred by the worst of bad roads or the most torrential of swollen streams.

At Springfield preparations were made for crossing the river. To facilitate this the ferry punt at Potgieter's Drift was badly wanted, but unfortunately it had been recently used by the Boers and was now on the other side, to some extent covered by fire from the Boer positions on the kopjes fronting the drift. As usual in British military operations, the occasion produced the man, and Lieutenant Carlyle with five men of the South African Light Horse swam across the river under fire and brought back the punt.

On the 16th, 17th, and 18th a crossing was effected, Lyttelton's Brigade passing over at Potgieter's Drift and Warren's Division at Trichardt's Drift, about five miles further west. Some idea of the magnitude of this operation may be gathered from the fact that the bridge at Trichardt's Drift was a pontoon one, 85-yds. long, evidently constructed by the Engineers for this purpose. To cover the crossing two Naval 4·7-in. guns and 12-pounders posted on Mount Alice kept the enemy's attention engaged, and a further bombardment of the Boer trenches was carried out by a howitzer battery, which crossed with Lyttelton's Brigade, and took up a position on three small kopjes two miles north of the river, known as One Tree Hill Farm.

On the 18th, Lord Dundonald, whose activity and shrewdness throughout this phase were most conspicuous, worked round still further to the west and engaged the Boers not far from Acton Homes, being himself reinforced by a detachment of the 1st Royal Dragoons from Warren's Division. We had two men of the King's Royal Rifle Corps (Mounted Infantry) killed in this engagement, and an officer and man of the Imperial Light Horse wounded, but a loss of twenty killed and wounded, including a field-cornet, was inflicted on the Boers, and fifteen were taken prisoners. After the fight Lord Dundonald occupied a kopje and held the position, thus materially contributing to the success of the turning movement in which Sir Charles Warren was by this time busily engaged.

On the 20th, General Clery, with a part of Warren's Division, came into action against the Boers near Venter's Spruit, which is close to Trichardt's Drift, by which Warren's force had crossed. The action was a long and warmly-contested one, lasting for thirteen hours, and resulting in casualties on our side to the extent of nearly 300 killed and wounded. By judicious use of his artillery Clery worked his way up towards the enemy's main position, winning ridge after ridge, and eventually bivouacking on the ground he had gained. Meanwhile in front of Potgieter's Drift Lyttelton's Brigade made a reconnaissance with the double object of ascertaining the strength of the enemy's position and of relieving the pressure upon Warren and Clery by keeping the enemy in their trenches, and preventing them from reinforcing their western positions.

On Sunday and Monday Warren was busily engaged, having swung forward his left so as to partially envelope the enemy, who held a long ridge four miles north-west of Trichardt's Drift, and ascending from the river. The ground was very difficult, and the fighting all up hill; but substantial progress was made, and it became increasingly evident that there was, indeed, to be "no turning back."

While these singularly eventful movements were taking place in Natal there had been a certain lull in the operations of both French and Gatacre, the latter being still without sufficient reinforcements to do more than move a small force from Bushman's Hoek to Loperberg, while French was apparently meditating a more decided attack on the Colesberg position of the enemy, having now received substantial assistance in the shape of two 5-in. howitzers. On the 19th he advanced eastward, still further threatening the enemy's communications, and it is quite possible that we may shortly hear of his closing in upon the Boer position, and, with the aid of his cavalry and horse artillery, cutting off every avenue of escape.

At Modder River nothing seems to have been attempted of late beyond a demonstration in force, which revealed the presence of a large force of the enemy in the direction of Jacobsdal.

Kimberley continues to hold its own, and communication with it has been established on a better footing from Honeynestkloof, where a detached post has been established. That amazing little place, Mafeking, too, was still safe on the 6th inst., although the fact that the garrison was beginning to be pressed for supplies appeared to be indicated by more wants among the native population, who were said to be suffering greatly from hunger.

Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener have commenced their new régime by a very wise proceeding, the recognition, namely, of the value of the colonial forces as worthy to be dealt with on an altogether different footing from that on which they have been hitherto employed. As an initial step, Colonel Brabant, a well-known colonial officer, has been appointed a brigadier-general, and it has been intimated that a separate colonial division will be formed and placed under his command. A further irregular force is to be raised, and the second and third regiments of the South African Light Horse are to be rechristened Roberts's and Kitchener's Horse respectively.

At home there has been no appreciable falling off in either the support of the various war funds or the rush to join the Volunteer contingents which are being despatched under various "schemes." Last Saturday the second draft of the City of London Imperial Volunteers, some 800 strong, left Southampton amid enthusiasm fully as great as that which marked the previous "send-off." The "Special Corps" for gentlemen willing to defray their own expenses and devote their pay to the Widows' and Orphans' Fund is also filling well, and the late Commander-in-Chief has intimated his wish that it should bear the name "The Duke of Cambridge's Own."

An Eighth Division is now in course of preparation, but at the time of writing final orders had not been issued for calling out Reservists and otherwise completing the arrangements for mobilisation.

Digitized by Google

Deeds of Valour.

By Colonel S. Dewe White.

THE deeds of valour about to be described are taken from the stirring events of the great Sepoy revolt and civil insurrection, in which terrific and tremendous struggle we very nearly lost India, our rule there being secured by a variety of providential interpositions, and by the skill and gallantry of our officers and soldiers. During the two years' fighting that ensued (in which I served from beginning to end) many brave officers and soldiers won that distinguished badge of valour, the Victoria Cross. It is not, however, my intention to narrate individual acts of courage, but rather those of collective bodies of men. The awful and indiscriminate massacre of the British by the mutineers at Delhi (May 11, 1857), and the proclamation of a native King of India, were the occasion of prodigies of valour. Out of these I have selected a glorious deed, for assuredly the gallant defence of the magazine was as desperate a feat of gallantry as ever occurred. The band of heroes consisted of Lieutenant George Willoughby, of the Bengal Artillery, in charge of the magazine, assisted by Lieutenants Forrest and Raynor, of the Ordnance Commissariat Department, and six European conductors and sergeants. The rest of the magazine party were natives, who were all traitors. These nine brave Britishers at once braced themselves for the terrific combat, resolving to defend their post with their lives, which they were ready to sacrifice in the execution of their duty. The gallant Willoughby at once closed and barricaded the gate of the magazine. Two 6-pounder guns, doubly charged with grape, were placed inside the gate. One of the heroic band stood by with lighted port-fire in hand, ready to discharge the guns full upon such assailants as should attempt to force the gate. A train was next laid to the powder magazine, with a view to its explosion in case of extremity. After the completion of these arrangements a summons to surrender came to them from the rebel King of Delhi, a demand which was treated by our intrepid countrymen with the scorn and contempt it deserved. The King now threatened the magazine with assault, and sent scaling ladders from the palace; whereupon the mutineers came swarming over the walls, and then the magazine gun lascars and others immediately deserted. Grim death stared our brave fellows in the face. How did they like the prospect? Did they, in the hope of saving their precious lives, think of hoisting the flag of surrender? Not a bit of it! This little band of heroes preferred to die rather than surrender to rebels. So they undauntedly poured upon their assailants a murderous fire of grape from their guns, which was continued as long as a single shot remained. Then, after enduring a galling musketry fire, which wounded some of them, and further resistance being found impossible, the train was fired, and a few seconds afterwards there was a tremendous explosion, which gave to several hundreds of the mutineers their merited quietus. The struggle was over. Nothing was left to these brave men but flight. Though not one of that gallant band of nine heroes expected to get away with his life, yet four of them, stunned and bewildered and wounded, succeeded by God's mercy in effecting their escape from the ruins. Lieutenants Willoughby and Forrest, who were badly wounded, fled to the main guard, but Willoughby appears afterwards to have been killed in attempting to get to Meerut. Lieutenant Raynor and Conductor Buckley, the latter of whom fired the train and was shot in the arm, took a different direction, and eventually reached Meerut, a distance of forty miles. Scully and his gallant comrades were, alas! never seen alive again.

At the Assault on Delhi.

The second deed of valour about to be related was an instance of sublime heroism probably unparalleled in the annals of war, and one that I confidently affirm has never been outdone by any soldiers in any age of the world's history. It occurred on September 14, 1857, in the critical assault at Delhi, which was only partially successful, for of the four attacking columns there had been two failures. The first, under the command of Brigadier-General Nicholson, sustained a reverse, and that splendid officer was mortally wounded. A still greater mishap had attended the largest party of stormers, led by my friend Major Charles Reid—now (1899) General Sir Charles Reid, G.C.B.—a gallant officer, who deserved the Victoria Cross for his bravery, but who on this occasion, being baulked of success by circumstances beyond his control, was dangerously wounded by a bullet going through the side of his head, which led to confusion and the retirement of his column, which had lost almost a third of its numbers.

Under such disheartening circumstances there was grave cause for anxiety. It was at this juncture that the troops under the command of that brave man and excellent officer, Brigadier Hope Grant, performed a wonderful act of devoted heroism whilst creating a diversion to cover Reid's disaster. The Cavalry Brigade were now called upon to exhibit that most difficult of all phases of valour—passive courage—exposing themselves to be shot down by a concealed fire without being able to retaliate, to lose their lives in obedience to orders without the stimulating excitement of fighting and giving blow for blow to a most hated foe. The mutineers were perfectly detested by us at this time. This quiescent valour under a deadly fire is the severest test a man's courage can be put to. It was a grand sight to see the British cavalry drawn up in battle array, stern and immovable, submitting calmly to be fired at without being able to return the compliment.

When Brigadier Grant commended this sturdy gallantry, the men replied that they were ready to do the like again. Forty-two men and six officers were struck down. The Artillery, under Tombs, were equally exposed to the pitiless fire of the enemy, and, animated by the example of their gallant commander, were ready to face any danger. The Punjabees, viz., Watson's Cavalry and Probyn's Horse, also emulated the example of their white comrades, the 9th Lancers and the Artillery, and bore unflinchingly the merciless fire. "For two long hours," says Kaye, in his history of the Sepoy War, "the brigade stood firm as a rock, and, as one after another fell riddled with grape and canister, there was no wavering in their ranks; every man pressed his knees more tightly on his saddle and took a firmer grip of his reins. There was nothing else in their demeanour to distinguish this grand scene of defiance and endurance from an ordinary cavalry parade." After a while the enemy's fire began to slacken, and Brigadier Grant, by orders of General Wilson, withdrew his troops to Ludlow Castle. They had done good service, for their presence prevented the mutineers advancing along the open ground to make a flank attack.

Digitized by Google

"C. O. R."—It has been computed from reliable statistics that if it were necessary to put the whole world under arms, every country contributing to its fullest possible capacity, the number of men in the field would be about 45,000,000. The war strength of the world in time of peace is roughly 5,250,000, and of these 4,250,000 represent the armies of Europe. This continent could put in the field if required nearly 16,500,000 trained soldiers, while its whole available fighting force would total to 34,000,000 men.

* * * *

"AYLESBURY."—Buckinghamshire is not represented in the Army at all. The only regiment bearing the name of the county is the yeomanry corps known as the Royal Bucks Hussars, of which Lord Chesham is colonel. The county is one of importance, and is not without its military traditions. I am glad to see that Buckinghamshire men mean to alter this state of things, and that a movement is on foot with this object in view. The leading part taken by Lord Chesham in raising a regiment of yeomanry for service in South Africa must be very gratifying to the county.

* * * *

"AUDREY."—It is a pleasure to find that ladies read and enjoy the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED, and I am very glad to answer your question. Osprey feathers are no longer to figure in officers' helmets. According to an Army Order recently issued, ostrich feathers will in future replace the ospreys. The new plumes will be similar in colour to the old, except in the case of those of the King's Royal Rifles, which will be scarlet instead of black as formerly. The stems carrying the plumes fit into specially designed sockets. Three gilt flames form the socket for the Royal Artillery, a gilt ball with four upright leaves for Hussars, a bronze corded ball for the Scottish Rifles, and upright leaves and flames for other rifle regiments. The plumes are 15-in. high for the Royal Artillery and 7-in. high for rifle regiments.

* * * *

"FALSE COLOURS."—The use of false colours in time of war was much discussed during the "Alabama" controversy, but has always been held to be a legitimate stratagem. Maritime law, however, forbids firing under false colours, and officers infringing this regulation are liable to be treated as pirates. The ancient rule as stated by Valin was that the "affirming gun" could be fired only under the national flag, but this decision has not met with general approval; it is, however, universally admitted that actual hostilities can only be carried on under the correct ensigns of the belligerent ships.

* * * *

"M. C. K." (Eltham.)—"Faugh-a-Ballagh"—clear the way—was the shout with which the old 87th—now the 1st Princess Victoria's Royal Irish Fusiliers—rushed to the charge at Barrosa, where the old corps covered itself with glory. All through this campaign the regiment was commanded by Major Gough, whose family motto is "Faugh-a-Ballagh," and the then major is the Hugh Gough, the hero of the first China War, the Gwalior Campaign, and the first and second Sikh Wars, whose military prowess earned him successively a baronetcy, barony, and viscountcy. It is characteristic of Her Majesty's gracious thought for her soldiers that she should take the very moment when this splendid battalion, through no fault of its own, is captured and imprisoned in Pretoria to add to its colours the legend that recalls its glorious career during the Peninsula, by reason of which, ever since those days, the regiment has been known in the Service as the "Faugh-a-Ballaghs."

* * * *

"PUZZLED."—It is difficult to distinguish the regiments to which officers belong when they are clad in the fighting khaki uniforms. But if you look closely you will see that there is one distinguishing mark that can be easily detected. This is the puggaree round the helmet. Headquarter staff officers have crimson twisted through their puggarees, divisional staff officers a dark blue twist, and brigade staff officers a dark red twist. The cavalry staff wear an all-red puggaree, Artillery staff all blue, and Engineers' staff a red and blue puggaree. Ordinary cavalry officers have a green twist in the puggaree, the Medical Corps a puce-coloured patch on the puggaree, and the Army Service Corps a dark blue patch. Distinguishing patches are also worn by the privates of each regiment. These patches are of the same colour as the twist of the officers, and are worn on the left side of the puggaree.

* * * *

"LETTERS OF MARQUE."—These were first issued at the commencement of the fifteenth century. The origin of the practice was that if a foreign prince or state seized or despoiled the goods of English subjects the king made reprisals upon the goods of subjects of the offending nation resident within the realm, or granted licences to his aggrieved subjects to recoup their losses by the same means. In this sense letters of marque have fallen into disuse, the term being now limited to licences granted to privateers in time of war; on the one hand, the captors are allowed to retain a portion of the booty to indemnify themselves for risk and expenditure; on the other, they are usually compelled to deposit substantial security that they will conduct the cruise according to the laws and usages of war and bring their prizes in for adjudication. Letters of marque have been forfeited for misconduct, e.g., for firing on a prize, entailing loss of life, after the vessel had surrendered. The distinguishing mark of an English privateer was the Red Ensign, bearing the Union in canton at the upper corner, no other flag or pendant being allowed. The term is limited to licences granted against a foreign enemy, those issued during the American Revolution authorising privateers against the colonists being styled "Letters of Permission."

"KNIGHT OF WINDSOR."—The Order of Merit is to the native soldier of the Indian Army what the V.C. is to his British comrade. It is a star of eight points, 1½-in. in diameter. The centre is blue enamel, thereon being two crossed swords within a circle, and the legend "Reward of Valour," and around all a laurel wreath. In the third class, the star, swords, legend, and wreath are all in silver. In the second class, the star is in silver, but the swords, legend, and wreath are in gold. In the first class all four are in gold. The third class is given for any conspicuous act of gallantry. Members of the third can win to the second class by a second recommendation for gallant conduct, and similarly from the second to the first. The ribbon is dark blue with red borders. Why it was called the Order of Merit, only the Government of India knows. Order of Valour would have been far more appropriate. It was established in 1837, was the first Order Her Majesty created, and of the prototype of the Victoria Cross. It is open to every class alike. Admission to the Order entitles a member to receive extra pay or pension by one-third in the third class, two-thirds in the second, and the entire amount in the first. The third class of the Order is much commoner than the V.C., but the second and first are very rare. To-day the men on the active list who hold the second class of the Order of Merit number not more than a dozen. Of holders of the first class of the Order there are nine, all on the pensioned list, and of these seven are old Mutiny veterans. The pride of the Order is that grand old soldier, Kishanbir Nagarkoti, who comparatively recently retired as a subadar from the 1st Battalion 5th Ghoorkas. During the Afghan War of 1878-80, he by three acts of conspicuous gallantry won his way to the first class of the Order of Merit. In 1888, during the time of the Black Mountain Expedition, he was again, for the fourth time, recommended in despatches for having displayed conspicuous gallantry at the time of the death of Major Battye. No further promotion in the Order was possible for him, but he was granted the unique distinction of having conferred on him a gold bar to wear on the ribbon of his star.

* * * *

THE horses which the omnibus companies and other large firms recently handed over to the Government were inspected first by members of the remount staff, and fit animals only were enlisted, so to speak. The horses are available under special arrangements between the owners and the War Office. Those who are willing to supply horses in case of emergency enter into an agreement with the Inspector-General of Remounts. The contract is signed by both parties—the latter, of course, acting on behalf of the Government—and the price to be paid for each animal when required is stated. For each horse registered the owners receive a sum of 10s. per annum, and they are bound to furnish within forty-eight hours after receiving notice all the horses named in the agreement or pay a penalty of £50.

* * * *

"FAIR PLAY."—In reply to your questions, the cost of uniform, equipment, etc., for the Royal Marine Light Infantry, is assessed by the Royal Marine Offices at £80, which sum has to be deposited by a candidate with the Admiralty before joining the Royal Naval College, Greenwich. As a matter of fact, if the articles be selected carefully the whole of this sum need not be spent in the first year of service, and part may be reserved by the officer to help him in obtaining the further outfit required on joining his headquarter division, but much depends on individual taste. The appendix of the "Quarterly Navy List" gives very full information on this head, and also particulars of pay, pension, etc. Also the Army and Navy Stores ordinary catalogue gives the cost of different articles, and any Service outfitter would be pleased to furnish an estimate. The pay in the Royal Marine Light Infantry is the same as that for officers of infantry of the line, a table of which is given on page 217 of "Whitaker's Almanack" for 1900, or in the "Quarterly Navy List." A second lieutenant receives 5s. 3d. a day, rising gradually to 18s. a day for a lieutenant-colonel after thirty years' service, but extra pay and allowances are given in this, as in other services, for extra work or special conditions of employment. The number of vacancies half-yearly averages about ten, but depends on the varying flow of promotion, and has been limited to three or four, or has risen to twenty. An officer in the Royal Marine Light Infantry always has combatant Army rank, but can only be transferred to the Army in special cases to join the Service Corps, or for colonial or Indian service. On passing the Staff College he is eligible for Army Staff employment, but if so employed he remains a Marine officer and is merely "seconded," i.e., made supernumerary to the establishment of the corps, while actually holding the appointment, and afterwards reverts to his regimental position and rank.

* * * *

A CAVALRY Brigade is a mixed force, consisting of three cavalry regiments, one battery of Royal Horse Artillery, and two companies of mounted infantry. Each of the brigades, however, comprising Lieutenant-General French's Division now in South Africa has attached to it double that quantity of mounted infantry, with two machine-gun sections (four guns). The non-combatant portion of the brigade includes an ammunition column, a supply column, a bearer company, and a field hospital. The force takes the field with 114 officers, 2,383 of other ranks, and 2,448 horses; three officers and 242 of other ranks are left at the base. A company of mounted infantry consists of one captain, four subalterns, 131 of other ranks, and 142 horses, excluding ten dismounted men, namely, one saddler, five batmen, two cooks, and two waggon men.

THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar, under Methuen.

Brigade Commanders: Major-Generals Sir H. E. Colvile, Hector Macdonald, and R. Pole-Carew. Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Brabazon.

CAVALRY
2nd Dragoons.
9th Lancers.
12th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
Horse—G and P Batteries.
Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th Batteries.
Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS
7th (Field) Co.
8th (Railway) Co.
11th (Field) Co.
29th (Fortress) Co.
31st (Fortress) Co.
Two Sections 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Balloon Section.
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY
3rd Grenadiers.
1st Coldstreams.
2nd Coldstreams.
1st Scots Guards.
1st Argyll and Sutherland.
2nd Seaforths.
2nd Black Watch.
1st Highland L.I.
1st Northumberlands.
2nd Northamptons.
1st Gordons.
2nd Yorkshire L.I.
1st N. Lancashire (half battalion in Kimberley).
2nd Cornwall L.I.
1st Munster Fusiliers.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Rimington's Scouts.
Queensland Mounted Infantry.
Canadian Infantry.

II.—Cape Colony. All Troops in and South of De Aar, on line Cape Town to De Aar.

Lieutenant-General commanding line of communications: Sir F. W. E. F. Forestier-Walker.

ARTILLERY
Horse—U Battery.
Field—4th, 38th, 65th, 76th, 81st, 82nd Batteries.
Garrison—15th, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division (Siege Train).

ENGINEERS
6th (Fortress) Co.
20th (Field) Co.
37th (Field) Co.
38th (Field) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Field Park.
Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY
1st Welsh.
2nd Royal Lancaster.
2nd Royal Warwicks.
1st Royal Irish.
2nd Shropshire L.I.
2nd Wiltshire.
2nd Worcester.
2nd East Kent.
1st Oxford L.I.
1st West Riding.
2nd Gloucester.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Duke of Edinburgh's Rifles (Cape).
Cape Town Highlanders.
S. African Light Horse (part).
Victorian Mounted Infantry.
S. Australian Mounted Infantry.
W. Australian Mounted Infantry.
Tasmanian Mounted Infantry.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Naauwpoort under French.

Commanding Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Babington.

CAVALRY
Household Regiment.
6th Dragoon Guards.
6th Dragoons.
10th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—O and R. Batteries.
Field—20th Battery.

ENGINEERS
10th (Railway) Co.
26th (Field) Co.
42nd (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Div. Telegraph Batn.

INFANTRY
1st Suffolk.
1st Essex.
1st Yorkshire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Prince Alfred's Volunteer Guards (Cape).
1st City (Grahamstown) Volntrs.
New South Wales Lancers.

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY
Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS
12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY
2nd Irish Rifles.
2nd Northumberland.
1st Royal Scots.
2nd Berkshire.
1st Derbyshire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Cape Mounted Rifles.
Det. Cape Mounted Police.
Frontier Mounted Rifles.
Kaffrarian Rifles.
Brabant's Horse.

V.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

Divisional and Brigade Commanders: Lieutenant-Generals Sir F. Clery and Sir C. Warren; Major-Generals Hildyard, Lyttelton, Hart, and Barton. Cavalry Brigade: Lord Dundonald.

CAVALRY
1st Dragoons.
13th Hussars.
14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 66th, 73rd Batteries.
Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS
17th (Field) Co.
45th (Steam Road Transport) Co.
"A" Pontoon Troop.
Balloon Section.

INFANTRY
1st Border.
2nd Devon.
2nd West York.
2nd West Surrey.
2nd East Surrey.
1st Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Scots Fusiliers.
2nd Royal Fusiliers.
2nd Scottish Rifles.
1st Durham L.I.
3rd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Rifle Brigade.
2nd Somerset L.I.
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
1st Connaught Rangers.
1st Dublin Fusiliers.
2nd Dorsetshire.
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
1st South Lancashire.
2nd Middlesex.
2nd Bedfords.
1st York and Lancaster.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Natal Naval Volunteers.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Durban Light Infantry.
Bethune's Mounted Infantry.
Thorneycroft's Mntd. Infantry.
Imperial Light Infantry.

VI.—Natal, beleaguered in Ladysmith under White.

Brigade Commanders: Major-General F. Howard. Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Brocklehurst.

CAVALRY
5th Dragoon Guards.
5th Lancers.
18th Hussars.
19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 10 Battery.*

ENGINEERS
23rd (Field) Company, Balloon Section, Headquarters and Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
1st Liverpool.
1st Devon.
1st Leicester.
1st Gloucester.†
1st King's Royal Rifles.
2nd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Manchester.
2nd Gordons.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.†
2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
2nd Rifle Brigade.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Border Mounted Rifles.
Natal Field Artillery.
Imperial Light Horse.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Natal Mounted Police (Det.)

* Surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

† Headquarters surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY
16th Lancers.
7th Dragoon Guards.
17th Lancers.
8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—A, J, Q, M, T Batteries.
Field—43rd (Howitzer), 83rd, 84th, 85th, 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 2nd, 8th, 44th, 39th, 68th, 88th, 5th, 9th, 17th Batteries.
Garrison—5th Co. E. Division; 15th Co. W. Division (Siege Train); 2nd Co. S. Division.

ENGINEERS
"C" Pontoon Troop.
47th (Fortress) Co.

INFANTRY
2nd Lincoln.
2nd Norfolk.
1st Scottish Borderers.
1st East Lancashire.
2nd Cheshire.
2nd Hants.
2nd South Wales Borderers.
2nd North Staffs.
3rd South Lancashire.*
4th Royal Lancaster.*
6th Royal Warwick.*
4th Derbyshire.*
9th King's Royal Rifles.*
3rd Durham L.I.*
4th Argyll and Sutherland.*
1st Sussex (from Malta).
1st Leinster (from Halifax).
1st Cameron H'gh's (from Egypt).
City of London Imperial Volunteers.
Australasian and Canadian Contingents.
Imperial Yeomanry.
Duke of Cambridge's Own (special corps I.Y.).
Lord Lovat's Corps of Scouts.
Lumsden's Horse (from India).

* Militia Regiments.

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 38 (Supply), 40, 41, and 42.

The local troops in Rhodesia, under Colonel Plumer, comprise the British South African Police and the Rhodesian Regiment. In Mafeking, with Colonel Baden-Powell, are British South African Police (detachment), Diamond Fields Artillery (detachment), Cape Mounted Police (detachment), the Protectorate Regiment, and Bechuanaland Rifles. In Kimberley, under Colonel Kekewich, there are the Diamond Fields Artillery, Diamond Fields Horse, Kimberley Rifles, and Cape Mounted Police (detachment).

NOTE.—The strength of the various units on a war footing is approximately as follows: A regiment of Cavalry 610; a battery of Artillery, Horse 180, Field 170 (companies of Garrison Artillery vary considerably, but may be taken to average 150; the Siege Train batteries are, however, very largely augmented); a company of Royal Engineers 210; a battalion of Infantry 1,010; and a company Army Service Corps 140.

The Eighth Division ordered to mobilise for service in South Africa is as follows: Sixteenth Brigade: 2nd Grenadiers, 2nd Scots Guards, 2nd East York, 1st Leinster, No. 2 Co. Army Service Corps (supply column). Seventeenth Brigade: 1st Worcestershire, 2nd Manchester, 1st South Staffordshire (from Gibraltar), 2nd West Kent (from Malta). Divisional Troops: 89th, 90th, and 91st Batteries, Royal Field Artillery, No. 5 (Field) Co. R.E., No. 39 Co. A.S.C.

The following Militia Battalions are embodied for garrison duty at home and abroad to take the place of the regular battalions gone to South Africa: 3rd Royal Scots (Holywood), 3rd West Surrey (Portsmouth), 3rd East Kent (Cork), 3rd Northumberland (Portsmouth), 5th Royal Fusiliers (Dover), 3rd Devon (Fermoy), 3rd Suffolk (Guernsey), 4th Somerset Light Infantry (Portland), 3rd Bedford (Dublin), 4th West York (Aldershot), 3rd Royal Irish (Dublin), 3rd Yorkshire (Aldershot), 3rd Lancashire Fusiliers (Bury), 6th Lancashire Fusiliers (Halifax, N.S.), 3rd Scots Fusiliers (Aldershot), 3rd Welsh Fusiliers (Plymouth), 4th Scottish Rifles (Glasgow), 3rd Inniskilling Fusiliers (Mullingar), 4th Gloucestershire (Athlone), 4th East Surrey (Woking), 3rd Cornwall Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Border (Colchester), 3rd Sussex (Brighton), 4th South Staffordshire (Kinsale), 3rd Dorset (Shorncliffe), 3rd Welsh (Pembroke Dock), 3rd Black Watch (Montrose), 3rd Oxford Light Infantry (Limerick), 3rd Essex (Warley), 3rd North Lancashire (Malta), 3rd Northampton (Aldershot), 3rd West Kent (Malta), 4th Shropshire Light Infantry (Gravesend), 4th Middlesex (Woolwich), 3rd Wiltshire (Fermoy), 3rd York and Lancaster (York), 3rd Highland Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Seaforths (Fort George), 3rd Gordons (Edinburgh), 3rd Camerons (Aldershot), 6th Irish Rifles (Sheffield), 4th Irish Fusiliers (Colchester), 5th Connaught Rangers (Dover), 5th Dublin 3rd Leinster (Woolwich), 3rd Munster Fusiliers (Dover), 5th Dublin Fusiliers (Portsmouth), 6th Rifle Brigade (Curragh).

The following battalions are ordered for embodiment, but stations not fixed: 3rd Royal Lancaster, 5th Warwick, 3rd Liverpool, 3rd Norfolk, 4th Lincoln, 4th Suffolk, 4th Cheshire, 3rd South Wales Borderers, 3rd East Lancashire, 3rd Hampshire, 3rd Derbyshire, 8th King's Royal Rifles, 4th North Staffordshire, 4th Durham Light Infantry, 3rd Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Digitized by Google

A FEATURE of this war, and a most honourable one, is the way in which eminent doctors have come forward to lend their skill for the help of the soldiers in the field, and also the readiness of the Government to accept their services. The volunteering and the acceptance are alike new—at least in our wars. During the Franco-German War there was something like it, and then it was quite new. In old days little enough care was taken of the soldier, and still less of the sailor. Napoleon, who was not naturally a kind-hearted man, but much the contrary, did take care to have his soldiers looked after, from motives of pure enlightened selfishness. The memory of Baron Larrey and of his good work for the Imperial armies is famous. But, even so, things went badly for the wounded man, and it may be said in a general way that care for the health of armies is one of the most modern of modern things. It was thought a wonderful proof of the foresight of Frederick the Great that he ordered his company officers to carry a small barrel of vinegar with them to correct bad water. What amount of good this precaution might do the scientific man can no doubt explain. The intention, at any rate, was sound. In a general way no precautions were taken, with the result that ten men died of disease—if not twenty—for every one who fell by the sword. With the Navy things were even worse. Roderick Random's picture of the "Thunder" is no exaggeration, as we may learn from the undoubted fact that Rodney, who was once disappointed of an assistant-surgeon, was consoled by being told that the youth selected for the post was an apothecary's apprentice, or some such thing, and wholly ignorant of his duties. It is not wonderful that during the mutiny at the Nore the men were more embittered against the doctors than against any other class of officers. These are happier times, when such eminent medical men as Sir W. Thomson are entrusted with the health of our armies, and when we hear of such volunteers as Doctor Conan Doyle.

Photo. Copyright THE COUNTESS OF AIRLIE. Knight.
Riding the Charger Taken Out by the Earl—12th Lancers.

Photo. D'Arcy
SIR WILLIAM THOMSON, M.D.,
Who will do Good Service in South Africa.

VOLUNTEERING, as we know, is a feature of this war. The Countess of Airlie does not, we presume, intend to follow the 12th Lancers into action, as Mrs. Dalbiac rode

Photo. Russell & Sons.
DR. CONAN DOYLE.
Off to South Africa with the "Longman" Hospital.

Photo. Copyright. THE EARL OF ALBEMARLE. Gregory.
Commanding the Infantry of the City of London Imperial Volunteers.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

QUEER FISH.
Corean Notables on Board the "Centurion"

Photo. Copyright. Jenks.

THE QUEEN'S COLOURED SUBJECTS.
Mr. Jones, Bo'sun of Simon's Town Dockyard, and His Kroomen.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

THE NEW SOUTH WALES NAVAL BRIGADE.
The Artillery in Action during a Sham Fight.

after her husband's regiment at Salamanca. It is only the horse that is going, and, indeed, in these days of long-range rifles a battlefield is even less a place for a lady than in 1812. Besides, General Joubert might complain. The Earl of Albemarle is a volunteer in every sense, for he goes in command of the infantry of the City of London Imperial Volunteers, a gallant force, which will have a chance of rivalling the train-bands which raised the siege of Gloucester in the Civil War, and will, we may be sure, do still better than they.

A GROUP of Coreans visiting one of our war-ships takes us far away from the scene of war, to a region where fighting looked far more probable a short time ago than anyone would have thought it did in South Africa. But it may come in those far-off Eastern regions after all, and sooner than is expected. Then the Coreans, with their unique hats, and those manners and customs of theirs which the Western world finds repulsive, are likely to be more interesting than they are for the moment. The Kroomen, or Krooboys, sitting round Mr. Jones, boatswain of the Simon's Town yard, are more familiar figures. They have at all times had their humble share in the glories of the British Navy. In Michael Scott's "Cruise of the 'Midge'" most boys have made their acquaintance, and have learnt something of their odd ways of life. Their beautifully uniformed and disciplined appearance would have moved the wonder of the Naval officer of Scott's time; but one may say as much of the white crew. Just at present Mr. Jones and his black followers are having a busy time in preparing gun-carriages and doing all the other miscellaneous work which, according to ancient custom and the necessities of the case, falls to the Navy in most of our wars. On this occasion it has been more varied and heavier than usual. In fact, the Navy may fairly claim to have done much to save the situation at Ladysmith—if it has not saved it altogether. What would have been the course of events there if the Naval guns had not come up in time? Something most unpleasant, in all probability, or to a certainty. Now the timely arrival of those guns, which have neutralised the Boer possession of guns of position, was wholly the work of the Navy. We hear a great deal of the vast advantage our enemy possesses in having those long-range cannon; but, after all, we have given him a Roland for his Oliver pretty well. It does not appear that he has enjoyed such an overwhelming superiority at Ladysmith, nor on the Modder River either. Indeed, since he worried General Yule into retreat at Dundee, he has been rather outclassed than otherwise, thanks often to the Navy. However contrary to reason it may appear that the sea force should be fighting far inland, the fact is so, and that it would have been bad for us if it were otherwise. The Navy has always been more or less ambidextrous. It did plenty of work on shore in Elizabeth's time, and has kept up the tradition ever since. The New South Wales Naval Brigade drilling ashore, as seen in our picture, is a very representative body. The epoch of Naval wars proper has so far not revived. One can hardly count the futile and desperate proceedings of poor Admiral Cervera's ill-fated squadron as an exception. They only gave a faint idea of what a Naval war might possibly become. The Spaniards had also landed men and guns at Santiago to take part in the defence. Until Naval wars proper revive, which may possibly be the case when the German Emperor has persuaded his subjects to pay for a powerful fleet, the chief opportunities for fighting which can fall to any Navy must needs be in the way of brigades landed to do the work of gunners, and of light infantry. They are doing plenty of it to-day with Lord Methuen, with Sir George White, and with Sir Redvers Buller.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. A SUCKING NELSON. Chase.
A Possible Candidate for Naval Honours.

OUR next set of illustrations is of a more domestic, peaceful, or even pathetic order. The wives and children of those who are fighting have always afforded subjects for the poet and painter. A very slight examination of the print-shops will reveal numbers of plates representing "The Soldier's Widow," or "The Soldier's Family," or the domestic circle of the "Naval Hero." It is their common feature that the interesting persons they show us always look like very delicate princes and princesses in disguise, and never give the impression that they have done, or could have done, a day's work in their lives The photographer who is confined to the reproduction of nature is much less romantic, and proportionately more trustworthy; not that he is by any means constrained to depict ugliness. On the contrary, as our page shows, he has his pretty models, only they look human, and not, as is commonly the case with the sentimental picture maker, as if they had stepped out of fairy land. The groups of soldiers' families—which we have often given—are from real life. For them also the times have changed, and are much better. We do not now carry the women who are "on the strength" into the field, as Sir John Moore's army did, with the result that numbers of them fell into the hands of the French during the retreat to Corunna. Neither do we leave the wives who are not on the strength to beg and starve, as was once our inhuman habit. Proper attempts are made to take care of the families of those who are fighting abroad. If there is any fault in our efforts, it is that they are too various and voluntary, and are, therefore, in no small danger of becoming confused, which is likely to mean that much good work will be wasted. Excellent people who raise funds do not always distribute them with judgment, and are very liable to fall victims to the artful impostor, whose wiles are innumerable. There would perhaps be no surer course to follow than to ask "the colonel's lady" to take charge of the distribution of all the free offerings raised for the families of soldiers. The wives who are entitled to a Government allowance must, of course, make good their claim.

Photo. Copyright. BRITANNIA'S CHILDREN. Bowers.
A Typical Group from Sunny Natal.

Photo. Copyright. MILITIA FOR THE FRONT. Chancellor.
H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, the New Commander-in-Chief in Ireland, Inspecting the 4th Battalion of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders previous to its Departure for South Africa. This Battalion Volunteered for Active Service.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. Goldsbrough.

NO USE KICKING.
Whipping the Mules Ashore in the Cape Colony.

Photo. Copyright. Goldsbrough

A CARGO FROM THE STATES.
Unloading Useful Animals at Port Elizabeth for Military Transport.

Photo. Copyright. Gregory.

A NOVEL SITUATION.
Shipping an Officer's Charger at Southampton Dock.

Photo. Copyright. Kapp.

THE INDIAN CONTINGENT.
Slinging Horses on Board a Trooper at Calcutta.

FOR SERVICE IN SOUTH AFRICA.
Embarking and Disembarking Horses and Mules.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

VOL. IX.—No. 157.] SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd, 1900.

THE ADVANCE TO MAGERSFONTEIN.

This picture of military transport crossing by one of the drifts of the Modder River after the battle brings before us very vividly the difficulties that attend the advance of our army. From the Orange River to the Modder our column marched rapidly, winning victories as it went; but at the latter river a pause became necessary to bring up supplies, while the Boers were entrenching themselves at Magersfontein. Near the place where our picture was taken a veritable entrenched camp has since grown up.

From a Photograph Taken by Earl De la Warr, Special War Correspondent of the "Globe."

Digitized by Google

Munitions of War for South Africa.

A PICTURESQUE ASPECT.

A STATE of war generally abounds in variety and sharp contrasts. Thrilling as are the more active accompaniments of a campaign, the storm and stress of the battle-field, the labour of forced marches, the perils of the trenches, the grim tragedies of the field hospital, they never constitute, at any rate nowadays, an all-absorbing preoccupation in the mind of a great nation. In a protracted siege men and women come in time to treat their gloomy environment with comparative indifference, and go about civilian avocations, and even amusements, as if no enemy were within a hundred miles. So, too, in a war — especially if conducted abroad—the public mind often finds relief from the tales of hard-won victories or sad reverses in the contemplation of subjects and objects possibly of kindred but yet of very different interest.

Photo. Copyright. UPNOR CASTLE. A. Debenham, Ryde.
Opposite Chatham Dockyard.

Photo. Copyright. THE MEDWAY. "Navy & Army."
From Chatham Gun Wharf.

It is pardonable then to regard this charming little series of pictures much less solemnly than we naturally regard many of the sights and scenes at the front which war artists and war photographers have reproduced for us. In a sense, moreover, a certain feeling of relief may be experienced by turning from the grave realities of warfare to the more restful, but still suggestive, subjects included in these half-dozen illustrations.

Here we have pictures from the three great dockyards, Portsmouth, Plymouth, and Chatham, from all of which great stores of war material—not to speak of men—have for many weeks past been continually leaving for South Africa. Necessarily, the despatch of these important munitions has caused to some extent a busy stir among sheds and shops,

Photo. Copyright. Cribb.

THE MAIN CORRIDOR—ENTRANCE TO THE ARMOURY, PORTSMOUTH GUN WHARF.

Digitized by Google

and here and there a certain amount of strenuous excitement must have prevailed, and be prevailing still. But this does not greatly modify the picturesque aspect of serenity which seldom fails to belong to scenes where many ships are congregated. In all these cases, too, the picturesqueness is really enhanced by the fact that a great war is in progress, since that circumstance alone is sufficient to awake a host of quaint historical associations.

Looking across the Medway at Rochester, or glancing at Upnor Castle, such ideas will come crowding in upon the least imaginative mind. This part of the world has a famous history for others besides Kentish men, a history contrasted with which our serious but rather vulgar squabble with two mushroom States in South Africa sinks into utter insignificance. Two sharper contrasts could scarcely be imagined than, say, the capital of the Transvaal, with its forts bristling with modern cannon, and towns like Chatham and Devonport, in which all outward show of armed defence is subordinated to the arts of peace and the pursuit of business. Yet the latter have furnished many of the weapons by which the pride of the former will eventually be humbled, and these old castles and gun wharves, with their curiously harmless array of obsolete ordnance, will last many years longer than the brand-new works which girdle Pretoria.

Photo. Copyright. MOUNT WISE, DEVONPORT. "Navy & Army."
A View from a Corner of the Gun Wharf.

Photo. Copyright. THE ARMOURY—THE GUN WHARF AT PORTSMOUTH. Cribb.

As for Portsmouth Gun Wharf, one might fairly revel in the contrasts and associations created by a glance first at the latest war telegram and then by a dip into that delightful armoury. Here are the helmets which were worn by Cromwell's Ironsides, as grand cavalry in their way as the Boers are grand mounted infantry in theirs. Here, too, are old firearms which are a very long way removed from the four-point-seven, the Lee-Enfield, and the Maxim. But the existence of the Highland Brigade is distinctly and happily recalled by a trophy of claymores worn by bygone heroes of the Forty-Twa.

Photo. Copyright. LOOKING SEAWARD. "Navy & Army."
The Water Gate to the Western Gun Wharf.

Digitized by Google

The Imperial Yeomanry.

Photo. Copyright. THE IRISH YEOMANRY. Chancellor.
A Group of the Accepted Volunteers at the Royal Barracks, Dublin.

Photo. Copyright. THE ISLE OF WIGHT CONTINGENT Hughes & Mullins.
Being Inspected by Princess Henry of Battenberg.

Photo. Copyright. ALL SORTS AND CONDITIONS OF MEN. Russell & Sons.
A Group of the Hants Imperial Yeomanry in Mufti.

NOTHING could have excelled the display of patriotism on the part of the whole nation in the present emergency. Nor in anything has this been more marked than in the enrolment of Volunteers for service and in the formation of the Imperial Yeomanry.

With the latter force, however, we are here chiefly concerned. Despite its name, the Imperial Yeomanry is not entirely recruited from among Yeomen, as we usually understand the term, but the name, it is said, was given because the authorities looked to our own Yeomanry Cavalry to send a considerable number of men into the ranks of the new corps. Moreover, it was thought, and rightly so, that the corps already existing, being in touch with the desired stamp of recruit, could greatly aid in obtaining the number of men required. To the invitation of the authorities there has been a hearty response, and the officers of the Yeomanry have given their loyal support in every conceivable way.

The War Office has entrusted the selection of recruits to a committee of Yeomanry officers, and by them all the details have been arranged. When the idea of raising this mounted force was first announced the offices of the committee in London were besieged day and night by crowds of eligible men only too anxious to serve as troopers in the embryo regiment.

So great became the pressure of business upon the committee that ere long it became necessary to refer the would-be recruits to the headquarters of the existing Yeomanry Brigades, where the permanent staffs have had a busy time in enrolling the men.

As regards qualifications for the corps, which is, strictly speaking, a mounted infantry, not a cavalry, force, all candidates must satisfy the authorities that they can ride and shoot, for without both acquirements they would be of little use on the veldt. They must, of course, also be medically fit, and preference is given to unmarried men. So great has been the influx of recruits that the authorities have been able to exercise a wise discretion in selecting candidates.

The movement has taken root throughout the country; in many parts the men are busy at work, for it must remembered that a considerable percentage of the rank and file have never served before.

In Ireland, where there is no Yeomanry Cavalry, recruiting has been carried on briskly, and many well-known hunting men have joined the ranks. Among the officers are men of wealth, who have cheerfully volunteered to brave the rigours of the campaign. The accompanying illustrations of the Isle of Wight, the Hampshire, and the Irish contingents will give our readers a very good idea of the composition of the Imperial Yeomanry. As showing the eagerness of the Hampshiremen to serve in the corps raised in their native county, it may be noted that some of the members have come from Canada and other parts of the world especially to join the draft.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

WE are in the habit of grumbling about most things, and therefore nothing is more in the regular course than that a whole chorus of grumbles should have arisen over the recruiting for the Imperial Yeomanry. If one is bound to accept all one finds to read in letters to the Times (which happily is not the case), the authorities engaged in the task of organising this force are guided by two great rules. The first is to reject all the competent men who present themselves, on frivolous grounds; the second is to accept every deplorably unfit youth who comes forward. We hear of volunteers who have had colonial experience worried because of social qualifications. There are also stories of stalwart youths whose services are declined because their teeth are defective, though their muscular development is splendid and their digestions are unimpaired. What can appear more unreasonable? If there be an act more absurd than refusal of the services of young athletes whose teeth are slightly defective, it is the acceptance of boys—poor boys of delicate upbringing—who have no eyes, no chest, no stamina, no knowledge of riding, and no familiarity with the use of firearms. Yet it is quite common to find these poor creatures accepted for the Imperial Yeomanry, if everything is true which appears in letters to the Times.

* * * *

Only one does not accept every word in those voluntary contributions as gospel. When, for instance, an anxious mother writes to say that her poor delicate boy, who is fragility itself, who is compelled to live on Revalenta Arabica, and cannot sleep when the weather is in the least cool without a hot-water bottle in his bed, has been cruelly accepted for the Imperial Yeomanry, one may feel for the poor lady, but one does not find it necessary to suppose that her version of the story is quite accurate. One has heard of affectionate mothers who coddle their offspring, and of offspring who rebel against the process. What letters would be written to the Times by hens which have hatched ducklings? The coddled youth who is tired of the maternal apron string may really be excused for jumping at the chance of serving his country in the Imperial Yeomanry, and it is by no means certain that he will make a bad recruit. Then there is the schoolmaster who gives the sad eventful history of the boy who is blind of one eye and can hardly see with the other, who is condemned to Salutaris Water, gets swiftly tired of cricket, has been rejected from the rifle team as hopeless, and suffers from a local complaint which will be aggravated by riding, and will, when in full aggravation, make riding impossible. This unhappy bag of groans has none the less been accepted, and, after three weeks of camp training, has passed all the tests, including shooting and riding. One does not quite know what to make of that schoolmaster. Is he a humourist, or an example of the truth of a saying of Sir Walter Scott's, "that it is rare to find a schoolmaster who is a man of sense"?

* * * *

A man may find school games a bore—many of ill-regulated minds do—and a school rifle team no better, and yet be ready enough for the real game. Neither is it always your big man who is the best fighter. What doctor would have passed our William III. as fit for military service, or his opponent, the hunchback Luxembourg, either? In fact, in the old days of incessant wars people were not so particular as now, and so long as a man could get through his work and had plenty of pluck, they cared little whether his teeth were defective or one of his toes grew over another. Besides, they held a good deal by the doctrine which Falstaff laid down to Justice Shallow: "Care I for the limb, the thewes, the stature, bulk, the big assemblance of a man! Give me the spirit, Master Shallow. Here's Wart; you see what a ragged appearance it is—he shall charge you and discharge you with the motion of a pewterer's hammer, come off and on swifter than he that gibbets on the brewer's bucket. And this same half-faced fellow, Shadow—give me this man; he presents no mark to the enemy, the foeman may with as great aim level at the edge of a penknife. And, for a retreat, how swiftly will this Feeble, the woman's tailor, run off." Even if the Imperial Yeomanry is mainly recruited of Wart, Shadow, and Feeble, as these authorities assert, we need not lose all hope that they will fight. The question of time is important. Compare the weedy-looking boys who enlist at Walmer with the thoroughly trained Marine. It seems at first sight impossible that the first should become the second, and yet they do. Unfortunately it takes four years or thereabouts to make the change, and a good deal goes to the process—the nine months' gymnastics at Walmer, the great gun drill at Chatham, or Portsmouth, or Plymouth, and then the first commission at sea.

* * * *

There is a very beautiful picture in Clarendon's memoirs of a gentleman who would doubtless have been judged unfit for military service, and who yet fought well in the great Civil War. This was Sidney Godolphin, of whom it was said that "there was never so great a mind and spirit contained in so little room. . . . Though everybody loved his company very well, yet he loved very much to be alone, being in his constitution inclined somewhat to melancholy, and to retirement among his books, and was so far from being active that he was content to be reproached by his friends with laziness, and was of so nice and tender a composition that a little rain or wind would disorder him, and divert him from any short journey he had most willingly proposed to himself, insomuch as when he rode abroad with those in whose company he most delighted, if the wind chanced to be in his face he would (after a little pleasant murmuring) suddenly turn his horse and go home. Yet the Civil War no sooner began . . . than he put himself into the first troops which were raised in the West for the King, and bore the uneasiness and fatigue of winter marches with an exemplary courage and alacrity, until by too brave a pursuit of the enemy into an obscure village in Devonshire he was shot with a musket, with which—without saying any word more than 'Oh, God! I am hurt'—he fell dead from his horse, to the excessive grief of his friends, who were all that knew him, and the irreparable damage of the public."

* * * *

It is quite possible that a good many so-called delicate youths would be all the better for a little roughing. Dana was sent to sea to restore his health by a voyage round the Horn, as he has described in "Two Years Before the Mast." The remedy seems to have been rather a favourite in the New England towns, and was certainly a kill or cure one. A lad who made a voyage round the Horn before the mast in a sailing ship had to put up with greater hardships than will fall to the lot of the Imperial Yeomanry. Withal there is something serious in the complaints. It is quite a mistake to suppose that because Britons are generally fond of athletic games and sport, it can be easy to raise a corps of volunteers, all strong, all good horsemen and good shots. Many who are qualified will not or cannot come forward. Besides, we are so rich and so industrial that with all the love of sport and so forth in the world we cannot be qualified by habits of life for soldiering. The soldier in a civilised community has to be made by special training. It is one of the advantages possessed by our opponents in this war that they have been brought up to the life of an army in the field by the conditions of their existence. That is not, and cannot be, the case with us. In time we shall learn, but it is rather late to begin after war has broken out. The moral of this is possibly a very serious one. If in future we are to be often liable to have to put armies of 150,000 men or thereabouts into the field while providing for the Indian and other garrisons, it will not do to rely on the very moderate regular force we already possess, and supplementary forces to be got together by hook and by crook when the guns have already begun to shoot. Why, these Imperial Yeomanry, Volunteers, and so forth, are not organised yet! Months of work must be done before they are really fit, and though it may happen that the war will be over by the time they are ready, it may also happen that we shall suffer more checks for want of sufficient force on the spot.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

FEBRUARY 4, 1757.—Defeat of Suraj ad Dowla. Colonel Clive, with 569 seamen and marines, 150 Europeans, and 800 Sepoys repulsed an attack by 20,000 men, under Suraj ad Dowla, on Calcutta. 1762.—Surrender of Fort Royal, Martinique. 1804.—Surrender of Gwalior. The native chief, Ambajee, was compelled to surrender this formidable fortress to Lieutenant-Colonel White, after a brief resistance. 1874.—Battle of Ordashu; Sir Garnet Wolseley completely routed the Ashantis under King Coffee. Coomassie was entered on the same day.

February 5, 1781.—Surrender of the Island St. Martin, West Indies. 1794.—Martinique invaded. An expedition, under Admiral Sir John Jervis, and an army under Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Gray, effected a landing on the island. 1804.—Action near Mankaiseer. A large force, under some predatory chiefs, was caught while re.reating, and routed by Sir Arthur Wellesley. All their guns, ammunition, and baggage were captured. 1810.—Surrender of Guadaloupe. As the result of an engagement on February 4, the island was this day surrendered. 1856.—Institution of the Order of the Victoria Cross gazetted.

February 6, 1545.—Rout of the French near Boulogne. A force, under Marshal de Dies, 14,000 strong, encamped near Boulogne, then held by the British. The Lord High Admiral De Lisle, the Earl of Hertford, Lord Grey de Wilton, and Sir Thomas Poynings, with 4,000 foot and 700 horse, sallied out to attack them. The British getting between the two divisions of the French army put them to rout. 1874.—Coomassie burned.

February 7, 1602.—Portobello taken. 1792.—Siege of Seringapatam. This fortress, which was invested on February 5 by Lord Cornwallis, was held by the Sultan Tippoo with 6,000 horse and 50,000 foot. On the 7th the place was carried by storm. Our loss was 535 killed and wounded, while more than 4,000 Mysoreans fell. 1794.—Landing in Corsica.

February 8, 1803.—Siege of Sasnee. This post, in the district of Furruckabad, ceded to the East India Company in 1802, was held by a refractory chief, Bugwunt Sing. The pettah of the fortress was carried by assault by Colonel the Hon. J. St. John. 1881.—Repulse on the Ingogo River. Sir George Colley was defeated by the Zulus.

February 9, 1781.—B'hore Pass forced—Mahratta War. General Goddard drove the enemy from their fortresses in the pass while advancing on Poonah. 1826.—Battle of Pagahm-mew. On this day a force under Major-General Sir A. Campbell, hardly 2,000 strong, defeated a Burmese army of about 16,000 men, whose centre was broken by the impetuous attack of the British.

February 10, 1711.—Surrender of Mahé to Sir Hector Munro. 1760.—Surrender of Arcot to Colonel Coote, after having been invested since February 1. 1809.—Storm of Arambuli, Travancore. 1846.—Battle of Sobraon. With an army of 35,000, Lord Gough utterly defeated the Sikhs, who had taken up a position on the Sutlej. The British loss was over 2,300, while that of the Sikhs was estimated at 10,000.

FEBRUARY 4, 1781.—British squadron captured Dutch "Mars," 60, and convoy in the West Indies. 1804.—Cutting out of the "Curieux," 16, in Fort Royal, Martinique, by the boats of the "Centaur." 1874.—Naval Brigade at the battle of Ordashu.

February 5, 1800.—The "Fairy," "Harpy," and consorts took the "Pallas." 1804.—The "Eclair" engaged the "Grand Décidé." 1825. Than-ta-Ban captured. 1840.—The first Cunarder, "Britannia," launched. 1890.—The "Wallaroo" launched.

February 6, 1777.—Letters of Marque granted against America. 1799.—The "Argo" captured the "Santa Teresa." 1800.—The "Loire" and consorts captured the "Pallas." 1806.—Duckworth's victory off San Domingo. 1839.—Vice-Admiral C. E. Buckle born. 1886.—The "Mohawk" launched.

February 7, 1808.—The "Découverte" drove ashore a privateer. 1813.—The "Amelia" engaged the "Aréthuse." 1863.—Loss of the "Orpheus" off New Zealand.

February 8, 1794.—The "Fortitude" and "Juno" captured Mortella, Corsica. 1805.—The "Curieux" captured the "Dame Ernouf." 1808.—Boats of the "Meleager" captured the "Renard." 1809.—The "Amphion" and "Redwing" dispersed the French ships off Melida. The "Horatio" and consorts captured the "Junon." 1813.—Boats of the "Belvidera" and consorts took the "Lottery." 1842.—Rear-Admiral A. L. Douglas, second sea lord, born. 1844.—Rear-Admiral Swinton C. Holland, Admiral-Superintendent, Chatham, born. 1882.—Fire in Devonport Dockyard—estimated loss, £20,000.

February 9, 1746.—The "Portland" captured the "Auguste." 1799.—The "Dædalus" captured the "Prudente." 1808.—The "Découverte" captured the "Darabe." 1826.—Pagahm-mew captured. 1885.—The Nile Expedition. Rescue of Sir C. Wilson near Gubat, by Lord Charles Beresford. 1895.—The "Teaser" launched.

February 10, 1710.—The "Salisbury" and "St. Albans" captured a French 60-gun ship. 1761.—Mahé, India, surrendered to Rear-Admiral Cornish. 1810.—The "Thistle" captured the Dutch corvette "Havik." The "Latona" and consorts capture the "Junon." 1846.—Lord Charles Beresford born. 1868.—The "Hercules" launched. 1891.—The "Apollo" launched, 1898.—The "Bullfinch" launched.

Horse Sickness in S. Africa.

By C. H. TEMPLE.

SOUTH African "horse-sickness"—called in the Dutch language "Parde Ziekte"—is a scourge which is always prevalent in the sub-continent, although at this time of the year, the summer season of the Cape, when the heavy tropical rains fall, it becomes more widespread and virulent.

As showing the deadly nature of the malady, it may be said that a force of Transvaal Boers fighting against a Kaffir tribe some years ago lost, through it, one-third of its horses; in the years 1854-55 over 70,000 horses and mules died of it in Cape Colony alone, and three years ago, out of a small force then garrisoning Natal, 600 Government horses were carried off. These illustrations, pregnant though they be, represent very inadequately, however, the devastation caused by this disease in all the different countries from the Cape to the Zambesi.

As to the sickness itself, although it has many manifestations, there seems to be only one rational explanation of its origin. Dutchmen themselves say that it is caused by open feeding on the veldt at night, when the poisonous herb called "tulp" is in its worst state of virulence. Others, while admitting this, go a step further, and add, as a further cause, the fact that the heavy rains loosen the soil—the heat of the summer sun, too, causes gaping cracks in the earth's surface—whereby poisonous gases, generated by the accumulations of rank vegetation, are liberated. These gases naturally affect the growing veldt grass, especially at night time, for between sunset and sunrise, when the heavy dew and vapours form, is the most dangerous period of the day for horses grazing.

Further, both Veterinary-Colonel Lambert, C.B., and Veterinary-Major Nunn, D.S.O., amongst our highest authorities, who have studied the subject scientifically on the spot, agree as to the origin of the disease, and as to the best means of avoiding it, but they have to confess that no cure is known for it. According to them, the sickness is due to the action of a specific bacillus, which takes its origin from the soil, and has its home in the herbage that grows upon it and the vapours that float above it. This latter theory is the most scientific and reasonable, and seems to explain all the facts of the case. But whether due to tulp, gases, or microbe, or all combined, this at least is clear, the disease is most prevalent on the low veldt, where the temperature is high and the vegetation luxuriant, and it seems to find a helpful environment in damp spots, water-courses, marshes, and vleys.

The disease may attack the respiratory organs In such case it commences with a husky cough and a slight discharge from the nose. Often the head swells greatly, the breathing is difficult and painful, the eyes become glazed and sunken, a swelling occurs over the eyelids, and the mouth fills with a peculiar kind of yellowish froth. Just before the end comes the nasal discharge changes to a profuse snow-white foam, proving suffocation to be the cause of death. Or, again, the digestive organs may be attacked. In this case the horse will show all the signs of acute internal suffering, breaking out into a sweat of agony. The temperature rises tremendously, revealing high fever, and soon the animal yields to the burning strain.

In this latter form the disease is generally not so summary as in the former, but in most cases the doom is as certain. The sickness comes on with fearful suddenness. A horse may be grazing, or even carrying a rider, when all at once it gives way, and in two or three hours it is dead.

All attacked horses, however, do not die, and this shows that the real remedy for the disease is the sickness itself. A horse may pull through its illness—perhaps 20 per cent. do so. In such case it is called "salted." And a peculiar fact is that a salted horse will seldom have a second attack. This it is which enhances the value of the animal, increasing it fourfold, although for ever after it will be but a poor shadow of its former self, its temper, knees, and pace suffering terribly. En passant, it may be said that in all horse-dealing transactions in South Africa, when a salted horse is sold, a certificate, guaranteeing it for three, six, or twelve months from sickness, is demanded and given.

Beyond the sickness itself there is no absolute cure known. Theories have been propounded, and quack cures have been advertised, but without avail. Paarde Ziekte is as prevalent as ever. Prevention, however, is often better than cure, and the man who studies his pocket and values his horse will take precautionary measures. Horses should never be allowed to graze until the sun is three hours up, and should be carefully stabled at the latest an hour before sunset. Both fodder and bedding should be perfectly dry, bin and nosebag ought to be regularly tarred, nostrils washed every other day in a thin solution of tar containing a few drops of eucalyptus oil, and the drinking water should contain a few drops of arnica. Horses cared for in this way, while not immune, stand every chance of escaping the deadly visitation.

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

I.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar, under Methuen.

Brigade Commanders: Major-Generals Sir H. E. Colvile, Hector Macdonald, and R. Pole-Carew. Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Brabazon.

CAVALRY
- 2nd Dragoons.
- 9th Lancers.
- 12th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
- Horse—G and P Batteries.
- Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th Batteries.
- Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS
- 7th (Field) Co.
- 8th (Railway) Co.
- 11th (Field) Co.
- 29th (Fortress) Co.
- 31st (Fortress) Co.
- Two Sections 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
- Balloon Section.
- Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY
- 3rd Grenadiers.
- 1st Coldstreams.
- 2nd Coldstreams.
- 1st Scots Guards.
- 1st Argyll and Sutherland.
- 2nd Seaforths.
- 2nd Black Watch.
- 1st Highland L.I.
- 1st Northumberlands.
- 2nd Northamptons.
- 1st Gordons.
- 2nd Yorkshire L.I.
- 1st N. Lancashire (half battalion in Kimberley).
- 2nd Cornwall L.I.
- 1st Munster Fusiliers.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
- Rimington's Scouts.
- Queensland Mounted Infantry.
- Canadian Infantry.

II.—Cape Colony. All Troops in and South of De Aar, on line Cape Town to De Aar.

Lieutenant-General commanding line of communications: Sir F. W. E. F. Forestier-Walker.

ARTILLERY
- Horse—U Battery.
- Field—4th, 38th, 65th, 76th, 81st, 82nd Batteries.
- Garrison—15th, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division (Siege Train).

ENGINEERS
- 6th (Fortress) Co.
- 20th (Field) Co.
- 37th (Field) Co.
- 38th (Field) Co.
- Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
- Field Park.
- Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY
- 1st Welsh.
- 2nd Royal Lancaster.
- 2nd Royal Warwicks.
- 1st Royal Irish.
- 2nd Shropshire L.I.
- 2nd Wiltshire.
- 2nd Worcester.
- 2nd East Kent.
- 1st Oxford L.I.
- 1st West Riding.
- 2nd Gloucester.
- 2nd Norfolk.
- 2nd Hampshire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
- Duke of Edinburgh's Rifles (Cape).
- Cape Town Highlanders.
- S. African Light Horse (part).
- Victorian Mounted Infantry.
- S. Australian Mounted Infantry.
- W. Australian Mounted Infantry.
- Tasmanian Mounted Infantry.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Naauwpoort under French.

Commanding Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Babington.

CAVALRY
- Household Regiment.
- 6th Dragoon Guards.
- 6th Dragoons.
- 10th Hussars.
- 16th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
- Horse—O and R. Batteries.
- Field—20th Battery.

ENGINEERS
- 10th (Railway) Co.
- 26th (Field) Co.
- 42nd (Fortress) Co.
- Section 1st Div. Telegraph Batn.

INFANTRY
- 1st Suffolk.
- 1st Essex.
- 1st Yorkshire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
- Prince Alfred's Volunteer Guards (Cape).
- 1st City (Grahamstown) Volntrs.
- New South Wales Lancers.

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY
- Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS
- 12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY
- 2nd Irish Rifles.
- 2nd Northumberland.
- 1st Royal Scots.
- 2nd Berkshire.
- 1st Derbyshire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
- Cape Mounted Rifles.
- Det. Cape Mounted Police.
- Frontier Mounted Rifles.
- Kaffrarian Rifles.
- Brabant's Horse.

V.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

Divisional and Brigade Commanders: Lieutenant-Generals Sir F. Clery and Sir C. Warren Major-Generals Hildyard, Lyttelton, Hart, and Barton. Cavalry Brigade: Lord Dundonald.

CAVALRY
- 1st Dragoons.
- 13th Hussars.
- 14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
- Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 66th, 73rd, 78th Batteries.
- Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS
- 17th (Field) Co.
- 45th (Steam Road Transport) Co.
- "A" Pontoon Troop.
- Balloon Section.

INFANTRY
- 1st Border.
- 2nd Devon.
- 2nd West York.
- 2nd West Surrey.
- 2nd East Surrey.
- 1st Welsh Fusiliers.
- 2nd Irish Fusiliers.
- 2nd Scots Fusiliers.
- 2nd Royal Fusiliers.
- 2nd Scottish Rifles.
- 1st Durham L.I.
- 3rd King's Royal Rifles.
- 1st Rifle Brigade.
- 2nd Somerset L.I.
- 1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
- 1st Connaught Rangers.
- 1st Dublin Fusiliers.
- 2nd Dorsetshire.
- 2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
- 1st South Lancashire.
- 2nd Middlesex.
- 2nd Bedfords.
- 1st York and Lancaster.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
- Natal Naval Volunteers.
- Natal Carbineers (part).
- Durban Light Infantry.
- Bethune's Mounted Infantry.
- Thorneycroft's Mntd. Infantry.
- Imperial Light Infantry.

VI.—Natal, beleaguered in Ladysmith under White.

Brigade Commanders: Major-General F. Howard. Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Brocklehurst.

CAVALRY
- 5th Dragoon Guards.
- 5th Lancers.
- 18th Hussars.
- 19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
- Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
- Mountain—No. 10 Battery.*

ENGINEERS
- 23rd (Field) Company, Balloon Section, Headquarters and Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
- 1st Liverpool.
- 1st Devon.
- 1st Leicester.
- 1st Gloucester.†
- 1st King's Royal Rifles.
- 2nd King's Royal Rifles.
- 1st Manchester.
- 2nd Gordons.
- 1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.†
- 2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
- 2nd Rifle Brigade.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
- Border Mounted Rifles.
- Natal Field Artillery.
- Imperial Light Horse.
- Natal Carbineers (part).
- Natal Mounted Police (Det.)

* Surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

† Headquarters surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY
- 7th Dragoon Guards.
- 17th Lancers.
- 8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
- Horse—A, J, Q, M, T Batteries.
- Field—43rd (Howitzer), 83rd, 84th, 85th, 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 2nd, 8th, 44th, 39th, 68th, 88th, 5th, 9th, 17th Batteries.
- Garrison—5th Co. E. Division; 15th Co. W. Division (Siege Train); 2nd Co. S. Division.

ENGINEERS
- "C" Pontoon Troop.
- 47th (Fortress) Co.

INFANTRY
- 2nd Lincoln.
- 1st Scottish Borderers.
- 1st East Lancashire.
- 2nd Cheshire.
- 2nd South Wales Borderers.
- 2nd North Staffs.
- 3rd South Lancashire.*
- 4th Royal Lancaster.*
- 6th Royal Warwick.*
- 4th Derbyshire.*
- 9th King's Royal Rifles.*
- 3rd Durham L.I.*
- 4th Argyll and Sutherland.*
- 1st Sussex (from Malta).
- 1st Leinster (from Halifax).
- 1st Cameron H'gh's (from Egypt).
- City of London Imperial Volunteers.
- Australasian and Canadian Contingents.
- Imperial Yeomanry.
- Duke of Cambridge's Own (special corps I.Y.).
- Lord Lovat's Corps of Scouts.
- Lumsden's Horse (from India).

* Militia Regiments

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 38 (Supply), 40, 41, and 42.

Naval Brigades are serving with White in Ladysmith, with Buller in Northern Natal, with Methuen at Modder River, and with the troops under General Gatacre.

The local troops in Rhodesia, under Colonel Plumer, comprise the British South African Police and the Rhodesian Regiment. In Mafeking, with Colonel Baden-Powell, are British South African Police (detachment), Diamond Fields Artillery (detachment), Cape Mounted Police (detachment), the Protectorate Regiment, and Bechuanaland Rifles. In Kimberley, under Colonel Kekewich, there are the Diamond Fields Artillery, Diamond Fields Horse, Kimberley Rifles, and Cape Mounted Police (detachment).

NOTE.—The strength of the various units on a war footing is approximately as follows: A regiment of Cavalry 610; a battery of Artillery, Horse 180, Field 170 (companies of Garrison Artillery vary considerably, but may be taken to average 150; the Siege Train batteries are, however, very largely augmented); a company of Royal Engineers 210; a battalion of Infantry 1,010; and a company Army Service Corps 140.

The Eighth Division ordered to mobilise for service in South Africa is as follows: Sixteenth Brigade: 2nd Grenadiers, 2nd Scots Guards, 2nd East York, 1st Leinster, No. 2 Co. Army Service Corps (supply column). Seventeenth Brigade: 1st Worcestershire, 2nd Manchester, 1st South Staffordshire (from Gibraltar), 2nd West Kent (from Malta). Divisional Troops: 89th, 90th, and 91st Batteries, Royal Field Artillery, No. 5 (Field) Co. R.E., No. 39 Co. A.S.C.

The following Militia Battalions are embodied for garrison duty at home and abroad to take the place of the regular battalions gone to South Africa: 3rd Royal Scots (Holywood), 3rd West Surrey (Portsmouth), 3rd East Kent (Cork), 3rd Northumberland (Portsmouth), 5th Royal Fusiliers (Dover), 3rd Devon (Fermoy), 3rd Suffolk (Guernsey), 4th Somerset Light Infantry (Portland), 3rd Bedford (Dublin), 4th West York (Aldershot), 3rd Royal Irish (Dublin), 3rd Yorkshire (Aldershot), 3rd Lancashire Fusiliers (Bury), 6th Lancashire Fusiliers (Halifax, N.S.), 3rd Scots Fusiliers (Aldershot), 3rd Welsh Fusiliers (Plymouth), 4th Scottish Rifles (Glasgow), 3rd Inniskilling Fusiliers (Mullingar), 4th Gloucestershire (Athlone), 4th East Surrey (Woking), 3rd Cornwall Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Border (Colchester), 3rd Sussex (Brighton), 4th South Staffordshire (Kinsale), 3rd Dorset (Shorncliffe), 3rd Welsh (Pembroke Dock), 3rd Black Watch (Montrose), 3rd Oxford Light Infantry (Limerick), 3rd Essex (Warley), 3rd North Lancashire (Malta), 3rd Northampton (Aldershot), 3rd West Kent (Malta), 4th Shropshire Light Infantry (Gravesend), 4th Middlesex (Woolwich), 3rd Wiltshire (Fermoy), 3rd York and Lancaster (York), 3rd Highland Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Seaforths (Fort George), 3rd Gordons (Edinburgh), 3rd Camerons (Aldershot), 6th Irish Rifles (Sheffield), 4th Irish Fusiliers (Colchester), 5th Connaught Rangers (Woolwich), 3rd Leinster (Woolwich), 3rd Munster Fusiliers (Dover), 5th Dublin Fusiliers (Portsmouth), 6th Rifle Brigade (Curragh).

The following battalions are ordered for embodiment, but stations not fixed: 3rd Royal Lancaster, 5th Warwick, 3rd Liverpool, 3rd Norfolk, 4th Lincoln, 4th Suffolk, 4th Cheshire, 3rd South Wales Borderers, 3rd East Lancashire, 3rd Hampshire, 3rd Derbyshire, 8th King's Royal Rifles, 4th North Staffordshire, 4th Durham Light Infantry, 3rd Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Digitized by Google

With Lord Methuen on the Western Border.

ABOUT TO OBSERVE.
The Balloon on the Veldt Preparing to Ascend.

AFTER THE FIGHT.
The Highland Brigade Returning to Camp.

AN ANXIOUS TIME FOR THE GENERAL.
Lord Methuen with Colonel Douglas Watching the Progress of the Battle.

KEEPING AN EYE ON SNIPERS.
Picquets on the Look-out for Transvaalers and Free Staters.

A DEEP RAILWAY CUTTING.
Constructed by Sappers to the Temporary Bridge Across the River

From Photographs Taken by Earl De la Warr, Special War Correspondent of the "Globe."

The Battle of Magersfontein.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. IN ACTION AT COLENSO. Thorneycroft's Mounted Infantry. Laws Caney.

Photo. Copyright. IN GARRISON AT FRERE. Troops of the South African Light Horse. Laws Caney.

Photo. Copyright. IN ACTION AT DORDRECHT. Officers of Brabant's Horse. H. W. Nicholls, Johannesburg.

Photo. Copyright. IN GARRISON AT ROSMEAD. Officers of the 1st City of Grahamstown Volunteers. Hepburne & Jeanes.

South African Volunteers—Colonial Troops with Generals Buller, Gatacre, and French.

Digitized by Google

The Camp and Operations

From Photographs Taken by

THE IMPORTANT BASE CAMP

LEISURE MOMENTS.
The Royal Berkshires at the Foot of a Kopje.

ON HER MAJESTY'S SERVICE.
Branding Hoofs of Horses Bought at Queenstown.

ADMIRABLY illustrative of the operations in Cape Colony under Sir William Gatacre is this little series of pictures which has just come in from one of our various correspondents at the front. The series is of the greater interest, inasmuch as, owing to lack of reinforcements, Gatacre's advance has not been a rapid, nor—with the unfortunate exception of the reverse at Stormberg—a particularly eventful one, and has, consequently, not received as much attention in the papers as it deserves.

The pictures at the top of this and the succeeding page form a panorama, and give a graphic idea of the camp originally formed at Queenstown, shortly after Sir William Gatacre's arrival at East London. Some weeks back the General pushed forward, and has lately been operating much closer to the Free State frontier. But it was at Queenstown that his base camp was formed, and, judging from these two pictures, that camp was just what might have been expected, having regard to the general's reputation for soldierly neatness and exactitude. The site is naturally an excellent one, but what will more directly appeal to the expert eye is the precision with which the whole camp is laid out, and its evidently smart and well-kept appearance. Such details may not seem to be of great moment in a rather rough-and-ready campaign, but those who understand such things are well aware that, in reality, they are of singular importance, more especially at a base camp, where any tendency to slipshodness or irregularity is generally reflected, and on a magnified scale, at the front.

The picture of the Royal Berkshires at the foot of a typical kopje recalls the fact that this distinguished corps has done a quantity of excellent service in Cape Colony from a very early stage in the war. Its first duty was to garrison Grahamstown, from which it subsequently proceeded to Stormberg.

Digitized by Google

of Gatacre in Cape Colony.

H. W. Nicholls, Johannesburg.

OF THE FORCES AT QUEENSTOWN.

The men worked hard to put the place in a state of defence, and it is one of the most unfortunate circumstances in the record of the war that such an important post should have been, as many think, quite needlessly evacuated, the entrenchments made by the Berkshires being afterwards occupied by the enemy, to our signal disadvantage.

The branding of horses purchased at Queenstown for military purposes suggests the extraordinary influence of horseflesh upon this campaign, and is a rather painful reminder of our failure, at the outset, to fully realise the absolute necessity of making proper arrangements in this direction. It is quite certain that if more mounted men had been available in the earlier stages of the war the course of events would have been altogether different; and it may well be that the practice of the military art in general will for the future be considerably modified by our trying experiences in this connection during the past three months.

The camp scene, in which the figures are all Volunteers attached to Sir William Gatacre's force, is attractive testimony to the extraordinary value of these auxiliaries in the present war. A glance at this picture is sufficient to demonstrate the workmanlike quality of such corps as the Kaffrarian and Frontier Mounted Rifles, which have done excellent service with Gatacre, and, on some occasions, have surpassed the very finest regular troops in downright usefulness. Lord Roberts has recognised the importance of these local Volunteers more clearly than perhaps his predecessor had time to do, and when the time comes for the distribution of honours and rewards, we may be sure that they will run no risk whatever of being passed over. Experts who have studied the war carefully are of opinion that in the district which these pictures illustrate most interesting developments are likely to occur.

SOME OF THE BEST.
the Volunteers in Camp with Gatacre.

HALL-MARKING.
A Necessary Precaution where Horses are in such Request.

Digitized by Google

Some of Methuen's Scouts on the Modder River.

CROSSING AN AFRICAN DRIFT
The Queen's Royal Lancers Scouting.

OVER THE GARDEN WALL.
Placing Vedettes at Daybreak.

RIMINGTON'S SCOUTS.
A Crack Colonial Corps.

TAKING A STAND EASY.
A Scouting Party of the 9th Lancers.

A ROUGH-AND-READY SHELTER.
Troops Bivouacking after a Fight.

From Photographs Taken by Earl De la Warr, Special War Correspondent of the "Globe."

Digitized by Google

With the Naval Brigade

SHELLING THE BOER LINES—A FOUR-POINT-SEVEN OF THE "TERRIBLE" AT ANCHOR.

A BATTERY IN ACTION.
Watching the Effect of a Shot.

ABOUT TO ENGAGE.
Preparing to Inspan the Oxen.

TENTH ROUND, 7,200-yds.—C.P.O. BATES KNOCKS OUT THE CENTRE SPAN OF THE TUGELA BRIDGE.

In Action at Colenso.

From Photographs Taken by Our Special War Correspondent in Natal.

Digitized by Google

In Camp on the Modder.

From Photographs Taken by Earl De la Warr, Special War Correspondent of the "Globe."

THE DESTRUCTIVE ENEMY.
A Girder Bridge Broken by the Boers.

THE WORK OF THE SAPPER.
A New Bridge Alongside the Old.

BRITISH troops have rarely, perhaps never, been in a more trying position than that in which Lord Methuen's little army has been placed in the camp on the Modder. To stand at gaze, as the old hunting term has it, is always a strain on the nerves, even when you have only to wait for the signal to begin.

It must be far worse when you have just suffered a bloody repulse. There is an air about it of confession of inferiority, which must needs be cruelly humiliating to men of a force holding the long tradition of victory enjoyed by our Army. And the worst of it is that the foe by whom we have been checked is not a regular soldier, but an armed peasant. Not only national, but professional, pride is hurt, and the sting is doubly painful. The proverbial fortune of war has surely never made itself felt in a more disagreeable fashion. Our soldiers on the Modder do not perhaps know, or care, what certain other enemies of ours, who are with the Boers more in sympathy than in active help, are saying. But it is not pleasant, though in a way it is profitable, to listen to their observations, which they may call criticism, but which are in reality scolding. There is something rather wholesome and tonic in listening to their comments. They will convince the most obstinate believer in the possibility of friendship between us and our neighbours in Europe of the futility of their hopes. We have been too prosperous, and have escaped the misfortunes of others too fully to have friends. At the same time, it is encouraging to observe that the ill-nature of adjoining nations is so far careful not to express itself in overt acts, which supplies good reason for doubting whether they

TO CARRY TROOPS AND GUNS TO METHUEN.
A Pontoon Bridge Thrown Across the River by the Royal Engineers.

Digitized by Google

TO TACKLE CRONJE'S COMMANDOS—THE ARRIVAL OF NAVAL REINFORCEMENTS FROM THE SQUADRON.

are all so fully persuaded as they profess to be that we are in a state of decadence. Perhaps they are quietly influenced by one consideration, about which they say nothing, and it is this, that our successful opponent at Magersfontein shows not the least inclination to come on in his turn. We may doubt whether this is because he suffered too severely himself. Unhappily, the conditions of the game rather suggest that this cannot be the explanation. And yet if he did not, his quiescence only goes to show that he has no great taste for attacking.

Yet it is only by taking the offensive with vigour that victory can be obtained. If the Boers can only stand stoutly on the defensive, the time must surely come when they will be turned out. Meanwhile our troops must stand on guard in the sunburnt country through which they have advanced to the relief of Kimberley, which town again goes on very cheerfully in an unrelieved state. It does not appear to offer many resources nor any shelter A great rocky and treeless expanse, with a river running across it, is the impression one gathers from photographs, and than this nothing is more depressing. When it is added that the glaring heat by day is varied by cold at night, and thunderplumps which drench you in a second, all its beauties may more or less be realised. Add the oppressive strain of idleness, or of strenuous watching and effort which lead to no visible results, and we can appreciate the melancholy position of our men. The consoling feature is that the burden is well carried. And then we must get what satisfaction we can out of the reflection that it is not good for an army or any body of men to be too uniformly successful. One gets too cocksure and confident, a frame of mind which has been known to lead men into unpleasant surprises. We have unfortunately encountered more than one of these.

A MOBILE FORTRESS.
Patrolling the Repaired Railroad.

A WELCOME TRAIN-LOAD.
Tommy's Christmas Presents from Home.

Digitized by Google

The Relief of Ladysmith.

TO CROSS THE RIVER.
A Pontoon Section for Use at Trichardt's Drift.

A PLUCKY SURGEON.
Major G. W. Brazier-Creagh Holding the Unexploded Shell Fired at Him while Assisting the Wounded.

GENERAL BULLER INSPECTING THE LINES.

FOOD FOR THE HORSES.
The 1st Royal Dragoons Drawing Forage.

With Our Forces on the Tugela.

BOUND FOR NETLEY.
Indian Bearers Lifting Wounded Men into the Ambulance Train after the Battle of Colenso.

From Photographs Taken by Our Special War Correspondent in Natal.

Digitized by Google

Some War Correspondents IN South Africa.

REPRESENTING THE "GLOBE."
Earl De la Warr's Quarters: On the Veldt with Methuen's Division.

THE "NAVY AND ARMY."
The Figure on the Right Standing Up is Our Special War Correspondent in Natal, Mr. Harford Haviland.

THE "DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Mr. Bennett Burleigh Watching the Boer Wounded being Taken to Hospital.

With Pen and Camera AT THE Front.

THE "WESTMINSTER GAZETTE."
Mr. C. Shelley with His Cape Cart and Horses at Modder River.

FOR "BLACK AND WHITE."
Mr. Rene Bull Photographing the Smashed Armoured Train near Colenso.

From Photographs Taken by Earl De la Warr, Special War Correspondent of the "Globe," and others.

Digitized by Google

The Insurance Companies and the War.

By An Actuary.

THE present war in South Africa has been rich in surprises. It has set military men several new problems, and it has given the life assurance companies at least one puzzle, to which their long history has been able to supply no precedent. The companies have understood perfectly well how to deal with professional fighters, with Naval or Army officers, but the sudden appearance of civilians in khaki enrolled for active service has worried them terribly. Hitherto they have looked upon the Yeomanry and Volunteers as being more or less ornamental troops, whose military duties as defenders of the country at home were not in the least likely to bring them within reach of bullets. When, however, the Government recently called for volunteers from these peaceful branches of the Auxiliary Forces to go to South Africa in real earnest warfare, there were few insurance officials whose minds were not gravely disturbed. What were they to do? On the one hand was a newspaper writing public ready to call out against war risk premiums as unpatriotic, and on the other hand were the policy-holders and shareholders of the companies who would have to pay seriously for any indulgence in sentiment on the part of their directors. It is the business of this article to make clear what the companies have done and their reasons for doing it.

Let us first take the case of the professional soldiers and sailors. Here there was no difficulty. The risks of warfare to those who take part in it have been carefully worked out and tabulated by insurance companies, and every prospectus contains the conditions on which Navy or Army men may insure their lives. The companies offer them a choice of two courses—they may either spread the war risk over several years or take it in the lump. They may either pay a small extra premium of about 10s. per cent. on their insurance money, and continue to pay this regularly, whether they are in times of peace or of war, or they may insure simply as civilians, and submit to being charged such a war premium as their company may consider necessary when they are ordered to take part in a campaign. The practice of the companies is quite well known, and the officers make their choice. At present officers, who have not adopted the first plan of insuring with a small continuous extra, are being charged a war rate of from £5 5s. to £7 7s. per cent. to cover the risk of their death in South Africa. These officers took their choice with their eyes open, and to do them justice they do not grumble—at any rate, not in public.

The Case of the Volunteers.

But when they came to consider the entirely different case of the Volunteers, the companies found themselves in uncharted waters. Those who were already insured had insured as civilians, and those who might want to insure must be presumed to incur the same risks as regular soldiers. It was plain from the first that a distinction must be made between those who were already insured and those who were not, and this for reasons which I will make as simple as possible. During many years past the terms of insurance policies have been growing simpler. Even twenty years ago a policy was a portentous document, full of things a policy-holder must not do. He must live within certain limits of latitude; he must not engage in certain occupations; he must not commit suicide; he must not be hanged. Fifty years ago the contracts were still more absurd. An assurer must not put his life deliberately in peril; he must not go up a mountain, or ascend in a balloon. It was really almost required of him that he should keep his house at a certain temperature, and always wear flannel next the skin. Two powerful forces broke down all these vexatious restrictions—they impeded business, and they were of no pecuniary value. It was discovered that people so rarely committed suicide, and were so rarely hanged, that these conditions might be dropped. Then it was discovered that when men had settled down in this country, or in the healthy colonies, they rarely went flying off to West Africa or Central America. So the regulations as to residence began to go too. The simplifying process has gone on rapidly until many first-class companies have taken up the practice of issuing whole-world and unrestricted policies to all assurers who, at the time of effecting the assurance, have no prospect of going to unhealthy climates or of taking to dangerous occupations. And a great many more offices make their policies equally free from conditions after they have been in force for a few years.

A moment's reflection will show how important this practice became when existing policy-holders volunteered for the front. It was then immediately seen that those offices who had swept their policies clear of conditions could not charge these men any extra, however much risk they incurred. And those companies whose contracts were most simple were among the best and most powerful institutions in the country. In insurance, as in most other trades, the big stores are cheaper and better than the small struggling shops. The best companies could not charge any extra premiums, and this fact had a most potent influence on the action of the smaller and less progressive offices. It was practically impossible for these offices, in view of the bitter competition between insurance agents, to stand out for their legal rights. In most cases resistance was not to be thought of, and so those companies who retained the power to make concessions in most cases made them. And it would be demanding too much of human nature to expect them not to get what advertisement they could out of the concessions. The manner in which the directors of one institution of high reputation—the London Life Association—acted really does deserve special commendation. There was no flourish of patriotism at the expense of other people, and no seeking after advertisement. The directors simply announced that as they could not conscientiously allow their volunteering policy-holders to incur a war risk at the expense of the other members of the association, the directors themselves and the officials would pay the extra premiums out of their own pockets.

The Uninsured Volunteers.

As regards the Volunteers who were already insured, many companies found themselves between the devil of powerful competitors and the deep sea of an indignant public, but as regards the uninsured civilian fighter there was no obstacle to the exercise of financial prudence. No hampering contracts were in force, and as regards the companies the unprotected Volunteer, or the Volunteer who wished to increase his existing assurance, was in precisely the same position as a Naval or Military officer who had insured as a civilian. It was not safe to suppose that he would be kept in comparative security at the base or on the lines of communication, and consequently the offices, with as much unanimity as they ever reach, decided to charge him a stiff war risk premium. In a matter of this sort it is rather cheap to talk loudly of the want of patriotism on the part of insurance companies. Directors are only the trustees of the large funds which are under their control, and the immense proportion of these apparently overflowing resources are pledged to meet existing liabilities. The principal supporters of life offices are by no means wealthy middle-class people, and every penny which is spent in insufficiently protected risks comes directly out of their divisible surplus. In these days even proprietary life offices are little more than huge mutual benefit societies. If the extra premiums which the Volunteers who go to South Africa inevitably incur ought to be borne by persons other than themselves, the burden should surely fall upon the whole country, and not upon an insignificant section of it. The war risk premium is not an arbitrary impost. It is calculated with exactness, and it is no exaggeration to say that £5 per cent. per man is no more than the cost price of insuring the lives of our patriotic Volunteers. Although extra premiums are being almost universally charged, one office—the Economic—has offered to assure any of the Volunteers or Yeomen without any addition to the ordinary premium to the limit of £500 each. This means that the Economic office will almost certainly lose £25 on each man whom it insures in this way, and if the other policy-holders make no complaint they deserve to receive every credit for their public spirit. Another company—the Sun Life—seeks to mitigate the severity of the war extra by putting its Volunteers into a distinct class, and, after charging them an extra of £7 7s. per cent. to return the greater part of any surplus which may remain after the war claims have been met. Still, such exceptions as exist only serve to call attention to the general practice of the offices, which is to estimate the risk of the campaign in South Africa at from £5 5s. to £7 7s. per cent. To blame the offices for putting on stiff additional charges seems to the writer to be as unreasonable as to express gratitude to them for the so-called concessions they are alleged to have made. The question has throughout been treated by them on strict business lines, and though insistence upon the requirements of prudence may jar upon the feelings of those patriots who themselves run no financial or personal risks in the country's cause, yet they point the inevitable course which the fiduciary position of the directors compels them to follow.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

THE great public interest that has been evinced in our illustrations of many battle-fields and scenes of military activity in South Africa, makes it a pleasant duty to add other pictures to the series. These are vivid presentments, bringing before us the conditions of soldier-life during the war. Rivers and bridges play a large and curious part in our fighting. The bridge at Hope Town from which Lord Methuen may be said to have begun his advance is the largest in the country, was built by the Colonial Government at a cost of £114,000, and is 1,480-ft. long. There was also a good girder bridge across the Modder, but the Boers did not retreat without first destroying it. However, the Royal Engineers are admirable bridge-builders, and recruits are soon inducted into the duties of the camp and pontooning at Wouldham, near Chatham. Proper material of course accompanied Lord Methuen's column, and the throwing of a pontoon bridge across the river was very speedily and successfully accomplished, thus providing for the further operations of the column.

The kopjes we illustrate near Belmont — the scene of Lord Methuen's victory of November 23, when the Guards suffered so heavily —are typical of those found in many parts of South Africa. These isolated rocky and often flat-topped hills make excellent points of vantage for the defence. Generally the surrounding land is level and open, and to attack a well-defended kopje is no easy matter. The Boers are masters in the art of using the advantages of ground, and they know the country thoroughly. We cannot but admit that they have made the most of their opportunities, and the terrible loss suffered by the Naval Brigade in carrying the hill at Graspan illustrates how well they know how to make the most of a kopje. Behind the rocky ledges and amid the rough stones it is easy to lie hid, and yet to pour a deadly fire upon the assailants advancing across the open ground; and to this condition must be attributed a large part of the loss we have suffered both in Natal and on the Western Border. Experience is always valuable, and our soldiers have now learned to be wary in attacking kopjes.

The picture of Boer trenches near the Orange River illustrates another advantage our enemy possesses. It is an advantage that often falls to the defending side, but the Boers have certainly made better use of the spade than we anticipated. There is, unfortunately, reason to know that a traitor trained in our own Royal Engineers has been their instructor, and they have, besides, had many foreign assistants. General French, in whose part of the theatre of war these Boer entrenchments lie, has fortunately not suffered from the enemy's spade-work so much as Lord Methuen and Sir Redvers Buller, and it is to be hoped that he will not be driven to make a frontal attack on a place well prepared by our astute adversaries.

ON THE MODDER RIVER.
The Pontoon Bridge Thrown Across by the Engineers.

KOPJES NEAR BELMONT.
Showing the Kind of Country in which Our Soldiers are Fighting.

BOER ENTRENCHMENTS ON THE ORANGE RIVER.
Places in which Our Sharpshooting Enemies Lie Concealed.

From Photographs Taken by Earl De la Warr, Special War Correspondent of the "Globe."

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

THE writer of this chronicle was unfortunately a little too sanguine in his anticipation that by the close of the last week the relief of Ladysmith would be accomplished. Looking at the state of affairs at the moment when this forecast was made, it will be admitted that extreme hopefulness was justified, and, had things taken the course which was clearly indicated by the excellence of Sir Redvers Buller's plan of operations, and by the vigour with which the initial stages of that plan had been accomplished, there is little doubt but that, at any rate, some sort of junction between the beleaguered garrison under Sir George White and the relieving force under Sir Redvers Buller and Sir Charles Warren would have been carried out by Saturday. As it is, it is impossible as yet to say how far wrong the writer has been in his "too previousness." And, in the meantime, a situation—possibly of only temporary significance—was disclosed at the beginning of this week, to which the term unsatisfactory is about the mildest that can with justice be applied.

Taking up the story at the point at which we dropped it last week, we find that on the 23rd ult. Sir Charles Warren was still fighting in front of Spion Kop, to within a short distance of which he had won his way by steady uphill fighting. On the date mentioned the actual position is described to have partaken of the nature of a respite. The Boers were still holding the crest of a ridge, of which Spion Kop appears to have been the dominant feature. Our men held a line of broken ground where a gentle sloping glacis became to the eye an almost precipitous hillside. Along an uneven front, following the line of the valleys and spurs, were stone breastworks, built during the night, behind which lay our firing line. There was a continuous interchange of shots with the enemy, who were posted less than a mile away, digging hard, and otherwise making ready to resist an evidently impending attack. In the steep little valleys to the rear of our fighting line lay our supports, cooking, eating, sleeping, and bathing, safe, except from an occasional shell.

On Tuesday evening, the 23rd ult., Sir Redvers Buller telegraphed that Sir Charles Warren was holding his position and that the British forces were shelling the enemy on Spion Kop with howitzers and field artillery, the Boers replying with Creusot and other guns. In this duel the advantage was said to be with us; but, owing to the steepness of the ground in rear, it was difficult to bring up our guns into really good positions, while the open nature of the space intervening between our existing line of breastworks and Spion Kop reduced a frontal attack by day impracticable. Accordingly, it was resolved to attack Spion Kop by night, and the attempt was to be made that very evening.

It is needless to say that this telegram, issued in the small hours of Wednesday morning, produced a great sensation, which deepened into serious anxiety as Wednesday passed without any further news. It was felt that the proposed attack might be of crucial importance, and it was not unreasonably suggested that the War Office had taken a somewhat extraordinary course in announcing in such an open manner the fact that it was about to be made. When the Thursday morning papers came out without a line to show whether the attack had failed or succeeded, the public suspense was very considerable. Before noon, however, the War Office had issued a reassuring telegram from Sir Redvers Buller, dated Spearman's Camp, January 25, ten minutes after midnight, to the effect that on the previous night (i.e., that of the 23rd) Warren's troops had occupied Spion Kop, surprising the small garrison, who had fled. The Kop had been held by us all day, though we were heavily attacked, and especially by a very annoying shell fire. Our casualties had been considerable, and General Woodgate, commanding one of Sir Charles Warren's brigades, had been dangerously wounded. Sir Charles Warren was of opinion, added Sir Redvers Buller, that he had rendered the enemy's position untenable. The telegram ended with the inspiring words, "The men are splendid!"

Throughout the afternoon and evening the public were sustained by the cheery conviction that the beginning of the end had indeed been reached, and that within a few hours yet more gratifying intelligence might be forthcoming It was true that the explicit statement that the Boer garrison of Spion Kop had been a small one was not as satisfactory as could be wished, while the suggestion of heavy casualties seemed to indicate that the Kop was not an easy place to hold. Still the moral effect of the success was excellent, and the recorded opinion of Sir Charles Warren that he had rendered the Boer position untenable naturally caused all our hopes to run high.

The disappointment, therefore, was the greater when on the Friday morning (26th) another telegram from Sir Redvers Buller, stated to have been received at 6 a.m., was posted at the War Office, running as follows: "Spearman's Camp, 12.5 p.m., January 25—Warren's garrison, I am sorry to say, I find this morning, had in the night abandoned Spion Kop." This telegram, it will be seen, is dated twelve hours, less five minutes, later than the previous one. At the time it was despatched the public were hardly aware that Spion Kop had been captured. Now they knew that it had been captured on the Tuesday night, held with difficulty all day Wednesday, and evacuated on Wednesday night. The blow to the public hopes was a serious one, and, at the time of writing, had not been modified by any subsequent information of a cheering character.

The news of the evacuation of Spion Kop was not followed by the publication of any details until Monday morning, when a long despatch from Sir Redvers Buller appeared, in which the whole operation was described with painful minuteness. It appeared that the evacuation was carried out, as stated, on the night of the 24th, owing to the fact that Spion Kop was untenable, and, moreover, was lacking in water supply. Sir Redvers Buller, being informed of what had taken place, hastened to Sir Charles Warren's camp, and, judging a fresh assault inadvisable, ordered a withdrawal of Warren's Division across the Tugela. This was effected in an orderly manner without loss.

On the 26th a number of casualties, including six officers killed, were reported as having taken place on the 24th, and it was at once concluded that they were those to which Sir Redvers Buller had alluded in his telegram announcing the capture of Spion Kop as having occurred while Warren was holding that position. It transpired, however, that these casualties had all been in corps belonging to Lyttelton's Brigade, which, it will be remembered, had crossed the Tugela at Potgieter's Drift while Sir Charles Warren's division was crossing at Trichardt's Drift, and had subsequently encamped about two miles the other side of the river. It is clear, then, that Lyttelton as well as Warren must have been heavily engaged on the 24th. Amongst the casualties in this engagement is the commanding officer of another battalion of the King's Royal Rifle Corps, Lieutenant-Colonel Buchanan-Riddell, who is reported to have been killed, together with two other officers of the same corps, and three of the Cameronians (Scottish Rifles).

While things were faring thus doubtfully with the relieving force, the garrison of Ladysmith, encouraged doubtless by the near approach of Sir Redvers Buller, were sending most cheery messages to Frere. In one of these, dated from Ladysmith the 21st ult., it was stated that the fortifications on Cæsar's Camp and Wagon Hill had been greatly strengthened, and that Ladysmith was now, practically speaking, impregnable. It was also asserted that fever had abated, and that the number of convalescents returning from the isolated camp exceeded that of the patients sent out. Finally, the supplies were lasting splendidly, and all the troops had a sufficiency of wholesome food. These facts were pleasing to dwell upon in the state of painful uncertainty which surrounded the movements of the relieving force.

Meanwhile, on the Western Border no perceptible change had taken place, Lord Methuen contenting himself chiefly with reconnaissances with the object of keeping the enemy constantly on the alert, and causing them to have a large number of men always in readiness to defend at any point their long line of entrenchments. These not very striking movements were accompanied by a pretty steady shelling of the enemy's position. The excuse given for the inactivity displayed in this quarter was that a complete reorganisation of transport and supply arrangements was being effected, but, considering the time that had elapsed since the repulse at Magersfontein, it was beginning to be felt that the delay in the resumption of the advance was growing something more than irksome. On the 24th ult. Major-General Hector Macdonald, of Omdurman fame, arrived from India, and took over command of the Highland Brigade formerly led by the late Major-General Wauchope.

Kimberley has been recently subjected to a somewhat severer bombardment, but no serious results are recorded.

On Sunday it was reported from Lourenço Marques—and the authority given is a Boer one—that Mafeking was relieved on the 23rd ult. Of course, it would be wrong to accept this as a fact, but some colour is lent to the suggestion by a despatch dated the 10th ult., which said that one of the leading Free State commanders had left the investing force and taken a number of friends with him "sick and tired of the whole business."

There was no appreciable change up to the time of writing in the positions of either French or Gatacre, but it is interesting to note that on the 24th ult. a patrol from Gatacre's camp at Sterkstroom returned, having effected a connection with General French's column at Steynsburg.

Digitized by Google

THE FOOTBALL TEAM OF THE 2nd ROYAL DUBLIN FUSILIERS.
Playing Five a Side.

THE TUG-OF-WAR TEAM OF THE 2nd ROYAL DUBLIN FUSILIERS.
The Winners of the Natal Open Championship.

ON that October forenoon when the Dublins scaled the Talana Hill in the face of a deadly rifle fire at short range, they showed themselves to be as fine soldiers as there are in the Army, and well lived up to their glorious regimental motto, "We are judged by our deeds." And the "Old Toughs," as the 2nd Dublins were called when they were the most ancient as a battalion amongst the European regiments of "John Company," are as good sportsmen as they are soldiers. One of our illustrations shows the regimental team that won the football five-a-side tournament played at Pieter Maritzburg just before the war, and for which seventeen teams entered. The other shows the team that won the open tug-of-war championship. Let us hope that all those in our pictures may come scatheless out of the long investment and fighting defence of Ladysmith, to share in many a friendly contest in the football or athletic field.

THE FOOTBALL TEAM OF No. 15 COMPANY S. DIVISION R.G.A.
Now Forming Part of the Siege Train in South Africa.

GUNNERS generally make fine footballers, and the two companies whose teams are here depicted can put some exceptionally good men into the field. Just before the 15th Company was ordered to South Africa, the two companies met in a tough struggle, which resulted in a draw of three goals each. Tommy is never so happy as when helping his comrades, and all the more so when they are taking the risks of active service, and so the gate money went to the fund for widows and orphans. Although the weather was bad, the attendance was very good, and the fund in consequence netted a nice little sum.

WHILE the 1st Battalion of the Welsh Regiment is assisting to "hammer Paul," the men of the 2nd Battalion are winning sporting laurels in India's sunny clime. The team here represented holds what is for India—and very probably for anywhere—a record, viz., that of having

Photos. Copyright.
THE FOOTBALL TEAM OF No. 20 COMPANY S. DIVISION R.G.A
The Siege Train Company now at Fort Fareham.

"Navy & Army."
THE FOOTBALL TEAM OF THE 2nd WELSH REGIMENT.
Winners for the Sixth Time in Succession of the Bombay Gymkhana Rugby Football Cup.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. H. Sharpe.

FAR EASTERN SOLDIERS OF THE QUEEN.
The Recruits of the Chinese Regiment at Wei-hai-Wei

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army.

THE MILITARY CONVALESCENT HOME AT EASTBOURNE.
Men from Aldershot and the South-Eastern District.

won during six consecutive years the same football cup. This is the cup given by the Bombay Gymkhana for Rugby football, and the 2nd Welsh won it in 1894 and in every year since. Three times the battalion has played for the Calcutta Club cup, winning it once and losing it twice, but always getting into the final. Both these cups are open, being entered for by both civilian and regimental teams from every part of India. In struggling to hold the Bombay cup all these years the 2nd Welsh has met pretty nearly every regiment in India that plays a "Rugger" team, as well as the strong teams from the three Presidency towns. Officers who share in their men's sports are always good men and true, and one of these is Lieutenant Brandreth, who in our illustration is seen holding the ball. That he is a smart officer is proved by the fact that only a few days ago he vacated the adjutancy of his regiment, his term having expired. He has played for the team for the last five years, and captained it for the last four.

HOWEVER highly educated the "Heathen Chinee" may be in all the marvellous military lore of his most wonderful country, he yet, when he joins Her Majesty's Army, has to struggle with the intricacies of the goose step, as has the most ignorant of foreign devils, and our illustration shows him struggling. The new Chinese regiment is well supplied with British officers, and is commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Bower of the Indian Staff Corps.

IN another illustration we have a group of convalescents from the home at Eastbourne taking the air on the sea-front, and eagerly discussing the latest news from the theatre of war. To this home are sent convalescents from Aldershot and all stations in the S.E. District, which accounts for the variety of uniforms, for the group comprises a Highlander, Guardsmen, Gunners, and Infantry of the Line.

NO finer corps is there in the Indian Army than the Loodiana Sikhs, raised as "Gordon's Sikhs" in 1846. They have seen service in China, 1860-62; in the Mutiny; in Afghanistan, 1878-80, including the battle of Ahmed Khel, the famous march, and the battle of Candahar; in the Soudan, 1885, including the battle of Tofrek; in the Chitral Campaign of 1895; and throughout the whole of the Tirah Campaign of 1897. The regiment is, as its name denotes, a class one, and is recruited entirely from Cis-Sutlej Jat Sikhs, a purely agricultural class of peasant proprietors, whose traditions allow them to follow naught but the plough or the drum. Splendid in physique and stout in heart, they make ideal soldiers. Look at the upper group, and say if you would wish to lead into action a finer body of men. Every man in the group is medalled, and eight have both the late and present I.G.S. medal, and no less than eight of the ten have four clasps to the latter. Sepoy Atar Singh is the veteran of the group, having seventeen years' service.

15th (THE LOODIANA SIKH) REGIMENT OF BENGAL INFANTRY.—Bugler and Sepoys.

Sepoy Warrian Singh. Sepoy Esur Singh. Seboy Bhan Singh. Sepoy Ganda Singh. Sepoy Atar Singh. Sepoy Ulum Singh. Sepoy Bissen Singh. Sepoy Chait Singh. Sepoy Hurnam Singh. Bugler Bir Singh.

On the right lobe of the turbans may be seen the iron quoit worn by the Sikh regiments. The quoit as a weapon is a bit out of date; but it is still worn by the Sikhs as a badge of their race, and quoit throwing is a popular sport. The silver quoit worn by Bhan Singh in the front of his turban is one of eight presented by the Prince of Wales for annual competition in each company. Note carefully the second group, and you will see that Naik Ram Singh, Havildar Karam Singh, and Subadar Gurdit Singh wear the Order of Merit, the Indian soldier's V.C. Naik Ram Singh has been wounded three times, and the subadar once. Havildar Karam Singh won his Order of Merit in Central Africa, and both he and Lance-Havildar Kissen Singh wear the Central African medal. Havildar Prem Singh has hair any fair lady might envy, for it is 5-ft. long. He takes after Samson in more than the length of his hair, for he is an exceptionally powerful man.

Photos. Copyright. Bourne & Shepherd.

15th (THE LOODIANA SIKH) REGIMENT OF BENGAL INFANTRY.

Subadar Gurdit Singh. Lance-Havildar Kissen Singh. Naik Hazara Singh. Havildar Karam Singh. Naik Hurri Singh. Havildar Prem Singh. Lance-Naik Kissen Singh. Naik Ram Singh. Lance-Naik Dhiar Singh. Havildar Bhaggat Singh. Jemadar Sawan Singh.

Digitized by Google

Our Colonial Forces: New Zealand.—X.

THE articles on our colonial forces which appear from time to time in these pages should prove of special interest at present. Every day brings us fresh offers of arms and men from our colonies. Nor have the Volunteers of Greater Britain, whose privilege it is to be already "at the front," failed to prove themselves equal to the occasion. Truly we have reason to be proud of our colonial troops, and among them of the local forces of New Zealand.

The present crisis has proved beneficial in filling the ranks of our Volunteers at home, and the same may be said of the colonial corps. Not only have those who already wear Her Majesty's uniform come forward gladly, but new corps are, in many places, being formed. In this connection it may be noted that a movement is now on foot to send a corps of bushmen from Australia and New Zealand to the theatre of war. That these hardy Sons of the Empire will take kindly to soldiering there is no doubt, and, accustomed as they are to the "back country," they are specially qualified for employment as mounted infantry.

In the ranks of the contingent sent from New Zealand there are, among men from other corps, five Volunteers from the Ellesmere Mounted Rifles (Canterbury), of which regiment two illustrations are here given. Though young in comparison with most of the corps in the colony, the Ellesmere Mounted Rifles are among the most promising, and owe their existence to no war scare or emergency, but rather to the solid patriotism of the district in which they were raised. The spirit that gives us so many Volunteers in time of need is ever to be admired, but a word of praise is due to those who in the calm of peace-time are active in repairing the bulwarks of the Empire. Captain Boag, who commands the corps, is a young and energetic officer, always ready to take up the latest ideas in drill and tactics. The other officers are Lieutenants Meurs, Hill, and Deal, who are equally enthusiastic in everything pertaining to the corps. The recruits are chiefly drawn from among the farmers in the district, and, as regards physique, can hold their own with any corps in the colony.

READY FOR THE BOERS.
Officers and Non-commissioned Officers, Ellesmere Mounted Rifles (Canterbury).

Photos. Copyright. A LIKELY LOT. "Navy & Army."
The Rank and File of the Ellesmere Mounted Rifles.

Photo. Copyright. A GOOD DAY'S WORK IN CAMP. Standley.
Waipawa Rifles.

The Waipawa Rifles have their headquarters in the bush country of the North Island, where the inhabitants are exceedingly patriotic, and always ready to draw the sword in defence of the Mother Country. As may be seen from the accompanying illustrations, the corps is a smart one and well set-up. The officers are Captain Rathbone and Lieutenants Joll and Collert. Unlike our Volunteers at home, the men when in camp work hard morning and evening, attending to their ordinary occupations during the day. At the last camp of exercise the corps performed some genuine hard work. The daily routine was as follows: Réveille, 5 a.m.; parade, 5.30; breakfast, 7; tea, 6.30 p.m.; parade, 7; guard mounting, 9; tattoo, 10; lights out, 10.15 p.m. Thus it may be seen that the duties falling to the corps were by no means child's play. After a hard day's work in the office or on the

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. KEEPING IN FIGHTING CONDITION Golder.
Waipawa Rifles.

NEW ZEALAND SCOTS.
Officers and Non-commissioned Officers, Dunedin Highlanders.

Photos. Copyright. "SCOTLAND FOR EVER." Esquilant.
Rank and File, Dunedin Highlanders.

farm the average man is not usually in a mood for drill, but the Waipawa men are nothing if not patriotic and keen soldiers.

During training the Lieutenant-Colonel Newall paid an inspection visit to the camp, and witnessed the men being put through the various evolutions by the officers and non-commissioned officers. The colonel expressed himself as well pleased with the steadiness of the corps.

It is usually believed that Scotchmen are to be found in even the remotest parts of the globe. In New Zealand, at least, they form a considerable part of the population.

The Scottish province of Otago is the birthplace of the only kilted corps in the colony—the Dunedin Highlanders. It takes its name from Dunedin, the capital of the province, and was raised in 1885. At that time there was a decided "boom" in Volunteer circles, owing, no doubt, to the Russian War scare.

As a suitable uniform for the newly-formed corps, that of the Black Watch was selected, and in an accompanying picture the officers and non-commissioned officers appear in the full dress of the corps, than which there is, perhaps, none more striking in the whole British Army. The uniform adopted entailed a very heavy demand upon the purses of the men, but the initial outlay has not prevented the corps from rising to a prominent position among others in New Zealand.

The first commanding officer was Captain A. Macgregor, who had as his subalterns Lieutenants McIntosh and Henderson. In 1887 Captain Macgregor resigned, and was followed by Captain Gunn. The latter held command until 1890, when Lieutenant Macpherson succeeded him.

The following year another change took place in the command. Lieutenant Gillies was gazetted captain, and filled that position until Captain Stoneham, the present commanding officer, succeeded him. The subalterns are now Lieutenants Dempster and Evans.

As is usually the case in Scottish corps, the men are for the most part good athletes, and show great interest in every kind of manly sport. On one occasion, at the Dunedin Military Tournament, the Dunedin Highlanders succeeded in securing first prize in the bayonet exercise, manual exercise, and physical drill competitions, and, at the same time the second prize in the tug-of-war.

This reputation is in itself sufficient to account for the fact that the corps is at present recruited up to its maximum strength of 63. As evidence, however, of the frequent changes that take place in colonial corps, it may be mentioned that, besides the commanding officer only one man—Private Moffatt—joined the corps on its formation. Although the members have come and gone, there has been no change in the character of the corps, which is essentially Scottish. Another illustration shows a number of the rank and file in working "kit." The feather bonnet and doublet are certainly picturesque, but they are kept for special occasions. The ordinary work of the corps has to be done in a more comfortable, if less attractive, "rig," to borrow a word from the Sister Service.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

VOL. IX.—No. 158.] SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 10th. 1900.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

SIR REDVERS BULLER AND A WAR CORRESPONDENT.

From the intent attitude of Mr. Bennett Burleigh, who is now at the front in Natal, he would appear to be receiving from the General some information of special interest. We may be quite sure, however, that the knowledge will not be sent home so as to be in any way useful to our friend the enemy. The experienced correspondent knows his work too well for that, and the Press Censor lurks behind.

From a Photograph by Mr. Harford Hartland, Our Special War Correspondent in Natal.

Digitized by Google

A Tribute to Empire.

OUR GALLANT SLAIN.

MAJOR R. S. BOWEN,
2nd King's Royal Rifles.

THE EARL OF AVA,
On Brigadier-General Hamilton's Staff.

CAPTAIN HON. R. F. CARNEGIE,
2nd Gordon Highlanders.

CAPTAIN A. F. LAMBTON,
1st Battalion Highland Light Infantry.

CAPTAIN J. W. A. COWAN,
1st Battalion Highland Light Infantry, D.S.O.

LIEUT.-COL. J. H. C. COODE,
2nd Black Watch.

CAPTAIN A. H. GOLDIE,
Royal Field Artillery.

LIEUTENANT C. B. SCHREIBER,
Royal Artillery.

MAJOR J. F. W. CHARLEY,
1st Battalion Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers.

CAPTAIN KNAPP,
Imperial Light Horse.

MAJOR C. B. HARVEY.
10th Hussars.

THE HEROES WE MOURN.

From Photos. by Knight, Cumming, Bassano, Heath, Debenham, Wyrall, Temple, and Chancellor.

Digitized by Google

Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories.

By Frederick G. Engelbach.

ENFIELD LOCK.—II.

THE RAW MATERIAL.
Specimens of Rough Forgings for Portions of Rifles, Swords, and Bayonets. The Gradation of the Barrel shown from the Rough Ingot to the Finished Article.

ROLLING THE BARREL—"IN."
Ingots are Heated White-hot, and are Passed through Tandem Rollers. They Enter 15-in. Long, 1⅞-in. Thick, and Weighing 6-lb. 1-oz.

AFTER all the barrel is the most important portion of a rifle, and hence the visitor to the Small Arms Factory sees more of its manufacture than of the other smaller details. The ingots, seen on the right of the rough castings, are bought from the trade at Sheffield, and are tested to a breaking strain of 38 tons to the square inch. As the maximum pressure from the Service cartridge is only 15 tons, this leaves a considerable margin of safety. After being rolled by the five pairs of tandem rollers, the barrel, now an attenuated bar of crucible steel, is hammered straight and flung into a heap to cool.

ROLLING THE BARREL—"OUT."
In 30-sec. the Barrel Emerges 33-in. Long, and with a Decided Resemblance to a Gun Barrel. (See the Specimen Fixed on the Top of the Roller.)

The first process involves a preliminary turning in a lathe, which, after lasting for five minutes, leaves the barrel ready for boring. To achieve this, drills acting from each end have to remove a solid piece of steel ·303-in. bore from the rod, and so beautifully are they centred that when finished no untrained eye can detect the spot where they met. The drills are hollow, and through this space soap and oil emulsion is driven under a pressure of 80-lb. to the square inch. This is done to cool the cutting edge and to remove the waste, which otherwise would clog the machine. By careful training it is possible to so educate

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

A FOREST OF BANDS.
The Boring Machine for Rifle Barrels is Capable of Boring Five Rifles in 40-min., the Cutters Making 1,000 Revolutions per Minute.

Digitized by Google

A CAREFUL VIEWER.
A Man Examining the Rifle Barrel to see if the Slightest Deflection from the Straight can be Detected. It takes Fourteen Months to Train a Viewer, and only Ten per Cent. of those Trained are Worth Anything.

the eye that a viewer can detect the least inaccuracy in the interior of a barrel, but this gift does not last long, to the exceeding grief of the workman. The exterior of the cylinder now demands attention, and in twenty minutes fine steel cutters trim the barrel to an exquisite smoothness. The viewer again inspects it, this time by reflected light. By fixing the barrel on a lathe, and by making it rotate rapidly with a light at one end, the eye can readily recognise any bulging due to the turning operation. All being satisfactory, the much-inspected barrel goes to its first proof, for which purpose the chamber end is tapped with a screw

PROOF—THE BATTERY OPEN.
For First Proof, Rifle Barrels have their Chamber End Tapped and a Screw Plug and Heavy Charge Inserted; then the Battery is Closed.

PROOF—THE BATTERY SHUT.
A Train of Powder is Laid, Communicating with each Touch-hole, and is Fired by Means of the Lanyard Shown, which Operates a Hammer.

thread. Into this a steel plug having a touch-hole is screwed, and hence the future breech-loader becomes a muzzle-loader. Black powder, 110-gr. by weight, and 350-gr. of lead are rammed down, the normal charge of powder (when used) being 70-gr. and of bullet 215-gr. Placed with others in a battery open to a heap of sand, the whole row is fired by means of a cap communicating with a train of powder. If on examination no flaw is detected, the screw plug is removed from the barrel and it is well washed in boiling soap and water to remove all products of combustion. In the turnery the screw thread is removed, thus slightly enlarging the breech chamber. This allows for the extra calibre of the brass cartridge-case.

STRAIGHTENING BARRELS.
This Machine Ensures that any Bending or other Deformity of the Barrel Due to Proof or Manufacture may be Rectified.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

A RIFLE PUZZLE.

On this Board are Laid the Portions of a Complete Rifle, also an Assembled Rifle and Carbine. From these Portions a Skilled Hand will, with Incredible Rapidity, put the Rifle Together.

(Previous articles of this series appeared on July 15 and January 27).

Digitized by Google

THE Army and Navy Gazette for the 3rd has two sentences which seem to me to contain more sense than most of the denunciations of the War Office, or other dummies of sinners set up to be hacked at in the papers at present. The first runs thus: "The truth is the British Army has been so accustomed to doing battle against savage enemies and underrating the more brilliant achievements of our troops before the era of small wars set in, that we have completely lost our heads, and seem to have supposed that we could carry all before us." Then the second says: "If the war against the two Republics only has the effect of putting an end to sickening bombast and causes us to mend our ways, it will not have been entered upon in vain, disastrous as it has proved to our military prestige."

* * * *

The first contains a great deal of truth, but not, as it seems to me, all the truth. No doubt it is the fact, and one which was observed many centuries ago, that there is a vast difference between breaking out against the quarters of the women and falling on the quarters of the men. It was a common-place nearly two thousand years ago that the Roman legions of Syria were not to be expected to be a match for the men trained in the camps of Pannonia and of Upper and Lower Germany. And in those times the Parthian, who was the standing enemy of the Eastern Roman armies, was more nearly their equal than any Asiatic has been to any European for centuries; indeed, since the first generation of Mohammedans came in contact with the decadent armies of the Eastern Empire, which also were not recruited in Western Europe. Yet it must not be forgotten that our armies have not been solely engaged in African and Asiatic warfare. They have at least been watching what has been done by European armies, and discussing the lessons to be learnt at no small length. One cannot really believe that British officers estimate all wars by the standard of operations in Burma or on the North-West Frontier. More than that, they cannot suppose that all wars are likely to be even as our battles with the Sikhs, the most formidable Asiatics we ever met, but who yet were beaten in circumstances in which it would have been insane to hope to overthrow equally well-drilled and well-armed Europeans—at least, they do not talk so when they write books, nor yet do they in tactical societies; neither are they understood to act on any such supposition in autumn manœuvres. How comes it then that we have to be told that they do make this miscalculation when they meet the Boers?

* * * *

The explanation may partly lie in what, with all due deference, may be described as professional pedantry. It seems at all times to have been very hard for the regular-bred soldier of all nations to realise that men not trained in the same sort of school as himself may yet be his equivalent. The scorn which Charles the Rash had for the Switzers, and Braddock had for the Virginian Militia on his own side, arose from just the same cause. It was really akin to the absurd surprise attributed by Sterne to the Oxford dons, when they found that Mr. Shandy, who had not been trained on the school logic, was yet able to reason correctly. In this South African affair we seem to have been about as wise. Because the Boers are not uniformed, not divided and organised on the orthodox model, it seems to have been largely taken for granted that they must needs be little if at all better than a tumultuous mob. Nobody who heard the talk of officers before they sailed, or who has seen the letters they wrote in the early days of the war, can doubt that this was the latent conviction of very many among them. It has no real justification in experience. If there is one thing which stands out more clearly than another in their history from the not very remote time of the Voortrekkers until Majuba Hill, it is the flexibility with which the Boers have adapted their methods to their enemy, and their means to their end. They are in fact a European race, with the same kind of brain as our own. What this means is that they ought to have been credited with the capacity to make full use of every advantage they had. They have been underrated, because they are not in outward things even as ourselves; and to allow yourself to judge by the outward things only is to be a pedant. There was this, and then there was another thing, namely, the tacit assumption that, because the Boer blows his nose with his fingers and sleeps in his boots, he must be a rather absurd person; yet, as a matter of fact, a man may reason sagaciously, act resolutely, and be animated by a very formidable enthusiasm, even though he does blow his nose with his fingers and sleep in his boots.

* * * *

The Gazette's protest against sickening bombast is by no means superfluous, and is made with all the more force because it is not the first. The Army and Navy did not wait till now to denounce the kind of swagger which was becoming too common. It is not altogether new with us. Lord Palmerston gave a very bad example when the Russian War was beginning. Yet I doubt whether there has ever been quite so much of it before since the outbreak of the Spanish War of 1739. Curiously enough that business was the most fertile in defeats and failures of all our great wars. Walpole's well-known prophecy, "They are ringing their bells now, they will be wringing their hands before long," might have been uttered six months ago with equal truth. It is a fact that loud bragging is almost always the forerunner of immediate defeat, and never fails to lead to ultimate beating, for which there is the very practical reason that it comes of a foolish, light-headed frame of mind, which prevents men from going soundly to work. As it is we cut pretty much the figure which Carlyle described in one of his pieces of grim humour, "Have we not seen persons of weight and name coming forward, with gentlest indifference, to tread such a one (viz., 'the ironic young man') out of sight, as an insignificancy and worm, start ceiling high (balkenhoch) and thence fall shattered and supine, to be borne home on shutters, not without indignation, when he proved electric and a torpedo." We did step out very conscious of weight and name, and were going to tread the Boer out of sight as an insignificancy and worm, but he has proved electric and a torpedo. If we have not exactly jumped ceiling high and fallen shattered, we have had a very disagreeable shock. We are actually asking for 100,000 more men, although we shall have 180,000 on the spot by the middle of the month—that is to say, an army larger than the whole population of the two republics we are fighting. If that lesson does not cure us of bragging, for a time at least, we must be incorrigible.

* * * *

It is to me at least a very unpleasant sign that some among us are found to justify the use of bragging language in war. They will tell you that you must say that sort of thing, because the soldiers expect it, and it keeps their heart up. Do they? And what amount of natural valour have they when they cannot get along without the stimulus of verbal Dutch courage? It would be interesting to get the evidence for this precious assertion. What I for my part seem to have learnt from reading about wars is that the greatest leaders and the best fighting forces have always been singularly free from anything which could be called swagger. Napoleon was an exception, but he was after all a brutal ruffian of genius and no gentleman, while his armies, in spite of their flaunting glories, were full of ruinous defects of character. And he, too, had a kind of melodramatic rhetoric which was redeemed from the charge of being mere boasting. The thrice famous "From the summit of yonder Pyramids forty centuries behold your actions" was clap-trap if you like, but it appealed to the sense of honour in his men, and to something more than mere bullying conceit. Frederick the Great, who was cynical enough to have used any kind of language he thought likely to serve his turn, was yet not given to bragging. He did not appeal much to his men in any way. "Do you expect to live for ever, you rascals?" was the tone he commonly took. Yet when he did make an exception, on the evening before the battle of Leuthen, it was not to brag, nor to tell his soldiers that they were certainly going to win.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

FEBRUARY 11, 1744.—Mathews's action off Toulon. 1782.—The seamen and marines of the "Monarca" storm Fort Osnaburg, Trincomalee. 1836.—Lord Brassey born. 1890.—The "Assaye" launched.

February 12, 1745. — The "Rose," 20, took the Spanish "Conception," 20, with treasure, off the coast of Florida. 1811.—The "Cerberus," 32, and "Active," 38, captured ten French vessels at Ortona. 1812.—The "Apollo" took the French frigate "Merinos." 1848.—The boats of the "Alarm" and "Vixen" captured Fort Serapagui Nicaragua. 1876.—The "Belleisle" launched. 1880.—The "Atalanta" lost.

February 13, 1801.—The "Success," 32, captured by the French squadron. 1808.—The boats of the "Confiance" cut out a French gunboat off St. Domingo. 1810.—The boats of the British blockading squadron attacked the French gunboats in Basque Roads. 1814.—The "Boyne," 98, and "Caledonia," 120, off Toulon, engaged the "Romulus," 74, and "Adrienne," 40. The Island of Paxo surrendered to the "Apollo" and troops. 1892.—Death of Sir Provo Wallis, the "Father of the Fleet."

February 14, 1797.—Jervis's victory over the Spaniards off Cape St. Vincent. 1805.—The "San Fiorenzo," 38, captured the "Psyche," 40, in the Bay of Bengal. 1807.—The "Bacchante," 20, and "Mediator," 38, took a fort at Samana, St. Domingo. 1810.—The "Rainbow" and "Avon" engaged the "Nereide." Reduction of Amboyna. 1813.—The boats of the "Bacchante" capture the "Alcinous." 1814. — The "Picton" brig captured by the United States "Constitution."

February 15, 1760.—Loss of the "Ramillies," 90, on Bolt Head. 1796.—Ceylon surrendered. 1804.—Commodore Dance, with the China trade merchantmen, defeated Linois, off Pulo Aor. 1809.—The "Belle Poule," 38, captured the French corvette "Var" in the Levant. 1813.—Storming of the batteries of Pietra Nera. 1896.—The "Pelorus" launched. The "Desperate," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

February 16, 1762.—Capture of Martinique. 1782.—Sir E. Hughes's squadron captured a French convoy off Madras. 1783.—The "Magnificent," 74, captured the "Concorde," 36, off Antigua. 1798.—The boats of the "Alfred," 74, captured the "Scipion." 1857.—Captain Kane, Arctic explorer died.

February 17, 1782.—Sir E. Hughes's first battle with the Bailli de Suffren. 1794. — The "Alcede" and squadron reduced Fornielli, Corsica. 1797.—Trinidad reduced by Admiral Harvey's squadron. 1805.—The "Cleopatra," 32, taken by the "Ville de Milan," 40. 1886.—The "Anson" launched. 1894.—Unveiling of the monument at Greenwich erected to 20,000 seamen and marines buried from the hospital. The "Hazard," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

FEBRUARY 11, 1793.—War declared against France. 1803.—Sasnee taken. This fortress, after being besieged since December 12 by a force under Major-General the Hon. H. St. John and Lieutenant-Colonel Blair, was abandoned by the enemy on this day. 1815.—Surrender of Fort Bowyer. The Americans surrendered in answer to our summons without resistance.

February 12, 1429.—Battle of Herrings. During the siege of Orleans by the Earl of Suffolk, a force of 1,700, under Sir John Fastolfe, with stores—mostly herrings—for the besiegers, was attacked by 3,000 French, under Count de Chermont. Making barricades of fish waggons, our men beat off the enemy, and sallying forth, charged and routed them. 1796.—Defeat of the Dutch in Ceylon. Colonel Stuart, with a small force, while on the march to besiege Colombo, was attacked by a force of Dutch and Malays, who were effectively repulsed. 1835.—Defeat of the Kaffirs. Colonel Smith, with the 72nd and 75th Regiments and Cape Mounted Rifles, attacked and dispersed a large body of the enemy collected on the heights beyond Fish River.

February 13, 1756.—Surrender of Geriah. This piratical fortress surrendered to Admiral Watson and Colonel Clive, after a severe bombardment. 1819.—Storming of Rairee. Major-General Sir W. G. Kerr having invested this stronghold of Sawnut Warree, the lines before the fortress were gallantly stormed and carried by a small force under Lieutenant-Colonel Clifford.

February 14, 1761.—Surrender of Pondicherry. The French under Lally surrendered to Colonel Eyre Coote. 1783.—Ananpore taken. This stronghold of Tippoo Saib was taken by storm by General Mathews.

February 15, 1780.—Storm of Ahmedabad. This city, which was held by a chief favourable to the Mahrattas, was taken by storm by a force under General Goddard. 1814.—Combat of Garris, Peninsula. General Pringle, at the head of the 28th and 39th Regiments, drove the French from the summit of the Garris Mountain.

February 16, 1762.—Surrender of Martinique. After the surrender of St. Pierre, the island capitulated to General Monckton 1796.—Reduction of Ceylon. The island surrendered to Colonel Stuart. 1896.—Capture of Ilorin, West Africa. Major Arnold, with the Niger Company's forces, took this town after some sharp fighting.

February 17, 1794.—Capture of the lines of Fornielli. Convention Redoubt, the key of the fortified lines of Fornielli, Corsica, carried by storm. 1843.—Battle of Meeanee. Sir Charles Napier, at the head of only 2,600 troops, defeated with terrible slaughter 30,000 Beloochees, 5,000 of whom were cavalry, with fifteen guns.

Died for Their Country.

"Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori."

DECEMBER 11 will always be a black-letter day in the annals of the British Army, and especially amongst Highland regiments. We here give the portraits of three of the officers of the gallant Wauchope's Brigade who met their death at Magersfontein. The senior was Colonel J. H. C. Coode, who commanded the 2nd Battalion of the Black Watch. Quite a young man, for he was not yet forty-four, he had at his death been just two years in command of the regiment which he had joined as a subaltern in 1875, and to which he had always belonged. The other two of the Magersfontein heroes are Captains Lambton and Cowan. Both were quite young men, for Lambton was not thirty-one, and Cowan, though Lambton's immediate junior regimentally, was only a month or two older. Both saw service at Crete in the tough fighting that occurred at Candia in 1898, and for his services on that occasion Captain Cowan was rewarded with the Distinguished Service Order. Captain Lambton was the grand-nephew of the first Earl of Durham. Three others of our portraits are those of officers who met their death around Ladysmith on January 6, when, after long and hard fighting, the Boer attack on the invested city was repulsed.

By the death of Lord Ava the Marquess of Dufferin loses his eldest son and heir. This young nobleman, who died of his wounds, was only twenty-six years of age, and joined the 17th Lancers in 1886, serving with that regiment until 1893, when he retired from the Service. Prior to his joining the regular Army, however, he had seen active service in South Africa as a Volunteer with the Mounted Rifles in Sir Charles Warren's Bechuanaland Expedition of 1884-85. Most of his service in the 17th Lancers was passed in India, and during that time he saw active service in Burma, and also served for some time as A.D.C. to his father, then Viceroy. In his keenness to see service during the present war he went to the front originally as a Press correspondent, but was ultimately appointed to a position on the staff of Brigadier-General Ian Hamilton, chief of the staff to Sir George White.

Major Bowen, who was killed on the field, had seen all his service in the corps to which he belonged—the King's Royal Rifles. He was not quite thirty-nine, and was completing twenty years' service, the present war being his first campaign. The Hon. Robert Francis Carnegie, who, like Lord Ava, died of his wounds, was a son of the Earl of Southesk, and joined the "Gay Gordons" from the Militia in 1890, at the age of twenty-one. He had been a captain for little over a year when he met his death, having obtained his company as recently as November, 1898. In the disastrous action fought to force the passage of the Tugela on December 15 the guns of the Field Artillery were, through a terrible mistake, brought so close to the enemy's trenches that no troops could live in the open. Horses and men were shot down, and ten of the twelve guns of the 14th and 66th Field Batteries had to be abandoned. Only by a display of conspicuous gallantry—for which three officers and one man have been recommended for the Victoria Cross, and nineteen non-commissioned officers and men for the Distinguished Conduct in the Field medal—were two guns saved. Captain Goldie, the senior of the two officers whose portrait is here given, belonged to the 14th Battery, and joined the Royal Artillery in 1889, when only a little over nineteen years of age. Lieutenant Schrieber belonged to the 66th Battery, and was not twenty-five years of age. These two officers left Aldershot for the front last November, and neither had seen active service prior to the present campaign. The third of the Tugela officers whose portraits are given is Major J. F. W. Charley, second in command of the 1st Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers. This battalion formed one of the regiments of Hart's Irish Brigade, which attempted the crossing of a drift the enemy had deepened by throwing up a dam below it. Major Charley joined the Inniskillings in 1878, before he was twenty-one, and had been second in command for eighteen months. He served with them throughout the operations on the North-West Frontier in 1897-98, for which he wore the Indian General Service medal with two clasps. Major Harvey, 10th Hussars, was killed near Rensburg on January 4 whilst leading his squadron in pursuit of the retreating enemy, after the officer commanding, Major Alexander, had been incapacitated by wounds. Major Harvey had seen service in the Soudan in 1884, and was present both at El Teb and Tamai. He was within a few days of his forty-first birthday. He joined the 10th Hussars in 1881, and had seen all his service in that fine old corps. Captain Knapp was one of the gallant colonial officers who joined the Imperial Light Horse when raised at the commencement of the war, and was killed in one of the earlier engagements, on November 3, when Brocklehurst, with a small force of cavalry, engaged the enemy to the south-west of Ladysmith.

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

I.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar, under Methuen.

Brigade Commanders: Major-Generals Sir H. E. Colvile, Hector Macdonald, and R. Pole-Carew. Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Babington.

CAVALRY
2nd Dragoons.
9th Lancers.
12th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
Horse—G and P Batteries.
Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th Batteries.
Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS
7th (Field) Co.
8th (Railway) Co.
11th (Field) Co.
29th (Fortress) Co.
31st (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Balloon Section.
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY
3rd Grenadiers.
1st Coldstreams.
2nd Coldstreams.
1st Scots Guards.
1st Argyll and Sutherland.
2nd Seaforths.
2nd Black Watch.
1st Highland L.I.
1st Northumberlands.
2nd Northamptons.
1st Gordons.
2nd Yorkshire L.I.
1st N. Lancashire (half battalion in Kimberley).
2nd Cornwall L.I.
1st Munster Fusiliers.
2nd Shropshire L.I.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Rimington's Scouts.
Queensland Mounted Infantry.
Canadian Infantry.
S. African Light Horse (part).

II.—Cape Colony. All Troops in and South of De Aar, on line Cape Town to De Aar.

Lieutenant-General commanding line of communications: Sir F. W. E. F. Forestier-Walker.

ARTILLERY
Horse—U, Q, T Batteries.
Field—4th, 38th, 65th, 76th, 81st, 82nd Batteries.
Garrison—15th, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division (Siege Train).

ENGINEERS
6th (Fortress) Co.
9th (Field) Co.
20th (Field) Co.
37th (Field) Co.
38th (Field) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Field Park.
Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY
2nd Norfolk.
2nd Hampshire.
2nd Lincoln.
1st Scottish Borderers.
2nd Cheshire.
6th Warwick (Militia).
4th Derbyshire (Militia).
3rd Durham L.I. (Militia).
4th Royal Lancaster (Militia)
9th King's Royal Rifles (Militia)
2nd South Wales Borderers.
2nd North Staffs.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Duke of Edinburgh's Rifles (Cape).
Cape Town Highlanders.
Victorian Mounted Infantry.
S. Australian Mounted Infantry.
W. Australian Mounted Infantry.
Tasmanian Mounted Infantry.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Naauwpoort under French.

Commanding Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Brabazon.

CAVALRY
Household Regiment.
6th Dragoon Guards.
6th Dragoons.
10th Hussars.
16th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
Horse—O and R Batteries.
Field—20th Battery.
Heavy—2 5-in. Howitzers

ENGINEERS
10th (Railway) Co.
25th (Field) Co.
42nd (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Div. Telegraph Batn.

INFANTRY
1st Suffolk.
1st Essex.
1st Yorkshire.
1st Welsh.
2nd Bedford.*
1st Royal Irish.*
2nd Wiltshire.*
2nd Worcestershire.*

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Prince Alfred's Volunteer Guards (Cape).
1st City (Grahamstown) Volntrs.
New South Wales Lancers.
New Zealand Mounted Infantry.

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY
Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS
12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY
2nd Irish Rifles.
2nd Northumberland.
1st Royal Scots.
2nd Berkshire.
1st Derbyshire.
2nd East Kent.*
1st Oxford L.I.*
1st West Riding.*
2nd Gloucester.*

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Cape Mounted Rifles.
Det. Cape Mounted Police.
Frontier Mounted Rifles.
Kaffrarian Rifles.
Brabant's Horse.

* These troops form Major-General Kelly-Kenny's Division now operating in conjunction with French and Gatacre.

V.—Natal, beleaguered in Ladysmith under White.

Brigade Commanders: Major-General F. Howard. Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Brocklehurst.

CAVALRY
5th Dragoon Guards.
5th Lancers.
18th Hussars.
19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 10 Battery.*

ENGINEERS
23rd (Field) Company, Balloon Section, Headquarters and Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
1st Liverpool.
1st Devon.
1st Leicester.
1st Gloucester.†
1st King's Royal Rifles.
2nd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Manchester.
2nd Gordons.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.†
2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
2nd Rifle Brigade.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Border Mounted Rifles.
Natal Field Artillery.
Imperial Light Horse.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Natal Mounted Police (Det.)

* Surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

† Headquarters surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

VI.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

Divisional and Brigade Commanders: Lieutenant-Generals Sir F. Clery and Sir C. Warren; Major-Generals Hildyard, Lyttelton, Hart, and Barton. Cavalry Brigade: Lord Dundonald.

CAVALRY
1st Dragoons.
13th Hussars.
14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—J Battery
Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 66th, 73rd, 78th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS
17th (Field) Co.
45th (Steam Road Transport) Co.
"A" Pontoon Troop.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
1st Border.
2nd Devon.
2nd West York.
2nd West Surrey.
2nd East Surrey.
1st Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Scots Fusiliers.
2nd Royal Fusiliers.
2nd Scottish Rifles.
1st Durham L.I.
3rd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Rifle Brigade.
2nd Somerset L.I.
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
1st Connaught Rangers.
1st Dublin Fusiliers.
2nd Dorsetshire.
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
1st South Lancashire.
2nd Middlesex.
1st York and Lancaster.
2nd Royal Lancaster.
2nd Royal Warwick.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Natal Naval Volunteers.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Durban Light Infantry.
Bethune's Mounted Infantry.
Thorneycroft's Mntd. Infantry.
Imperial Light Infantry.
Natal Mounted Police (Det.).
S. African Light Horse (part).

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY
7th Dragoon Guards.
17th Lancers.
8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—A and M Batteries.
Field—43rd (Howitzer), 83rd, 84th, 85th, 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 2nd, 8th, 44th, 39th, 68th, 83th, 5th, 9th, 17th Batteries.
Garrison—5th Co. E. Division; 15th Co. W. Division (Siege Train); 2nd Co. S. Division.

ENGINEERS
"C" Pontoon Troop.
47th (Fortress) Co.

INFANTRY
1st East Lancashire.
3rd South Lancashire.*
4th Royal Lancaster.*
6th Royal Warwick.*
4th Derbyshire.*
9th King's Royal Rifles.*
3rd Durham L.I.*
4th Argyll and Sutherland.*
1st Sussex (from Malta).
1st Leinster (from Halifax).
1st Cameron H'gh's (from Egypt).
City of London Imperial Volunteers (part).
Australasian and Canadian Contingents.
Imperial Yeomanry.
Duke of Cambridge's Own (special corps I.Y.).
Lord Lovat's Corps of Scouts.
Lumsden's Horse (from India).
Roberts's Horse (raising).
Kitchener's Horse (raising).

* Militia Regiments.

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 38 (Supply), 40, 41, and 42.

Naval Brigades are serving with White in Ladysmith, with Buller in Northern Natal, with Methuen at Modder River, and with the troops under General Gatacre.

The local troops in Rhodesia, under Colonel Plumer, comprise the British South African Police and the Rhodesian Regiment. In Mafeking, with Colonel Baden-Powell, are British South African Police (detachment), Diamond Fields Artillery (detachment), Cape Mounted Police (detachment), the Protectorate Regiment, and Bechuanaland Rifles. In Kimberley, under Colonel Kekewich, there are the Diamond Fields Artillery, Diamond Fields Horse, Kimberley Rifles, and Cape Mounted Police (detachment).

NOTE.—The strength of the various units on a war footing is approximately as follows: A regiment of Cavalry 610; a battery of Artillery, Horse 180, Field 170 (companies of Garrison Artillery vary considerably, but may be taken to average 150; the Siege Train batteries are, however, very largely augmented); a company of Royal Engineers 210; a battalion of Infantry 1,010; and a company Army Service Corps 140.

The Eighth Division ordered to mobilise for service in South Africa is as follows: Sixteenth Brigade: 2nd Grenadiers, 2nd Scots Guards, 2nd East York, 1st Leinster, No. 2 Co. Army Service Corps (supply column). Seventeenth Brigade: 1st Worcestershire, 2nd Manchester, 1st South Staffordshire (from Gibraltar), 2nd West Kent (from Malta). Divisional Troops: 89th, 90th, and 91st Batteries, Royal Field Artillery, No. 5 (Field) Co. R.E., No. 39 Co. A.S.C.

THE strength of a siege train is determined by the nature of the work it is calculated it will have to perform in accomplishing its object. Therefore its complement of guns, ammunition, store waggons, and men may be great or small, according to the number of divisions comprising it. Each division is, as a rule, made up of sixteen pieces of ordnance, not including machine guns, and requires a personnel of four companies of garrison artillery, and a staff made up of a lieutenant-colonel, an adjutant, a quartermaster, two staff non-commissioned officers, two staff clerks, together with 596 officers, non-commissioned officers, and men.

* * * *

"J. G." (Peterhead).—A mounted infantryman is a picked infantry soldier, provided with a rapid means of locomotion. He is a unit, in fact, of a force which can co-operate with, and move as fast as, cavalry or horse artillery. He is not intended to fight on horseback. The best mount for a mounted infantryman is a cob of about 14-h. height. Thus mounted he can relieve cavalry of any work that would interfere with its particular role. He can drive in parties which bar or delay screening or reconnoitring cavalry; he can hold bridges, villages, fords, etc., as points d'appui for cavalry; he can act as escort to horse artillery; he can, in fact, do all dismounted work, and thus save the cavalry. A detachment comprises one officer, two sergeants, one corporal, and thirty privates.

Digitized by Google

With THE Ladysmith Relief Column.

ARTILLERY FOR MOUNT ALICE.
One of the Guns of the 66th Battery Saved at Colenso, and Four of the Men who brought it out of Action.

FIELD POST AND TELEGRAPH OFFICE.
Preparing for the Despatch of a Mail to Friends and Relatives at Home.

OUT OF ORDER.
Repairing a Maxim Gun.

CAVALRY WITH LORD DUNDONALD.
The Advanced Squadrons Leaving Camp to Cross the Tugela and Scout Round the Western Flank of the Enemy.

45th STEAM ROAD TRANSPORT COMPANY.
Traction Engine Crossing a Spruit with Two Waggon-loads of Forage.

The Advance FROM Springfield.

From Photos. by Mr. W. D. N. Cotts.

Digitized by Google

On the Tugela River.

From Photos. by an Officer at the Front.

AN UNWONTED LUXURY.
Soldiers Bathing in the River at Frere.

HEADQUARTERS AT FRERE.
Sir Redvers Buller's House at the Camp.

ON THE BLAAUWKRANS RIVER.
A Merry Party under the Broken Bridge.

PEACE AND WAR.
Washing Clothes in the River.

Copyright.

WHISKY AND SPARKLETS.
Our Men at Frere Camp.

A HASTY MEAL ON THE VELDT. "Navy & Army."
The Officers of the 2nd Devons at Tea.

The 2nd Devons in Natal.

Digitized by Google

Maritzburg and Bombay.

MARITZBURG COLLEGE.
Used as a Military Hospital during the War.

MARITZBURG CAMP HOSPITAL.
To which the Wounded from Buller's Force have been Sent.

Photos. Copyright. A CHANGED INTERIOR. Ferguson & Harrison.
The New Use for the Parliament House, Maritzburg.

JUST as necessity makes strange bedfellows, so war not infrequently brings about strange juxtapositions. It is often instructive, as well as deeply interesting, to note how the clash of arms sets up a curiously close connection between localities ordinarily separated by every conceivable cleavage of topographical difference, of racial dissimilarity, and even of commercial distinctiveness. What has Maritzburg, usually, to do with Bombay, or Bombay with Maritzburg? Practically speaking, nothing, if we except the strong bond of Imperial brotherhood which va sans dire. But give a few taps to the war-drums, and, hey presto! the state of affairs changes in a moment. In Bombay the docks are crowded with men pouring into transports bound for Natal; in Maritzburg one of the prevailing topics is the question when the reinforcements from India will arrive. Truly war, especially if it takes place in the British Empire, is quaintly destructive of geographical distinctions.

For us Britons there are, of course, other considerations bound up in this reflection. Time after time we have urged in these pages the splendid importance of India as a great outlying stronghold, capable of lending the best of aid in the prosecution of military operations within a very large radius outside its own borders. In the present war this feature has been illustrated with almost startling distinctness. If it had not been for the first Indian contingent our position in South Africa would have been precarious indeed. But India has not been content with the despatch of 10,000 picked British troops, magnificently equipped, and sent off with a business-like promptitude and absence of fuss and fury, which might, perhaps, have been a little more closely imitated at home. She has almost entreated the Imperial Government to let her have another finger in the Imperial pie, and it is not too much to say that, if such a course were possible, the Indian Army would, with assistance from the great colonies, cheerfully undertake to see this thing through, even if the whole of the First Army Corps were withdrawn from Africa to-morrow—always assuming that "Bobs" were left in supreme command.

Indeed, the attitude of India, especially at a time when the aspect of affairs in South Africa was by no means favourable, has been more than gratifying. Not only has the European population busied itself in raising a grand corps of Volunteer mounted infantry, and in establishing a war fund on a most generous basis, but the native princes, too, have "risen to the occasion" in that characteristically open and complete fashion which commonly stamps the ruling chiefs of India as some of the finest samples of gallant and loyal gentlemen to be found anywhere on the face of the earth. The speech of the Maharajah of Darbhanga at the Calcutta Town Hall, on January 28, as telegraphed to the Times, is a superb indication of the

Digitized by Google

ARRIVED AT AN INDIAN REST CAMP.
"A" Battery, R.H.A., Coming into Deolali.

PACKING KITS.
Horse Gunners Getting Ready for Embarkation.

HORSES OF "A" BATTERY, R.H.A.
Just Despatched from India to South Africa.

Copyright.

BADLY WANTED STILL.
Horse Artillery Guns Entrained for Bombay.

fact that in India "every reverse in South Africa has only served to confirm the loyalty of the chiefs and people, and to increase the desire of the military classes to take part in the war."

The majority of the accompanying pictures illustrate a very recent Indian contribution to the war in South Africa, namely, the 16th Lancers and the A Battery, Royal Horse Artillery. Both are shown en route, chiefly either arriving at or sojourning in the great Indian rest camp at Deolali, to which most troops leaving India are consigned for, at any rate, some few hours before they embark. There are manifest objections to letting troops hang about Bombay, and it is found much more convenient to let them pull themselves together, after a railway journey lasting, perhaps, two or three days, at Deolali, and then run them down by train to the Bombay docks and march them straight on board.

In its way Deolali is a very remarkable institution, and there are humours connected with it, as may be realised by a perusal of a pleasing little yarn of Kipling's, entitled, if the writer's memory serves him, "The Big Drunk Draft."

The 16th Lancers must, indeed, have been delighted to be included in this contingent, as they undoubtedly had a genuine grievance in being passed over when the first 10,000 British troops were despatched from India. The 16th Lancers have not been on the war-path since Sobraon, and, as they had been in India a long time on their present tour, were naturally aggrieved at being left behind when circumstances rendered it necessary for British cavalry corps to be drawn from India for service in South Africa. Everything, however, comes to those who wait, and Colonel Aylmer's fine regiment will, no doubt, soon have its opportunity to quote its motto, "Aut cursu, aut cominus armis."

The pictures of Maritzburg are self-explanatory, and rather gloomily so. The seamy side of war is here illustrated, as it must be illustrated, if war is to teach us anything. The conversion of the Parliament House into a hospital is a fairly striking proof of the proverb that inter arma silent leges, and the picture is full of pathetic suggestiveness.

From Photos. by a Military Officer.

THE SCARLET LANCERS.
The 16th Lancers Arriving at Deolali.

THE LAST NIGHT ON SHORE.
New Arrivals about to March to the Rest Camp.

ABOUT TO CROSS THE BLACK WATER.
Doolie Bearers Accompanying the Troops from India.

"Navy & Army."

A HURRIED MEAL.
Officers of the 16th Lancers in Camp at Deolali.

Digitized by Google

With Sir Redvers Buller in Natal.

WAR WEAR AND TEAR.
The 2nd Scots Fusiliers Preparing for Kit Inspection in Camp.

MOUNTED POLICE RESTING.
Tents of the Body-guard near the Headquarters House.

"Navy & Army."

BULLER'S BODY-GUARD.
Selected Men of the Natal Mounted Police Under Inspector Fairchild.

SIGNALLERS AT WORK.
Passing on a Message from Frere to Chieveley.

Copyright.

Scenes and Incidents in Frere Camp.

From Photos. by Our Special War Correspondent in Natal.

Digitized by Google

With General French at Arundel.

A TYPICAL COLONIAL FARMHOUSE.

Headquarters of the Officer Commanding Arundel Camp.

Copyright.

THE 6th DRAGOON GUARDS AT ARUNDEL.

Loading Belts for Machine Gun before the Reconnaissance.

From Photos. by an Officer at the Front.

"Navy & Army."

Digitized by Google

Cape Town and Modder River.

THE COASTGUARD AT SIMON'S BAY.
Torpedo-boat No. 6 Leaving to Prevent Arms being Landed in Gordon's Bay.

A QUEER MILITARY MACHINE.
A Special Cycle for Scouting on the Railroad.

NAVAL AND MILITARY TRANSPORT.
Captain Sir Edward Chichester, R.N., and Captain A. E. Lascelles, Norfolk Regiment, on the Quay.

Copyright. "Navy & Army."

From Photos. by Our Special Correspondents.

THE running of cargoes of arms to be used against ourselves in one of our colonies is a new kind of incident for us, but it is one of the unpleasant novelties with which we are being made acquainted by the war in South Africa. The torpedo-boat No. 6, as seen in our illustration, is after a consignment of this kind. Her objective, as they say in treatises on war, was a bold smuggler, who was understood to be about to land arms and ammunition in Gordon's Bay, which is just opposite Simon's Bay. Lieutenant Donaldson and the twelve men who formed the crew, all well armed, and provided with forty-eight hours' provisions, were sent on the preventive work, which was at one time familiar enough to the Navy at home. On the coasts of England, more especially in the Channel, it was mostly tea, brandy, lace, silks, and so forth which had to be stopped. But when there were Jacobites in the Western Highlands the running of arms was a sufficiently familiar incident. Many a cargo of long Spanish musket barrels, and swords forged at the royal factory at Toledo, has been put ashore in the Hebrides, or on the mainland. Lieutenant Donaldson and his crew did not catch that cargo. It had reached the beach before they were on the spot, which also was not an unusual experience. The wily smuggler had, in fact, an artful habit of supplying information of his own movements, but curiously enough it was always wrong. Therefore, when rumour said that he was going to land in such a place at such a time, it was commonly safe to conclude that he had a scheme on hand, but for some other day at another place. For the preventive officer the triumph of ingenuity lay in guessing correctly from wilfully incorrect information, and it was no easy thing to do. This time Lieutenant Donaldson and his men only found traces of the gun runners, and were able to supply the civil police with one of those clues which are to be followed up with results more or less good. One is not very hopeful as to what will come of their researches. The disloyal Boers are probably quite up to the old device of taking weapons to pieces and putting them together again. The Irish rapparee used to take his barrel off the stock, plug it up at both ends, and hide it in a nice "clane" bog where nobody but himself could find it. Dutch farmers at the Cape who contemplate rebellion have probably got similar tricks, and so the weapons will be distributed. Whether they will be used is another matter, and depends on events elsewhere.

Another novelty is the railway double bicycle. It can rival a train going at from twenty-five to thirty miles—for a time, of course. With the best will in the world human energy cannot equal the iron horse in endurance, but for a space this curious-looking machine has run neck to neck with a train going at what on the Continent would be considered very respectable speed. It carried a third man between the two workers, and they could exchange

Digitized by Google

AN ARMOURED TRAIN AT MODDER RIVER.

A NAVAL CAMP AND GUN PARK.

THE OFFICERS' QUARTERS, 62nd BATTERY, R.F.A.

Copyright.

THE DAMAGED RAILWAY BRIDGE.

places in order to relieve the strain. What its exact purpose is we are not told, but no doubt it would be ready for immediate use for the carrying of messages. Yet it has a certain air of delicacy which does not inspire unlimited confidence.

Sir Edward Chichester, who is directing the transport work at the Cape, is well known to all readers by name. It was he who had to represent the benevolent neutrality of England at Manila during recent events in those waters. His profound saying that the Germans had no sea manners was much quoted. The Germans, though a people of many substantial merits, are not famous for having many manners. Their own great poet Goethe even remarked of them that, when a German is polite, it is because he is lying. To judge by their newspaper criticism and official tone, they are remarkably honest with us just now. A French caricaturist drew a picture the other day showing the British lion with his tail caught in a spring trap named Transvaal and the Russian bear taking advantage of the opportunity. It was not magnanimous in him, but it is human, and a good few others seem disposed to follow his example. We must grin and bear it, which is not so very difficult to do, seeing that our rivals on the Continent seem disposed to keep to words—at least, so far. Meanwhile, Sir Edward Chichester and his military colleague, Captain Lascelles, together with all other British officers on the spot, must get the lion's tail out of the trap as speedily as may be. There is a rueful truth in the image which is borne painfully in upon us when we look at the condition of things on the Modder, to which some of our illustrations take us. It is a case of being held by a trap, and no mistake—a dreadfully unexpected trap, which sprang upon us suddenly and holds tight. But there is no machine of that kind which cannot be loosened with good management—only it cannot always be done quickly. There are lessons in the experience which, properly used, may be made to give some compensation for the unpleasantness, notably this, that, when you are settling to a piece of work, it is always advisable to have a sound knowledge of what it is you are going about.

HORSE LINES, 62nd BATTERY, R.F.A.

SCOTS GUARDS CROSSING A PONTOON BRIDGE.

LORD METHUEN'S HEADQUARTERS.

"Navy & Army."

BOER PRISONERS LEAVING FOR CAPE TOWN.

From Photos. by an Officer with the Kimberley Relief Force.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

London and Cape Town.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS CONNECTED WITH THE WAR.

Photo. Copyright. Roche.

LORD IVEAGH'S FIELD HOSPITAL CORPS.

Major-General Gossett, Commanding the Dublin District, Inspecting the Corps Prior to Embarkation Last Saturday.

Photo. Copyright. Hughes & Mullins.

"PRINCESS BEATRICE'S OWN"—VOLUNTEERS FOR THE FRONT.

Royal Inspection at Osborne of the Isle of Wight Section of the Hampshire Volunteers before Leaving for South Africa.

Photo. Copyright. Battison.

LORD ROBERTS LANDING IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The Officer Walking Down the Gangway on Lord Roberts's Left is the Present Duke of Westminster.

Digitized by Google

Hints to Yeomanry.

By A Colonial Officer.

So much attention is being devoted to the popular and attractive scheme of our Yeomanry going to fight the Boers in South Africa that a few general details in the way of hints—by one who has been through several campaigns there—may not be unacceptable to those going, and possibly of interest to those who are not; and, as I have before suggested in this paper, one of the great points is to have as much effective force in your firing line as, with due safeguarding of horses, can be obtained, for it is quite certain that Yeomanry firing will be as a dismounted body, as the horses are not sufficiently trained or men practically accustomed to fire-action in the saddle. Therefore the utility of learning before arrival at the Cape how to knee-halter your horses in such a manner as not to injure them, but to enable the animals to be kept under proper control by a small body of men mounted, instead of the No. 3 of each section of four being practically non-efficient as regards the fighting line, there are many returned officers and non-commissioned officers at military depôts who, under Government instructions, would show our Yeomanry how to do and how not to do.

Another particular point as regards shooting is, that a good marksman here very often fails in South Africa, for the reason that, at unknown distances, owing to the rarity and clearness of the atmosphere, what appears to a man fresh from England 500-yds. is really about 1,000-yds. to 1,200-yds. distance; therefore it is wise to pace off certain distances on arrival and note the appearance of say 500-yds. and 1,000-yds. as it appears then to the eye, as that organ, aided by common-sense, can soon enable the proper judgment of range and windage to be obtained.

Another detail. In various parts of the scene of operations wood is almost unobtainable, and, to those in charge as cooks, etc., I would suggest a sack always kept ready, so as to be able at an outspan to secure a bag of dried cow dung; it is a most excellent fuel in the open, gives an intense heat, and in many parts of Africa is the only combustible used. Many have regretted not knowing this in time.

Now, as regards fighting Boers themselves, a Boer can nearly always be tricked by leaving a hat or coat exposed by a stone or cover, whilst you are in position near by, where you can see his movements re firing and taking your opportunity.

Always fire low rather than high, as you have the chance of doing damage then by the possible ricochet. It is also a good idea to be provided with a pair of good porpoise-hide laces, as, though a reim is useful for saddle-mending and casual work, the laces come in occasionally very handy for other details.

The feet also require a certain amount of care, and I would suggest at the least feeling of soreness to take off the socks and well rub the feet and inside of socks with dry soap. It is found to act like a charm. A small piece of alum, the size of a berry, is also very useful. It should be tied up in a small piece of muslin, and however dirty the water is you may have in your pannikin if you stir the alum round a few times in the water you will see in the course of three minutes the solid and dirty matter will be precipitated to the bottom, leaving a fairly clear water for you to drink. It has no injurious effects on the water, as it only acts on the solid parts and matter in solution. This experiment can be tried at home with muddy water in a tumbler.

A field-glass with sling should be in the personal possession of every officer, non-commissioned officer, and man, and should be considered of vital importance to complete the equipment of the regiment. For night shooting, I have found in former expeditions it is a wonderful assistance to have the aid of a little phosphorus or the end of a phosphorus match, wetted and rubbed on the fore-sight of your rifle. This enables you to get a fair aim, and to draw a bead on your foe, the darkness then being in your favour instead of against you.

I would also suggest that every time you off-saddle you should pass your finger and thumb down your horse's back, and carefully note if there is any sign of tenderness or soreness; if so, at once report same, as it will either be due to the saddle stuffing shifting—when the saddler-sergeant will put it right—or else to the presence of that pest, the South African tick, which punctures the skin when the size of a pin's head, and hangs on, when gorged with blood, the size of a blackberry, impoverishing the animal and causing nasty sores.

Also in many cases when forage is not obtainable, mealies—otherwise maize or Indian corn—will be served out to the horses as rations; see that a horse has water before, or not for three hours after, as this food swelling causes congestion, frequently resulting in death in a very short space of time.

With these few hints, which I trust may be of service, I wish all bon voyage, and, if God wills, a safe and prosperous return.

Gillespie's Gallop.

By W. H. Glenny.

Scene, the maidan of Ranipett, the cavalry station of Arcot; time, the grey dawn of July 10, 1806. Before Colonel Robert Rollo Gillespie, of Comber, the King's 19th Light Dragoons are forming up; on their right flank is their "gun-troop," with its pair of "gallopers," and on their left a troop of their bhais (brothers), "The Black Nineteenth" (7th Carnatic Cavalry). From the jungly river margin rushes to the colonel's stirrup a tiny tattered figure; a mess-boy it is, who has won his lonely way over seventeen rough miles, through the terrors of night, with a dreadful errand from Vellore. Shortly after midnight the two Madras battalions cantoned there had risen upon the wing of the 69th Foot, the garrison of the fort, overpowered the main guard, fired upon their white comrades as they started from sleep; the mutineers were in the first fury of massacre when the gallant little boy escaped through an embrasure.

Before the last note of "Attention" had ceased to ring through the morning mist, Gillespie and his Arab-mounted squadron and the troop of the 7th were in motion, and his brief order had been given. Major Kennedy was to bring on the galloper guns, escorted by the rest of the regiment.

The advanced guard reached Vellore at about half-past eight. The unique feat there performed by the dour Dragoon from County Down was rendered possible by the omission of the mutineers to shut the outer Main Gate. Light as the galloper guns were, the so-called road was so rough and heavy that it was about ten o'clock when they arrived. In twenty minutes from the blowing-in of the inner Main Gate all was over. Then did the jemadar of the 7th call upon the Colonel Saheb Bahadar to note that the talwars of his troop were as deeply stained as the sabres of their white brothers of Assaye with the blood of the badmashes who had been false to their salt. The traitorous Sepoys, the avenging Sawars, the loyal little messenger—all were of the faith of Islam.

In 1812, Gillespie drove the Dutch and French from Java and Sumatra; in 1814, a Ghoorka bullet cleft his dauntless heart as he stood waving on his men to the assault of the mountain fortress of Kalunga.

The King's 19th Light Dragoons, of Assaye, Argaum, Malavalli, Vellore, and many another famous day, are now represented by the 19th (Princess of Wales's Own) Hussars.

GILLESPIE'S GALLOP: A LILT OF THE LIGHT DRAGOONS.
July 10, 1806.

They had vied in red labour of talwar and sabre—Carnatic Sawar and King George's Dragoon
At Assaye, and had raced as Ragoji they chased when he sped from Argaum by the light o' the moon;
So linked by the glory of fields famed in story, now sabre and talwar for blood are athirst—
Blood of traitors who smite in the dead o' the night and on slumbering bhais with massacre burst.
"To Jehanam we'll follow Gillespie Rob Rollo," sings Trooper in scarlet and blue-grey Sawar,
And like blast of typhoon sweep Sawar and Dragoon o'er the maidan to plunge in the swirling Palar;
Half fording, half swimming, the flood brown and brimming, 'mid foam-flake and flotsam from forests afar
They dash, and then scramble through mangrove and bramble, ascending the slope of the Water Gate ramp;
Through the Pettah they thunder, and terror of plunder Pindari they strike by their clattering tramp
(For, times without number, had Cheetoo from slumber awaked the bazar with his loud musquetoon);
Then "Forward left shoulders"—o'er dwarf-date and boulders they meet the moist breath of the sou'-west monsoon.

Vellore they are nearing; Kailasa uprearing his pinnacle lonely they sight as they sweep
Round the Bairaghi's Crag, and a cheer greets the Flag that defiantly flaunts on the turreted Keep;
Far ahead—like a swallow Gillespie Rob Rollo glides smoothly alike over rough and o'er plain (He carries no lumber, Gillespie of Comber, and light as the zephyr his touch on the rein),
"Halt," he signals, "Front form;" 'mid a wild leaden storm he rides on to the Tower o'er the inner Main Gate (Still held by a handful determined and manful), and orders a rope to be thrown to him straight;
Twisting belts as the strands, they obey his commands; grimly smiling, he grasps the rude cable they lower;
Helmed and booted and spurred, up he soars like a bird from his saddle and stands in the friendly old Tower!

Hark! a bugle—a drum; lo, the "gallopers" come—o'er the causeway they rattle—anon a dull crash!
At pistol-range battered the Main Gate is shattered—Dragoon and Sawar through the narrow gap dash;
Deep the bayonets drank in a charge on the flank of the mob backward-streaming and turning at bay,
And the gore of the slain of that base brood of Cain reddened steel that erst flashed in the sun of Assaye.

———

Familiar words of Indian camp language used in "Gillespie's Gallop": Talwar, sword; Sawar, Native trooper; Bhai, brother, comrade; Jehanam, Gehenna; Maidan, plain: Pindari, mounted robber (adjectival here); Cheetoo, notorious Pindari chief; Pettah, open town; badmash, scoundrel.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

THESE pictures will appeal to our readers by their great and tragic interest, because they illustrate the very scenes in which our gallant troops have lately been fighting so valiantly in the cause of Queen and Empire, and in which too many of them have laid down their lives. From these illustrations we learn the character of that most difficult country, and understand very much better what are the obstacles our generals have had to encounter. Sir Redvers Buller's force left Frere for Springfield, under command of Generals Warren, Dundonald, Hildyard, Clery, and Hart, on January 11. The force was accompanied by 400 waggons and 5,000 transport animals, the whole extending some nineteen miles in length, and the way was long and arduous. The picture admirably illustrates the many folds in the ground, and the succeeding ridges, which give such advantage to the Boers and are so deceptive to ourselves, and it enables us to realise the laborious character of the great flank march, through a country deluged by the recent rains and with the drifts flooded in the streams.

The next picture is of the stony kopje overlooking the drift by which Sir Charles Warren crossed the Tugela. Potgieter's Drift, by which General Lyttelton passed the river, and Trichardt's Drift are named after two of the old Voortrekkers. Below this rugged kopje the Engineers built the great pontoon bridge—85-yds. long—by which the troops crossed, while some waded through the flooded drift, and others were carried over in the pontoons. This picture shows admirably the character of that country. From the lofty heights of the Drakensberg Range, rugged spurs run out and break up Northern Natal into a very hilly region, and almost everywhere stony kopjes rise and afford admirable points of vantage for the defence.

Spion Kop—the last of our pictures—is seen in all its ruggedness. The illustration speaks of the difficulties which our troops so valiantly surmounted. Up that steep acclivity they made their way, often in single file, and in the darkness of night, to gain the broken crest, where throughout that long day of January 24, without guns, and without water, perhaps also without sufficient ammunition, they waged that unequal fight. Under such shell fire the place was absolutely untenable, and the slaughter was terrific. Steep as the place looks in our picture, it has more the character of a rugged sloping tableland on the other side, and, being altogether commanded by the Boer Artillery, it would have been impossible for our troops, with all their courage, finally to stem the overwhelming tide, and Colonel Thorneycroft wisely ordered the inevitable retirement. The troops sadly filed down the hill, and the whole force was successfully withdrawn across the Tugela. The loss had been appalling, but the disaster would have been more terrible if the Boers had had a Seydlitz or a Sherman.

ON THE ROAD FROM FRERE TO SPRINGFIELD.
The Route Taken by Sir Redvers Buller when Making His Flank March.

A SCENE UPON THE UPPER TUGELA.
This Remarkable Kopje, so Characteristic of Natal, Overlooks Trichardt's Drift.

SPION KOP, OR THE BLACK MOUNTAIN.
Here the Bitter Bloody Battle of January 24 was Fought.

From Photos by Our Own Correspondent.

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

SINCE the publication of the last number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED a number of details have been received concerning the fighting at Spion Kop on the 24th ult. It may be remembered that in alluding to the first list of casualties it was pointed out that these belonged entirely to Lyttelton's Brigade, which was distinct from Warren's force, and had crossed the Tugela at Potgieter's Drift. The assumption was that this brigade had been separately engaged, and this is now shown to have been the case. The telegrams are still a little obscure, but what seems to have happened is this. Spion Kop was captured by Warren's troops under Woodgate on the night of the 23rd, held during the 24th, and evacuated on the night of the last-named day. Meanwhile, on the 24th, Lyttelton's Brigade of Rifles at Potgieter's Drift made a demonstration, in the hope of diverting the enemy's attention from Spion Kop, and an organised attack was arranged to take place at daybreak on the 25th, with a view, presumably, to joining hands with Woodgate on the Kop.

On the evening of the 24th Lyttelton's Brigade bivouacked on Three Tree Hill, east of Spion Kop, and attacked at dawn, the advance of the King's Royal Rifles and Scottish Rifles being described as a truly magnificent performance. The two half battalions of the K.R.R.C. are stated by the Times correspondent to have attacked separately, climbing up an almost precipitous face towards Spion Kop, and remaining for two hours and a-half under fire. When they reached the summit they were fired at by Boers hiding in the rocks on all sides, Colonel Buchanan-Riddell being shot almost at the top of the hill just at the moment that a heliograph message from the general ordering him to retire was being handed to him. The order in question, it is almost needless to say, had been given on the receipt of news from Warren's Division to the effect that his troops who had captured Spion Kop had evacuated it, not being aware that assistance was so near at hand.

It is, of course, possible that if the first occupiers of Spion Kop could have held their ground they might, in combination with Lyttelton's Brigade, have been able to maintain a continued resistance. But, looking at the scarcity of cover on the Kop and the difficulties of the water supply, it is doubtful whether, even with this reinforcement, the position would have been tenable.

One thing is certain, and that is that, in the circumstances, the evacuation of Spion Kop on the 24th and 25th was fully justified. Early on the 24th General Woodgate, commanding the attacking force, had been dangerously wounded, and the command had devolved upon Colonel Thorneycroft. A very trying responsibility it must have been. The Boers had gathered in force on the surrounding hills and were pouring in a terrible fire upon our position, to which our men, very inadequately sheltered, were unable to reply effectively. From time to time furious attacks were delivered by the Boers, and at one period our men were nearly forced off the hill. This danger was averted by the arrival of reinforcements, who, however, crowded an already cramped position, and rendered the loss of life from the enemy's artillery fire still greater. It is said that the casualties amounted to at least 40 per cent., and that Colonel Thorneycroft's personal gallantry saved a most difficult situation. In the evening Colonel Thorneycroft, being unaware both of Lyttelton's approach and of a reinforcement of guns and Engineers from Warren's force, who were being sent up with a view to securing the parts of the hill as yet unoccupied, decided that the position was untenable, and ordered a general retirement.

After the evacuation of Spion Kop there was a period of marked anxiety, during which Warren's Division, accompanied by Dundonald's Mounted Brigade, safely recrossed the Tugela, the operation being completed, without the loss of a man or a gun, by the 27th ult. The fact that the force could withdraw from actual touch—in cases the lines were less than 1,000-yds. apart—with the enemy in this perfect manner was, as Sir Redvers Buller observed, sufficient evidence of the moral of the troops, and that we were permitted to withdraw our cumbrous ox and mule transport across a river 85-yds. broad, with 20-ft. banks and a very swift stream, was proof that the enemy had been taught to respect our soldiers' fighting powers.

When the troops had been again massed on the south side of the Tugela—with the exception of Lyttelton's Brigade, which remained at Potgieter's Drift—Sir Redvers Buller, in addressing them, stated incidentally that he still hoped to be in Ladysmith within a week. Needless to say this sanguine expectation gave rise to great discussion as to Buller's future plans, but up to the time of writing nothing had transpired as to the nature of the latter.

Meanwhile Ladysmith, although still buoyed up with hopes of speedy relief, was evidently looking anxiously for the opening up of communications with the outside world. On the afternoon of February 3 "All well" was signalled, the twelfth week of the siege having been entered. The Boer commandos investing the town were said to be decreasing in strength, but the fear was expressed that this might be merely a trick to delude the beleaguered garrison into making an unwise sortie.

About this time a diversion was created by the movements of the British Flying Column which had been sent up some weeks back into Zululand. Although the column was too small to attempt any operations on a large scale, its presence seems to have greatly disturbed the Boers, who proceeded to withdraw a considerable body of men from Natal in order to prevent a British move on Vryheid.

On the Modder River there has been a continued state of inaction, which has been partially relieved, so far as the troops are concerned, by a series of inter-regimental boxing competitions. In these Lord Methuen appears to have taken keen personal interest. There is something distinctly quaint in the idea of such recreations taking place in an organised manner in close proximity to the enemy, and no doubt the relaxation was of distinct benefit to men condemned to a protracted and very irksome halt in the middle of an important advance. But we shall all look for something a little more to the point than boxing matches in this quarter in the ensuing week or two, especially in view of the suggestion that several of the Boer guns hitherto directed against the Modder River have been withdrawn for the better bombardment of Kimberley. The latter cannot hold out indefinitely, and the small garrison must have begun to be seriously disheartened by the failure of Lord Methuen's large force to do more than occupy an entrenched position at the Modder River and fight boxing matches for challenge cups.

At midnight on the 2nd inst., in the House of Commons, Mr. Balfour read a telegram from the Mayor of Mafeking to the Queen, dated January 27. The message was as follows: "Mafeking, upon the hundredth day of the siege, sends loyal devotions to your Majesty, and an assurance of the continued resolve to maintain your Majesty's supremacy in this town." Cheers naturally greeted the reading of this spirited despatch, which was dated ten days later than the latest military news from the garrison. The latter was to the effect that trenches had been pushed out by Colonel Baden-Powell towards the enemy's big gun battery, causing it to be evacuated. Siege rations were being served out to the garrison, who were put on short commons of bread and meat. The bombardment, too, was being maintained with unabated vigour, great damage resulting to the town buildings, and casualties occurring daily.

On January 20 Colonel Plumer was still at Mochudi, and three days later a brisk little reconnaissance was carried out by four squadrons of the Rhodesian Regiment, who moved from Crocodile Pools with a view to scrutinising the Boer laager in the vicinity. Colonel Plumer is evidently holding his own in this quarter, but would seem to be prevented from making any movement by the presence of Boers in considerable numbers. The story of his relief of Mafeking on January 23 is evidently a myth.

At the time of writing neither General French nor General Gatacre was particularly active. On February 2 the British artillery shelled the kopjes to the west of Colesberg, and a few rifle shots were exchanged by our outpost near Slingersfontein and a Boer patrol; but otherwise French has evidently found it necessary to pause in his attempts to hem in the Boer position at Colesberg, while Gatacre has apparently plenty to do to keep the neighbourhood of Sterkstroom quiet, and to prevent sudden attacks upon small isolated posts. Great interest has been manifested in the organisation at Queenstown of the division of colonial troops under Brigadier-General Brabant, who, it is announced, will be under Sir William Gatacre's orders. It is confidently anticipated that the working of this force, under a thoroughly skilled and experienced leader, will result in marked developments in this quarter.

A somewhat unexpected development took place last week in the region lying between Colesberg and Sterkstroom. This was the apparition of General Kelly-Kenny, commanding the Sixth Division, with a column at Thebus, near Steynsburg, coupled with the intimation that an early junction between this force and that of Gatacre was probable. If this idea be carried out it may lead to great results, and be, in fact, the beginning of a very big concerted movement into the Free State. If French can seize Norval's Pont with the aid of one of Kelly-Kenny's brigades, and Kelly-Kenny and Gatacre can capture Stormberg by attacking it on two sides at once, the road to Bloemfontein will be opened, and incidentally the advance of the force now at Modder River would be much facilitated. Next week, probably, the situation in this direction will be much clearer.

Digitized by Google

BRIEF official notification gives the command of the Eighth Division to an officer only a few days over forty-four years of age, and who less than fifteeen years ago was a subaltern of Artillery. Curiously enough, Rundle saw his earliest war service in South Africa, first against the Zulus and then against the Boers. He was one of that gallant band who held Potchefstroom, and only surrendered a fortnight after peace had been declared, a fact the Boer commandant, Cronje, had treacherously kept back from the garrison, though he knew of it two full days before. Eight campaigns has General Rundle been through, eight times been mentioned in despatches, and once has he received the thanks of both Houses of Parliament. Lord Kitchener will be glad to have beside him the man who was the chief of his staff in all the tough work that commenced with the expedition to Dongola in 1896, and finished with the capture of Khartoum in 1898.

Photo. Lambert, Weston, & Son.
OUR YOUNGEST LIEUT.-GENERAL.
Sir H. M. L. Rundle, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O.

THE 4th Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders is one of the finest of many fine Militia battalions affiliated to the Scottish regiments. The battalion, over 800 strong, left Queenstown in what was once a crack Atlantic liner, the "City of Rome." Before leaving Dublin, where it had been quartered on embodiment, the men were inspected by the new Commander-in-Chief, who congratulated them not only on their military excellence, but on the patriotic and soldierlike spirit they have shown in volunteering en masse for active service. The 1st Battalion is already with Methuen at the Modder River.

BRIEF as the war has been, the casualties amongst those most useful servants of the public, the war correspondents, have been abnormally high. The Daily Chronicle, the Morning Post, and now the Daily Mail have each lost a representative. Poor Mr. Knight has been so severely wounded, and that under a treacherous use of the white flag, that he is on his way home; and three confederates have been captured, though two succeeded in escaping. Steevens, though barely thirty, had not only made his mark as a brilliant journalist, but had shown promise of the very highest literary talent. He is best known to the general public by that charming book, "With Kitchener to Khartoum," though several works from his pen had preceded it. He had seen service with the Turks in their war with Greece, and also in Egypt, and had travelled for his paper in many parts of the globe.

Photo. Copyright. Rocne.
MILITIA FOR THE FRONT—DEPARTURE OF THE 4th BATTALION ARGYLL AND SUTHERLAND HIGHLANDERS.

Photo. Elliott & Fry.
A CELEBRATED WAR CORRESPONDENT
Mr. G. W. Steevens, of the "Daily Mail."

DR. WIGRAM, who is senior chaplain of the colonial forces, was appointed just twenty-five years ago, and received the Imperial Long Service Decoration (Volunteer) in 1896. He is a Western Province man, being rector of St. Mary's,

Photo. Gillard
THE SENIOR COLONIAL CHAPLAIN.
The Rev. Canon Wigram, D.D., of Port Elizabeth.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. HEROES OF LUCKNOW—NATIVE VETERANS WHO SHARED IN THE DEFENCE. Lawrie.

Port Elizabeth, but now, with three assistant chaplains working under him, he has spiritual charge of all colonial troops on the line between Port Elizabeth and Naauwpoort. He has also made his mark in literature, for not only is he the author of several theological works, but of an excellent history of South Africa. The photograph of which our illustration is a reproduction was taken since the reverend canon was called out for active service.

"Praise to our Indian brothers, and let the dark face have his due!
Thanks to the kindly dark faces who fought with us faithful and few Fought with the bravest among us, and drove them, and smote them, and slew,
That ever upon the topmost roof our banner in India blew."

IN his glorious lines our dead Laureate has voiced what was in the heart of every Briton during the trying days of the Mutiny. The gallant group here shown are veterans of Lucknow, who at a recent durbar were presented to the Viceroy. Note the group of five to the left from the centre so heavily bemedalled. Three have the Order of Merit, and one has seen service comparatively recently, for he wears the Afghan medal and the bronze star for Roberts's march. Many of the veterans were so blind and palsied by age that they had to be led to the Vice-regal daïs before they could present to the representative of the Queen their sword hilts, in token of their fealty to the Gracious Lady for whom they have done such loyal service. Most of these veterans must have belonged to the 16th Bengal Infantry, "The Regiment of Lucknow," a gallant Rajput corps, which shared with the 32nd in the defence, and with that regiment, now the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, has the honour to commemorate it by wearing as a badge "a Turreted Gateway" with the legend "Lucknow." Not often has a more interesting group figured in the pages of this journal.

THE BOER COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.
Commandant Joubert, now Opposing General Buller.

NO greater contrast could be offered than that presented by the two officers whose portraits face one another on these pages. One, the highest outcome of European military training, the other, the rough farmer-soldier, inured to the hard life of the veldt, and in his own way a tough and skilled warrior. Joubert was Commander-in-Chief of the Boer Army during the war of 1881, and showed then, as he has shown now, that remarkable shrewdness and facility in making the utmost of the resources at his disposal which have gained for him the sobriquet of "Slim Piet." He is, moreover, an honest man, which cannot be said for all Boers, for when the Boers were active in Bechuanaland, Joubert tendered his resignation to the Volksraad, declining to hold office under a Government "which had deliberately broken faith with England" by the annexation of Montsoia's territory. Joubert, like Kruger, is colonial born, for Kruger first saw the light at Colesberg, round which French is now fighting, and Joubert's birthplace is at Congo, also in the Old Colony. Joubert celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday on the 20th ult. by making a reconnaissance in force on the British left, and by accompanying President Steyn on a visit to the Free State laager south of Ladysmith.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."
NEW COLOURS FOR THE 2nd WELCH—THE CONSECRATION CEREMONY AT AHMEDNUGGER.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. TEMPLER'S BABIES. The Steam Transport Disembarking at Durban. Harvey.

WHILE the 1st Welch is in South Africa, the 2nd is "in India's sunny clime, a-serving of Her Majesty the Queen." Recently at Ahmednugger new colours were presented to the corps by His Excellency the Viceroy, Lord Curzon, and our picture shows the Bishop of Bombay consecrating them, the regiment having previously sung that grand old battle hymn, "Brightly gleams our banner." And the regiment has a glorious roll of honour upon its new colours, for the sixteen battle honours emblazoned thereon run from "St. Vincent" to "Sebastopol," and commemorate fighting in nearly every part of the world, though, curiously enough, the regiment is now seeing service in South Africa for the first time. The Welch, and the Rifle Brigade (which displays "Copenhagen") are the only two British regiments that are entitled to bear Naval battle honours.

Photo. Copyright. THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IN NATAL. Sir Redvers Buller and the Man who Saved the Guns. Cumming.

COLONEL TEMPLER, who has won renown as first among our military aëronauts, is also the originator and organiser of the use of steam transport with troops in the field. And he is almost more proud of his traction engines than of his balloons. The use they are rendering at the front it would be hard to over-estimate. They will toddle down steep inclines, through spruits, and up heavy gradients with a Naval four-point-seven behind them in a way that vastly astonishes the meek-eyed trek oxen, who wonder mutely what new kind of beast this is that breathes fire, eats coal, never gets tired, and is only like other animals in that it has an extraordinary thirst for water. Our illustration shows the landing of the first instalment from the "Buluwayo" at Durban on December 27, whence it has gone up to General Buller.

SIR REDVERS BULLER'S military career has been so often touched upon in the columns of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED that it is unnecessary to here recapitulate it. His reputation was so great that he was at once the man chosen to command in South Africa when the Boer trouble commenced. With General Buller is a young officer who has already made a brilliant reputation for himself, and will in all probability wear on his breast the soldier's most coveted decoration—the Victoria Cross. Captain Schofield led in the gallant attempt to save the guns in which the young son of Lord Roberts was killed, and he, in fact, succeeded in bringing in two of the field-pieces, although the bulk were lost.

OUR citizen soldiers from the moment they set foot in the transport settle down to their new life like Tommy Atkins, for, as will be seen from our illustration, they mess and berth in a transport just as do the regular "Tommies" of Her Majesty's Army.

Photo. Copyright. THE SEA HOME OF THE "CIVS." Troop Deck of the "Garth," which has Taken Out a Contingent of the C.L.I.V. Miell & Ridley.

Digitized by Google

Increasing the Japanese Navy.

Photo. Copyright. Ellis.

IMPERIAL JAPANESE ARMOURED CRUISER "TOKIWA."

This superb ship of the Japanese Navy is an Elswick-built cruiser, very heavily armoured and powerfully armed, with a displacement of 9,750 tons. She is also an exceptionally speedy vessel, having at her trials done about 22 knots.

Photo. Copyright. West & Son.

IMPERIAL JAPANESE BATTLE-SHIP "SHIKISHIMA."

This fine vessel is one of the latest additions to the Japanese Navy, which she is now going out to join. She is one of three sister ships built in England, and was turned out, armed, and equipped at the Thames Ironworks. The displacement of ships of this class is 14,850 tons, and they are the largest in the Japanese Navy.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

VOL. IX.—No. 159.] SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 17th, 1900.

WHERE THE LATE GENERAL WAUCHOPE LIES BURIED.

"Last Wednesday General Wauchope was buried at Matjesfontein, a pretty little village about 150 miles from Cape Town, belonging to Mr. Logan, a gentleman highly esteemed in this district, who carried out the sad task at his own expense. He came up and obtained Lord Methuen's permission to remove the body, and an impressive ceremony, witnessed by hundreds of people, took place in the churchyard at Matjesfontein."—War Correspondent of the "Globe."

From a Photo. by Earl De la Warr, Special War Correspondent of the "Globe."

Digitized by Google

Sea Power and the Situation.

Illustrated by Photographs Taken by Special Permission for "Navy & Army."

PORTSMOUTH DOCKYARD.
The Channel Squadron Under Refit.

CHATHAM DOCKYARD.
The Masts and Tops of a Battle-ship.

Copyright. DEVONPORT DOCKYARD. Navy & Army."
A Nest of Torpedo-boat Destroyers.

ALTHOUGH the eyes of the British public are turned at the present time greatly towards South Africa, we do not forget the "silent" sea power which is our mainstay. Readers of this paper are not unaware of the things that are going on in the dockyards, the energy of the work there, the stir of preparation; and the pictures which accompany this article will be a welcome addition to the long series we have published. They bring vividly before us the character and occupations of our great sea arsenals, and depict the ships at Portsmouth, Devonport, Chatham, Pembroke, and Sheerness, showing them in various stages of readiness for sea, some also in the Reserve, and some belonging to the Channel Squadron. At a time like this, when our Continental friends are feeling the pulse of delight—something more than the simple Schadenfreude of the good German—it is pleasant to know that the Government is alive to the great importance of our sea forces, the real bond of our security now as in former times.

It was a blunt seaman who once said that our Fleet would prevent "foreigners from fooling us," but his saying is wholesome to remember to-day. Never before has such an operation taken place as that we have conducted, and are still conducting, in transporting a great army across thousands of miles of sea, with all its horses, guns, ammunition, stores, and hospitals. And when we remember how our American cousins were afraid to put a man afloat for conveyance across the narrow sea to Cuba until they had locked up at Santiago four Spanish cruisers and a few destroyers, we begin to realise what the Navy has done for us, quite apart from the gallantry of the "handy man," or the services of the guns that "saved the situation" at Ladysmith. So long as we have the Navy behind us in a state of readiness there need be no fear of foreign intervention in South Africa. And there was an excellent note in the Queen's Speech, in which it was indicated that larger provision would be made for the efficiency "of the Navy and of our coast defences." There is no better coast defence than the Navy itself—none other, indeed—for we must still agree with Raleigh "that it is better to occupy our enemies at a distance than to give them the chance of feeding on Kentish capons."

At Portsmouth the ships of the Channel Squadron have been fitting out for their cruise, and every Englishman feels more secure when he knows this great element of our power is at sea. In the yard the 15,000-ton battle-ships "Formidable" and "London" are completing, the former well advanced, and the latter in an earlier stage.

These magnificent vessels—the most powerful in the world—of which we have seven approaching completion, are not the last word of our ship-building, for the four smaller ships of the "supplemental" programme—the "Duncan" class of 14,000 tons, all building in private yards—are later. They will be fine vessels, even if not quite equal in all respects to our "Formidables." The third-class cruiser "Pandora" has lately been floated out at Portsmouth, and the great armoured cruiser "Cressy" (12,000 tons) is about to be put in hand.

Digitized by Google

Portsmouth is also busy with destroyers, of which five new ones arrived from Clydebank early in January. Lately there were not less than thirty-five pennants flying in the port, with complements in the ships of 12,000—a fact which gives some indication of what the British fleet at large really is.

Devonport can give a very good account of work done there. The western yard has never sent so many vessels into the Fleet Reserve as in the present financial year. The battle-ship "Ocean" (12,950 tons) has been completed and is ready for sea, with the cruisers "Hermes" and "Highflyer," the gun-boats "Dwarf" and "Thistle," and four destroyers, while two other destroyers, the cruiser "Hyacinth," and a couple of gun-boats are on the point of completion. The utmost activity is being shown in pushing forward the "Implacable"—a sister of the "Formidable"—for completion in April, and overtime is going on.

The "Bulwark," another of the same class, was launched in October, and still another battle-ship—the "Montagu"—has been put in hand on the slip she vacated.

At Chatham, the "Goliath"—a sister of the "Ocean"—is fast approaching completion in the fitting-out basin, and will be transferred to the Fleet Reserve in the course of a few weeks. The "Irresistible"—a sister of the "Formidable"—launched in April, 1898, is also well advanced, and the "Venerable," of the same class, is completing afloat, while the "Albemarle," a battle-ship of the latest programme, has been begun.

Sheerness is equally busy with the smaller craft which we are accustomed to see there. The sloops "Rosario" and "Condor" have been under trial, and the "Shearwater," "Vestal," "Espiègle," and "Fantome" are in hand, and the new third-class cruisers "Perseus" and "Prometheus" are at the port awaiting transfer to the Fleet Reserve.

At Pembroke the work is all upon cruisers, now that the Royal yacht has left for Portsmouth. The splendid first-class cruiser "Spartiate" (11,000 tons) is in the busy hands of 750 men, and will follow the yacht to Portsmouth very soon. The huge armoured cruiser "Drake" is almost framed for her whole length to the height of the lower protective deck, and the "Essex" is progressing well, so that Pembroke, like the other yards, is well occupied.

There is need for all our exertions, both in the Government and private yards, and now that the Germans and French are busy with ship-building programmes—programmes of vast extent they are providing for the building of whole squadrons of battle-ships, with many cruisers and torpedo craft—it is to be hoped that the new Navy estimates will promise an even greater burst of activity.

PEMBROKE DOCKYARD.
A Commerce Protector under Construction.

SHEERNESS DOCKYARD.
Built for Speed and Scouting.

Copyright, ELECTRIC SEARCH-LIGHT PROJECTORS. "Navy & Army."
To Replace those Sent to the Front in South Africa.

Digitized by Google

Attending to the Wounded.

THE GOOD WORK AT WYNBERG HOSPITAL.

THE accompanying illustrations will give some idea of the arrangements being carried out at the Cape Town base for the accommodation and care of the sick and wounded soldiers from the Transvaal. The military hospital at Wynberg was not found to possess sufficient room for the treatment of all the wounded who have from time to time been sent down from the front, the great majority of the cases resulting, of course, from the actions that have been fought by the Kimberley Relief Force, under Lord Methuen. It has, therefore, been necessary to increase the accommodation by the provision of marquees and tents, each of which, with its necessary staff of nurses, and non-commissioned officers and men of the Army Medical Corps, has become a miniature hospital in itself, capable of accommodating comfortably six or eight wounded men. Possibly no more suitable situation could have been selected for a military hospital than Wynberg, for the place is in direct railway communication with Cape Town, and also with the forces now operating in Cape Colony on the western and southern frontiers of the Transvaal and Orange Free State respectively. Special ambulance trains are provided for the conveyance of patients from the front, and special ambulance waggons are also kept at the hospital for the purpose of transporting the wounded from the railway station to the hospital. The ambulance trains are fitted with every appliance tending to increase the comfort of the wounded during their painful railway journeys. In addition to the Wynberg hospital, a smaller hospital exists at Rondebosch, which is a small suburb of Cape Town, situated between Wynberg and Table Bay. The inhabitants of Wynberg and Rondebosch, and of the whole district surrounding Cape Town, have been most liberal in subscribing to funds for providing comforts for our sick and wounded soldiers and sailors, and have also shown their practical sympathy in providing carriages and other conveyances to supplement the ambulance waggons in taking wounded men from the railway trains to the sick quarters. Naturally the large amount of work that has fallen upon the staff of the Army Medical Corps at Wynberg and Rondebosch has necessitated an increase in the numbers originally provided. Prominent amongst the auxiliaries at these two hospitals may be found the members of the St. John's Ambulance Association, some of whom will be found in our illustrations. No less than fifty-five members of this association left London under the charge of Staff-Sergeant E. G. Davies, having volunteered for service in South Africa, and they embarked at Southampton in the transport "Simla." On their voyage out to the Cape they were attached to No. 15 Bearer Company of the R.A.M.C., and on arrival at Cape Town on December 18 last were divided into two parties, one of which, consisting of three non-commissioned officers and thirty men, was sent to No. 2 General Hospital at Wynberg, while the remainder, consisting of two non-commissioned officers and twenty men, proceeded to No. 3 General Hospital at Rondebosch.

At the time of their arrival at the Cape there were no less than 500 cases of sick and wounded in No. 2 General Hospital at Wynberg alone, so that the addition of a further body of workers was warmly welcomed by the Army Medical Staff, whose abilities had been fairly well taxed with the duty of attending to such a large number of patients. It will be gratifying to the many friends at home of the St. John's Ambulance Association to hear that their co-operation in the work of the Army hospitals in South Africa is very much valued and appreciated by the members of the permanent staff, as well as by the patients.

The climate in the neighbourhood of the Cape of Good Hope is pronounced by the most eminent of the Army medical authorities to be extremely favourable for their work, wounds healing very rapidly indeed. Several of those who were struck down in the earlier period of the war are now again fit for duty, and able to rejoin their comrades in the ranks.

CONVALESCENTS.
Wounded "Tommies" at Wynberg Hospital.

IN CAMP.
Quarters of the St. John's Ambulance Corps.

Photos. Copyright. THE RED CROSS. H. Sharpe.
Sergeants of the R.A.M.C. and St. John's Ambulance Corps.

Digitized by Google

NOTHING is more difficult than to get at the truth of the best established facts, unless it be to settle the most elementary principles. A French writer who signs himself "Commandant B.," and who seems to reason well, and with a wide knowledge of the facts, has contributed two papers on what he calls the Bankruptcy of Volley Firing to the Revue du Cercle Militaire. On the technical question I say nothing. The point is that Commandant B. runs a tilt at some well thought of common-places of military history, and shows cause for abolishing them. Nothing is more frequently or confidently asserted than the wonderful rapidity and excellence of the volley firing of Frederick's soldiers. Commandant B. denies it altogether, and quotes Guibert, a contemporary writer on tactics. The authority would have been better if it had been that of Guichard, who figured on the King of Prussia's Army List as Major Quintus Icilius and saw service in the Seven Years' War. Still Guibert is a writer of weight who had been about Frederick. Now he says roundly that after two volleys given and taken no discipline could prevent the fire from becoming independent. The men got excited, did not ram their cartridges well home, and pointed very badly. They put the butts of their muskets to their shoulders, but did not raise the barrels, so that the bullets were buried in the dust at a quarter of the distance from their mark. If this was so, the question suggests itself how the Prussian fire was so effective, as the lists of killed and wounded in Frederick's battles clearly prove that it was. Yet Guibert is a witness who cannot be neglected, and his statement goes to show how difficult it is to get at the truth.

* * * *

One passage of the Commandant's paper interests us. He quotes Lord Wolseley's opinion that the result of the battle of Omdurman shows the value of volley firing. Then, with many compliments to our Commander-in-Chief, he proceeds to prove that the example is of no value. There is, he says, a simple fact which disposes of it completely, and that is the absolute security in which the British soldiers were during the action, "a favourable circumstance," as he justly adds. Moreover, he notes that the Dervishes had no artillery. This seems very strong, and beyond all doubt there is a vast difference between smashing the stem of the wine-glass which has no pistol in its hand, and aiming straight at an antagonist in a duel, as the experienced Irish gentleman said to Charles O'Malley. But then if the Dervishes had opened a good fire, and had possessed artillery, would not those conditions have had a disturbing effect on our men, however they had fired? On general principles it would seem that even a control which is not perfect must have some steadying effect on men. If they get excited even with it, what will they do without any? The calculation suggested to one by the vision of excited men blazing away at discretion with magazine rifles is that the expenditure of ammunition must be enormous, but not that the execution done will be in proportion. Yet there is unquestionably a profound truth latent in this criticism of Commandant B. on the speech of Lord Wolseley, and it is that the amount of damage you do your enemy depends not wholly on the course you take yourself, but on a combination of that and of his vigour in hitting back. Perhaps, too, he ought to take local knowledge into account. At the Modder, for instance, it is said that there was a mirage which confused the aim of our men. Given the mirage and two adversaries, one of whom has been accustomed to it, and the other not, and it follows that the first has a distinct advantage. This, no doubt, is a most exceptional case, but it is none the less an example of the variety of circumstances which must be taken into account in measuring one adversary with another.

* * * *

There is some amusement to be obtained from noting the change of tone which is coming over some of our foreign critics, M. de Cassagnac for instance, who never misses a chance of boasting that he hates us, wherein he does us a great honour. It is a favourite theme of his that the enmity of France and Germany is accidental, and could be removed if the question of Alsace and Lorraine were once out of the way—which, to be sure, is a pretty "if"—but that the hatred of England to France and her habitual treachery are eternal. Yet he has been scared into coming, to some extent, round to our side by the use which a good many writers in France are making of the Boer successes. They are preaching the virtues of a Citizen Army at a great rate, and are advocating the instant abolition of the professional corps of officers in France. M. de Cassagnac and a good many others with him are getting a little frightened at this, and find themselves driven to make apologies for our failures in consequence. They are pointing out that the Boers have never yet proved themselves formidable in attack, which is absolutely true. Then they are beginning to allow for the many advantages which the Boers possess, in the habits of life which have hardened them in a way impossible for a European people, in local knowledge, and in the nature of the country where the fighting has gone on so far. North of the Tugela the Boers have the enormous advantage of being on the steps of a kind of giant's staircase in a frightfully broken and confused condition. The Drakensberg goes down to the sea in a succession of broken precipices. We have to mount them with the Boers waiting for us on the top. The French have nothing like that between Paris and the frontier which was drawn by the war of 1870. Till they have they had better not try to do without a regular army. This little family quarrel may help to show that a good deal of the abuse poured on us is only another form of the feuds of our neighbours. They beat one another on our back, as the French proverb has it—and happily the blows do us no harm.

* * * *

The Germans are a very thorough people, and they go habitually to the root of the matter. There was a good example of their thorough way of looking at things in Admiral Tirpitz's speech on the German Navy Bill. The admiral is not apparently a brilliant speaker, and the Reichstag seems even to have found him a little trying. Yet he put the case very forcibly when he told the deputies that if Germany had a strong fighting fleet "the enemy will have to beat us at sea before he can establish a blockade. Our enemy would in such circumstances have to reflect, before he began a war with Germany, whether the game was worth the candle." There is indeed a vast difference between being so weak that you must accept blockade, and being only so far inferior that you may have to endure it after defeat. The task of the enemy is incomparably greater in the second case, even putting aside the possibility that a victory may be so dearly won that the victor cannot establish a blockade. We did not blockade the coast of Holland after Hyde Parker's action on the Dogger Bank, and were in no condition to do so. It is sometimes the case that we talk of blockade as if it followed as a matter of course from numerical superiority. But that would only be the case when the superiority, moral or material, is colossal. In the majority of cases blockade has followed hard-fought battles, and has been the consequence not of one victory but of several. If the German Navy is brought to the level aimed at by the Emperor, we might well be unable to blockade it at all, even after a victory, supposing that the Empire were in alliance with any other Naval Power which drew a considerable part of our Fleet elsewhere.

* * * *

Meanwhile the Emperor is sure of a considerable measure of success, and that is a serious fact for our consideration. Captain Mahan and our exposition of him have done much to persuade the world that strong fleets give the power to dominate your neighbour. As it is the firm conviction of all men on the continent of Europe that the dearest wish of every Englishman is to domineer, there is a growing wish on all hands to acquire the means of defence at sea against England. We see it in Germany, in France, and in Russia, and all these States have it in their power to increase their Navies largely if they so please. The task of keeping ours at the level of safety which we have hitherto thought necessary will become far more serious than ever, and it must be taken in hand just when there will be a great permanent increase in the cost of the Army.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

FEBRUARY 18, 1794.—Sourier carried—Martinique. Bellegarde's Camp, on the heights of Sourier, was successfully assaulted and captured by Lieutenant-Colonels Buckeridge, Coote, and Blundell, but with considerable loss on our side. 1897.—Capture of Benin. The punitive expedition against the King of Benin arrived at that city and captured it with slight losses. The king escaped, but submitted later. 1898.—Defeat of Sudanese mutineers. Colonel Macdonald attacked and defeated the mutineers near Lake Kioga, Uganda.

February 19, 1792.—Redoubt at Seringapatam taken by General Abercromby. 1803.—Galle Gederah and Girio Gamma, Ceylon, taken by Lieutenant-Colonel Logan. 1810.—Surrender of Amboyna, Molucca Islands, by the Dutch. 1891.—Tokar recaptured by the Egyptians, under Colonel Kitchener.

February 20, 1794.—Engagement in St. Domingo. Lieutenant-Colonel Whitelock, while marching towards L'Acul, defeated a force of mulattoes, and drove them from their entrenchments. 1818.—Defeat of the Mahrattas. Brigadier-General Smith defeated a large body of Mahratta horse, under Sirdah Bapoo Golka, near Ashta, Poonah. 1841.—Fort Wapanee taken. This fort, in the south Mahratta country, which was held by some refractory Arabs, was taken by storm by Major Vivian, and surrendered next day.

February 21, 1826.—Sir Archibald Alison born. 1849.—Battle of Gujerat. Lord Gough, with about 25,000 British, reinforced by the Bombay column, defeated the Sikhs under Shere Sing, who numbered about 60,000. The enemy fled in disorder, leaving baggage, stores, and fifty guns. Our loss was five officers and ninety-two rank and file killed, and twenty-three officers and 682 rank and file wounded.

February 22, 1760.—Action near Patria. Colonel Caillaud, with a force of 300 Europeans, together with 1,000 Sepoys, having joined the army of Meer Jaffier, Subahdar of Bengal, 15,000 strong, attacked the army of Shah Zada, an Indian ally of the Dutch, and defeated them. 1818.—Surrender of Chacun. This hill fort, near Poonah, was surrendered by the Mahrattas to Colonel Deacon.

February 23, 1814.—Crossing of the Adour. Lieutenant-General Sir John Hope, with 28,000 men crossed the Adour with very slight losses. This was largely owing to a mistake on General Thouveret's part, only two battalions being detached to check the British.

February 24, 1797.—"Invasion of Wales." A body of 1,200 French convicts were landed at Fishguard, South Wales, with the object of ravaging the coast. The spirited action of the peasantry, who, uniting with the Militia and Volunteers, appeared upon the scene, and compelled the curious invaders to surrender at discretion. 1841.—Defeat of refractory tribesmen in the Nazian Valley, by Shah Soojah's troops, under Captain Ferris, assisted by the 44th Regiment and the 27th Native Infantry.

FEBRUARY 18, 1653.—First day of Blake's battle with Tromp off Portland. 1800.—The "Foudroyant" and consorts captured the French "Généreux" and convoy. 1873.—Stanhope Gold Medal founded.

February 19, 1653.—Blake's battle with Tromp off Portland—second day of fighting. 1694.—Loss of the "Sussex," 80, off Gibraltar. 1801.—The "Phœbe," 40, Captain Sir Robert Barlow, captured the "Africaine," 40, off the coast of Morocco. Naval medal action. 1807.—Duckworth's squadron forced the passage of the Dardanelles. 1870.—The "Abyssinia" launched. 1841.—Rear-Admiral Hilary G. Andoe, C.B. born.

February 20, 1653.—Blake's battle with Tromp off Portland—decisive defeat of the Dutch. 1797.—Nelson made Rear-Admiral of the "Blue." 1835.—Admiral of the Fleet, Sir Nowell Salmon, V.C., G.C.B. born. 1894.—The "Harrier" launched. 1897.—The "Niobe" launched.

February 21, 1759.—The "Vestal," 32, Captain Samuel Hood, captured the "Bellone," 32, in the Atlantic, on the way to North America. The prize became the "Repulse," from which directly our present battleship takes the name. 1810.—The "Horatio," 38, captured the "Nécessité," 26, in the Atlantic. 1896.—Bombardment of Crete by the Powers.

February 22, 1642.—An Act of Council resumed the use of flag with Cross of St. George. 1799.—The "Espoir," 14, captured the "Africa," 18 (Spanish), near Malaga, by boarding after an hour and a-half's action. 1812.—The "Victorious," 74, Captain John Talbot, captured the "Rivoli," 74, off Venice. Naval medal action. 1898.—The "Mermaid" launched.

February 23, 1632.—Samuel Pepys born. 1674.—The "Tiger," 30, Captain Harman, captured the Dutch "Shaerlaes," 30, off Cadiz, a ship duel, the result of a challenge from the Dutch captain. 1805.—The "Leander," 50, Captain John Talbot, captured the "Ville de Milan," 40, recapturing the "Cleopatra," 32, at the same time. 1887.—Admiral Sir Michael Seymour died.

February 24, 1744.—The "Solebay," 20, captured the Spanish register ship "Concordia," from Vera Cruz, to Cadiz, with treasure. 1809.—Destruction of three French 40-gun frigates in the Bay of Biscay, by Rear-Admiral Stopford's squadron. Reduction of Martinique. 1813.—The "Peacock" sank after capture by the "Hornet" (American). 1815.—Robert Fulton died. 1840.—Vice-Admiral Ernest Rice born. 1891.—The "Tribune" launched.

Died for the Flag.

"Qui procul hinc," the legend's writ—
The frontier-grave is far away—
"Qui ante diem periit:
Sed miles sed pro patriâ."—HENRY NEWBOLT.

OF those who died for the flag and whose portraits are given in this week's issue, the earliest to fall were those who perished on the sad morning of December 11, when the grey dawn found Wauchope and his Scots Brigade within only a few hundred yards of the Boer trenches, and still marching in quarter-column and in close formation. Out from the hillside burst a veritable hell of fire, from which the Black Watch lost no less than six officers killed and eleven wounded, amongst the former being Captain the Hon. J. F. T. Cumming-Bruce, at first reported missing, but afterwards found to have been killed. He was only thirty-two. This is the second soldier son Lord Thurlow has lost, for his youngest son, who was a Seaforth Highlander and attached to the British Central African Rifles, died of fever at Mauritius on November 11. How heavily the Highland Brigade suffered is shown by the fact that the Gordons, whose casualties were the smallest in the brigade, lost three officers killed and two wounded. Of the former we give portraits of two—Colonel G. T. F. Downman and Captain A. S. Wingate. Colonel Downman had seen many a hard-fought field, for he wore the Egyptian medal with clasps for "Tel-el-Kebir," "El-Teb," "Tamai," and "Nile, 1884-85," and the last Indian General Service medal with clasps for "Relief of Chitral," "Punjab Frontier, 1897-98," and "Tirah, 1897-98." The last clasp covers "Dargai," where he was second in command to Matthias and gained his lieutenant-colonel's brevet. Wingate, who was just thirty, obtained his company last May, and had seen the same Indian service as Colonel Downman.

During the first week of the New Year French's force was active around Colesberg, and in that fighting a most promising young soldier lost his life—Lieutenant A. V. West, the only son of Lieutenant-Colonel West, who, after a service of four years in the ranks, had won for himself a commission. Almost, if not quite, the youngest officer killed at Ladysmith on January 6 was Second-Lieutenant G. B. B. Denniss, R.E., a son of Mr. E. R. B. Denniss, of Harrow, and barrister of the Middle Temple. After a brilliant career at Harrow and Woolwich, this gallant young sapper went out in September to join the 23rd Field Company R.E. with White at Ladysmith. In the sortie on the night of December 11, when the Boer guns on Surprise Hill were stormed, it was this young officer who, with Lieutenant Jones, of the same company, destroyed them with gun-cotton. In the fighting on the 6th, when the Imperial Light Horse lost eight out of ten of their officers, it was Lieutenant Jones who took command, and he was joined by Lieutenant Denniss. Poor Denniss was the first to be killed, Lieutenant Jones perishing later in the day. Both behaved with conspicuous gallantry. Another of those we mourn is Captain H. C. Sandford, who lost his life in the attempt to storm an impregnable position outside Mafeking on December 24. Sandford was an Indian Staff Corps man, who belonged to the 1st Punjab Infantry, and had seen service in Burma in 1892. He was home on a year's leave, which expired early in August last, but, like the keen soldier he was, he smelt fighting in the air, obtained two months' extension, and went out to South Africa to meet a soldier's death.

In Buller's fighting north of the Tugela, one of the earliest officers killed was Captain A. D. Raitt, of the 2nd West Surrey, who died of wounds received in Warren's attack on the Boer right on January 21. Raitt was only thirty-one and had been but little over a year a captain. The remaining four of our portraits are of officers who perished in, perhaps, as tough fighting as the British Army has ever seen—the attack on Spion Kop on January 24. In this great fight the corps that most highly distinguished themselves and suffered most heavily were the 2nd Cameronians, the 3rd King's Royal Rifles, and Thorneycroft's Mounted Infantry. To the first-named, the gallant old 90th, "Perthshire Greybacks," belonged Captains Murray and Walter. The former was only thirty-two and the latter four years younger. Neither had seen any previous war service. Of the King's Royal Rifles, the youngest officer to perish was Second-Lieutenant French-Brewster, who only joined the regiment on October 18 from the 3rd (Militia) Battalion West Surrey. The Hon. H. Petre, who belonged to Thorneycroft's, was a brother of the present Lord Petre and a captain in the Suffolk Yeomanry, and only went out to South Africa a little time back in order to see that active service in which he was to perish. It will be remembered that the Cameronians and King's Royal Rifles were with Lyttelton's Brigade on Warren's right, and to their share fell the storming of the steepest side of the Kop.

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

Commander-in-Chief: FIELD-MARSHAL LORD ROBERTS.

I.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar, under Methuen.

Brigade Commanders: Major-Generals Sir H. E. Colvile, Hector Macdonald, and R. Pole-Carew. Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Babington.

CAVALRY
2nd Dragoons.
9th Lancers.
12th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
Horse—G and P Batteries.
Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th Batteries.
Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS
7th (Field) Co.
8th (Railway) Co.
11th (Field) Co.
29th (Fortress) Co.
31st (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Balloon Section.
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY
3rd Grenadiers.
1st Coldstreams.
2nd Coldstreams.
1st Scots Guards.
1st Argyll and Sutherland.
2nd Seaforths.
2nd Black Watch.
1st Highland L.I.
1st Northumberlands.
2nd Northamptons.
1st Gordons.
2nd Yorkshire L.I.
1st N. Lancashire (half battalion in Kimberley).
2nd Cornwall L.I.
1st Munster Fusiliers.
2nd Shropshire L.I.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Queensland Mounted Infantry.
Canadian Infantry.
S. African Light Horse (part).

II.—Cape Colony. All Troops in and South of De Aar, on line Cape Town to De Aar.

Lieutenant-General commanding line of communications: Sir F. W. E. F. Forestier-Walker.

ARTILLERY
Horse—U, Q, T Batteries.
Field—4th, 38th, 65th, 76th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th, 2nd, 8th, 39th, 44th, 66th, 88th Batteries.
Garrison—15th, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division (Siege Train).

ENGINEERS
6th (Fortress) Co.
9th (Field) Co.
20th (Field) Co.
38th (Field) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Field Park.
Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY
2nd Norfolk.
2nd Hampshire.
2nd Lincoln.
1st Scottish Borderers.
2nd Cheshire.
6th Warwick (Militia).
4th Derbyshire (Militia).
3rd Durham L.I. (Militia).
4th Royal Lancaster (Militia)
9th King's Royal Rifles (Militia)
2nd South Wales Borderers.
2nd North Staffs.
1st East Lancashire.
C.I. Volunteers.
4th Argyll and Sutherland (Militia).
3rd East Lancashire (Militia).

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
New South Wales Artillery.
Duke of Edinburgh's Rifles (Cape).
Cape Town Highlanders.
Victorian Mounted Infantry.
S. Australian Mounted Infantry.
W. Australian Mounted Infantry.
Tasmanian Mounted Infantry.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Naauwpoort under French.

Commanding Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Irabazon.

CAVALRY
Household Regiment.
6th Dragoon Guards.
6th Dragoons.
10th Hussars.
16th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
Horse—O, and R Batteries.
Field—20th Battery.
Heavy—2 5-in. Howitzers

ENGINEERS
10th (Railway) Co.
26th (Field) Co.
37th (Field) Co.
42nd (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Div. Telegraph Batn.

INFANTRY
1st Suffolk.
1st Essex.
1st Yorkshire.
1st Welsh.
2nd Bedford.*
1st Royal Irish.*
2nd Wiltshire.*
2nd Worcestershire.*

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Prince Alfred's Volunteer Guards (Cape).
1st City (Grahamstown) Volntrs.
New South Wales Lancers.
New Zealand Mounted Infantry.
Rimington's Scouts.
Prince Alfred's Own Cape Artlry.
Australian Horse (Troop).

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY
Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS
12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY
2nd Irish Rifles.
2nd Northumberland.
1st Royal Scots.
2nd Berkshire.
1st Derbyshire.
2nd East Kent.*
1st Oxford L.I.*
1st West Riding.*
2nd Gloucester.*

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Cape Mounted Rifles.
Det. Cape Mounted Police.
Frontier Mounted Rifles.
Kaffrarian Rifles.
Brabant's Horse.

* These troops form Major-General Kelly-Kenny's Division now operating in conjunction with French and Gatacre.

V.—Natal, beleaguered in Ladysmith under White.

Brigade Commanders: Major-General F. Howard. Cavalry Brigade: Major-General Brocklehurst.

CAVALRY
5th Dragoon Guards.
5th Lancers.
18th Hussars.
19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 10 Battery.*

ENGINEERS
23rd (Field) Company, Balloon Section, Headquarters and Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
1st Liverpool.
1st Devon.
1st Leicester.
1st Gloucester.†
1st King's Royal Rifles.
2nd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Manchester.
2nd Gordons.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.†
2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
2nd Rifle Brigade.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Border Mounted Rifles.
Natal Field Artillery.
Imperial Light Horse.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Natal Mounted Police (Det.)

* Surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

† Headquarters surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

VI.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

Divisional and Brigade Commanders: Lieutenant-Generals Sir F Clery and Sir C. Warren: Major-Generals Hildyard, Lyttelton, Hart, and Barton. Cavalry Brigade: Lord Dundonald.

CAVALRY
1st Dragoons.
13th Hussars.
14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—J Battery
Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 66th, 73rd, 78th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS
17th (Field) Co.
45th (Steam Road Transport) Co.
"A" Pontoon Troop.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
1st Border.
2nd Devon.
2nd West York.
2nd West Surrey.
2nd East Surrey.
1st Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Scots Fusiliers.
2nd Royal Fusiliers.
2nd Scottish Rifles.
1st Durham L.I.
3rd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Rifle Brigade.
2nd Somerset L.I.
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
1st Connaught Rangers.
1st Dublin Fusiliers.
2nd Dorsetshire.
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
1st South Lancashire.
2nd Middlesex.
1st York and Lancaster.
2nd Royal Lancaster.
2nd Royal Warwick.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Natal Naval Volunteers.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Durban Light Infantry.
Bethune's Mounted Infantry.
Thorneycroft's Mntd. Infantry.
Imperial Light Infantry.
Natal Mounted Police (Det.).
S. African Light Horse (part).

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY
7th Dragoon Guards.
17th Lancers.
8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—A and M Batteries.
Field—43rd (Howitzer), 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 5th, 9th, 17th, 88th, 90th, 91st Batteries.
Garrison—5th Co. E. Division; 15th Co. W. Division (Siege Train); 2nd Co. S. Division.

ENGINEERS
"C" Pontoon Troop.
47th (Fortress) Co.

INFANTRY
1st Sussex (from Malta).
1st Leinster (from Halifax).
1st Cameron H'gh's (from Egypt).
Australasian and Canadian Contingents.
Imperial Yeomanry.
Duke of Cambridge's Own (special corps I.Y.).
Lord Lovat's Corps of Scouts.
Lumsden's Horse (from India).
Roberts's Horse (raising).
Kitchener's Horse (raising).

* Militia Regiments.

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 38 (Supply), 40, 41, and 42.

Naval Brigades are serving with White in Ladysmith, with Buller in Northern Natal, with Methuen at Modder River, and with the troops under General Gatacre.

The local troops in Rhodesia, under Colonel Plumer, comprise the British South African Police and the Rhodesian Regiment. In Mafeking, with Colonel Baden-Powell, are British South African Police (detachment), Diamond Fields Artillery (detachment), Cape Mounted Police (detachment), the Protectorate Regiment, and Bechuanaland Rifles. In Kimberley, under Colonel Kekewich, there are the Diamond Fields Artillery, Diamond Fields Horse, Kimberley Rifles, and Cape Mounted Police (detachment).

NOTE.—The strength of the various units on a war footing is approximately as follows: A regiment of Cavalry 610; a battery of Artillery, Horse 180, Field 170 (companies of Garrison Artillery vary considerably, but may be taken to average 150; the Siege Train batteries are, however, very largely augmented); a company of Royal Engineers 210; a battalion of Infantry 1,010; and a company Army Service Corps 140.

The Eighth Division ordered to mobilise for service in South Africa is as follows: Sixteenth Brigade: 2nd Grenadiers, 2nd Scots Guards, 2nd East York, 1st Leinster, No. 2 Co. Army Service Corps (supply column). Seventeenth Brigade: 1st Worcestershire, 2nd Manchester, 1st South Staffordshire (from Gibraltar), 2nd West Kent (from Malta). Divisional Troops: 89th, 90th, and 91st Batteries, Royal Field Artillery, No. 5 (Field) Co. R.E., No. 39 Co. A.S.C.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

DURING the past week embarkations of singular interest have taken place at the Royal Albert Docks, at Southampton, and at Liverpool, no fewer than four ships having left with contingents of the Imperial Yeomanry and with details of the Imperial Yeomanry Hospital Staff. The organisation of the Imperial Yeomanry was dealt with in the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of the 3rd inst., but in view of these recent departures a short additional sketch of its aims and objects, with special reference to the accompanying pictures, among which have been included two of the Honourable Artillery Company's contingent of the City Imperial Volunteers, may be acceptable.

The pictures represent, it will be noted, the Imperial Yeomanry in, practically speaking, "every shape and form." Officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, mounted and dismounted, in full dress and fatigue dress, all types are portrayed, and, moreover, a very wide area is included. It will be remembered that these local contingents, although raised in connection with local Yeomanry corps, contain many members who have come from a considerable distance, in some cases actually from far-off Canada, in order to serve the Queen in a corps of such promise and with such a lively career of usefulness before it.

It may be that here and there readers of the softer sex will think, as they look at the Imperial Yeoman in his field service kit, that in appearance he does not come up to the gallant Yeomanry cavalryman with whom they have been hitherto familiar, that brave figure in the green and gold jacket, may be, and busby, and other trappings, at times suggestive of a spirited attempt to combine the spectacular attributes of half-a-dozen regular corps in one superbly variegated whole. But such artistic longings are, we fancy, growing much less pronounced and frequent. When war becomes a stern reality even the feminine mind begins to appreciate the fact that the gilt and ginger-bread side of it must be turned to the wall, and that, from the patriotically practical standpoint, a "gentleman in khaki" makes a better picture than the most magnificently dressed ornament of a dazzlingly uniformed corps.

What will strike the male observer is the obvious fact that the Imperial Yeomanry field service kit is a thoroughly sound one for the purpose for which it has been devised. In this connection it is well to emphasise the circumstance that these Imperial Yeomanry are intended to act, not as yeomanry cavalry, but as mounted infantry, and that it is to the latter end that every detail of their uniform and equipment has been thought out. Naturally some margin has been allowed, but the central idea has been to produce a man and a horse capable, if necessary, of important individual action, a still further independence being secured by subordinating the mounted to the dismounted equipment.

Of the contingent furnished to the City Imperial Volunteers by the Honourable Artillery Company our two pictures afford typical illustration. That in which the officers of the contingent are shown includes also Major-General Trotter, commanding the Home District, Earl Denbigh, commanding the Honourable Artillery Company, and Lady Denbigh, and Major G. McMicking, commanding the Horse Artillery of the corps. The contingent is armed with a special battery of Vickers-Maxim quick-firing guns.

CITY IMPERIAL VOLUNTEER GUNNERS.
Types of the Contingent Furnished by the Honourable Artillery Company.

Photos. Copyright. AN IMPERIAL YEOMAN. Gregory.
A Sergeant in Full South African Field Kit.

Digitized by Google

Some Officers

OF THE

Imperial Yeomanry

AND

Artillery, C.I.V.

Photo. Copyright. THE HAMPSHIRE YEOMANRY CONTINGENT. Alderslade.

Photo. Copyright. THE HONOURABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY'S CONTINGENT, C.I.V. Gregory

Photo. Copyright. THE BERKSHIRE YEOMANRY CONTINGENT. Russell & Sons.

Photo. Copyright. THE WORCESTERSHIRE YEOMANRY CONTINGENT. Russell & Sons.

Photo. Copyright. THE WILTSHIRE YEOMANRY CONTINGENT. Russell & Sons

Digitized by Google

With the Mafeking Relief Force.

"Navy & Army."

Colonel Plumer's Camp at Gaberones.

From a Photo. from a Correspondent.

Copyright.

Digitized by Google

With Our Soldiers in Natal.

LETTERS FROM HOME.
News of the Loved Ones Oversea.

POST AND TELEGRAPHS.
A Hard-worked and Willing Staff.

A MUCH APPRECIATED BOON.
A Quiet Spot for Writing Letters.

FOOD FOR THE MIND.
The Record of the World's News.

A WELCOME VISITOR.
The Mail Train Arrives from Durban.

FOR WIVES AND SWEETHEARTS.
"Full of Hairbreadth 'Scapes and Dangers Run.

From Photos. by Mr. W. D. N. Cotts.

Comforts in Camp at Chieveley.

Digitized by Google

With Clery and Warren on the Tugela.

MORNING SERVICE IN CAMP.
Oliver Cromwell's Advice is not Forgotten.

AN AL FRESCO BARBER.
Shaving or Hair-cutting at the Shortest Notice.

DAINTIES FOR THE DEVONS.
From Lady Buller's Committee at Aldershot.

WAR is not only a teacher to those who fight, but to those who read of the fighting. Six months ago there were few to whom the Tugela was even a name in this country. It would have puzzled all but the roaming globe-trotter, or the returned colonist, to tell where it was. To-day our much-quoted friend the man in the street has Tugela, Potgieter's Drift, Trichardt's Drift, Wagon Drift, Colenso, Spion Kop, Chieveley, Acton Homes, and half-a-dozen others familiar in his mouth as household words. And not only that, but he knows where they are, and can put his finger on them on the map. It is a heavy price we have paid for our increase of knowledge. The week of the three defeats was the most painful seven days we have any of us passed through, and one of those three checks to our pride and blows to our patriotism will be associated for ever with the name of the bishop who compiled the school book on arithmetic and was the advocate of the Zulus. Colenso has another meaning for us than it once had. But the pain to our sentiments was the least part of the price we have paid. The banks of the Tugela will be studded for ever with the graves of those who have fallen in battle in this war, which was expected to be little, and has turned out to be the greatest by far we have fought since the Crimea already, while no one can tell what it still has in store. Let us, by the way, hope that we shall not again disgrace ourselves by neglecting the tombs of our soldiers as we did the cemetery near Sebastopol. It was a very unpleasant practice of ours to be indecently neglectful of the last resting-places of our soldiers who fell in battle. In many cases, no doubt, it was not possible to keep a record. Thousands of British officers and men have fallen, or have died of disease, in the far-ranging campaigns of German, Spanish, Indian, and American wars. They were consigned to a soldier's grave, coffinless and unrecorded, at the foot of some stony sierra or in the primeval forest, and there could be no more record kept of them than of the gentlemen whose graves are in the bottomless sea.

"The body to its place, and the soul to Heaven's grace,
And the rest in God's own time."

But where this has not been the case we have at times displayed a brutal indifference to the burial-places of those whom we were ready to call heroes in rhetorical speeches. The island of Chusan was once the scene of a quite hideous example of our occasional want of right feeling. A number of soldiers—officers and men—of a regiment landed there died of fever. They were buried about 2-ft. below the surface, and then a short time afterwards a military road was run through the place. The remains of the dead were thrown over on the roadside. This spectacle was so disgusting to the Chinese, who themselves are superstitiously reverent of burial-places, that a wealthy native merchant bought a field and reburied the bodies decently as an act of human piety. Our callousness in this matter is said to have done more to persuade the Chinese that we were only "ugly red-haired savages" than all our bombardments. There must be no more of that sort of thing.

Digitized by Google

Any comparison with the Crimea at once brings back the memory of the terrible first winter, and of the sufferings which want of experience, want of judgment, and a superfluity of red tape brought on our Army. Happily we do seem to have amended that, and whatever may be wanting, or may be wrong in South Africa, there is no danger that our soldiers will be sacrificed to pure want of food. Now and then on a day of fighting, or among marches, our men may be thrown on emergency rations, and when these have been eaten on the first emergency there is an unpleasant interval of compulsory fasting. To be without his food was always grievous to the British soldier, and especially to the Englishman, though characteristically enough he was always the most wasteful of men with his rations. Frenchmen, Germans, Portuguese, or Spaniards in the Peninsula could be trusted to carry rations for several days, and to make them last. The British soldier either ate all his on the first day, or parted with them to the country people for drink, or even threw them away to escape having to carry the weight. Then he starved, and went to fill the hospital. Nowadays the British soldier is a much better educated man than he was when Wellington calmly remarked that it was impossible to get habitually sober men, though, as the old-fashioned general said in the after-dinner speech, in spite of that, he fights very well. Perhaps he has learnt the meaning of the old saw "Waste not, want not." At least care has been taken to provide him with enough. Although the old cry against the War Office is tolerably shrill, it cannot be said that it has forgotten to provide stores, or medicine, or that, having provided them, it has not supplied the means of taking them where they are wanted. Of all these things there seems to have been even superfluity on the Tugela. We do not say that this is a very wonderful feat; after all the camps are connected by railway with Durban, which is accessible from the sea. We are not so far altogether in a roadless country, nor are we perched on a hill amid snow and separated from our port by miles of mud feet deep. Yet we have commonly begun by managing all the supply part of our wars so badly that it is encouraging to hear of our success so far. The hardest part of the task has yet to be performed. When the general advance is made the commissariat will be taxed to the utmost to keep pace with the army. We have been blamed for sticking too closely to the railway, but hasty critics do not realise the difficulties that attend road transport, when a mule will itself consume in a few days all the forage it can carry. But our road transport ought to be soon in perfect order, and well practised in every necessary respect, and we may fairly rely that we shall not have to learn that hunger is the effective ally of the Boers.

THE SHOEING FORGE.
The Farrier Plies His Useful Trade.

NOT HAM AND EGGS.
But a Substantial Breakfast for Tommy.

HEADS BOWED IN PRAYER.
Church Service in the Field.

Digitized by Google

A WAYSIDE HOSTELRY.
Resting-place of the Troops on Their Way to the Battle-field.

On the Orange Free State Frontier.

WITH MOUNTED TROOPS.
A Machine Gun Packed for Quick Transit.

"PREPARE TO MOUNT."
A Detachment of Cavalry about to Leave Camp on Outpost Duty.

LUNCH IN THE OPEN.
Cavalry Officers Taking a Hasty Meal on the Veldt.

With General French AT Colesberg.

RELIEVING GUARD.
Sentries of the Royal Horse Artillery being Relieved by Their Comrades.

Copyright.

From Photos. by Our Own Correspondent.

Navy & Army.

Digitized by Google

In the Central Theatre of the War.

THE ADVANCE FROM NAAUWPOORT.

The Building Occupied by General French during the Operations against Colesberg.

THE BASE CAMP AT ARUNDEL.

This Camp was Attacked on December 13 by 1,700 Boers with Three Guns, the Fight lasting for Eleven Hours, when the Enemy was Driven Off, with a Loss of Several Men.

From Photos. by Earl De la Warr, Special Correspondent of the "Globe."

Digitized by Google

Thrift in the Royal Navy.

By L. S. Dee.

THE days when sailors fried their watches and lit their pipes with bank notes have given place to the day of savings banks and provident funds, and none who desire the sailor's welfare—and who does not?—will regret the change.

The old careless, open-handed nature, however, will never die while the sea has her sons, for it is fed from the broad breasts of mother ocean herself. Sailors' characters are as their lives, free and unconfined; and a stingy sailor is as much an anomaly as a narrow ocean.

The foolish recklessness of the old days has disappeared, no doubt, but the spirit still lingers, if in a chastened form. The man whose chum dies leaving a widowed mother, and who remits to her all his own savings, pretending they belonged to the deceased chum, is not unknown afloat. The writer was shipmates with a man who, on the occasions of his somewhat rare visits to the shore, always changed a sovereign into threepenny bits for distribution among the children he met. A more familiar, if less expensive, example of the good feeling that animates the seafarer is exhibited by the man who throws his "tot" of grog into the water tank so that all hands may drink his health.

There is no doubt, however, that the modern Bluejacket, although generous as of yore when occasion needs, has developed a thriftiness and a capability of spending his money prudently that was beyond the power of his sea-fathers.

Many causes have helped to bring this about.

He has felt, like other people, the stress of competition in a teeming world. He has got married, and assumed responsibilities that his sailor forefathers declined. He has felt the effect of persistent work by benevolent societies and individuals; and last, but not least, the Naval Savings Bank Act of 1866 has brought forcibly home to him the solid advantages of thrift.

If a man does not save his money in the Navy it is not the fault of the Admiralty, for they offer him every facility. Among the many curious duties laid upon Naval lieutenants is that of pointing out to the men under their immediate command the beauty and the blessedness of a balance in the savings bank. We cannot say that we have ever heard the virtuous counsel being proffered by any of these well known experts; but the intention of the Admiralty is none the less praiseworthy, as is also their offer of the very respectable rate of interest—as interest goes nowadays—of £3 15s. per cent. The banking rules also are framed so as to offer the minimum of trouble to a would-be depositor. When the monthly pay-day approaches a man has simply to go to the pay office with a slip of paper stating how much of his pay he wishes to draw, how much to remit to his friends, and how much to bank; the rest is done by the office staff. He is furnished with a bank-book, which becomes the most treasured possession in his ditty-box. The scoffers say that he worships it, as a heathen does his gods; and numerous stock tales, more or less true, are current afloat concerning the solicitude of men for their bank-books in the hour of sudden danger. Every ship that has gone down has taken with her men who would have been saved but that they "ran below at the last moment for their ditty-boxes." A ship in which the writer served once lodged on the edge of a sand bank at the mouth of the Shanghai River, heeled over to a rather alarming extent for a few seconds, and then slipped off again. There was no damage done, except that one of the Nordenfelt guns on the topgallant forecastle slid across to the lee side and dived into the wash-deck locker. But the number of comical yarns that the incident gave birth to, as to what happened in various parts of the ship during those few seconds, will be understood only by those familiar with lower deck humour. One story bearing upon the subject in hand was that a well-known "saver" was seen in the lee gangway waiting for the worst, with his ditty-box under his arm and his sewing-machine lashed to a life-belt.

"His sewing machine lashed to a life belt"

To return, however, to the facilities for thrift offered on board ship. The money a man saves during a commission may, on paying off, be transferred to a dockyard bank or to a post office savings bank, so that opportunities for adding to it are provided continuously during the whole time he serves.

The dockyard bank is an institution that is not so well known as it deserves to be. Deposits and withdrawals of not less than 1s. may be made in them by any Bluejacket. He may withdraw money if on leave, at a distance, by sending a request. He may transfer his account from one dockyard to another, or to a sea-going ship; and he may remit money to the bank, if afloat, through his paymaster.

There is, however, an invincible repugnance among Bluejackets to deal with any Service institution if their wants can be served in any other way; and there is no doubt that, when at home, the Post Office Savings Bank is preferred to the dockyard office. At Chatham, a branch post office has been established in the depôt, and no less than 3,000 accounts have been opened there in three years. This is rather surprising, as it is hardly to be expected that Jack will save much when at home. The Admiralty recognise this, and Naval Savings Banks are not provided in the home ships.

There is no doubt that all these facilities for saving are being increasingly taken advantage of. One ship alone that the writer knows of paid off with £3,000 in the bank, to the credit of 250 depositors, and the Registrar-General's returns for last year show total deposits of £227,720.

It must not be forgotten that this represents only part of the money saved, or, at any rate, not spent on themselves by sailors. The amount sent home to their friends, no small item, should be added to this. A man may make out an allotment, or half-pay as it is called, in favour of his wife or friends, payable monthly at any post office in the United Kingdom; or he may make remittances from time to time through his paymaster and the Admiralty, entirely without cost to himself. Many tales of quiet unselfishness could be told of men who have denied themselves comforts to be able to provide them for a wife or aged mother at home.

But in addition to passively saving, there are many other ways in which men add to their banking accounts. The man who is willing to work can always earn money in a ship. He can make and wash the clothes of his less energetic shipmates, cut their hair and shave them, take their photographs, and make mats, fretwork, boots, etc., for them.

A man who can make smart-looking and well-fitting caps—and this is not so easy as might be supposed—can command his own prices. Another artist who is sure of good remuneration is the tattooist. Most Bluejackets consider it a debt due to their profession to ornament their skins in this way; and if a ship should possess a tattooing genius who can do a snake round the arm or an eagle on the chest, hardly a man of the ship's company will escape him. A favourite design is a bleeding heart, pierced by a harpoon. In the flush of youthful love the initials of a fair one are sometimes added, but the slightly older hands are chary of thus committing themselves. Circumstances sometimes render changes in the initials necessary, and it looks suspicious when six or eight sets of initials are inscribed beneath one bleeding heart.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

THREE very interesting additions are made on this page to our long series of South African battle pictures. The operations directed by Lord Roberts on the Orange River border of the Free State have promised to be exceedingly interesting, and General French about Colesberg has been playing his part in a complicated game, intended to checkmate the right flank of the Boers by crushing resistance there and seizing the passages across the river. Deserting Africanders have reported to him that the Boers fear the rapid moves of our cavalry on their flanks, and that their men are worn out with constant alarms. The general has certainly kept them on the alert, and our illustration is of the New Zealanders and other mounted forces marching out from Rensburg for one of those reconnaissances which have so upset the Boer commandant. Colesberg is distant about twelve miles from the nearest point on the Orange River, which is crossed by the old waggon route into the Free State by a fine bridge 1,340-ft. long, the second in size in the colony, erected at a cost of £100,000, and by the railway bridge at Norval's Pont, which is 1,690-ft. long, and crosses in thirteen spans to connect with the Free State trunk line to Bloemfontein.

More interesting still is the picture of barbed wire entanglements raised on the Tugela. The country is arduous enough for our troops, but these entanglements have added greatly to the difficulties. A correspondent, describing an attack we made in another quarter, pictured the terrible effect of such impediments, in which our gallant fellows were caught, to be shot at as they struggled to get through, and sometimes were "hung up like crows." It is known that the Boers have torn down miles of fencing in the region they have overrun in order to raise entanglements on our lines of approach, and even in the drifts of the rivers. The system of using wire for this purpose has been closely enquired into on the continent, and the Spaniards made use of this means of defence on a large scale in order to bar the American approach to Santiago. The entanglements we illustrate were evidently intended to check both horse and foot.

The last picture is of the Rhodesian Mounted Regiment at Mochudi, Colonel Plumer's advanced base for his march to relieve gallant "B.P." at Mafeking. Our Rhodesians are excellent troops, and in every respect a match for the best of the Boers, and they have been doing splendid work at Crocodile Pools and Gaberones. Armoured trains appear to form movable bases for Colonel Plumer's advance, and he is operating also in a fine cavalry country, the region north of Mafeking being generally open, keeping an elevated level, and very healthy. Colonel Plumer and Colonel Baden-Powell have already communicated with each other, according to telegrams received, and the meeting of these famous fighting men is sure to take place very shortly.

THE OPERATIONS AT COLESBERG.
A Reconnaissance in Force.

WIRE ENTANGLEMENTS ON THE TUGELA.
Some of the Obstacles Encountered by Our Troops

Photos. Copyright. THE MAFEKING RELIEF FORCE. "Navy & Army"
With Colonel Plumer at Mochudi.

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

THE British public awaited with great anxiety the developments of Sir Redvers Buller's activity on the Tugela. They had witnessed with surprise his failure to penetrate the enemy's line at Colenso on December 15, and his inability to break down their resistance at Spion Kop on January 24, and they heard with satisfaction, though not with perfect confidence, that the third attempt to relieve Ladysmith was being made. The failure at Vaal Krantz on February 7 caused little surprise, though the intelligence carried with it the utmost disappointment.

To have been told by the general in command that there was to be no turning back, that the dominant position had been secured at Spion Kop, that the key of the road to Ladysmith was in our hands, and that our troops would reach the beleaguered garrison within a few days, and to find, at the same time, that our gallant soldiers were being compelled—through sheer inability to proceed—to return to their camps, raised alternate hopes and fears, and it is admirable testimony to the fortitude of the country and the Empire that our three reverses on the Tugela have in no way shaken our determination to "see the thing through."

We were able last week to describe the concluding events of the advance and retirement by way of Trichardt's Drift, and have now to record the failure at Vaal Kloof. The road from Springfield to Dewdrop and Ladysmith crosses the Tugela by Potgieter's Drift, which is at the south-western corner of the long tongue of land running southward, and enclosed between the two great curves made by the river to the west of Colenso. Spearman's Camp is south of Potgieter's, with Zwarts Kop on its right and Mount Alice on its left, both these being positions upon which Sir Redvers Buller had heavy guns.

The attack was intended to partake of the nature of a surprise, and was covered by a feint, and prepared for by a tremendous fire from our artillery. Early on the morning of February 5, the feint was made on the side of Potgieter's Drift, and was attended by some success. Several field batteries and howitzers advanced into the open, and General Wynne's Brigade deployed as if to attack the Brakfontein Hills, a balloon meanwhile ascending to observe the movement.

A storm of shrapnel and rifle fire greeted the troops, and there was heavy firing on both sides, two powerful guns opening from Spion Kop on the left. When the enemy's attention had been sufficiently occupied the troops withdrew in excellent order, and almost with the smartness of a field day. Meanwhile the Engineers were busy throwing a pontoon bridge over the river to the east, and General Lyttelton's Brigade began to cross at 2 p.m., the Durham Light Infantry leading, followed by the Rifle Brigade. To the north lay the heights of Vaal Krantz, of which the first ridges were gained with little opposition. The Durhams captured the kopje at the point of the bayonet, while the Rifle Brigade cleared the second position, a long ridge, upon which the troops bivouacked. The conduct of our Artillery was magnificent, and the position was well maintained.

On the next day, February 6, the difficulty of the operation became apparent. The position was enfiladed by Spion Kop on the left, and by Doorn Kloof on the right, on both of which the Boers had heavy guns, and the shell and Maxim fire was most galling. At four o'clock in the afternoon they attempted to recover the positions, but were driven off. They had now been able to reinforce their guns on Doorn Kloof, a high and commanding hill, and our position became extremely difficult to hold. The number of guns the Boers were able to bring up was a surprise, and the very telling fire to which we were subjected, combined with a revelation, through the operations of the balloon, of the veritable trap that lay before us, enforced the wisdom of a retirement. The movement began on the night of February 7, and by the morning of the 9th the whole of the troops were once more to the south of the Tugela, the casualties not being at all excessive. The movement we had made seemed to have been attended by the greatest possible disadvantages, and even if Sir Redvers Buller had forced his way through the bottle-neck at the head of the tongue of land, the position would not have been improved, for he would not have defeated the Boers, and his communications would have been cut.

In these circumstances some surprise has not unnaturally been expressed that General Buller should have made an attempt which could scarcely have succeeded. Fortunately, though the resistance of Ladysmith cannot be indefinitely prolonged, there seems to be no immediate cause for apprehension, and even the last reverse has not tamed the spirits of the gallant garrison, much as they must have suffered during recent weeks. There is too much reason to fear that Sir Redvers Buller was equally ill-informed in regard to the topography of the country and the preparations made by the Boers. He has attacked positions which, in the words of an officer wounded at Colenso, were "horrid to attack," and impossible to take and hold. It may well be that the whole line of the Tugela is equally strong. Meanwhile the Boers are elated at their successes, and there is some fear at Durban that an attempt will be made to outflank our forces. The enemy is certainly aggressive in Zululand. A commando, under Joachim Ferreira, numbering 500, compelled Major Hignett with thirty police to surrender at Nqutu, while the Helpmakaar commando, 500 strong, moved on to Buffalo. Mr. Knight, the magistrate at Inkandhla, was obliged to abandon the place, after blowing up the magazine, and there is some fear for Eshowe. There is reason to believe, however, that we are not unprepared in Zululand.

Although failure has marked the three attempts of Sir Redvers Buller, it is possible to take a more cheerful view of the situation. In association with Sir George White his activity continues to keep employed the main army of the Boers in a theatre of war where developments cannot be decisive, and it has been suggested that this, rather than the direct relief of Ladysmith, may be his object. Such appears to be somewhat the view adopted by Dr. Leyds, who, after returning to Brussels from Berlin at the end of last week, informed an interviewer that General Buller's movement on Vaal Krantz was a diversion intended to cover the greater effort of Lord Roberts against the Free State, which, he said, would be defended foot by foot.

Concerning the plans of the Commander-in-Chief, however, very little intelligence, as we write, has been allowed to transpire. All that we can say is that the distinct operations do at last bear the impress of a co-ordinating mind. Last week we referred to the appearance of General Kelly-Kenny at Thebus, on the east and west line between Naauwpoort and Stormberg, a position in which he has General French on his left flank and General Gatacre on his right. General French, as we write, has not been able to encompass the enemy at Colesberg, as was hoped would be the case, though he has received some accession of strength, and doubtless will soon be in a position to develop greater activity. He is holding the Boers in check by a series of works round the south of Colesberg from east to west, and their communications are not yet effectively threatened. Their patrols are very aggressive, and on February 9 the New Zealanders, with some Australians and Inniskillings, encountered them in force, and made a difficult retirement across an open plain. General Gatacre has also been engaged with the enemy, who made a half-hearted attack on his outposts from Penhoek to Bird's River on February 7, but were driven off when reinforcements arrived. If they are to overrun the country below the Stormberg range, they must show more determination and force. General Gatacre is now in greater strength, and General Brabant has gathered his Colonials to take part in the operations.

On the Modder River the inactivity has been ended by General Hector MacDonald's diversion to Koodoosberg, an operation of which the full significance has not yet been disclosed. On February 3 the Highland Brigade, with the 9th Lancers and a force of Artillery, left the camp and marched westward on the north bank of the river to Koodoosberg, where they entrenched themselves on the 5th. There was fighting on the two following days, that on the 7th being severe, for the enemy made a great effort to drive the Highlanders off the position occupied. General Babington was despatched from Modder River with more cavalry and Horse Artillery, and the fighting continued until evening. The guns did excellent work, and at night the enemy quitted the drift; the arrival of the cavalry had completely disconcerted them. General Babington thoroughly searched the north and west of Koodoosberg on the next morning, and could not find a Boer. Our total casualties were about fifty killed and wounded—those of the Boers probably more—and the operation had removed all apprehension of an advance on the railway from that side. The position, however, seemed difficult to secure, and the whole force, after a most brilliant operation, returned to camp on February 9.

Further developments can scarcely be delayed on the Modder River, and the movements thence must be closely related to those south of the Orange. Kimberley is still being shelled without much damage, and the gun known as "Long Cecil" is making excellent practice against the Boer positions. News from Mafeking is scanty, but the enemy reports that Colonel Baden-Powell is still aggressive, and he had already compelled them to draw off to a greater distance. Colonel Plumer's advance to his aid is not rapid, but it has served to relieve the pressure on Mafeking, and there is little to fear for the safety of the garrison.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Bourne & Shepherd.
LUMSDEN, OF LUMSDEN'S HORSE,
Who has Raised the Planters' Corps for South Africa.

BY the time these lines are in print, Lumsden's Horse will be in South Africa. Lieutenant-Colonel Lumsden's name betrays his nationality, and this patriotic Scotchman has not only raised in Bengal a corps of horse 250 strong, but has also made the princely donation of fifty thousand rupees towards its equipment. Colonel Lumsden is a retired tea planter, and was formerly in that exceptionally smart Volunteer corps, the Assam Valley Light Horse, many of whose men have now thrown up their billets to join their old officer in fighting for Queen and country in another continent.

THE officer whose portrait faces that of Colonel Lumsden has just been appointed to the command of the Chatham Division of Royal Marines.

Colonel Schomberg, who is just fifty-five, saw much service in Egypt during the operations against Arabi, and subsequently in the Soudan. He was present as a captain at the bombardment of Alexandria, and received for his services his brevet as major. In the Soudan, two years later, Col. Schomberg was ashore with the Royal Marine Battalion, and fought both at El Teb and Tamai, adding two more clasps to the "Alexandria" one on his Egyptian medal, and receiving the order of the Osmanieh. He obtained a well-earned C.B. at the Diamond Jubilee. Colonel Schomberg comes of a military stock, for he is a descendant of William III.'s general and friend.

POSSIBLY there are not two more important posts to-day in South Africa than those filled by the officers whose portraits are given in our centre illustration. More than once has Admiral Harris saved the situation by reinforcing the troops at the front with Naval brigades from his squadron, and, above all, by supplying the only guns that could outclass and outrange the Boer heavy artillery. It is not over-estimating the situation to say that it is the Navy that has enabled Ladysmith to hold out. When the war started, Sir F. W. Forestier-Walker was the lieutenant-general in command of the troops in South Africa, having succeeded Sir William Butler, and on his shoulders devolved the guarding of the lines of communication and the pushing forward of the troops at that very critical period. The great distances of the actual theatres of war from their sea bases is a marked characteristic of this campaign, and one can therefore realise the heavy responsibilities that General Walker's command entails.

The officers standing behind are Flag-Lieutenant Kennard and Captain Hughes, A.D.C.

Photo. Heath.
COLONEL H. ST. G. SCHOMBERG, C.B.,
Colonel-Commandant of Royal Marines at Chatham.

Photo. Copyright. THE SISTER SERVICES. V. Harris.
Admiral Sir R. H. Harris, K.C.M.G., Commanding Cape Station, and General Sir F. W. Forestier-Walker, K.C.B., Commanding Lines of Communications.

Photo. Copyright. A GALLANT GUNNER. Bayly.
Injured at Colenso through His Horse Falling on Him.

GUNNER GARRINGTON belongs to the 14th Battery of the Royal Field Artillery, which, with the 66th, had such a terrible experience at the battle of Colenso. In spite of all that human heroism could do, the batteries had to lose ten of their guns, and suffered heavily in casualties. Gunner Garrington

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. Ashley.

CYCLISTS OF THE 4th V.B. SHERWOOD FORESTERS.
Winners of the North Midland Volunteer Brigade Cyclist Cup.

Photo. Copyright. Shiels.

A BRAVE ARRAY.
Cups Won by the R.M.A. during 1899.

was badly injured, not by wounds, but by his horse, which was shot, falling on him, and such injuries are often more serious than bullet wounds. We heartily wish him a speedy recovery.

THE top group in this column are the cyclist team of the 4th (Notts) Volunteer Battalion of the Sherwood Foresters (Derbyshire Regiment), who have succeeded in winning the Challenge Cup given for competition by Volunteer cyclist teams belonging to the North Midland Volunteer Brigade. The conditions were a thirty-four-mile ride to the Trent Rifle Range, ten section volleys at 600-yds., and five section volleys and five rounds independent at 500-yds. The course and weather were both bad, for fifteen miles was uphill against a stiff head-wind, and the firing took place in torrents of rain, and with half a gale blowing. The names of the winning team, enumerated from Sergeant Turvey on the right of the picture, are J. H. Williamson, J. Stephenson, J. Kitchen, J. Worthington, W. Ostick, H. Holoran, G. Burton, and Job Williamson.

THE group represented below belong to one of the three Volunteer Artillery corps that the county of Sussex affiliates to the Eastern Division of the Royal Garrison Artillery, and have their headquarters at Eastbourne, His Grace the Duke of Devonshire, the largest land-owner in those parts, being their honorary colonel. The corps, though small, numbering only 400, is a very smart one, and no small measure of this is due to their excellent drill-instructor, Sergeant-Major Leach, R.A., who, to the great regret of the corps, is now about to retire from the post he has held since 1887 on account of failing health. Sergeant-Major Leach has two sons in the Royal Artillery, and two other sons are in his own regiment. Continuity of service seems to run in "gunner" families.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

JESSELS-SHIELD WINNERS OF THE QUEEN'S EDINBURGH R.B.
Sergt. Cumming. Q.-M.-Sgt. Cassie Sgt. Collart. Sgt. Glasgow. Sgt. Jessels. Sgt. McCall.

THE Royal Marine Artillery may look back on the year just past with considerable satisfaction, for the splendid array of cups here illustrated shows that in shooting their efficiency is of the very highest character. The superb trophy in the centre of the table is the cup presented by H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, who is honorary colonel of the regiment. On the left of it (as the reader looks at the picture) is the Diamond Jubilee trophy, next to which is the Challenge Cup of the Southern District League, and last on the extreme left the Challenge Cup of the "Excellent," the Gunnery School at Whale Island. On the right of the Duke of Coburg's cup comes first the Army and Navy Challenge Cup, then the cup presented by officers of Royal Marines past and present, and finally the All-comers' Challenge Cup. A brave array, and one the corps may well be proud of.

IN our issue of April 8, 1899, we illustrated and described the very handsome shield presented, for inter-company competition by sergeants of the Queen's Edinburgh, by Sergeant Jessels, President of the Sergeants' Shooting Club. This very handsome trophy is this year held by the team here represented, which is composed of the sergeants of the 5th or Highland Company of that splendid regiment, the Queen's Rifle Volunteer Brigade, which forms the first three Volunteer battalions of the Royal Scots, and is the senior Volunteer corps

Photo. Copyright. Stobie.

THE 2nd SUSSEX ARTILLERY VOLUNTEERS.
Eastern Division Royal Garrison Artillery.

Photo. Copyright. Watson

THE OLDEST VOLUNTEER COMPANY IN SCOTLAND.
No. 4 (University) Company of the Queen's Edinburgh R.V.B.

Digitized by Google

Our Colonial Forces: New Zealand.—XI.

WHATEVER may be said by hostile critics as to the actual utility of cadet corps, it is certain that year after year they send a good supply of recruits to the adult corps. For that reason, among others, they are encouraged by our fellow-subjects in the colonies, who, recognising that the child is father to the man, seek to train as many as possible of their youth in the use of the rifle and in the various duties of a soldier.

As for the youths themselves, they show an eagerness to learn which is not surpassed by older Volunteers, and, being continually under the strict discipline which exists in every British school, they readily realise that obedience is the first duty of a soldier.

This golden rule thoroughly understood it matters but little what the age of the soldier may be. Though, therefore, the rank and file of cadet corps may not have reached physical maturity, and may not be fit to endure the rigours of a campaign, they can with greater aptitude learn the rudiments of drill and manœuvres than can a grown-up Volunteer, however willing he may be.

The Queen's Cadets were formed in 1887, at the suggestion of the people of Christchurch, who sought in that year of Jubilee to record their feelings of patriotism and attachment to the Queen and the Mother Country by inciting the colonial youth to acquire some knowledge of the use of arms. The corps, as it now exists, numbers forty of all ranks, under Captain Lane and Lieutenant Bates. Of these no fewer than thirty-eight were present at the recent camp held at New Brighton, a favourite watering-place near Christchurch. It must not be imagined that these budding volunteers have lighter duties to perform than have their elders. The routine of camp is the same for them as for adult corps, and well do they enter into the spirit of soldiering.

After reveillé every morning they turn out with military precision and indulge in their ablutions with the amount of luxury which is possible in camp. That this is not great may be gathered from an accompanying illustration, where the lads are seen awaiting their turn near the bucket which one of their comrades is using to some purpose.

The morning toilet over, "all hands" must set to work in order that their "lines" may be spick and span before the arrival of the orderly officer. Blankets must be neatly folded and rifles cleaned and placed in the tents. It may be easy to fold a blanket to one's own satisfaction, but the recruit, for the first time in camp, finds it a difficult task to fold it in the approved official style. He is, however, always sure of assistance from one of the "old hands," as may be gathered from another illustration. But the cadet's work does not consist in cleaning his rifle and accoutrements; he must know how to use the former, and in this the Queen's are given every

SOME EXTRA-EFFICIENT CADETS.
The Winners of Lieutenant Bate's Cup.

PREPARING THE LINES FOR INSPECTION.
The Queen's Cadets.

Photos. Copyright. MORNING IN CAMP. J. N. Taylor.
The Queen's Cadets (Christchurch).

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. A MUSTER PARADE. The Kaiapoi Rifles (Canterbury). J. N. Taylor.

FIRING EXERCISE. The Kaiapoi Rifles at Drill.

Photos. Copyright. KEEPING IN FIGHTING CONDITION. The Kaiapoi Rifles on the March. F. W. Sandford.

encouragement by their officers. Lieutenant Bates recently gave a silver cup for the best squad in an all-round competition, which included the manual and firing exercises, bayonet exercise, and physical drill. The cup was won by a squad under Sergeant Gee, who, with the team, appears in an accompanying illustration. The work done would not have disgraced an adult squad, and the officers have every reason to be proud of the general efficiency of those under them. In physical drill especially the winning team won the admiration of the judges. Any notice of the Queen's Cadets would be incomplete without some mention of Captain and Quartermaster Linn, who is known as the "father" of the corps, and it is largely owing to his efforts that it is to-day in a flourishing condition.

The Kaiapoi Rifles (Canterbury) were formed in 1885, as a result of the Russian War scare, and have ever since been one of the strongest and most popular corps in the Canterbury district. Kaiapoi is specially favoured in respect to volunteering. Situated as it is away from the large centres, where so many other means of passing the time detract from the interest taken in volunteering, the corps has always been able to keep up a high standard, physically, in its recruits.

In shooting, too, it is always well to the fore, more especially as regards collective firing. For several years it has headed the volley-firing list in the district, and has very nearly recorded the highest score in the colony. In team shooting, also, the corps has always taken a high place. This is not to be wondered at, seeing that it numbers in its ranks some of the best shots in the district.

When a New Zealand team was being selected to compete at Bisley in the Jubilee year, Sergeant Simpson, of the Kaiapoi Rifles, although but a young man, had the almost unique experience of being chosen without competition for a place in the team. The corps numbers very nearly the maximum, and in matters of drill is quite up to the average form of the district.

The commanding officers of the corps have been Captains Whitefoord, J. L. Wilson, T. Miller, and Papprill. Captain Miller has only recently severed his active connection with the corps, and he has been elected a life member in recognition of his services.

Some idea of the type of men who fill the ranks of the Kaiapoi Rifles may be gathered from an illustration which represents the corps drawn up in quarter column without arms. Like many more of the colonial corps, the regiment can boast of a well-equipped cyclist section and a band of some merit. Another illustration depicts a portion of the corps going through the firing exercise, and in a third the men are seen on the line of march headed by the band. Marching is undoubtedly as important a feature of a soldier's training as is drill, for unless he can march without fatigue he is of little value in the field. During the annual camp, therefore, as well as during the year, route marching forms an important part of the work of the corps.

Digitized by Google

IF one were asked what has been most clearly proved by this South African War and all its consequences so far, what would be the answer? Some would reply, without hesitation, the incompetence of the War Office. That department is our favourite Turk's Head nowadays, a good solid, and generally dumb, block at which the trenchant critic can slash away, much to his own satisfaction. It is capital fun hammering at an enemy who cannot, or will not, reply. Now and then the War Office does, it is true, answer by the mouth of one of its members, and then the critic does not by any means always come off best. But he has the unfailing resource of saying that the apology of the War Office is all official optimism; and it must be allowed that this sounds very well—a department is crushed at once when it is accused of being officially optimistic. Unfortunately, when one comes to look into the facts, these severe judges are, as often as not, about as much in the right as the commentator whom Mr. Wyndham heard in the train, and who knew that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach was sure the whole Transvaal War would only cost £10,000,000. They are full of certainties of the oddest kind. For instance, they are positive that our artillery is most inferior, and that this proves the imbecility of the War Office. But then they are like a certain young woman of whom Dr. Johnson said, "When I talked to her tightly and closely, I could make nothing of her; she was wiggle-waggle, and I could never persuade her to be categorical." When you talk to them tightly and closely, they are found to know nothing about artillery, and are utterly surprised to learn that the German War Office, which passes for a model department, sent its Army into the field in 1870 with a rifle which was quite inferior to the French.

* * * *

If I may venture to pick out the moral of the whole story, it is that there is no need for conscription among us. Lord Lansdowne stated the case very well when he said: "At this moment, when men are coming forward spontaneously in great numbers, and when there is an amount of enthusiasm, a general and widespread desire, throughout the Empire to bear a part in its defence, I do not think that this is a moment for talking about compulsion in any form." Surely this must appear convincingly true to everybody. Moreover, it is a very new thing. In past times there has generally been some form of compulsion needed to fill our ranks. There is no need to speak of the press for the Navy, which ceased only with the end of the Napoleonic wars. But far into the last century men were pressed into the Army by exactly the process used to secure sailors for the Fleet. During the Great War there was indirect compulsion. Men were forced into the Militia which was embodied, and were then tempted to volunteer for the armies in the field. As we never employed very great armies, nor indeed more than a small part of the total force we had under arms, this source of supply proved sufficient. Napier says that the recruits sent out to Wellington in Spain were largely drawn from the Militia. In most cases they had been first obtained by the ballot. When bound to a military life, they thought they might as well see the real thing. Besides, Militia officers were encouraged to persuade men to volunteer by promises of commissions for themselves. Whole companies sometimes offered to enter line regiments. All this has perhaps been said in these columns before, but it is germane to the present matter, and may therefore be repeated.

* * * *

To-day the difficulty we have to deal with is certainly not that of securing men. We have put an army of some 200,000 men into the field, and nobody supposes that there will be the least difficulty in getting more. We have not failed (in so far as we have failed at all) for want of men. The evil has been of quite another kind. Whether this would prove to be the case in a very prolonged war is another thing. Perhaps not. On the other hand, though we may perhaps underrate the length of possible great wars, it is hardly likely that any of those of the future will last from ten to twenty years. The Germans have a proverb that care is taken to prevent the trees from growing into the sky. There is always some counterbalance created to every increase of power. The vast size of modern armies, and the frightful cost, direct and indirect, of all wars, make nations first unwilling to begin fighting and then unable to go on, as they once could, for half a generation. Nobody supposes that we should think of contributing more than 200,000 men to any European coalition in which we happened to be engaged. But we can get that number of men now without conscription. Why, then, should we have recourse to this method of raising an army?

* * * *

Lord Lansdowne found something "ironical" in the fact that our trouble arises out of a war with two little powers which have not a boat's crew between them, and therefore beyond the reach of our Navy, except in so far as it acts on them in the form of Naval Brigades. He describes us as in the position of a man who has to fight with his right arm behind him. We are rather in the position of one who has to fight through a hole which is only large enough to let one arm pass. Our right arm is in nowise tied. It is, on the contrary, very free to hit out at anybody coming up from behind. And that is a fact which Ministers and others might insist on at greater length with some advantage. Lord Salisbury spoke the other day of the gloomy collection of lugubrious vaticinations laid before the House of Lords one day last week. There is a good deal of talk deserving that description going about just now. It mostly takes the form of depressed enquiries why something is not being done to defend us by camps on the South Downs, forts, and what not. The only line to take with the sad spirits who interrogate in this fashion is to answer them in the Scotch way, which is by asking another question, namely, "Supposing an European Power were to seize this apparent chance for the purpose of invading us, how should we be less able to defend ourselves because we have 200,000 men in South Africa, and the land force at home represents rather the raw material of an army than an army?"

* * * *

That the question should ever have to be put shows how skin deep is our trust in the Fleet, in spite of all the books of Captain Mahan, of all our talk about the sea power, and of all the labours of the Navy League. Yet if there is one thing which is more clearly taught by the experience of the nearly 700 years dating from the defeat of Eustace the Monk by the Cinque Port ships, it is that no considerable invasion of this country is possible till our Fleet is fairly driven off the sea. I do not say that raids, such, for instance, as that at Fishguard, or Humbert's incursion into Ireland, have become impossible. The probability is that steam has on the whole rendered them rather more possible than they were in the days of the sailing fleet. But invasions of that kind do not constitute a serious danger, unless there is absolutely no force of any kind in the country. But that is a state of things impossible to conceive of. At this moment, when in the imaginations of some among us we are so defenceless, we could stamp out such raids as these in twenty-four hours after they had landed. Therefore we may be tolerably certain that they would not be attempted. People do not do these things unless they have a visible chance of getting some good by them. As for real invasion by a great army, that will only happen when we have been as badly beaten at sea as we were by De Ruyter in the Four Days' Battle; then beyond all question it would have been possible to land an army here before our fleet was again ready for service, if there had been one available for the purpose. Supposing the same circumstances to recur, namely, that we have been heavily beaten in a great sea fight; that we have no other fleet ready; that the enemy repairs his damages much sooner than we do; that he establishes himself at the mouth of the Thames weeks before we are in a state to go out and meet him; and that the further circumstance is added that he has an army with its transports at hand ready to act at once, then no doubt we may be invaded, but not till then.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.
A PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WORLD'S NEWS.
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, LONDON, W.C.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

FEBRUARY 25, 1781.—The "Cerberus," 32, captured the "Graña," 28 (Spanish), off Finisterre. 1814.—The "Eurotas," 40, Captain John Phillimore, captured the "Clorinde," 40, in the Bay of Biscay. Naval medal action. 1891.—The "Spartan" launched.

February 26, 1813.—Reduction of the Island of Ponza, coast of Naples, by the "Thames," 32, and the "Furieuse," 36. 1841.—Capture of the Bogue Forts, China, by Sir G. Bremer's squadron. 1891.—The "Royal Sovereign" launched. The "Royal Arthur" launched. 1895.—The "Wizard," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

February 27, 1806.—Capture of the French corvette "Furet," off Cadiz, by the "Hydra," 38, when escaping with the French frigates that had taken shelter in the port after Trafalgar. 1841.—Defeat of the Chinese war junk fleet in the Whampoa Reach. 1861.—The "Black Prince" launched. 1869.—The "Audacious" launched. The "Volage" launched. 1881.—The "Boadicea" Naval Brigade landed at Durban to assist Sir G. P. Colley. 1883.—The "Phaeton" launched.

February 28, 1758.—The "Revenge," 74, captured the "Orphée," 64, off Cape de Gata. The "Monmouth," 64, captured the "Foudroyant," 80. 1760.—Elliot defeated Thurot's squadron off the coast of Ireland.

March 1, 1797.—Action between the "Terpsichore," 32, and the Spanish "Santisima Trinidada," 131.

March 2, 1709.—The "Assurance," 70, the "Hampshire," 60, and the "Assistance," 50, with a convoy, beat off Duguay-Trouin's squadron in the Channel. 1801.—The "Coburg," 14, took the "Bienvenue," 14, in the North Sea. 1807.—The "Blenheim," 74, with Sir Thomas Trowbridge, and the "Java," 24, lost. Sir J. Duckworth repassed the Dardanelles with heavy loss. 1808.—The "Sappho," 18, captured the Danish 28-gun brig "Admiral Yawl." Naval medal. 1870.—The "Magdala" launched.

March 3, 1747.—The "Enterprise," 40, in the West Indies captured the Spanish register ship "Vestal," with £150,000 on board. 1800.—The "Nér ide," 36, captured the "Vengeance," 18, one of a squadron of four French ships. 1888.—Admiral Sir A. Cooper Key died. 1896.—The "Doris" launched.

FEBRUARY 25, 1809.—Surrender of the Island of Martinique to Lieutenant-General Beckwith and Rear-Admiral the Hon. Sir Alexander Cochrane. 1898.—The Emir Mahmoud began his advance towards the Atbara with 18,000 men.

February 26, 1813.—The Island of Ponza, on the coast of Naples, taken by a combined Naval and Military force. 1841.—Capture of Wangtong.

February 27, 1814.—Battle of Orthez. Against a strong position held by Soult, Wellington advanced with an Anglo-Portuguese force, consisting of 37,000 men, and after a hard fight, the issue of which was for a time doubtful, succeeded in dislodging the enemy from the heights, and a complete rout ensued. The total loss of the French was about 4,000. The 7th Hussars were especially mentioned in despatches.

February 28, 1752.—Surrender of Conjevaram by the French and their Indian allies to Clive. 1794.—Bellegarde, the popular leader of the mulattoes and negroes in Martinique, surrendered with 300 of his followers. 1816.—Action near Muckwampore. Major-General Ochterlony utterly routed the army of the Rajah of Nepaul.

February 29, 1752.—Action at Coveripauk. Chunda Saib, the ally of the French, reinforced by 400 French and 2,000 Sepoys, after abandoning Conjevaram, attacked Clive, who was searching for them. The French were routed, and abandoned their guns. 1760.—Trincomalee surrendered by the French to Colonel Coote.

March 1, 1664.—The 1st or "Royal" Dragoons, then forming a portion of the garrison of Tangier, made a gallant sally upon the Moors before the fortress, routed a large body of the enemy, and captured a standard. 1816.—Action on the height of Hurriarpore. A force under Lieutenant-Colonel O'Halloran having dislodged the Ghoorkas from an advantageous position, the enemy made a desperate attempt to recover it, and were repulsed with severe loss.

March 2, 1805.—Meer Khan, pursued since February 8 by Major-General Smith with a body of horse, was at length overtaken near Afzulghur. A charge was made by the 8th Light Dragoons, and the enemy were routed. 1814.—Combat of Aire. While the main body of the British army remained on the right bank of the Adour until the bridges were repaired, General Hill on the left moved towards Aire to capture the enemy's magazines. There he found General Clauzel in order of battle, covering the town. In the combat which ensued, the Anglo-Portuguese force drove the French back from the town. The British lost 150 killed and wounded.

March 3, 1759.—Capture of Fort Concale by a force under Captain Macleane. 1779.—Action near Brier's Creek. Lieutenant-Colonel Prevost utterly defeated the Americans under Generals Lincoln and Ashe, who lost seven guns and all their baggage. 1895.—The British garrison driven back into Chitral, and the siege begun.

Died for the Flag.

"Mourning when their leaders fall,
Warriors carry the warrior's pall,
And sorrow darkens hamlet and hall."

—TENNYSON

ON that sad morning of December 12, when so many of the Highland Brigade marched to their death at Magersfontein, the Black Watch lost one of their most promising young officers. Captain Archibald Rice Cameron, who died of wounds then received, was only twenty-nine years of age, and had been scarce two months a captain. Four more of our portraits are of officers of the Suffolk Regiment, who perished on January 6 in the disaster near Colesberg. Of the four whose portraits are given, only the colonel, Arthur John Watson, had seen active service before the present war, and his career had been an eventful one. Passing out of the Staff College in 1884, he went at once to Bechuanaland as brigade-major to Warren's Expedition. On his return he was for some time employed with the Egyptian Army, and in 1888 we find him in India as brigade-major with the Hazara Expedition. From 1889 to 1896 he was on the staff in India, during which time he took part in the Chitral Relief Expedition. He succeeded to the command of the 1st Battalion of his regiment in September, 1898. Of the other three officers who perished with him, Lieutenants Carey, White, and Wilkins, the last-named was the senior. He had not yet completed eight years service, although he was the senior subaltern and adjutant of his battalion. Both Carey and White were only twenty-six years of age.

Captain C. A. Hensley, of the 2nd Dublin Fusiliers, was one of those gallant Canadians who have come to the service from the R.M.C. at Kingston, and so many of whom have distinguished themselves. He had over sixteen years' service to his credit, and had been a captain since July, 1895. He lost his life in the fighting that preceded the attack on Spion Kop, for he was mortally wounded on January 20. His battalion is one of those shut up in Ladysmith, but a detachment, to which he must have belonged, had been sent down to Colenso before the siege. The remainder of our portraits are all of officers who perished in the tough fighting on January 24, when the position at Spion Kop was captured. The senior of these was Colonel Robert George Buchanan-Riddell, by whose death the gallant "Sweeps" lose a second commanding officer during this campaign, for Colonel Gunning, who commanded the 1st Battalion of the regiment, was killed at Colenso. Colonel Buchanan-Riddell is the nephew of the late Sir Walter Buchanan-Riddell, of Riddell, in Roxburghshire, and a brother of the present baronet. Another Northern family that is thrown into mourning by Colonel Buchanan-Riddell's death is that of Sir William Houldsworth, Bart., to a daughter of whom this officer was married. Another brother in the same regiment, but of the 2nd Battalion, is shut up in Ladysmith, where he was severely wounded on October 30. Colonel Buchanan-Riddell's previous service was also in South Africa, for he served through the Boer War of 1881. He was not yet forty-six, of which twenty-five years had been passed in the King's Royal Rifle Corps. He was, as a subaltern, instructor of musketry to his regiment for five years. In Kensington his death will be much mourned, for he was for five years—1890 to 1895—the very popular adjutant of the 4th Middlesex (the West London) Volunteers, now the 3rd Volunteer Battalion of the King's Royal Rifle Corps.

Of the other officers who were killed at Spion Kop, and whose portraits are here given, three belonged to the 2nd Battalion of the Duke of Cambridge's Own (Middlesex Regiment), Captain C. L. Muriel and Second Lieutenants W. G. H. Lawley and H. A. C. Wilson. Captain Muriel joined the Middlesex as a second lieutenant in February, 1887, when not yet twenty-one years of age, and obtained his company a little more than eight years later. On the same day he was appointed adjutant of the battalion, and only vacated his five years' tenure of that appointment some three months previous to his death. Young Lawley was under twenty-six, and the senior second lieutenant of his battalion. He had nearly completed three years service in his regiment. Wilson was still younger, as he was only a little over twenty-one years of age, and had only joined his battalion as recently as last June. No regiment or corps more distinguished itself on this day than did Thorneycroft's brave force of mounted infantry, who lost no less than six officers killed, four wounded, and one missing, and amongst the former was Lieutenant the Hon. N. W. Hill-Trevor. Lieutenant Hill-Trevor, who was born in 1869, was the fourth son of the first Lord Trevor, of Brynkinalt, County of Denbigh, and a brother of the present peer. His mother was a sister of the fourth Lord Scarsdale, the father of the present Viceroy of India, to whom, of course, he is first cousin. From 1893 to 1897 he was in the 2nd Life Guards, and at his death held a commission in the Shropshire Yeomanry.

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

Commander-in-Chief: FIELD-MARSHAL LORD ROBERTS.

I.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar, under Lord Roberts.

Divisional Commanders: Lieutenant-Generals French, Methuen, Kelly-Kenny, Tucker, and Colvile.

CAVALRY (French)

Brabazon and Babington's Brigades.

6th Dragoon Guards.
2nd Dragoons.
9th Lancers.
10th Hussars.
12th Lancers.
16th Lancers.

ARTILLERY

Horse—G, P, U, Q, T Batteries.
Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th, 38th, 65th (Howitzer), 76th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th Batteries.
Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS

7th (Field) Co.
8th (Railway) Co.
11th (Field) Co.
29th (Fortress) Co.
31st (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Balloon Section.
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY

Pole-Carew's Brigade.

3rd Grenadiers.
1st Coldstreams.
2nd Coldstreams.
1st Scots Guards.

MacDonald's Brigade.

1st Argyll and Sutherland.
2nd Seaforths.
2nd Black Watch.
1st Highland L.I.

Douglas's Brigade.

1st Northumberland.
2nd Northampton.
1st N. Lancashire (half battalion in Kimberley).
2nd Yorkshire L.I.

Knox's Brigade.

2nd East Kent.
1st Oxford L.I.
1st West Riding.
2nd Gloucester.

Wavell's Brigade.

2nd North Stafford.
2nd South Wales Borderers.
1st East Lancashire.
2nd Cheshire.

Chermside's Brigade.

2nd Norfolk.
2nd Hampshire.
2nd Lincoln.
1st Scottish Borderers.

Not Brigaded.

1st Gordons.
2nd Cornwall L.I.
1st Munster Fusiliers.
2nd Shropshire L.I.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Queensland Mounted Infantry.
Canadian Infantry.
S. African Light Horse (part).
Roberts's Horse.

II.—Cape Colony. Troops on Western Line of Communications.

Lieutenant-General Commanding: Sir F. W. E. F. Forestier-Walker.

ARTILLERY

Horse—A Battery.
Field—2nd, 8th, 39th, 44th, 66th, 88th Batteries.
Garrison—15th, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division (Siege Train).

ENGINEERS

6th (Fortress) Co.
9th (Field) Co.
20th (Field) Co.
38th (Field) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Field Park.
Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY

Militia Battalions.

6th Warwick.
4th Derbyshire.
3rd Durham L.I.
4th Royal Lancaster.
9th King's Royal Rifles.
4th Argyll and Sutherland.
3rd East Lancashire.
City Imperial Volunteers.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

New South Wales Artillery.
Duke of Edinburgh's Rifles.
Cape Town Highlanders.
W. Australian Mounted Infantry.
Tasmanian Mounted Infantry.
Kitchener's Horse.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Naauwpoort.

CAVALRY

Household Regiment.
6th Dragoons.

ARTILLERY

Horse—O, J, R Batteries.
Field—4th, 20th Batteries.
Heavy—2 5-in. Howitzers

ENGINEERS

10th (Railway) Co.
26th (Field) Co.
37th (Field) Co.
42nd (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Div. Telegraph Batn.

INFANTRY

Clements's Brigade.

2nd Bedford.
1st Royal Irish.
2nd Wiltshire.
2nd Worcestershire.

Not Brigaded.

1st Suffolk.
1st Essex.
1st Yorkshire.
1st Welsh.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Prince Alfred's Volunteer Guards (Cape).
1st City (Grahamstown) Volntrs.
New South Wales Lancers.
New Zealand Mounted Infantry.
Rimington's Scouts.
Prince Alfred's Own Cape Artll'y.
Australian Horse (Troop).
Victoria Mounted Infantry.
S. Australian Mounted Infantry.

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY

Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS

12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY

2nd Irish Rifles.
2nd Northumberland.
1st Royal Scots.
2nd Berkshire.
1st Derbyshire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Cape Mounted Rifles.
Det. Cape Mounted Police.
Frontier Mounted Rifles.
Kaffrarian Rifles.
Brabant's Horse.

V.—Natal, beleaguered in Ladysmith under Sir G. White.

CAVALRY

Brocklehurst's Brigade.

5th Dragoon Guards.
5th Lancers.
18th Hussars.
19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 10 Battery.*

ENGINEERS

23rd (Field) Co.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY

Howard's Brigade.

2nd Gordons.
1st Manchester.
1st Gloucester.†
1st Devon.

Brigade Commander unknown.

2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
1st King's Royal Rifles.
1st Leicester.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.†

Not Brigaded.

1st Liverpool.
2nd King's Royal Rifles.
2nd Rifle Brigade.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Border Mounted Rifles.
Natal Field Artillery.
Imperial Light Horse.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Natal Mounted Police (Det.)

VI.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

CAVALRY

Dundonald's Brigade.

1st Dragoons.
13th Hussars.
14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 65th, 73rd, 78th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS

17th (Field) Co.
45th (Steam Road Transport) Co.
"A" Pontoon Troop.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY

Hildyard's Brigade.

2nd Devon.
2nd West York.
2nd West Surrey.
2nd East Surrey.

Barton's Brigade.

1st Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Scots Fusiliers.
2nd Royal Fusiliers.

Lyttelton's Brigade.

2nd Scottish Rifles.
1st Durham L.I.
3rd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Rifle Brigade.

Hart's Brigade.

1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
1st Connaught Rangers.
1st Dublin Fusiliers.
1st Border.

Coke's Brigade.

2nd Warwick.
2nd Somerset L.I.
2nd Dorsetshire.
2nd Middlesex.

Wynne's Brigade.

2nd Royal Lancaster.
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
1st South Lancashire.
1st York and Lancaster.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Natal Naval Volunteers.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Durban Light Infantry.
Bethune's Mounted Infantry.
Thorneycroft's Mntd. Infantry.
Imperial Light Infantry.
Natal Mounted Police (Det.).
S. African Light Horse (part).

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY

7th Dragoon Guards.
17th Lancers.
8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Horse—M Battery.
Field—43rd (Howitzer), 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 5th, 9th, 17th, 89th, 90th, 91st Batteries.
Garrison—5th Co. E. Division: 15th Co. W. Division (Siege Train); 2nd Co. S. Division.

ENGINEERS

"C" Pontoon Troop.
5th (Field) Co.
47th (Fortress) Co

INFANTRY

Campbell's Brigade.

2nd Grenadiers.
2nd Scots Guards.
2nd East Yorkshire.
2nd Leicester.

Boyes's Brigade.

2nd West Kent.
2nd Manchester.
1st South Staffordshire.
1st Worcester.

1st Sussex (from Malta).
1st Leinster (from Halifax).
1st Cameron H'gh's (from Egypt)

Militia Battalions.

3rd Royal Lancaster.
6th Lancashire Fusiliers.
3rd South Wales Borderers
3rd East Lancashire.
4th South Staffordshire.
3rd Welsh.
5th Dublin Fusiliers.

Australasian and Canadian Contingents.
Imperial Yeomanry.
Duke of Cambridge's Own (special corps I.Y.).
Lord Lovat's Corps of Scouts.
Lumsden's Horse (from India).

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38 (Supply), 39, 40, 41, and 42.

Naval Brigades are serving with White in Ladysmith, with Buller in Northern Natal, with Methuen at Modder River, and with the troops under General Gatacre.

The local troops in Rhodesia, under Colonel Plumer, comprise the British South African Police and the Rhodesian Regiment. In Mafeking, with Colonel Baden-Powell, are British South African Police (detachment), Diamond Fields Artillery (detachment), Cape Mounted Police (detachment), the Protectorate Regiment, and Bechuanaland Rifles. In Kimberley, under Colonel Kekewich, there are the Diamond Fields Artillery, Diamond Fields Horse, Kimberley Rifles, and Cape Mounted Police (detachment).

The following Militia Battalions are embodied for garrison duty at home and abroad to take the place of the regular battalions gone to South Africa: 3rd Royal Scots (Holywood), 3rd West Surrey (Portsmouth), 3rd East Kent (Enniskillen), 3rd Northumberland (Malta), 5th Royal Fusiliers (Dover), 3rd Devon (Fermoy), 3rd Suffolk (Guernsey), 4th Somerset Light Infantry (Portland), 3rd Bedford (Dublin), 4th West York (Aldershot), 3rd Royal Irish (Dublin), 3rd Yorkshire (Aldershot), 5th Lancashire Fusiliers (Bury), 3rd Scots Fusiliers (Aldershot), 3rd Welsh Fusiliers (Plymouth), 4th Scottish Rifles (Glasgow), 3rd Inniskilling Fusiliers (Mullingar), 4th Gloucestershire (Athlone), 4th East Surrey (Woking), 3rd Cornwall Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Border (Colchester), 3rd Sussex (Brighton), 3rd Dorset (Shorncliffe), 3rd Black Watch (Montrose), 3rd Oxford Light Infantry (Limerick), 3rd Essex (Warley), 3rd North Lancashire (Malta), 3rd Northampton (Aldershot), 3rd West Kent (Malta), 4th Shropshire Light Infantry (Gravesend), 4th Middlesex (Woolwich), 3rd Wiltshire (Fermoy), 3rd York and Lancaster (York), 3rd Highland Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Seaforths (Egypt), 3rd Gordons (Edinburgh), 3rd Camerons (Aldershot), 6th Irish Rifles (Sheffield), 4th Irish Fusiliers (Colchester), 5th Connaught Rangers (Woolwich), 3rd Leinster (Woolwich), 3rd Munster Fusiliers (Dover), 6th Rifle Brigade (Curragh), 5th Warwick (Colchester), 3rd Liverpool (Preston), 3rd Norfolk (Fermoy), 4th Lincoln (Parkhurst), 4th Suffolk (Dover), 4th Cheshire (Tipperary), 3rd K.O.S. Borderers (Belfast), 3rd Hampshire (Aldershot), 3rd Derbyshire (Manchester), 8th King's Royal Rifles (Templemore), 3rd North Staffordshire (Newry), 4th Durham Light Infantry (Aldershot), 3rd Argyll and Sutherland (Dublin).

* Surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

† Headquarters surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

Digitized by Google

The Brave Defenders of the Diamond City.

Photo. Copyright. CAPE MOUNTED POLICE. "Navy & Army."
This Detachment of a Gallant Corps with a Long and Stirring Record has done Yeoman's Work.

Photo. Copyright. DIAMOND FIELDS HORSE. "Navy & Army."
Major T. Peakman, who was Wounded Early in the Siege, is Seated in the Centre of the Group of Officers.

Photo. Downey
COLONEL R. G. KEKEWICH.
Specially Promoted for Distinguished Service.

Photo. Copyright. PARADED FOR NIGHT SERVICE. "Navy & Army."
The Diamond Fields Horse and Diamond Fields Artillery have Taken Part in all the Principal Actions against the Investing Force of Boers.

Photo. Copyright. LOYAL NORTH LANCASHIRES. Fyne.
The Only Regulars in Kimberley during the Siege were Half the 1st Battalion of the above Regiment, of which the Officers are here Shown.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

PERHAPS the most conspicuous, as it certainly is the most gratifying, feature of the Yeomanry and Volunteer preparations in connection with the war in South Africa is the sustained character of the enthusiasm which has been aroused on every side and in every class of the community. Often have we seen movements of this sort start with tremendous effervescence, and then suddenly fizzle out before anything really satisfactory has been accomplished; and there were not wanting those who predicted that in this case a similar result would occur. But, on the contrary, the idea has steadily grown in strength, and at the present moment there are thousands of would-be recruits for the Imperial Yeomanry, and "waiting" Volunteers, who are grumbling because, for one reason or another, they cannot join their more fortunate comrades.

The accompanying pictures present selected contingents in several interesting aspects. Of the Imperial Yeomanry in general the illustrations of the Middlesex, Cheshire, and Shropshire contingents are pleasantly typical. The first county has already furnished two "lots," and probably without serious effort could raise another twenty if desired.

Photo. Copyright. GOOD-BYE AND GOOD LUCK! Webster.
The Send-off of the Cheshire Contingent, Imperial Yeomanry.

Other pictures are of "Compton's Horse" and the Irish Yeomanry. The formation of the first-named is due to the vigour and promptitude of Lord Alwyne Compton, who set on on foot and carried out the scheme which has resulted in the formation of this most workmanlike contingent. In relation to the latter corps we have here depicted the inspection on the 7th inst. of the 1st Irish Company, commanded by Captain Lord Longford. The inspecting officer was H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, commanding the forces in Ireland, who was accompanied by General Gosset, commanding the Dublin District.

Of the Volunteer pictures it is sufficient to say that the Leeds Rifles is one of the strongest and most efficient of provincial Volunteer corps.

The small town of Ross—Pope's "Ode to the Man of Ross" will be familiar to many readers—provided twenty men out of the county's contribution of thirty-eight to the Volunteer company of the Shropshire Light Infantry, a record for a place containing only about 5,000 inhabitants of which the town may well be proud, and all should congratulate it.

Photo. Copyright. A PRACTICAL PRESENT. West & Son.
The Maxim Gun of the 3rd V.B. Hampshire Regiment given by Captain Peters.

Digitized by Google

"MEN OF ROSS."

*

Record Contingent Furnished by a Small Town in Herefordshire.

COMPTON'S HORSE.

*

The Yeomanry Contingent Raised from Bedfordshire and Northampton by Lord Alwyne Compton.

YORKSHIRE VOLUNTEERS.

*

The Leeds Rifles Contingent for South African Service.

From Photos. by Casson, Broadhead, and Ferraud

Digitized by Google

The Advance to Potgieter's Drift.

A CALL TO ARMS.
The South African Light Horse Summoned to Stables.

FIT AND FULL OF FIGHT.
The Imperial Light Horse Respond to the Bugle.

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS.
Generals Buller and Clery Directing the Operations.

With Dundonald's Division.

BOOT AND SADDLE.
Thorneycroft's Mounted Infantry Preparing for Work.

SCOUTS WANTED AT ONCE.
The Natal Carbineers Turned Out for Duty.

From Photos. by Mr. W. D. M. Cotts.

Digitized by Google

With Sir Redvers Buller in Natal.

BEEF FOR "TOMMY."
Between the Slaughter-house and the Kitchen.

FOR THE OFFICERS' LUNCH.
Active Work in the Camp Kitchen.

THE STAFF OF LIFE.
Loaves Ready for the Bakery.

BREAKFAST IN CAMP.
With the Cooks of the Scottish Rifles.

Scenes in Springfield Camp.

From Photos. by Mr. W. D. M. Colts.

Digitized by Google

Good Work Under

Nursing the Wounded

THE MILITARY HOSPITAL AT RONDEBOSCH

Photos. Copyright. THE OFFICERS OF THE R.A.M.C.
With Patients from Colenso and Modder River.

Photos. Copyright. THE WOUNDED AT WYNBERG.
Men of the Naval Brigade in No. 6 Ward of the Royal Naval Hospital, Simon's Town—All Wounded at Enslin.

WE have taken notice already of the great care which has been shown for our wounded in this war in South Africa. The subject is a pleasant one, and all the more so by the contrast it presents with much else that is forced upon our attention. War is at all times a horrible business. When the victory is swift and complete for one side, then the other almost invariably suffers to an extreme degree. When success and defeat are balanced, then the suffering is divided. Care, foresight, and humanity can do no more than reduce it to a minimum. In the war of to-day, which has already lasted longer than some too hopeful people thought it would, and will assuredly drag on for months, we can at least feel sure that no precaution will be omitted, no effort be left untried, to save our soldiers from the miseries of undressed wounds, and from what is usually even worse in war, namely, disease. Our illustrations show the hospitals established under the impressive side of Table Mountain and elsewhere. It is an admirable feature of this part of our organisation that it is largely due to private enterprise, to the self-sacrifice of public-spirited fellow-subjects of our troops, to the charity of the rich who give money, and to the more admirable charity of those who work amid sights and sounds of the most painful order. It was a woman, and a queen, Isabel the Catholic, of Spain, who has the honour of having first established a camp hospital in a European army of comparatively modern times. Before her day it is doubtful whether any help was provided for the wounded common soldier, except what he got from the Knights of the Hospital of St. John, and the Red Cross.

Digitized by Google

Invalids Back to Health.

WHERE OUR WOUNDED ARE TENDED.

from the English Brothers of St. Thomas à Becket, who did attempt to do something during the Crusades. It was long before the example which the Queen gave during the siege of Granada, was followed, and we have been no better in that respect than our neighbours, perhaps not so good as some of them. There were Greenwich Hospital and Chelsea for worn-out and crippled men who had the good luck to be admitted; but many never reached that good fortune, and tens of thousands perished in the field who might well have been saved. Happily there is every prospect that this will not be the case now. Science, too, has done much to reduce the horrors of the field hospital. We have only to remember that as late as the Russian War there were no anæsthetics, and that the only relief a man could get under an operation was a dose of alcohol, strong enough to make him drunk, which must, one imagines, have had a tendency to produce inflammation in the wound. It used to be long before a hurt man recovered. Now the process is so rapid, that in two cases, at least, recorded in this war—Colonel Dick-Cunyngham's and Lieutenant Tait's, officers who had been disabled in action—the sufferers were able to return to their duties and fell in their next engagement.

Both Rondebosch and Wynberg Hospitals are situated in pleasant country, and the climate is practically all that could be wished for. Officers and men have been sent to these hospitals from every part of the theatre of war, and recovery in many cases has been very rapid. At the time the photographs we reproduce were taken there were fifty-two wounded seamen and Marines in Wynberg Hospital.

MINISTERING ANGELS.
Some of the Nurses at Rondebosch Hospital Camp. H. Bayly.

FRIENDS IN ADVERSITY.
Seamen and Marines in No. 3 Ward of the Royal Naval Hospital, Simon's Town. "Navy & Army."

Digitized by Google

The Graves OF OUR Honoured Dead.

NEAR CHIEVELEY.
The Graves of the Devons and Yorkshires Killed at Colenso.

THE COST OF EMPIRE.
The Graves of the Men Killed in the Armoured Train Disaster.

"Navy & Army."

A HERO'S LAST RESTING-PLACE.
Here Lieut. Roberts, V.C., Lies Buried, near Chieveley.

LOST COMRADES.
Here Some of the Heroes of Colenso are Buried.

A TRIBUTE OF AFFECTION.
A Memorial of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers.

May the Rest In Peace.

Copyright. From Photos. by Mr. W. D. M. Colts.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

In the illustration on another page of No. 6 Ward at Wynberg Hospital the names of the men, reading from right to left, are P. E. Brenkhurst, R.M.L.I., shot through the right leg, W. F. Spencer, R.M.A., shot in the left leg, B. Thompson, seaman, shot in the left leg, and James Simons, R.M.L.I., wounded in the left leg. All the four men belonged to the "Monarch." In the illustration of No. 3 Ward the names of the men, reading from left to right, are H. Peacock, R.M.L.I., shot through the left arm and left hand, and John Denty, R.M.L.I., shot through both legs—both of the "Powerful"; Alfred Colis, R.M.L.I., shot through the left side, C. H. Callinson, R.M.L.I., shot through the left groin and right arm, C. Bruce, R.M.L.I., shot in the left temple and back, and J. Jilly, seaman, shot through the left hand and right side—all of the "Doris"; W. Morecambe, R.M.A., shot through the left arm, and H. Cotton, R.M.L.I., shot in the left arm above elbow, left side, right forearm, and chin—both of the "Monarch."

* * * *

"Christopher."—No, the "Soldier's New Testament" is quite distinct and separate from the "Knapsack" edition bound in khaki, and issued by the Oxford University Press. The former is published by the Scripture Gift Mission. It is 4 3-8-in. by 2¾-in.; 3-8-in. in thickness, and bound in red, white, and blue, displaying the Union Jack, and underneath it, "South Africa, 1900." Lord Wolseley supplies a note, in which he says: "In my opinion there could be nothing more suitable for the spiritual comfort of a soldier on active service than this Testament. The size permits him always to carry it in his khaki jacket pocket, and each soldier who possesses a copy will have something of far higher value to him than the proverbial marshal's bâton." Among other bodies who have presented pocket Testaments to the troops, the Sydney University Christian Union has given one, bearing an inscription and the arms of the university, to each man of the New South Wales contingent.

* * * *

"Polperrow."—You are right in saying that the Blue Ensign is the Consular flag afloat, but wrong in assuming that it is the flag used by the Diplomatic Service. The flag used by all Her Majesty's representatives abroad, whether Ministers Plenipotentiary, Chargé d'Affaires, etc., is the Union Flag, charged in the centre with the Royal Arms displayed on a white circular ground and surrounded by a green garland. This is the flag used by Her Majesty's Diplomatic servants either afloat or ashore. The Union Flag is used by Consular officers ashore to distinguish their official residence, but is not used by them afloat. When embarked, whether in boat or ship, they display the Blue Ensign, distinguished by having the Royal Arms in the centre of the fly, which is the technical term for that portion of the flag between the Union and the end.

* * * *

Rudolf R. Reichenheim.—I do not remember ever having seen a complete illustrated account of regimental colours. Illustrations in colour of various regiments have appeared from time to time, but a collection of them I do not think exists. The best illustrations of regimental colours that I can call to mind are to be found in "The Records and Badges of the British Army," by Henry Manners Chichester and Major George Burges-Short, published by William Clowes and Sons, Limited, Charing Cross. The book is admirable in every respect, and contains seven coloured illustrations of colours, and a description of the colours of every regiment. I do not know the price of the book. It was published in 1895, and as it contains illustrations, also in colour, of uniforms, it must be rather expensive. I should advise you to write to the publishers.

* * * *

"N. Z."—It was a noticeable feature of Peel's Naval Brigade in India that the men invariably were more elastic in mind, and body also, than their military brethren in arms, and displayed great ability in foraging. On many occasions the seamen gave freely of what they acquired in their peregrinations to their army comrades. General Sir Hugh Gough, V.C., recently stated at a banquet that when Peel, with his brigade, arrived at Lucknow "he put fresh life into the army." The same may in a certain sense be said of Lambton at Ladysmith. He arrived barely in time to save the situation, and must thereby have given a healthy turn to those already there. Unfortunately for all concerned, the fighting force in that place has been tried to the utmost, but there never was any falling off in the fine spirit of the garrison, and confidence in the result of the long defensive effort so gallantly made has always been maintained.

* * * *

"The Crescent and Star."—According to one account this device is derived from an incident that occurred when Philip of Macedon, circa 300 B.C., was besieging Byzantium. Under cover of a dark night the wily strategist was carrying out a grand scheme for undermining the walls, when an unexpected and miraculous crescent moon revealed the design to the besieged, who, in gratitude, built an altar to Diana, and adopted the crescent as their symbol. Others say that the Sultan Othman saw in a dream a crescent moon which gradually extended its horns until they reached from east to west, accepting which as an emblem of success, he adopted the crescent as his badge. The addition of the star was probably made by Constantine when, in A.D. 330, he dedicated the new city of Constantinopolis to the Virgin Mary. With the view of dissociating the crescent from its pagan origin, he added the star as an emblem of faith as described in St. Matthew II.

"Enquirer."—It is to be feared that the seaman, as such, was held in little esteem among the ancients, the reason being that he was concerned solely with the navigation and not with the fighting of the ship, and hence took inferior rank to the military class, who were, practically, soldiers afloat, and who, being absolutely ignorant of the art of navigation, naturally held it in supreme contempt. Then, too, the classical writers did not take kindly to the seaman; the philosophers looked upon him as a bad lot, turbulent and ultra-democratic. Juvenal, alluding to frequenters of the lowest slums, politely couples sailors with thieves and fugitives. Cicero says gravely that at his time of life a sea voyage would be beneath his dignity.

* * * *

"E. P. T."—The Natal Mounted Police was raised in the early seventies by Colonel J. G. Dartnell, at the request of the Colonial Government, for the protection of the colony. It is now some 700 strong. The regiment served in the Zulu Campaign, and lost heavily at Isandhlwana, and it protected the border of the colony from Boer raids during the war of 1881, but was not allowed to cross the frontier. The regiment is now with Sir George White in Ladysmith, and that general is so pleased with the men that he has selected his own body-guard from among them.

* * * *

"Navy League."—Salamis was the first great sea fight of antiquity, being chiefly remarkable for the seamanlike calculation of position made by the Greeks and the excellent fleet manœuvre by which a vastly inferior force, numerically, made itself superior to its opponents. The Persians were in a proportion of three to one to the Greeks, who consequently elected to fight in the Strait and not in the open sea. Their leader, Themistocles, appears to have greatly misled the enemy's intelligence department, and caused them to believe that the Greeks were meditating flight. Accordingly, every effort was made to prevent the anticipated escape, some of the galleys rowing all night to get into their appointed positions. Instead of retiring, however, the 300 Greek vessels raised a pæan of anticipatory victory and made a dash at their opponents, the brazen beaks of the galleys playing havoc with the oars, whole banks of which were smashed. Taking advantage of the confusion, the Greeks surrounded the enemy with a ring of ships, and battered them to their hearts' content. Rout soon became universal, and Æschylus in his description of the fight compares the slaughter that ensued to a shoal of tunny fish surrounded by fishermen and beaten to death in shallow water.

* * * *

In reply to "Mounted Infantry," who writes to me from Pembroke Camp, Malta, I may state that to obtain exact information in regard to the details he wishes to know about is not at all easy. If I can I will do so later. There is no greater admirer of his branch of the Service than I am. I sympathise heartily with him in that he is not in South Africa, and only hope that his chance may soon come.

* * * *

"R. M. L. I."—The Royal Marine forces cannot be sent in large numbers to the seat of war, for fear of denuding them in the event of a national emergency necessitating a general mobilisation of the Fleet. Several field, company, and subaltern officers have, however, been detailed for service in the field, and will, it is presumed, either fill the gaps caused by casualties, or take the places of line officers on Special Service who may be ordered to undertake regimental duties. The paucity of infantry officers, attributable to death and wounds, brings an unusual strain on those remaining with the troops, and instances have undoubtedly occurred in recent actions where sergeants have, as of old, assumed temporary leadership while under fire.

* * * *

R. Roberts.—I am glad you found the articles on "Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories" interesting. I fear that a man of twenty-six is too old to compete for an inspectorship of ordnance machinery. The age limit is twenty-five. Vacancies are few. At the last examination, held in April of last year, there were only two vacancies. Twenty candidates competed, of whom only five qualified, the first two, of course, securing the vacant appointments.

* * * *

I deeply regret that in the Navy and Army Illustrated of the 10th inst. a portrait of Captain the Hon. Robert Francis Carnegie, 2nd Battalion Gordon Highlanders, should have appeared under the heading "Our Gallant Slain," and that in the article entitled "Died for Their Country" it should have been implied that the wounds received by Captain Carnegie in the assault on Ladysmith on January 6 had proved fatal. We received, shortly before the number went to press, a portrait of this officer, from a well-known photographer, on which it was stated that Captain Carnegie was among the killed. On the assumption that this information was correct, the photograph was included with others of officers who have died in action or of their wounds. I now learn that Captain Carnegie has so far recovered as to be expecting to return to duty. Happily this good news arrived in time to neutralise any shock which our announcement might have caused the gallant officer's relatives and friends. It is, of course, most unfortunate that such an error should have been made, but at such a busy time as this mistakes will occur, and we can only be thankful that of this one such a satisfactory correction should be possible.

The Editor.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

WHEN Lord Roberts arrived at the Modder River we began to see something of the strategy he would pursue, and one of the most encouraging points in the intelligence was its revelation of the co-ordination of our operations. Two of our battle scenes are appropriately illustrative of the immediate movements, for the Modder River was the starting point for General French's march to Kimberley, and Rensburg the place where we fought a good deal before the strategic retirement. At Modder River Camp our troops have had "a good time," with ample diversion, and were fit for anything. Gen. French's seizure of the drifts was the preliminary note of the great movement. Modder River has long been a holiday resort for the inhabitants of Kimberley, with riverside enjoyments, and two or three hotels. The confluence of the Riet and the Modder occurs just where the railway crosses on the line south from Kimberley to the Orange River, and the Modder is the more northerly stream. It rises in the hills east of Bloemfontein, sweeps round on the north side of that place, and at Modder River Station loses its identity in the Riet, which flows westward by Koodoosberg (where General MacDonald made his brilliant reconnaissance), receives the waters of the Vaal, and is presently lost in the broad stream of the Orange. Like all South African rivers, the Riet and the Modder are subject to sudden fluctuations, and Lord Methuen did not discover all the drifts he had expected.

It certainly was an aggravating thing to have to abandon our attempt upon Colesberg. The loyal colonists suffered, the colonial troops were disappointed, and the correspondents who, like the soldiers, had suffered from the exasperating effects of flies, heat, and dust, were cheated of a pleasant time in Colesberg. But a great deal more had been made of our movement there than had been intended. We never really menaced the communications of the Boers with the Orange River, as was supposed, but had positions from the Colesberg Bridge Road and Coles Kop, on the north-west and west, to Slingersfontein on the east, which sufficed to hold the Boers in check, while General French withdrew a large number of troops to the Orange River.

Our other illustration carries us round to Chieveley, which has played such a great part in Sir Redvers Buller's operations, and near which place Lord Dundonald was engaged with the enemy on February 13. Chieveley has been the railway-head of Sir Redvers Buller's operations, the scene of the armoured train disaster, the place where our troops have constantly been confronted by the enemy, and the spot where many gallant soldiers who fell at Colenso on December 15 are buried.

KLIP DRIFT, MODDER RIVER
Where Genera French Surprised the Boers, Capturing Three of Their Laagers

A STREAM NEAR RENSBURG
The Scene of a Skirmish between the New South Wales Contingent and Boer Outposts.

Photos. Copyright. AT CHIEVELEY STATION. "Navy & Army."
Several Engagements have Taken Place in this Vicinity.

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

AT length the tide of war in South Africa has turned. The operations of the Boers against Kimberley have entirely collapsed, and they have been driven to precipitate retreat in the most favourable circumstances for ourselves. By taking the initiative, Lord Roberts has secured the advantage the enemy possessed. We have long suffered from the dispersal of our troops in various theatres of war; now with stronger forces we are winning fruit from the strategic errors of the Boers.

The most satisfactory feature of the intelligence received from South Africa is the evidence it bears of far-reaching strategy developed in rapid and well co-ordinated movements. Little more than a week ago we were contemplating an advance on the Orange River and Bloemfontein from the south. General Kelly-Kenny was at Thebus, between Naauwpoort and Stormberg, with General Gatacre on his right and General French on his left. The Boers were alarmed at the movement on that side, and large bodies of burghers were accordingly withdrawn from other places to resist the anticipated advance. Now we find General Kelly-Kenny operating on the rear of the column of Commandant Cronje, flying from the positions on the Modder that have menaced us, and General French promoted for his services in the relief of Kimberley. The transfer of forces from the southern sphere of operations to the western was masterful, and was based on the soundest principles. Napoleon himself has said that to change the line of operations where circumstances authorise it is one of the most skilful manœuvres in the art of war, and that the very spirit of the art lies in operating on the flanks or rear of an enemy, so as to compel him either to evacuate his position or to come out and fight at a disadvantage.

The operations were conducted most brilliantly. A concentration was arranged at Ramdam, about ten miles south-east of Honeynest Kloof Station, and the same distance from the drifts on the Riet River. Colonel Hannay, in command of mounted infantry, left the Orange River for that place, and, making a rapid march, diverted the attention of the Boers and encountered them, 500 strong with two guns, on Sunday, February 11. On that day General French left the Modder with the cavalry division for Ramdam, and the whole division was concentrated there on the 12th. Colonel Hannay had had long and hard fighting on the previous day in order to get the convoy through, for the Boers held a kopje which practically commanded a valley along which it was bound to pass, but the combined movement caused the enemy to retire. The cavalry meanwhile pushed on to the Riet River, where parties of Boers contested the passage at the Dekiel and Waterval Drifts, but they were shelled out of their positions and the further bank was won. The cavalry then crossed, and were followed by the 6th and 7th Infantry Divisions (Generals Kelly-Kenny and Tucker), which encamped by the river on February 13, taking ground in support of the advance.

General French did not waste an hour. He left Dekiel's Drift on the Riet at 11.30 a.m. on the 13th with three brigades of cavalry and horse artillery and mounted infantry to win the passages of the Modder, distant about twenty-five miles. At 5.35 p.m. on the same day he had seized Klip Drift after a sharp engagement, and had forced the passage, capturing three laagers with supplies, while Colonel J. R. P. Gordon, 15th Hussars, with his brigade, made a feint attack on Rondeval Drift, four miles to the westward, and seized it, as well as another drift nearer to Klip Drift, capturing two other laagers. By this extremely rapid movement the Boers were completely disconcerted, and a great many head of cattle and about 2,000 sheep fell into our hands. The heat and dust were stifling, and the difficulties of transport and water supply were prodigious, but complete success attended the operation, and the two infantry divisions co-operated splendidly. Having secured the passages, General French pushed forward, traversing Cronje's line of communications, and reached Kimberley on the evening of the 16th, Colonel Kekewich coming out to meet him. The enemy were dispersed from Alexandersfontein and Olifantsfontein, and their laager, store-depôt of supplies, and ammunition were captured. The cavalry scoured the country round Kimberley, and we were speedily in command of the whole region, for it was soon known that the enemy had abandoned the Magersfontein ridges.

The troops were welcomed with the utmost enthusiasm at Kimberley, and the intelligence of the relief of the long-beleaguered town was received with rapturous enthusiasm throughout the Empire. Meanwhile the development of the great plan was in progress, and before these lines appear the full magnitude of our success will be known.

A small cavalry patrol entered Jacobsdal on the 15th, finding the place full of wounded, including several of our own. There was some fighting before the place was taken, but the 15th Brigade (Major-General Wavell) drove the Boers out, and the City Imperial Volunteers were under fire for the first time, and behaved splendidly. On the next day Lord Roberts transferred his headquarters to the town. By this time Cronje, with a large part of the Boer forces, was flying towards Bloemfontein, with General Kelly-Kenny in hot pursuit, reinforced by the Highland Brigade, while General French with the cavalry left Kimberley to endeavour to turn the retreat into a rout. Kelly-Kenny greatly harassed Cronje's movements, and a large number of waggons, with stores, provisions, and ammunition fell into our hands. Owing to his oxen being fatigued, the Boer general was obliged to outspan, and to form a laager with his remaining waggons, which our artillery proceeded to shell. As these pages go to press it would appear that the retreating Boers were in great danger, and the development of events promises to be rapid. It was known in London on the 18th that already over 100 waggons and vast masses of stores had fallen into our hands. The Boer combinations were entirely broken up, and the Guards' Brigade encamped on their former position at Magersfontein, while men were working night and day to reopen railway communication with the Diamond City. The highest credit belongs to all concerned, and it was with the greatest satisfaction that the country heard that General French—substantively a colonel, but holding the local rank of lieutenant-general—had been promoted to be a major-general, and that gallant Lieutenant-Colonel Kekewich had been advanced to the rank of colonel for brilliant services in connection with the defence and relief of Kimberley.

These highly-important events cannot be without great influence upon the movements of the Boers in other spheres of the war. Mafeking, Ladysmith, Stormberg, and Arundel will all be affected by them, and it will be surprising if the pressure upon the garrisons yet beleaguered is not speedily reduced or removed. The necessity of opposing our triumphant march through the Orange Free State, and the capture of its capital, may well cause the Boer generals to concentrate while they have time. It has long been known that the Free Staters had little relish for the war, and the defection of large bodies of them may well change the situation entirely.

Lord Roberts has promised relief for the gallant garrison of Mafeking, and this may be accomplished automatically, unless some of the retreating Boers from Kimberley join the investing force. Latterly the bombardment has been severe, and has usually occurred at night, being very trying to the garrison. The enemy is utterly regardless of the lives of women, children, and the sick and wounded, and has shelled the convent, used as a convalescent hospital, and the women's laager. It is to be hoped the authors of these barbarous outrages will receive their reward. Up to January 25 the losses of the garrison had been as follows: Killed, 5 officers, 60 men, 12 non-combatants; wounded, 8 officers, 123 men, 23 non-combatants; missing, 34 men. Colonel Plumer has continued his march southward, and there was fighting near Gaberones between January 31 and February 2, and Boer reports say that a determined attack was made on their position at Ramoutsa on February 12 and repulsed.

After Sir Redvers Buller's retirement from his attack on Vaal Krantz there was a period of comparative inaction on the Tugela, though a good deal of skirmishing occurred. The garrison of the place so gallantly defended, maintaining an excellent spirit on a diet partly of horseflesh and mule, noticed on February 16—by which time the Boers were retreating from Magersfontein—that there was considerable movement among the Boers, and it was suspected that some events in the Free State were affecting the situation. On the same day it was reported to be confirmed at Frere that a retrograde movement was in progress among the enemy, and Sir Redvers Buller opened a heavy cannonade, eliciting no reply. Perhaps before these lines appear a forward movement on his part may have been made.

We have little space to record the events on the Southern Frontier, which, indeed, considering our new tactics there, and the advance from the Modder, are not of the first importance. We were completely outnumbered at Colesberg, and after severe fighting at Slingersfontein on February 12, in which the Worcesters suffered, Lieutenant-Colonel Coningham being mortally wounded, and other encounters on the left flank, General Clements retired on the 13th on Arundel, and the situation there became much as before our advance, though the Boers are in obvious danger.

General Brabant, who is with General Gatacre's command, promised his colonials a feast of fighting, and they had a foretaste of it on February 16, when he attacked the Boers and rebels near Dordrecht, and eventually forced them to clear out of the country between that place and Penhoek, thus helping to protect the lower country from being overrun by the enemy. The fighting lasted all day, and at night the forces bivouacked within 1,400-yds. of the enemy, and in a brilliant midnight attack carried their trenches at the point of the bayonet. It was a splendid achievement.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Stiles.
MAJOR-GENERAL J. TALBOT COKE,
Commanding the 11th Brigade, Sixth Division, in South Africa.

COLONEL J. T. COKE, who has vacated the appointment of senior officer at Mauritius, and is now in command of one of the brigades of Warren's Fifth Division in Natal, is an old Scottish Borderer, having passed thirty years of his service in the 2nd Battalion of that historic corps. He commanded the battalion with the Suakin Field Force, and was present at Gemaizah, and in the operations on the Nile in 1889, earning mention in despatches, and from the Khedive the Third Class of the Medjidieh. Since he vacated command of his regiment he has been A.A.G. at the Curragh, and successively A.A.G. and D.A.G. at Aldershot.

Mrs. Talbot Coke, his wife, is a well-known authoress and journalist, and an acknowledged authority on artistic household decoration.

FACING the above portrait is that of Major-General F. Howard, who commands the 7th Brigade of the Fourth Division. General Howard, who is a Rifle Brigade man, has seen much service, for he was in the Jowaki Campaign of 1877-78, the Afghan War of 1878-79, the Burmese Expedition, 1888-89, in which he gained mention in despatches and his brevet of lieutenant-colonel, and the Nile Expedition of 1898, for which he received further mention in despatches and the good service reward. He received his C.B. at the Diamond Jubilee, and was made a C.M.G. last June.

Photo. Ellis.
MAJOR-GENERAL F. HOWARD, C.B.,
Commanding One of the Ladysmith Brigades.

THE fine goat here shown being enticed with a saccharine bribe was presented to Captain Paget of the "Astræa" by the Royal Governor-General of Crete. It is in truth an ibex more properly than a goat. Though found in the Cretan highlands, the ibex are very difficult to capture, and the one here shown was only obtained by chance; he got his horns entangled in the branches of a tree, being thus unable to escape. The "Astræa's" pet is about two years old, and, though he has only been four months in captivity, has become quite tame. He is proving himself a thorough sailor-man, for he is full of fun, and, though he does not smoke, is much addicted to the vice of chewing. In fact he will chew up an empty pipe to get a taste of the flavour of the weed.

Photo. Copyright. THE PET OF THE "ASTRÆA." "Navy & Army."
The Cretan Goat Presented by H.R.H. Prince George of Greece.

OUR picture shows a group of Wexford Reservists for the 1st Royal Irish, which is now on the southern border of the Orange Free State. The lads here shown are, many of them, from the Wexford Militia, and we may be sure that they will do their duty as loyally and bravely as their compatriots have always done when serving Queen and country. Our illustration shows them being inspected by General

Photo. Copyright. Knight.
IRISHMEN FOR THE FRONT—WEXFORD RESERVISTS FOR THE 1st ROYAL IRISH.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. A SMART GUARD OF HONOUR. Brown.
Princess Beatrice's Volunteers.

Photo. Copyright. A NOVEL FORM OF MOTOR. Juritz.
A Railway "Bike" now in Use in South Africa.

Montgomery Moore at Aldershot, prior to their departure for the Cape this month, in the transport "Dictator."

THIS smart guard of honour is that which received the Queen the other day at East Cowes Barracks,—no monarch could wish for a smarter. It does credit to that fine corps, the 5th V.B. (Isle of Wight, "Princess Beatrice's") Hampshire Regiment. The Princess Beatrice is, as our readers probably know, "Governor and Captain-General" of the Isle of Wight; but as we have not yet adopted the continental fashion of lady colonels à la suite in British battalions, the honorary colonel of the regiment is H.R.H. the Duke of York.

THE accompanying "bike" has been constructed by Messrs. Donald Menzies and Co., of Cape Town, and is proving very useful on the Cape railways during the present war. Not only can it be used for patrolling the line, but takes out and brings home reliefs for the men who are stationed at intervals to guard the permanent way.

As will be seen, it is simply an adaptation for pedal propulsion of the trolley used by engineers in railway construction work and for permanent way inspection, and with its eight drivers is capable of travelling at a very fair rate of speed, and can in a moment be removed from the line by a couple of men.

THE noble contribution that Lord Iveagh has made to our resources for the war was prior to its departure from Dublin inspected by Major-General Gosset, commanding the district, who expressed the highest admira-

Photo Copyright. IRISH AID FOR THE WOUNDED. D'Arcy.
The Staff of Lord Iveagh's Field Hospital, with the Medical Staff of the Whitworth Hospital, Dublin.

Digitized by Google

tion for its completeness and for the spirit of those who were accompanying the hospital to South Africa.

The chief officer with the hospital is that well-known surgeon Sir William Thomson, who is such an authority on surgical anatomy. Besides being surgeon to His Excellency the Lord-Lieutenant, he is the direct representative for Ireland on the General Medical Council. He is also a member of the Senate of the Royal University, Examiner in Surgery to Queen's University and the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland, and was the late president of the latter body. This superb hospital will be a very welcome addition to those already gone or going out.

ROBBEN ISLAND is in Table Bay—Table Mountain can be seen in the background—and is the place where the leper hospital at the Cape is located. When the "Ismore," with Hussars and horses, was wrecked some seventy miles up the coast, another transport—the "Columbian," with three lighters in tow—was sent up to the scene of the disaster with a view to salvage. Heavy weather came on as the ships left Table Bay, and the two lighters seen in our picture broke adrift at midnight and came ashore at Robben Island.

The third one also broke adrift a few hours later and stranded on the mainland further north. An expensive piece of business, for the total loss is estimated at no less than £11,000.

Photo. Copyright. SEA-WORN DERELICTS AT THE CAPE. Juritz.
Lighters Wrecked at Robben Island.

AS the great array of cups here shown proves, the crew that have now closed their commission in the "Ramillies" have proved themselves good sportsmen in every way, for a study of our illustration will show that trophies have been gained in every form of sport, both athletic and military. The huge trophy in the centre is evidently a football cup, another is a cup for rifle shooting, while a third has evidently been gained by excellence in handling a field gun ashore. The "Ramillies" now hoists the flag of Lord Charles Beresford on the Mediterranean station, and those in her will evidently have a big record to live up to, but that they will do their level best to prove equal to the task, we have not the slightest doubt. And they will have every encouragement from their admiral, for the Beresfords one and all possess in a marked degree the very distinctive characteristic of the Irishman, that of being a sportsman au bout des ongles.

Photo. Copyright. TROPHIES OF PEACE. Ellis.
Cups Won by the "Ramillies" during Her Last Commission.

IT is not, perhaps, generally known that Birmingham possesses a Volunteer organisation entirely composed of Bluejackets. A squad of this body is shown in our illustration, together with the band of the brigade, and the picture was taken after they had given a display at the Charity Sports on the Aston Lower Ground at Birmingham. The brigade was formed at the time of the Diamond Jubilee of Her Majesty, and was a most fitting way of celebrating it, for the idea was to utilise the services of her sea servants who had taken their discharge as good conduct men from the Royal Navy. Many of these men could not on account of their occupations join the Reserve, but they are willing to give their services to their country when required, and by joining this brigade they are kept together and keep up their drills, as far, of course, as the circumstances of life in an inland town will permit. We believe that this is the first organisation of the kind formed for the purpose of keeping in hand a most serviceable body of seamen which in time of stress would be of the greatest use. We sincerely hope that other inland towns will follow the example of Birmingham.

Photo. Copyright. BIRMINGHAM'S BLUEJACKETS. "Navy & Army."
The Birmingham Naval Volunteer Brigade.

Digitized by Google

Between THE Shells.

A HEARTY GAME AT "SOCKER."
The Navy in Practice.

SCOTS FUSILIER.
His Fine Selection on the Pipes.

FRIENDLY FOES.
A Tug-of-War on a Former Battlefield.

CAMP FOLLOWERS.
A Family of Native Sutlers.

AT Springfield AND Frere.

From Photos. by W. D. N. Cotts

THE ANCIENT GAME OF ROUNDERS
Regimental Rivalry Runs High.

PASS TO THE CAMP.
The Picquet Examining Papers.

MAKING TOMMY LAUGH.
The Finish of an Egg and Spoon Race.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

VOL. IX.—No. 161.]. SATURDAY, MARCH 3rd, 1900.

CONVALESCENTS ANXIOUS TO REJOIN THEIR REGIMENTS.

A scene at the Depot Hospital at Pieter Maritzburg, to which the wounded from the front in Natal have been sent, many of them prior to being passed on to Durban and thence by sea to Cape Town. The officers shown in this group were all wounded at the battle of Colenso. From left to right they are Captain Goodwyn, 2nd Devons; Colonel Brooke, Connaught Rangers; Captain Hon. St. L. Jervis, King's Royal Rifle Corps (A.D.C. to General Hunt); Captain Brush, Royal Irish Fusiliers.

From a Photo. by a Military Correspondent.

Digitized by Google

Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories.

By Frederick G. Engelbach.

ENFIELD LOCK.—III.

THE most interesting process in the growth of a rifle barrel is undoubtedly its "rifling." In the Lee-Enfield this consists of five grooves, making one complete turn in 10-in., which is found to give better results than the Lee-Metford seven grooves. The depth is allowed to vary between ·005 and ·0075, these being the limits of acceptance or rejection. In the picture of the rifling machine a spare cutter is shown propped up, and particular attention should be directed to the large model of the rifling, by which the cutting tool is guided. The barrel when rifled goes once more to the viewers, in whose shop it is most critically viewed and gauged before being passed. So far only the barrel has been watched, but the body-bolt, sights, etc., must not be forgotten. These portions come to the factory in rough forgings, and are stamped out and finished with marvellous accuracy. If reference be made to Part II. of this series, and the picture of castings examined, these details will be well seen. Every portion of the modern rifle has to be interchangeable, and, as a result, the workmanship has to be of a nicety unknown in former times. Every single item has its appointed gauges, and no rifle can be assembled until every portion of it has been subjected to the most rigorous examination by the Inspection Department. To ensure good shooting the sights must be absolutely true, and both the sight-cutting and testing machines merit a close examination. The human being, with his limitations, has little to do with these beautiful pieces of mechanism, which cut and check rifle after rifle with absolutely no chance of error.

A RIFLING MACHINE.
Showing the Large Guiding Model beside the Cutter, which, by means of the Sliding Block in the Right-hand Corner of the Illustration, it is Forced to Copy in the Interior of the Barrel.

THE FUTURE PRIZE-WINNER.
Sights being Machine Cut, by which Extraordinary Accuracy and Speed in Manufacture are Attained.

SIGHT TESTING.
By this Ingenious Machine the Centre of the Fore Sight and that of the Back Sight can be Proved to be Exactly in a Line, the Least Inaccuracy being at Once Detected.

The wooden portion of the Lee-Enfield requires some description. The finest Italian walnut only is used, and this is bought every year in France, Switzerland, and Germany. As the use of improperly matured wood would be attended by continual mildew and rusting of the rifle, three years are allowed for the necessary seasoning. The walnut is first roughed into shape, and then, to the number of over 1,000,000, these blocks are stored to await their conversion into butts and fore-ends. These are in two portions, because it is found that the rifle, joined as it is by its steel body and screws, is stronger than it

Photos. Copyright. AN UNCANNY MACHINE. 'Navy & Army.'
This Screw Cutter is almost Human in its Method of Working, Converting as it does Pieces of Steel Rod into Accurately Finished Steel Screws. "You put the Rod in at One End, and the Machine does the Rest."

Digitized by Google

BUTT TURNING.
The Lower Butt is of Steel, and is a Model on which the Cutter Works which Turns Out the Wooden Copy above.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE BUTT AND STOCK.
Specimens Showing the Wooden Part of a Rifle and Carbine in all the Stages of Manufacture.

would be had the steel to be weakened to allow of a continuous wooden stock. As in the wheel factory at Woolwich the wood is turned by means of a metal guide, which is seen in the picture under the wooden block. The illustration dealing with the fore-end of the rifle shows better than any descriptive writing the various stages through which it goes before completion. The rifle is now ready for "assembling," and for this purpose a fixed number of parts, sufficient to make the same number of rifles, are issued to the foreman of the assembling shop. Bit by bit the weapon is built up, until it only requires its butt and fore-end to be complete. At this stage it undergoes its second proof in the test-house, in order to subject the mechanism to a severe trial. A heavier charge of cordite than the regulation 30-gr. is used, and this has been previously heated for three hours at 80-deg. Fahr. By this means a pressure of at least one-third more than the rifle will ever be called upon to bear is developed. Cleaned and oiled, it returns to the shop for its finishing touches. Men earning from £2 2s. to £2 12s. 6d. are employed here, and with the greatest nicety they fasten up every screw and bolt in the sorely tried weapon. When finished it is taken down to the butts and there finally tested for its accuracy at various ranges.

THE BUTTS, ENFIELD LOCK.
Showing the Marker's Hut on the Right, with Dummy Target on which Hits are Signalled.

Photos. Copyright "Navy & Army."

THE ASSEMBLING SHOP—DINNER HOUR.

In this Shop Skilled Mechanics put together or Assemble the Parts of a Rifle, which, being all Interchangeable, require only the Slightest Touch of a File to make them Fit exactly together (Previous articles of this series appeared on July 15 and February 10).

Digitized by Google

Scenes in Johannesburg.

VARIOUS NATIONALITIES.
The Johannesburg Volunteers.

A SMART TRANSVAAL CORPS.
The Johannesburg Mounted Police.

Photos. Copyright. A STATE PROCESSION. N. P. Edward.
Oom Paul Passing through Johannesburg.

THE accompanying illustrations were taken on one of those rare occasions when their farmer President deigns to visit the citizens of his rich city of Johannesburg. As will be seen from our illustration, the crafty "Oom Paul," despite all his burgher simplicity, does not quite disdain the pomp and display that appertain to his high position as President of the South African Republic, for it will be noticed that the landau which forms his triumphal chariot is horsed by four white steeds, whilst that containing his suite only rises to the dignity of two.

The body-guard which attends the cortège is composed of that very fine body of men known as the State Artillery. This corps always is ready for immediate service, and forms, in fact, the nucleus of the Boer armed forces. Though the force itself is but a small one, it comprises a very large number of officers, having had before the war one colonel, and over 100 officers, commissioned and non-commissioned, to something like 250 men. This enormous percentage of officers is, of course, for the purpose of training and superintending in artillery work the burghers, who are now working with such immense success the heavy and quick-firing guns that the Boers have been accumulating for a long time past, and which they now possess in such numbers.

Another of our illustrations shows the mounted section of the South African Republic Police parading through Johannesburg. This semi-military force possesses, as is seen, a very good band wherewith to discourse to the ears of the burghers their patriotic air, which is one of the most stirring of national anthems. It is from the initial letters of their full title that the South African Republic Police obtain the cognomen of "Zarp," by which they are generally known. The mounted section are a specially fine body of men, and have in several actions fought exceedingly well on the side of the Republics.

Our third illustration is of the officers and men of the Johannesburg Volunteers now serving with the Johannesburg commando on the Tugela. Three of the officers are without their great-coats, and show well the smart and serviceable uniform worn by the corps. The large dog—it looks like a retriever—in the rear of the line of officers is most probably the regimental pet. The full strength of this corps is believed to comprise a body of 600 infantry, with a mounted contingent of 200 men. Probably, however, all are for the nonce mounted infantry. As the title we have given to our picture denotes, the corps is very largely recruited from European nationalities, and so the bulk of the men have had an efficient military training. And they have used it to very good account, for the Johannesburg commando has now seen a good deal of tough fighting, and no doubt our friends of the Johannesburg Volunteers have taken their full share in it, and lost some from their mess.

Digitized by Google

IF General de la Rocque, who contributes an article on "A Naval Programme for 1900" to the Revue des Deux Mondes for February 15, is right, we ought to be very grateful that France did not think proper to fight over Fashoda. In some respects the general is unquestionably not wrong. He makes fine work of the ideas of "the young Navy" which has taken up with the old theory that France can get the better of England in a Naval war by declining battles and attacking her commerce. Like a good many other new things in this world, the doctrine of the young school is as old as the hills. It has been put to the test over and over again, and has never answered. General de la Rocque shows its utter want of foundation as well as possible. There is also much force in his contention that England can do very little against the coast of France, because she cannot land a great army, while it is possibly probable that most British Naval officers will agree with him in thinking that no admiral of ours would go full speed ahead into the Goulet of Brest on the chance of finding no gunners in the forts. His final judgment, too, seems not unreasonable. It is that if the French Navy cannot be used for offensive purposes, and in great operations, it is a mere luxury, and that the country will do wisely to suppress it, and apply the money to other purposes.

* * * *

Mixed with these not unrational observations, and predominating over them considerably, is matter of another kind. General de la Rocque says things which might well make the complacent Briton stare, and ought to make him very uneasy if he thinks they contain any truth. For instance, it is the general's firm conviction that the French sailor is incomparably superior to the British, also that the French Naval officers are much better than ours. He assures his countrymen that the loss of the "Victoria" gives the exact measure of our skill in manœuvring. Our guns, he is prepared to affirm, are rubbish. The reputation of the Armstrongs he knows to be thoroughly undeserved, and to have been gained entirely by puffery and bribery. It is curious, by the way, to see how ready the French, though they pass for a vain people, are to believe that their officials take bribes. General de la Rocque has not the least hesitation in declaring that if French public men profess a high opinion of the power of Great Britain, it is because they have corrupt motives so to do. But to return to his estimate of us. He has weighed our engineers in the balance and found them wanting. As for our ships, he describes them as being precisely what might have been expected of the war vessels of a people of merchants: big, imposing on the outside, comfortable—and worthless. They have armour where it is not wanted, and where it ought to be it is wanting. Any three French battle-ships are a match for any five of ours.

* * * *

With that climax we may pause. The quotations are enough to show how very fortunate it was for us that France preferred to keep the peace the other day—if the general is right. Of course, since she did prefer to remain quiet, there is no handy means of proving that he is wrong. If he can persuade his countrymen of the soundness of his ideas, the next Fashoda incident will end in another fashion. Meanwhile it goes to show what different animals an Englishman and a Frenchman are, that he should talk in this style. General de la Rocque is not an irresponsible scribbler. He has held important posts in the French Ministry of Marine, and is rather a distinguished officer. Now, could anybody conceive of an Englishman of the same standing indulging in such rabid tall talk as this? If anyone did, we should set him down at once as a fool, or ask whether he had ever had a sunstroke. Yet General de la Rocque is no fool, but a clever officer of much experience. If he talks in a wild, boastful way it is not for want of intelligence. It is, firstly, because he is a Frenchman, and this is their form of foolishness, just as croaking and gloomy exaggeration of danger is ours. That it is the more dangerous of the two is our good luck. Then there is another explanation. General de la Rocque is a politician. Like the majority of French officers, he despises the men who have been brought to the top by the Third Republic. He cannot reconcile himself to the fact that the times of Louis XIV. and Napoleon are over. He wants to see France take a louder tone to the world, and is furious with the politicians who will not fight. So he brags of the efficiency of the French Navy as a reproach to them. If it is all he says, they had no excuse for yielding. We must take that into account when the French abuse us. Two-thirds of their screaming is really directed against their own rulers, whom they wish to discredit by representing that they have dishonoured France by subservience to England.

* * * *

One would waste time by asking General de la Rocque how he reconciles the superiority of the French seamen with the facts of history for the last six centuries. He would, unquestionably, deny the facts, which is a simple and comfortable way of getting rid of them. In truth, the inefficiency of the French at sea is somewhat of a mystery. They are a very courageous people, and they have at different times worked hard at their Navy. Everybody knows how good their troops have been. Yet they have never at sea got beyond meeting us on fairly equal terms, and even that they have rarely done. When our Navy was very corrupt, after the reign of Charles II., the Saint Malo privateers did some brilliant things against us. Suffren fought a very glorious campaign in the eastern seas, but except on these occasions they have always been inferior. It was not that courage was wanting, or skill of a kind. The history of our own Navy has nothing finer as a piece of resolute valour than L'Etenduère's defence of his convoy against Hawke, or than the conduct of M. Sabran-Grammont in Boscawen's action with La Clue in 1759. Yet their bravery was of the passive kind, and the skill was mostly shown in elaborating a system of conducting Naval war by which the French were always to avoid battles.

* * * *

The famous Blaise de Monluc (or Montluc) roundly declared that his country had never done great things at sea, and that sea fighting was not its business. On the whole he appears not to have been far wrong. Since he wrote in the sixteenth century his countrymen have done little enough to prove him wrong. Captain Lapeyrouse-Bonfils, who wrote a history of the French Navy, makes an unwitting confession of inferiority. He says that his countrymen have seldom succeeded against the English save by boarding, which is a way, whether he knew it or not, of saying that they were thoroughly inferior in sea warfare. It never has been possible to board an opponent whose ship was under full command, and who handled it with any judgment. So soon as our captains of the seventeenth century took to baulking the attempts of Duguay-Trouin and the other privateers to board, their successes grew rare. They had to fall back on their guns. Now Lapeyrouse-Bonfils confesses that the excitability of the French made them inferior to the British as gunners. It is certain that in point of skill in gunnery they were generally less skilful than us in the old wars, whether the cause were in their lesser capacity for the work or in something else. But a Naval battle has always been finally settled by the gun ever since artillery was introduced at sea, and if the French were not so good as us in the use of that weapon, they were bound to be altogether inferior. Moreover, in these days, when boarding is less possible than ever it was, they will have a smaller chance than of old. Probably General de la Rocque would not agree with his Naval countrymen. The patriotic general takes a very different view of the French sailor. He would very possibly account for the defeats of the past by saying that they were due to "the cavalry of St. George," i.e., our guineas, for the French mind is so oddly constructed that it sees less shame in confessing it has been bribed than in recognising that it has been beaten in fair fight.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.
A PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WORLD'S NEWS
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, LONDON W.C.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

MARCH 4, 1759.—Surrender of Surat. A force under Captain Richard Maitland, R.A., having routed the Seydees and driven them within the citadel, a bombardment was so effectively carried out that the city and citadel surrendered. Our loss was four officers and 146 non-commissioned officers and men killed, and a total of sixty wounded.

March 5, 1760.—Surrender of Permacoil. The strongly-fortified rock and pettah having admitted a French garrison within its walls, the killidar sent to Colonel Coote requesting his aid to rid them of the French, who had possessed themselves of a fort by surprise. Colonel Coote appeared before the place towards the end of February, and on this day the garrison surrendered. 1811.—Battle of Barrosa. The French under Victor (numbering 16,000) routed by the Allies (12,000 men) under Sir Thomas Graham with the loss of 2,300 men, six guns, and an eagle. The British loss in killed and wounded was nearly 1,200.

March 6, 1799.—Action at Seedaseer. Tippoo Saib was defeated by a force under General Stewart, consisting of part of the 75th, the 77th, and three native regiments. 1813.—The French driven from Alcoy. Sir John Murray with the Anglo-Sicilian Army resolved to surprise the French at this place as a preliminary towards driving them from a mountain in his front. The French retired beyond Alcoy, and the Allies occupied the place with but little loss.

March 7, 1791.—Bangalore Pettah stormed. Lord Cornwallis took this fortress after severe fighting in the streets of the town. Among the killed was Lieutenant-Colonel Moorhouse, to whose memory a monument was afterwards erected in Madras.

March 8, 1748.—Reduction of St. Domingo. After three hours' bombardment the French were driven from their guns and the garrison surrendered. 1801.—Battle of Aboukir. The force under Abercromby effected a landing in Egypt under fire. The French fled in confusion to Alexandria, after a brilliant charge by the 23rd and 40th Regiments. Other regiments engaged were the 28th, 42nd, and 58th under General Coote, the brigade of Guards, the Corsican Rangers, the Royals, and the 54th under General Ludlow.

March 9, 1783.—Bednore taken. The garrison of this town surrendered to General Mathews after a cannonade lasting thirty hours. 1818.—Pindarees routed at Hurala. A force under Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. L. Stanhope completely routed the enemy, and afterwards pursued them fourteen or fifteen miles until they reached the jungle.

March 10, 1805.—Action near Amrooh. During the pursuit of Amir Khan by General Smith, Captain Murray was sent to escort treasure from Morandabad to camp, and was surrounded by the Amir's troops. The enemy attacked in great force, but were defeated with the loss of their chief in command. Captain Murray afterwards attacked the enemy's baggage guard and captured all the baggage.

MARCH 4, 1653.—Badiley's action with the Dutch off Leghorn. 1676.—Sir John Narborough's attack on Tripoli. 1804.—Boats of the "Blenheim," 74, off St. Pierre, Martinique, cut out the "Curieuse," 10. 1824.—Royal National Lifeboat Institution founded. 1838.—Vice-Admiral Sir W. R. Kennedy, K.C.B. born. 1842.—Rear-Admiral A. K. Wilson, C.B., V.C., Controller of the Navy, born. 1897.—The "Pegasus," and the "Flying Fish," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

March 5, 1748.—First notice of a British Naval uniform. 1800.—"Heureux," 22, taken by "Phœbe," 36. 1845.—Rear-Admiral Sir J. H. U. Noel born. 1897.—"Ariel," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

March 6, 1793.—"Castine," privateer, taken in the North Sea by the "Iris," 32. 1797.—"Actif," 18, privateer, taken in the Channel by the "Phæton," 38. 1797.—"Surveillante," 18, privateer, taken in the Channel by the "Alcmene," 32. 1786.—Admiral Sir Charles Napier born. 1842.—Rear-Admiral T. H. Jackson, Superintendent Devonport Dockyard, born.

March 7, 1762.—Capture of "Gloire," 20, by the "Milford," 28. 1778.—Action between the "Yarmouth," 64, and six American ships-of-war, one of which, the "Randolph," 36, blew up. 1795.—The "Berwick," 74, captured by the French Toulon fleet. 1804.—Recapture of Goree by the "Inconstant," 36, with troops. 1866.—Albert medal instituted. 1883.—The "Royalist" launched.

March 8, 1748.—Reduction of Port Louis, Hispaniola, by Rear-Admiral Knowles's squadron. 1795.—Defeat of French cruiser squadron in the Channel by Sir E. Pellew's "Western" frigate squadron. 1821.—"Dreadnought" Seamen's Hospital founded. 1871.—The "Glatton" launched. 1875.—The "Dreadnought" launched.

March 9, 1741.—Reduction of Cartagena by Vernon's squadron. 1777.—"Ariadne," 32, and "Ceres" sloop captured the United States man-of-war "Alfred," 20. 1797.—Capture of "Résistance," 40, and "Constance," 22, off Brest, by the "San Fiorenzo," 36, and "Nymphe," 36.

March 10, 1705.—Destruction of four French line-of-battle ships outside Gibraltar Bay by Sir John Leake's squadron. 1796.—The "Phæton," 38, off Cape Finisterre, captured the "Bonne Citoyenne," 20. 1880.—The "Ajax" launched.

Some Little-known Duties of a Man-of-War.

By JOHN TARRE.

A MAN-OF-WAR is primarily, of course, a fighting machine; but there are many other useful duties laid upon her besides the obvious one of making war upon Her Majesty's foes. Peace hath victories for her no less renowned than war, and she serves her country equally well, whether in the smoke of battle or in bearing the banner of British justice to remote corners of the world.

In many distant British possessions, notably in the South Sea Islands, the patrolling man-of-war provides judge, jury, executioner, and every other official that may be required. In the Solomon Isles—e.g., where the natives are very turbulent—it is frequently necessary to hold trials on board ship. Some time ago a French trader was murdered on one of the islands, and no clue could be discovered to the murderer. The "Rapid," however, arrived on the scene, and summoning the chief of the village on board informed him that if the culprit was not forthcoming in three days the village would be burnt. He was brought on board the next day. A formal trial was held, and he was condemned to be shot, the execution taking place on the beach in front of the village. The poor wretch was tied to a tree, and despatched by a volley from a party of Marines, whose rifles had been loaded for them, some with ball and some with blank, so that it should not be known who were the actual executioners.

Another unpleasant task that sometimes falls to the lot of the Bluejacket is that of suppressing riots in the British dominions. The Admiralty, however, do not look upon this use of the men under their command with favour, and have given instructions that it is only to be done in grave emergencies.

Tumults abroad often give employment to our ships; but in these cases armed interference can only be justified when the lives and property of British subjects are in danger from violence that cannot otherwise be controlled. An asylum may be afforded British subjects under these circumstances, unless they are escaping from the law. (A careful Government, however, enacts that during their stay on board they are to be charged for the provisions supplied.) This privilege is also extended to foreign refugees, if flying from personal danger; but care is to be exercised that the ship is not used as a base of operations for insurgents, etc. Distressed British subjects may also be granted a free passage on any of Her Majesty's ships to the nearest consular port.

The protection of fugitive slaves is a special part of the duty of those vessels stationed on the East Coast of Africa. The suppression of the slave traffic is a self-imposed task, characteristically British. It costs the country many thousands a year; the only reward being the proceeds of the sales of captured dhows, and the consciousness of well-doing. The proceeds are distributed as prize-money among the crews, less 5 per cent., payable to the Naval Prize Account at the Admiralty. The duty of patrolling the coast in search of slave-dhows is generally performed by boats from Her Majesty's ships, and life on board these is a special phase of man-of-war experience that has been dealt with in these columns previously. This may be described as police work, and another task of the same description is the protection of our fisheries from foreign inroads. An unpleasant incident in this connection will be remembered in the recent shooting of the helmsman of a French poacher by the "Leda," off Folkestone.

A police duty that fell to the lot of a Naval friend of the writer's was the examination of a supposed infernal machine. Some years ago, when the dynamite scare was at its height, a suspicious-looking tin was discovered lashed to one of the piles of Piermont Bridge, Sydney. It was cautiously removed to the police station for investigation. This task, however, was not eagerly sought after, and it was finally turned over to a representative of the gunnery department from one of Her Majesty's ships in the harbour. He was not an expert in infernal machines, but, guided by the smell, he pronounced it to be a home-made calcium signal light; and on opening the tin this proved to be the case. It had a lanyard attached, and in drifting about this had become twisted about the pier as if it had been purposely lashed there.

Another important duty of a war-ship is to prevent breaches of the Foreign Enlistment Act. The commanding officer is a local authority under that Act, and is authorised to seize and detain ships in British waters carrying persons about to enlist with foreign countries at war. If they are British subjects they may be seized anywhere, whether within the three-mile limit or not. Carrying a cargo of war material is not an offence under the Act, and ships doing so run the blockade, if there is one, and take their chances with the respective belligerents.

Digitized by Google

The suppression of piracy is another duty devolving upon our ships. Any vessel, not being commissioned by a de facto Government, which is found to be committing piratical acts, is to be seized and taken to the nearest British Consul, to be tried for offences on the high seas. Special care, however, is to be taken that insurgents against any Government, and authorised privateers, are not interfered with.

It sometimes happens that a merchant ship is met with which, owing to accident, or disease, or mutiny, is insufficiently manned. In such cases Naval men are put on board to navigate her to the nearest port.

All ships of the Navy are directed to render every possible assistance to vessels in danger or distress. This is to be done without any eye to possible salvage money, for no claim may be made upon owners in this respect without the sanction of the Admiralty, and this sanction is only given in cases of really arduous and hazardous service. Derelict ships are to be sunk or destroyed if it is impracticable to tow them into port. If they are loaded with timber they are difficult to deal with, as blowing them up would set loose a multitude of floating logs more dangerous to navigation than the ship itself. These are notified to the Admiralty by cable as soon as practicable, and lists of them, with their positions, are issued in Notices to Mariners.

The despatch from our shores recently of a large number of transports drew attention to another duty of men-of-war, viz., convoying. Happily, in this case, owing to the absence of any Naval power on the part of the enemy, no convoying was thought necessary. In war time, also, treasure is sometimes turned over to our ships of war for conveyance. In such cases a percentage of it is deducted and paid over to the funds of the Greenwich Hospital.

Among the duties laid upon Naval officers in time of peace is that of furnishing to the authorities reports on scientific matters of interest that may be met with during foreign cruises. The field of enquiry embraces such subjects as meteorology, tides, geology, seismology, magnetism, etc. Our present knowledge of the effect of terrestrial magnetism on the compass-needle in different parts of the earth is largely due to the reports of Naval officers, and the subjects of meteorology and tides owe much to their investigations.

Invaluable work under this heading is done by the vessels employed in surveying duty. The Admiralty charts, drawn up by the officers of these vessels, are mines of accurate and useful information. Marine surveying is very arduous and responsible work. Most of it is done from boats, and, in cold or boisterous weather, sounding for hours at a stretch from an open boat is not at all like a picnic. Yet no jot of it must be shirked, for false or scanty soundings on a chart may lead to the loss of many lives.

In this connection an incident may be mentioned that shows the confidence reposed in the work of British surveyors. The writer was once stationed at Chemulpho, a Corean port, and the captain of a French vessel that was lying there came on board and asked that he might be allowed to compare his chart of the harbour with ours, as his was an old one and not corrected up to date. His chart turned out to be an Admiralty one, from surveys by British officers, and when questioned he admitted that he always used British charts, as he found they were more reliable than those from French surveys.

With their complete equipment of instruments, etc., men-of-war have, of course, a great advantage in the matter of navigation over trading vessels. Some of these are run on very economical lines in this respect, and their captains, when they run across a war-ship, generally seize the opportunity of finding out where they are and what is the time—two very important questions at sea.

In harbour, too, abroad, ships sometimes perform a useful function by firing a gun at noon, and thus giving the exact time to all concerned. This is not done so often as it would be perhaps, owing to the captious critics on shore, who write to the papers complaining of alleged errors in the time of gun-fire. An amusing tale has been handed down concerning the mid-day gun, fired at a military station not far from London. Some large disagreement having been discovered in the firing times, the person responsible was asked how he got his time. He replied, "From the railway station clock." The cause of the irregularities was discovered when enquiries at the railway station elicited the fact that the clock there was carefully regulated each day by the gun-fire.

Knotting and Splicing Afloat.

A pleasing and peaceful ceremony that sometimes takes place on board of a war-ship is the marriage of British subjects in out of the way corners of the globe, where no clergyman is available. In such cases the chaplain of the ship is authorised to perform the ceremony on board, and a very pretty and romantic sight it is, as we are sure all our lady readers will agree. There is no lack of "best men" available, if they are required, and the Bluejackets form deeply interested spectators. They generally, also, give the happy pair three rousing cheers as they are rowed ashore after being "spliced."

The consequent baptisms are also performed when the ship comes round again to that part of the station, and many a British subject in distant lands bears the name of his honoured ship-godmother, as "John Bellerophon Brown" or "Sarah Salamanda Smith."

The transport of ship's companies to and from foreign stations is another duty that now falls upon war-ships. Formerly this was almost entirely done by special troop-ships; but it is found to be more economical to make relief crews work their passages.

The carrying of private passengers is forbidden, without the sanction of the Admiralty; and any civilians on board are, for the time being, subject to the Naval Discipline Act. Private packages, also, are not carried without permission, and must be only parcels sent by or to officers and their friends. Fond mothers are generally under the impression that their sons on foreign service are being starved, and every parcel is sure to contain a large proportion of eatables. A messmate of the writer's once undertook to take a box of this sort to China. He did not know the contents, and it was stowed at the back of the top shelf in the mess. Going down the Red Sea a most villainous smell forced itself upon our notice. This was ascribed to all sorts of causes—among others, to the remains of Pharaoh's drowned host—but suspicion at length focussed itself upon the upper mess-shelf, where the almost forgotten box lay hid. It was found to contain, amidst innumerable wrappings, a Dutch cheese, a plum pudding, and some red herrings.

Digitized by Google

The Organiser of Victory.

Photo. Copyright. LORD KITCHENER OF KHARTOUM—CHIEF OF THE STAFF IN SOUTH AFRICA. "Navy & Army."

As might have been expected from Lord Kitchener's previous successes in Egypt and in the Soudan, his presence in South Africa as Lord Roberts's right-hand man has led to some prompt and striking developments. Already the progress of the campaign has borne witness to his perfectly marvellous capacity for organisation, more especially in the all-important direction of transport. Under the magic influence of his personality the host of complications which seems to have existed before his arrival has disappeared in the most extraordinary fashion. Where there was little else but zealous confusion, now there is smooth harmony; where men were formerly at their wits' end trying to carry out half-a-dozen conflicting plans, now everyone in authority knows his work, and, it goes without saying, takes good care to do it. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, and if this wonderful work of reorganisation had not been projected by a master mind, and carried out by a strong hand to boot, Kimberley might still be awaiting relief, and a fine little army still be eating its heart out in camp at Modder River.

Digitized by Google

An Embarkation at Tilbury Docks.

OUR three illustrations depict scenes that may be witnessed any day at the Tilbury Docks. Tilbury, of course, has not been anything like as much in evidence as a port of embarkation during the present crisis as Southampton, for instance, but none the less has the work done there been of the utmost importance. For example, a very large percentage of the cavalry and artillery embarkations has taken place from there, and those who know what a big business it is to get inboard a number of horses, to say nothing of waggons, guns, and limbers, will realise the excellent work that the embarkation officers at Tilbury have been and are doing.

To the Naval staff employed there credit is particularly due. The ingenuity with which the difficulties so constantly met are overcome is simply marvellous. For example, a crane, such as that seen in one of our pictures, is found unequal to the task of hoisting in a waggon full of heavy ammunition.

This would appear to necessitate the unloading of the waggon, the lowering of it empty into the hold, then the getting inboard of the waggon's contents, and finally the restowing of them in the waggon. But the Naval officer knows a trick worth two or three of that. A few quick orders to the men, and in a moment an ingenious system of guy ropes is rigged and a second crane brought into play, when the forces of the two united whip up the loaded waggon, and down she goes. Getting horses inboard is also marvellously managed, and it is very rarely that a restive horse gives trouble. Coaxing and a piece of sugar make him lower his head, a flick behind, and he is inboard and being led to his stall before he quite realises that he has left terra firma and is booked for a 7,000-mile voyage. Of course the embarkations that have taken place at Tilbury have not been entirely those of mounted forces, for many detachments of unmounted troops have also quitted England from Tilbury. And on the shoulders of Lieutenant-Colonel G. J. Parkyn the conduct and responsibility of all these important embarkations has devolved.

Colonel Parkyn went from the 18th Hussars to the Army Service Corps, so he is an officer specially fitted by experience to superintend the embarkation of mounted troops. He will not by his services at Tilbury add another medal ribbon to those he already wears for service in the Soudan, but nevertheless is he taking no small share in the great work that will only be completed when the Union Jack flies over Pretoria.

The Naval transport officer in charge of the Thames District is Captain C. H. Coke, an officer who, as a midshipman, served in the Ashanti Campaign. On his shoulders devolve all the duties connected with the ships taken up as transports.

In fact the Military officers may be said to have charge on the wharf, and the Naval officers on board.

FAREWELL ON BOARD.
A Fair Visitor says Good-bye to Her Friends.

MOUNTING THE SIDE.
Lancashire Fusiliers Embarking in the "Victorian."

Photos. Copyright. "WELL! GOOD LUCK AND SAFE RETURN, OLD CHAP!" "Navy & Army."
Visitors About to Leave.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A Present from India.

ON THE WAY DOWN COUNTRY.
Horses being Watered on the Line of March.

A VETERINARY INSPECTION.
A Last Look Round before Starting for Bombay.

AT DEOLALI.
Detraining the Horses at the Great Rest Camp of Western India.

UNLOADING BAGGAGE.
The Native Escort Looks after Its Property.

THE accompanying series of pictures illustrates the splendidly patriotic action of several of the leading Indian Native Princes in sending out a number of horses for use in the South African Campaign. It would be easy to expatiate upon the many and most interesting reflections which this magnificent present, so spontaneously offered, so frankly accepted, has aroused. To those who know India well there is something peculiarly appropriate in the idea that these great feudatory rulers, failing the acceptance of their personal service or of contingents from their troops, should have asked to be allowed to send horses for the use of the British Army in a war where horseflesh is at such a notable premium. The nobility and fighting classes of India are, like ourselves, imbued with an abiding love and admiration of "mounted movements," and the natural present of India's chivalry in such circumstances is, if not a fighting man, a war horse. And we may be sure that the animals despatched by the Indian rajas to South Africa have been carefully selected with a view to doing credit to their donors' generosity.

The horses have been sent out in charge of an escort of Imperial Service Troops, that admirable organisation which owes its existence as much to the statesmanship of Lord Dufferin as to the loyalty and military enthusiasm of the Native Princes themselves. Twenty years ago, in almost every Native State in India there was maintained at the charge of the ruling chief a miscellaneous rag-tag-and-bobtail of so-called "troops," in some cases running into thousands, who were a standing source of anxiety to the Indian Government.

At Lord Dufferin's instance the Native Princes agreed to replace these objectionable "armies" by Imperial Service Troops, which have done capital service in the field, and here are seen acting in another capacity. That they have taken care of their charges on the way to South Africa we may be sure, but they will be sadly disappointed at not being permitted to join in the "fun."

DOWN BY THE RIVER.
The Horses Stretching Their Legs at Deolali.

A USEFUL LOAN.
Spare Horses from the Native Cavalry.

"ROPING" A NERVOUS COUNTRY-BRED.
When a Horse Gives Trouble at the Station he is "Helped In" like this.

HIS FIRST JOURNEY BY TRAIN.
Spare Horses from the Native Cavalry being Entrained for Bombay.

Indian Horses and Horsemen for South Africa.

From Photos. by a Military Officer.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

To Fight Side by Side.

Photo. Copyright.

CANADIAN COWBOYS FOR SOUTH AFRICA. Gauvin & Gentzell.

Officially this is C Squadron, Canadian Mounted Infantry, which sailed for South Africa in an Allan Liner at the end of January. The men are on parade and undergoing inspection by Major-General Hutton, who has since himself been ordered to the front. In private life these fine fellows are cowboys from the North-Western Territories of the Dominion, and about as hard and gritty a lot of superb riders and dare-devil "customers" generally as it is possible to find anywhere on the face of the earth.

Photo. Copyright.

THE OLD DUKE'S OWN. Russell & Sons.

This distinctly cheerless scene represents a pretty cheerful function, the inspection, namely, of the special corps known as the "Duke of Cambridge's Own" at Wellington Barracks. The corps is composed of gentlemen who are providing their own horses, paying their own passage, and otherwise proving their willingness to make substantial sacrifices in order to have the honour and glory of risking their lives for the sake of Queen and country. The corps at this inspection mustered about 120 strong, of excellent physique and smart appearance.

Digitized by Google

Army Transport in South Africa.

WITH LORD ROBERTS'S FIELD FORCE.

A HEAVY LOAD.
A Bullock Waggon and Team.

GOOD IN THE MAIN.
Cape Boys in Charge of Waggons.

CROSSING THE VELDT.
Transport Waggons for Infantry Stores.

Copyright. TRIED AND PROVED. "Navy & Army."
Traction Engines for Hauling Guns or Stores.

From Photos. by Our Military Correspondent.

FOR some little time it is probable that the most vital, if not the most immediately interesting, of all parts of the field of operations in South Africa will be the long line of railway which runs up to the west of the Orange Free State. When it is displaced from this rank it will be succeeded by the other line of railway which goes up through the middle of the Republic. Like the Civil War in the United States, ours is a struggle in which the lines of communication are of peculiar importance. Important they always are. In the Peninsular War, for instance, the number of French troops engaged in keeping the road by Valladolid and Burgos open was always large. Napoleon once declared that a defeat on the plains of Leon would give lockjaw to the whole French army in Spain. But still there are degrees, and lines of communication are more or less important in proportion to their length and liability to interruption. When they are very prolonged and vulnerable, and when the enemy can strike at them as Morgan and Moseby hit at the Federal lines in the Civil War, then they are very interesting indeed. Just at present our force under Lord Roberts may be compared to a claw at the end of a very long feeler which grows out of the body of the animal. It is hard, and it grips unpleasantly, but if the opponent against whom it is directed can hit on the feeler it is more or less paralysed, and if he can damage the feeler beyond repair it is rendered helpless. So it is, for manifest reasons, most necessary to take care that the connection between the claw and the body remains in good working order. To keep it from being cut through is a great business. In South Africa it will employ not only all the armoured trains, and fortified posts, but flying columns. The work, too, is more necessary and vital than exhilarating. One can understand and sympathise with the officer who is left to look after the lines of communication while his comrades are earning distinction and promotion at the front. It may be true that "they also serve who only stand and wait," and that since this is so, the service done by him who stands and waits where his chiefs send him and where he is wanted ought to count. But somehow it does not, and there is no part of the fortune of war which is so erratic, and at times so cruel, as the distribution of glory between the man who has a chance to win distinction in a fight, and the other who may be every whit as good a man but yet has no opening because he is sent where no fighting occurs. The second may help to win the victory as much as the first, and yet he gets no credit because no shots were exchanged. Our men on the lines must hope that the enemy will imitate Morgan and the other Confederate leaders. If the Boers do, then no doubt a good account will be given of them.

Our illustrations show the traction engines which have been sent round to General Roberts, also the manner in which an army is kept supplied with food.

Digitized by Google

On the Lines of Communication.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.
Marconi's Installation of Wireless Telegraphy at Belmont.

WITH AN ACQUIRED TASTE.
Birds that Eat Cartridges and Other Relics of a Battlefield.

FOR THE "STICKERS IN OF POLES."
Stores for the Telegraph Battalion, Kimberley Relief Column.

MATERIAL FOR THE ENGINEERS.
A Railway Siding at the De Aar Military Depot.

AN OASIS IN THE DESERT.
A Well from which Methuen's Troops Obtained Water at Enslin.

A MOST IMPORTANT JUNCTION.
The Base from which the Field Force Obtains Its Supplies.

Scenes on the Cape Town-Kimberley Railroad.

From Photos. by Our Military Correspondents.

Digitized by Google

With the Flying Column from Arundel.

ARGENTINE PONIES.
The Lines of a Cavalry Regiment.

LEAVING IN A HURRY.
A Farmer and His Daughter on the Trek.

A DUST DEVIL.
A Species of Torment to Camp Life in South Africa.

A NOVEL METHOD.
Infantry Carried in Waggons to Increase Mobility.

AN OFFICERS' MESS.
At Arundel with the 10th Hussars.

In the Central Theatre of War.

From Photos. by Our Military Correspondents.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

Buttresses of the Empire.

Photo. Copyright. Herbst.

"CORNSTALKS" FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

No finer corps has gone to the seat of war, or one more likely to be of the utmost use, than the Corps of Bushmen that Australia is sending to the front. In our illustration is shown the camp of 1,000 Bushmen located at Roderick, near Sydney, where the corps is shaking down in preparation for embarkation for the theatre of war. All the Bushmen are, it is hardly necessary to state, born riders, and as scouts their services should be invaluable.

Photo. Copyright. W. L. H. Skeen.

TEA-PLANTERS FOR THE FRONT.

The exquisite little island that nestles in the Indian Ocean at the foot of the great Indian Peninsula is doing her share like every other part of the Empire. Ceylon's Volunteer Corps comprise mounted infantry, artillery, and infantry, but it is to the former arm that the detachment she is sending to the front belongs. Our photographer has snap-shotted the detachment as it was marching to the jetty for embarkation for South Africa.

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

Commander-in-Chief: FIELD-MARSHAL LORD ROBERTS.

I.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar, under Lord Roberts.

Divisional Commanders: Lieutenant-Generals French, Methuen, Kelly-Kenny, Tucker, and Colvile.

CAVALRY (French)

Brabazon and Babington's Brigades.

6th Dragoon Guards.
2nd Dragoons.
9th Lancers.
10th Hussars.
12th Lancers.
16th Lancers.

ARTILLERY

Horse—G, P, U, Q, T, J, R Batteries.
Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th, 38th, 65th (Howitzer), 76th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th Batteries.
Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS

7th (Field) Co.
8th (Railway) Co.
11th (Field) Co.
29th (Fortress) Co.
31st (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Balloon Section.
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY

Pole-Carew's Brigade.

3rd Grenadiers.
1st Coldstreams.
2nd Coldstreams.
1st Scots Guards.

MacDonald's Brigade.

1st Argyll and Sutherland.
2nd Seaforths.
2nd Black Watch.
1st Highland L.I.

Douglas's Brigade.

1st Northumberland.
2nd Northampton.
1st N. Lancashire (half battalion in Kimberley).
2nd Yorkshire L.I.

Knox's Brigade.

2nd East Kent.
1st Oxford L.I.
1st West Riding.
2nd Gloucester.

Wavell's Brigade.

2nd North Stafford.
2nd South Wales Borderers.
1st East Lancashire.
2nd Cheshire.

Chermside's Brigade.

2nd Norfolk.
2nd Hampshire.
2nd Lincoln.
1st Scottish Borderers.

Not Brigaded.

1st Gordons.
2nd Cornwall L.I.
1st Munster Fusiliers.
2nd Shropshire L.I.
1st Suffolk.
1st Essex.
1st Yorkshire.
1st Welsh.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Queensland Mounted Infantry.
Canadian Infantry.
S. African Light Horse (part).
Roberts's Horse.
Rimington's Scouts (part).
Kitchener's Horse.
New South Wales Lancers (part).

II.—Cape Colony. Troops on Western Line of Communications.

Lieutenant-General Commanding: Sir F. W. E. F. Forestier-Walker.

ARTILLERY

Horse—A Battery.
Field—2nd, 8th, 43rd (Howitzer), 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 5th, 9th, 17th, 39th, 44th, 66th, 88th Batteries.
Garrison—5th, 10th Cos. E. Division; 2nd, 14th, 15th, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division; 2nd, 6th, 10th, 14th, 15th, 17th Cos. W. Division.

ENGINEERS

6th (Fortress) Co.
9th (Field) Co.
20th (Field) Co.
38th (Field) Co.
Section 1st Div. Telegraph Bat.
Field Park.
Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY

Militia Battalions.

6th Warwick.
4th Derbyshire.
3rd Durham L.I.
4th Royal Lancaster.
9th King's Royal Rifles.
4th Argyll and Sutherland.
3rd South Lancashire.
City Imperial Volunteers.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

New South Wales Artillery.
Duke of Edinburgh's Rifles.
Cape Town Highlanders.
W. Australian Mounted Infantry.
Tasmanian Mounted Infantry.
Cape Garrison Artillery.
Railway Pioneers.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Naauwpoort.

CAVALRY

Household Regiment.
6th Dragoons.

ARTILLERY

Horse—O Battery.
Field—4th, 20th Batteries.
Heavy—2 5-in. Howitzers

ENGINEERS

10th (Railway) Co.
26th (Field) Co.
37th (Field) Co.
42nd (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY

Clements's Brigade.

2nd Bedford.
1st Royal Irish.
2nd Wiltshire.
2nd Worcestershire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Prince Alfred's Vol. Gds. (Cape).
1st City (Grahamstown) Volntrs.
New South Wales Lancers (part).
New Zealand Mounted Infantry.
Rimington's Scouts (part).
Prince Alfred's Own Cape Artll'y.
Australian Horse (Troop).
Victoria Mounted Infantry.
S. Australian Mounted Infantry.

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY

Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS

12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY

2nd Irish Rifles.
2nd Northumberland.
1st Royal Scots.
2nd Berkshire.
1st Derbyshire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Cape Mounted Rifles.
Det. Cape Mounted Police.
Frontier Mounted Rifles.
Kaffrarian Rifles.
Brabant's Horse.

V.—Natal, beleaguered in Ladysmith under Sir G. White.

CAVALRY

Brocklehurst's Brigade.

5th Dragoon Guards.
5th Lancers.
18th Hussars.
19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 10 Battery.*

ENGINEERS

23rd (Field) Co.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY

Howard's Brigade.

2nd Gordons.
1st Manchester.
1st Gloucester.†
1st Devon.

Brigade Commander unknown.

2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
1st King's Royal Rifles.
1st Leicester.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.†

Not Brigaded.

1st Liverpool.
2nd King's Royal Rifles.
2nd Rifle Brigade.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Border Mounted Rifles.
Natal Field Artillery.
Imperial Light Horse.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Natal Mounted Police (Det.)

VI.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

CAVALRY

Dundonald's Brigade.

1st Dragoons.
13th Hussars.
14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 66th, 73rd, 78th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS

17th (Field) Co.
45th (Steam Road Transport) Co.
"A" Pontoon Troop.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY

Hildyard's Brigade.

2nd Devon.
2nd West York.
2nd West Surrey.
2nd East Surrey.

Barton's Brigade.

1st Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Scots Fusiliers.
2nd Royal Fusiliers.

Lyttelton's Brigade.

2nd Scottish Rifles.
1st Durham L.I.
3rd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Rifle Brigade.

Hart's Brigade.

1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
1st Connaught Rangers.
1st Dublin Fusiliers.
1st Border.

Coke's Brigade.

2nd Warwick.
2nd Somerset L.I.
2nd Dorsetshire.
2nd Middlesex.

Wynne's Brigade.

2nd Royal Lancaster.
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
1st South Lancashire.
1st York and Lancaster.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Natal Naval Volunteers.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Durban Light Infantry.
Bethune's Mounted Infantry.
Thorneycroft's Mntd. Infantry
Imperial Light Infantry.
Natal Mounted Police (Det.).
S. African Light Horse (part).

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY

7th Dragoon Guards.
17th Lancers.
8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Horse—M Battery.
Field—89th, 90th, 91st Batteries.

ENGINEERS

"C" Pontoon Troop.
5th (Field) Co.
47th (Fortress) Co.

INFANTRY

Campbell's Brigade.

2nd Grenadiers.
2nd Scots Guards.
2nd East Yorkshire.
2nd Leicester.

Boyes's Brigade.

2nd West Kent.
2nd Manchester.
1st South Staffordshire.
1st Worcester.

1st Sussex (from Malta).
1st Leinster (from Halifax).
1st Cameron H'gh's (from Egypt).

Militia Battalions.

3rd Royal Lancaster.
6th Lancashire Fusiliers.
3rd South Wales Borderers.
3rd East Lancashire.
4th South Staffordshire.
3rd Welsh.
5th Dublin Fusiliers.
4th Somerset L.I.
4th West Yorkshire.
3rd Yorkshire.
4th East Surrey.
6th Middlesex.
3rd Leinster.
5th Munster Fusiliers.
4th North Staffordshire.
3rd Norfolk.
4th Cheshire.
4th Bedford.
3rd West Riding.
3rd K.O. Scottish Borderers.

Australasian and Canadian Contingents.
Imperial Yeomanry.
Duke of Cambridge's Own (special corps I.Y.).
Lord Lovat's Corps of Scouts.
Lumsden's Horse (from India).

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38 (Supply), 39, 40, 41, and 42.

Naval Brigades are serving with White in Ladysmith, with Buller in Northern Natal, with Methuen at Modder River, and with the troops under General Gatacre.

The local troops in Rhodesia, under Colonel Plumer, comprise the British South African Police and the Rhodesian Regiment. In Mafeking, with Colonel Baden-Powell, are British South African Police (detachment), Diamond Fields Artillery (detachment), Cape Mounted Police (detachment), the Protectorate Regiment, and Bechuanaland Rifles. In Kimberley, under Colonel Kekewich, there are the Diamond Fields Artillery, Diamond Fields Horse, Kimberley Rifles, and Cape Mounted Police (detachment).

The following Militia Battalions are embodied for garrison duty at home and abroad to take the place of the regular battalions gone to South Africa: 3rd Royal Scots (Holywood), 3rd West Surrey (Portsmouth), 3rd East Kent (Enniskillen), 5th Northumberland (Malta), 5th Royal Fusiliers (Dover), 3rd Devon (Jersey), 3rd Suffolk (Guernsey), 3rd Royal Irish (Aldershot), 5th Lancashire Fusiliers (Chatham), 3rd Scots Fusiliers (Aldershot), 3rd Welsh Fusiliers (Plymouth), 4th Scottish Rifles (Glasgow), 3rd Inniskilling Fusiliers (Mullingar), 4th Gloucestershire (Athlone), 3rd Cornwall Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Border (Colchester), 3rd Sussex (Brighton), 3rd Dorset (Shorncliffe), 3rd Black Watch (Montrose), 3rd Oxford Light Infantry (Buttevant), 3rd Essex (Warley), 3rd North Lancashire (Malta), 3rd Northampton (Aldershot), 3rd West Kent (Malta), 4th Shropshire Light Infantry (Gravesend), 3rd Wiltshire (Fermoy), 3rd York and Lancaster (York), 3rd Highland Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Seaforths (Egypt), 3rd Gordons (Edinburgh), 3rd Camerons (Aldershot), 6th Irish Rifles (Sheffield), 4th Irish Fusiliers (Colchester), 5th Connaught Rangers (Shorncliffe), 6th Rifle Brigade (Curragh), 5th Warwick (Colchester), 5th Liverpool (Preston), 4th Lincoln (Parkhurst), 4th Suffolk (Dover), 3rd Hampshire (Aldershot), 3rd Derbyshire (Manchester), 8th King's Royal Rifles (Templemore), 4th Durham Light Infantry (Aldershot), 3rd Argyll and Sutherland (Dublin), 3rd Leicestershire (Curragh), 3rd Berkshire (Kilkenny).

* Surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

† Headquarters surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

Digitized by Google

A Reconnaissance on the Tugela.

THE DARING DEED OF KENTISH YEOMEN.

THE "E" SQUADRON, SOUTH AFRICAN LIGHT HORSE.
"Like Greyhounds in the Slips Straining upon the Start."

THE devotion and gallantry of the Kentish yeomen in South Africa should be an inspiring thought to Englishmen. A detachment of the East Kent Yeomanry left Canterbury at the end of October, and, joining the South African Light Horse, have since been well occupied on the Tugela.

It was desired, on January 19, to ascertain if Robinson's Drift was fordable and if the Boers were in strength there, and two squadrons of the South African Light Horse were despatched for the purpose. An advance was to be made down a long bare slope (2,000-yds.) to the river, completely commanded by the enemy's trenches. Corporal Harry Clarke and Sergeant-Major Mudford dashed forward, followed by Lance-Corporal Tice and Trooper Sole, all of the East Kent. At 200-yds. the enemy opened fire, but the yeomen reached the river, and Clarke, getting through the wire entanglements, found the ford impassable. Then a more deadly cross-fire was opened on the men near the stream, and they took shelter behind a few ragged bushes, 100-yds. from the trenches, where for three hours they fired whenever they caught sight of an enemy. Clarke drove off the Boers' heliograph, and gallant Mudford—whose portrait is on the extreme right of our larger picture—walked from point to point and encouraged the men.

Then came the order to retire. Clarke, Tice (minus reins and stirrups), and Sole got away first, marvellously without a scratch, though one of them had his rifle shot from his hand, and another his hat shot off his head. Mudford remained behind trying to get together other men who could not hear his call. At the top of the slope they watched his coming under a terrific fire, expecting every moment to see him fall. "He'll be killed!" cried the general. "Not he, sir," answered Clarke; "they can't hit the East Kent." At last the gallant Mudford reached the crest unscathed, though Captain De Rougemont and six good men of the South African Light Horse had fallen by the stream.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

OFFICERS AND SERGEANTS OF THE "A" SQUADRON, SOUTH AFRICAN LIGHT HORSE.
With Some "Good Yeomen whose Limbs were Made in England."

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

THE result of Lord Roberts's masterful combinations has been to completely encompass the devoted forces of General Cronje at Koodoosrand Drift, on the Modder, where, as these pages go to press, they are making a desperate defence in a perfect inferno of shot and shell, with apparently no hope of escape, unless other Boer forces are able to come up in far greater force than now seems possible.

Full details of the later operations are wanting as we write, but it is possible to give with accuracy a general account of the events. No one can withhold great admiration from the masterful skill with which General Cronje extricated his forces from his untenable position at Magersfontein, or from the sturdy endurance with which his troops, fighting a heavy rear-guard action, succeeded in reaching the position at Koodoosrand Drift, about thirty-five miles to the eastward. It appears that the Boer general evacuated Magersfontein and Spytfontein at midnight on February 15, and made a forced march, with his heavy guns and long train, by way of Scholtz Nek to Drieput. General French had hurried forward to the relief of Kimberley, and Cronje's line of retreat was across General Kelly-Kenny's front, already established at Klip Drift on the Modder. Early on the morning of the 16th the fugitive Boers were seen from Klip Drift kopje trekking eastward at a distance of 5,000-yds., and they gained the shelter of the Drieput kopjes under a long-range fire, harassed by our mounted infantry. Several battalions and batteries then crossed the river, and the rear guard was attacked near Drieput, and a portion of the convoy captured. Meanwhile the main body of the enemy was rapidly marching forward to Klipkraal Drift, and our troops recrossed to the south to endeavour to head them off, the Sixth Division, followed by the Highland Brigade, which made a forced march from the Modder River Camp, going in hot pursuit. Cronje succeeded in crossing to the south side at night, and pushed forward without pausing towards Koodoosrand Drift. Kelly-Kenny continued the pursuit on the 17th and greatly harassed the fugitives' rear, and an attack was developed upon the main body on the 18th. The enemy's laager was on the north bank near the drift, and there were strong entrenchments in the bed of the river.

The Boers fought most desperately throughout the day, and the action was of a dogged and sanguinary character. Our purpose was to hem them in completely, and in accomplishing this our lines were much exposed on both banks of the river. The Highland Brigade, though spent by long marching, fought grandly, and the conduct of the whole army was excellent, while the cavalry, under General French, were hastening up from Kimberley and scouring the country to the north. The 81st Field Battery seems at one time to have been in a position of some difficulty, for it was subjected to a heavy fire, with one of its waggons damaged and four of its horses wounded, but it was extricated through the good qualities of the Gordons, who formed an escort. The Highlanders lost heavily, and General MacDonald was wounded in the foot. Lord Kitchener was present. During the day our men suffered very much from thirst, but were relieved by a thunder-storm which broke over the battle-field in the afternoon. The Boers had left behind them about 50,000-lb. of ammunition at Magersfontein and a vast quantity of stores had been captured, while their draught oxen were wandering about the veldt; but, though they were reported to be short of food, they were in a position in which they had plenty of water. On both sides the men were thoroughly tired out, and at nightfall silence descended upon the camps, while the bearer parties were collecting the dead and wounded.

Tired as the Boers were after their exertions, they spent part of the night in further entrenching themselves. Their position was completely invested when the fighting began afresh on the 19th. The firing was very heavy, but the casualties on our side were nothing like so great as those of the previous day. The mobility of Cronje had now completely vanished, and he had been utterly unable to attempt any further movement. His losses were fearful, and at noon he asked for twenty-four hours' armistice in order to bury the dead, and no doubt to gain time. With this request Lord Kitchener refused to comply, and Cronje then sent a message that if we were so inhuman as to refuse to grant the armistice he had no course but to surrender. Lord Kitchener thereupon proceeded to the Boer laager to arrange terms, but was met by the announcement that the whole thing was a mistake, and that resistance to the death had been decided upon. Lord Kitchener therefore returned, and a general bombardment began. A terribly destructive fire was opened against the actual front of the Boer laager by the 18th, 62nd, and 75th field batteries and the 65th howitzer, the latter using lyddite. The Boers sought shelter by the river, but the howitzers searched their position thoroughly, and it was noticed that the terrible green fumes of the explosive were rising from their trenches, and at night deserters came out to us terribly shattered by their experience, and glad to escape.

On Tuesday, the 20th, Lord Roberts made a careful reconnaissance in force of the enemy's position, and found that he could not assault it without very heavy loss. He therefore determined to continue the bombardment. As an old Artillery officer, his knowledge of the effect of concentrated fire no doubt justified him in the course he adopted, and by this time the cavalry were well ahead, while it was impossible for large Boer reinforcements to come up for some time. Every opportunity had been given to the Boers to surrender, and an attempt was now to be made to crush their resistance once for all. It is probable that no military force has ever been subjected to such a terrible shelling as that which ensued. Lord Roberts placed in position on the south bank of the Modder, at a range of 2,000-yds., the three field batteries already named, with two Naval 12-pounders, these enfilading the whole of the river bed, while on the north bank were the 65th (howitzer), 76th, 81st, and 82nd field batteries, with three Naval 4·7-in. guns. The fire of about fifty guns was concentrated upon a space about one mile square, and lyddite shells and shrapnel searched every part of the position. But the Boers held out with desperate courage in this hell of fire, and must have lost terribly. At night the firing ceased, and not a light was to be seen in the enemy's camp nor a single cry heard.

On the 21st and succeeding days the bombardment continued intermittently, and the case of the Boers seemed absolutely hopeless, but they were still holding out in a desperate situation, and in a place commanded on all sides, on February 24. Among the captives who have fallen into our hands are some who report that they have been withdrawn from Ladysmith; but it was impossible for the Boers to bring up any large reinforcements for many days, and meanwhile General French was dealing successfully with the scattered parties which attempted to reach Cronje's laager. Fresh arrivals from Natal were beaten off on February 23, with many killed and wounded and the loss of nearly 100 prisoners.

The operations of Sir Redvers Buller had been timed to coincide with the aggressive movement on the western side. His purpose was intimated by his seizure of Hussar Hill on February 14. The Boers were in possession of two hills, Monte Cristo on the north and Cingolo on the south, forming the key to the more important height of Hlangwane, which had threatened any direct advance on Colenso. On the 15th their trenches were shelled, and on the 16th—the day upon which Cronje's rear guard was attacked at Drieput—the advance was continued, General Lyttelton working his way along the fringe of the Boer position, and an outlying spur of Cingolo being seized. On the 17th that hill was captured, and on the next day, by a most brilliant converging movement, the Boers were completely routed from Monte Cristo. They were out-manœuvred, and some prisoners fell into our hands. Hlangwane had now become untenable, and it was captured by the Fusilier Brigade (General Barton) on the 19th. This commanding position wrenched from them, there was no course for the Boers but to evacuate Colenso and the south bank of the Tugela, and Sir Charles Warren, with Thorneycroft's Horse, forced the passage with little opposition on February 21, thus bringing to a close a most successful week's fighting, and capturing with little loss a position of great strength, which had resisted all our efforts on December 15. Since that time the advance has been slowly pushed forward in a country of extraordinary difficulties, stubbornly held, though there can be no doubt that from the other side of Ladysmith large numbers of Boers are trekking into the Free State.

The triumphant relief of Kimberley, where Lord Methuen is now in military occupation, has had a splendid moral effect in South Africa, and the relief of Mafeking must soon follow, though Colonel Plumer has been unable to progress southward beyond Crocodile Pools, near which place he had some loss on February 12.

The greatest satisfaction is felt at the success of the brilliant movement of General Brabant, whereby the enemy was utterly discomfited and driven with loss out of Dordrecht, which has thus been recovered to the loyalists; and it is hoped that Lord Roberts's proclamation of immunity to those who lay down their arms will have a good effect. General Brabant has since made a further advance.

Since the retirement of General Clements to Arundel, the Boers have shown an aggressive spirit, and at one time the communications with Naauwpoort were threatened; but it would appear that the operations in the Free State have since made necessary the withdrawal of a large force from Cape Colony, and the situation there must now rapidly change.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Lafayette.
MAJOR-GEN. E. R. P. WOODGATE, C.B., C.M.G.,
Recently in Command of the 10th Brigade.

THE brave officer who was seriously wounded during the defence of Spion Kop, which he seized on the night of January 23, had had a difficult task to perform during those unfortunate operations. When he fell wounded, being then in command of the summit, the officer who succeeded him decided to abandon the position, and the retirement to the Tugela began. Colonel Woodgate, who has the local rank of major-general, is an old King's Own-officer. He served with the regiment in the Abyssinian Campaign, and was present in the engagement at Arogee and at the capture of Magdala. He served throughout the Ashanti War, 1873, and took part in the action at Essaman, in the repulse of the Ashanti Army at Abrakrampa, and in other fighting up to the battle of Amoaful. In the Zulu War of 1879 he was staff officer of the Flying Column and was mentioned in despatches, and received a brevet majority for his services up to the battle of Ulundi. In 1897 he went on special service to Sierra Leone to take command of troops there, the tribes being in a state of rebellion. General Woodgate, who held this appointment up to 1899, has long and varied service, which well entitles him to the command of a brigade in South Africa.

WHEN the war broke out, Colonel Allen, who graduated from the Staff College in 1882, was A.A.G. at Army Headquarters, and was at once appointed in the same capacity to Gatacre's 3rd Division. On that disastrous day at Stormberg, personal valour was in evidence everywhere throughout the field, but in no individuals was it more pronounced than in the persons of the General and his A.A.G. As a correspondent writes: "Wherever the men were most hotly pressed, there were they to be found encouraging them by word and deed." Allen's only previous war service was in South Africa, for he was D.A.A. and Q.M.G. to Warren's Bechuanaland Expedition in 1884-85, and for his services earned mention in despatches and his brevet as lieutenant-colonel. His regimental service was passed in the East Yorkshire Regiment.

Photo. Broughton.
COLONEL R. E. ALLEN,
Gatacre's Right-hand Man.

WITH the appointment of Yule to command the brigade left vacant by the lamented death of Penn-Symons, the command of the 1st Devons devolved on Major C. W. Park, then second in command, and it was he who commanded the grand old West Country corps, whose motto is "Semper Fidelis," at the battle of Elandslaagte, and led it in the splendid charge it made when repulsing the Boer attack on Ladysmith on January 6. Park has seen all his service with the Devons, for he joined the corps as a youngster of nineteen fresh from Haileybury, in 1875, and was adjutant of his battalion for seven years, 1879 to 1886. He was promoted captain in 1883, major nine years later, and succeeded to the command last November. His previous war service has been on the North-West Frontier of India, for he served in the Afghan War of 1878-80. He has seen considerable staff service in India, for he was D.A.A.G., and afterwards A.A.G., in Burma and Madras.

Photo. Wright.
LIEUT.-COLONEL C. W. PARK,
Who Commands the Devons in Ladysmith.

OUR two remaining portraits on this page are of officers belonging to the corps of mounted Volunteers that India has sent to the front and which will go down to history as Lumsden's Horse. Our centre portrait is that of Colonel E. C. Showers, who has vacated the appointment of commandant of the Surma Valley Light Horse, a corps consisting mainly of Assam tea planters, which he has held since 1896. The motto of the corps is "Non sibi, sed patriæ," and Colonel Showers and the men he takes with him to Lumsden's Horse are in truth living up to their regimental motto.

Photo. Bourne & Shepherd.
COLONEL E. C. SHOWERS,
Second in Command of Lumsden's Horse.

The second of our portraits is that of Captain Neville Cracroft Taylor, who has been specially detailed by the Government of India for duty with the corps, presumably as adjutant. Captain Taylor joined the Indian Staff Corps from the West Yorkshire Regiment in 1886, and has since that date served with that fine cavalry regiment the 14th Bengal Lancers, of which he is now squadron officer. This is the regiment which originally earned its reputation as Murray's Jat Horse. Captain Taylor in this campaign will be seeing war service for the first time.

NOTHING has been more clearly demonstrated by the present operations than that, in any warfare such as we are now carrying on, powerful telescopes are not only useful, but absolutely necessary. It was not long before the deficiency in the supply to the troops in the field became apparent to those in command, and on their requisition the Government at home speedily procured and sent out a supply. As this class of instruments takes in the ordinary way a considerable time to manufacture, the demand had to be met by the stock that manufacturers had in hand.

Our photograph reproduces a number that were supplied to the Government by Mr. Steward, the well-known official optician to the National Rifle Association. And it is somewhat unique, for it is not often, outside of an optician's

Photo. Bourne & Shepherd.
CAPT. NEVILLE CRACROFT TAYLOR,
14th Bengal Lancers.

Digitized by Google

window, that one sees grouped together so large a number of powerful glasses.

The value these telescopes will be to the troops at the front is shown by the fact that they magnify from 50 to 90 diameters, and the majority of them have object glasses of 2½-in. to 3¼-in., thus ensuring a good field of view and clearness. The lot here shown are one of three consignments that Mr. Steward has sent out to South Africa, and were despatched to Woolwich within four days of the order being received, though special adaptations had to be made. Mr. Steward has also supplied a large number of binoculars for field service, notably to the Yeomanry.

Photo. Copyright. TELESCOPES FOR OUR SOLDIERS. "Navy & Army."
To Supply a Pressing Need in South Africa.

THE staff and cadets of the "Britannia" will much regret the departure of Captain the Hon. Assheton G. Curzon-Howe, C.B., C.M.G., A.D.C., whose tenure of command of the training-ship for Naval cadets now expires.

Captain Curzon-Howe has filled the post with unexampled success, and that too at a time when the system in the training-ship was passing through important changes.

Our illustration shows Captain Curzon-Howe in the centre of a group which comprises the officers of the "Britannia" and her tender the "Racer," together with those Naval instructors who are borne on her books for service with the Naval cadets.

Cap. Curzon Howe comes of Naval stock on both sides, for his father, the first Earl Howe, was a grandson of the great victor of the First of June, and his mother was a daughter of the late Admiral Sir Richard Gore, K.C.B. Captain Howe is the youngest half-brother of the present Earl Howe, and is not yet fifty years of age. He served in the Naval Brigade landed under the command of Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir E. R. Fremantle for the punitive expedition against the Sultan of Vitu in East Africa, and by his prompt action in landing seamen at Bluefields, Nicaragua, in 1894, probably prevented an outbreak of civil war.

Photo. Copyright. W. M. Crockett.
CAPTAIN CURZON-HOWE AND HIS OFFICERS—THE STAFF OF THE CADET SHIP "BRITANNIA."

Digitized by Google

The T.-B. D. "Virago" At Esquimalt.

Photos. Copyright

IN DRY DOCK
The Upper Deck.

HER GUARDIANS.
The Officer of the Watch and the Man at the Wheel.

THE POST OF COMMAND.
Her Officers on the Bridge.

SEEN FROM BELOW.
The Stern and Propeller

"Navy & Army."

THE "Virago" is one of those torpedo-boat destroyers now kept permanently stationed abroad, the station in her particular case being the Pacific. She is one of the fastest destroyers we possess, having compassed on her trials the high mean of 30·3 knots, a performance that Laird Brothers, her builders, may be proud of.

The destroyer is one of the largest of her type, displacing 360 tons, and having a length of 210-ft. Her armament comprises one 12-pounder and five 6-pounder quick-firers, and she has also two single training tubes for the discharge of 18-in. Whitehead torpedoes. She was commanded at the time our picture was taken by Lieutenant O. V. de Satgé.

Digitized by Google

The 6th Lancashire Fusiliers.

LIEUT.-COLONEL W. J. BOSWORTH,
Late Second in Command.

LIEUT.-COLONEL F. C. ROMER,
Commandant of the 6th Lancashire Fusiliers.

CAPTAIN A. F. OWEN-LEWIS.
Lieutenant, Yorkshire Regiment, and Adjutant.

LANCASHIRE has always been a great recruiting centre for the British Army, and its Militia battalions have always been amongst the strongest in the country. This is evident from the fact that when the territorial organisation was created in 1881 the old 20th East Devon was made the Lancashire Fusiliers, as Devonshire could not recruit for more than the two battalions of the Devonshire Regiment. The other day it was one of the three regiments selected to be increased from two to four line battalions. When territorially organised the 7th Royal Lancashire Militia was so strong that it furnished two Militia battalions, now the 5th and 6th, to the regiment. One Lancashire Militia battalion, the 4th King's Own (Royal Lancaster) is in South Africa, and the fine corps here illustrated is on its way to reinforce the army fighting there. Colonel F. C. Romer, who commands the battalion, has qualified in every subject in which a Militia officer can pass, and is one of the keenest and most enthusiastic officers in the auxiliary forces. Major Bosworth was until recently second in command, but has just been promoted to command one of the Militia battalions of the Manchester Regiment, though he would probably have much preferred going on service with his own battalion. Many of our officers have received much of their training at Colonel Bosworth's hands, for he is the head of the large Army tutorial establishment at Roehampton. Captain A. F. Owen-Lewis, who is the adjutant, is one of the senior lieutenants of the Yorkshire Regiment, though of course he holds the temporary rank of captain while acting as adjutant of the battalion. At the last annual training this battalion held an almost unique record amongst the Militia of the country, in that it possessed its full complement of officers. We wish the battalion the best of good luck on its active service.

MUSIC ON THE MARCH.
The Band of the 6th Lancashire Fusiliers.

Photos. Copyright. COLONEL ROMER AND OFFICERS. Navy & Army."
6th Lancashire Fusiliers.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

VOL. IX.—No. 162.] SATURDAY, MARCH 10th, 1900.

HOW OUR TARS RECEIVED THE GOOD NEWS.

When the good news of General French's success reached Cape Town there was unbounded enthusiasm amongst all classes, and on board the ships the Bluejackets were loud in their expressions of delight. A new bond has been formed between the two Services, for the sailor and soldier are fighting side by side in South Africa, and at Kimberley the relief was effected by a commander who began his career in the Navy. Greater, therefore, was the pleasure of the gallant tars, who have so many comrades at the front.

Copyright 1900. Stereophoto. by Underwood & Underwood.

Digitized by Google

THE motto of that very smart corps which, raised in 1759 as the 15th Light Dragoons, or Elliott's Light Horse, is now the 15th (King's) Hussars, has always been "Merebimur," i.e., "We will merit our rewards." And no man in the corps has lived more up to the regimental tradition than its present colonel, James Redmond Patrick Gordon, whose twenty-one years' connection with the regiment has now been temporarily severed; for one of the cavalry regiments of the 4th Brigade now on its way to South Africa, the 17th Lancers, has been temporarily deprived of its commander, Colonel Fortescue, through ill-health, and to take his place Colonel Gordon has been sent from Meerut, where the 15th Hussars are now stationed, to the Cape. Colonel Gordon, though one of the youngest commanding officers in the Service, for he is only just past thirty-nine years of age, has seen much and varied service since as a youngster of eighteen he joined the King's Hussars as a second lieutenant in January, 1879. Before he had gained his lieutenancy, just two years later, he had served with the Southern Field Force in Afghanistan, earning the medal for that campaign. The 15th saw but little fighting, but it had a very trying time. The writer remembers seeing some ten men take nout of the troop train dead from heat apoplexy after a night journey between Lahore and Mooltan. Gordon was made adjutant of his regiment immediately upon becoming lieutenant in 1881, and in that capacity served in the last Boer War, and only vacated that appointment to go through the Bechuanaland Expedition of 1884-85 as adjutant of the 1st Mounted Rifles. In 1887 he served in Burma, earning the medal and clasp, and in 1888 was promoted captain. Since then he has seen much staff service. From 1889 to 1891 he was adjutant of Yeomanry Cavalry. In 1892 he served in the Lagos Expedition against the Jebus, earning, besides the medal and clasp, mention in despatches. From 1892 to 1896 he was on special recruiting duty, varied by taking part in the Ashanti Expedition of 1895-96, when he again earned honourable mention. He was appointed to the command of his regiment in June, 1897. With so experienced and smart a cavalry officer as Colonel Gordon in charge, the "Death or Glory Boys" should add increased lustre to an already very brilliant reputation.

Photo. Wyrall.
LIEUT.-COLONEL J. R. P. GORDON,
Who Captured Rondeval Drift on the Modder on February 13.

IT would be no exaggeration to say that no small part of the success of our troops in the campaign in South Africa is due to the indefatigable exertions of the four officers whose portraits are given in the two pictures at the foot of this page, for on their shoulders has devolved the duty of seeing to the embarkation of the vast bulk of the some two hundred thousand men, and the enormous quantity of animals, stores, supplies, ammunition, etc., that have been despatched from the United Kingdom to South Africa. To exactly allot the proportion that has left the two great Southern ports would be at present a matter of difficulty, but

Photo. Copyright. Russell & Sons.
TRANSPORT OFFICERS AT SOUTHAMPTON.
Captain W. G. White, R.N., and Lieutenant Colonel J. Stacpole.

Photo. Copyright. "Navy & Army."
TRANSPORT OFFICERS AT TILBURY.
Captain C. H. Coke, R.N., and Lieutenant-Colonel G. J. Parkyn.

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. SIR EDWARD CHICHESTER, BART., R.N., C.M.G., A.D.C. Fyne.
Hard at Work in His Office.

we shall probably be doing Southampton and Tilbury some injustice if we take it that of all the men, animals, and material sent from this country for the theatre of war, not less than fifty per cent. have gone from Southampton and twenty-five per cent. from Tilbury. For many long weary months have the officers here shown been engaged on their arduous duties, which not only involve heavy responsibility and considerable mental strain, but also entail such continuously long hours of work without rest as to cause very considerable physical fatigue. And yet the work has been done by these officers from the start to the present without a single hitch the blame for which could be laid on their shoulders. When the honours for the war come to be distributed, by no means the least worthily earned will be those gained by the officers of the transport service. Roughly speaking, the duties of the Services may be said to be divided between the shore and the ship, the Military officer being responsible for the troops until inboard, while the Naval officer takes charge after the Military officer's duties are done, and sees that all is properly stowed on board and that no undue delay occurs in leaving harbour. The final inspection is made by both staffs, together with a medical officer, the officer in command of the troops on board, and a veterinary officer if horses or mules are carried. While this inspection is made the men fall in at their respective messes, and remain seated at the mess tables until the inspection is completed. An immense mass of returns and reports has to be made out, both for the War Office and the Admiralty, and the mere clerical labour entailed on the transport officers is no sinecure. The name of Colonel Stacpole, who is D.A.A.G. for embarkation duties at Southampton, has become a household word in Service circles. He has worthily attained the position he has gained, for he earned his promotion to a sub-lieutenancy in what is now the 1st Battalion of the Gordon Highlanders, after a service of eight years in the ranks. Two years later he was transferred to the Leicestershire Regiment, in which he was promoted captain. In the Soudan Campaign of 1885 he served as commissariat and transport officer, earning the medal and star. He was promoted to a majority in the Royal Welsh Fusiliers in 1891, and has since 1895 been D.A.A.G. in the Southern District. His Naval colleague, Captain Graham White, has also seen service in Egypt and the Soudan, for he was first lieutenant of the "Bittern" at the bombardment of Alexandria, and in the Red Sea and at Suakin during the campaign of 1885. He has also carried out important diplomatic duties, for he was British delegate to the International Commission in Turkey in 1884. Captain White is also a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. Carrying out at Tilbury similar duties to the above are Lieutenant-Colonel Parkyn and Captain Coke, R.N. Colonel Parkyn is a retired officer of the Army Service Corps, which department of the Army he joined from the 18th Hussars, and his experience as a cavalryman must be of special service to him, for a very large proportion of the cavalry embarkations have taken place from Tilbury. He also served in the Soudan Campaign of 1885. His Naval colleague, Captain Coke, is a very young captain, as he was only promoted to that rank some twelve months ago. He served in the Ashanti Campaign of 1873 as a midshipman of the "Druid," and had the bad luck to be wounded, not by the enemy, but by the accidental discharge of a revolver. He has also had his share of good luck, for he was promoted to his lieutenancy from the Royal Yacht. Doing equally good service as the above are those officers engaged in superintending the disembarkations in South Africa, and senior of whom is the officer whose portrait at the head of this page shows him hard at work in his office.

THE Chichesters, or Cirencesters as they were formerly named, have been eminent in Devonshire since the early days of our national history, and the present Baronet lives up to the records of his ancient house. On his shoulders have now fallen these onerous duties as Principal Transport Officer in Natal and senior of all the Naval officers employed on transport duty in South Africa. His services as captain of the 'Immortalight,' as Jack calls her, at Manila, during the attack on it by the American fleet under Admiral Dewey, are still fresh in memory. He well earned the C.M.G. he thereby gained, and perhaps the quaintest, but

Photo. Copyright WOUNDED MARINES AT HASLAR. Addis.
These are the Men Presented to the Queen.

Digitized by Google

Photos. Copyright. MERELY AN INCIDENT.
Vaulting Ambition O'erleaping Itself.

VERY NEARLY OFF. Voyle.
A Candidate for the Imperial Yeomanry.

none the less most genuine, tribute paid to the tact and discretion he showed in what was a very delicate position, is to be found in the fact that Dewey named the lion presented to him "Chichester," after him whom he described as one of the finest men he ever knew. Curiously enough Chichester is now doing very much the same work, but on a much larger scale, as he was doing twenty-eight years back as a lieutenant, for he was Naval Transport Officer in Natal throughout the Transvaal War of 1881, and until the withdrawal of the troops. Sir Edward is a young officer for his rank, for he is but a few months over fifty, and pretty near the top of the list of captains, a rank he has held since 1889.

A VERY interesting group is that here shown of wounded heroes from the Graspan fight, where the Naval Brigade so distinguished itself. All except the poor fellow in bed were presented to Her Majesty when she crossed the Solent the other day on her journey from Osborne to Windsor. The four men were under the command of Lieutenant W. Jones, R.M.L.I., who himself received a bullet in the thigh, in spite of which he earned well-merited mention in despatches by leading his men to the top of the kopje. and only had his wound dressed at the close of the action, The first on the left is Gunner Kelleher, R.M.A., wounded in the right hand, fingers amputated. Next to him is Private Davis, R.M.L.I., whose left leg has been rendered useless, and the right partially so, by two bullet wounds. Sergeant Gasson, R.M.A., seen in bed, has still a bullet lodged in his knee. Next to him is seated Rooke, R.M.L.I., the membrane of whose right ear was ruptured by the discharge of a 4·7-in. gun. The one standing behind Rooke is Peacock, of the same corps, shot by a Mauser bullet in the left arm.

Copyright 1900. Stereophoto. by Underwood & Underwood.
MILITARY ATTACHES AT THE FRONT.
Major Gentilini, Italy. Captain Luttwitz, Germany. Captain A. d'Amade, France. Colonel Stakevitch, Russia. Colonel Slocum, United States. Colonel Trimmel, Austria.

THE group of military attachés shown in the centre, representing the six great Powers, are now with Lord Roberts. They have been spectators of the marvellous flank movement by which Kimberley was relieved, and the invasion of the Orange Free State commenced.

APART from the physical standard which they have to reach, recruits for the Imperial Yeomanry have to pass a test both in shooting and riding. Two illustrations of candidates for the Pembrokeshire Yeomanry Cavalry undergoing the latter are on this page.

WHILST some of their brethren were having a fine time in Ladysmith, on the Tugela, and at the Modder River, the crew of the "Iphigenia" were keeping their Christmas on the China station in the good old-fashioned Naval way. Amongst other diversions a little historical drama was enacted, in one scene of which a distinguished prisoner was conveyed to St. Helena.

Photos. Copyright.
"WITH PIPE AND BIBLE AND A' AND A'."
Kruger as a Passenger for St. Helena.

"Navy & Army."
BRINGING HOME THE CHRISTMAS HOLLY.
A Novel Occupation for a Torpedo-boat.

Digitized by Google

WE have all heard of the safety valve and of the folly of sitting thereon. It is generally understood that this is a metaphor intended to convey to the minds of all the unwisdom of preventing men from having a good grumble. There is much sense in this doctrine, and therefore the discussion which took place in Committee on the Navy Estimates, on Thursday of last week, may pass, seeing that it was meant to air the complaints of the Marines. Nothing is easier to understand than the reluctance with which Mr. Goschen got up to speak on the subject. A head of a great State Department is in a difficult position when he rises to speak about the alleged grievances of any part of the men under his authority. Nothing being perfect in this world, except the confidence which reformers have in their own infallibility, it is always possible to quote cases of more or less hardship. If they are allowed to be well founded, the reformer at once cries out "You see I was right. Let us make a clean sweep and begin again." But this is only an instance of the old truth that "hard cases make bad law." To remedy an evil, it is proposed to abolish a great deal of good. If, on the other hand, the Minister, in order to avoid encouraging the notion that a great work of destruction is desirable, then he is held to be an unjust man, and arouses a good deal of natural bitterness. It requires fine steering to avoid both these risks, and so we can realise Mr. Goschen's unwillingness to speak in the discussion started by Sir John Colomb with considerable vehemence, and continued with even more by Mr. Arnold-Forster.

* * * *

The First Lord took what is by far the best course to follow in all cases of difficulty. He faced the trouble boldly, and went to the root of the matter. He said with perfect truth that we are asked to "revolutionise the whole system in order to find a few more commands for a certain number of Marine officers"; and that is the plain fact at the back of the proposal that the Admiralty should take over the coaling stations, or Mr. Arnold-Forster's wild suggestion that the Marines should be transferred to the War Office. It is not denied by anybody that the Marine officers have a fair ground for complaint. The Marine may be soldier and sailor both, but his misfortune is that he cannot become a general because he is not under the War Office, and he cannot become an admiral because he is not a sailor-man. In his own corps his ambition is limited by three divisional commands, the Walmer Depôt, and one Admiralty post. Yet he is a very highly-trained man, and he makes his corps a model of discipline. Not very unnaturally he thinks he deserves better things, and so do most of us, and so does Mr. Goschen. But the question is how are they to be given, and ought we, in the hope of attaining to them, to "revolutionise the whole system"?

* * * *

This same system began in the reign of King Charles II., which was, on the whole, the most important formative period in the history of the Navy. It was followed, in a more or less slovenly way, till the present regiment of Marines was founded at the beginning of the Seven Years' War. It was the system of assigning a certain number of soldiers for the service of the Fleet. By a natural process, though not till after many hesitations, half measures, and confusions, it had, by the time the existing regiment was founded, been decided that the business-like course was to put it wholly under the Admiralty. The Duke of Cumberland, the "butcher" Duke, of whom there is not much good to be said, had the credit of having recommended this most successful measure some years before it was finally adopted. Nearly—very nearly—a century and a-half have passed since then. During that long period the British Navy has maintained a better level of efficiency and has gained more uniform success than any other fighting body in the world. It has, in short, stood the test of practice, and has proved in a score of wars, and in every sea, that it is as tough as it is elastic. And yet there are those who will propose—not calmly, but hysterically—to take it all to pieces. And why? Because individuals suffer from disabilities which can be removed by far smaller measures, or which, if they cannot be removed, are yet not of such magnitude that a great certain evil should be incurred to remove them.

* * * *

When one comes to look into the facts as alleged by the advocates of revolutionary change, one is astounded at their general insignificance. Sir John Colomb argued that it was wrong to land so many men from the ships at the Cape, and that Bluejackets ought not to be employed on shore at all. Now the general doctrine that ships' crews are for the sea is a perfectly sound one. Most surely we ought not to make an abuse of Naval brigades. But neither ought we to make a law of the Medes and the Persians, "which altereth not," that they are never to be employed. Mr. Goschen stated the theory, which is free from "the falsehood of extremes," excellently well. He said: "As to the argument that the ships were rendered not efficient to go to sea, there was no probability of their being required to do so." He agreed that the hon. and gallant member's—viz., Sir J. Colomb's—doctrine was good doctrine, but it was not applicable in the present case. He would frankly admit that if there was a war elsewhere, if there were hostile cruisers about, and a chance of the ships being required to act, then strong as the desire of the officers and Bluejackets might be to assist the troops on shore, he should put a restraining hand upon that desire, because the ships would be the proper place for them. He had before this boldly replied, in answer to Sir John Colomb's criticism that to keep vessels about the Cape with part of their crews on shore was "localising the Fleet," that the Admiralty would certainly localise the Fleet "if necessary." The orthodoxy of the measure depends on the necessity, and it will hardly be maintained that none had arisen for reinforcing the troops in South Africa. It will hardly be maintained that it is the duty of the Royal Navy to look on while a part of the Empire is invaded by land, simply because its proper business is on the sea.

* * * *

Sir John Colomb's contention that the forces lent by the Navy to the Army ought to consist entirely of Marines is not supported by experience. And, be it observed, we must go by experience in deciding whether this or the other measure is correct in all work. There are people, our neighbours the French, and to some extent the Germans, among them, who have a way of thinking out fine coherent-looking theories beforehand, and then endeavouring to make the facts square to their own imagination. The practice has not answered so beautifully that we need wish to adopt it. Our own method has answered most admirably. In regard to the formation of Naval brigades, it has always been to form them partly of sailors. The examples are innumerable, and might be quoted almost ad infinitum from the famous Cromwellian expedition to the West Indies in 1655 down to to-day. It is idle to say that men trained to fight on shore are fitter than those trained to fight on sea, when we have such copious evidence that the latter are perfectly capable.

* * * *

Of course here, as in all kinds of work, it is necessary to "mix with your brains," as the painter said when he was asked how he mixed his colours. It is most foolish to send Naval brigades on shore when the enemy's fleet is at sea and may turn up at any moment. If the Comte de Grasse, for example, had landed a great part of his crews to help Washington and Lafayette at the siege of Yorktown, he would have made a gross mistake. But if Admiral Cornish had refused to land men and guns to assist Colonel Draper at Manila he would have failed in his duty. No doubt, also, when Naval brigades are landed they ought not to be formed of one element of our crews to the prejudice of another, and one body of officers ought not to monopolise commands and chances of distinction. When any of these mistakes are made they ought to be corrected; but the correction can be managed without revolutionising the whole system, and those who cry for such a destructive course when they are provoked by small evils are only inflicting injury on their own cause.

DAVID HANNAY

Digitized by Google

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.
A PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WORLD'S NEWS.
OFFICES:- 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, LONDON, W.C.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

MARCH 11, 1762.—"Blonde," 32, took the French "Bonton," 20, privateer, off Lisbon. 1810.—"Echo," 16, in the Channel captured "Capricieuse," 16, privateer. 1812.—"Phipps," 14, off Calais, captured "Cerf," 16, privateer.

March 12, 1841.—Capture of Macao Fort by the boats of the "Madagascar," 44, and "Modeste," 14. 1855.—Admiral Dundas appointed to command the Baltic Fleet. 1715.—Captain Sir William Jumper died.

March 13, 1669.—Samuel Pepys made a post captain. 1761.—"Vengeance," 26, captured "Entreprenante," 26. 1780.—"Alexander," 74, and "Courageux," 74, captured "Monsieur," 40, off Scilly. 1795.—"Lively," 32, captured "Tourterelle," 28, off Ushant. 1801.—Landing of Sir Ralph Abercromby's army in Aboukir Bay. 1806.—Sir J. B. Warren's squadron captured "Marengo," 80, and "Belle Poule," 40. 1811.—Hoste's victory off Lissa.

March 14, 1757.—Admiral Byng shot. 1779.—"Rattlesnake," 10, captured "Frelon," 12, having beaten off a consort of the French vessel. 1795.—Hotham's action off Genoa.

March 15, 1762.—"Fowey," 24, captured the Spanish "Ventura," 26. 1823.—Earl St. Vincent died. 1839.—Vice-Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge born. 1889.—The "Speedwell" launched.

March 16, 1782.—"Success," 32, and "Vernon," 22 (storeship), captured the Spanish "Sta. Catarina," 34, off Gibraltar. 1801.—Loss of the "Invincible," 74. 1807.—Death of Admiral Sir Hyde Parker. 1837.—Marines engaged at the action of Hernani, in the Carlist War.

March 17, 1794.—Cutting out of the "Bien Venue" (renamed "Undaunted," by Lieutenant R. Bowen, at Martinique. 1800.—"Queen Charlotte," 110, took fire and blew up off Leghorn. 1804.—French privateer "Renommée," 12, destroyed by "Penguin," 16. 1889.—Rear-Admiral Kane saved the "Calliope." 1893.—The "Astræa" launched.

March 18, 1757.—The "Greenwich," 50, taken by five French sail of the line in the West Indies. 1796.—"Diamond," 38, and "Liberty," 14, attacked the port of Herqui, on the Brittany coast, and destroyed "Etourdie," corvette, 16.

MARCH 11, 1811.—Skirmish at Pombal (Peninsula). An attempt to cut off Massena's retreat terminated in a skirmish, in which the French were driven back. 1842.—Sortie from Jellalabad; 800 men of the 13th and 35th Regiments sallied out to see if the enemy had laid a mine. None was found, and the detachment returned to the town having suffered only a trifling loss.

March 12, 1760.—Surrender of Alamparvah. The garrison of this fort (twenty-four miles from Pondicherry), under Chevalier Viart, surrendered to Major Monson. This completed the capture of all the defences held by the French to the northward of Pondicherry. 1811.—Action at Redinha (Peninsula). The French under Ney driven back tne miles from the village of Redinha. Our losses were twelve officers and 200 men killed and wounded.

March 13, 1801.—Battle of Maadie. The French, under General Friant, who occupied a ridge of sandhills from the seaside to the lake of Maadie, were driven from position after position by Major-General Cradock and the Earl of Cavan until they reached the fortified heights of Alexandria. The French lost 750 killed and wounded, while our casualties were 186 killed and 1,135 wounded. 1811.—Evacuation of Condeixa by the French. The town was fired by the French before they left it. The enemy's movements had been closely followed by Wellington, and Massena narrowly escaped being taken prisoner, but the burning town greatly hindered our advance.

March 14, 1811.—Action of Casal Nora (Peninsula). The 52nd having in foggy weather become engaged with the enemy, Wellington directed the light division to go to its assistance. The operation was successful, and 100 prisoners were taken, though we lost fourteen officers and 150 men.

March 15, 1781.—Battle of Guildford. Americans defeated by Lord Cornwallis. 1811.—Combat at Fons d'Aronce. Massena, after setting fire to the town of Miranda, passed the Ceira on the night of the 14th, and concentrated his force between the higher Sierras and the Mondego, directing Ney to cover the passage without risking an action. Ney disregarding this order, kept part of the army on the left bank, was attacked by Wellington, and was driven back in confusion to the river. The British loss was only four officers and sixty men, but that of the enemy was not less than 500

March 16, 1818.—Seedghur taken. Lieutenant-Colonel Inlach having failed in an attack on this fortress, remained in the neighbourhood, and on receiving reinforcements renewed his efforts. His batteries opened and a breach was effected. The 89th were about to storm when it was discovered that the garrison had abandoned the place by the rear, and possession was immediately taken of it.

March 17, 1781.—The French island of Bartholomew surrendered on summons to an expedition commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Lawrence Graeme.

The Tower of London.

[THE DAILY ROUTINE]

By W. S. R.

AT the end of the nineteenth century the old Tower of London attracts more visitors from all parts of the world than it ever did before in all the long years of its history. Its great antiquity, as well as its weird historical associations, seem to fascinate those who come to wander over the places made familiar by many writers. But these visitors come and go day after day, and learn little or nothing of the daily routine of the Tower. There is much, however, that is interesting in the way in which this daily routine is carried out—the old traditions are strictly observed. Visitors to London do not know this; they regard the Tower as a show place, like the National Gallery and other popular sights.

It is quite true that the Tower is a "London sight," but it stands alone among the places to be seen. The old place is still "Her Majesty's Royal Palace and Fortress of the Tower of London." Many years have gone by since a king or queen resided in the Tower, but the designation remains the same. The "Queen's House" is still called the "Queen's House." There is also a Constable of the Tower. In the days of old this appointment was a difficult one to hold. Students of history will quite understand why this was the case. To-day the office is merely a reward for distinguished service, and nothing more. Political prisoners are no longer sent to the Tower. But this fact makes no difference in the daily routine; the old traditions remain as they did hundreds of years ago. Nothing has been changed—the constable, the lieutenant, and the major are still in existence. In addition to these officers, it may also be noted that the post of Keeper to the Regalia is still retained.

The regulations with regard to the officers of the Tower are as follows:

"The constable holds his appointment by Royal Letters Patent under the Great Seal. He is honoured with the privilege of audience of and direct communication with the Sovereign.

"The lieutenant is also appointed by Royal Letters Patent to act under the constable. When the constable is absent, or when the office is vacant, he has the full powers and privileges of the constable.

"The major and other officers are appointed by commission."

The constable and the lieutenant do not reside in the Tower, so by regulation the major, "when neither the constable nor lieutenant is present, is authorised and directed by Royal Warrant to assume command of the Tower, and he then performs the duties of a governor." For many years past, and at present, these duties have been and are performed by Lieutenant-General Milman.

A regiment of the Guards is always stationed in the Tower. But the regulations do not allow them to act as if the Tower were an ordinary barracks. When a commanding officer wishes to march out his regiment or detachment, or any part of the same, for the purpose of exercise or for other purposes, he is first to obtain permission from the officer of the Tower commanding the garrison, and is also to report the return of the troops.

The daily routine begins when the Yeoman Porter, with an escort from the main guard, opens all the gates and drawbridges at five o'clock in the morning.

At six o'clock the bugles sound and the troops rise for the day's work. The usual routine of the Guards is carried out, in which the visitors take great interest. This is specially marked on Saturdays and Mondays—the free days—when a crowd always collects to watch the ceremony, which takes place about 10.30 in the morning, with drums and fifes, on the parade, to send on duty the guards for the Tower and the Royal Mint. But the best exhibition which the Guards give is never seen by the public. This takes place at 7 a.m. in the summer. All the troops fill the square in front of the barracks and go through the physical drill to the airs played by the drums and fifes. This is a sight worth seeing.

At ten o'clock the warders come on duty for the day. They are dressed in the quaint old costume so familiar to all visitors to the Tower. On Sundays and other festal days they are dressed in scarlet. The warders are officially described as follows: "The Yeomen Warders are honorary members of the Sovereign's Body Guard of the Yeomen of the Guard, and

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

are appointed by the constable from the warrant and non-commissioned officers of the Army. They are sworn in as constables, and are under the immediate command of the major."

I may mention here that the term Beefeaters is neither known nor recognised in the Tower. Brewer, in his well-known book on "Phrase and Fable," gives the derivation of the name from the French buffetiers—waiters at the sideboard. No one knows how the stupid mistake arose of giving this name to the yeomen warders.

The Warders' Hall is a curious old room in the basement of the Byward Tower. It has a beautiful arched roof and a large, old-fashioned fireplace; the grandfather clock, which stands near the door, is said to be 200 years old. Over the fireplace hangs a heavy carved stick, which was used long years ago to levy tolls from the ships which passed the Tower.

A book is kept in the Warders' Hall in which the names of the warders on duty for the day are entered. Three warders are detailed for each post.

At ten o'clock the public are admitted. The warders are assisted in keeping order by a staff of police constables, who are employed day and night inside the Tower. Since the dynamite explosion the number of police has been increased by ten, so that there are now about twenty police on duty within the Tower. These men are selected from policemen who have been many years in the service. When the day's work is over, and the public have gone, one constable and one sergeant only remain for night duty.

As the Tower is a show place, the warders and policemen have plenty to do in guiding the public round the various buildings. Visitors always want to go where they are not allowed to pass. Notice boards marked "Private" and "No admission" seem to invite some people to make an effort to pass where they are plainly forbidden. As might be expected, the Saturday and Monday crowds give the most trouble. On Bank Holidays the warders are always thankful when the day is over.

Most of the warders on duty for the day are liable to be called upon to take special parties round the Tower. It would be quite impossible for all the visitors to be conducted round in this way; there would not be enough warders to do it. So the regulation is this: The officers residing in the Tower can obtain the services of a special warder to conduct their friends round, but this privilege is, of course, confined to those officers residing in the Tower. Under these circumstances it is usual for the visitors thus favoured to give the warder a fee for his services. The amount given is entered in a book kept for the purpose, and the fees thus gained are divided among the warders on duty. This is a perfectly fair and excellent arrangement.

Incompatible with Dignity.

As the weather is not always of the best, the warders have little sentry boxes to sit in when it rains; but some of these old soldiers brave the elements and stay outside when they ought to be under cover. I once offered the loan of an umbrella to an old warder, but he declined, with the remark, "I detest gloves and umbrellas."

At four o'clock the public leave the Tower; then the old place settles down for the night in peace and quietness. Nothing happens until the gates are shut at 11 p.m. Then the quaint old ceremony takes place of the "Queen's Keys," which has already been described in the pages of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

The military day finishes at 10.15 p.m., when the bugle sounds "Lights out." On every night of the week, except Wednesday and Saturday, the drums and fifes play, weather permitting, from 9.30 to 10 o'clock; when the Scots Guards are in the Tower the pipers take part in this performance.

When the big gates are closed at 11 p.m., with the ceremony of "The Keys," the small doors let into them, known as the "Wickets," are left open till midnight. Up to that hour people who have the right can enter the Tower, but when the clock strikes twelve the warder on duty for the night locks the wicket, and no one can enter without the countersign. Regulation No. 8 for the warders is most strictly observed at the present time.

The warder of the watch takes that duty in regular turn. He has to wear his uniform, but may lie down in the Warders' Hall. He is on duty from nine o'clock p.m. till ten in the morning. If applied to in case of accident or illness within the Tower during the night, it will be his duty to call the Yeoman Porter, in order to get the key of the wicket for the summoning and admission of a medical man. It is to him that the sergeant of the spur guard applies in the event of anyone demanding admission after the wickets are locked, and it is his duty to decide, according to the standing regulations of the Tower, whether admission is to be given or no. If refusal is necessary, it must be done respectfully, and with the explanation that it would be contrary to the standing regulations of the Tower. A list of the officers of the garrison who wish to enter the Tower after midnight up to three o'clock in the morning is sent by the commanding officer of the battalion in the Tower daily to the major, and this list is given to the warder on watch for his guidance. He marks the hour on the list as they enter the Tower up to three o'clock, when the wicket is finally closed, and the key delivered to the Yeoman Porter in his quarters. Should no officer's name be on the leave list, the warder on watch will deliver the wicket key to the Yeoman Porter at midnight.

The Yeoman Porter's quarters are over the Warders' Hall in the Byward Tower, but it must not be supposed that he is rung up at all hours of the night to receive the key of the wicket. The key is simply taken up and dropped into his letter box. The Yeoman Porter is always on duty at eleven o'clock at night for the "keys," and has to be on duty again at five o'clock in the morning to open the gates, so that he would get very little rest if he had to take the wicket key in person at three in the morning.

The parole, under the Queen's own signature, is sent quarterly to the Constable of the Tower, but the countersign is given every day by Lieutenant-General Milman or the resident governor, and is usually the name of some town in the United Kingdom. This countersign is entered in the daily duty book for the warders, and is kept in the Warders' Hall; but no one can get this word except those who are known to be residents in the Tower, and entitled to have it. It would be utterly impossible for any stranger to enter the Tower after midnight, even if he had learned the countersign; something else is required by the regulations. Order No. 9, for the spur guard, says: "Should the sergeant be called by the sentry after midnight to answer anyone at the Barrier Gate, he must enquire of the applicant who he is and what is his business, and refer the case to the warder on duty at the Byward Gate."

The old "Royal Palace and fortress" is well guarded in the present day. It is a link with the past, the most interesting place in London, and may it remain so!

The picture of the old Guard Room, which was given as an illustration of the Queen's Keys, has another interest now, as the building has been pulled down to make room for a much larger erection of red brick on the same site. Many people think that the new Guard Room does not look well so near the old White Tower, but before long the smoke and dirt will take away the new appearance, and tone it down more in keeping with its ancient surroundings.

Digitized by Google

The Battle of Vaal Krantz.

FEBRUARY 5, 1900.

COVERING THE ADVANCE AT THE DRIFT.
Replying to the Boer Fire on Spion Kop and Brakfontein.

WITH THE NAVAL GUNS ON ZWART'S KOP.
Captain Jones, Royal Navy; Lieutenant Barnes, Adjutant Imperial Light Horse; and Mr. Winston Churchill (the Centre Figure), Examining the Boer Position.

OVERLOOKING THE TUGELA RIVER.
An Advance Picquet Waiting for the Enemy's Scouts to come within Range.

A CONCEALED "SCHANTZE" ABOVE POTGIETER'S DRIFT.
This Picture, and the One Above, Afford Capital Illustrations of the Clever Way in which Our Soldiers now Utilise Local Features for Defence.

With Buller to Relieve Ladysmith.

From Photos. by Mr. Harford Hartland, Our Special Correspondent in Natal.

Digitized by Google

A New Gun for the Front.

A 6-in. QUICK-FIRER ON A RAILWAY BOGIE.
The View shows the Gun as Mounted with the Shield in Position.

Photos. Copyright. Stephens.

LEAVING FOR THE CAMP ON THE MODDER.
The Fore Part of the Gun Covered by a Tarpaulin for Transit.

The photographs from which these reproductions are made were taken with some difficulty, as the authorities at the Cape wished to surprise the enemy with the gun, which is a 6-in. quick-firer of long range. The trials were made at Elsie's Bay in the presence of Lord Roberts with most satisfactory results, and it is reported that an unlucky photographer who endeavoured to make a picture of the experiment had his plates "commandeered," and his camera destroyed. The railway people at Salt River constructed the special bogie carriage.

Digitized by Google

With Buller

PANORAMIC VIEW OF THE BRITISH CAMP AT CHIEVELEY.

TO REPEL A POSSIBLE RUSH.
An Entrenched Position on a Hill near the Camp.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

A HALT BY THE WAY.
Tired Troops Resting on the Road to Frere.

BULLER'S advance, or rather series of advances, to the relief of Ladysmith constitutes a very interesting page of military history from a variety of standpoints. In a strategical and tactical sense the operation has not been, could not have been, taking all the circumstances into consideration, a satisfactory one. From start to finish the relief of Ladysmith has caused a terrible loss of life, and, to speak plainly, some national humiliation. But it is becoming increasingly evident that, from the very first, Buller did nearly all that human man could do in the face of almost insuperable obstacles. He himself is now known to have realised at the outset that to break through the barrier which Boer cunning, assisted by continental art, had raised between him and Sir George White, was well-nigh impossible with the forces at his disposal. It is characteristic of the grim gallantry and determination of the man that he should have made the vigorous attempts he did make before his task was rendered easier by Lord Roberts's notable diversion.

Although for a time Spearman's Camp, fronting Potgieter's Drift, was Buller's headquarters, by far the most important centre during the advance on Ladysmith was Chieveley Camp, of which there is here given a most interesting panorama, followed by several incidental pictures of great descriptive merit. The panorama gives a rather vague but still impressive idea of the wall-like position, or rather chain of positions, which Buller had to pass before he could win through to his goal, and is still more happily illustrative of the general lie of this important camp. When one takes into consideration the imposing fact that at Chieveley there must have been assembled troops amounting to nearly twice as many again as are commonly to be found at Aldershot, it is easy to imagine that much must have happened here from day to day at Chieveley.

Digitized by Google

SHOWING THE HILLY COUNTRY BETWEEN COLENSO AND LADYSMITH.

which was worthy of a more permanent record than everyday camp gossip.

In the centre of this great agglomeration of military units one can picture Buller himself, stern, self-reliant, and now and then severely humorous, with his trusty staff in pretty constant attendance—for Buller knows how to keep men at work, and wants no ornamental entourage. Within a stone's throw of his own quarters were those of his colonial escort, for Buller, like Roberts, paid the country the compliment of choosing his escort from the local forces. And ever and anon we can, with our mind's eye, see the burly figure of the general issuing forth on a round of inspection, or, may be, with a view to a fresh personal scrutiny of the enemy's positions and a glance at the latest evidences of the range and power of the Naval guns.

As for the troops, we may be sure that for them, also, even when things seemed at their slackest, there was not much relaxation of any but a temporary sort. The Boers are not a class of enemy in whose presence any want of vigilance can be safely displayed, and Buller and his generals of division and brigade were not the kind of officers to let their men get fat and lazy with such stern work before them as clearing the way to Ladysmith involved. Consequently we may take it that all ranks were kept pretty steadily "at it" in the intervals of the four advances made to relieve Ladysmith from the front and flanks. One exhilarating feature of the constant state of tension must be specially noticed, namely, the genuine devotion of the men to their general, notwithstanding repulses which might well have sapped the popularity of a less sterling and gallant leader.

The fighting has been of the closest and most determined character, and latterly the Boers have been the attackers on several occasions, and have been repulsed only by the most desperate bravery.

CREATURE COMFORTS FOR THE TROOPS.
A Headquarters of Necessary Supplies in the Field.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

A BIVOUAC ON THE VELDT.
Troops Making Themselves Comfortable without Tents.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

With the Naval Brigades in South Africa

PROTECTING THE PONTOON BRIDGE.
One of the Naval Guns with General Buller in the Advance to Ladysmith.

ANOTHER OF SCOTT'S BABIES.
Ready to be Ferried Over the River—An Anxious Moment.

BRITISH BLUEJACKETS TO THE FORE.
Dragging a 4·7-in. Gun to the Railway Station for Despatch to Frere.

Photos. Copyright.
SCATTERING THE BOERS WITH LYDDITE.
A 4·7-in. Gun Covering the Advance of Infantry Across the Tugela.

"Navy & Army."
CRITICAL OBSERVATIONS WITH THE GLASS.
Watching the Effect of the Shells Upon the Enemy.

AFTER being carefully trained to fight in ships and on the sea it may seem on the face of it not quite rational that you should be employed in dragging guns of very respectable size about the veldt. But this is very far from being the first occasion on which the British Navy has applied itself with eminent success to doing the work of infantry and Artillery far from the coast. The wanderings of the 4·7-in. guns which have played so great a part in the South African War

Digitized by Google

Photo. Copyright. Furmidge.

FIGHTING UNDER "BOBS"

Some of the Seamen who Assisted at Cronje's Surrender.

are not without precedent. But, though it is rash to assert that there is any wholly new thing under the sun, there has, we think, been no previous example of so much activity on the part of Navy guns. Sailors, as everybody knows, will overcome most difficulties and conquer most obstacles. Marryat's tar, who said that he and his comrades would tame a he rhinoceros (or was it hippopotamus?) was not exaggerating. Marryat, at least, thought he was telling the truth. The taming of a he rhinoceros is not, perhaps, a more unmanageable feat than the trundling about of 4·7-in. guns on weighty carriages in the astonishing mobile fashion which we have seen in the last few months. The Navy has contrived to achieve the feat of making the 4·7-in. gun trot about with the activity of Horse Artillery—or, at any rate, something not very far short of it. It begins by making its own carriage—that is to say, Captain Scott invents the carriage—and then the Navy carries the gun everywhere. This, by the way, is a point beyond anything done before. Marryat is again our authority for the mate of the transport who invented a means of carrying a ship's gun up the hill in the West Indies. He proposed to put it in a rum barrel, pack it well with old cordage, and pull it up with a cable. That was a simple plan, but it was not quite on a level with the invention of a carriage. When Admiral Cornish and Colonel Draper went to take Manila, the Navy supplied the guns for breaching the walls, but the Army took its own platforms and carriages. Moreover, it must be remembered that the 28-pounders and 18-pounders landed by Admiral Cornish were far handier than our long modern pieces. Neither had they to go so far as the 4·7-in. has travelled. To be sure the railway is there, and if it were not, neither men nor guns would or could have covered the ground. But the Naval Brigade has not allowed itself to be tied to the railway, but has followed Lord Roberts away from the line actively enough. It would, we are sure, take its guns through the Bolan Pass or over the Hindu Kush. The fact is that most things can be done by a little persuading plus a little pushing, artfully mingled—that is to say, by management.

Now the sailor is emphatically the man who is trained to manage. You cannot get over the sea, or the wind, or a foul coast, by merely going at them, but only by humouring and making them serve.

The Tyne sailors have the expression "to do a thing by Scotch seamanship," which is all stupidity and main strength. That is not the real "sailorman way," which is to do it by ingenuity, and artfully using the very force you have to overcome. But when men are taught to go about work in that way, they can tackle most tasks. To judge by the present position of affairs, the Naval Brigade is not unlikely to have plenty more work to do before the war is finished, and its guns may travel yet all the way to Pretoria or further. Even if they are no longer really needed, it would be unfair to send them back before the Boers are fairly conquered. Of course, the case may arise that they will be needed at sea, though, in spite of some confident prophecies, that is not very likely. If it does, then they must go back to their proper element. But unless that does happen the Naval Brigade with its guns will continue to see a good deal of land service.

Photo. Copyright. Gillan.

TO JOIN GATACRE.

A Naval Brigade Leaving Simon's Town for Sterkstroom.

Photo. Copyright. Burke.

IMPORTANT IN BULLER'S ADVANCE.

The Well-trained Crews of the Naval Guns.

Digitized by Google

On Scouting Duty with Gatacre.

WHEN the history of the war in South Africa comes to be written, the Cape Mounted Police will be found to have had an honourable share in the fighting.

They were at one time rather inclined to think that enough use was not made of their services, but the course of events has supplied them with plenty to do. The defence of their camp near Molteno, shown in our illustration, was of itself enough to satisfy any reasonable thirst for fighting. One hundred and fifty men had to hold their ground all day against ten times their own number, and artillery fire into the bargain. The Boers shelled the camp with good aim, and the shells burst accurately enough; but that fire-eating fellow the shell is very odd in his ways. He makes an awful noise, and his goings-on generally are trying to the nerves, yet he does not do half the mischief he threatens. On this occasion he did very little harm to the Cape Mounted Police. Accordingly, when the Boers retreated our men were able to follow them up and worry them considerably.

The amount of scouting work they have done for General Gatacre is very great, and, as it happens, a good part has consisted in keeping a check on the Dutch population who are in sympathy with the enemy.

One of our illustrations shows part of the Cape forces engaged in overhauling and bringing back a local Boer who had slipped out of the town in spite of orders. The enemy were in the neighbourhood, and it was most desirable to prevent any information from reaching them. To avoid risk of accidents as much as might be, the Boers of the vicinity, who happened to have come in that day to church, were told they must remain where they were. One of them, a man of some influence among the Dutch, slipped away, and had to be pursued and brought back by half a company of mounted men. He may have meant no harm, and have only been intent on getting home to his dinner; but then, again, his intentions may have been less innocent, and in any case it was necessary to take precautions. "At war as at war," says the French proverb, and it is necessary to provide against possible evils, even at the cost of adopting superfluous precautions. We have not, on the whole, erred too much on that side. The colonial forces with General Gatacre are well qualified to know what they are about in such cases. Considering how ready our critics are to find fault, we may be sure that there would be no lack of blame for them if they acted harshly. That they have not done so is pretty certain, and it is most honourable to them, considering that they have to do trying work in a temperature of 90-deg. in the shade.

Lord Roberts fully appreciates the value of the South African Volunteer Forces as scouts; and what better choice could be made for this work than men born in the country?

CHURCH SERVICE ON THE VELDT.
When an Attack by the Enemy was Momentarily Expected near Molteno.

ARRESTING A REBEL FARMER.
Montmorency's Scouts Escorting an Alleged Traitor into Camp near Sterkstroom

Photos. Copyright. Withers.

RESTING IN THE NOONTIDE HEAT.
The Camp of the Cape Police Scouts with Brabant at Dordrecht.

Digitized by Google

With the Inniskillings near Colesberg.

ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE.
"O" Battery Under Fire in the Action near Coleskop

SUPPLIES FOR THE LARDER.
A Squad of Inniskillings after a Hare Hunt.

A FUNERAL IN THE FIELD.
The Last Tribute of Respect to a Brave Comrade.

"TEN MINUTES FOR REFRESHMENTS."
Officers Bivouacking in a Sheltered Corner near Hobkirk's Farm.

From Photos. by an Officer at the Front.

Digitized by Google

Ladysmith's Heroic Defence and Relief.

THE RELIEVER OF LADYSMITH
Sir Redvers Buller.

"Thank God, we have Kept Our Flag Flying."

Ladysmith, from The Hospital Camp.

THE DEFENDER OF LADYSMITH.
Sir George White.

LORD DUNDONALD
Commanding Cavalry Brigade.

ROYSTON'S NATAL VOLUNTEERS—DEFENDERS OF THEIR COUNTRY.
"Navy & Army."

Copyright.

IMPERIAL LIGHT HORSEMEN—HEROES OF ELANDSLAAGTE.
"The Vanguard of the Relief Column consisted of Natal Carbineers, Light Horse, and Police under Majors Mackenzie and Gough."

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

Commander-in-Chief: FIELD-MARSHAL LORD ROBERTS.

I.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar and in Orange Free State, under Lord Roberts.

Divisional Commanders: Lieutenant-Generals French, Methuen, Kelly-Kenny, Tucker, and Colvile.

CAVALRY (French)

Brabazon and Babington's Brigades.

Household Regiment.
6th Dragoon Guards.
2nd Dragoons.
6th Dragoons (part)
9th Lancers.
10th Hussars.
12th Lancers.
16th Lancers.

ARTILLERY

Horse—G, P, U, Q, T, J, R Batteries.
Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th, 38th, 62nd, 65th (Howitzer), 76th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th Batteries.
Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS

7th (Field) Co.
8th (Railway) Co.
11th (Field) Co.
29th (Fortress) Co.
31st (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Balloon Section.
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY

Pole-Carew's Brigade.

3rd Grenadiers.
1st Coldstreams.
2nd Coldstreams.
1st Scots Guards.

MacDonald's Brigade.

1st Argyll and Sutherland.
2nd Seaforths.
2nd Black Watch.
1st Gordons.

Douglas's Brigade.

1st Northumberland.
2nd Northampton.
1st N. Lancashire.
2nd Yorkshire L.I.

Knox's Brigade.

2nd East Kent.
1st Oxford L.I.
1st West Riding.
2nd Gloucester.

Wavell's Brigade.

2nd North Stafford.
2nd South Wales Borderers.
1st East Lancashire.
2nd Cheshire.

Chermside's Brigade.

2nd Norfolk.
2nd Hampshire.
2nd Lincoln.
1st Scottish Borderers.

Smith-Dorrien's Brigade.

1st Highland L.I.
2nd Cornwall L.I.
1st Munster Fusiliers.
2nd Shropshire L.I.

Brigadier unknown.

1st Suffolk.
1st Essex.
1st Yorkshire.
1st Welsh.

City Imperial Volunteers.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Queensland Mounted Infantry.
Canadian Infantry.
S. African Light Horse (part).
Roberts's Horse.
Rimington's Scouts (part).
Kitchener's Horse.
New South Wales Lancers (part).
New S. Wales Mounted Infantry.
Queensland Mounted Infantry.
New Zealand Mounted Infantry.
Railway Pioneers.

II.—Cape Colony. Troops on Western Line of Communications.

Lieutenant-General Commanding: Sir F. W. E. F. Forestier-Walker.

CAVALRY

7th Dragoon Guards.

ARTILLERY

Horse—A Battery.
Field—2nd, 8th, 43rd (Howitzer), 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 5th, 9th, 17th, 39th, 44th, 66th, 88th Batteries.
Garrison—5th, 10th Cos. E. Division; 2nd, 14th, 15th, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division; 2nd, 6th, 10th, 14th, 15th, 17th Cos. W. Division.

ENGINEERS

6th (Fortress) Co.
9th (Field) Co.
20th (Field) Co.
38th (Field) Co.
Section 1st Div. Telegraph Bat.
Field Park.
Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY

Militia Battalions.

6th Warwick.
4th Derbyshire.
3rd Durham L.I.
4th Royal Lancaster.
9th King's Royal Rifles.
4th Argyll and Sutherland.
3rd South Lancashire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

New South Wales Artillery.
Duke of Edinburgh's Rifles.
Cape Town Highlanders.
W. Australian Mounted Infantry.
Tasmanian Mounted Infantry.
Cape Garrison Artillery.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Naauwpoort.

CAVALRY

6th Dragoons (part).

ARTILLERY

Horse—O Battery.
Field—4th, 20th Batteries.
Heavy—2 5-in. Howitzers

ENGINEERS

10th (Railway) Co.
26th (Field) Co.
37th (Field) Co.
42nd (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY

Clements's Brigade.

2nd Bedford.
1st Royal Irish.
2nd Wiltshire.
2nd Worcestershire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Prince Alfred's Vol. Gds. (Cape).
1st City (Grahamstown) Volntrs.
New South Wales Lancers (part).
Rimington's Scouts (part).
Prince Alfred's Own Cape Artll'y.
Australian Horse (Troop).
Victoria Mounted Infantry.
S. Australian Mounted Infantry.

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY

Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS

12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY

2nd Irish Rifles.
2nd Northumberland.
1st Royal Scots.
2nd Berkshire.
1st Derbyshire.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Cape Mounted Rifles.
Det. Cape Mounted Police.
Frontier Mounted Rifles.
Kaffrarian Rifles.
Brabant's Horse.
Montmorency's Scouts.

V.—Natal, under Sir G. White.

CAVALRY

Brocklehurst's Brigade.

5th Dragoon Guards.
5th Lancers.
18th Hussars.
19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 10 Battery.*

ENGINEERS

23rd (Field) Co.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY

Howard's Brigade.

2nd Gordons.
1st Manchester.
1st Gloucester.†
1st Devon.

Brigadier unknown.

2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
1st King's Royal Rifles.
1st Leicester.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.†

Not Brigaded.

1st Liverpool.
2nd King's Royal Rifles.
2nd Rifle Brigade.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Border Mounted Rifles.
Natal Field Artillery.
Imperial Light Horse.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Natal Mounted Police (Det.)

VI.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

CAVALRY

Dundonald's Brigade.

1st Dragoons.
13th Hussars.
14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 66th, 73rd, 78th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS

17th (Field) Co.
45th (Steam Road Transport) Co.
"A" Pontoon Troop.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY

Hildyard's Brigade.

2nd Devon.
2nd West York.
2nd West Surrey.
2nd East Surrey.

Barton's Brigade.

1st Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Scots Fusiliers.
2nd Royal Fusiliers.

Norcott's Brigade.

2nd Scottish Rifles.
1st Durham L.I.
3rd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Rifle Brigade.

Hart's Brigade.

1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
1st Connaught Rangers.
1st Dublin Fusiliers.
1st Border.

Coke's Brigade.

2nd Warwick.
2nd Somerset L.I.
2nd Dorsetshire.
2nd Middlesex.

Kitchener's Brigade.

2nd Royal Lancaster.
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
1st South Lancashire.
1st York and Lancaster.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS

Natal Naval Volunteers.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Durban Light Infantry.
Bethune's Mounted Infantry.
Thorneycroft's Mntd. Infantry.
Imperial Light Infantry.
Natal Mounted Police (Det.).
S. African Light Horse (part).

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY

17th Lancers.
8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY

Horse—M Battery.
Field—89th, 90th, 91st Batteries.

ENGINEERS

"C" Pontoon Troop.
5th (Field) Co.
47th (Fortress) Co.

INFANTRY

Campbell's Brigade.

2nd Grenadiers.
2nd Scots Guards.
2nd East Yorkshire.
2nd Leicester.

Boyes's Brigade.

2nd West Kent.
2nd Manchester.
1st South Staffordshire.
1st Worcester.

1st Sussex (from Malta).
1st Leinster (from Halifax).
1st Cameron H'gh's (from Egypt).

Militia Battalions.

3rd Royal Lancaster.
6th Lancashire Fusiliers.
3rd South Wales Borderers
3rd East Lancashire.
4th South Staffordshire.
3rd Welsh.
5th Dublin Fusiliers.
4th Somerset L.I.
4th West Yorkshire.
3rd Yorkshire.
4th East Surrey.
6th Middlesex.
3rd Leinster.
5th Munster Fusiliers.
4th North Staffordshire.
3rd Norfolk.
4th Cheshire.
4th Bedford.
3rd West Riding.
3rd K.O. Scottish Borderers.
3rd Royal Scots.

Australasian and Canadian Contingents.
Imperial Yeomanry.
Duke of Cambridge's Own (special corps I.Y.).
Lord Lovat's Corps of Scouts.
Lumsden's Horse (from India).

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38 (Supply), 39, 40, 41, and 42.

Naval Brigades are serving with White in Ladysmith, with Buller in Northern Natal, with Methuen at Modder River, and with the troops under General Gatacre.

The local troops in Rhodesia, under Colonel Plumer, comprise the British South African Police and the Rhodesian Regiment. In Mafeking, with Colonel Baden-Powell, are British South African Police (detachment), Diamond Fields Artillery (detachment), Cape Mounted Police (detachment), the Protectorate Regiment, and Bechuanaland Rifles. In Kimberley, under Colonel Kekewich, there are the Diamond Fields Artillery, Diamond Fields Horse, Kimberley Rifles, and Cape Mounted Police (detachment).

The following Militia Battalions are embodied for garrison duty at home and abroad to take the place of the regular battalions gone to South Africa: Clare Artillery (Devonport), 3rd West Surrey (Portsmouth), 3rd East Kent (Enniskillen), 5th Northumberland (Malta), 5th Royal Fusiliers (Dover), 3rd Devon (Jersey), 3rd Suffolk (Guernsey), 3rd Royal Irish (Aldershot), 5th Lancashire Fusiliers (Chatham), 3rd Scots Fusiliers (Aldershot), 3rd Welsh Fusiliers (Plymouth), 4th Scottish Rifles (Glasgow), 3rd Inniskilling Fusiliers (Mullingar), 4th Gloucestershire (Athlone), 3rd Cornwall Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Border (Colchester), 3rd Sussex (Brighton), 3rd Dorset (Shorncliffe), 3rd Black Watch (Montrose), 3rd Oxford Light Infantry (Buttevant), 3rd Essex (Warley), 3rd North Lancashire (Malta), 3rd Northampton (Aldershot), 3rd West Kent (Malta), 4th Shropshire Light Infantry (Gravesend), 3rd Wiltshire (Fermoy), 3rd York and Lancaster (York), 3rd Highland Light Infantry (Devonport), 3rd Seaforths (Egypt), 3rd Gordons (Edinburgh), 3rd Camerons (Aldershot), 6th Irish Rifles (Sheffield), 4th Irish Fusiliers (Colchester), 5th Connaught Rangers (Shorncliffe), 6th Rifle Brigade (Curragh), 5th Warwick (Colchester), 5th Liverpool (Preston), 4th Lincoln (Parkhurst), 4th Suffolk (Dover), 3rd Hampshire (Aldershot), 3rd Derbyshire (Manchester), 8th King's Royal Rifles (Templemore), 4th Durham Light Infantry (Aldershot), 3rd Argyll and Sutherland (Dublin), 3rd Leicestershire (Curragh), 3rd Berkshire (Kilkenny).

* Surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

† Headquarters surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

Lord Roberts's Triumph.

SCENES OF OUR RECENT VICTORIES.

THE fall of Cronje will live long in our military annals, and was an effective wiping out of the reproach of Majuba. The pictures on this page will therefore prove exceedingly interesting, because they illustrate both the march and the accomplishment. Waterval Drift is upon the Riet River, where General French made the initial movement for the relief of Kimberley and the cutting-off of the Boers at Magersfontein. The river, flowing north-west from Koffyfontein to Jacobsdal, makes a great curve southward, and Dekiel's Drift and Waterval Drift are within about five miles of one another. There was great advantage in selecting them, because the forces crossing could have immediately concentrated in the axis of the curve if any strong resistance had been offered.

It was at Waterval Drift that the Sixth Division crossed under General Kelly-Kenny, and from that point that the march was made to the drifts on the Modder. The picture illustrates admirably the character of the crossing, which did not present all the difficulties found at Dekiel's Drift.

Another illustration is of the little town of Jacobsdal. This is the place which Lord Roberts made his temporary quarters on February 15, entering it at the head of his troops. Here, a few hours earlier, some heavy fighting had taken place, and the City of London Imperial Volunteers had been for the first time in action, winning much honour for themselves. Jacobsdal is a straggling village, reached from the Modder River by carts. Like most towns in the States, it has a Dutch Reformed Church, which will be seen in the picture, and it is noted for the great quantities of the curious mineral crocidolite found in its neighbourhood. The towns-people expected the place to be looted, and were quite surprised at the orderly arrangements we made.

The most interesting picture of all is of the Modder River at the place where Cronje so skilfully entrenched himself, and where he held out for so many days against the crushing fire that was poured upon him, while our troops were creeping closer and closer, and menacing him with a terrific disaster. It is impossible not to recognise the excellent military qualities which the old soldier manifested in getting his big guns away from Magersfontein, while he led us off in chase of his main body on the road to Bloemfontein; and, when his men were entirely exhausted, in taking refuge in the trench-like course of the Modder. The river thereabout resembles somewhat parts of the valley of the Thames, but the actual banks are steep and high, so that the Boers could dig out caves for protection, and secure shelter in the numerous dongas that open upon the river on both sides. If the defence was sound, the reduction of the place was splendid, and Paardeberg was a veritable Sedan for the famous Boer fighting man.

WATERVAL DRIFT ON THE RIET RIVER.
One of the Places where General French Forced the Passage.

AT KOODOOSRAND, ON THE MODDER.
The Place where Cronje Sought Refuge from Our Attack.

Photo. Copyright. THE BORDER TOWN OF JACOBSDAL. Navy & Army.
In which Lord Roberts had His Temporary Headquarters.

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

THIS record of operations in South Africa has never related anything so satisfactory as the story it tells to-day. The Empire—lately made sad by disastrous reverses and by apparent inability to break through the chosen defences of the foe—is now gladdened by the knowledge that Kimberley is free, that a great force of the Boers have been captured with their most popular leader, that the long-tried garrison of Ladysmith has been relieved, that our invaded territory is almost clear of the adversary, and that the freedom of the gallant garrison of Mafeking is near. Rarely in our military history has a great strategic stroke, planned by master minds, won such instant success. The "splendid news," as Her Majesty appropriately called it, of the capitulation of Cronje brought joy to every British subject, and, with their august ruler, they cried out, on the coming of Sir Redvers Buller's message, "Thank God for the news you have telegraphed," echoing also, in the fulness of gratitude, the words of the Queen's congratulations to Sir George White, "Thank God that you and all those with you are safe after the long and trying siege, borne with such heroism."

The position of Cronje near Paardeberg, which was described last week, became at length absolutely intolerable and untenable, and the sound judgment was then seen of Lord Roberts, who had decided not to make a hasty assault. The Boer trenches were in a terrible condition of filth and disorder, the burghers worn out, food was exhausted, ammunition burnt, and the ground encumbered with dead animals and men. The sufferings of the unfortunate Boers must have been terrible, and there is some evidence that a mutiny was imminent before the surrender was enforced on February 27, the nineteenth anniversary of Majuba. At three o'clock on that morning the gallant Canadians, under Colonel Otter, crept up within 100-yds. of the Boer trenches, with two companies of Royal Engineers, supported by the 1st Gordon Highlanders and the 2nd Shropshire Light Infantry. The Canadians behaved with the utmost brilliancy, and when a terrific fire was opened upon them they maintained their fusillade, while the Engineers dug trenches. A position having thus been established from which an attack could be delivered, Cronje saw that his case was hopeless, and he decided to capitulate. It was peculiarly gratifying that the coup de grace should have been delivered by the brave Canadians "clinching the matter"—"a gallant deed," said Lord Roberts, "worthy of our colonial comrades." The utmost enthusiasm has been aroused throughout the Dominion, and the brave men who fell on February 27 have done much to seal with their blood the compact of kinship and loyalty to the Queen and Empire between Canadians and Britons.

The success of Lords Roberts and Kitchener had been absolute and complete. The Boers had been entirely outmanœuvred, and compelled by the swift development of the strategy of an unexpected movement to abandon the positions which they had held so long. Considering the state of disorder into which they were thrown, it is marvellous they marched so well, though they had not their big guns with them, these having either been got away to the north-east or having been buried on the spot.

When Cronje arrived at Lord Roberts's camp, he seemed much affected, but was received with a hearty hand-shake, and sat down to discuss conditions. There was no hesitation on Lord Roberts's part, however, that the surrender must be unconditional, and when Cronje had deliberated silently for some time, he sealed the capitulation with an emphatic "Ja." The details were arranged with Commandant Wolmarans, and when they were known, the Boers threw down their arms with delight, rejoiced to escape from the terrors of the bombardment and the horrors of the place. Some of them were pitiable objects, emaciated and worn out with hardships and privations. A number of women were with them, some carrying infants, this being sufficient testimony to the suddenness with which the Boers had been turned out from Magersfontein and Spytfontein. The poor creatures were reassured, and when the news came that all were in safety, there was evident relief and much lightness of heart among the captives. The total number of burghers who fell into our hands was over 4,000, of whom only 1,150 were Free Staters, with four 7·5-in. Krupp field guns, two smaller, and a large quantity of ammunition and stores. General Cronje with his wife and personal following have since been sent to Simon's Town, in charge of General Pretyman, and accommodation has been found on board the "Doris," while the rest of the prisoners are being sent in detachments south from Modder River Station. Lord Roberts has drawn attention to the pleasing fact that our men have shown them the greatest kindness, and have even shared their food with them. The Commander-in-Chief has since visited Kimberley, where he found prosperity beginning to return, and has transferred his headquarters from Paardeberg to Osfontein, a few miles to the north-east.

The effect of the victory was immediate in every theatre of the war. Commandant De Wet's forces having been driven off with considerable loss on February 24, the Boers had been able to render no help to Cronje. Having, however, withdrawn their forces from Natal, and in some measure from the south, they will doubtless offer further opposition to Lord Roberts. General French is alert with the cavalry, and as these pages go to press the enemy have been definitely located, 5,000 or 6,000 strong, four miles in front of Osfontein, with their left resting on a high kopje and their right on the Modder River. Further fighting will, therefore, almost certainly have occurred before these lines appear. Scattered parties of Boers are looting about the country, and they seem to have a force north of Kimberley, through which we may expect to hear that a column of relief for Mafeking has pushed its way, thus succouring a garrison which has done yeoman's service, and clearing the whole Western Frontier.

The relief of Ladysmith was the appropriate complement of the fall of Cronje, of which, in a measure, it was the result. Sir Redvers Buller had been fighting more or less every day from February 14, when Hussar Hill was captured, up to February 28, when Lord Dundonald with the Natal Carbineers and the Composite Regiment rode into the beleaguered town. The sufferings of the gallant garrison have been great, but they have maintained their constancy and courage to the end, with hope deferred, and they would have held their post much longer, we may be sure. But they have seen their strength waning day by day, and the once dashing cavalry brigade has almost, as a mobile force, ceased to exist, while the horses for the guns are no more. Poor horseflesh and a little bread, with tea and sugar, have not well sustained the strength of the garrison, and on February 28 some of the regiments could muster only a quarter of their former strength. At the beginning of January there were 5,500 horses and 4,500 mules; at the end only 1,100 horses remained. Ammunition also had almost run out, and was being carefully husbanded. But it will throw some light upon the ineffective character of bombardment, when proper precautions are taken, if we say that, though about 12,000 shells were thrown into the town, not more than 35 men were killed and 188 wounded.

It is probable that the Boers recognised retirement to be inevitable, and on February 20 General Louis Botha is said to have telegraphed from Colenso that the burghers were "knocked up," and would not be able to hold their position much longer. Two days later Sir Redvers Buller's advance from that place began, and the Ermelo and Middelburg commandos were attacked in a difficult country between Grobler's Kloof and Railway Hill. On the evening of the 23rd the Inniskilling Fusiliers, and a company each of the Dublin Fusiliers and the Connaught Rangers, advanced to attack the latter height. They were met by a murderous fire, the men were literally mown down, and the Inniskillings, very heavily attacked the next morning, were driven back, leaving their wounded on the hill. Many of our officers fell, and only four of those with the Inniskillings returned.

Further progress through a place thoroughly commanded by entrenchments and subjected to a converging fire was impossible. The troops, therefore, once more returned across the river on the 26th, and another passage was successfully effected at a point more to the east. The movement was made with great celerity, and General Barton (who was wounded in the fighting), with two battalions of the 6th Brigade, attacked and captured Pieter's Hill on the 27th, after scaling a precipitous cliff of 500-ft. By this success the enemy's position was partly turned, and the 4th and 11th Brigades under Sir Charles Warren then assailed the main position, which was magnificently carried, the Boers scattering in all directions. The victory was more complete than Sir Redvers Buller had anticipated. The enemy recognised the hopelessness of the position, and the defenders in hot haste followed their comrades, who had already fled through the passes, and on March 2 no trace of them remained in the district of Ladysmith. It is unnecessary, even if it were possible, to describe the enthusiasm of the garrison when the troops marched in, and the Empire is grateful to them for their long defence and their unfaltering endurance, and not less to the brave officers and men who have liberated them from the foe. It is not only in Natal that we see the effect of Lord Roberts's advance. On the Southern Frontier the Boers are in full retreat. Colesberg has been occupied by General Clements, and General Brabant, who has seized Jamestown, inflicting a serious blow upon the Boers and rebels, is reported to be attacking them at Labuschagne's Nek. The enemy's position at Stormberg must be untenable, and perhaps before these lines appear the whole of northern Cape Colony will be again in our hands.

Digitized by Google

Our Auxiliary Forces for South Africa.

NOTHING more striking has been the outcome of the present war in South Africa than the proof it has afforded of the enormous strength added to our offensive and defensive power by the Auxiliary Forces of Militia and Volunteers. The Militia is the old constitutional force of the country, and may, in a way, be said to do for this country what conscription does for other nations; but service in that branch of the Army does not compel a soldier to leave his country.

When, however, the war tocsin sounded and the country had to be in a large measure denuded of regular troops, an immense number of Militia battalions were embodied, and with one accord practically all have volunteered for the front. English, Irish, Scotch, and Welsh regiments have vied with one another in their eagerness to cross 7,000 miles of ocean to fight for their Queen, their country, and their flag, in the land of kopjes and veldt. Not only have the Militia been thus keen in their eagerness to see active service, but throughout the country the Volunteers have been equally anxious to share with their comrades of the Regular Army the hardships and dangers of active service, while those yeomen who are such types of our sturdy Saxon progenitors have and are supplying thousands of men who can ride and shoot, and who with a very brief training will be turned into splendid mounted infantry. Of types of all these "Soldiers of the Queen" we are able to give illustrations on this and the following pages. Already seven battalions of Militia are on service in South Africa, and it is not improbable that some may have shared in Lord Roberts's advance into the Free State, though the complete details

Photo. Copyright. OFFICERS OF THE 5th NORTHUMBERLAND FUSILIERS. Russell & Sons.
Commanded by Lord Algernon Percy.

Photo. Copyright. OFFICERS OF THE 5th ROYAL DUBLIN FUSILIERS. A. Debenham, Ryde.
Commanded by Colonel H. C. Gernon.

Photo Copyright. Lafayette.
OFFICERS OF THE 3rd EAST LANCASHIRE—COMMANDED BY COLONEL J. E. BUTLER-BOWDON.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

LORD LOCH'S COMPANY OF IMPERIAL YEOMANRY.
Corporal and Trooper in Service Kit.

of his force are not, as we write, to hand. Some twenty or more battalions have already embarked or are about to do so. Of these several are here illustrated.

The first of our pictures shows the officers of the Militia battalion of the old "Fighting Fifth," one of the most famous corps in the Service, which has not gone to South Africa, but is now in garrison at Malta. In peace-time its headquarters are at Alnwick, and it was formerly the 3rd Battalion, but as two line battalions, the 3rd and 4th, are now raising for the regiment, it has become the 5th. The honorary colonel of the corps is the Duke of Northumberland, and the officer who commands it is his second son, Lord Algernon Percy, a keen soldier, who was once adjutant of the Grenadier Guards. He is seated in the centre of our picture, and on his right, easily distinguishable by his likeness to his distinguished relative, is his second-in-command, Lord Lionel Cecil, youngest half-brother of the Marquess of Salisbury. Many well-known Northumbrian families have representatives in the regiment, and there are no less than three Joiceys, one a captain and two lieutenants, all sons of Sir James Joicey, the member for the Chester-le-Street division of Durham. The other two pictures on the same page represent the officers of the 5th Dublin Fusiliers and the 3rd East Lancashire Regiment, both of which regiments have gone to the front. The first-named is one of the smartest Irish Militia battalions, the honorary colonel of which is the Earl of Meath. The regiment has its headquarters at Dublin, and was, before the territorial organisation, the Dublin County Militia. The 3rd East Lancashire Regiment has its headquarters at the busy town of Burnley, and was formerly the 5th Royal Lancashire Militia. Its honorary colonel is a well-known Lancashire baronet and sportsman, Sir John Thursby of Ormerod House, Burnley.

On another page other Militia regiments are to be seen, namely, the 6th Middlesex and 4th Yorkshire. The former, whose headquarters are at Hounslow, was formerly the Royal East Middlesex Militia, and goes out to South Africa under the command of Colonel Helme, C.B., an ex-regular, who formerly belonged to the Wiltshire Regiment. Colonel Helme obtained the civil decoration of the Bath in 1898.

In other of our pictures the men of this regiment and of the Yorkshires are shown breakfasting in the shed at Tilbury before embarkation. During the recent bitter weather many corps had long and trying night railway journeys before reaching their port of departure, and the hot coffee and substantial meal provided for them were doubly welcome. The other Militia battalion of which some of the men are seen, is the old North York Militia, now the 4th Battalion of the Princess of Wales's Own (Yorkshire) Regiment. This battalion, which comes from Richmond in Yorkshire, goes to the front under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel J. W. Richardson. We have also interesting pictures of Volunteers and Yeomanry.

It must be remembered that besides that splendid contingent that the City of London supplied to the army in South Africa, the City Imperial Volunteers, a large number of regiments have supplied a company to the line battalions to which they territorially belong, or to some battalion with which they have connection.

Thus the London Scottish sent a company to the Gordon Highlanders, and the London Irish to the Irish Rifles. Various specimens of these drafts are shown on our full page of illustrations. The first group represents Highland Volunteers of the Argyll and Sutherland, who come from the seven Volunteer battalions of that regiment, which comprise three Renfrewshire, one Stirling, one Argyll, one Dumbarton, and one Clackmannan and Ross.

Below these again are more Scotsmen who

Photos. Copyright. Gregory.

SAYING GOOD-BYE TO FATHER.
A Trooper of the Duke of Cambridge's Own.

Digitized by Google

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL G. C. HELME, C.B
Commanding the 6th Battalion Middlesex Regiment.

A COMFORTING MEAL.
Men of the 6th Middlesex.

Photos. Copyright. WELCOME AFTER A COLD JOURNEY. "Navy & Army."
Men of the 4th Yorkshire.

have left to join the King's Own Scottish Borderers, whose affiliated Volunteer battalions are four in number, the Roxburgh and Selkirk, the Berwickshire, the Dumfries, and the Kirkcudbright and Wigtown. In another group are shown some of the Volunteer service company of the Bedfordshire, which has three Volunteer battalions, one belonging to the County of Bedford and two to Hertfordshire. A West Country battalion is illustrated in another picture, which shows a squad of the service company drawn from the five Volunteer battalions of the Devonshire Regiment. Other pictures again give Yeomanry types. Besides the companies supplied from counties, several special corps have been affiliated to this organisation. Notable among these is that known as the Duke of Cambridge's Own. Its members provide the entire cost of their own outfit, passage, and expenses throughout the war, and all the pay they are entitled to goes to the wives and families of the soldiers killed in action—as fine a way of showing true patriotism as could well be imagined. The Duke of Cambridge accompanied the corps to Southampton on the day of embarkation, and, in a speech made after he had inspected them, said that he hoped they would have a great success, and he looked forward to the result with confidence. In war ups and downs must be expected, and nobody should feel disheartened because at one moment victory seems on our side and at another we are less successful. The very fact that a body of men such as he was then addressing was going to the front proved to the Duke that the sentiment of the nation was in the right. They showed that they were imbued by the sentiment which should be the feeling of every Englishman in every part of the world. No doubt they were going to have a rough time of it. They were not accustomed to discipline, but he asked them to take his advice and not to mind whether the orders they received were pleasant or otherwise. They must submit to orders. In conclusion he wished them God-speed, and hoped and trusted he might see every one of them return flushed with victory. He wished them a satisfactory voyage out and a great success in the field.

Another picture shows a corporal and a trooper of the company which has been raised at the expense of Lord Loch. The qualification for enlistment in this company is, in addition to the riding and shooting tests, the possession of a practical experience of South Africa. This corps should have a specially useful future before it on its arrival, all the more so because a large percentage of the men who belong to it have seen service in one or other of our many colonial wars.

According to the Marquess of Lansdowne there are now thirty battalions of Militia on their way to the seat of war, seven other battalions holding our fortresses, and yet 77,000 Militiamen are still left in this country. The Volunteer is, under present regulations, entitled to a pension if wounded or invalided when called out on actual military service.

Digitized by Google

THE NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

VOL. IX.—No. 163.] SATURDAY, MARCH 17th, 1900.

Photo. Copyright. Cumming.

OBEYING HIS COUNTRY'S CALL.

Typical of what has happened to many a bonny lass is the incident here depicted, for her lad has to leave her at his country's call. Perhaps he was a Reservist and the wedding day was already fixed when the call to arms came. We heartily wish the couple a joyous reunion.

Digitized by Google

SISTER KENDALL.
Of the Army Nursing Service.

SISTER MAGILL.
Army Nursing Service.

IT may be looked upon as a rule with this country that we invariably commence a campaign by showing our unpreparedness for it, and, with one great exception, we have in the present operations in South Africa quite lived up to our reputation. That one notable exception is in regard to all that concerns the sanitation of the Army, for never yet in our history have we started on a war better equipped for this work than we are to-day. From stretcher companies to superb hospital ships and base hospitals our medical organisation is most complete, and in no respect more than in the staff of nursing sisters who have gone to the front, and the portraits of four of whom, just gone from England, are here given. These sisters left for South Africa on the 24th ult., and an official return completed up to that date shows that our total of wounded included no less than 457 officers and 5,338 non-commissioned officers and men. Moreover there is a large number of sick to swell this huge total, and though 79 officers and 2,227 rank and file have been sent home sick and wounded, there remains an immense number still requiring care, and above all good nursing, in our hospitals in South Africa. So it goes without saying that the good sisters whose portraits are here given will find plenty of work to their hands when they arrive on the scene. The wounds inflicted in this campaign are curiously enough either

Photos Copyright.

SISTER CARR.
Army Nursing Service.

SISTER HILL.
Army Nursing Service.

Russell & Sons.

Digitized by Google

A RIVER GUARD ON THE YANG-TSE-KIANG.
The Shallow-draught Gun-boat "Snipe."

those that submit most readily to medical and surgical treatment, or else the most difficult to deal with, the reason being that the Mauser itself is the most merciful bullet used by any troops, but when the hard casing is purposely split by the Boers in infraction of every rule of civilised warfare, it becomes a projectile of the most shattering and explosive character.

IN several parts of the world Her Majesty's Navy has to do its work miles away inland, in the hearts of great continents, and shallow-draught steamers specially constructed for river service are necessary for this purpose. One such is shown in our illustration, bearing the very appropriate name of "Snipe," which was commissioned for service on the Yang-tse-Kiang last October. A glance at the picture will show how excellently she is suited for her purpose, and that her officers and crew have good airy accommodation and as much protection from a tropical sun as is feasible. We can easily fancy how a command of this kind must delight the soul of a keen young officer. In her he takes as much pride as he would in the biggest first-class battle-ship. She is his own, fifty times more comfortable than a destroyer, and—not the least advantage—his command probably gives him opportunities for getting excellent shooting. The "Snipe" is one of eight boats of her class, six built by Messrs. Yarrow at Poplar, and two by Messrs. Thornycroft at Chiswick. They are built in water-tight sections, and put together on arrival at their stations. The "Snipe," "Woodlark," "Woodcock," and "Sandpiper" are on the China station, the "Heron" and "Jackdaw" on the Niger, and the "Nightingale" and "Robin" have not yet left home.

THE life of every gun, like all things else, has its limit, for after a certain number of rounds have been fired the rifling is spoiled and the gun has more or less lost its power and accuracy. The reason for this is that with the slow-burning powders now in vogue the erosion is very great, and consequently the grooves of the rifling are worn away after a certain number of rounds have been fired. The larger the gun the shorter is its lease of life, gauged by the number of rounds that can be fired from it. But this lease of life can be renewed by the very simple expedient of relining the gun, that is, renewing the A or centre tube around which the gun is built up. In the most recent types of guns an inner A tube, having its outer surface roughened to prevent any turning movement, is driven into the A tube, and a gun with the A tube so lined can be easily repaired after the bore has become worn by erosion, for only the inner tube or lining requires renewal.

Getting heavy guns in and out is a task at which Jack is especially smart, as he has shown recently in South Africa, where numbers of heavy guns have been unshipped and sent up for field service to the front. The Bluejacket is in truth a smart and wonderfully "handy man."

FOR ALTERATION AND REPAIR
Hoisting a big Gun Out of a Cruiser.

AS is noted above, Jack is a handy man at shipping and unshipping the big guns with which he fights his country's battles, and one of the biggest tasks of the kind to which he can be put is the placing in position a gun of the type shown in the accompanying illustration. This is one of the four 12-in. guns that are carried in pairs in the barbettes of our big battle-ships, the particular one here shown being destined to find a home in one of the barbettes of the "Formidable," one of the most recent and powerful of our battle-ships now completing at Portsmouth.

This type of gun, though not the heaviest or largest used in the Navy, is more powerful than the 13·5-in. and longer-

From Photos. A FORMIDABLE WEAPON. By a Naval Officer.
A 12-in. 45-ton Gun for the "Formidable."

Digitized by Google

lived than either that or the 16·25-in.

The weight of the guns is from 45 to 50 tons, according to the mark, and with a charge of 167½-lb. of cordite they throw a 850-lb. projectile with a muzzle velocity of 2,367 foot-seconds, and a muzzle energy of 33,020 foot-tons. This projectile will, at a distance of 2,000-yds., pierce over 2-ft. of wrought iron with almost as much ease as a knife runs into a pat of butter. Of course with a charge and projectile of this weight a gun cannot be in the ordinary sense quick-firing, but so perfect is the breech mechanism that it is capable of being worked by a child with the greatest ease, and it can be opened and closed almost as rapidly as that of a "four-point-seven."

Copyright. THE "IRRESISTIBLE." Fuller.
Now Completing at Chatham.

THIS year the Naval Estimates only propose the laying down of two new battle-ships, but during the year there will be under construction no less than seventeen. Of these six belong to the class of which our illustration shows the prototype, and comprise the "Formidable," "Irresistible," "Implacable," "London," "Bulwark," and "Venerable."

These splendid vessels are the largest in the Navy, for they are of 15,000 tons displacement, very speedy, for they can steam 18 knots, and most powerful, for they carry four 12-in. guns in barbettes, twelve 6-in. quick-firers in their secondary battery, and sixteen 12-pounders, six 3-pounders, and eight Maxims in their auxiliary battery.

By this time twelve months the first three named will be completely equipped, and some time before if necessary, whilst the other three will be ready to hoist the pennant before the close of 1901.

DURING the war the Volunteers, whether they came from home, Australia, or Canada, or have been raised in Cape Colony or Natal, have done superbly the work that has been given them to do, but none have done better than the Canadians. Of them Lord Roberts says; "The Canadian Regiment has done admirable service since its arrival in South Africa," and after regretting the loss the regiment suffered in the fighting of the 18th ult., sends to the people of Canada an assurance of "how much we all here admire the conspicuous gallantry displayed by our Canadian comrades."

And in the dashing advance that consummated the victory that commemorated the nineteenth anniversary of Majuba, was it not the Canadians who were in the forefront, side by side with Her Majesty's Sappers, Highlanders from Aberdeen, and "Light Bobs" from the shadow of the Wrekin, and whose dashing advance, as Lord Roberts declares, "apparently clinched matters"?

"At 3 a.m.," says his Lordship, in the despatch, speaking of the surrender of Cronje and the previous hard fighting, "a most dashing advance, made by the Canadian Regiment and some Engineers, supported by the 1st Gordon Highlanders and 2nd Shropshires, resulted in our gaining a point some 600-yds. nearer the enemy, and within 80-yds. of his trenches, where our men entrenched themselves, and maintained their position until morning—a gallant deed, worthy of our colonial comrades, and which, I am glad to say, was attended with comparatively slight loss."

The Special Service Battalion of Canadian Infantry, whose deeds have rung throughout the Empire, is under the command of Colonel W. D. Otter, of the Canadian General Staff, an officer of long service and experience. His substantive appointment is that of Officer Commanding the Royal Canadian Infantry, part of the permanent forces of the Dominion, which has its headquarters at Toronto (Ontario), and other depôts at London (Ontario), St. John's (Quebec), and Fredericton (New Brunswick).

Colonel Otter is A.D.C. to the Governor-General, and saw service with his regiment in the suppression of Riel's Rebellion in 1885. He is a fine type of those gallant officers who have rendered such good service to the Empire, and who are now doing so much to bind it still more firmly together.

THE HEROES OF PAARDEBERG—COLONEL OTTER AND A DETACHMENT OF CANADIAN INFANTRY.

From a Photo by Kind Permission of the "Daily Graphic."

Digitized by Google

WHEN we hear that the War Office is disposed to give favourable consideration to the proposal to form a regiment of Irish Guards, our first inclination is to say, "What a pity we did not think of it before adding third battalions to the Coldstreams and the Scots." It would have been so easy to have arranged the thing then, whereas now the difficulty will be to find a place. But that comment would not be very rational, since the peculiar combination of circumstances and of feeling—what Prince Bismarck would have called the psychological moment—had not been reached when the third battalions were added to the Coldstreams and the Scots. The regiment could have been raised, beyond all question; the Government had only to let it be known that Irishmen who served in the Guards would establish a claim to be taken into the Constabulary, and it would have had the pick of the farmers' sons all over Ireland. Yet though it would have been done, the measure would not have had the grace it would have now. The difficulty of finding a place for a new regiment of Guards in our Army scheme is also, perhaps, not so great after all. We have decided to add new battalions to several regiments, but as yet have not got beyond the stage of merely having made the plan. Nothing can be simpler than to make a slight alteration, and to provide that a regiment of Guards shall be formed in lieu of two or three of these proposed second battalions. Since the Household troops now go on foreign service, this would make no diminution in the number of men available for the general work of the Army.

* * * *

Nothing is more superfluous than to point out that the Irishman is, and always has been, an admirable soldier for whomsoever he has fought, and in the course of centuries his services have been given to many masters. The French was not the only army which included an Irish Brigade by any means. There were soldiers of that nationality serving the Emperor, and others who fought for Spain even as late as the Peninsular War. In the last century the Irish Roman Catholic gentleman who wished to follow the profession of arms had not much chance of doing so except in foreign service. Our establishments were small, and there was not much room for him in them. The question of religion, too, was an obstacle, though not a very insurmountable one; although in theory Roman Catholics ought not to have held commissions, there were many who did, both in the Army and Navy. Terence O'Brien, in Marryat's story of "Peter Simple," refers to the subject, but, as we see, his religion did not prevent him from getting the command of the "Rattlesnake," nor from becoming Sir Terence. As for Roman Catholics in the ranks, they abounded, and must have been, in fact, very nearly a half, if not more than a half, of the Duke's army in Spain. That was about the proportion of Irishmen among his British troops, and the percentage of them which was drawn from the Protestant population of Ulster was never large. Fortunately the notion that Her Majesty would not be safe under the protection of a regiment of Roman Catholic Irish Guards will now hardly occur to the mind of those who live in the greatest possible terror of the Pope.

* * * *

When Commandant Cronje was lately holding out at Paardeberg, to the annoyance of some among us who were impatient for good news, there were some comments made on what was called his obstinacy which were not greatly to our honour. It was said that he was depriving himself of the right to honourable treatment by his contumacy, and rather bullying references were made to the old rule which deprived the defender of an untenable position of all right to quarter. People who talked like this must have had a vague notion of the rule about which they were speaking. It applied only to the garrison of a fortified town which put the besieging army to the expense of a storm, and it only held good when the town was visibly indefensible and no relief was to be expected. The formula was when the counterscarp was blown in and a breach was made in the body of the place. There was no trouble about finding out whether those conditions were fulfilled in the case of a regularly fortified town. It would be a question as to how to get the equivalent of them in the case of troops taking advantage of the formation of the ground to make a long fight in the open. But those who were so shocked with the contumacy of Commandant Cronje cannot have reflected on all the meaning of what they said. In reality they were adopting the amazing doctrine that whenever the odds are very long against you, and the chance of success is small, you are justified in surrendering at once. If this is to become the principle of the British Army (which I do not believe), its doings in the future will be singularly unlike its history in the past. There is, perhaps, too much talk in the "scientific" school about the reasons there always are for retiring, and for thinking it of no use to go on when you are "out of action." If men once look about for excuses of that kind, they will soon begin to find them at every turn. "Out of action" is a pretty phrase, but a man is never out of action while he can deliver a blow. Neither can he know that he will not turn the tide by holding out for another ten minutes.

* * * *

As regards this particular passage of the war in South Africa, Commandant Cronje was not only justified in what he did, but was under an obligation of honour to do it. He was in the position of an officer who is making a rear-guard fight to cover the general retreat of his own army. His duty is to delay the advance of the other side to the utmost of his power. If he can do that and save his own command, so much the better; if he cannot, then he is still bound to make the most prolonged fight he can. A signal example of the successful conduct of a rear guard was given by Ney when he covered the retreat of Massena from Portugal, in 1810. Then he repeatedly delayed Wellington's advance by offering a bold front at some strong post, thereby forcing the English general to employ time in making elaborate flanking movements, and then slipping out when he was in peril of being surrounded. Yet it never entered into the head of any officers of ours to accuse him of criminal obstinacy, or indeed to pass any judgment on him, except that he was doing his duty very finely, and as any one of them would have wished to do in similar circumstances. This fretful impatience with an enemy who fights his best is a bad sign—or rather would be if one could suppose that it was shared by our troops in the field, which is plainly not the case. Of course we can, if we like, say that nobody who resists us for a good space, and with some success, shall be received to quarter when we get the upper hand. Armies have acted on that rule before now; but if we are going to make it our law, we had better take great care that British troops are not put in the position to need quarter themselves. Quite akin to this foolish scolding of Commandant Cronje is the rather vulgar shouting over the Boer retreat a few days later than the surrender. Did any mortal man suppose that 8,000 or 10,000 Boers in the open were going to stand till 45,000 of our troops had outflanked them on both sides? If they were the kind of people to do that, they would be as easy to defeat as Dervishes—and this war would not give us all the trouble it does.

* * * *

It is very much what one would expect that, while foolish talk of this kind is audible here, and while some of us are not ashamed to write vulgar abuse of Commandant Cronje in the papers, he is treated with marked civility by Lord Roberts. There is hardly an exception to the rule that the people who bluster and are all for brutal measures are those who stay at home. When one is on the spot one feels differently. In the first place, every good workman has respect for the good work in his own art done on the other side. Then there is a certain element of enlightened selfishness which works. When one is opposed to a serious adversary one begins to have a lively appreciation of what is meant by the phrase "the fortune of war." Even during the successful operations round and after Paardeberg a detachment of our men were carried off as prisoners. What happens to one may happen to another, and while that is so nobody at the front is eager for a no quarter war.

DAVID HANNAY.

Digitized by Google

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.
A PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WORLD'S NEWS.
OFFICES:- 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, LONDON W.C.

NOTICE.—The Editor will be pleased to receive for consideration photographs and literary contributions, as well as information of prospective Naval or Military events which it might be considered advisable to illustrate. Contributors are requested to place their names and addresses on their MSS., and on the backs of photographs, which should be carefully packed and accompanied by descriptions of their subjects. The Editor will not be responsible for the return of artistic or literary contributions which he may not be able to use, and the receipt of a proof must not be taken as evidence that an article is accepted. Publication in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED alone will be recognised as acceptance. Where stamps are enclosed, the Editor will do his best to return those contributions which he does not require. If it is desired that rejected photographs should be returned, a sufficiently stamped and directed label must be enclosed for the purpose.

Imperial Patriotism.

IN that black week which brought us news of our December reverses, the nation passed through a fiery ordeal. It passed through it with a firmness and a courage that extorted admiration from the most hostile critics. We have just had to undergo another test of our steadiness and determination—a test of a lower kind, but yet one by which nations have often been tried and found wanting. The first instalment of the war bill has been presented for payment. To shout in patriotic unison is easy and exciting, to pay is never pleasant, and often not at all easy. Fortunately, from this test also the nation comes out with unshaken dignity and resolve. It has responded ungrudgingly to the stirring appeal made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Every class of the community is ready to bear its share of the burden, and to show that it will "shrink from no sacrifice which the honour of our country and our duty to the Empire demand." Nor will it be otherwise when the rest of the bill has to be settled. We know what we want in South Africa, we are determined to get it, and we are willing to pay the cost.

We also know what reforms and reorganisations we must have at home as the direct result and outcome of the war. One of these may possibly be a reform of our system of taxation. A more pressing need, and one about which we are all more thoroughly agreed, is a complete reorganisation of the Army and of our military methods. A great deal is being talked just now about Home Defence. Our best Home Defence is our first fighting line, the Navy. So long as we keep our Navy strong enough to cope with any probable combination of hostile Powers, we need have little fear for the integrity of our shores. Home Defence is not our difficulty nearly so much as the need of a fairly large, thoroughly trained and equipped Army, which can be ready at any moment to go anywhere it may be wanted. This is what we must have. How we are to get it is a question not easily answered as yet. Opinions are in a state of flux. The Government say we can rely upon voluntary enlistment. Mr. Sidney Low, on the other side, speaks for a large body of opinion when he tells us in the Nineteenth Century that the voluntary system is a broken reed. At present, the more discussion there is the better. Too many cooks spoil the broth if they are allowed to interfere when once the pot is on the fire. But there is no harm in having suggestions beforehand as to how the broth should be seasoned from as many cooks as possible.

There is one course open to Her Majesty's advisers in connection with Army reorganisation which would certainly be popular, and might do much to strengthen the Imperial bond. This is to bring Greater Britain as well as Great Britain within the scope of their scheme. The eagerness with which our countrymen over-seas have thrown themselves into the South African struggle is the happiest omen we could desire of their consent to take their fair share in bearing the military burdens of the Empire. It seems but the other day that we were welcoming the colonial detachments which came to march with us in the Jubilee processions. Now they have not only marched out with our troops but into something very different from a procession—they have bled with them, they have died in the Imperial cause, time after time their steadiness and gallantry have won our ringing cheers and stirred in us a feeling of kinship and unity warmer than we have ever known before. Many who had set little store by the ties which bind Mother Country and colonies felt for the first time what these ties really mean when with a thrill of sad pride they read the earliest list of "Colonial killed and wounded."

There is, then, a great opportunity offered to us of laying great bases, if not for eternity, at any rate for a long and glorious future. We have the opportunity of settling the lines upon which an Imperial military force may be established, upon which (to quote a sentence from Sir John Seeley's "Expansion of England") "some organisations may gradually be arrived at which may make the whole force of the Empire available in time of war." That opinion tends this way is clear. It is proved by such questions as that asked in the House of Commons a day or two ago as to whether, in view of the brilliant services of the colonial troops, the time has not come to create a body of "Imperial Guards," to act as bodyguards of Her Majesty's colonial representatives; it is proved by the military enthusiasm that possesses the colonies themselves; it is proved by the growing recognition of the right and duty of every part of the Empire to take its share in Imperial obligations. The visit which the Australian Premiers are to pay to London in a few months' time to settle the last details of Australian federation will happen, from this point of view, at a very convenient season. The outlines of a plan could then be discussed informally, and the views of the colonial authorities ascertained.

That the colonies would at the present moment enter willingly into such a scheme there is little doubt. The advantage of a widely-scattered defensive Army which could concentrate a large force very quickly at any point of attack would be, from their own standpoint, very great. In the coming century the British world-state will have, in all probability, to hold its own by force and tenacity in all quarters of the globe. If we are satisfied, as we believe all parts of the Empire to be satisfied, that it is better to hold together as a world-state than to break up into small and insignificant polities, we must provide the means for holding together in the face of attack. The writing is upon the wall. Let us ponder it well, and, when we have resolved, lose no time in putting our resolution into effect.

THE NAVY AND ARMY DIARY.

MARCH 18, 1778.—Action at Quintius Bridge. Lieutenant-Colonel Mawhood, with a foraging party, having landed at Salem, received information of an intended attack on his troops by a large force. Making a feint of retiring, he drew a division of the Americans into an ambuscade and routed them. 1819.—Storm of Choora. The Thacoor of Choora being in rebellion against the Gaicawar State, the East India Company's agent directed Captain Gilchrist to support the troops of the country against the fortress, which was carried by assault. Defeat of Mahrattas. Lieutenant-Colonel Fraser, with a detachment of the Royals, the 30th and 67th Regiments, the Madras European Regiment, and a native battalion captured Holker's pettah at Asseerghur.

March 19, 1779.—Surrender of Mahé. At the close of 1778, the only French possession in India was Mahé, on the Malabar Coast; the place surrendered to Colonel Braithwaite without a shot being fired. 1810.—Action on the Agueda. A furious assault by the French on the pickets of the allies, under General Crawford, posted on the River Agueda was repulsed after a hand-to-hand contest. 1812.—Sortie from Badajos repulsed. General Vielland sallying from the Talavera Gate was driven back with a loss of 300 men by Major-General Bowes. 1814.—Action of Vic Bigorre. General D'Erlon, who had been directed by Soult to take post at Vic Bigorre and check the advance of the allies, was surprised and defeated by the allies under General Picton. 1858.—Final Relief of Lucknow by Sir Colin Campbell. The siege began on March 8, and, after successive assaults, the enemy retreated. The relieving force lost 467 killed and wounded.

March 20, 1760.—Skirmish at Calvaire. A small force under Captain M'Donald, from Quebec, surprised and put to flight a strong party of French at Calvaire, near Augustine. 1803.—The Fort of Rathmahgalle, Ceylon, stormed and carried by Captain Beaver. 1807.—Alexandria surrendered to an expedition under Major-General Fraser. 1814.—Combat at Tarbes. Defeat of the French under Soult by Wellington. 1885.—General Graham carries the Arab position at Hasheen. 1896.—Akasheh, Soudan, occupied by British and Egyptian troops.

March 21, 1791.—Bangalore stormed and carried by Lord Cornwallis. The enemy in their flight crowded and choked the gateway. A deplorable carnage ensued, and the bodies of more than 1,000 of the garrison were buried after the assault. 1801.—Battle of Alexandria. In spite of the superiority of the French cavalry and artillery, our troops, under Sir Ralph Abercromby, gained a decisive victory, and Menou, the French commander-in-chief, retreated on Alexandria with a loss of 2,000 men. Our losses were heavy, amounting to 1,400. Sir Ralph Abercromby received a wound from which he died, and Major-General Moore, Brigadier-Generals Oakes, Hope, and Colonel Paget were also included in the list of casualties. 1881.—Peace concluded with the Boers.

MARCH 19, 1757.—The "Mignonne," 20, one of a French frigate squadron in the Bay of Biscay, taken by the "Æolus," 32. 1779.—The "Arethusa," 32—the original "Saucy Arethusa"—wrecked on the Molène, near Ushant, while chasing a French frigate. 1867.—Admiral Sir Phipps Hornby died. 1870.—The "Hotspur" launched.

March 20, 1780.—Action between the "Lion," 64, "Bristol," 50, and "Janus," 44, under Commodore Cornwallis, and five French sail of the line—two 74's, one 64, and two 32's—in the West Indies. 1796.—Action between Sir J. B. Warren's "Western Squadron," of four frigates, and four French frigates with a corvette off the Penmarch. 1805.—Destruction of the "Général Ernouf" privateer in action with the British "Renard," 18, off Cuba. 1843.—Admiral Sir Charles Frederick Hotham born. 1854.—The British Fleet, under Sir Charles Napier, arrived in the Baltic. 1886.—The "Fearless" launched. 1896.—The "Dido" launched. 1897.—The "Europa" launched. The "Leopard," torpedo-boat destroyer, launched.

March 21, 1793.—Lieutenant John Western, of the "Syren," 32, killed in action off the Dutch coast, the first officer to lose his life in the great war. 1800.—The "Petrel," 16, took the "Ligurienne," 16, off Marseilles, driving also a French 14-gun brig and a 6-gun xebec ashore. 1806.—Boats of the "Colpoys," 16, cut out three armed Spanish luggers in Avilas Harbour, coast of Spain.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

THE march of General French into Kimberley was an event that will long re-echo in the history of South Africa. The Diamond City welcomed enthusiastically the troopers who had ridden so well to its aid, making havoc of the deep-laid plans of the Boers. Then began the restoration of the late-beleaguered place to its prosperity, and our illustration of the first train steaming to the town will possess very keen interest for many. Railways have played a large part in this war, and the "Cape to Cairo" line was the means employed by Lord Roberts for his invasion of the Free State, with an advanced base at Modder River. Kimberley sprang into existence rapidly after the discovery of diamonds at Du Toit's Pan and Bultfontein in 1870, and railway communication with the Cape was completed in 1884.

An extremely interesting place, too, is Thebus, of which our second picture illustrates the railway bridge. The scene is upon the line from Rosmead Junction to Stormberg, and is the link between the wings of our forces advancing on the Orange River from Naauwpoort and Molteno.

This east and west line through Thebus is also the base of an irregular triangle of lines, of which the sides, crossing the Orange at Norval's Pont and Bethulie, converge at Springfontein Junction, in the Orange Free State, on the direct line to Bloemfontein. Thus we see the very great importance of these railways and how Generals Clements, Gatacre, and Brabant co-operate with Lord Roberts. Within the triangle is a disaffected district, now happily settling down. The special interest of Thebus itself is that General Kelly-Kenny suddenly appeared there with the Sixth Division—sending a flutter through all the Boer commandos at the prospect of a general advance on the Orange—and then as suddenly disappeared to astonish the enemy by his splendid work on the Modder. This rapid transfer of forces was a masterful military move.

The last illustration is of the sombre height of Vaal Krantz, beyond the Tugela, and now that Ladysmith has been relieved and the Boers driven back, we can regard this rugged kop with complacency. The hill is quite characteristic of the rocky isolated heights that rise in the great spurs of the Drakensberg, and seems to be own brother to Spion Kop, which has already been illustrated in these pages.

It was against Vaal Krantz that Sir Redvers Buller directed his main attack on February 6. General Wynne had made a feint on the previous day, after crossing at Potgieter's on the left, while General Lyttelton, who had passed at Harding Drift and seized the low kopjes, attacked the Vaal Krantz ridge.

It was a tremendous struggle, in which we lost heavily and failed, but the gallantry and devotion displayed will be prized in the annals of the Army.

A WELCOME VISITOR FOR KIMBERLEY.
The First Train Steaming to the Diamond City.

THE RAILWAY BRIDGE AT THEBUS.
Where General Kelly-Kenny made His Demonstration.

Photos. Copyright. VAAL KRANTZ KOP ON THE TUGELA. "Navy & Army."
The Place where Many Englishmen Fell.

Digitized by Google

Field Artillery in South Africa.

A HALT BY THE WAY.
A Gunner Removing a Stone from a Horse's Hoof.

ON THE WAY TO BATTLE.

A WELL-EARNED REST.
A Party of Mounted Infantry on Scouting Duty.

LEAVING THE RIVER CAMP.

Copyright. 'Navy & Army

These Reproductions from Photos. by an Officer at the Front present with Life-like Accuracy the Appearance and Movements of the Field Batteries which, both with Lord Roberts and General Buller, have Played a Large Part in Recent Victories.

Digitized by Google

More Yeomanry for South Africa.

GLOSTER'S GLORY.

The Contingent Furnished by Gloucestershire to form the Third Company of the Imperial Yeomanry.

LOYAL ULSTER TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

Men of the Latest Company that Ulster has Contributed to the Yeomanry.

WEST COUNTRYMEN TO THE FORE.

The Contingent of the North Somerset Imperial Yeomanry.

Photos. Copyright. Protheroe, Charleton, and Lewis.

Digitized by Google

Gallant Deeds at

A PANORAMA OF THE TOWN, SHOWING STORES AND OFFICES,

AT the time of writing the relief of Mafeking has not actually taken place, but there are signs that this most desirable consummation will not, in all human probability, be delayed many days longer. It is said that troops have been sent forward from Kimberley with this object, and, in any case, we may rest assured that Lord Roberts will not forget his promise to the gallant little garrison which has so grandly held out for four months and more against tremendous odds and in circumstances of peculiar difficulty. For the isolation of Mafeking was from the first singularly complete, and the attentions paid to it by the enemy have been singularly pressing. The solitary fact that the garrison possessed no heavier artillery than 9-pounders, and that they have been subjected to a continuous bombardment from guns ranging up to a 100-pounder, imported specially from Pretoria for the purpose, is sufficient indication that the defence has been an altogether remarkable achievement. When the relief does take place, there will be many added considerations which will go to swell the pæan of hearty congratulations to "gallant little Mafeking" on its magnificent resistance.

Mafeking without Baden-Powell would seem like the play of "Hamlet" without the Prince of Denmark. But even with Baden-Powell it is almost inconceivable that it should have held out, as it has done, against a force with such immensely superior artillery. The disjointed narratives we have received of the doings of the besieged garrison during the months of everlasting fighting and weary waiting which have elapsed since the place was first invested, make it clear that in this small community a spirit has been displayed which even transcends that exhibited by the garrisons either of Ladysmith or Kimberley. In both the latter cases there were compensations which were altogether absent in that of poor little Mafeking, which, however, has stood a longer siege than either, and with fully equal grit and resolution.

Of the shifts of the ever-resourceful Baden-Powell it would be easy to make a long list, but it would also, perhaps, be a pity to do so pending the complete and authentic narrative which, we may be sure, will be forthcoming as soon as the garrison is set free. It is sufficient to say generally that in this wholly extraordinary cavalry officer the "slimmest" Boer of them all has found more than his match, and that probably no sincerer compliment was ever paid to a British force than Cronje's remark as he left this part of the fighting

THROWING A KICKER.
Some of the Mounts of "B.P.'s Rough-riders" want Careful Handling.

A SHOOTING PARTY.
Setting Out from Mafeking into the Adjoining Native District.

From Photos. by Our Own Correspondents.

Digitized by Google

Beleaguered Mafeking.

AND INDICATING THE DIFFICULTIES OF A PROTRACTED DEFENCE.

area for Magersfontein: "They are not men, those Mafeking folk—they are devils!" Baden-Powell's right-hand man throughout the defence has been the Prime Minister's son, Lord Edward Cecil, and to the united action of these two officers before the siege commenced Mafeking owes its capacity for a protracted resistance in regard to supplies. It was obvious that a special provision of stores was needed, but it would never have been laid in had not Lord Edward Cecil and Colonel Baden-Powell made themselves personally responsible for the expenditure incurred with this object by one of the local storekeepers. The expenditure in question was about £7,000, and the Army and the nation may well be proud of men who, with the knowledge that in such matters the British Government has been known to act with painful parsimony, did not hesitate to pledge their private property as security for an imperial debt of honour. Mafeking was the terminus of the railway until February, 1896. It has always done a quietly flourishing trade since the time when it was first established as a British settlement after the Warren Expedition in 1885. In that year it was laid out as a town by the military authorities, and from the days of its inception, it has generally assumed a more or less military air. It was practically the training ground of that smart, serviceable, and well-disciplined corps, the Bechuanaland Police, whose name and prestige will always be inseparably linked with that of Mafeking. It is a brisk, dressy little town, with its clean compact market square, the appearance of which is now greatly enhanced by the new market hall, a pagoda-like building, well proportioned to its surroundings. Even on dust-stormy days—and Mafeking, in common with all towns on the high veldt, is not exempt from these trying visitations—one is less annoyed by the scudding white sand than with the more filthy genus of the dust fiend prevalent elsewhere.

When the relief of Mafeking is effected, the siege will doubtless seem like a bad dream to some of those who have participated in its mingled triumphs and sorrows. But to the outside world much of the pathos will be lost in the joyful appreciation of the eminently British qualities which this episode has brought into such striking relief. War anywhere and anyhow brings its share of suffering and tragedy, and there are hearts as sore and anxious at home to-day as any in the darkest days of the siege of this townlet. But in a brighter aspect the siege of Mafeking is a well-nigh unique instance of that truly national motto, "It's dogged as does it!"

A BIT OF THE BULUWAYO RAILWAY.
On which such Wonderful Work was Done with Armoured Trains.

THE NATIVE QUARTER AT MAFEKING.
Showing Huts Protected by Stone Breastworks.

From Photos. by Our Own Correspondents.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Paardeberg and Durban.

ONCE MORE VICTORS—LITTLE "BOBS" AND BIG KITCHENER.

Our illustration represents Field-Marshal Lord Roberts, V.C., and Lord Kitchener at Belmont on February 8, only a few days before the commencement of that strategic move which has already brought about the surrender of Cronje's force. With the two generals is Colonel Otter, the commanding officer of the Canadian forces, who have so magnificently shown the grit that is in them, and who appear somewhat prominently on the left of the picture in the form of a guard of honour.

Copyright. "Navy & Army."

A MAN OF MANY PARTS.

Captain Percy Scott, R.N., Commandant of Durban, by Whose Means the Naval Guns were Got to Ladysmith.

Captain Percy Scott, who is in the centre of the picture, has the reputation of being one of the most scientific and inventive, as he certainly is one of the most popular, officers in the Navy. The other officers, taking them from left to right and beginning at the top, are Mr. Laycock, R.N.; Mr. Brooke, Natal Police; Mr. Alexander, Chief of Police, Durban; Captain Fraser; and Mr. Blanchflower, R.N.; Major Bousfield and Mr. Cullinan, R.N., are seated. These form the staff with whose help Captain Scott has administered Durban.

Digitized by Google

Pushing on with Buller to Ladysmith.

BEFORE THE FIGHT BEGINS.
Generals Studying a Map.

OUR attention was a good deal drawn away a little while ago from the scene of the operations on the Tugela, by news from that other fateful river, the Modder. Then it was called back again, and finally we heard of it for, as we may confidently hope, the last time, as the place where British troops were fighting a slow though ever-varying battle against a tough enemy, who had every advantage of ground. We heard at last that Ladysmith had been relieved. When the day has come for the historian, who will write with all the evidence before him, and plenty of time to weigh his facts and to balance his opinions, it will be possible to say with some approach to confidence how far the relief was the work of the British troops which were turning the right flank of the Boers far away in the country round Kimberley, and how far it was due to those who were pushing up directly against the Boer army on the Tugela. Meanwhile, we know that even if these latter were not the most effective agents in liberating Ladysmith from the constriction that had so long held it bound, it was assuredly not because they did not try. The pictures here given deal with the latter phase of the efforts of our army in Natal, with the advance by Vaal Krantz and Krantz Kloof. They may not be as picturesque as the drawings of the artist who is free to make war look what it ought to look like, that is to say, all fine scenes, full of figures with an heroic air, but they have the merit of a greater fidelity to real life. The British generals who are to be seen here sitting, not to say squatting, on the turf and examining the map, would look finer in full uniform and feathers, but they would not look so workmanlike, nor would they be so true. If there ever was a time when generals in the field were always in full splendour, which is doubtful, it has passed. Long-range weapons have killed the pomp and circumstance to that extent. Indeed, it is to be feared, from the picturesque point of view, that the pomp and circumstance are over for good, except on the parade ground. The soldier as we see him in these illustrations is manifestly dressed for business, which is all the better for various reasons—for his health and convenience among others. Scrambling up such break-neck places as Krantz Kloof is not the kind of work to be done in tight clothes, even when we leave the Boer rifle fire out of the account. Exactly how it all happened we do not yet know, for brief telegrams giving the bare results of advances and retreats leave much to be explained. Only we do make out, in a general way, that the fighting on the Tugela has been most terrible getting up stairs, or, rather, during no small part of the time, a furious effort to get up stairs which were obstinately blocked. The last advance was a welcome change, and those who took part in it will have had much to talk over with GRATIFYING DISAPPOINTMENT.

Outranged Field Artillery Watching the Effect of Naval Guns.

A FIGHTING REINFORCEMENT.
The Gallant Lancashires, who Lost so Heavily, on Their Way to the Front.

From Photos. by Mr. Harford Hartland, Our Special Correspondent.

Digitized by Google

their comrades in Ladysmith, who had waited so anxiously for them, and listened long to the sound of their guns, which alternately approached and receded during many weeks. How much even those who took part could see of what was going on is a question which the stay-at-home ones among us can hardly attempt to settle with any confidence if we are prudent. The men round the gun in our illustration, for example, are reduced to the part of spectators, because their piece was out of range, or, rather, because the enemy was out of range of their piece. It was a moment of quiet and rest for them in the midst of an action in which it was the turn of others to toil. But did they see much? Probably not. The distance was certainly against their chance of distinguishing anything in particular, for a man is an insignificant object at a distance of a mile. But in the heaped up and shattered country beyond the Tugela, much of the fighting went on round the corner, and the very firing was as often as not over the hill. It was not only a matter of guesswork as to where the enemy was, but where exactly our own side was. As for the enemy, he was of the kind often felt without being seen, and most of the wounded who are being carried back to the field hospital tents, in our illustration, had, we may be sure, never set eyes on a Boer. It may have happened to some of them as it happened to a certain wounded officer whose experiences were repeated the other day. He was four times hit and finally invalided home. He came back without having seen a Boer, and saying that he was strongly disposed to believe that there were none in Natal. Somebody fired at him, no doubt, but he had no ocular evidence that the rifle was held by a Boer. To be sure, these enemies have shown no particular anxiety to come into the open, even when they have had such an apparently tempting opportunity as was afforded by the retreat of Sir Redvers Buller's forces back across the river. To take a commanding position on the road we had to follow, to hold it, or, if driven out, to take a still more commanding position behind, has been their method. It has answered for them very well as yet, but, from various indications, it does not appear to be one they will generally be able to follow in future.

THE AFTERMATH OF BATTLE.
Bearers Returning with the Wounded Across the River.

"AH! THE PAIN OF IT."
The Wounded Carried Down After the Battle of Vaal Krantz.

Meanwhile the Boers are gone from the wedge of Natal which runs up between the Orange Free State and the Transvaal. The fight made there by us has served its purpose. Whether all the arrangements were the best possible may be questionable. It rarely happens that the steps taken by generals and politicians are so manifestly right that no fault can be found with them. At any rate, all the fighting in and about Ladysmith, and for its relief, has not been in vain. What would the case have been had the Boers been allowed to gain full possession of the immense natural fortress supplied by the country beyond the Tugela? With no garrison at Ladysmith distracting their attention, they could have made a tremendous fight in such a position.

A SURVIVAL OF PRIMITIVE PROGRESS.
The Last Ox-waggon Crossing the Pontoon Bridge.

From Photos. by Mr. Harford Hartland, Our Special Correspondent.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Reinforcing Lord Roberts's Army.

Photo. Copyright. Stiles.

OFFICERS OF PAGET'S HORSE.

Who Left Yesterday for the Cape.

Photo. Copyright. Cribb.

LOVAT'S HORSE EMBARKING.

Highland Gillies from the Heather.

Photo Copyright. Cribb.

A HEARTY SEND-OFF.

Volunteers Leaving in the "Tintagel Castle."

Photo. Copyright. G. Lekegian & Co., Cairo, Egypt.

FROM CAIRO TO CAPE TOWN.

Lord Cromer Addressing the 1st Battalion Cameron Highlanders in the Kasr El Nil Square previous to its Departure for South Africa.

Digitized by Google

Disposition of Troops in South Africa.

Commander-in-Chief: FIELD-MARSHAL LORD ROBERTS.

I.—Western Border. Troops North of De Aar and in Orange Free State, under Lord Roberts.

Divisional Commanders: Lieutenant-Generals French, Methuen, Kelly-Kenny, Tucker, and Colvile.

CAVALRY (French)
Brabazon and Babington's Brigades.
Household Regiment.
6th Dragoon Guards.
2nd Dragoons.
6th Dragoons (part).
9th Lancers.
10th Hussars.
12th Lancers.
16th Lancers.

ARTILLERY
Horse—G, P, U, Q, T, J, R Batteries.
Field—18th, 37th (Howitzer), 62nd, 75th, 38th, 62nd, 65th (Howitzer), 76th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th Batteries.
Garrison—14th and 23rd Cos. W. Division (latter in Kimberley).

ENGINEERS
7th (Field) Co.
8th (Railway) Co.
11th (Field) Co.
29th (Fortress) Co.
31st (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.
Balloon Section.
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Detachment.

INFANTRY
Pole-Carew's Brigade.
3rd Grenadiers.
1st Coldstreams.
2nd Coldstreams.
1st Scots Guards.
MacDonald's Brigade.
1st Argyll and Sutherland.
2nd Seaforths.
2nd Black Watch.
1st Gordons.
Douglas's Brigade.
1st Northumberland.
2nd Northampton.
1st N. Lancashire.
2nd Yorkshire L.I.
Knox's Brigade.
2nd East Kent.
1st Oxford L.I.
1st West Riding.
2nd Gloucester.
Wavell's Brigade.
2nd North Stafford.
2nd South Wales Borderers.
1st East Lancashire.
2nd Cheshire.
Chermside's Brigade.
2nd Norfolk.
2nd Hampshire.
2nd Lincoln.
1st Scottish Borderers.
Smith-Dorrien's Brigade.
1st Highland L.I.
2nd Cornwall L.I.
1st Munster Fusiliers.
2nd Shropshire L.I.
Brigadier unknown.
1st Suffolk.
1st Essex.
1st Yorkshire.
1st Welsh.

City Imperial Volunteers.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Queensland Mounted Infantry.
Canadian Infantry.
S. African Light Horse (part).
Roberts's Horse.
Rimington's Scouts (part).
Kitchener's Horse.
New South Wales Lancers (part).
New S. Wales Mounted Infantry.
Queensland Mounted Infantry.
New Zealand Mounted Infantry.
Railway Pioneers.

II.—Cape Colony. Troops on Western Line of Communications.

Lieutenant-General Commanding: Sir F. W. E. F. Forestier-Walker.

CAVALRY
7th Dragoon Guards.

ARTILLERY
Horse—A Battery.
Field—2nd, 8th, 43rd (Howitzer), 86th (Howitzer), 87th (Howitzer), 5th, 9th, 17th, 39th, 44th, 66th, 88th Batteries.
Garrison—5th, 10th Cos. E. Division; 2nd, 14th, 15th, 16th, 36th Cos. S. Division; 2nd, 6th, 10th, 14th, 15th, 17th Cos. W. Division.

ENGINEERS
6th (Fortress) Co.
9th (Field) Co.
20th (Field) Co.
38th (Field) Co.
Section 1st Div. Telegraph Bat.
Field Park.
Balloon Gas Factory.

INFANTRY
Militia Battalions.
6th Warwick.
4th Derbyshire.
9th King's Royal Rifles.
3rd South Lancashire.
6th Lancashire Fusiliers.
4th South Staffordshire.
3rd South Wales Borderers.

Imperial Yeomanry (some).

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
New South Wales Artillery.
Duke of Edinburgh's Rifles.
Cape Town Highlanders.
W. Australian Mounted Infantry.
Tasmanian Mounted Infantry.
Cape Garrison Artillery.

III.—Southern Border, operating from Naauwpoort.

CAVALRY
6th Dragoons (part).

ARTILLERY
Horse—O Battery.
Field—4th, 20th Batteries.
Heavy—2 5-in. Howitzers

ENGINEERS
10th (Railway) Co.
26th (Field) Co.
37th (Field) Co.
42nd (Fortress) Co.
Section 1st Division Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
Clements's Brigade.
2nd Bedford.
1st Royal Irish.
2nd Wiltshire.
2nd Worcestershire.
4th Royal Lancaster.
4th Argyll and Sutherland.
Imperial Yeomanry (some)

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Prince Alfred's Vol. Gds. (Cape).
1st City (Grahamstown) Volntrs.
New South Wales Lancers (part).
Rimington's Scouts (part).
Prince Alfred's Own Cape Artll'y.
Australian Horse (Troop).
Victoria Mounted Infantry.
S. Australian Mounted Infantry.

IV.—Southern Border, operating from Queenstown under Gatacre.

ARTILLERY
Field—74th, 77th, 79th Batteries.

ENGINEERS
12th (Field) Co.

INFANTRY
2nd Irish Rifles.
2nd Northumberland.
1st Royal Scots.
2nd Berkshire.
1st Derbyshire.
3rd Durham L.I.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Cape Mounted Rifles.
Det. Cape Mounted Police.
Frontier Mounted Rifles.
Kaffrarian Rifles.
Brabant's Horse.
Montmorency's Scouts.

V.—Natal, under Sir G. White.

CAVALRY
Brocklehurst's Brigade.
5th Dragoon Guards.
5th Lancers.
18th Hussars.
19th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Field—13th, 21st, 42nd, 53rd, 67th, 69th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 10 Battery.*

ENGINEERS
23rd (Field) Co.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
Howard's Brigade.
2nd Gordons.
1st Manchester.
1st Gloucester.†
1st Devon.
Brigadier unknown.
2nd Dublin Fusiliers.
1st King's Royal Rifles.
1st Leicester.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers.†
Not Brigaded.
1st Liverpool.
2nd King's Royal Rifles.
2nd Rifle Brigade.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Border Mounted Rifles.
Natal Field Artillery.
Imperial Light Horse.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Natal Mounted Police (Det.)

* Surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

† Headquarters surrendered at Nicholson's Nek.

VI.—Natal, under Sir Redvers Buller.

CAVALRY
Dundonald's Brigade.
1st Dragoons.
13th Hussars.
14th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Field—7th, 14th, 19th, 28th, 61st (Howitzer), 63rd, 64th, 66th, 73rd, 78th Batteries.
Mountain—No. 4 Battery.

ENGINEERS
17th (Field) Co.
45th (Steam Road Transport) Co.
"A" Pontoon Troop.
Balloon Section.
Section Telegraph Battalion.

INFANTRY
Hildyard's Brigade.
2nd Devon.
2nd West York.
2nd West Surrey.
2nd East Surrey.
Barton's Brigade.
1st Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Irish Fusiliers.
2nd Scots Fusiliers.
2nd Royal Fusiliers.
Norcott's Brigade.
2nd Scottish Rifles.
1st Durham L.I.
3rd King's Royal Rifles.
1st Rifle Brigade.
Hart's Brigade.
1st Inniskilling Fusiliers.
1st Connaught Rangers.
1st Dublin Fusiliers.
1st Border.
Coke's Brigade.
2nd Warwick.
2nd Somerset L.I.
2nd Dorsetshire.
2nd Middlesex.
Kitchener's Brigade.
2nd Royal Lancaster.
2nd Lancashire Fusiliers.
1st South Lancashire.
1st York and Lancaster.

COLONIAL CONTINGENTS
Natal Naval Volunteers.
Natal Carbineers (part).
Durban Light Infantry.
Bethune's Mounted Infantry.
Thorneycroft's Mntd. Infantry.
Imperial Light Infantry.
Natal Mounted Police (Det.).
S. African Light Horse (part).

VII.—Troops under orders or en route for South Africa.

CAVALRY
17th Lancers.
8th Hussars.

ARTILLERY
Horse—M Battery.
Field—89th, 90th, 91st Batteries.

ENGINEERS
"C" Pontoon Troop.
5th (Field) Co.
47th (Fortress) Co.

INFANTRY
Campbell's Brigade.
2nd Grenadiers.
2nd Scots Guards.
2nd East Yorkshire.
2nd Leicester.
Boyes's Brigade.
2nd West Kent.
2nd Manchester.
1st South Staffordshire.
1st Worcester.

1st Sussex (from Malta).
1st Leinster (from Halifax).
1st Cameron H'gh's (from Egypt).
Militia Battalions.
3rd Royal Lancaster.
3rd East Lancashire.
3rd Welsh.
5th Dublin Fusiliers.
4th Somerset L.I.
4th West Yorkshire.
3rd Yorkshire.
4th East Surrey.
6th Middlesex.
3rd Leinster.
5th Munster Fusiliers.
4th North Staffordshire.
3rd Norfolk.
4th Cheshire.
4th Bedford.
3rd West Riding.
3rd K.O. Scottish Borderers.
3rd Royal Scots.
3rd West Surrey.
4th Scottish Rifles.

Antrim Artillery Militia.*
Donegal Artillery Militia.*
Durham Artillery Militia.*
Edinburgh Artillery Militia.*

Australasian and Canadian Contingents.
Imperial Yeomanry.
Duke of Cambridge's Own (special corps I.Y.).
Lord Lovat's Corps of Scouts.
Lumsden's Horse (from India).

* This regiment supplies one company for South Africa.

ARMY SERVICE CORPS.—The following companies are serving in or en route for South Africa: Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38 (Supply), 39, 40, 41, and 42.

Naval Brigades are serving with White in Ladysmith, with Buller in Northern Natal, with Methuen at Modder River, and with the troops under General Gatacre.

The local troops in Rhodesia, under Colonel Plumer, comprise the British South African Police and the Rhodesian Regiment. In Mafeking, with Colonel Baden-Powell, are British South African Police (detachment), Diamond Fields Artillery (detachment), Cape Mounted Police (detachment), the Protectorate Regiment, and Bechuanaland Rifles. In Kimberley, under Colonel Kekewich, there are the Diamond Fields Artillery, Diamond Fields Horse, Kimberley Rifles, and Cape Mounted Police (detachment).

NOTE.—The strength of the various units on a war footing is approximately as follows: A regiment of Cavalry 610; a battery of Artillery, Horse 180, Field 170 (companies of Garrison Artillery vary considerably, but may be taken to average 150; the Siege Train batteries are, however, very largely augmented); a company of Royal Engineers 210; a battalion of Infantry 1,010; and a company Army Service Corps 140.

Digitized by Google

Colonel Baden-Powell.

THE HERO OF MAFEKING.

By Alexander Davis.

THE popular hero among the officers and generals commanding forces in the present campaign is Colonel Baden-Powell, appointed in May, 1897, brevet colonel of the 5th Dragoon Guards, but at present on special service in South Africa. Before hostilities had begun, but when the present conflict appeared imminent, the War Office felt the need of sending out an efficient and experienced officer to superintend the border defences of Rhodesia and Bechuanaland, a stretch of frontier about 500 miles in extent. Under the most favourable circumstances it was scarcely feasible to properly garrison all these outposts with Imperial troops in time to forestall Boer incursions; if reverses were met with it was readily conceded that the task would be insurmountable, which has, unfortunately, proved the case. In casting around for a suitable man the claims of Colonel Baden-Powell to the post were found incontestable. A man of restless energy, wary, and experienced, his past record spoke eloquently in his favour, and he was appointed.

His subordinates were doubtlessly of his own choosing. Colonel Plumer and Major Vyvyan were both old comrades in the Matabele Rebellion, and were at home in the districts destined for operations. It is a moot point to-day—as matters have developed—whether the services of Colonel Baden-Powell would not have been more valuable in the line of advance than on the defensive. The work entrusted to him has been done well—in fact, with the paucity of material to work with, remarkably well—but Baden-Powell in command of the scouts in White's, Buller's, or Methuen's forces might possibly have spelt success where failure resulted. Most of our reverses have been set down to insufficient knowledge of the enemy's dispositions and to the superior craft of the Boers in the veldt. Baden-Powell is up to all their tricks, and can give them points too.

The earliest reverse that has been recorded in the present campaign was the destruction of an armoured train between Vryburg and Mafeking, with the loss of a gun, ammunition, and most of the men. The arms were destined for Baden-Powell, but fell into the hands of the Boers instead. This was a bit of a blow, but Baden-Powell took it very coolly, and doubtless came to the conclusion that as they were so fond of shelling trucks he would allow them some further practice. Having some superfluous dynamite in the stores, he sent a couple of trucks loaded with the explosive down the line and waited for developments. The Boers, elated with their recent success, pounded merrily away, and receiving no response rushed the deserted waggons. The tableau when the show blew up can be left to imagination. The Boers from that time came to respect him. "Here," said they, "is a man who knows a thing or two, and we must be careful." They have been cautious ever since, with the result that the initiative in most of the fighting has been taken by the Colonel; the Boers have been looking on from the distance, simply shelling the town at long range.

Circumstances brought the writer of this article much into contact with the gallant Colonel during the Matabele Rebellion. He was then acting as Chief of the Staff to General Sir Frederick Carrington. The one quality prominent in Baden-Powell, contrasting somewhat with the average officer, is the manner in which he carries out his military duties. Dressed in the plain khaki uniform and slouched hat of South African warfare, there is nothing starched or imposing in his appearance or demeanour. He has neither a poker down his back, padding in his shoulders, nor a forbidding or condescending air in intercourse. He is simply quite natural and generally smiling. In conversation you forget the military man, and only see the shrewd man of the world and courteous gentleman. At the time when many deserved and undeserved sarcasms were uttered against most of the Staff by the civilian population, Baden-Powell—the little that was seen of him in camp—always met with praise. Did he wish something done, or whatever dealings he may have had with the storekeepers, he always arranged matters with the maximum of pleasantness and the minimum of military stiffness or sense of command. Now this is a very important trait in a commanding officer during time of war. It means the whole-hearted aid of civilians and an alacrity in providing for the forces which tact alone can bring forth. We have ample evidence that in Mafeking Baden-Powell has the whole population of the place following him implicity, even to death. The power of command alone will not ensure this. A military leader requires other qualities than bravery and a knowledge of tactics and strategy to become a successful general. All the subordinate qualities required of a military leader Colonel Baden-Powell possesses. His intellectual and artistic abilities are well known. His books on the Ashanti Campaign, on Matabeleland, and on scouting are standard works in military circles. Accompanying these are sketches from his own pen.

Though very highly gifted in many directions, the gallant Colonel is modesty itself. During the Matabele Campaign, as Chief of the Staff and the Intelligence Department, Colonel Baden-Powell was responsible for most of the military maps of the little-known and difficult country occupied by the enemy. On one occasion, after some days and nights of reconnoitring, sometimes alone and sometimes accompanied by an orderly, he had a rough map prepared of that part of the Matoppo Hills selected for the next operations. He sent for the local lithographer and asked him if he could lithograph a few for use of the troops. The task was accepted, and the suggestion made that from Baden-Powell's rough plan a finished sketch could be executed by a local artist, an adept in such work. The Colonel smilingly replied, "Thanks, I'll just line it off myself roughly if you will supply me with the transfer paper." When the sketch was ready the lithographer looked very small indeed, for the talented Colonel had sketched it in as only an adept could do it.

As has been elsewhere remarked, Colonel Baden-Powell's Kaffir name is "Impeesi," which has been rather incorrectly taken to mean "He who scouts in the night." The literal meaning of this native word is hyena, or wolf; it is also applied to those who are in the habit of taking solitary walks after dark. Baden-Powell, in the execution of his duties, leaves very little to chance, or to information brought in by others. Like a true commander, in matters of importance he verifies all intelligence by personal observation. When operating in an unknown or enemy's country what a number of disasters have occurred through either false or incorrect data! In this wise almost all our recent defeats and repulses have occurred. It is highly improbable that, under Colonel Baden-Powell's command, such reverses would have been met with. He may be defeated by superior strength or by cleverer strategy, but by surprise or by tactics he would be a difficult one to catch.

It has been said in South African circles, from information derived from Boer sources, that the Boers have no intention to take Mafeking. The reason given is that Baden-Powell locked up in Mafeking is worth a little army to the Boers, for should he escape and be employed against them with the main columns their superiority in the veldt will disappear. They say that he is the first rooi-baatje they have met who can fight in their fashion and give them points at it. In the Matabele Campaign he had many Afrikanders in the forces under him, and to a man they admired his "slimness" and nerve.

As a concluding example of his resource and readiness of stratagem, only recently at Mafeking he found the Boers very restive owing to his periodical sallies and unexpected attacks. The least movement discerned in the direction of the defences was construed by the Boers into a sally in force. To profit by this nervousness, and cause the Boers to waste their ammunition and expose the position of their trenches, he provided an endless rope running on a pulley affixed to a post some distance out towards the enemy's position. On this rope he fastened lanterns, and in the dead of night started the rope on the move. To the watchful foe it looked for all the world as if the enemy was stealthily approaching, as the lights appeared to be moving in their direction. A fierce fusillade from all points followed, aimed in the direction of the expected attack, and was continued intermittently throughout the night. One can well imagine the resourceful Baden-Powell chuckling in quiet glee with his friend Lord Edward Cecil at the Boers' frantic alarm, for we have chuckled over it much at home.

Always wide-awake, with an iron constitution contained in rather a slight frame, Baden-Powell has by pluck, resource, tact, and determination kept the foe at bay, though occupying a spot which by no aid of the imagination could be deemed moderately capable of defence. Mafeking lies in the open veldt, in the midst of a population mainly consisting of natives of doubtful loyalty and Boers of undoubted enmity; yet, by the splendid efforts of this comparatively young but really brilliant officer, at the head of a mixed force of colonists, the town bravely holds out; has accounted for a considerable number of the enemy, and will probably continue its glorious defence until downright starvation or sheer exhaustion shall perform what a large army of Boers under a wily general could not effect.

Digitized by Google

The Story of the War.

OUT of the various rumours that emanate from Pretoria and Bloemfontein, it is not possible, as these pages go to press, to gauge the real situation among the Boers. What is certain is that the victories of Lord Roberts, coupled with the relief of Ladysmith, have profoundly discouraged them, and there is no reason to doubt that large numbers of the Free Staters would gladly lay down their arms. Presidents Kruger and Steyn have been in conference, and some suggestions in the direction of peace have emanated from their conclave. On the other hand, it would be rash to suppose that the States are prepared to forfeit their independence without another struggle, and we may hope that our own Government is uncompromising.

The military situation developed rapidly, as might have been expected. On every hand our victorious soldiers, directed by their admirable leader, are advancing, and Lord Roberts's sound strategy is bearing its fruit. At the beginning of the war the Boers compelled us to divide our forces, and at one time our course was blocked in every theatre of war, but as strength grew the discomfited commandos found themselves confronted by superior forces everywhere. Generalship seems to have vanished from among them; Joubert and Lukas Meyer are said to be discredited, and Schalk Burger to be disgusted, while De Wet and Delarey are now in command in the Free State.

The enemy depended too much upon their experience of our earlier tactics, and took up a position at Poplar Grove that was quite untenable against turning movements. Their entrenchments were about four miles in front of Osfontein, their right resting upon a high long-backed mountain north of the Modder, and their main force being on the other side, extending over six small kopjes rising from the plain. In general formation the line was something like two crescents joined, and in total extent approached twenty miles from wing to wing. The position had been carefully prepared, and was defended by wire entanglements very cunningly contrived, and the enemy, numbering probably about 14,000, depended upon their mobility to enable them to reinforce any points attacked. An advance against their front would doubtless have entailed great loss, but Lord Roberts fortunately had a large force of cavalry and Horse Artillery, by the successful action of which the day was won.

The movement began on March 6, when the cavalry crossed to the south bank of the Modder and bivouacked in front of Osfontein, and at night the infantry marched out to assume their appointed positions. The Ninth Division was on the north bank of the river, the Seventh next, and the Sixth on the south, and at three o'clock on the morning of March 7 General French began his march. After proceeding four miles to the south he turned to the east when the sun rose, and upon the Boers opening shrapnel fire from a series of kopjes on their left called the Seven Sisters, he turned once more to the south and crossed the veldt to Kalkfontein. From that point he marched eastward again, and after a march of three miles wheeled to the north to get in rear of the Boer line. Meanwhile our guns had got the range.

By his flank movement General French headed off the Boers from the south, and when the extent of his force was realised they soon began to beat a disorderly retreat. At midday the 12th Lancers tried to charge, but by this time the horses were almost knocked up, and the charge could not be made. The victory, however, was complete, and the Boers made hardly a stand during the whole engagement. It was, in fact, a cavalry battle, the infantry being scarcely engaged, though the Ninth Division, supported by three Naval 12-pounders, carried a defended position on the north side of the river. In one part of the field the Highlanders and Canadians, in seizing a kopje, captured a Krupp gun. On our extreme right the cavalry were meanwhile endeavouring to cut off the Boers; but although the rout had been complete, and camp equipment and dinners prepared had been abandoned, the enemy were not at the time entirely demoralised, for they were able to escape without serious loss. Many of them retreated towards the east, but some crossed the river and got away north, while a few fled to the south. The force was, in fact, partly dispersed, though Lord Roberts reports that Kruger and Steyn, who were present, did their utmost to rally their troops. The burghers declared, however, that they could not stand against such powerful artillery and such a large force of cavalry, but some of them seem to have been brought to a pause by the Bloemfontein police.

The defeat had been inglorious, and in its result became demoralising, for it was a complete exhibition of inability to stay Lord Roberts's advance towards Bloemfontein, and there was loud discontent among the burghers of the Free State, who were greatly angered by the losses to which they had been subjected through the conduct of President Steyn. It was stated that the bulk of the retreating enemy came to a halt in the neighbourhood of Abraham's Kraal, but General French, ten miles ahead, has reported his front free from Boers. Our great difficulty is in regard to transport, for Lord Roberts has a very great force with him, and is now removed something like seventy miles from his advanced base at Modder River Station. The work of transporting the long trains of supplies across the intervening veldt is prodigious, and a considerable force has to be employed to defend this line of communications. It does not appear, however, that any formed body of Boers exists in a position seriously to menace the line. Some time must elapse before direct communications can be opened along the line of railway from Norval's Pont, Bethulie, and Springfontein Junction to Bloemfontein.

From the Southern Frontier of the Orange Free State most encouraging reports have been received. The resistance which the Boers offered to General Clements at Colesberg has collapsed, and our long-tried troops in that quarter have at length had the satisfaction of driving them across the Orange and of seizing the railway bridge at Norval's Pont. The Horse Artillery have been shelling the Boers on the north bank, and posts have been established commanding the bridge.

General Clements's pontooning troops will enable him to cross the river, and operations will then begin to repair two spans which have been destroyed. The Boers at this point have completely withdrawn from Cape Colony. Further to the east their resistance has also collapsed. General Gatacre, having occupied Stormberg, advanced to Burghersdorp on March 7, and in that district the rebels seem anxious to surrender, while General Brabant has continued his victorious march towards Aliwal North, the Dordrecht district has been swept almost clear of Boers and rebels, and perhaps by the time these lines appear the Orange River Frontier will be in our hands. Sir George White has proceeded to Cape Colony to take command of the advance from the south, and it is believed that General Warren's division (the Fifth) will be transported to East London and form part of his force, while General Hunter will have command of a division.

The relief of Ladysmith has given immense satisfaction throughout the Empire, and many moving scenes have been witnessed in the late beleaguered town. The entrance of the troops which had suffered so much in the relief operations was a very impressive spectacle, and the extreme enthusiasm of the gallant men and their leaders has found its echo wherever the English tongue is spoken. Sir Redvers Buller rightly said, in his special Army order, that, by the exhibition of the truest courage, which burns steadily besides flashing brilliantly, the relief column accomplished its purpose and added a glorious page to our history. In this praise he included the devoted garrison. "Sailors, soldiers, colonials, and the home-bred have done this, united by one desire, and inspired by one patriotism."

The Boers evacuated all their positions and succeeded in removing all their guns, but they relinquished their camps at Bulwana, Modder Spruit, Bell Spruit, and Pepworth. As a mark of honour, the Dublin Fusiliers, who had borne the brunt of the fighting, led the march past of the troops when they entered the town. It does not appear that the Boers have retired so completely as was at first thought, and General Louis Botha is reported to have his camp near Dundee, and to be prepared to defend the Biggarsberg Range with a considerable force. Inasmuch as there does not appear to be any intention on the part of Sir Redvers Buller of forcing Laing's Nek or the Drakensberg passes, we could wish nothing better than that a large force of Boers should be retained in the Biggarsberg by the presence of his forces. An examination of the positions which our troops captured during the relief operations confirms the impression that the achievement was marvellous and that the British infantry have no equals in the world.

There is, unfortunately, much reason to fear that the brave garrison of Mafeking are at length in a desperate situation, and it is greatly to be hoped that the advance from Kimberley may result in releasing Colonel Baden-Powell and his devoted men. If they should surrender, it will be gloriously, and Englishmen will never forget the gallantry that has been displayed, or the endurance, firmness, and resource which enabled the resistance to be so splendidly prolonged. The Boers have shown some activity in their later attacks on Mafeking, but they make a practice of sending wretched natives and odd Germans, Scandinavians, Irish, and, it is to be feared, a few renegade British to the front, while they modestly seek the shelter of the neighbouring kopjes. Intelligence will be anxiously awaited from Colonel Baden-Powell.

Digitized by Google

To South Africa with the Sixth Division.

AT ANCHOR AT TENERIFFE.
A Welcome Halt by the Way.

OF all the gallant troops who are maintaining the honour of the British flag and fighting for justice and right in South Africa, none have been more "in the thick of it" than the Sixth Division. Under Lieutenant-General T. Kelly-Kenny, C.B., they pressed hard on the retreating Cronje, and compelled him to fight the series of rear-guard actions which led to the surrounding of the redoubtable Boer general, and ultimately to his capitulation with the whole of his forces. That his men deserve the admiration due to a plucky defence may be admitted, but no one at all acquainted with warfare will fail to recognise the strain imposed upon the Sixth Division by the continuous fighting. To say that our men responded to it in the most gallant manner is only to say that they are British troops; but the good work they have done so recently lends more than ordinary interest at the present moment to the accompanying series of pictures, illustrative of scenes and incidents in the journey of the division to South Africa.

It necessarily takes some short time for landsmen to shake down on board ship and to recover from the effects of that tribute which the sea has such an unpleasant knack of exacting. In a shorter time, however, than the majority of people would expect, everything settles down into working order, and life goes on with little to vary its routine. Monotony, indeed, is the bane of existence on board a transport, and while everything is carefully done to dispel it as far as possible, each trifling incident is brought out into strong relief. Practically there are two halting-places on the way to South Africa—Teneriffe or Las Palmas and St. Helena—and each affords a welcome halt, perhaps even an opportunity for going ashore. At Teneriffe the half-extinct volcano, which constitutes the Peak, and which is visible at a distance of some 150 miles, is of course an attraction. The ascent is difficult, but the view from the summit is one of peculiar beauty. On all sides stretches the vast expanse of the Atlantic, while the whole archipelago of the Canaries is within view.

Of course on board a transport physical drill is carried out to a certain extent. It serves a double purpose—it gives the men occupation, and to some extent it keeps them in health and condition. Games, too, occupy a prominent place, and among them cricket is the great favourite. The transport of the present day is a very different vessel from the rickety craft which were formerly considered good enough for the conveyance of troops, and the extensive decks of the commodious passenger steamers which are now taken up as transports afford plenty of room for the game of cricket in the modified form in which it is

THE LAST OF AN OLD FRIEND.
Throwing a Dead Charger Overboard.

From Photos. GOOD CRICKET ON BOARD. By a Military Officer.
"A Hit—A Palpable Hit."

Digitized by Google

played on board ship. The extent to which any event, too, becomes clothed with exaggerated importance was well instanced during the progress of the Sixth Division to South Africa by the great excitement on board the ship when Major-General Knox's charger died and was thrown overboard. Every man who had an opportunity crowded to the side to see the last of what was universally regarded as an old friend, and General Knox is to be condoled with at the loss of a favourite.

There is not much that is of interest at St. Helena, where the only town and port is James Town. Supplies of all kinds are exceedingly dear, and the climate is unpleasantly hot, most of the inhabitants living on the higher and cooler parts of the island. Longwood, where Napoleon resided, stands on the plateau in the interior of the island. After the great Frenchman's death, the house was uninhabited for a long while, and the room in which he died was, at one time at least, converted into a cart-house and stable. Nevertheless, St. Helena is another welcome halt on the long journey of some 6,000 miles.

THE TRANSPORT CALLS AT ST. HELENA.
James Town, the Capital of the Island.

The Sixth Division consists of the 12th Brigade under Major-General R. A. P. Clements, D.S.O., A.D.C., and the 13th Brigade under Major-General Knox. It was sent to the front when Lord Roberts organised the force under his own command. Naauwpoort, which is shown in the last of our illustrations, is an important junction on the railway on the road towards Colesberg. It is situated on the Midland system of the Colony, about 270 miles from Port Elizabeth, and its value lies in the fact that it is at Naauwpoort that the railway running through Colesberg to the Orange Free State and the Transvaal, and therefore to Bloemfontein and Pretoria, is connected with the railway running from Cape Town to Rhodesia, by way of Kimberley and Mafeking, and thus passing along the Western Border of the two South African Republics. The connection is made by means of a line running from Naauwpoort to De Aar Junction, both places of which a good deal has been recently heard, and both of strategical importance in relation to any advance to the northward of the boundaries of Cape Colony. Under these circumstances, it is natural that both troops and stores of all kinds should have been accumulated there in preparation for the advance. The Boers were completely checkmated in their efforts to attack our communications, and the appearance of the Sixth Division with the forces on the Modder, crossing the drifts seized by General French's cavalry, and pursuing Cronje to his Sedan, must have come upon them as a very dispiriting surprise. Nothing in the conduct of the war has been so admirably managed as the rapid transfer of the cavalry and the Sixth Division from one frontier to the other.

ARRIVAL OF THE TROOPS AT THE CAPE.
A Warm Greeting and a Hearty Cheer.

UNLOADING AT NAAUWPOORT JUNCTION.
Collecting Material to Send to the Front.

From Photos. By a Military Officer.

Digitized by Google

On the Orange River Frontier.

A TYPICAL SOUTH AFRICAN KOPJE—A POSITION NEAR COLESBERG.

The above gives a most excellent idea of one of those kopjes of which we now hear so much, and is one of those occupied by our troops near Colesberg. The officer in the centre is Colonel Porter, who commands the 6th Dragoon Guards, better known as the Carabiniers. The colonel and his regiment are now with French pushing on to Bloemfontein, and the former commands one of that general's brigades which did sterling work in the recent operations.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

TAKING IT EASY—A HALT WITH GENERAL BRABAZON.

Until Roberts called it away, the bulk of French's Cavalry Division was with the Naauwpoort Column, and our illustration shows a halt of the headquarters staff of General Brabazon, who is the officer in the centre of the picture. As we see, the welcome cup of tea is being prepared, and one at least is refreshing himself with food for the mind as well as the body, so far as a several days' old newspaper can supply mental pabulum.

Digitized by Google

Volunteer Engineers for Roberts.

A MILITARY SUSPENSION BRIDGE.

PREPARATIONS FOR BRIDGING WORK.

Photos. Copyright. READY FOR THE FINISHING TOUCHES. Lewis.

No more useful classes of Volunteers have left this country, or have been raised in South Africa itself, than those who are attached to the various Engineer corps. The Railway Engineers play an especially important part in this campaign on account of the great length of the railway lines that form our communications, and of the damage that large portions of them have sustained at the hands of the enemy. So much is this the case that a special Pioneer Railways Corps has been raised from amongst the railway employés in South Africa, and is now some 700 strong. As readers of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED know, the two railway companies of the Royal Engineers are, in war-time, supplemented by the Volunteer Engineer corps affiliated to the great railway lines, and a large proportion of whose men are Reservists enlisted for the R.E., and who have been discharged to the Reserve until wanted for war. Both these and the men of the Post Office Volunteers who form the telegraph Reservists for the Royal Engineers have been illustrated and written about in these columns. Another departure has now been made, for the various Volunteer Royal Engineer Corps, excepting, of course, the submarine miners, are sending out detachments of officers with picked men to the front. Of these there are in all twenty in Great Britain, hailing from as far north as Aberdeen and as far south as Devonshire. Our illustrations show the men of the Devon and Somerset Royal Engineers, one of the corps which are furnishing sections for service in South Africa. This fine corps has its headquarters at Exeter. It is commanded by Colonel T. J. Scoones, V.D., and has for its honorary colonel the veteran Field-Marshal Sir J. L. A. Simmons, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., the Colonel-Commandant of the Corps of Royal Engineers, a distinguished honour for a corps that well deserves it. Our illustrations depict the men of the corps engaged in bridge-building, and speak for themselves. It would be very hard to overrate the usefulness to the troops these Volunteer contingents will be. As we know now, it was the sapping work done by the Royal Engineers that contributed in no small measure to the reduction of Cronje's stronghold in the bed of the Modder River, and work of like kind will have to be many times done before the Union Flag flies over Pretoria. Moreover, bridge-building is an especially useful art in this war, for South Africa, and especially Natal, boasts of many streams which, when flooded, are deep and dangerous. If it had not been for his Engineers, Buller's task of crossing the Tugela would have been far more difficult. The splendid work our Engineers have done under fire has been commented on more than once, and we may feel sure that the high reputation the "sappers" have always held will be worthily maintained by their Volunteer comrades.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1899.

Cont. tip. & index

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 138.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

S. Smith & Son, Ltd.
Watchmakers to the Admiralty,
9, Strand, London,
Jewellers & Clock Makers,
Makers of Marine Chronometers and Kew Observatory Certificated Watches.
PRIZE MEDAL ELECTRICAL EXHIBITION, 1892, FOR
NON-MAGNETISABLE CHRONOGRAPHS.
No. 138.—OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE OF "STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH, £8 8 0
No. 82.—OUR OWN SPECIAL ALL ENGLISH "STRAND" COMPENSATED LEVER, Silver Cases, £5.
For the convenience of Customers desiring the benefit of Early Purchases, S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., have adopted
"The Times"
(Encyclopaedia Britannica) Novel Plan of 20 Monthly Payments,
particulars of which, together with their "TREATISE ON WATCHES" (just published, 160 pp., 400 illustrations, Second Edition), may be obtained free on application.
OUR LIST OF PURCHASERS CONTAINS NAMES OF THE HIGHEST IN THE LAND.

LEA & PERRIN'S SAUCE.
Lea & Perrins
Is printed in BLUE ink across the outside wrapper of every bottle of
AVOID CHEAP COPIES.
THE ORIGINAL WORCESTERSHIRE.

FIRE.
UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY.
LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81 CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 138. Saturday, September 23rd, 1899.

SEAFIELD COLLEGE

(ON THE SOLENT).
Governor: SIR E. HAY CURRIE.
Principal: REV. JOHN J. MILNE, M.A.
Head of Engineering Section:
H. T. DAVIDGE, B.Sc. (Lond.), Assoc. R.C.Sc.
(Whitworth Scholar),
AND LARGE STAFF.

Seafield is a Residential College for the sons of gentlemen.

ENGINEERING.—Preparation in all branches, including Mining.

Separate well-equipped Chemical, Physical, and Electrical Laboratories; Workshops, with two Practical Instructors, Drawing Office, 10-ton Testing Machine. Own Electric Lighting Installation. Arrangements made with firms of high repute to accept students at low premiums. Special terms offered if needful.

ARMY Candidates have exceptional advantages in Mathematics, Science, and Languages. See prospectus.

UNIVERSITY.—Individual attention given to backward students.

JUNIOR SECTION (11—15).—Boys receive a modern education.

Apply to SIR E. HAY CURRIE, Seafield Park, Crofton, Hampshire; or at the London Office, 66, Victoria St., S.W.

DR. GEORGE HORATIO JONES

The Old-Established Surgeon-Dentist of
57, Great Russell Street
(directly facing the British Museum.)

May be consulted daily, as usual, for the best English and American Dentistry. Moderate Fees. Extension of premises, Great Russell Mansions next door.

See name under "Dentists," Post Office Directory.

The ART of . .
Graceful Horse Riding
TAUGHT AT
SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,
EARL'S COURT.
Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

Country Life
. . . Illustrated.
VOL. V.
Printed on Art Paper.
Cloth, Gilt Edges, 21s.; or Half-Morocco, 25s.
Vols. 1, 2, 3, & 4 are out of print.

MAJOR BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include
WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils.
7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."
Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." / Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

URGENT APPEAL
FOR IMMEDIATE HELP.

THE HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN,
GREAT ORMOND STREET, LONDON, W.C.
Patron: THE QUEEN.
President: THE DUKE OF FIFE, K.T.
Chairman: ARTHUR LUCAS, ESQ.
Vice-Chairman: JOHN MURRAY, ESQ.

Never since its foundation in 1852 has this Hospital—the first Children's Hospital in the British Empire—been in such want of money.

Five thousand pounds needed at once to keep the wards open.

The Committee appeal for money to pay for the cost of treating about 450 Children every day.

Collecting Lists forwarded on application to ADRIAN HOPE, Secretary.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought)
GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL,
HOLLOWAY.
Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.

The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 2,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £10,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED.

L. H. GLENTON-KERR, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND,
And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.

£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.

Bankers, Messrs. Drummond. ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

WEST LONDON HOSPITAL,
HAMMERSMITH ROAD, W. (101 beds.)
Patron: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President: THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, K.G.
Treasurer: THE LORD ROTHSCHILD.
FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED for opening new wards for 80 additional beds.

R. J. GILBERT, Secretary-Superintendent.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN
And CHILDREN,
MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.

Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.

W. GUNTRIP KING, Secretary.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS

and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION,
BROMPTON.

The Hospital contains 321 Beds, and in 1897 received 1,681 In-patients. 13,098 Out-patients were also treated. The yearly requirements of the Hospital cannot be estimated at less than £25,000 a year. Further, it has been decided upon the unanimous and urgent advice of the Medical Staff to establish a

"COUNTRY BRANCH AND CONVALESCENT HOME,"

and it is estimated that £20,000 will be needed to inaugurate this new departure.

The Charity being Unendowed, is dependent on Donations, Annual Subscriptions, and Legacies, Contributions are therefore earnestly solicited in aid of both objects.

Bankers:
Messrs. WILLIAMS, DEACON, & MANCHESTER & SALFORD BANK,
20, Birchin Lane, London.
WILLIAM H. THEOBALD, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

THE STRAND MAGAZINE

For September Contains:

The Purple Terror.

By Fred. M. White. The purple terror is an orchid to be found only in the terrible Cuban swamps. The story, which Mr. White unfolds with thrilling power, relates the terrible adventures of a party of orchid-hunters.

A Peep into "Punch."

By John Holt Schooling. The cream of Mr. "Punch's" wit is here given in a further instalment of forty-one pictures and jokes that would make a cat laugh.

Stories of the Sanctuary Club.

By L. T. Meade and Robert Eustace. III.—The Diana Sapphire. Yet another enthralling mystery of the Sanctuary Club, in which a sapphire of amazing size and beauty plays a strange part.

The Southern Cross Antarctic Expedition.

By Sir George Newnes, Bart. Illustrated with photographs taken during the expedition. Most people know that Sir George Newnes has sent an expedition to the Antarctic regions, but no one has yet been told of the progress of the expedition—how it landed at Cape Adair, within 200 miles of the South Pole, and what adventures it has met with. This article describes the various incidents and adventures encountered on the journey, and the photographs are most interesting.

A Master of Craft.

By W. W. Jacobs. Chapters IX. and X. Artistic, clever, and excruciatingly funny. Mr. Jacobs is surpassing himself.

The Assassin of the Empress.

By Ben H. Ridgely, U.S. Consul at Geneva. The first absolutely authentic record of the assassination of the Empress of Austria. Mr. Ridgely describes from personal knowledge the daily life of that archfiend Lucheni, and also relates how the Empress met with her sad fate through her fondness for a cup of chocolate.

An Amateur Buddha.

By John Foster Fraser. Mr. Fraser, who, of course, is well known as having ridden round the world on a bicycle, tells an amusing story of how several British residents in India were hoaxed by one of their own party, who at their instance masqueraded as an amateur Buddha.

Water Polo.

By Albert H. Broadwell. This is an article of exceptional novelty, illustrated with a complete set of amazing snap shots of water-polo players in the water. They are, in the opinion of experts, the finest water-polo pictures ever taken.

Hilda Wade.

By Grant Allen. VII.—The Episode of the Stone that Looked About It. Hilda Wade has an exciting brush with Matabele braves, but saves her life by means of a bicycle—and Hubert's devotion.

Animal Actualities.

Illustrated by J. A. Shepherd. Mr. Shepherd's drawings are funnier than ever, and need no recommendation at our hands. "Strand" readers will know what to expect.

The Event of the Day.

A Story of a Regatta. By Neil Wynn Williams. Mr. Williams tells a story, the plot of which is as original as it is thrilling. The principal actors are a hippopotamus, the rider of a water-tricycle, and a crowd of regatta pleasure-seekers. We will not spoil the story by making further disclosures.

The Youngest Engine Driver in the World.

By George Dollar. Hume Gibson Richards, otherwise known as "Brownie, Engine-Driver," aged four, is the greatest little man on the railways of America—what he does not know about a locomotive is not worth knowing; and as to driving it—phew!—read for yourselves.

The Seven Dragons.

By E. Nesbit. Illustrations by H. R. Millar. A fascinating story for children.

Curiosities.

Illustrated from Photographs. The Curiosities section of "The Strand" has excited an extraordinary amount of interest in all parts of the world. We give another selection from the curios sent us by hundreds of correspondents.

120 Pages. 167 Illustrations. Price 6d. Post Free 9d.

GEORGE NEWNES, LTD., 7-12, SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: "Jack's Come Home Again." Young Tars Home on Leave	1
Lord Kitchener's Present to the Queen. Egyptian Donkeys for Her Majesty. (Illustrated)	2
The Transvaal Crisis. The Story of the Trouble from the Very Commencement. (Illustrated)	3
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	5
Editorial Notices; Our Diary	6
Cabins in the Navy. (Illustrated) ...	6
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	8
The Leicestershire Regiment. The Story of Its Career—Past and Present. (Illustrated)	9
The Canadian Grenadiers. Some Notes and Pictures. (Illustrated)	11
"Rigging a Base." From a Naval Correspondent. (Illustrated) ...	13
Seamen as Cyclists. The Bicycle in the Navy. (Illustrated)	14
Her Majesty's Fleet. The First-class Battle-ships "Canopus" and "Ocean." (Illustrated)	16
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	17
"Bunter's Cruise: A Tale of the New Navy." By Charles Gleig. Illustrated by T. S. C. Crowther	18
The First Battle in the Crimea	20
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Seventeen Illus.)	21

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Fourth Week.]

THE QUARTERS OF THE INFANTRY REGIMENTS.

	Battn.
Grenadier G'ds †	1. Col. V. Hatton, C.B.	Windsor
	2. Lieut.-Col. F. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Chelsea
	3. Lieut.-Col. E. M. S. Crabbe	Gibraltar
Coldstream G'ds †	1. Lieut.-Col. A. E. Codrington	Gibraltar
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. R. Stopford	Wellington Bar'ks
	3. Lieut.-Col. V. J. Dawson	Tower of London
Scots Guards †	1. Col. A. H. Paget	Chelsea
A.	2. Col. I. R. Jones	Wellington Bar'ks.
Royal Scots (1st)	1. Lieut.-Col. E. P. Morgan-Payler.	Belfast
	2. Lieut.-Col. T. F. Ross	Poona
Queen's (Rl. West Surrey Reg., 2nd)	1. Col. J. S. Collins	Gharial, Punjab
	2.*Lt.-Col. E. O. F. Hamilton	Portsmouth
The Buffs (East Kent Reg., 3rd)	1. Col. A. E. Ommanney	Kamptee
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. A. Hickson	Brighton
King's Own (Rl. Lancaster 4th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. Rowlandson	Singapore
	2. Lieut.-Col. M. E. Crofton	Lichfield
Northumberland Fusiliers (5th).	1. Lt.-Col. C. G. C. Money, C.B.	For Natal
	2. Lt.-Col. R. L. A. Pennington	Portsmouth
Ryl. Warwickshire Regiment (6th).	1. Lt.-Col. W. E. G. Forbes, C.B.	Madras
	2. Lieut.-Col. M. Q. Jones, C.B.	Colchester
B.	3. Lieut.-Col. A. W. F. Jackson	Malta
Royal Fusiliers (7th).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. P. B. Rodick	Nusseerabad
	2.*Lieut.-Col. G. C. Donald	Aldershot
B.	3. Lieut.-Col. J. E. Briggs	Gibraltar
King's (Liverpool Regiment, 8th).	1. Lieut.-Col. L. S. Mellor	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. S. H. Harrison	Enniskillen
Norfolk Regiment (9th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. L. Govan	Bombay
	2. Lieut.-Col. L. H. Phillips	Fermoy
Lincolnshire Reg. (10th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. R. Lowth, C.B.	Secunderabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. R. Roberts	Aldershot
Devonshire Reg. (11th).	1. Col. J. H. Yule	For South Africa
	2.*Lieut.-Col. G. M. Bullock	Aldershot
Suffolk Regiment (12th)	1. Lieut.-Col. A. J. Watson	Dover
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. R. Townley	Quetta
Somersetshire L.I. (13th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. A. Walsh	Rawal Pindi
	2. Lieut.-Col. E. J. Gallwey	Portland
West Yorkshire Regiment (14th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. Grant-Dalton	Kurrachee
	2.*Col. F. W. Kitchener	Aldershot
East Yorkshire Regiment (15th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. S. Allen	Belgaum
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. W. Ward	Templemore
Bedfordshire Reg. (16th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Riddell	Mooltan
	2. Col. W. H. Young	Dublin
Leicestershire Reg. (17th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. D. Carleton	Ladysmith, Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. W. McKinstry	Curragh
Royal Irish Reg. (18th).	1.*Lt.-Col. H. W. N. Guinness	Buttevant
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. B. Forster	Mhow
Yorkshire Reg. (19th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Bowles	Bradford
	2. Lt.-Col. C. J. Spottiswoode	Dagshai
Lancashire Fus. (20th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. L. E. May	Malta
	2. Lt.-Cl. C. J. Blomfield, D.S.O.	Chatham
B.	3. Lieut.-Col. R. G. Bruxner-Randall.	Malta
Royal Scots Fus. (21st).	1. Lt.-Col. A. H. Abercrombie	Peshawur
	2.*Lieut.-Col. E. E. Carr	Aldershot
Cheshire Regiment (22nd).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. W. Bromfield	Secunderabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. F. Curteis	Limerick
Royal Welsh Fus. (23rd).	1.*Lieut.-Col. C. C. H. Thorold	Pembroke Dock
	2. Col. R. B. Mainwaring, C.M.G.	Hong Kong
South Wales Borderers (24th).	1. Lt.-Col. H. G. Mainwaring	Chakrata
	2. Col. R. A. P. Clements, D.S.O., A.D.C.	Dublin
K.O. Scottish Borderers (25th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. W. Godfray	Dublin
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. T. W. Hewat	Cawnpore
Cameronians (Sct. Rifles, 26th-90th)	1. Lieut.-Col. S. H. Lomax	Lucknow
	2.*Lieut.-Col. E. Cooke	Glasgow
Royal Inniskilling Fus. (27th-108th)	1.*Lt.-Col. T. M. G. Thackeray	Mullingar
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. M. Greenfield	Dalhousie
Gloucestershire Reg. (28th-61st).	1. Lieut.-Col. E. P. Wilford	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. F. Lindsell	Aldershot
Worcestershire Reg. (29th-36th).	1. Lieut.-Col. O. H. Oakes	Plymouth
	2. Lieut.-Col. F. S. Allen	Bermuda
East Lancashire Reg. (30th-59th).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. J. A. Wright	Jersey
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. G. Watson	Ranikhet
East Surrey Reg. (31st-70th).	1. Lt.-Col. W. J. H. Frodsham	Jhansi
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. H. W. Harris	Woking
Duke of Cornwall's L.I. (32nd-46th).	1. Col. C. F. A. Turnbull	Lucknow
	2. Lt.-Col. W. Aldworth, D.S.O.	Devonport
D. of Wellington's (W. Riding Reg., 33rd-76th).	1. Lt.-Col. G. E. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Dover
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. E. Belfield	Bangalore
Border Regiment (34th-55th).	1. Col. T. H. E. Hinde	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. S. Wood	Bareilly
Royal Sussex Reg. (35th-107th).	1. Lieut.-Col. B. D. A. Donne	For Malta
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. C. Young	Sealkote
Hampshire Reg. (37th-67th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. R. Parkinson	Cherat, Punjab
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. E. Briggs	Cork
South Staffords're Reg. (38th-80th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Savage	Kinsale
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. Moore	Thayetmyo, Burma
Dorsetshire Reg. (39th-54th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. J. J. Kentish	Nowshera, Punjab
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. H. Law	Shorncliffe
South Lancashire Reg. (40th-82nd)	1. L.-C. W. McCarthy-O'Leary	Preston
	2. L.-C. A. F. G. Richardson	Jubbulpore
Welsh Regiment (41st-69th).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. J. F. Banfield	Aldershot
	2. Lieut.-Col. F. S. L. Penno	Ahmednugger
The Black Watch (Ryl. Highland's 42nd-73rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. E. G. Grogan	Sitapur
	2.*Lieut.-Col. J. H. C. Coode	Aldershot
Oxfordshire L.I. (43rd-52nd).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. A. Strachan	Devonport
	2. Col. F. H. Plowden	Ferozepore
Essex Regiment (44th-56th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. E. Stephenson	Warley
	2. Lieut.-Col. T. Stock	Shwebo, Burma
Sherwood F'r'sters (Derbyshire Rg., (45th-95th).	1. Col. H. L. Smith-Dorrien, D.S.O.	Crete
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. D. Bulpett	Aden
Loyal North Lancashire Regim't. (47th-81st).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. G. Kekewich	Cape Town
	2. Lt.-Col. B. A. Satterthwaite	For Malta
Northamptonshire Reg. (48th-58th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. B. Capper	Fyzabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Denny	Aldershot
Rl. Berkshire Reg. (49th-66th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. C. Carter	Portsmouth
	2. Lt.-Col. C. Evans-Gordon	Natal
Queen's Own (Ryl. West Kent Reg., 50th-97th).	1. L.-C. C. W. H. Evans, D.S.O.	Rangoon
	2. Lt.-Col. E. A. W. S. Grove	For Egypt
King's Own L.I. (51st-105th).	1. L.-C. Sir H. A. W. Johnson, Bart.	Sheffield
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. St. L. Barter	Mauritius
King's (Shropshire L.I., 53rd-85th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. H. Collette	Poona
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. Spens	Aldershot
Middlesex Reg. (57th-77th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. G. White	Welling'n, Madras
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. W. Hill	Woolwich
King's Royal Rifle Corps (60th).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. H. Gunning	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. Gore-Browne	For South Africa
	3.*L.-C. R. G. Buchanan-Riddell	Kilkenny
	4. Lieut.-Col. E. W. Herbert	Cork
Wiltshire Regim't. (62nd-99th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. M. Carter	Quetta
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Harford	Guernsey
Manchester Reg. (63rd-96th).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. E. R. Curran	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. P. Ridley	Manchester
North Staffords're Reg. (64th-98th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. Currie, C.B.	Subathu
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. E. Bradley	Newry
York & Lancaster Reg. (65th-84th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. J. Kirkpatrick	York
	2. Col. H. Boughey	Agra
Durham Light I. (68th-106th).	1.*Lieut.-Col. A. L. Woodland	Aldershot
	2. Lt.-Col. A. de B. V. Paget	Mandalay
Highland Light I. (71st-74th).	1.*Col. F. M. Reid	Devonport
	2. Lt.-Col. R. D. B. Rutherford	Ceylon
Seaforth Highl'rs (72nd-78th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. A. Campbell	Egypt
	2.*Lieut.-Col. J. W. Hughes-Hallett, D.S.O.	Fort George
Gordon Highl'rs (75th-92nd).	1. Lt.-Col. G. T. F. Downman	Edinburgh
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Dick-Cunyngham, V.C.	For South Africa
Q.O. Cameron H'rs (79th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. F. A. Watson-Kennedy.	Egypt
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. M. Hunt	Aldershot
Royal Irish Rifles (83rd-86th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. Haggard	Dum Dum
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. A. Eagar	Belfast
Ryl. Irish Fusiliers (87th-89th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. R. C. Carleton	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. Reeves	Colchester
Connaught Ran's (88th-94th).	1.*Lieut.-Col. L. G. Brooke	Athlone
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. E. Harman	Meerut
Argyll & Sutherl'd H'rs (91st-93rd).	1.*Lieut.-Col. J. H. Campbell	Dublin
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. L. J. Goff	Ranikhet
Leinster Regiment (100th-109th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Martin	Halifax, N.S.
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. G. Glancy	Barbados
Ryl. Munster Fus. (101st-104th).	1. Lieut.-Col. E. S. Evans	South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. P. S. Druitt	Dinapore
Royal Dublin Fus. (102nd-103rd).	1.*Lieut.-Col. G. A. Mills	Curragh
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. D. Cooper	Maritzburg, Natal
Rifle Brigade †	1. Lieut.-Col. C. H. B. Norcott	Parkhurst
	2. Lt.-Col. C. T. E. Metcalfe	For South Africa
	3. Lieut.-Col. W. R. Kenyon-Slaney.	Kuldana
	4. Lieut.-Col. A. R. Pemberton	Dublin
West India Reg.	1. Lieut.-Col. A. L. Bayley	Sierra Leone
	2. Lieut.-Col. D. M. Allen	Jamaica
	3. Lieut.-Col. A. Bor	St. Helena
Hong Kong Reg.	Lieut.-Col. J. M. A. Retallick	Hong Kong
Chinese Regiment	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Bower	Wei-hai-Wei
West African Reg.	L.-C. G. G. Cunningham, D.S.O.
B.C. Africa Rifles	1. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Manning	Central Africa
	2. Major H. E. J. Brake, R.A.	Mauritius
Provisional Batt.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Kelly	Shorncliffe

A. 3rd Battalion about to be formed. B. 4th Battalion in course of formation.

* In the event of Hostilities these Battalions will go to South Africa.

† The South African Force will include four of the Guards' Battalions and one of the Rifle Brigade.

Digitized by Google

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

(MULLIGATAWNY, GRAVY, JULIENNE, ETC.)

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

Prepared by
E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD 18, Trinity St. LONDON, S.E.

SOLD BY GROCERS, STORES, ETC.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts, baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

CAPTAIN ARTHUR HAGGARD,

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

CARLTON STREET, REGENT STREET, S.W.

"LERINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered.
	Children's	1s. 3d.
	Ladies'	2s. 3d.
	Gents'	3s. 3d.
Hemstitched.
	Ladies'	2s. 9d.
	Gents'	3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d. per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra) Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

RED WHITE AND BLUE FRENCH COFFEE

SOLD EVERYWHERE

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

Digitized by Google

ENCORE RAZOR

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO., make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

Send for Free List of Cases.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co., Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,

who will supply through nearest Agent.

LEAN'S

ROYAL NAVY LIST

SUPPORTED BY THE ADMIRALTY.

CONTAINING THE

War and Meritorious Services of Officers on the Active and Retired Lists of the Royal Navy and Royal Marine Forces.

WITH ALL THE ROYAL ORDERS, MEDALS, DECORATIONS, AND HONOURS GIVEN FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICES.

The Dates of all Commissions and of all Retirements, with Dates of Birth of Flag Officers, Captains and Officers of the Royal Marines, showing at a glance their progressive rank from entrance in the Navy to the present time.

A List of Ships on Active Service, giving the Tonnage, Steam Power, and Class, with their Officers arranged in order of Seniority.

The War Services of all the Famous Battle Ships of the Royal Navy, showing the Glorious Records of our "First Line of Defence."

The Officers of the Royal Indian Marine, the Australasian Naval Defence Forces, and of the Royal Naval Reserve. A complete Alphabetical List of all Officers, both active and retired, in the Royal Navy and Royal Marines, and of all officers in the Royal Indian Marine and Royal Naval Reserve.

An Exhaustive List of all the Civil Departments of the British Admiralty.

PUBLISHED QUARTERLY (500 PAGES) PRICE 7/6, POST FREE.

Annual Subscriptions (payable in advance), £1 7s. 6d., post free.

LONDON: WITHERBY & CO., PUBLISHERS, 326, HIGH HOLBORN, W.C.

☞ Officers are earnestly requested to send at once their special services to the Editor.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—I very much sympathise with Mrs. N——, who you say has just come home without any dresses that she can possibly wear. It is always so tiresome to be obliged to rush about and get clothes directly you arrive in England; and it is doubly tiresome when it happens to be just between seasons, as it is now, and when, therefore, it is doubtful what are to be the prevailing fashions.

Of one thing, however, Mrs. N—— may feel assured, namely, that she may with safety choose fur before all other trimmings for her dresses. Not only will she find it most becoming, as it gives such an appearance of comfort on a cold day, but it is prophesied that such trimmings will be very much worn this winter, not only out of doors, but by the fireside as well. Even tea-gowns will be furnished with fur. Narrow bands will edge the skirts and outline the revers and high collars, and it will also be used alternately with insertions of white or cream-coloured lace, or with ruchings of chiffon and mousseline de soie. A fantastic combination this of delicate materials and fur, but the contrast is very effective, and no combination of colour or material can astonish us nowadays, I imagine. As for a dress to wear on her motor-car, tell Mrs. N—— that I send her the enclosed sketch, made on purpose for her. It was suggested by a French model, which is modified in the picture, the original not being altogether worthy of admiration, though it had good ideas. In it the coat hung loosely in front, whilst the skirt was ungracefully and unnecessarily short. The sketch I send you shows the coat semi-tight-fitting, whilst the only trimming is of stitched leather strappings, which give an exceedingly neat finish to the whole. The costume when carried out in dark grey waterproof covert coating is of the most useful description for any country wear.

FOR THE LATEST CRAZE

I had one letter from India this mail which gave me a dreadful account of the plague in Poona. It was, said my correspondent, raging worse than ever, and was of a particularly virulent type, the patients turning black and dying in a few hours, just as they did in the terrible plague in Florence. But India is a large country, and whilst the post brings such ghastly reports from one district, from another it brings nothing but gossip and accounts of balls and theatricals and polo and other amusements. Doris's long letter, for instance, begins with an enthusiastic account of "My Friend the Prince," which she says was a tremendous success in Simla, and everyone agreed that never before had a play of the kind been better acted. People who were severe in their criticism of "The Liars" were loud in their praise of this performance, which was received throughout with so much laughter that no other applause was needed to show how thoroughly the audience—which included the Viceroy and Lady Curzon—appreciated the play and the acting. Doris gives me a full list of the cast, which will no doubt interest you, as you are sure to find some familiar names therein. I therefore copy it for your benefit. It runs as follows: Matthew Jannaway, the retired market gardener, Sir H. Melliss; Pink Jannaway, Captain A. J. H. Swiney, R.E.; Pansy Jannaway, Miss Gouldney; Poppy Jannaway, Mrs. Ouseley; Gilberte Picard, a singing girl, Mrs. Swiney; H.R.H. Prince Maurice of Pannonia, Captain R. J. Marker, A.D.C.; H.R.H. Princess Brunhilde of Pannonia, Miss Barry; Baron Hertzlein, Colonel F. M. Rundall; Ambrose Pinning, a young barrister, Mr. A. Williams; the Hon. Peto Godolphin, Captain R. G. T. Baker Carr, A.D.C.; Shottery, Mr. W. D. Braithwaite; Bennett, Miss Beadon; John, footman, Mr. W. D. Fisher; and James, footman, Mr. A. W. F. Knox. Everyone was looking forward to seeing Captain Holland once more as Wilding in "Captain Swift," a part in which he had such tremendous success in 1891 and 1892. Mrs. Bingley, who as Miss Way appeared in the cast of 1891, was last week to play Stella Darbisher; whilst amongst others were to appear General Beresford Lovett, Mr. Hailey, Captain Macready, Captain Wilkieson, Mrs. Tyler, Miss King, and Miss Gordon. There has been plenty of dancing, too, at Simla. Lady Lockhart gave two very successful "At Homes" last month, and Mrs. Becher gave a little dance, which was most enjoyable. At the latter all the guests were asked to appear in dresses or wearing symbols representing the name of a book. Miss Turner won the first prize for the best dress, which illustrated the title "Heart of Princess Osca," while Miss Fanshawe as "Unaddressed Letters" was awarded the prize for the dress that was most difficult to guess. When Doris wrote, she was also looking forward to the Royal Engineers' and Royal Artillery ball, and the Masonic ball, which was fixed for the 10th, so there was no lack of fun at Simla for the moment. At Bangalore there was a very pretty wedding last month, at St. Mark's Church, when Miss Mabel Alice Petley, eldest daughter of Captain E. F. Wallace Petley, C.I.E., R.N., was married to Captain Douglas Henry McDonnel Graves, Indian Medical Service, 20th Madras Infantry. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with lilies, roses, and chrysanthemums, all arranged by the bride's friends.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a beautiful dress of satin duchesse made with a Court train. It was elaborately trimmed with chiffon and orange blossoms.

Digitized by Google

FOUR POINTS:

No Finger Marks,
No Labour,
A Brilliant Polish, and
A Pleasant Perfume.

STONE'S PERFUMED FURNITURE CREAM.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., and 2s. 6d. each, direct from

STONE AND SON, EXETER.

Or at all respectable Stores.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP

A DREAM.

Under the soothing influence of Williams' Soap the man in the chair has gone to sleep, and dreams that little fairies are bringing him all that the heart can desire.

The BIG, THICK, CREAMY LATHER of Williams' Soap, softens the beard, soothes and refreshes the face and supplies all the heart could wish for in the way of a PERFECT SHAVING Soap.

Sold by chemists, hairdressers and perfumers all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

Williams' Shaving Sticks, 1s. Williams' Luxury Shaving Tablets, 1s.
Williams' Luxury Shaving Tablets, 6d. Williams' "Jersey Cream" Toilet Soaps, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp by addressing—

THE J. B. WILLIAMS CO., 64 Great Russell Street, London, W. C., or 161 Clarence Street, Sydney.
Chief Offices and Laboratories,—Glastonbury, Conn., U. S. A.

"THREE THINGS THAT WOMEN HIGHLY HOLD."
Exquisite Models. Perfect Fit. Guaranteed Wear.

Y & N DIAGONAL SEAM

"No shape but this can please your dainty eye."

Will not split in the Seams, nor tear in the Fabric.

Made in White, Black, and all the fashionable Colours and Shades, in Italian Cloth, Satin and Coutil.

4/11, 5/11, 6/11, 7/11
per pair and upwards.

THREE GOLD MEDALS.

"Admirably modelled, exquisitely neat and strong."—Queen.

"The most comfortable corset ever made."—Ladies' Pictorial.

"The best make of corsets is the Y & N Diagonal Seam."—Gentlewoman.

CAUTION.—See that the REGISTERED TRADE MARK "Y. & N. Diagonal Seam," is imprinted on every Corset and on every Box. None others are genuine.

Sold by the principal Drapers and Ladies' Outfitters throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies.

There Are Others,

BUT . . . .

Luxette

IS THE BEST SAVOURY

FOR

Breakfast, Tea, Sandwiches,

ETC.

1/- per Terrine in Hermetically Sealed Tin.

MANUFACTURED BY

MRS. A. B. MARSHALL

(Marshall's School of Cookery),

LONDON.

THE

BOOK OF CRICKET.

A Gallery of Famous Players.

Edited by C. B. FRY.

Illustrated by about 450 pictures, and magnificently printed on Art Paper. 256 pages, crown folio, handsomely bound in cloth, with gilt edges,

Price 12/6 nett. Post Free 13/-.

A handsome cloth binding case for the sixteen parts of "The Book of Cricket" has been prepared, and is now ready,

Price 2/6. Post Free 2/9.

Ask for the Publishers' Case, and do not accept any other.

Digitized by Google

and lover's knots in jewelled passementerie. She was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Cook and Miss Cowdell, who both wore dresses of white alpaca trimmed with pale blue and white chiffon sashes, whilst their hats were wreathed with pink roses.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Stuart held a reception at Goldburn, where the latter received the guests wearing a handsome costume of dark blue silk, whilst Miss Claudie Stuart was dressed in pink. The presents, which were numerous, were on view, and people chatted away in the large marquees erected for the occasion until the departure of the bride and bridegroom for Kotagiri, where the honeymoon was spent. The bride's travelling dress was white voile worn over blue silk, and a Leghorn hat trimmed with carnations and white feathers.

There was tremendous interest shown in the Bangalore polo tournament, which came off towards the end of August. The opposing teams in the first match were those of the West Riding Regiment and the Golconda Lancers, Mr. Bally, Captain Turner, Mr. Whish, and Mr. Coode playing for the former. The Golcondas won the game by seven goals and three subsidiaries to two goals.

The next match was between the 19th Hussars, with Mr. Holdford, Mr. Franks, Mr. Archer Shee, and Major Marsh, against the 4th Hussars, with Mr. Savory, Mr. Caldbeck, Mr. Rotheram, and Major Kincaid-Smith, the latter winning by five goals and three subsidiaries to three goals and three subsidiaries.

The final tie was played off between the Golconda Lancers and the 4th Hussars, the former winning by six goals and three subsidiaries to two subsidiaries. During the play both Mr. Savory and Mr. Rotheram had nasty spills, but they were not hurt so badly that they could not continue playing. The greatest excitement was shown by the native crowd, and Mrs. Crawford presented the challenge cup to the winners amidst much enthusiasm.

And yet another wedding I must tell you about, one that took place at Kingstown on the 12th, between Captain Moore, R.A.M.C., and Miss Helen Catherine Georgina, daughter of Mr. George Whitla, of Corrig Castle, Kingstown, County Dublin. The bride was given away by her father, and wore a dress of ivory satin made with a transparent yoke and sleeves of tucked chiffon, whilst the bodice was trimmed with orange blossom and myrtle. Her bouquet was of most lovely white roses, lilies, white heather, and orange blossoms.

There were two bridesmaids, Miss Helen Gould and Miss M. Dooner. They both wore dresses of cream muslin, turquoise blue sashes, and black velvet picture hats with white plumes. Their gold arrow brooches and bouquets were the gifts of the bridegroom.

The service over, Mrs. Whitla received a large number of guests at Corrig Castle, amongst those present being Mr. and Mrs. Whitla, Sir E. Hudson and Lady Hudson Kinahan, Dr. and Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. W. Moore, Mr. and Miss Casey, Sir Francis Brady, Colonel and Mrs. Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Butler-Ievers, etc. Later in the afternoon the bride and bridegroom left for Scotland, the former wearing a dress of cornflower blue voile trimmed with lace, and a cornflower toque.

Plymouth has been exceedingly quiet lately, the regiments having been on Salisbury Plain and the ships at the Manœuvres. Now, however, people are beginning to come back, and the place is getting rather more lively. Last week the annual sports came off at the Naval Barracks. The weather was everything to be desired, the bands of the "Impregnable" and "Vivid" played during the afternoon, and there were some very amusing events, so I imagine the 4,000 people who were present must have had a very good time.

The officers' enclosure was filled with officers and their friends, though many people were conspicuous by their absence, not having returned from their summer visits. Captain and Mrs. Grenfell received the guests, amongst whom were Admiral and Lady Fairfax, Rear-Admiral and Mrs. Jackson, the latter wearing a pretty dress of which the prevailing colour was puce, Colonel and Mrs. Oakes, and Colonel and Mrs. Clarke.

There was much excitement concerning the ladies' bicycle race, which was won, though not without a struggle, by Miss Amy Richards. The officers' 100-yds. flat race was won by Dr. Gaskell, R.N.

Here in London we still think and talk of little else but the Rennes court-martial, and the dastardly behaviour of the judges. No matter where one goes, the matter is discussed on all sides, and in pretty forcible language too. But by far the bitterest invective I have heard was volubly poured out by a Frenchman, whose horror and disgust at his own countrymen were very satisfying to hear.

Yours affectionately,
CONSTANCE.

* Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.*

CARRIAGE PAID TO ALL STATIONS.

. . Trapnell & Gane, . .

Excellent Solid Hazlewood Bedroom Suite, comprising 4 ft. Wardrobe, 3 ft. 6 in. Dressing Chest, with Reflex Mirrors, 3 ft. 6 in. Washstand, with rouge royal Marble Top, £22 : 10 : 0.

COLLEGE GREEN, BRISTOL.

. New Illustrated Catalogue, 1,000 Engravings, Post Free. .

Digitized by Google

NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

ESSENTIALLY POPULAR IN TONE.

The Navy and Army through a Camera.

6,000,000 Copies of the NAVY AND ARMY have been sold. First issued December 20, 1895. The following is a list of some of the principal Naval and Military Officers whose Photographs have appeared in the paper :—

THE NAVY.

Alington, Rear-Admiral A. H., January 31, 1896.
Andoe, Rear-Admiral H. G., November 12, 1897.
Avalon, Admiral Lord Hood of, March 5, 1897.
Awdry, R. A., Esq., April 16, 1897.
Accountant-General of the Navy.
Bacon, Commander R. H. S., February 21, 1896.
Baker, Commander C. J., July 23, 1898.
Barlow, Captain C. J., January 31, 1896.
Barrow, Captain A., March 20, 1896.
Battenberg, Prince Louis of, March 26, 1898.
Bedford, Rear-Admiral Sir F., August 7, 1896.
Beresford, Vice-Adml. Lord C., Jan. 17, 1896.
Bickford, Captain A. K., October 30, 1896.
Bridge, Vice-Admiral C. A. G., Nov. 27, 1896.
Brock, Captain E. E., January 31, 1896.
Bromley, Captain A. C., October 30, 1896.
Brough, Captain J., October 16, 1896.
Browning, Commander M. E., August 13, 1898.
Buckle, Vice-Admiral C. E., August 6, 1897.
Buller, Vice-Admiral Sir A., October 16, 1896.
Campbell, Commander H. H., June 4, 1898.
Campbell, Captain C., February 21, 1896.
Carden, Commander S. H., February 21, 1896.
Carey, Commander E. E., October 30, 1896.
Carr, Rear-Admiral H. J., April 2, 1898.
Chamberlain, Mr. M. P., April 16, 1897.
Civil Lord of the Admiralty.
Church, Rear-Admiral E. J., May 28, 1898.
Clanwilliam, Admiral Earl of, May 1, 1896.
Cleveland, Vice-Admiral H. F., Sept. 17, 1897.
Colmore, Commander R. B., March 20, 1896.
Colomb, Vice-Admiral P. H., January 21, 1898.
Colville, Captain Hon. S., June 4, 1898.
Corner, Lieutenant F. W., June 18, 1898.
Cullen, Commander P., November 12, 1897.
Cumming, Captain R., November 12, 1897.
Dale, Vice-Admiral A. T., February 21, 1896.
Domville, Vice-Admiral Sir C., October 2, 1896.
Dowell, Admiral Sir W. M., September 4, 1896.
Drummond, Vice-Admiral E. C., Jan. 22, 1897.
Durston, Sir A. J., July 9, 1898.
Engineer-in-Chief of the Navy.
Ethelston, Commander A. P., April 23, 1898.
Everett, Lieutenant A. F., March 26, 1898.
Fairfax, Admiral Sir H., July 10, 1896.
Fawckner, Commander W. B., Sept. 17, 1898.
Fellowes, Rear-Admiral J., April 16, 1898.
Fisher, Vice-Admiral Sir J., May 29, 1896.
Fitzgerald, Rear-Adml. C. C. P., Feb. 18, 1898.
Fremantle, Admiral Hon. Sir E., Aug. 21, 1896.
Fremantle, Lieutenant S. R., August 13, 1898.
Gaunt, Commander E. F. A., Nov. 27, 1896.
Germany, Hon. Admiral of the Fleet H.I.M. Emperor of, Dec. 25, 1896.
Goldsmith, Captain Sir W., Nov. 12, 1897.
Goschen, Mr., April 16, 1897.
First Lord of the Admiralty
Grubb, Admiral Sir W. H., October 29, 1897.
Gwyne, Mr. T., April 16, 1897.
Director of Navy Contracts.
Halsey, Lieutenant A., February 21, 1896.
Hamilton, Admiral Sir R. Vesey, April 2, 1897.
Hay, Adml. Sir J. C. Dalrymple, June 11, 1897, and September 17, 1897.
Heath, Admiral Sir L., January 7, 1898.
Herbert, Admiral Sir F., August 6, 1898.
Hilston, Inspector-General, February 19, 1897.
Hopkins, Admiral Sir J., August 30, 1896, and September 3, 1897.
Hoskins, Admiral Sir A. H., May 28, 1897.
Howe, Capt. Hon. A. G. Curzon, Jan. 14, 1898.
Jackson, Captain H. B., August 20, 1897.
James, Commander H., September 17, 1897.
Jeffreys, Captain E., June 26, 1896.
Keene, Lieut. W. G. E. Ruck, Jan. 21, 1896.
Kennedy, Vice-Adml. Sir W. R., April 17, 1896.
Keppel, Admiral Hon. Sir H., January 17, 1896, and February 4, 1898.
Kerr, Vice-Admiral Right Hon. Lord W. T., December 20, 1895, and March 20, 1896.
Lambert, Mr. G. T., April 16, 1897.
Director of Greenwich Hospital.
Lambton, Captain Hon. H., April 23, 1898.
Lang, Captain W. M., May 14, 1897.
Lang, Commander E. L., April 9, 1898.
Langley, Captain G. C., April 30, 1898.
Leiningen, Admiral Prince of, Sept. 3, 1897.
Limpus, Commander A. H., June 18, 1898.
Luard, Admiral Sir W. G., November 26, 1897.
Lyons, Admiral Sir A. M., November 13, 1896.
Macartney, Mr. W. G. E., April 16, 1897.
Parliamentary and Financial Secretary to the Admiralty.
McClintock, Admiral Sir F. L., Dec. 11, 1896.
Macgregor, Sir Evan, April 16, 1897.
Permanent Secretary to the Admiralty.
Miller, Captain, May 7, 1898.
Miller, Mr. G. W., April 16, 1897.
Director of Naval Stores.
Milne, Admiral Sir A., March 20, 1896.
Molyneux, Vice-Adml. Sir R. H. M., Feb. 5, 1897.
Mundy, Commander G. H. B., Sept. 4, 1896.
Neville, Captain G., June 4, 1898.
Nicholas, Lieutenant J., April 23, 1898.
Nicholson, Admiral Sir H. F., June 18, 1898.
Norbury, Sir H. F., March 18, 1898.
Medical Director-General of the Navy.
Ogilvy, Lieutenant F. C. A., June 18, 1898.
Ommanney, Admiral Sir E., April 9, 1898.
Palliser, Rear-Admiral Bury, May 15, 1896.
Parr, Captain A. C., August 13, 1898.
Pattison, Captain J. R. E., September 3, 1898
Pearson, Rear-Admiral H. L., March 4, 1898.
Poore, Captain Sir R., July 23, 1898.
Powell, Captain F., September 17, 1898.
Rawson, Rear-Admiral Sir H. H., Jan. 8, 1897.
Rice, Rear-Admiral E., October 1, 1897.
Riddle, Captain D. M., January 7, 1898.
Robertson, Commander C. H., Nov. 27, 1896.
Robinson, Captain C. G., June 18, 1898.
Rolfe, Rear-Admiral E. N., October 30, 1896.
Rolland, Vice-Admiral W. R., February 4, 1898.
St. John, Vice-Admiral H. C., April 30, 1898.
Salmon, Admiral Sir Nowell, April 3, 1896.
Sampson, Rear-Admiral, May 21, 1898.
Saunders, Lieutenant F. J., October 16, 1896.
Scott, Admiral Lord C. T. M. Douglas, July 23, 1897.
Seymour, Lieutenant Culme, Sept. 17, 1898.
Seymour, Vice-Adml. Sir E. H., Sept. 18, 1896.
Seymour, Admiral Sir M. Culme, January 3, 1896, and July 24, 1896.
Smith, Vice-Adl. Sir N. Bowden, Aug. 13, 1898.
Stephenson, Vice-Adml. Sir H. F., July 9, 1897, February 4, 1898, and March 25, 1898.
Stewart, Admiral Sir W. H., April 30, 1897.
Talbot, Commander H., July 9, 1898.
Thursby, Commander C. F., Sept. 17, 1898.
Wells, Vice-Admiral R., February 21, 1896.
Wells, Midshipman G. A., February 21, 1896.
Wharton, Rear-Adml. Sir W. J. L., Mar. 18, 1897.
White, Sir W., April 16, 1897, and June 11, 1898.
Chief Constructor of the Navy.
Williams, Commander P. H., March 20, 1896.
Williamson, Mr. J., April 16, 1897.
Director of Dockyards.
Wilson, Rear-Admiral A. K., May 14, 1898.
Wolfe, Captain G. C. B., October 16, 1896.
York, Captain the Duke of, December 20, 1895, June 4, 1898, and July 2, 1898.
Yorke, Mr. H. F. R., April 16, 1897.
Director of Victualling to the Navy.

THE ARMY.

Abadie, Major-General H. R., October 1, 1897.
Ames, Captain O. H., December 24, 1897.
Ardagh, Major-General Sir J. C., Oct. 2, 1896.
Ashley, Lieutenant C. J., April 17, 1896.
Bagot, Colonel C. H., February 19, 1897.
Bally, Colonel J. F., August 6, 1897.
Bengough, Major-Gen. H. M., October 16, 1896.
Bere, Mr. H. De la, September 10, 1898.
Director of Royal Army Clothing Factory.
Blennerhasset, Lt.-Col. B. M., March 19, 1897.
Brackenbury, Gen. Sir H., September 4, 1896.
Bridge, Colonel C. H., January 31, 1896.
Bridge, Lt.-Col. T. F. D., September 24, 1897.
Bridgman, Col. Hon. F. C., February 25, 1898.
Brodrick, Hon. St. J., September 10, 1898.
Late Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for War.
Browne, General Sir S. J., April 16, 1897.
Cambridge, Field-Marshal the Duke of, December 20, 1895.
Cameron, General Sir W. G., March 5, 1897.
Campbell, Maj.-Gen. B. B. D., January 31, 1896.
Campbell, Captain C. F., September 10, 1897.
Cantan, Lieutenant H. T., February 19, 1897.
Carew, Colonel R. T., December 20, 1895.
Chapman, General E. F., April 2, 1898.
Chelmsford, General Lord, July 10, 1896.
Combe, Major-General B. A., August 21, 1896.
Connaught, General A. W. P. A., Duke of, Jan. 3, 1896, Oct. 16, 1896, and August 27, 1898.
Davies, Lieut.-General H. F., March 26, 1898.
Davis, General Sir J., July 9, 1897.
Dickson, General Sir C., May 28, 1897.
Donaldson, Mr. H. F., September 10, 1898.
Chief Mechanical Engineer of Ordnance Factories.
Drury-Lowe, General Sir D. C., May 1, 1896.
Dunne, General J. H., April 16, 1898.
East, Lt.-Gen. Sir C. J., November 12, 1897.
Edwards, Colonel E. N., April 9, 1897.
Ewart, General Sir J. A., February 19, 1897.
Fairtlough, Lieut.-Col. F. H., January 8, 1897.
Falmouth, Major-General Viscount E. E. T., June 4, 1898.
Fox, Colonel G. M., June 5, 1896.
Gatacre, Major-General Sir W. F., July 2, 1898
Geary, Lieutenant-General H. le, April 9, 1898.
Gipps, General Sir R., September 3, 1897.
Giraud, Surg.-Maj.-Gen. C. H., March 19, 1897.
Glyn, Lieutenant-General J. P. C., April 23, 1898.
Goldsmid, Colonel A. E. W., October 30, 1896.
Gordon, Lt.-Col. J. C. F., September 10, 1897.
Gough, General Sir H. H., June 11, 1897.
Gray, Lieut.-Col. H. W., April 9, 1897.
Greaves, General Sir G. R., September 17, 1897.
Grenfell, Lieut.-Gen. Sir F. W., Nov. 27, 1896.
Hamilton, Major H. I. W., October 30, 1896.
Hannay, Lieut.-Colonel O. C., June 12, 1896.
Harrison, General Sir R., February 5, 1897.
Heathcote-Amory, Lieut. H., Dec. 20, 1895.
Heriot, Colonel M., February 25, 1898.
Hewett, Lieut.-General E. O., June 26, 1896.
Hildyard, Maj.-Gen. H. C. T., August 13, 1898.
Hunter, Major-General A., May 28, 1898.
Jeffreys, Brig.-Gen. P. D., November 26, 1897.
Jeune, Right Hon. Sir F. H., Sept. 10, 1898.
Judge-Advocate-General to the Army.
Johnstone, Captain W. E., October 2, 1896.
Jones, General Sir H. S., July 16, 1898.
Kenny, Maj.-Gen. T. Kelly, October 16, 1896, and October 30, 1896.
Kirchhoffer, Lt.-Col. R. B., December 24, 1897.
Kitchener, General Sir H. H., April 17, 1896.
Knowles, Maj.-Gen. C. B., January 22, 1897.
Knox, Sir R. H., September 10, 1898.
Permanent Under-Secretary of State for War.
Lansdowne, Marquis of, September 10, 1898.
Secretary of State for War.
Lockhart, Gen. Sir W. S. A., October 29, 1897.
Low, Lieut.-General Sir R. C., April 3, 1896.
Lowther, Lieutenant H. C., December 11, 1896.
Lumsden, General Sir H. B., July 24, 1896.
Lysons, General Sir D., March 20, 1896.
Macdonald, Col. Rt. Hon. J. H., July 30, 1898.
MacNeill, Maj.-Gen. Sir J. C., April 30, 1897.
Marshall, Colonel G. H., August 6, 1897.
Massey, Lieut.-Gen. W. G. D., June 18, 1898.
Meiklejohn, Brig.-Gen. Sir W. H., Dec. 24, 1897.
Menzies, Lieut.-Colonel Duncan, April 9, 1897.
Methuen, Lieut.-Gen. Lord, January 3, 1896.
Milman, Major-General G. B., January 31, 1896
Mitford, Lieut.-Colonel W. K., April 9, 1897.
Montmorency, Major-General Viscount R. H. Frankfort de, September 18, 1896.
Murdoch, Lieut.-Col. J. F. B., January 22, 1897.
Murray, Colonel R. H., April 30, 1898.
Nash, Surg.-General W., March 19, 1897.
Olpherts, General Sir W., March 4, 1898.
Phayre, General Sir R., August 7, 1896.
Pollok, Lieut.-Colonel R. M., July 16, 1897.
Pulteney, Major W. P., December 11, 1896.
Raines, General Sir J. A. R., August 20, 1897.
Ramsden, Lieutenant C. J., April 30, 1898.
Richardson, Lieut.-Col. G. L. R., June 5, 1896.
Robb, Lieut.-Colonel F. S., October 30, 1896.
Roberts, Lieut.-Colonel H. R., October 15, 1897.
Roberts, Field-Marshal Lord, January 31, 1896, and June 12, 1896.
Rose, Major-General E. L., December 24, 1897.
Ross, Captain R. J., May 29, 1896.
Sawle, Col. F. A. Graves, December 20, 1895.
Seymour, Lt.-Gen. Lord W., October 16, 1896, and November 13, 1896.
Simmons, Fld.-Mar. Sir J. L. A., March 6, 1896.
Sorel-Cameron, Lt. G. C. M., October 11, 1896.
Stevenson, Lieut.-General N., April 2, 1897.
Stewart, Major-Gen. R. M., August 6, 1897.
Stewart, Fld.-Mar. Sir D. M., October 15, 1897.
Stirling, Lieut.-General Sir W., March 18, 1898.
Stransham, General Sir A. B., June 12, 1896.
Sutton, Captain H. C., June 4, 1898.
Swaine, Major-General L. V., October 16, 1896.
Talbot, Major-Gen. R. A. J., October 16, 1896.
Templer, Lt.-Colonel J. L. B., January 21, 1898.
Tod, Captain G. R., May 21, 1896.
Vandeleur, Lieut. C. F. S., January 22, 1897.
Vincent, Colonel Sir C. H., May 15, 1896.
Wales, Field-Marshal Prince of, June 5, 1896.
Walker, Lt.-Gen. Sir Forestier, Feb. 18, 1898.
Walter, Quartermaster J. A., March 29, 1896.
Warren, Lieut.-Gen. Sir C., December 11, 1896.
Williams, Mr. J. P., September 10, 1898.
Financial Secretary to the War Office.
Willis, Captain H. R. J., January 31, 1896.
Wilson, Major-General Sir C., May 14, 1897.
Wilson, Captain H. H., October 30, 1896.
Wilson, Mr. G. D. A. Fleetwood, Sept. 10, 1898.
Assistant Under-Secretary of State for War.
Winter, Lieut.-Colonel S. H., January 31, 1896.
Wolseley, Field-Marshal Right Hon. Viscount, December 20, 1895.
Wolseley, Major-General Sir G. B., May 7, 1898.
Wood, Major-General E. A., October 30, 1896.
Wood, General Sir H. E., January 17, 1896.
Wright, Colonel W. P., December 24, 1897.
Yorke, Colonel F. A., June 26, 1896.

Digitized by Google

Aspinall's Enamel.

EASY TO APPLY.

USED ON H.M. SHIPS.

SPECIAL TERMS TO OFFICERS OF THE SERVICE.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL, Ltd., NEW CROSS, London, S.E.

Digitized by Google

Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. Editorial Offices, 20, Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 30th, 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 139.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

NAVY & ARMY INSURANCES

SPECIAL SCHEMES OF
THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

Established 1844. Funds exceed £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—THE ARMY ASSURANCE AGENCY,
16, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.

THE ACCIDENT
Insurance Company (Ltd.)
(FOUNDED 1849.)

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES
cover accidents of all kinds, including
POLO, REGIMENTAL RACES, and (in India)
GYMKHANAS, without extra charge.

Residence Abroad. Racing and Steeple-Chasing.

West End Office (Civil and Military):
16, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.

THE National Burglary
INSURANCE CORPORATION (LTD.)
CAPITAL £50,000.

BURGLARY, HOUSE BREAKING, THEFT.

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES cover the property in any Barracks, Garrison, Hotel, Inn, Private House, or Apartments, also during transit by land.

West End Office (Civil and Military):
THE ARMY ASSURANCE AGENCY,
16, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.

INSURANCES OF EVERY DESCRIPTION, INCLUDING LIFE. ACCIDENTS. FIRE. BURGLARY. HORSE. CHARGERS. PONIES.
Prospectuses on application to—
THE ARMY ASSURANCE AGENCY, 16, Glasshouse St., W.
Branches: ALDERSHOT and PORTSMOUTH.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.

CAMBRIC
CHILDREN'S ... ... 1/3 doz
LADIES' ... ... 2/3 ,,
GENTLEMEN'S ... 3/3 ,,
Hem-stitched, LADIES', 2/9 doz. ,, ,, ... 3/11 ,,

PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

POCKET

Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.

"Cheapest handkerchiefs I have ever seen."—SYLVIA'S JOURNAL.

HANDKERCHIEFS.

N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY . . .
Pickering's 'Blanco'

For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

The Century Book of Gardening.

This is a Fac-simile Page taken from Part 2 of this very successful new Publication:—

C. Viorna, from North America, bearing drooping purple flowers with yellow interiors in June, which are followed by hairy seed-vessels.

C. virginiana, a North American plant, producing panicles of small white and fragrant blossoms from June to August.

C. Vitalba (Old Man's Beard or Traveller's Joy).—The well-known wild Clematis that garlands trees and hedges with its scented flowers during the summer, and with its smoke-grey seed-vessels, which have earned it its colloquial name, in the late autumn and winter.

C. Viticella, a speciescommon over Southern Europe and Western Asia. There are several varieties of this Clematis, of which C. v. cærulea bears blue flowers; C. v. purpurea, purple; C. v. tenuifolia, crimson; and C. v. plena, double purple. The flowers are large and drooping, and produced from June to September.

The large-flowered Clematises, which are seen so frequently in our gardens to-day, belong to the Jackmani, Florida, Patens, Lanuginosa, and Viticella groups. Varieties belonging to the Jackmani and Viticella groups flower on the young wood, and at the end of the year should be cut down to within about a foot of the ground. Lanuginosa and its varieties should be very sparingly pruned, merely cutting out weak growths, while varieties of the Florida and Patens groups require no pruning except such as is necessary for the removal of dead wood. The following are some of the best varieties of the different groups. Of the Jackmani section, which takes its rise from the Clematis of that name, itself a hybrid between C. Viticella and one of the large-flowered Japanese species, Gipsy Queen, velvety purple; the type, which is the commonest purple Clematis in our gardens; its white variety, C. Jackmani alba; Madame Grange, crimson-violet; Mrs. Baron Viellard, lilac-rose; Mrs. Hope, satiny mauve, with darker bar running up the middle of the petals; and Rubro-violacea, a purple-maroon, are all good. Of the Lanuginosa group, some of the varieties of which produce flowers a foot in diameter, Alba Mayna, pure white; Daniel Deronda, violet-blue; Fairy Queen, pale flesh with pink bar; Grand Duchess, white, flushed rose; La France, violet-purple; Gloire de St. Julien, mauve-white; Marie Lefebvre, mauve with dark bar; and William Kenneth, lavender, are handsome flowers. Of the Patens group, fine varieties are: Aureliana, porcelain blue; Fair Rosamond, white with claret bar; Lady Londesborough, silver-grey with darker bar; Lord Londesborough, deep mauve; Miss Bateman, white with chocolate anthers; Mrs. Crawshay, pink with bronze bar; Mrs. George Jackman, satin white with cream bar; and Stella, light violet with deep red bar. Of the Florida section, all of which are double flowers, Duchess of Edinburgh and Lucy Lemoine, both white, sweetly scented; Countess of Lovelace, lilac-blue; Aurora, pink, shaded mauve; Elaine, light violet; Enchantress, white and rose; and John Gould Veitch, lavender-blue, are good representatives of the group. Of the Viticella section, four named varieties may be mentioned as worthy of notice: Ascotensis, azure blue; Earl of Beaconsfield, rich purple; Lady Bovill, blue-grey; and rubra grandiflora, cherry red.

LARGE WHITE CLEMATIS

Amongst the shrubby and sub-shrubby species, the following are the most widely known: C. aromatica, or C. cærulea odorata, with scented violet-blue flowers 2in. in diameter, and growing to a height of 4ft.; C. æthusifolia, from China, flowers white and bell-shaped, height, 5ft.; C. crispa, an evergreen North American species, bearing pale lilac pendant flowers, and growing to a height of 6ft.; C. Davidiana, from China, bearing blue flowers, and growing from 2ft. to 4ft. high; C. integrifolia, from Hungary, drooping blue flowers 3in. to 4in. in diameter, and attaining a height of 2ft.; C. ochroleuca, a native of the United States, flowers yellowish-white, growing 1ft. to 2ft. high; C. recta, or erecta, bearing corymbs of scented white flowers, and growing to a height of 2ft. to 3ft.—this is an Hungarian species, of which there is a double variety; C. tubulosa, from China, bearing slender tubed blue flowers somewhat similar in shape to those of the Wood Hyacinth, and growing to a height of from 2ft. to 3ft.

Of course it would not be desirable to crowd all these forms into a single garden, unless a mere collection were desired. The varieties of the groups mentioned, particularly the Jackmani and others, are generally very handsome when fully established. If only one Clematis were required, C. Jackmani is as useful as any, the rich purple colour of the flowers showing to conspicuous

To be Completed in Twenty-six 6d. Weekly Parts, of which Parts 1 to 5 are Now Ready.

Published by George Newnes, Ltd., 7-12, Southampton Street, Strand, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 139. Saturday, September 30th, 1899.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),
Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with
Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,
PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS
FOR
MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE,
WOOLWICH, SANDHURST,
AND ALL
MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS;
also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:
MILITIA COMPETITIVE, March, 1899.

	Marks.
Lieut. C. E. Kinahan, 34th Infantry ... ... (Put on 597 marks in two-and-a-half months.)	1674
Lieut. C. Ridings, 37th Infantry ... ... 286 out of 300 in Book Tactics. (Put on 641 marks in two-and-a-half months, after failure elsewhere.)	1672
*Lieut. J. Campbell Dick 49th Infantry	1629
*Lieut. W. R. Coningham, 71st Infantry	1543
*Lieut. A. G. Hall, 88th Infantry	1485
Lieut. H. S. Povntz, 99th Infantry...	1450
*Lieut. Lewis Jones, 118th Infantry ... ... (After ten weeks' work.)	1378
*Lieut. A. Moore, offered W.I.R. ... ... (After ten weeks' work, and quite new to the subjects.)	1294

* 1st trial direct, after a few months' work.
1898.—Thirteen competed, all passed.—1898.

N.B.—NOT ONE FAILURE in the past THREE-AND-A-HALF YEARS.

Work carried on in small classes which ensures close attention to each pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, RICHMOND, S.W.

SEAFIELD COLLEGE
Seafield Park, Crofton-on-the-Solent, Hants.

"THE TECHNICAL EDUCATION OF THE SONS OF GENTLEMEN"— an Illustrated Article by PHILIP WHITWELL WILSON—will be sent with a full Prospectus, on application to the Governor,
SIR EDMUND HAY CURRIE,
2, PRINCES MANSIONS, VICTORIA STREET, S.W.

The ART of . .
Graceful Horse Riding
TAUGHT AT
SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,
EARL'S COURT.
Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

MAJOR BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.
FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.
During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.
These include
WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.
Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.
HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.
It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.
CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.
TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils.
7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).
Telegrams—"Exercitus London."
Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

URGENT APPEAL
FOR IMMEDIATE HELP.

THE HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN
GREAT ORMOND STREET, LONDON, W.C.
Patron: THE QUEEN.
President: THE DUKE OF FIFE, K.T.
Chairman: ARTHUR LUCAS, Esq.
Vice-Chairman: JOHN MURRAY, Esq.
Never since its foundation in 1852 has this Hospital—the first Children's Hospital in the British Empire—been in such want of money.
Five thousand pounds needed at once to keep the wards open.
The Committee appeal for money to pay for the cost of [illegible] about 450 Children every day.
[illegible] Lists forwarded on application to ADRIAN HOPE, Secretary.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought),
GREENWICH, S.E.
Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.
AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.
P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL,
HOLLOWAY.
Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.
The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 2,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £10,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED.
L. H. GLENTON-KERR, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND,
And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.
£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.
Bankers,
Messrs. Drummond.
ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

WEST LONDON HOSPITAL,
HAMMERSMITH ROAD, W. (101 beds.)
Patron: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President: THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, K.G.
Treasurer: THE LORD ROTHSCHILD.
FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED for opening new wards for 80 additional beds.
R. J. GILBERT, Secretary-Superintendent.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN
And CHILDREN,
MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.
Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.
W. GUNTRIP KING, Secretary.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.
The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of
TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS
and their crews in thorough efficiency.
In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.
Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION,
BROMPTON.
The Hospital contains 321 Beds, and in 1897 received 1,681 In-patients. 13,098 Out-patients were also treated. The yearly requirements of the Hospital cannot be estimated at less than £25,000 a year. Further, it has been decided upon the unanimous and urgent advice of the Medical Staff to establish a
"COUNTRY BRANCH AND CONVALESCENT HOME,"
and it is estimated that £20,000 will be needed to inaugurate this new departure.
The Charity being Unendowed, is dependent on Donations, Annual Subscriptions, and Legacies, Contributions are therefore earnestly solicited in aid of both objects.
Bankers:
Messrs. WILLIAMS, DEACON, & MANCHESTER & SALFORD BANK,
20, Birchin Lane, London.
WILLIAM H. THEOBALD, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

A New Hydro, and the Best.

By MICHAEL MOSCOW.

HYDROS have helped materially in maintaining the soundness of the British constitution, in a physical if not a political sense, though in this latter regard it is a truism that the healthy digestion of the Englishman has played no mean part in the proud pre-eminence that he enjoys in the comity of nations. However, I deal not now with the questions of dominancy of race, but simply with what appeals to most of us, in accord with the laws of self-preservation—the subject of personal hygiene.

In the early sixties, hydropathy was an experiment. To-day, in its larger significance of hydrotherapy, it is a great success; nay, more, it is an actual necessity in the exigencies of modern life-conditions. In these days people work at high-pressure, mentally and muscularly, and become jaded, "out of sorts," and, in a word, sufferers from malaise. Medicine availeth little; and hence it is that a restorative course hydrotherapeutic is "indicated," to use the physician's phrase. Little wonder is it, then, that palatial establishments have sprung into prosperous existence all over the country, from the Far North to the Sunny South, establishments modestly calling themselves Hydros, but which might well be dubbed Halls of Health. The newest of these, and unquestionably one of the best, is the CLIFTON GRAND SPA and HYDRO, just recently opened, and now in full and comfortable operation.

Clifton is a place that needs not the artful adventitious aid of imagination in the describing of its many advantages—unlike some other towns that have been "made" by master minds exuberant in poetic expression. Statistics, yes, dry statistics, tell the tale of its salubrity in full measure. A general death-rate of 13·2 in 1897 as compared with 19·1 for thirty-three large towns of England and Wales, and a zymotic rate of 1·0 against 2·8 testify to the health of the place. A grand air, balmy, benign, yet bracing; an equable temperature; a wealth of sunshine; and a romantic situation make Clifton an ideal residence for the seeker after health and recuperation. Another advantage of the place is its convenience of access from all parts of the Kingdom. The Midland, London and North Western, and Great Western Railways all serve Bristol with capital trainage, the latter Company, indeed, bringing London within two-and-a-half hours by a speedy and comfortable service of express trains. Nowadays, time is really the measure of distance; and time is money, as we all know.

DRAWING ROOM

Hence it was a right excellent idea to choose the Down of Clifton as the site of the GRAND SPA and HYDRO. The spot selected lies a hundred yards or so from the famous Suspension Bridge, and over against the historic hot-wells Spring, and the top-most station of the Rocks Railway. The Grand Pump Room, opened a few years ago, immediately adjoins, and, indeed, now forms part of the establishment. Below, and on either side, lies the Gorge of the Avon, while opposite are Leigh Woods, Nightingale Valley, and away in the distance a spur of the Mendip Hills. A more enchanting position could not have been found, but we must leave it to enter the Hydro and see what science and art besides Nature can do for the betterment of our bodies and the sequential solace of our souls.

The residential part of the house is everything that heart could wish. All the rooms are big and airy, bright and sunny, except a few that are reserved for those who prefer less spacious quarters and subdued lighting. The public apartments open upon the beautiful scenery of the Avon, and are fitted and furnished with everything that modern methods can suggest. Even the smoke-room is a Moorish miracle of art, while science finds play in the billiard-room, where a couple of fine tables by Thurston tempt the cue-rious. Cosy corners abound, even the landing being provided with luxurious couches and chairs, though there is no "getting up stairs" unless you so desire, a passenger elevator being provided.

The way to an Englishman's heart is popularly supposed to be through his digestive apparatus; but whether this be so or not, the fact remains that the cuisine at Clifton Spa and Hydro is simply capital. A clever chef commands the kitchen, and caters equally for the man blessed with a hearty appetite (he soon gets one at Clifton!) and the dyspeptic who needs special care in the administration of his diet scale. The table is at once liberal, refined, appropriate, and ample. There is nothing of the semi-starvation that is unfortunately too common at some Hydros, as I have experienced to my exasperation of soul and exhaus ion of body. Oh! those Sunday suppers at certain Scotch Spas! "A few parritch" and a "whee ie" of dry cheese, washed down with water, followed by a night of sleeplessness aggravated by a morbid craving to eat the soap! But at Clifton they are merciful as well as magnificent. Do you wake in the night and think you need sustenance, you have but to touch an electric bell, and lo! you are served with a cup of hot cocoa and a rusk. Or, on your way to the bath, fortifiers are supplied in the shape of hot fluid foods with biscuits, and so forth—often a necessary thing with those who are not over strong.

The baths themselves are quite unique. No pains or expense have been spared to this end. The best Continental systems have been observed, and in some cases improved upon, the result being that every approved method of treatment is here procurable, from the saline and effervescent baths of Nauheim to the Aix-douche, from electricity to the pack, from the Turkish to the Russian. And the installation is further excellent from the fact that it is all in duplicate. The ladies have an equally complete hydropathic fitment; and it thus becomes possible for all the members of a family to take their baths at the same hour instead of, as at many places, at odd times—to the disturbance of pleasure plans to be enjoyed together.

The whole establishment is under the medical supervision of the resident physician, Dr. C. J. Whitby, who brings his long experience at other Hydros to bear in the administration of the curative resources of the place. The peculiar needs of every patient are carefully observed, and the method of treatment prescribed and directed. Thus, no one is left to the rule of thumb treatment of the ordinary Hydro, but each case receives its own special care, with all the skill that modern medicine and applied science can ensure.

The famous water at the Hot-wells, for centuries in high repute for its excellent qualities, is freely "on tap" on every floor of the Hydro, in addition to being the raison d'être of the Grand Pump Room—the finest in the country. The water is anything but a nauseous tipple. It is, in fact, very much like the popular table waters of Germany—soft, refreshing, and palatable.

A word about the charges. For the modest sum of two-and-a-half guineas per week, one can have full board, an excellent bedroom, attendance, the run of the establishment, and the use of the general and hydropathic baths, including the Turkish and Russian baths, but excepting, of course, the electric and Weir-Mitchell Treatment, which involve some extra cost.

How it is done at the price is "one of those things that no fellah can understand," as Sothern used to say; but, like Mr. Maskelyne's magic box, the solution of the mystery is open to all. £500 reward is not offered; but a stay at CLIFTON GRAND SPA and HYDRO, like virtue, brings its own reward—in this case in the shape of increased health and happiness; a combination we all desire, and seldom get. It is compassable at Clifton. Verbum sat sapientis!

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Conjoint Forces	25
Music Afloat. (Illustrated)	26
The Transvaal Crisis. Scenes in a Great Historical Drama. (Illustrated) ...	27
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	29
Editorial Notices; Our Diary	30
The Naval Correspondent Afloat. (Illus.)	30
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	32
Cavalry Under Canvas. A Typical Cavalry Camp. (Illustrated) ...	33
Amusements and Theatricals on Board Ship. (Illustrated)	35
Steam Tactics: Their Part in Modern Warfare. From Our Own Correspondent. (Illustrated)	37
Our Colonial Forces: New Zealand. Part IV. (Illustrated)	39
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	41
"Bunter's Cruise: A Tale of the New Navy." By Charles Gleig. Illustrated by T. S. C. Crowther ...	42
Singing in the Army. By Captain Owen Wheeler	44
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Eleven Illustrations)	45
The Royal Caledonian Asylum. The Presentation of Colours to the Asylum. (Illustrated)	48

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

SHIPS IN RESERVE, AND THOSE BEING BUILT.

SHIPS NOT IN COMMISSION.

Achilles, cr.	Portsmouth
Active, cr.	Portsmouth
Æolus, cr.	Devonport
Agamemnon, B.	Devonport
Ajax, B.	Chatham
Albatross, t.b.d.	Chatham
Amphitrite, cr.	Chatham
Andromache, cr.	Chatham
Apollo, cr.	Chatham
Archer, cr.	Chatham
Arethusa, cr.	Chatham
Argonaut, cr.	Chatham
Ariadne, cr.	Chatham
Ariel, t.b.d.	Chatham
Audacious, B.	Chatham
Avon, t.b.d.	Chatham
Barham, cr.	Portsmouth
Basilisk, sloop	Sheerness
Belleisle, c.d.s.	Devonport
Bellerophon, B.	Devonport
Bellona, cr.	Portsmouth
Bittern, t.b.d.	Chatham
Blake, cr.	Devonport
Blanche, cr.	Devonport
Blenheim, cr.	Chatham
Boadicea, cr.	Portsmouth
Brilliant, cr.	Chatham
Bullfinch, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Calypso, cr.	Devonport
Cambrian, cr.	Devonport
Camperdown, B.	Portsmouth
Canopus, B.	Portsmouth
Chamois, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Charger, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Charybdis, cr.	Devonport
Cheerful, t.b.d.	Chatham
Condor, sloop	Sheerness
Conflict, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Coquette, t.b.d.	Chatham
Cordelia, cr.	Portsmouth
Cossack, cr.	Chatham
Cyclops, c.d.s.	Sheerness
Cynthia, t.b.d.	Chatham
Daring, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Decoy, t.b.d.	Devonport
Desperate, t.b.d.	Chatham
Diana, cr.	Chatham
Dreadnought, B.	Chatham
Dryad, t.g.b.	Chatham
Edgar, cr.	Devonport
Edinburgh, B.	Chatham
Europa, cr.	Portsmouth
Fairy, t.b.d.	Devonport
Formidable, B.	Portsmouth
Forth, cr.	Devonport
Fox, cr.	Portsmouth
Gibraltar, cr.	Portsmouth
Gipsy, t.b.d.	Devonport
Gladiator, cr.	Portsmouth
Glatton, c.d.s.	Portsmouth
Goliath, B.	Chatham
Gorgon, c.d.s.	Devonport
Grasshopper, t.g.b.	Chatham
Hardy, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Hasty, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Havock, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Hawke, cr.	Chatham
Hecate, c.d.s.	Devonport
Hercules, B.	Portsmouth
Hermes, cr.	Devonport
Highflyer, cr.	Devonport
Hornet, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Hydra, c.d.s.	Sheerness
Immortalité, cr.	Sheerness
Imperieuse, cr.	Portsmouth
Implacable, B.	Devonport
Inflexible, B.	Portsmouth
Intrepid, cr.	Portsmouth
Invincible, B.	Portsmouth
Iris, cr.	Portsmouth
Iron Duke, B.	Portsmouth
Juno, cr.	Devonport
Latona, cr.	Portsmouth
Leopard, t.b.d.	Devonport
Leven, t.b.d.	Devonport
Locust, t.b.d.	Devonport
Magpie, g.b.	Devonport
Mercury, cr.	Portsmouth
Mermaid, t.b.d.	Chatham
Mersey, cr.	Chatham
Minerva, cr.	Chatham
Naiad, cr.	Portsmouth
Narcissus, cr.	Portsmouth
Nelson, cr.	Portsmouth
Neptune, B.	Portsmouth
Nightingale, g.b.	Chatham
Ocean, B.	Devonport
Opossum, t.b.d.	Devonport
Orlando, cr.	Portsmouth
Osprey, t.b.d.	Devonport
Pallas, cr.	Portsmouth
Pelican, sloop	Devonport
Perseus, cr.	Sheerness
Phœbe, cr.	Devonport
Pique, cr.	Devonport
Prometheus, cr.	Sheerness
Pyramus, cr.	Chatham
Rainbow, cr.	Devonport
Ranger, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Rapid, cr.	Devonport
Rattlesnake, t.g.b.	Portsmouth
Redbreast, g.b.	Chatham
Retribution, cr.	Devonport
Robin, g.b.	Chatham
Rosario, sloop	Sheerness
St. George, cr.	Portsmouth
Salmon, t.b.d.	Chatham
Sappho, cr.	Chatham
Satellite, cr.	Sheerness
Scout, cr.	Portsmouth
Scylla, cr.	Chatham
Sirius, cr.	Devonport
Skate, t.b.d.	Devonport
Skipjack, t.g.b.	Chatham
Snapper, t.b.d.	Chatham
Spartan, cr.	Devonport
Spartiate, cr.	Pembroke D.
Speedwell, t.g.b.	Devonport
Speedy, t.g.b.	Sheerness
Spider, t.g.b.	Devonport
Spitfire, t.b.d.	Chatham
Starfish, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Sturgeon, t.b.d.	Chatham
Sultan, B.	Portsmouth
Sunfish, t.b.d.	Devonport
Superb, B.	Chatham
Surly, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Swiftsure, B.	Portsmouth
Swordfish, t.b.d.	Chatham
Sybille, cr.	Portsmouth
Sylvia, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Teazer, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Temeraire, B.	Devonport
Terpsichore, cr.	Chatham
Thames, cr.	Devonport
Thistle, g.b.	Devonport
Triumph, B.	Devonport
Vindictive, cr.	Chatham
Vulture, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Warrior, cr.	Portsmouth
Wild Swan, sloop	Devonport
Wizard, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Zebra, t.b.d.	Chatham

SHIPS BUILDING.

Aboukir, cr.	Glasgow
Africa, cr.	Glasgow
Albion, B.	Blackwall
Arab, t.b.d.	Clydebank
Bacchante, cr.	Glasgow
Bedford, cr.	Glasgow
Bramble, g.b.	Liverpool
Brazen, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Britomart, g.b.	Liverpool
Bulwark, B.	Devonport
Cornwallis, B.	Blackwall
Cressy, cr.	Glasgow
Dove, t.b.d.	Hull
Drake, cr.	Pembroke
Duncan, B.	Blackwall
Electra, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Espiegle, sloop	Sheerness
Essex, cr.	Pembroke
Euryalus, cr.	Barrow
Exmouth, B.	Birkenhead
Express, t.b.d.	Birkenhead
Falcon, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Fantome, sloop	Sheerness
Fervent, t.b.d.	Paisley
Glory, B.	Birkenhead
Greyhound, t.b.d.	Newcastle
Hogue, cr.	Barrow
Hyacinth, cr.	Glasgow
Implacable, B.	Devonport
Irresistible, B.	Chatham
Kent, cr.	Portsmouth
Kestrel, t.b.d.	Glasgow
King Alfred, cr.	Barrow
Lee, t.b.d.	Sunderland
Leviathan, B.	Glasgow
Lively, t.b.d.	Birkenhead
London, B.	Portsmouth
Monmouth, cr.	Glasgow
Mutine, sloop	Birkenhead
Myrmidon, t.b.d.	Jarrow
Orwell, t.b.d.	Birkenhead
Ostrich, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Otter, t.b.d.	Barrow
Pandora, cr.	Portsmouth
Petrel, t.b.d.	Jarrow
Pioneer, cr.	Chatham
Racehorse, t.b.d.	Newcastle
Recruit, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Rinaldo, cr.	Birkenhead
Roebuck, t.b.d.	Newcastle
Russell, B.	Jarrow
Shearwater, sloop	Sheerness
Spiteful, t.b.d.	Jarrow
Sprightly, t.b.d.	Birkenhead
Stag, t.b.d.	Chiswick
Success, t.b.d.	Sunderland
Sutlej, cr.	Glasgow
Syren, t.b.d.	Jarrow
Venerable, B.	Chatham
Vengeance, B.	Barrow
Vestal, sloop	Sheerness
Viper, t.b.d.	Newcastle
Vixen, t.b.d.	Barrow
Zephyr, t.b.d.	Paisley
Royal Yacht	Pembroke

Battle-ship No. 1	Chatham
,, No. 2	Devonport
Third-class Cruiser No. 1	Portsmouth
,, ,, No. 2	Chatham
,, ,, No. 3	Devonport

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. cr. Cruiser
t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat

THE NAVY AND ARMY.—Numerous illustrations have appeared in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of nearly all the ships in Her Majesty's Fleet, and of the regiments in either the Home, Indian, or Colonial Armies. Lists can be obtained on application.

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII. (Just Ready), cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings each, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

ASPINALL'S
"INDIAN"
ENAMEL.

For all Exterior Work, Big Guns, Turrets, &c.

ASPINALL'S "O" ENAMEL for all Interior Work, on Ships Cabins, Mess Rooms, &c.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL.

NON-POISONOUS

We have supplied our special quality Enamels to most of H.M. Ships, for both Interior and Exterior Work, which have given entire satisfaction.

Also our Special Zinc White, and Varnishes.

Works:—NEW CROSS, LONDON.
PARIS DEPOT: 24, Rue Alibert.
U.S. DEPOT: 98, Beekman Street, NEW YORK.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE
WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.
E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,
(LATE GALT & GIEVE)
Royal Naval Tailors and Outfitters.

HIGH STREET, PORTSMOUTH.
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W. (On Fridays.)

BEST SHEFFIELD MAKE.
KROPP
GERMAN HOLLOW GROUND
RAZOR
ALWAYS READY FOR USE.
NEVER REQUIRES GRINDING.
KROPP
WARRANTED PERFECT

BLACK HANDLE	5/6	PAIR IVORY HANDLES IN RUSSIA LEATHER CASE	21/-
IVORY HANDLE	7/6
KROPP'S DUPLEX STROP	7/6	KROPP'S STROP PASTE	6d.

Write for Pamphlet, "Shavers' Kit and Outfit," post free.
Wholesale: OSBORNE, GARRETT & Co., London, W.

RED WHITE AND BLUE
SOLD EVERYWHERE
FRENCH COFFEE
DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

THE
PALL MALL DEPOSIT.
STORAGE & FORWARDING
OF
OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT
A SPECIALITY.
Experienced packers sent to all parts, baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.
FULL INFORMATION FROM
CAPTAIN ARTHUR HAGGARD,
Manager, Military & Naval Department,
PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.
CARLTON STREET, REGENT STREET, S.W.

Digitized by Google

COLD STORAGE

THE ONLY ABSOLUTE PREVENTATIVE AGAINST MOTH, FOR FURS, RUGS, TROPHIES, ETC.

CALL OR WRITE FOR PARTICULARS

PALL MALL DEPOSIT & FORWARDING Co LTD

CARLTON ST REGENT ST LONDON W.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.) Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven. 1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.) Invented by Major-General Hankey. 1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.) Invented by J. J. Carreras. 1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.) Invented by G. Mugge, Esq. 1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS, 7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

Four Points:

No Finger Marks,
No Labour,
A Brilliant Polish, and
A Pleasant Perfume.

Stone's Perfumed Furniture Cream.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1/-, and 2/6 each, direct from

STONE AND SON, EXETER.

Or at all Respectable Stores.

ENCORE RAZOR

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO., make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

Send for Free List of Cases.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co., Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,

who will supply through nearest Agent.

We Season the World.

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

The Five Noted Seasons of the World—

For Fish, Flesh, and Fowl of all kinds.

SPRING, SUMMER, AUTUMN, WINTER AND

YORKSHIRE RELISH

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., & 2s. each. Beware of Substitutions. Sole Proprietors: GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & CO., LEEDS.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—I quite agree with you that the choice of dresses to send out to friends at the other side of the world needs the greatest deliberation. It is also a most thankless task—in most cases, at least. You spend hours of thought on the matter; you use all the imagination you possess in picturing the wearer that is to be in this or that material, or colour, or style of dress; you choose the dress, send it out, and the letter of polite thanks you receive in return shows you in every line that your labour has been in vain. Probably your friend has some preconceived ideas of her own; these she has not stated clearly, with the result that you have made a mistake, and you vow a vow, that will soon be broken, that never again will you choose anything at all for any one of your friends or relations in the Far East.

To add to the difficulties of individual taste, you are also generally asked to send out a dress that is capable of renovation when required. No one in these days likes to appear in exactly the same toilette too often, and it is impossible for most people to be always sending home for entirely new dresses. Nowadays this want is not a difficult one to meet. So many of the dresses are made on a solid material, such as satin or panne, and then elaborately trimmed with chiffon or crêpe de chine or pailletted tulle, and these can easily be altered or retrimmed.

Paillettes are to be as much worn as ever; used with care they do add much to the beauty of an evening dress, but when they are overdone they are odious, and a woman has to be particularly well-bred-looking to stand them. In "Hearts are Trumps" is a scene showing us many smart women at an evening party, and here we see these glittering ornaments as they should and as they should not be used. Many of the dresses are adorned with these fashionable spangles. One of the guests is entirely in black, but her costume has the appearance of scale armour, so closely are the paillettes laid on, to the entire absence of all grace or prettiness. Miss Violet Vanbrugh, on the other hand, has a beautiful dress that shows with what good effect such things can be used. It is a dress that is difficult to describe, as it is made of clouds of draperies and fluffiness. In it are blended many shades of pink. The material is chiffon, of which layer upon layer forms the skirt, veiling a foundation of pink satin, and embroidered with a beautiful design of vine leaves. The polonaise is of a lighter shade of pink embroidered with mother-o'-pearl paillettes, and strewn with tiny ruchings of the chiffon. The bodice is draped, whilst a knot of black tulle on the left shoulder gives the strong contrast so much seen in evening dresses in the last few months.

The drawing I send you is from a Paris model, so you can be sure of its absolute novelty. Made over soft rose-coloured satin, it has a polonaise of embroidered gauze, and is decorated with butterflies of painted and jewelled gauze of the most delicate pink, shading into yellow. At each shoulder is fastened a butterfly, and in the front of the bodice is another, whilst two more hold together the polonaise, beneath which appear deep flounces of lace. The dress is of course made with a long train, which is finished off with bands of embroidery.

AN ABSOLUTE NOVELTY.

I hear that Miss Kathleen Royle's wedding, which came off lately at Emanuel Church, Mannamead, was a very pretty one. The bride is the only daughter of Captain Royle, D.S.O., R.N., of the "Trafalgar," and the bridegroom Major Alexander Cadell, 38th Dogras, son of Lieutenant-General Cadell, R.E., of the Pinnacles, Plymouth. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of rich white satin trimmed with chiffon and Honiton lace, whilst a design of lover's knots was worked on the skirt. Her train was carried by Master Vernon Royle, who was dressed as a Bluejacket, and wore a pearl pin, the gift of the bride. Miss Royle's jewels were a necklace of pearls and pearl and diamond pins, all of which were the gifts of the bridegroom, as was also her bouquet of lilies, gardenias, and tuberoses. The best man was Mr. I. K. Tovey, R.A., and there were eight bridesmaids, all of whom were children. Each wore a Princess frock of white silk and a wreath of marguerites, and received from the bridegroom a gold and turquoise merrythought brooch and a basket of marguerites. After the ceremony Mrs. Royle held a reception, when the band of the "Impregnable" played during the afternoon, and at five o'clock the bride and bridegroom left for Exeter en route for Scotland, the former wearing a fawn-coloured coat and skirt made with a waistcoat of pale blue satin and lace and a fawn toque trimmed with forget-me-nots and blue chiffon.

Amongst those present at the church and reception were Captain Bromley, R.N., and Mrs. Bromley, Captain Graham, R.N., and Mrs. Graham, Colonel and Mrs. Oakes, Inspector-General and Mrs. Fisher, Lady Anne Cosserat, Sir Henry

Digitized by Google

CARRIAGE PAID TO ALL STATIONS.

Trapnell & Gane,

Excellent Solid Hazlewood Bedroom Suite, comprising 4 ft. Wardrobe, 3 ft. 6 in. Dressing Chest, with Reflex Mirrors, 3 ft. 6 in. Washstand, with rouge royal Marble Top, £22 : 10 : 0.

COLLEGE GREEN, BRISTOL.

New Illustrated Catalogue, 1,000 Engravings, Post Free.

"LERINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

Digitized by Google

and Lady Waring, Colonel and Mrs. Burlton, Colonel and Mrs. Swiney, etc. The presents were very numerous and handsome, and included a silver coffee service presented by brother officers of the bridegroom.

I should have much greater pleasure in describing to you the weddings that take place amongst your Naval and Military acquaintances if there were something novel about the bride's dress on which I could dilate. True it is that the fashion changes in the way of trimmings, and this year there was a decided innovation in the lace trains that were so often seen; but the eternal white satin goes on for ever, only varied now and again by the brocade, which, to my mind, is not nearly so pretty. However, there is one thing to be said for the regulation dress—that it is most becoming, and there was never a bride yet who was not described as looking lovely on her wedding day.

And now I will tell you of another wedding in which the white satin appeared, and very prettily made, too, being draped with lovely Brussels lace. The veil was also of lace, worn over a coronet of orange blossoms. This was worn by Miss Anne Marguerite Prendergast, daughter of Colonel Lennox Prendergast, who on the 19th was married to Mr. John Ogilvie Forbes, of Boyndlie, Aberdeenshire.

The wedding took place at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Chelsea, which was beautifully decorated, and the service was choral. The bridesmaids all wore pink and white dresses trimmed with lace. They had large picture hats to match, and wore gold and pearl brooches, the gifts of the bridegroom.

A reception was afterwards held at 22, Grosvenor Gardens, but owing to both families being in mourning, only intimate friends and relations were present. Early in the afternoon the bride and bridegroom left for Oxford, the bride wearing a dress of brown cloth, with a cape and hat to match.

Autumn is undoubtedly upon us now. It is no use attempting to shut our eyes to the fact, and one by one our summer amusements have to go. Bertha writes that they are all deploring the close of the first season of the Portsmouth Polo Club, where they had such enjoyable afternoons throughout the summer. As I daresay you know, the club grounds are at Hilsea, only four miles out of Southsea, and yet they are so pretty and countryfied that they might be miles away from any town.

As a final entertainment the club gave a gymkhana last week, which was most successfully carried out. Sir Baker Russell and Captain Alexander were most energetic in making all the arrangements, and their efforts were not in vain, for everyone seemed to be having a good time. The grounds looked more than usually pretty on this particular afternoon, as there were a great many people present, all of whom were very smartly dressed, and chiefly in bright summer dresses. The proceedings began with a ladies' driving competition, an event which always attracts a great deal of interest. On this occasion it was won without any difficulty by Miss Greenwood. Amongst others who competed were Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Churchward, Mrs. Baring, and Mrs. Phillips. The Mathematical Stakes caused very much amusement. Each competitor had to be nominated by a lady, the latter having to do a sum and hand it to her nominee, who rode with it to the winning-post. Under such conditions sums are not easy to do, so much merriment was caused by the anxious faces of the competitors, and finally Captain Levita won, having been nominated by Lady Baker Russell. Many other events followed, and then Lady Baker Russell gave away the prizes, dressed in a pretty costume of black and white.

Amongst those who were present, Bertha tells me of Lady Hughes, who wore a light-coloured coat and skirt and a large hat with roses; Mrs. Kinloch, who was in cream; Mrs. Phillips, in a red costume with a large black hat; Miss Howell, in white with pale blue; Mrs. Burhey, in pink; Miss Edden, in a pale green coat and skirt with a white hat; Miss Lynch Staunton, in black and white; Mrs. C. Williams, in a blue skirt with a white silk blouse; and the Misses Long, one in a white costume, and the other a blue coat and skirt. Admiral and Mrs. de Kantzow were there, as also General and the Misses Napier, Captain and Mrs. Dowell, Major, Mrs., and Miss Laurence Gordon, Miss Learmouth, Mrs. Campbell, Miss Dalrymple, Colonel and Mrs. Twyne, and Mrs. Bonham Carter.

The Annual Sports of the Royal Military Academy came off last week, when Mr. A. H. du Boulay was the most successful competitor, taking the silver challenge bugle and miniature and Major-General Lloyd's prize for the winner of the greatest number of marks. The Quarter-mile Invitation Strangers' Cup Handicap, for the Eardley Wilmot Cup, was won by Mr. J. M'Lean, while the Handicap Flat Race, open to former winners of the bugle, was won by Major Dalbiac, and Captain Woodcock came in second.

Yours affectionately,

CONSTANCE.

 Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK, SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK, with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

Best is Cheapest. Fixed prices.

Jaeger.

PURE WOOL

UNDERWEAR, HOSE, PYJAMAS, RUGS, BLANKETS, CASHMERE SHEETS, DRESSING GOWNS, SHAWLS, CORSETS, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS & CAPS, etc., etc.

TRADE MARK

126, REGENT ST., W. | 30, SLOANE ST., S.W.
456, STRAND, W.C. | 85 & 86, CHEAPSIDE, E.C.
115, VICTORIA ST., S.W. (6 DOORS WEST OF ARMY & NAVY STORES.)

PURE WOOL TAILORS: 42, CONDUIT ST., W.

"Health Culture" and Price List sent free.
The Jaeger goods are sold in most Towns. Address sent from Head Office, 95, MILTON STREET, LONDON, E.C.

There Are Others,

BUT . . .

Luxette

IS THE BEST SAVOURY

FOR

Breakfast,
Tea,
Sandwiches,

ETC.

1/- per Terrine in Hermetically Sealed Tin.

MANUFACTURED BY

MRS. A. B. MARSHALL

(Marshall's School of Cookery),

LONDON.

Digitized by Google

NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

The Most Popular Sixpenny Weekly.

IF you have friends or relatives in the Queen's Services; if you wish to enter the Army, Navy, or Volunteers; if you desire to learn anything about the Defences of your Country, or the elements which make Foreign States powerful, either as friends or foes; if you want to know about the Building of Ships, the Manufacture of Guns, or the Home Life of our Soldiers and Sailors—you will find much to interest you in the pages of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

6,000,000 Copies of the NAVY AND ARMY have been sold. First issued December 20, 1895. The following is a list of the corps of the British Army illustrations of which have appeared in the paper:—

CAVALRY.

Regular Troops.

1st Life Guards, January 31, 1896.
,, ,, March 20, 1896.
,, ,, April 3, 1896.
,, ,, Sept. 10, 1898.
,, ,, Dec. 10, 1898.
2nd Life Guards, April 3, 1896.
,, ,, July 16, 1898.
Royal Horse G'ds, Jan. 17, 1896.
,, ,, ,, April 17, 1896.
,, ,, ,, July 16, 1898.
,, ,, ,, June 10, 1899.
1st Dragoon G'ds, Sept. 3, 1897.
,, ,, July 16, 1898.
2nd Dragoon G'ds, Sept. 10, 1898.
3rd Dragoon G'ds, Oct. 16, 1896.
,, ,, Dec. 24, 1897.
,, ,, July 16, 1898.
5th Dragoon G'ds, Oct. 15, 1897.
6th Dragoon G'ds, June 3, 1899.
7th Dragoon G'ds, July 16, 1898.
1st Dragoons, January 3, 1896.
,, ,, September 10, 1898.
2nd Dragoons, December 20, 1895.
,, ,, January 31, 1896.
,, ,, May 1, 1896.
,, ,, October 2, 1896.
3rd Hussars, May 20, 1896.
5th Lancers, January 17, 1898.
,, ,, December 17, 1898.
6th Dragoons, July 15, 1899.
7th Hussars, May 28, 1897.
,, ,, September 10, 1898.
8th Hussars, July 9, 1897.
,, ,, July 16, 1898.
9th Lancers, January 17, 1896.
,, ,, March 6, 1896.
,, ,, January 7, 1898.
10th Hussars, July 23, 1897.
,, ,, December 17, 1898.
11th Hussars, January 22, 1897.
,, ,, May 21, 1898.
12th Lancers, December 17, 1898.
13th Hussars, July 23, 1897.
,, ,, August 20, 1897.
14th Hussars, May 28, 1897.
,, ,, July 23, 1897.
15th Hussars, July 9, 1898.
16th Lancers, October 29, 1897.
,, ,, September 10, 1898.
,, ,, May 20, 1899.
17th Lancers, February 21, 1896.
,, ,, March 20, 1896.
,, ,, April 3, 1896.
,, ,, January 7, 1897.
,, ,, September 10, 1898.
18th Hussars, April 2, 1898.
19th Hussars, September 18, 1896.
21st Lancers, October 15, 1897.
,, ,, October 22, 1898.
,, ,, May 6, 1899.

Yeomanry.

Ayrshire, July 16, 1897.
Cheshire, July 2, 1898.
,, June 24, 1899.
Gloucestershire, April 9, 1897.
Herts, April 9, 1897.
,, February 25, 1898.
West Kent, February 25, 1898.
Lanarkshire, April 9, 1897.
D. of Lancaster's Own, Feb. 25, 1898.
Berwickshire, July 16, 1897.
Middlesex, April 9, 1897.
West Somerset, February 25, 1898.
Staffordshire, February 25, 1898.
Royal Wiltshire, July 2, 1898.
Worcestershire, February 25, 1898.
Yorkshire, April 9, 1897.

ROYAL ARTILLERY.

Royal Horse Artillery.

D Battery, July 10, 1896.
I Battery, August 7, 1896.
Q Battery, September 3, 1898.

Field Artillery.

73rd Battery, January 22, 1897.
18th Battery, January 22, 1897.
92nd Battery, June 24, 1899.

Mountain Artillery.

No. 4 Battery, September 18, 1896.
No. 10 Battery, November 13, 1896.

Militia.

Antrim, November 26, 1897.
Edinburgh, July 16, 1898.
West of Scotland, Oct. 15, 1898.
Hants and Isle of Wight, July 1, 1899.

Volunteers.

Kent, October 2, 1896.
Norfolk, July 25, 1898.
,, June 10, 1899.
1st Sussex, April 9, 1897.
Cinque Ports, 2. Sept. 16, 1899.
Shropshire, July 16, 1897.
1st London, May 14, 1898.
3rd Middlesex, September 4, 1896.
,, ,, August 30, 1898.

Royal Marine Artillery.

August 21, 1896.

Royal Malta Artillery.

August 7, 1896.
November 26, 1897.
June 3, 1899.
August 5, 1899.

Bermuda Militia Artillery.

January 21, 1898.

ENGINEERS.

Militia.

Royal Monmouthshire, October 29, 1898.

Volunteers.

Aberdeenshire, April 9, 1897.
,, August 26, 1899.
Cheshire, July 16, 1897.
Hampshire, October 22, 1898.
London, September 24, 1898.
Middlesex, September 24, 1898.
Tower Hamlets, Sept. 24, 1898.
,, ,, August 19, 1899.
Yorkshire, February 25, 1898.

Submarine Miners.

Severn Division, April 9, 1897.

INFANTRY.

Grenadier G'ds, 3. April 3, 1896.
,, ,, 1. Aug. 21, 1896.
,, ,, 2. Oct. 16, 1896.
,, ,, 1. May 14, 1897.
,, ,, 1. Sept. 10, 1898.
Coldstream G'ds, 1. Dec. 20, 1895.
,, ,, 1. April 3, 1896.
,, ,, 1. Mar. 25, 1899.
,, ,, 3. April 9, 1898.
,, ,, 2. June 4, 1898.
Scots Guards, 1. February 21, 1896.
,, ,, July 29, 1899.
Queen's (R. W. Surrey Regiment), V 1. July 16, 1897.
1. July 1, 1899.
East Kent Regiment, 2. June 17, 1899.
King's Own (R. Lancaster Regt.), 2. August 21, 1896.
1. October 16, 1896.
1. April 23, 1898.
Northumberland Fusiliers, V 1. April 9, 1897.
2. May 28, 1898.
1. May 13, 1899.
Royal Warwickshire Regiment, V 1. February 25, 1898.
1. April 30, 1898.
2. September 2, 1899.
Royal Fusiliers, V 2. July 16, 1897.
,, ,, V 1. Feb. 25, 1898.
,, ,, 3. June 18, 1898.
1st King's Liverpool Regiment, August 19, 1899.
Norfolk Regt., M 2, July 2, 1898.
Lincolnshire Rt., 1. May 15, 1896.
,, ,, 1. Oct. 15, 1897.
,, ,, V 1. Aug. 26, 1899.
,, ,, V 2. Aug. 26, 1899.
Devonshire Rt., 2. March 6, 1896.
,, ,, 2. March 20, 1896.
,, ,, 2. April 17, 1896.
,, ,, V 1. July 16, 1897.
,, ,, V 2. Feb. 25, 1898.
,, ,, M March 18, 1899.
Suffolk Regt., 1. January 17, 1896.
,, ,, January 14, 1899.
,, ,, 1. July 15, 1899.
Somersetshire Light Infantry, 2. February 21, 1896.
V 3. July 16, 1897.
West Yorkshire Regiment, 3. March 4, 1898.
2. May 20, 1899.
East Yorkshire, Feb. 25, 1898.
Royal Irish Regiment, M 3. March 14, 1897.
Yorkshire Regt., 1. April 9, 1898.
,, ,, April 1, 1899.
Lancashire Fusiliers, 2. September 10, 1898.
Royal Scots Fusiliers, 1. April 17, 1896.
1. May 1, 1896.
Royal Welsh Fusiliers, 1. November 12, 1898.
1. April 1, 1899.
K.O.S. Borderers, 2. Oct. 2, 1896.
,, ,, 2. May 28, 1897.
Gloucestershire, 2. May 1, 1896.
,, 2. May 21, 1897.
East Surrey, V 4. April 22, 1899.
Duke of Wellington's (W. R. Rt.), 2. August 21, 1896.
2. October 30, 1896.
Hampshire Regiment, V 3. April 9, 1897.
V 1. July 9, 1898.
March 18, 1899.
3. July 8, 1899.
South Staffordshire Regiment, V 1. & 3. February 25, 1898.
Dorsetshire Regt., 2. Jan. 8, 1897.
,, ,, 2. June 11, 1898.
South Lancashire Regiment, 1. October 15, 1898.
Welsh Regt., V 3. Feb. 25, 1898.
The Black Watch (Rl. Highl'd's), 1. March 18, 1898.
2. November 19, 1898.
Oxfordshire Light Infantry, 2. September 17, 1897.
2. December 24, 1897.
Essex Regiment, 2. Aug. 13, 1898.
Derbyshire Regiment, V 2. August 26, 1899.
Loyal North Lancashire Regt., 3. October 15, 1897.
Royal Berkshire Regiment, 2. March 20, 1896.
1. September 18, 1896.
3. August 6, 1898.
Queen's Own (R. W. K. Regt.), 2. December 11, 1896.
March 11, 1899.
August 5, 1899.
3. August 12, 1899.

Royal Marines.

Plymouth Division, Dec. 24, 1897.
Portsmouth ,, Dec. 17, 1898.
Walmer Depôt, Feb. 4, 1899.
,, ,, Feb. 18, 1899.
,, ,, Mar. 14, 1899.

King's Shropshire L.I. Regiment, 2. August 12, 1899.
Middlesex Regt., 1. May 29, 1896.
,, ,, 1. May 21, 1897.
King's Royal Rifle Corps, 3. March 15, 1896.
V 6. May 15, 1896.
October 16, 1896.
V 1. July 16, 1897.
V 4. February 25, 1898.
V 5. April 22, 1899.
Wiltshire Rt., V 2. July 16, 1897.
Manchester Rt., V 2. April 9, 1897.
,, ,, 2. June 25, 1898.
,, ,, 1. Aug. 19, 1899.
North Staffordshire Regiment, V 2. February 25, 1898.
Durham Light Infantry, 2. May 28, 1897.
M 4. July 1, 1899.
Highland Light Infantry, V 3. February 25, 1898.
Seaforth Highlanders, 2. September 4, 1896.
1. February 4, 1898.
V 2. April 9, 1898.
1. April 30, 1898.
Gordon Highlanders, 1. September 17, 1897.
1. November 12, 1897.
Q. O. Cameron Highlanders, 1. May 7, 1898.
Royal Irish Rifles, 1. May 14, 1897.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers, June 10, 1899.
Argyll & Sutherland Highlanders, 2. February 21, 1896.
1. June 12, 1896.
V 6. February 25, 1898.
Leinster Regt., 1. July 30, 1898.
Royal Munster Fusiliers, 1. September 16, 1899.
Rifle Brigade, V 6. April 9, 1897.
,, ,, V 7. July 16, 1897.
,, ,, V 1. Oct. 22, 1898.
,, ,, March 18, 1899.
West India Regt., Dec. 10, 1898.
,, ,, ,, April 1, 1899.
Hong Kong Rt., May 14, 1897.
Royal Army Medical Corps, January 17, 1896.
Army Ordnance Corps, May 28, 1897.

Channel Islands' Militia.

Guernsey, May 28, 1897.
,, May 27, 1899.
Jersey Militia, Dec. 10, 1898.

Volunteer Infantry Brigades.

North London, July 16, 1897.
South London, July 16, 1897.
North Midland, July 16, 1897.
Plymouth, November 5, 1898.
Staffordshire, February 25, 1898.
Surrey, July 16, 1897.
Tyne and Tees, July 22, 1899.
South Wales, August 5, 1899.

1.—1st Battalion. 2.—2nd Battalion. 3.—3rd Battalion. M.—Militia. V.—Volunteers.

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII. (Just Ready), cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 83—87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. Editorial Offices, 20, Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED. OCTOBER, 7TH 1899
Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper. Postage, One Halfpenny.

VOL 9. No 140.

THE TRANSVAAL CRISIS DOUBLE NUMBER

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

PRICE 1/

S. Smith & Son, Ltd.

WATCHMAKERS TO THE ADMIRALTY,

. 9, Strand, London, .

Jewellers & Clock Makers,

MAKERS OF

MARINE CHRONOMETERS

AND

Kew Observatory Certificated Watches.

Prize Medal Electrical Exhibition, 1892,

FOR

NON-MAGNETISABLE CHRONOGRAPHS.

No. 138.—Our own Special make of "Strand" Chronograph, £8 8s. See page VI.

No. 82.—Our own Special All English "Strand" Compensated Lever (Silver Cases), £5. See page VI.

For the convenience of Customers desiring the benefit of Early Purchases, S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., have adopted

. . "The Times" . .

(Encyclopaedia Britannica) Novel Plan of Twenty Monthly Payments, particulars of which, together with their "TREATISE ON WATCHES" (just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Second Edition), may be obtained free on application.

OUR LIST OF PURCHASERS CONTAINS NAMES OF THE HIGHEST IN THE LAND.

COLLIER'S FINEST LIQUEURS.

Devonshire Sloe Gin

SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS

Crest Brand Cherry Brandy.
Crest Brand Cherry Whisky.

COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,

53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE

(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)

Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.

Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.

SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.

MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.

Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN

CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 140. Saturday, October 7th, 1899.

The ART of . .

Graceful Horse Riding

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

DR. GEORGE HORATIO JONES

The Old-Established Surgeon-Dentist of

57, Great Russell Street

(directly facing the British Museum),

May be consulted daily, as usual, for the best English and American Dentistry. Moderate Fees. Extension of premises, Great Russell Mansions, next door.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.—A vacancy occurs for a gentleman to act as MANAGER of one of Sandow's Schools of Physical Culture. Must have had good business training, and of good social position. A thorough knowledge of physical culture. A good salary will be paid to a fully competent man. Apply by letter only, giving fullest particulars of how previously employed, age, etc., to Managing Director, Sandow Ltd., Sandow Hall, Savoy Corner, Victoria Embankment, W.C.

SEAFIELD COLLEGE

(ON THE SOLENT).

Governor: SIR E. HAY CURRIE.

Principal: REV. JOHN J. MILNE, M.A.

Head of Engineering Section:

H. T. DAVIDGE, B.Sc. (Lond.), Assoc. R.C.Sc.
(Whitworth Scholar),

AND LARGE STAFF.

Seafield is a Residential College for the sons of gentlemen.

ENGINEERING.—Preparation in all branches, including Mining.

Separate well-equipped Chemical, Physical, and Electrical Laboratories; Workshops, with two Practical Instructors, Drawing Office, 10-ton Testing Machine. Own Electric Lighting Installation. Arrangements made with firms of high repute to accept students at low premiums. Special terms offered if needful.

ARMY Candidates have exceptional advantages in Mathematics, Science, and Languages. See prospectus.

UNIVERSITY.—Individual attention given to backward students.

JUNIOR SECTION (11—15).—Boys receive a modern education.

Apply to SIR E. HAY CURRIE, Seafield Park, Crofton, Hampshire; or at the London Office, 66, Victoria St., S.W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8 p.m. "An Interrupted Honeymoon."
COMEDY, Panton St., W.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "Wheels within Wheels."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C. New play in October.
DRURY LANE, W.C. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "An American Citizen."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C.
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "The Degenerates."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "Man and His Makers." Wed. and Sat. 2 p.m.
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W. "The Moonlight Blossom."
PRINCESS'S, W.
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Prince of Borneo."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C.
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "La Poupée." Thurs. 2.30 p.m.
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "Hands Across the Sea."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Cuckoo." Saturday 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E. "The Belle of New York."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Tommy Atkins."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "In London Town." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "Soldiers of the Queen, or, Briton and Boer," 7.45 p.m., and Wed. 2.0. p.m.
GRAND, Fulham, S.W. "Miss Chiquita." Wed. 2.30 p.m.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "How London Lives."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's). "A Runaway Girl."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E. "The Tyranny of Tears."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "Why Smith Left Home."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "The Geisha."
PARKHURST, Holloway, N.
PAVILION, 85, Whitechapel Road, E.
ROYAL, Stratford, E. "The Luck of Life."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "My Girl."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W. "The Silver King."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junct'n, S.W. "How London Lives."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Drink."
TERRISS'S, Rotherhithe, S.E.

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

MAJOR BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils.
7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?

A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?

A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for

Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

For 25 years Owbridge's Lung Tonic has been curing people, until its fame as a remedy for all affections of the respiratory organs has extended to every part of the known world.

"As a public speaker and singer, I always find it invaluable for clearing the voice. It acts like magic on my children for throat and chest complaints, and I have known it save life when given up by three physicians."
JOHN BAILEY, Pastor P. M. Church, Ramsgate.

I lost my voice entirely for a month, and after paying a large doctor's bill I decided to try your Lung Tonic. After taking four doses I was able to sing."
ELSIE MAY, Grand Theatre, Stoneham.

Prepared by

W. T. OWBRIDGE, M.P.S., Chemist, Hull.

Sold everywhere in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

Honest Value.

Saltley Cycles

FITTED WITH DUNLOP OR OTHER TYRES,

£12 £14 £16

Prices of Ladies', Girls', and Boys' Machines on application.

Viaduct Cycles

FITTED WITH DUNLOP TYRES,

£10.

FITTED WITH "A.B." TYRES,

£8 15s.

THOS. SMITH & SONS, OF SALTLEY, Ltd., BIRMINGHAM.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: The Situation in South Africa, As It May Be	49
Actors and Scenes in the Drama ...	50
The Local Forces of Cape Colony ...	52
On the Cape Border	54
The Naval Forces	55
Navies and Armies of the World ...	57
Paul Kruger—Sportsman and Diplomat	58
The Probable Seat of War (Special Map)	59
Editorial Notices; Our Diary	60
Literary News and Books to be Read...	60
First Military Movements	61
Port Elizabeth	63
The 10th Mountain Battery in Natal...	64
The Indian Contingent	65
Further Reinforcements	67
The Command in Natal	69
The Natal Naval Volunteers	69
The Transvaal and Its People	70
The British Officers	72
The Bulwarks of South Africa	73
Scenes in the Transvaal	74
Port Elizabeth and Grahamstown Volunteers	76
Transport of Troops by Sea	77
An Army Corps for South Africa ...	79
War Balloons for the Front	83
Rhodesia	83
Afloat and Ashore	85
"Bunter's Cruise"	86
Native Life and Scenery	89
Portuguese Territory	91
The Local Forces of Natal	92
On the Natal Frontier	94
Disembarking Troops at Durban ...	94
Life on the Veldt	95

Each Article is fully Illustrated and each Picture fully described.

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Royal Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

First Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY ON FOREIGN SERVICE.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. h.d.s. Harbour Defence Ship. d.v. Despatch Vessel. y. Yacht. sur.v. Surveying Vessel. d.s. Depot-ship. r.g.b. River Gun-boat. t.d.s. Torpedo Depot-ship.

Abyssinia, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Alacrity, d.v.	Com. A. H. Smith-Dorrien	China
Alert, sloop	Com. H. Savile	North America
Algerine, sloop	Com. E. J. W. Slade	China
Amphion, cr.	Capt. Frank Finnis	Pacific
Andromeda, cr.	Capt. J. L. Burr, C.M.G.	Mediterranean
Anson, B.	Capt. W. Wilson	Mediterranean
Ardent, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. F. E. Walters	Mediterranean
Astræa, cr.	Capt. A. W. Paget	Mediterranean
Assaye, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. O. U. Coates	East Indies
Aurora, cr.	Capt. E. H. Bayly	China
Banshee, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. L. Watts-Jones	Mediterranean
Barfleur, B.	Capt. Hon. S. C. J. Colville, C.B. (Rear-Al. C. C. P. Fitzgerald)	China
Barracouta, cr.	Com. R. H. Peirse	C. of Good Hope
Barrosa, cr.	Com. W. F. Tunnard	C. of Good Hope
Beagle, sloop	Com. Hon. H. A. S. Stanhope	S. E. C. of America
Bonaventure, cr.	Ct. R. A. J. Montgomerie, C.B.	China
Boomerang, t.g.b.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Boxer, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. J. Twiselton-Wykeham-Fiennes	Mediterranean
Brisk, cr.	Com. R. B. S. Wrey	China
Bruizer, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. L. Hulton	Mediterranean
Buzzard, sloop	Com. L. F. G. Tippinge	North America
Cæsar, B.	Capt. E. H. Gamble	Mediterranean
Centurion, B.	Capt. J. R. Jellicoe (Vice-Adml. Sir E. H. Seymour, K.C.B.).	China
Cockatrice, g.b.	Com. H. N. Rolfe	Danube
Columbine, y.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Williamson	North America
Comus, cr.	Commodore G. A. Giffard	North America
Crescent, cr.	Capt. C. J. G. Sawle (Vice-Adl. Sir F. G. D. Bedford, K.C.B.).	North America
Cruiser, sloop	Com. L. G. Tufnell	Mediterranean
Daphne, sloop	Com. C. W. Winnington-Ingram.	China
Dart, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. Parry	Australia
Devastation, B.	Capt. F. S. Inglefield	Gibraltar
Dido, cr.	Capt. G. Neville	Mediterranean
Doris, cr.	Ct. R. C. Prothero (Rear-Adml. Sir R. H. Harris, K.C.M.G.).	C. of Good Hope
Dragon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Lambert	Mediterranean
Dwarf, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. F. Shakespear.	C. of Good Hope
Earnest, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Baird	Mediterranean
Eclipse, cr.	Capt. P. W. Bush (Rear-Admiral H. D. Bosanquet).	East Indies
Egeria, sur.v.	Com. M. H. Smyth	Pacific
Empress of India B	Capt. H. H. Dyke	Mediterranean
Endymion, cr.	Capt. G. A. Callaghan	China
Esk, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. Chadwick.	China
Fame, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. J. B. Keyes	China
Fearless, cr.	Com. H. R. P. Floyd	Mediterranean
Flora, cr.	Commodore R. L. Groome	S. E. C. of America
Foam, t.b.d.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Forte, cr.	Capt. E. P. Jones	C. of Good Hope
Griffon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. Hon. H. G. Brand	Mediterranean
Halcyon, t.g.b.	Com. S. W. A. H. Gray	Mediterranean
Handy, t.b.d.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Harrier, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. P. Walter	Mediterranean
Hart, t.b.d.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Hazard, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. P. V. Lewes, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Hebe, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Taylor.	Mediterranean
Herald, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. Harvey	River Zambesi
Hermione, cr.	Capt. R. S. D. Cumming	China
Hibernia, d.s.	Com. W. Ricketts (Rear-Adml. R. M. Lloyd, C.B.).	Malta Reserves
Hood, B.	Capt. A. C. Corry.	Mediterranean
Hotspur, h.d.s.	Com. C. S. Elliot.	Bermuda
Humber, store-ship	Com. H. J. Davison.	China
Hussar, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. M. R. Hill	Mediterranean
Icarus, sloop	Com. G. F. S. Knowling	Pacific
Illustrious, B.	Capt. Sir R. Poore, Bart.	Mediterranean
Imogene, d.v.	Com. E. J. Bain	Mediterranean
Indefatigable, cr.	Capt. F. L. Campbell	North America
Iphigenia, cr.	Capt. H. N. Dudding	China
Isis, cr.	Capt. G. M. Henderson	Mediterranean
Karrakatta, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Harbord.	Australia
Katoomba, cr.	Capt. H. W. S. Gibson	Sydney Reserves
Lapwing, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Lambert	East Indies
Leander, cr.	Capt. F. F. Fegen	Pacific
Liffey, d.s.	Staff-Com. P. H. Wright	Coquimbo
Linnet, g.b.	Com. W. W. Smythe	China
Lizard, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Watson	Australia
Magdala, h.d.s.	Capt. H. L. Fleet.	Bombay Reserves
Magicienne, cr.	Capt. W. B. Fisher	C. of Good Hope
Marathon, cr.	Capt. J. G. M. Field.	East Indies
Melita, sloop	Com. I. M. Fraser, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Melpomene, cr.	Capt. J. Denison	East Indies
Mildura, cr.	Capt. H. Leah	Australia
Mohawk, cr.	Com. F. H. P. W. Freeman	Australia
Monarch, B.	Capt. R. D. B. Bruce	Simon's Bay
Mosquito, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. L. Cox	River Zambesi
Nymphe, sloop	Com. R. B. Farquhar	Mediterranean
Orion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Orlando, cr.	Capt. J. H. T. Burke	China
Partridge, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Hunt	C. of Good Hope
Peacock, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. S. G. Douglas	China
Pearl, cr.	Capt. J. E. C. Goodrich	North America
Pegasus, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cochran	S. E. C. of America
Penguin, sur.v.	Capt. J. W. Combe	Australia
Phaeton, cr.	Capt. F. G. Kirby	Pacific
Pheasant, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. G. Smith.	Pacific
Philomel, cr.	Capt. J. E. Bearcroft	C. of Good Hope
Phœnix, sloop	Com. R. P. Cochran.	China
Pigeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Moubray.	East Indies
Pigmy, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. E. Green	China
Plassy, t.g.b.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Plover, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. V. de M. Cowper	China
Polyphemus, ram	Com. E. L. Lang	Mediterranean
Pomone, cr.	Capt. E. A. Simons	East Indies
Porpoise, cr.	Com. A. H. D. Ravenhill	Australia
Powerful, cr.	Capt. Hon. Hedworth Lambton	(For Cape)
Proserpine, cr.	Capt. J. L. Marx	North America
Psyche, cr.	Ct. F. C. Pelly	North America
Pylades, cr.	Com. R. G. O. Tupper	Australia
Quail, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Rymer	North America
Racoon, cr.	Com. G. H. Hewett	East Indies
Rambler, sur.v.	Com. H. E. P. Cust	West Indies
Ramillies, B.	Capt. W. des V. Hamilton	Mediterranean
Rattler, g.b.	Lt.-Com. Hon. G. A. Hardinge.	China
Redpole, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. F. H. Booth.	China
Renown, B.	Capt. D. McN. Riddel (Vice-Admiral Sir J. A. Fisher, K.C.B.).	Mediterranean
Revenge, B.	Capt. C. J. Briggs (Rear-Admiral Sir G. H. U. Noel, K.C.M.G.).	Mediterranean
Ringarooma, cr.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Ringdove, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. F. Ayscough	Australia
Rocket, t.b.d.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Royal Arthur, cr.	Capt. C. G. Dicken (Rear-Adml. H. L. Pearson).	Australia
Royal Oak, B.	Capt. W. H. B. Graham	Mediterranean
Royal Sovereign, B.	Capt. M. P. O'Callaghan	Mediterranean
Rupert, h.d.s.	Com. A. B. G. Grenfell.	Alexandria
Salamander, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. C. Villiers	Mediterranean
Sandfly, t.g.b.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Sandpiper, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. C. Carr	China
Scorpion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Snipe, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Oldham	China
Sparrow, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. Wilkin, D.S.O.	C. of Good Hope
Sparrowhawk, t.b.d	(Reserve Esquimault)	Pacific
Sphinx, s.	Com. H. A. Phillips.	East Indies
Stork, sur.v.	Com. H. J. Gedge	Mediterranean
Surprise, d.v.	Com. F. W. F. Hervey	Mediterranean
Swallow, sloop	Com. F. W. Keary	S. E. C. of America
Swift, g.b.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Talbot, cr.	Capt. G. A. Primrose	North America
Tamar, d.s.	Commodore F. Powell, C.B.	Hong Kong
Tartar, cr.	Com. F. R. W. Morgan	C. of Good Hope
Tauranga, cr.	Capt. L. C. Stuart	Australia
Terrible, cr.	Capt. Percy Scott	China (via Cape)
Terror, d.s.	Capt. T. MacGill, C.B.	Bermuda
Theseus, cr.	Capt. V. A. Tisdall	Mediterranean
Thetis, cr.	Capt. W. S. Rees	Mediterranean
Thrush, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. W. Pochin	C. of Good Hope
Torch, sloop	Com. H. Preedy	Australia
Tribune, cr.	Capt. R. S. Rolleston	North America
Tyne, supply-ship	Com. K. Wade.	Mediterranean
Undaunted, cr.	Capt. A. C. Clarke	China
Urgent, d.s.	Commodore W. H. Henderson.	Jamaica
Venus, cr.	Capt. Sir A. B. Milne, Bart.	Mediterranean
Victorious, B.	Capt. A. Schomberg	China
Virago, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. T. F. Pike	Pacific
Vulcan, t.d.s.	Capt. R. W. White	Mediterranean
Wallaroo, cr.	Capt. A. M. Farquhar	Australia
Warspite, cr.	Capt. T. P Walker (Rear-Adml. Beaumont).	Pacific
Waterwitch, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. W. P. Dawson	China
Whiting, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. Kelly	China
Widgeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. F. Gurney	C. of Good Hope
Wivern, h.d.s.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Woodcock, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. R. Watson	China
Woodlark, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. B. Barton	China

Digitized by Google

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

"STRAND" Watch with Cap on.

9, Strand, W.C.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our "TREATISE ON WATCHES," just published, 125 pp., 400 illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138.

"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.

OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

18-ct. Gold	£21 : 0 : 0
Steel or Silver Cases... ... each	8 : 8 : 0
With 30 Minute Recorder	5 : 5 : 0

The finest quality and value ever produced.

No. 82. ALL ENGLISH.
As Half-Hunter or Full Hunting Cases,
Silver, £6 6s.; 18ct. Gold, £16 16s.

Crystal Glass, Silver, £5; 18-ct. Gold, £13 15s.

Special Size for Ladies, £5 15s. and £12 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be obtained on our new system of payment by Monthly Instalments.

Our New Registered No. 211,798 Bracelet, Best Gold and Real Stones, Price £5 15s.

Our latest Registered No. 12,237, Best Gold and Real Stones, £6 15s.

S. SMITH & SON, LTD., 9, Strand, W.C. Watchmakers to the Admiralty.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING OF OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts, baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

CAPTAIN ARTHUR HAGGARD,

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

CARLTON STREET, REGENT STREET, S.W.

RED WHITE AND BLUE FRENCH COFFEE

SOLD EVERYWHERE

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

Digitized by Google

SMITH, ELDER & CO.'S LIST.

IMPORTANT NEW WORK BY THE AUTHOR OF "DEEDS THAT WON THE EMPIRE."
In 4 vols, crown 8vo. With Portraits, Facsimiles, and Plans. 6s each.

HOW ENGLAND SAVED EUROPE:
THE STORY OF A GREAT WAR (1793-1815).
By W. H. FITCHETT, LL.D.
Author of "Deeds that Won the Empire," "Fights for the Flag," etc.

VOL. I., FROM THE LOW COUNTRIES TO EGYPT,
WILL BE PUBLISHED IN OCTOBER, and the remaining volumes at intervals.

By THE SAME AUTHOR.

FIGHTS FOR THE FLAG. SECOND EDITION. With 16 Portraits, 13 Plans, and a Facsimile Letter of the Duke of Marlborough. Crown 8vo, 6s.

Review of Reviews.—"This is the second volume of the series which has achieved one of the greatest literary successes of our time. . . . As a gift book, or as a book to take up and read at odd moments, or to devour at a prolonged sitting, this book has few equals."

DEEDS THAT WON THE EMPIRE. NINTH EDITION. With 16 Portraits and 11 Plans. Crown 8vo, 6s.

Spectator.—"Not since Macaulay ceased to write has English literature produced a writer capable of infusing such life and vigour into historical scenes. The wholesome and manly tone of Mr. Fitchett's book is specially satisfactory. . . . The book cannot but take the reader by storm wherever it finds him."

NEW WORK BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE CRUISE OF THE 'CACHALOT.'"
On October 12th. With Eight full-page Illustrations, specially drawn by Arthur Twidle. Large post 8vo, 8s. 6d.

THE LOG OF A SEA WAIF:
Being Recollections of the First Four Years of my Sea Life. By FRANK T. BULLEN, F.R.G.S., Author of "The Cruise of the 'Cachalot.'" "Idylls of the Sea," etc.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

THE CRUISE OF THE "CACHALOT." Round the World after Sperm Whales. The Volume includes a Letter to the Author from RUDYARD KIPLING. FOURTH EDITION. With 8 Illustrations and a Chart, large post 8vo, 8s. 6d.

World.—"Without exception one of the most charming sea-stories which it has been our luck to peruse for many a long day."

Bookman.—"Here is a glorious salt-sea book, true every word of it, and thrilling with adventure. . . . The spirit of daring is there, and plenty of adventure. . . . It is not a juvenile book, but boys will revel in it, and men who have still some of their boyish sympathies intact, will find it as refreshing as an ocean holiday."

IMMEDIATELY, crown 8vo, in paper cover, 1s.; or, in cloth, 1s. 6d.

THE WAY THEY HAVE IN THE NAVY. Being a Day-to-Day Record of the Recent Naval Manœuvres.

LONDON: SMITH, ELDER & CO., 15, WATERLOO PLACE.

MILITARY WORKS.

THE ELEMENTS OF MODERN TACTICS: Practically Applied to English Formations.
By Lieut.-Col. WILKINSON SHAW. With 32 Plates and Maps. Tenth Edition, revised throughout. Small crown 8vo, 9s. net.

FIELD ARTILLERY: Its Equipment, Organization, and Tactics.
By Lieut.-Col. SISSON C. PRATT, late R.A. Sixth Edition, revised and brought up to date by Lieut.-Col. EDEN BAKER. Small crown 8vo, 6s.

MILITARY LAW: Its Procedure and Practice.
By Lieut.-Col. S. C. PRATT. Thirteenth Revised Edition, corrected up to date. Small crown 8vo, 4s. 6d. net.

ARMY SERVICE CORPS DUTIES IN PEACE AND IN WAR.
Compiled and arranged by Lieut.-Col. E. W. D. WARD, C.B., D.A.A.G. (Home District). Edited by Capt. W. H. JAMES. Small crown 8vo, 6s.

MINOR TACTICS.
By Major-General C. F. CLERY. With 26 Maps and Plans. Twelfth Edition, revised. Crown 8vo, 9s.

AN IRREGULAR CORPS IN MATABELELAND.
By Lieut.-Col. HERBERT PLUMER. With Map. Post 8vo, 9s.

LONDON: KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH, TRÜBNER & CO., LIMITED,
PATERNOSTER HOUSE, CHARING CROSS ROAD, W.C.

W. THACKER & CO.'S
ANNOUNCEMENTS.

With Sampson through the War.
By W. A. M. GOODE. An Account of the Naval Operations of the North Atlantic Squadron during the Spanish War of 1898. With Chapters specially contributed by Rear-Admiral Sampson, U.S.N., Capt. R. D. Evans, U.S.N., and Commander C. C. Todd, U.S.N. With Portraits of Naval Officers, Illustrations and Maps. Demy 8vo, cloth, 10s. 6d.

The Imperial Russian Navy.
By FRED T. JANE, Author of "All the World's Fighting Ships (Naval Annual), "The Torpedo in Peace and War," Inventor of the Jane Naval War Game (Naval Kriegspiel), etc., etc. With 150 illustrations from Sketches and Drawings by the Author and from Photographs. [In prep.

The Torpedo in Peace and War.
By FRED T. JANE, Author of "Blake of the 'Rattlesnake,'" "All the World's Fighting Ships," Inventor of the Jane Naval War Game, etc. With about 30 Full-Page and a great many smaller Illustrations, the greater part of which are reproductions of Sketches made at Sea, on board Torpedo Craft by the Author. Oblong folio, cloth gilt, 10s. 6d.

A Summer In High Asia.
A Summer Ramble through Baltistan and Ladakh. By Capt. F. E. S. ADAIR (late Rifle Brigade), Author of "Sport in Ladakh." With a Chapter on Central Asian Trade by Capt. S. H. Godfrey, late British Joint Commissioner at Leh. Illustrated by a series of beautiful Photographs and Drawings taken on the spot, and a Map of the Route. Medium 8vo, cloth extra, 12s. 6d. net.

Catalogues on Application.

W. THACKER & CO., 2, Creed Lane, E.C.

SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & CO.'S
NAVAL PUBLICATIONS.

THE ROYAL NAVY FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO THE PRESENT. By WILLIAM LAIRD CLOWES. Illustrated by Photogravure Portraits, Maps, Plans, and Pictures taken from contemporary and authentic sources. Each Volume is complete in itself, with an Index, and orders are taken either for sets or for separate Volumes. Vols. I. to IV., royal 8vo, 25s. each net.

 The Publishers have decided to issue a Sixth Volume, as it was found impossible to complete the work as originally arranged in five volumes. It is hoped that Vol. V. will be ready in December next, and a final volume in April, 1900.

"A worthy memorial of our naval history. . . . Will take high rank among the literary achievements of the Victorian era. A work that must now be regarded as indispensable to serious students of English history."—Daily Chronicle.

THE DOWNFALL OF SPAIN. Naval History of the Spanish-American War. By H. W. WILSON, Author of "Ironclads in Action." Demy 8vo, with numerous Full-page Illustrations, Maps, Charts, and Battle Plans. 14s. net. Ready Shortly.

In the "Downfall of Spain," the naval history of the Spanish-American War is very fully and carefully treated by Mr. H. W. WILSON (Author of "Ironclads in Action"). He has made full use of the official reports and publications on the war, to say nothing of the vast amount of matter which has appeared in the American and Spanish newspapers and magazines—much of which has escaped notice in England. The work deals not only with the actual fighting, but also with the conclusions to be drawn therefrom. It will be fully illustrated with maps, plans, and illustrations, mainly from photographs—amongst which will be the remarkable series taken for Mr. Hearst, of the New York Journal, for the reproduction of which special permission has been obtained. The work will have a full index and will run to about 450 pages.

IN THE PRESS. ONE VOL. CROWN 8vo, CLOTH.

OUR NAVY FOR A THOUSAND YEARS (King Alfred to Khartoum). By Captain S. EARDLEY-WILMOT. With many Illustrations of Ships showing their progressive stages from century to century.

NOW READY. In one Volume of over 750 pages. Price 12s. 6d. net. The New, Revised, and much Cheaper Edition of CAPTAIN MAHAN'S LIFE OF NELSON. With New Preface by Captain MAHAN. The Illustrations and Battle Plans as in the 2 vol. 36s. Edition (still in print), and an ENTIRELY NEW CHART, giving the general lines of Nelson's Cruisings, 1777 to 1805, with crossed Flags in Red, indicating his chief Battles.

"Far the best Life of Nelson that has ever been written."—Times. "Incomparably the best Life of Nelson."—Nineteenth Century. "A great biography and one to be read by all men."—Spectator.

CAPTAIN MAHAN'S WORKS ON SEA POWER.

INFLUENCE OF SEA POWER UPON HISTORY. 1660—1783. With 25 Charts of Great Naval Battles. Demy 8vo, cloth extra, gilt top, 18s.

INFLUENCE OF SEA POWER ON THE FRENCH REVOLUTION AND EMPIRE. With 13 Maps and Battle Plans. 2 vols., demy 8vo, cloth extra, gilt top, 30s.

INTEREST OF THE UNITED STATES IN SEA POWER, PRESENT AND FUTURE. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 10s. 6d. net.

UNITED STATES' NAVY IN THE CIVIL WAR. The Gulf and Inland Waters. With Maps. New Edition. With Steel Engravings, 5s.

THE LIFE OF ADMIRAL FARRAGUT. With Steel Portrait, also a General Map and Plans. Crown 8vo, cloth, 6s.

LONDON: SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & COMPANY, LIMITED,
ST. DUNSTAN'S HOUSE, FETTER LANE, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Digitized by Google

Active Service in the Transvaal!!

STORAGE OF OFFICERS' BAGGAGE,

. . . MESS PROPERTY and PLATE,

= = A Speciality. = =

All Military Requirements PROCURED and FORWARDED immediately on receipt of Order.

SPECIAL AGENTS AS FAR TO THE FRONT AS POSSIBLE.

FULL INFORMATION FROM CAPTAIN ARTHUR HAGGARD, . . Manager . . Military and Naval Department.

Pall Mall Deposit and Forwarding Co., Ltd.

London Office and Warehouse:
Carlton Street, Regent Street S.W.

Aldershot Branch:
Arthur Street, Station Road.

Bankers: Messrs. Coutts & Co., Strand.

ENCORE RAZOR

STEEL.—Messrs. THOMAS TURNER & CO., make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

Send for Free List of Cases.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co., Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,

who will supply through nearest Agent.

DE LA RUE & CO'S FOUNTAIN PENS

Designed to Suit all Tastes and Requirements,
AND MADE THROUGHOUT IN THEIR OWN WORKSHOPS.

THE "PELICAN" (PATENTED)

A Fountain Pen with Shut-off Valve

ORDINARY SIZE, 10/6 — WITH 14-CARAT GOLD PEN, IRIDIUM-POINTED. — EXTRA LARGE, 16/6

Writes Instantly and Continuously, and may be carried in any position without fear of leakage.

THE "NOTA BENE" STYLO

Or FLUID PENCIL (PATENTED)

5/-  5/-

The Stylo may be considered the HANDIEST OF ALL WRITING INSTRUMENTS, as it is always ready for use without adjustment, and may be carried in any position without fear of leakage.

DE LA RUE'S

"ISOBATH" INKSTAND (Patented)

Has a LARGE RESERVOIR of INK, Secure from Dust and Evaporation.

The Float is so weighted and poised as always to keep the Ink in the Dipping-Well at the same level.

PRICES from 2/6 to 45/-

Section, showing Construction.

ALSO THE

"SWIFT" WRITING INKS

Specially recommended for the above Pens and Inkstands.

Sold by all Stationers. Wholesale only by the Sole Manufacturers,
THOS. DE LA RUE & CO. Ltd., BUNHILL ROW, LONDON, E.C.

A BOOKLET OF AMUSING AND ATTRACTIVE

NURSERY JINGLES,

Beautifully Printed in Colours,
SENT FREE on application if this paper is mentioned.
A post-card will do.

FRAME FOOD CO., Ltd., Battersea, LONDON.

Digitized by Google

Strength

attained and maintained

by

The cultivation of physical strength is one of the factors in our nation's supremacy. Early training in athletics, and universal indulgence in healthy outdoor sports and pastimes, coupled with more enlightened ideas as to dietary and sanitation, are working wonders for the physical well-being of our race. One of the greatest strength-makers of the age is Bovril, because it contains all the flesh-forming constituents of prime ox beef in a form easy of digestion and assimilation even by the feeblest invalid—a pure and perfect combination of the nourishing and stimulating properties of the best of flesh foods. Hence its unique value as a means of increasing vitality and maintaining physical strength.

BOVRIL
Campaigning Rations.

A large quantity of these rations has just been supplied for use by the FORCES drafted to South Africa.

Digitized by Google

The Illustration shows the Method of Expansion.

An Elastic Bookcase!

A LIVING BOOKCASE THAT GROWS WITH YOUR NEEDS!!

LARGE ENOUGH FOR 10,000 BOOKS. SMALL ENOUGH FOR 10 BOOKS.

ALWAYS COMPLETE!! NEVER FINISHED!!

The Wernicke Patent Elastic Bookcase System is the only perfect system invented. You can commence in one corner of the room with a case large enough for ten books, and this can be expanded upwards or sideways to any extent; the "Wernicke" is thus never too large or too small.

ADVANTAGES.—Gradual Expense—Dust-proof Doors—Any Corner can be Fitted—Cases can be built square or round a pillar—Protection of Books—Portability—Elegance—Utility—Economy, etc.

INVALUABLE FOR PRIVATE AND PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

The building-up process being gradual, the expense is not felt, being spread over a length of time. The Bookcases can be fitted to any wall, recess, etc., suiting the convenience of the purchaser.

Dainty Illustrated "N" Booklet, fully explaining the above, postedfree to any reader of the Navy and Army.

THOMAS TURNER (Leicester), LTD. {44, HOLBORN VIADUCT, LONDON, E.C.;

7 & 9, Newarke St., Leicester; 23, Snow Hill, Birmingham.

Pitkeathly cum Lithia

THE BEST MINERAL WATER FOR

GOUT AND RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO AND SCIATICA.

IT is stronger in the ingredients for the Cure of these troublesome complaints than any other water, natural or artificial now sold. It never fails to relieve, and, if continued long enough, it will dissolve Gouty Deposits out of the Joints, as well as drive the materies morbi of Gout from the blood. It is also good in Congestion of the Liver and Kidneys, for Acidity, Indigestion, and Morning Sickness, with Coated Tongue.

Two or three Half-Bottles may be taken daily, either alone, or with a little Spirits, and before, with, or after meals.

Each Half-Bottle represents 5 grains of Carbonate of Lithia.

GENERAL BRUCE, of Glendoughie, Milnathort, N.B., late Commander of the Forces for Scotland, says :—

"I agree that 'Pitkeathly and Lithia' are a true and loyal combination, and have often repelled the threatened of Gout in my outposts. When there, I felt him reconnoitring, I threw in 'Pitkeathly and Lithia' and drove him before me."

NONE GENUINE UNLESS SIGNED "REID & DONALD" ACROSS THE LABEL.
SUPPLIED IN QUARTS, PINTS, AND SPLITS.

To be had of all first-class Hotels, and sold by Chemists and Wine Merchants throughout the World.

REID & DONALD, PERTH, Proprietors.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

The "Utility" Horse Rug

(GEDDES' PATENT).

Fits like a tailor-made coat, specially stayed in every part. Durable, economical, smart. Made in England from English material. Hygienically treated.

CARRIAGE RUGS, APRONS, BANDAGES, KNEE BOOTS, AND ALL STABLE REQUISITES.

Great saving effected by buying direct.

Descriptive Price List sent free by Sole Proprietors—

The Geddes Manufacturing Co.,
16=20, Farringdon Avenue, London, E.C.

A DELIGHTFUL SHAVE.

No Soap, Water or Brush required. Only a Tube of A. S. LLOYD'S "EUXESIS" and a Razor.

Shaving with "EUXESIS" becomes a pleasure.

"EUXESIS."

It Softens the Stiffest Beard, and leaves the skin cool, smooth, and free from irritation.

The genuine bears Two Signatures—"A. S. LLOYD" in black, and "AIMÉE LLOYD" in red ink. Refuse any other.

SOLD BY CHEMISTS AND STORES, OR POST FREE FOR 1s. 6d. FROM

LLOYD & CO., 3, Spur Street, Leicester Square, LONDON, W.C.

Digitized by Google

THERE IS NO KODAK BUT THE EASTMAN KODAK.

KODAK

photography is so simple as to be readily mastered by anyone in a few minutes. No dark room is required for changing the films. The spools of exposures may readily and safely be sent by post for development and printing. Kodaks from £1 1s. to £7 7s. Catalogue post free. KODAK, Limited, 43 Clerkenwell Road, London, E.C. Retail Branches: 60 Cheapside, E.C.; 115 Oxford St., W.; 171-173 Regent St., W.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered.
Children's		1s. 3d.
Ladies'		2s. 3d.
Gents'		3s. 3d.
Hemstitched.
Ladies'		2s. 9d.
Gents'		3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d. per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

Capt. K . . . . . in the Transvaal.

NO SIR!

TORTOISE-SHELL MIXTURE

Is NOT made from Boer Tobacco. It is a good British Mixture, now being introduced along with another British "Mixture" into the Transvaal.

Sold in 1-oz. Packets, and 2, 4, and 8-oz. Tortoise-shell Tins. The ¼-lb. and and ½-lb. Tins are recommended for keeping the Tobacco in good condition.

Ask at all First-class Tobacconists and Stores.

Manufactured and Guaranteed by W. A. & A. C. CHURCHMAN, Ipswich, London and Norwich.

Established 1790.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian

. . Ales. . .

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.

IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—Long before you get this we shall, I suppose, know whether we are to have peace or war. What a relief it will be to have the matter really settled, after the weeks of suspense and excitement we have gone through. Everyone will be delighted, even though if war be declared it will mean months of anxiety to many. But to most people anything is preferable to uncertainty.

Saturday mornings at Waterloo are always periods of fuss and excitement when the Cape mail is starting. But last Saturday the bustle and confusion was indescribable. The train was crammed, and the platform crowded to the utmost with friends come to bid a last farewell to those who were going out, these farewells being said in tones not unmixed with envy by those brother officers who only wished they had had the good fortune to be sent where possibilities of fame lay before them.

Doris writes to me that she will go off to the Cape in a fortnight to rejoin her husband if, after all, the matter ends without war. So she is busy preparing her outfit in her usual practical matter-of-fact manner. She philosophically says she must either waste her time in worrying or in buying clothes, and of the two she thinks the latter the preferable. She is certainly a splendid soldier's wife, for no matter what sudden moves or times of anxiety she may experience, she always pretends to be cheerful, which is an infinite blessing to all belonging to her.

One of the things she has bought for her prospective journey is a really lovely tea-gown, in which it would be difficult for any woman not to look well. It is of crêpe de chine known as Rose du Barry, made over silk of the same colour. The bodice is cut low, and the dress hangs straight from the décolletage to the feet, being only caught into the waist with a band of velvet. A drapery of old lace reaches from the shoulders to the edge of the skirt, and is just brought forward at the waist, after which it falls away at each side in a natural graceful sweep. It was an old shawl belonging at one time to her great-grandmother that Doris used for this purpose, fastening one corner to the back, whilst two more were brought forward as I have described, the other reaching to the end of the train. I mention this, as you say Molly asks you to tell her how to use her old lace. She is very fortunate to have had such a legacy just now, as lace is much worn, and it is always so becoming to young and middle-aged and old alike. Fichus one continually sees just now, not left to hang in the negligé manner usually suggested by the word fichu, but arranged just below the shoulders, and then brought across the bust to be fastened on one side in some graceful manner, with a diamond star, an old paste buckle, or other quaint ornaments. But to go back to the tea-gown, which I have not finished describing. The sleeves are made of jewelled chiffon enriched with empiécements of painted and jewelled gauze; the same trimming, with the addition of knots and straps of velvet, finishing the décolletage, whilst the tiniest ruches of chiffon on the skirt complete a very charming costume.

A REALLY LOVELY TEA-GOWN.

Molly is also getting a lovely dress of white cloth, a picture of which I shall send you very soon. I recommend these fine white cloths to your notice, for any of your friends going to Cairo and other sunny places this year. For though I believe they are to be worn in England they do not seem to me to be in keeping with our usual grey winters, except for very smart occasions indoors. But for a bright sunny atmosphere they are charming, and they are also very becoming to anyone with a good complexion.

Poor Esther! I truly sympathise with her, for I know what it is to suffer from cold hands when bicycling on winter days, with the wind biting, and the thermometer below freezing point. One gets delightfully warm in every other way, but one is conscious of nothing but just those poor aching fingers. And one longs to dismount, leave the machine anywhere that is safe, and walk, or drive, or do anything rather than go on in this miserable state. It is only pride that makes one stick to the saddle.

I quite agree with Esther that ordinary gloves are of no use, and those that are fur-lined are too clumsy to be comfortable. But I think she will find real luxury in those fur arrangements that are fastened to the handles of the bicycle. Into them you slip your hands, and there you are warm and happy, with all your sufferings at an end. If Esther has any fur lying by that she wants to utilise, here is her opportunity, for these bicycling muffs are perfectly easy to make. She would find she could put them together in an hour or so, without giving any trouble to herself whatever.

Esther's second question concerning a present for Jack, who is just off to South Africa, is a still more serious matter. Men are the most impossible creatures to give presents to, their wants are so few, and those few are often rather large ones. And when the man happens to be a brother, too, it is worse still, for he is sure to criticise it quite honestly, if he does not happen to appreciate what you give him. You are fairly safe with a pipe or cigarette-case; but even those pall after a time, and then there is so little to fall back upon.

Why does not Esther venture to give her brother one of those housewives that are so useful both for men and women alike when they are travelling. They are to be had in every variety of size and shape; but the small, compact ones that

Digitized by Google

St. Jacobs Oil

AFFLICTED TWENTY YEARS.

MR. WILLIAM DEAN, of 6, Barleyfield Row, Walsall, says:—"I have been afflicted with Rheumatism almost continually for twenty years. For twelve months I was unable to work; I tried different hospitals, many doctors, and several kinds of medicine, all to no use; was unable to get rest night or day until I used ST. JACOBS OIL. As the result of using this marvellous Oil I can now sleep well, and go to my work regularly every day free from pain, perfectly cured."

The Great Pain-killing Remedy.
There is nothing so good.
Price 1/1½ & 2/6.

The CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.,
15, Farringdon Road, LONDON,
Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers.

ESTABLISHED FIFTY YEARS.

CURES Rheumatism.
Sprains.
Strains.
Bruises.
Soreness.
Stiffness. Sore Throat.
Chest Colds.
Neuralgia. Lumbago.
Backache.
Headache.
Feetache.
And all Bodily Aches and Pains.

ACTS LIKE MAGIC.

Conquers Pain.

Four Points:

No Finger Marks. No Lahour.
A Brilliant Polish and a Pleasant Perfume.

Stone's Perfumed Furniture Cream.

Sold in Bottles, 6d. 1/-, and 2/6 each, direct from STONE & SON, EXETER.
Or at all Respectable Stores.

W. CATER & CO.,

TO
HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY
TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS

56, PALL MALL, (OPPOSITE MARLBOROUGH HOUSE) LONDON, S.W.
ESTALISHED 1776.
SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO COMPLETE AFRICAN OUTFITS.

Digitized by Google

contain everything that one can possibly want for sewing and mending are really delightful, and they are things that men who are stationed away from civilisation appreciate. You can get them with thimbles to wear on the thumb, too—though why men should be so awkward as to use them in that impossible manner I never could imagine.

As I was walking along Bond Street this morning I met Maud, who looked very well, though rather distracted. She showed me a whole list of things she had to buy for her cousin, and as they had all to go out by next mail she was in a terrific hurry. However, she could not resist stopping to have a little gossip, and she was full of the engagement of Miss Daisy Leiter, of which her cousin had told her in her last letter. Miss Leiter, as of course you know, is Lady Curzon's sister, and she is engaged to be married to Mr. Colin Campbell, of the Central India Horse. Maud was full of the landslip, too, and of all the latest news from India, so there was every likelihood of her shopping not being finished in time had I not been obliged to hurry away to do business of my own. So she gave me Alice's letter, and told me to retail to you any news that might interest you.

From Secunderabad I hear that the anniversary of the fall of Khartoum was celebrated in the most enthusiastic manner. The Lincoln Regiment gave a ball the night before, which was a very brilliant success, whilst the day itself was kept as a general holiday, and in the afternoon the regiment gave a great display of sports.

Two nights earlier Lady Plowden had a fancy-dress dance at the Bolarum Residency, which she gave as a farewell entertainment on her departure for England. It was a very brilliant scene, for the most lovely dresses were worn. The hostess herself appeared as the Empress Josephine, wearing a dress of yellow and white satin, with a very long train, which hung straight from the shoulders. Captain Appleton, as Robinson Crusoe, was also a signal success, though his sheepskin, which completely enveloped him, must have been exceedingly hot. Then there were the usual peasants and princes and gentlemen of bygone centuries; but in all cases the ideas were very carefully carried out, the result being a gorgeous crowd that was well worth seeing. The decorations, too, were lovely; so that altogether the evening was one that will long be remembered by all who were present.

Have you ever seen "A Happy Pair"? It is a capital play for amateur actors—if they are clever, I should add, for everything depends on the smartness and life with which it is played. The first time I saw it was at Winchester, when it took everyone by storm, so brightly was it acted. And now I hear of its forming part of the entertainment at an "At Home" given by Lady Low at Poona the other day. It was capitally acted by Miss Adam and Mr. Grayson, R.A., and made a very charming finish to an exceedingly attractive programme, for the evening began with some capital music, played by the amateur band which Sir Robert Low conducted. Mr. Duncan followed with a comic song, Mrs. Muir Mackenzie also sang, and Mrs. Edgerley played solos on the piano. Then about the same time the Poona Junior Polo Tournament came off before a large number of spectators. The first match was between the Royal Artillery A Team and the Poona Gymkhana, which ended in favour of the gunners with four goals and three subsidiaries to their opponents' one goal. The players on the winning side were Mr. Montressor, Mr. Bond, Mr. Byron, and Mr. Newman, whilst for the Gymkhana there played Captain Grey, Mr. Jay, Captain Wilkinson, and Mr. Williams. This match was followed by one between the 20th Hussars and the 1st Madras Lancers, which ended in victory for the Hussars by six goals and five subsidiaries to one goal and one subsidiary.

A very big bazaar has just been held in Portsmouth to provide funds for the furnishing of the new wing of the hospital built to commemorate the Diamond Jubilee. The Duke and Duchess of York and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught were amongst the patrons, and the Navy and Army were also well represented by the two stalls held respectively by Lady Culme-Seymour and Lady Baker Russell. All the stall-holders were dressed in costumes of bygone centuries, and the Town Hall was arranged to represent Olde Portsmouth, so it was altogether a very pretty sight. Lady George Willis opened the bazaar, which proved a great success, Madame Voyer, the palmist, adding no little to the attractions, as it is a weakness with most of us to wish to peer into the book of fate, which it is so impossible to open. And yet it is strange what curious coincidences one sometimes hears of, in the most unexpected things coming true that have been prophesied. And it is just these coincidences credulous people remember, forgetting all the other cases in which the prophets have been entirely wrong.

Yours affectionately,

CONSTANCE.

* Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.*

Jaeger
PURE WOOL

Outfits
FOR Officers

PROCEEDING TO THE TRANSVAAL.

UNITED GARMENTS,
Pure Wool Sheets, Blankets,
SLEEPING SUITS, WITH OR WITHOUT FEET ATTACHED.

126, REGENT STREET, W.; 456, STRAND (CHARING CROSS), W.C.;
85 & 86, CHEAPSIDE, E.C.;
Pure Wool (Sporting and General) Tailors, 42, CONDUIT ST., W.

Goddard's Plate Powder

Admitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro-Plate.
In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

SIX GOLD MEDALS.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?
DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.
writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.
"I have now prescribed them for the last 8 years in my hospitals and private practice, and find them of great benefit.
"I certainly and most strongly recommend them."
Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

STUARTS, Bill Discounters,
45, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.
ADVANCES made to all classes, without delay. Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes discounted, Loans on Mortgage of Real or Personal Estate, Reversions, etc.
Town and country applications have immediate attention. A representative will call on applicants if required. Interest arranged in advance, and repayments made to suit borrower's convenience. Before applying elsewhere write or call at STUART'S, 45, Marlborough Street, London, W. All communications treated in strict confidence. Telephone 2068 Gerrard. Telegraphic Address: "DEXTRO, LONDON."

CRONDALL, Hants.
TO LET, a well Furnished COTTAGE RESIDENCE, containing two sitting rooms and furnished square hall, with conservatory entrance, five bedrooms, good bathroom (hot and cold water), etc.; good kitchen offices, well-kept garden and field (three acres), greenhouse, vinery, fernhouse, and pits; gardener's wages paid; cow and poultry, stable, coach-house, and gardener's cottage; four miles from Farnham, six from Aldershot; very moderate terms to a careful tenant.—For further particulars apply to Messrs. GAMLEN, BURDETT, and GAMLEN, 3 & 4, Gray's Inn Square, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

"An up-to-date Topical Weekly."

Navy and Army . . Illustrated.

6d. Edited by Commander CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N. 6d.

(Of the "Army and Navy Gazette.")

FIRST ISSUED DECEMBER 20TH, 1895.

THE Navy and Army aims at chronicling in pictorial form those events and incidents of stirring interest, in which, wherever they occur, naval and military men take a part. It has contributors in every squadron of Her Majesty's ships, and in every regiment on Home and Foreign Service. The work of its representatives on the N.W. frontier of India, in the Soudan, in Samoa, and at Santiago and Manila, has won for it unqualified praise. The Navy and Army is essentially popular in tone, and to it all the best known writers on naval and military subjects supply descriptive articles.

PRESS NOTICES.

The TIMES says: "Magnificently illustrated . . . . We can hardly imagine an easier way of getting to learn the essential facts, not only about the uniforms of different regiments and the build of the different ships, and not only about the features of the leading officers, but about the real life in barracks, or on board a man-of-war."

The DAILY TELEGRAPH says: "Should prove a veritable treasure in the hands of all who profess the slightest interest in the life and work of our gallant defenders."

The DAILY CHRONICLE says: "No publication has done more to bring the facts and familiar features of the two services before the nation than Navy and Army Illustrated."

The GLOBE says: "Makes a point of describing and illustrating fully and adequately every event connected with the alterations and movements, not only of our own, but of other fighting forces . . . . . deserves the wide popularity it has achieved."

The PALL MALL GAZETTE says: "Makes a special feature of 'Real Life at the Front." The success of this periodical is a splendid and striking demonstration of the interest which the non-professional public take in the defensive services."

The ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE says: "No such series of pictures illustrative of the Navy and Army has ever been published. Admirable in themselves as photographs from life and from interesting events and places, the highest skill has been brought to bear in the reproductive process, and alike in paper, print and binding leaves nothing to be desired."

The GUARDIAN says: "One of the most attractive of illustrated journals."

The DAILY MAIL says: "The articles are contributed by men who know."

The DAILY GRAPHIC says: "Should interest not only sailors and soldiers, but the whole of the nation."

The SKETCH says: "The periodical ought to strengthen popular interest in both the Services. Admirably produced."

As an advertising medium, the Navy and Army Illustrated can be confidently recommended, for it is found in every Service Mess and Club, appeals directly to a wealthy and leisured class of readers, has the support and patronage of our own Royal Family, and the highest authorities at home and abroad. Its subscription list probably contains more influential names than that of any other illustrated paper. It is supplied by order to nearly ever foreign Government, but, above all, it enjoys a popularity among all men and women interested in the strength and prosperity of the Empire and its gallant protectors.

Terms of Subscription: Per Annum, Post Free, Inland, 28/2. Foreign, 34/8.

Published by

GEORGE NEWNES, Ltd., 7 to 12, SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.

Digitized by Google

Aspinall's Enamel.

"O" QUALITY FOR STATE ROOMS & CABINS

EASY TO APPLY.

USED ON H.M. SHIPS.

ASPINALL'S SHIPS' ENAMEL

INDIAN QUALITY FOR DECK WORK, GUNS, TURRETS &c

SPECIAL TERMS TO OFFICERS OF THE SERVICE.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL, Ltd., NEW CROSS, London, S.E.

Digitized by Google

London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. Editorial Offices, 20, Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14th, 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 141.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

Established 1844. Funds exceed £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.
Rates and particulars of—THE ARMY ASSURANCE AGENCY,
16, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
Collier's
BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES
FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.
COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, 53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

THE PALL MALL DEPOSIT
STORAGE AND FORWARDING
OF
OFFICERS' BAGGAGE and KIT
A SPECIALITY.
Experienced packers sent to all parts, baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, etc.
Full information from CAPTAIN ARTHUR HAGGARD,
Manager, Military and Naval Department,
PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LIMITED,
CARLTON STREET, REGENT STREET, S.W.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
LINEN COLLARS. LADIES' 3-fold from 3/6 doz.
" GENTS' 4-fold, 4/11 per doz.
CUFFS for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5/11 per doz.
PRICE LISTS POST FREE.
COLLARS, CUFFS, AND SHIRTS.
Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.
MATCHLESS SHIRTS. Fine quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Pure Linen Fronts, 35/6 per ½-doz. (to measure, 2/- extra).
N.B.—Old Shirts made good as new with best materials in neckbands, cuffs and fronts for 14/- per ½-doz.
N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY . . .
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.
Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.
Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.
BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.
Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.
MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 141. Saturday, October 14th, 1899.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),
Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with
Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,
PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS
FOR
MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE,
WOOLWICH, SANDHURST,
AND ALL
MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS;
also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:

MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899.

		Marks.
*1st UNIVERSITY.—A. E. M. Ward		1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

		Marks.
*1st ARTILLERY.—C. H. Clark		1792
(After a few months' reading.)
*20th Infantry.—L. J. Le Fleming		1582
35th "	A. Moore	1485
38th "	J. C. Hooper	1463
*72nd "	W. B. Mitford	1310
*76th "	A. J. M. Gordon	1280

*1st trial direct.

March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.

N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.

Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, S.W.

FEE 60 GUINEAS
SCHOOL SHIP "CONWAY"
LIVERPOOL.
FOR TRAINING YOUNG GENTLEMEN TO BECOME OFFICERS IN MERCHANT STEAMERS.
FOR PROSPECTUS APPLY TO THE CAPT., A.T. MILLER, R.N.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.—A vacancy occurs for a gentleman to act as MANAGER of one of Sandow's Schools of Physical Culture. Must have had good business training, and of good social position. A thorough knowledge of physical culture. A good salary will be paid to a fully competent man. Apply by letter only, giving fullest particulars of how previously employed, age, etc., to Managing Director, Sandow Ltd., Sandow Hall, Savoy Corner, Victoria Embankment, W.C.

STUARTS, Bill Discounters,
45, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

ADVANCES made to all classes, without delay. Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes discounted, Loans on Mortgage of Real or Personal Estate, Reversions, etc.

Town and country applications have immediate attention. A representative will call on applicants if required. Interest arranged in advance, and repayments made to suit borrower's convenience. Before applying elsewhere write or call at STUART'S, 45, Marlborough Street, London, W. All communications treated in strict confidence. Telephone 2068 Gerrard. Telegraphic Address: "DEXTRO, LONDON."

CRONDALL, Hants.

TO LET, a well Furnished COTTAGE RESIDENCE, containing two sitting rooms and furnished square hall, with conservatory entrance, five bedrooms, good bathroom (hot and cold water), etc.; good kitchen offices, well-kept garden and field (three acres), greenhouse, vinery, fernhouse, and pits; gardener's wages paid; cow and poultry, stable, coach-house, and gardener's cottage; four miles from Farnham, six from Aldershot; very moderate terms to a careful tenant.—For further particulars apply to Messrs. GAMLEN, BURDETT, and GAMLEN, 3 & 4, Gray's Inn Square, London, W.C.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8 p.m. "An Interrupted Honeymoon."
COMEDY, Panton St., W.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "Wheels within Wheels."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C. New play in October.
DRURY LANE, W.C. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m.
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "Man and His Makers." Wed. and Sat. 2 p.m.
LYRIC, W., 8 30 p.m. "El Capitan." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W. "The Moonlight Blossom."
PRINCESS'S, W.
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Prince of Borneo."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C.
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "La Poupée." Thurs. 2.30 p.m.
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "Lost in London."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "La Poupée." Saturday 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E. "The Belle of New York."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. "Lord and Lady Algy."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Tommy Atkins."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Derby Winner." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "The Skirt Dancer."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W. "An American Citizen." Wed. 2.30 p.m.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "The Greek Slave."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's). "Sporting Life."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7,30 p.m. "The White Heather."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E. "The Manœuvres of Jane."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "Sins of the Fathers."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "The Runaway Girl."
PAVILION, 85, Whitechapel Road, E.
ROYAL, Stratford, E. "The Luck of Life."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Belle of New York."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W. "A Life of Pleasure."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junct'n, S.W. "A Runaway Girl."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
TERRISS'S, Rotherhithe, S.E.

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI Strand W.C., 8 p.m.

MAJOR BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils,) 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

Jaeger
PURE WOOL

Outfits FOR Officers

PROCEEDING TO THE TRANSVAAL.

UNITED GARMENTS,

Pure Wool Sheets, Blankets,

SLEEPING SUITS, WITH OR WITHOUT FEET ATTACHED.

126, REGENT STREET, W.; 456, STRAND (CHARING CROSS), W.C.
85 & 86, CHEAPSIDE, E.C.;

PURE WOOL (Sporting and General) TAILORS:
42, CONDUIT STREET, W.

THREEPENCE EACH, AT ALL RESPECTABLE TOBACCONISTS.
FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.
EXQUISITE MILD FLAVOUR AND MOST DELICATE AROMA;
ALSO
FLOR DE DINDIGUL CIGARETTES (all tobacco leaf, no paper), a delightful wholesome Whiff, 1d. each. Sole Importers, BEWLAY & Co., LTD., 49, 74, and 156, Strand, and 143, Cheapside. Established 1780. Price lists, post free.

THE STORY OF A GREAT FIGHT.
THE STORY OF A GREAT FIGHT.

The Croxley Master.

The Croxley Master.

THE STORY OF A GREAT FIGHT.
BY A. CONAN DOYLE,
BEGINS IN THE OCTOBER

STRAND MAGAZINE

If you liked RODNEY STONE you will like THE CROXLEY MASTER, by A. CONAN DOYLE.

Other Grand Stories and Articles in the October "Strand" are

A PEEP INTO "PUNCH."—Part X.—1890 to 1894. By JOHN HOLT SCHOOLING. Illustrated by Facsimiles.

A MASTER OF CRAFT.—By W. W. JACOBS. Chapters XI. and XII.

BIGGEST ON RECORD.—By GEORGE DOLLAR. II. Illustrations from Photographs.

THE SNOWFLAKE OF THE SERVICE.—By FRANK R. STOCKTON.

IN NATURE'S WORKSHOP.—By GRANT ALLEN. The Day of the Canker-Worm.

LINDA: A STORY OF THE GIPPSLAND BUSH.—By BASIL MARNAN.

THE ROMANCE OF NIAGARA BRIDGES.—By ORRIN E. DUNLAP. Illustrations from Photographs and an Old Print.

STORIES OF THE SANCTUARY CLUB.—By L. T. MEADE and ROBERT EUSTACE. East of North.

A TALE OF A JUDY SHOW.—By R. E. VERNEDE.

WALKING THE POLE.—By A. H. BROADWELL. Illustrations from Photographs.

HILDA WADE.—By GRANT ALLEN. The Episode of the European with the Kaffir Heart.

MRS. DELANY'S FLOWER-WORK.—Illustrations from Photographs and a Picture.

CURIOSITIES.—Illustrations from Photographs.

120 Pages. SIXPENCE. 170 Illustrations.

GEORGE NEWNES, LIMITED, SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.

Important New Publication.

PART I. READY OCTOBER 14th.

CELEBRITIES OF THE STAGE.

In about Sixteen SIXPENNY Fortnightly Parts.

Each part will contain four beautifully coloured portraits of Celebrated Actors and Actresses. These (being printed in Heliochrome) are nearly as effective as Oil Paintings.

Each Portrait is worthy of being Framed.

The Portraits in Part 1. are—

Sir HENRY IRVING.
Miss ELLEN TERRY.
Miss SYBIL CARLISLE.
Miss WINIFRED EMERY.

Price 6d. each Fortnightly Part; or Post Free, 8d. each.
May be obtained to order from all Booksellers, Newsagents, Stationers, or at the Railway Bookstalls.

GEO. NEWNES, LTD., SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Cupboard Love	97
Briton and Boer: The Movement in South Africa. (Illustrated) ...	99
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	101
Editorial Notices; The Navy and Army Diary	102
Entertainments Afloat. (Illustrated) ...	102
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	104
Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories. Waltham Abbey. Part I. (Illus.)	105
Scenes of Naval and Military Life. Thursday on Board Ship. (Illustrated)	107
The Latest Addition to the Imperial Japanese Navy. The Armoured Cruiser "Asama." (Illustrated) ...	108
The Making of Seamen. Sail Drill in the Training-ship "Martin." (Illus.)	109
A Giant Cruiser for the China Station. (Illustrated)	110
The First Chinese Regiment at Wei-hai-Wei. The Manufacture of Soldiers. (Illustrated)	111
"Bunter's Cruise: A Tale of the New Navy." By Charles Gleig. Illustrated by T. S. C. Crowther ...	113
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	115
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	116
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Twelve Illus.) ...	117
The 3rd Grenadier Guards. (Illus.) ...	120

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Second Week.] THE CAVALRY, ROYAL ARTILLERY, AND ROYAL ENGINEERS.

CAVALRY.

1st Life Guards . .	Lieut.-Col. C. N. Miles. . . .	Windsor
2nd " . .	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Neeld . . .	Regent's Park
Royal Horse Gds.	Col. J. F. Brocklehurst, M.V.O.	Hyde Park
1st Dragoon Gds.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Owen . . .	Dublin
2nd "	Lieut.-Col. J. Lambert . . .	York
3rd "	Lieut.-Col. U. G. C. de Burgh .	Dundalk
4th "	Lieut.-Col. G. D. F. Sulivan . .	Rawul Pindi
5th "	Col. R. S. S. Baden-Powell . .	Natal
6th "	Lieut.-Col. T. C. Porter . . .	Shorncliffe
7th "	Lieut.-Col. W. H. M. Lowe . .	Colchester
1st Dragoons .	Lieut.-Col. J. F. Burn-Murdoch	Hounslow
2nd " . .	Lt.-Col. Hon. W. P. Alexander.	Edinburgh
3rd Hussars . . .	Lt.-Col. W. N. Wogan-Browne.	Lucknow
4th " . . .	Lieut.-Col. W. A. Ramsay . .	Bangalore
5th Lancers . . .	Col. J. F. M. Fawcett	Maritzburg, Natal
6th Dragoons . .	Lt.-Col. H. C. Page-Henderson	Curragh
7th Hussars . . .	Lieut.-Col. Hon. R. T. Lawley .	Norwich
8th " . . .	Lieut.-Col. P. L. Clowes . . .	Curragh Camp
9th Lancers . . .	Lieut.-Col. B. Gough	Natal
10th Hussars . .	Lieut.-Col. R. B. W. Fisher . .	Aldershot
11th " . .	Lieut.-Col. E. R. Courtenay. .	Meerut
12th Lancers . .	Lt.-Col. D. S. W., Earl of Airlie	Aldershot
13th Hussars . .	Lieut.-Col. H. J. Blagrove . .	Aldershot
14th " . .	Lieut.-Col. G. H. C. Hamilton .	Newbridge
15th " . .	Lieut.-Col. J. R. P. Gordon . .	Meerut
16th Lancers . .	Lieut.-Col. H. L. Aylmer. . .	Umballa
17th " . .	Lieut.-Col. M. G. Neeld . . .	Ballincollig
18th Hussars . .	Lieut.-Col. B. D. Moller . . .	Ladysmith, Natal
19th " . .	L.-C. C. B. H. Wolseley-Jenkins	Natal
20th " .	Lieut.-Col. H. G. P. Beauchamp	Mhow
21st Lancers. .	L.-C. W. G. Crole Wyndham, C.B.	Egypt

ROYAL REGIMENT OF ARTILLERY.

Royal Horse Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
A.—Meerut	H.—Meerut	O.—Aldershot
B.—Lucknow	I.—Umballa	P.—Aldershot
C.—Mhow	J.—Bangalore	Q.—Newbridge
D.—Umballa	K.—Rawul Pindi	R.—Aldershot
E.—Aldershot (for [India)	L.—Trimulgherry	S.—Kirkee (for home)
F.—Sealkote	M.—Woolwich	T.—Ipswich
G.—St. John's Wood	N.—Woolwich	U.—Newbridge

Royal Field Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
1.—Kirkee	33.—St. Thomas' [Mount	64.—Weedon
2.—Shorncliffe	34.—Ahmedabad	65.—Woolwich
3.—Campbellpore	35.—Kurrachee	66.—Aldershot
4.—Aldershot	36.—Nusseerabad	67.—Natal
5.—Fermoy	37.—Woolwich	68.—Hilsea
6.—Aldershot	38.—Woolwich	69.—Natal
7.—Aldershot	39.—Hilsea	70.—Bareilly
8.—Christchurch	40.—Bangalore	71.—Mooltan
9.—Limerick	41.—Lucknow	72.—Bellary
10.—Woolwich	42.—Natal	73.—Dorchester
11.—Meean Meer	43.—Shorncliffe	74.—Newcastle
12.—Jullundur	44.—Colchester	75.—Natal
13.—Natal	45.—St. Thomas' Mt.	76.—Athlone
14.—Aldershot	46.—Dinapore	77.—Coventry
15.—Meerut	47.—Ferozepore	78.—Woolwich
16.—Kirkee	48.—Barrackpore	79.—Cahir
17.—Woolwich	49.—Belgaum	80.—Nowgong
18.—Natal	50.—Agra	81.—Trowbridge
19.—Exeter	51.—Rawul Pindi	82.—Exeter
20.—Ipswich	52.—Jubbulpore	83.—Colchester
21.—Natal	53.—Natal	84.—Newcastle
22.—Mhow	54.—Meerut	85.—Clonmel
23.—Secunderabad	55.—Saugor	86.—Newcastle
24.—Peshawur	56.—Egypt	87.—Seaforth
25.—Bangalore	57.—Meean Meer	88.—Weedon
26.—Shorncliffe	58.—Kamptee	89.—Hilsea
27.—Neemuch	59.—Woolwich	90.—Longford
28.—Athlone	60.—Allahabad	91.—Waterford
29.—Kirkee	61.—Woolwich	92.—Birmingham
30.—Fyzabad	62.—Natal	93.—Cahir
31.—Hyderabad	63.—Bristol	94.—Leeds
32.—Jhansi		95.—Leeds

Royal Garrison Artillery.

MOUNTAIN DIVISION.

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
1.—Lundi Kotal	5.—Kalabagh	8.—Darjeeling
2.—Khyra Gali	6.—Jutogh	9.—Mandalay
3.—Bara Gali	7.—Quetta	10.—Natal
4.—Newport, Mon.

EASTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Dover).

Depôt No. 1, Dover. No. 2, Great Yarmouth.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—Calcutta	11.—Gibraltar	21.—Sheerness
2.—St. Helena	12.—Mooltan	22.—(H.) Sheerness
3.—Rangoon (for	13.—Bombay	23.—Shoeburyness
4.—Kurrachee[Aden)	14.—Isle of Wight	24.—Delhi
5.—Malta (for	15.—Dover	25.—Hong Kong
6.—Dover [Bermuda)	16.—Egypt [Bermuda)	26.—(S.T.) Bombay
7.—(S.T.) Dover (for	17.—Malta (for	27.—Sheerness
8.—Aden [India)	18.—Gibraltar	28.—Landguard Fort
9.—Allahabad	19.—Gibraltar [Malta)	29.—Leith Fort
10.—Shoeburyness	20.—Gibraltar (for

SOUTHERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Portsmouth).

Depôt No. 1, Fort Rowner, Gosport. No. 2, Seaforth Barracks, Liverpool.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—Malta	14.—Cork Harbour	28.—Weymouth
2.—Gibraltar	15.—(S.T.)Ft. Grange,	29.—Barrackpore
3.—Portsmouth	16.—Malta [Gosport	30.—Portsmouth
4.—Portsmouth	17.—Malta	31.—Malta
5.—Agra	18.—Aden	32.—Cork Harb'r (for [Gibraltar)
6.—Roorkee	19.—Malta	33.—Thobba
7.—Weymouth	20.—(S.T.) Fort [Fareham	34.—Trincomalee
8.—Bermuda (for [Halifax, N.S.)	21.—Portsmouth	35.—Singapore
9.—Roorkee	22.—Jamaica	36.—Gibraltar
10.—Portsmouth (for [Malta)	23.—Quetta	37.—Ceylon
11.—Roorkee	24.—(H.) Campbell- [pore	38.—Hong Kong
12.—Singapore	25.—Hong Kong	39.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight
13.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight	26.—Gibraltar	40.—Cork Harbour
	27.—Malta	41.—Portsmouth

WESTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Devonport).

Depôt No. 1, Citadel, Plymouth. No. 2, Scarborough.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—St. Lucia	12.—Jersey	22.—Rangoon
2.—Pembroke Dock	13.—Devonport	23.—C. of Good Hope
3.—Bermuda (for [Halifax, N.S.)	14.—C. of Good Hope	24.—Malta
4.—Ferozepore	15.—(S.T.) Ft. Efford, [Plymouth	25.—Quetta
5.—Rawul Pindi	16.—Aden	26.—Mauritius
6.—Dunbar	17.—Devonport	27.—Pembroke Dock
7.—Jhansi	18.—Bombay	28.—Londonderry
8.—Mauritius	19.—Esquimault	29.—Fort Bovisand, [Plymouth
9.—(H) Secunderab'd	20.—Halifax, N.S. (for [Jamaica)	ROYAL MALTA ART'Y. Malta
10.—Devonport	21.—Bermuda
11.—Fort St. George

H. Heavy. S.T. Siege Train.

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Co.	Co.
1st (F.) Cork Harbour	34th (Sub.) Gravesend	Field D., R.E. Troops, [Aldersliot
2nd (F.) Egypt	35th (Sub.) Pembroke [Dock	Balloon D. and Sect., [Aldershot
3rd (F.) Bermuda	36th (F.) Bermuda
4th (Sub.) Gosport	37th (Fd.) Curragh	COAST BATTALION (Submarine Miners):
5th (F.) Portsmouth	38th (Fd.) Shorncliffe
6th (F.) Gibraltar	39th (Sub.) Sheerness	Sect.
7th (Fd.) S. Africa	40th (Sub.) Halifax, [N.S.	1 (Tyne) N. Shields
8th (Ry.) S. Africa	41st (F.) Hdqrs. and ½ Co. Ceylon; ½ Co. Singapore	2 (Severn) Cardiff
9th (F.) Chatham	42nd (F.) Malta	3 (Clyde) Greenock
10th (Ry.) S. Africa	43rd (F.) Mauritius	4 (Humber) Paull
11th (Fd.) Aldershot	A (D.) Chatham	5 (Tees) Middlesbr'gh
12th (Fd.) Aldershot	B (D.) Chatham	6 (Tay) Broughty [Ferry
13th (Sur.) Clifton, [Bristol	C (D.) Chatham	7 (Forth) Leith, ["Dido," hulk
14th (Sur.) Dublin	D (D.) Chatham	8 (Mersey) Liverpool
15th (F.) Gibraltar	E (D.) Chatham	9 (Falmouth) Falm'th
16th (Sur.) Bedford	F (D.) Chatham	10 (Weym'th) Weym'th
17th (Fd.) Aldershot	G (D.) Chatham
18th (F.) Halifax, N.S.	M (Sub.) Chatham	LOCAL COMPANIES ABROAD:
19th (Sur.) Southamp- [ton	N (D.) Chatham	Singapore (Sub.) [Singapore
20th (F.) Gibraltar	H Army Hqrs., India	Hong Kong (Sub.) [Hong Kong
21st (Sub.) Felixstowe	TELEGRAPH BATN.:	Ceylon (Sub.) [Trincomalee
22nd (Sub.) I. of Wight	1st Div., Aldershot	Mauritius (Sub.) [Mauritius
23rd (Fd.) Natal	2nd Div., 28, Newgate [Street	W. India (Sub) Jamaica
24th (F.) Malta		W. India (Fort.) ½ Co. Jamaica, 1 Sect. Sierra Leone, 1 Sect. St. Lucia.
25th (F.) Hong Kong	BRIDGING BATN.:
26th (Fd.) Salisbury [Plain	A Troop, Aldershot
27th (Sub.) Bermuda	B Troop, Aldershot
28th (Sub.) Malta
29th (F.) Cape Town	Field Troop, Aldershot
30th (Sub.) Plymouth
31st (F.) Chatham
32nd (F.) Gibraltar
33rd (Sub.) Cork Harb.

F. Fortress. Fd. Field. ub. Submarine. Sur. urvey Ry. Railway. D. Depot.

THE ARMY.—Numerous illustrations have appeared in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of nearly all the Regiments in either the Home, Indian, or Colonial Armies. Lists can be obtained on application.

Digitized by Google

ASPINALL'S
"INDIAN"
ENAMEL.

For all Exterior Work, Big Guns, Turrets, &c.

ASPINALL'S "O" ENAMEL for all Interior Work, on Ships Cabins, Mess Rooms, &c.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL.

NON-POISONOUS

We have supplied our special quality Enamels to most of H.M. Ships, for both Interior and Exterior Work, which have given entire satisfaction.

Also our Special Zinc White, and Varnishes.

Works:—NEW CROSS, LONDON.
PARIS DEPOT: 24, Rue Alibert.
U.S. DEPOT: 98, Beekman Street, NEW YORK.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE
WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.
E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,
(LATE GALT & GIEVE)
Royal Naval Tailors and Outfitters.

HIGH STREET, PORTSMOUTH.
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W. (On Fridays.)

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5.11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

RED WHITE AND BLUE
SOLD EVERYWHERE
FRENCH COFFEE
DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER

"LERINA,"
The FINEST LIQUEUR.
HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY
The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,
SITUATED ON
THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,
WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.
To be obtained from
ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.
WHOLESALE AGENTS:
GOVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

Digitized by Google

A BOOKLET OF AMUSING AND ATTRACTIVE

NURSERY JINGLES,

Beautifully Printed in Colours,

SENT FREE on application if this paper is mentioned.
A post-card will do.

FRAME FOOD CO., Ltd., Battersea, LONDON.

THE "OSMAN"

Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES, Limited,

MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

SMOKE

PIONEER

CIGARETTES

3D.

PER PACKET

CARRIAGE PAID TO ALL STATIONS.

. . Trapnell & Gane, . .

Excellent Solid Hazlewood Bedroom Suite, comprising 4 ft. Wardrobe, 3 ft. 6 in. Dressing Chest, with Reflex Mirrors, 3 ft. 6 in. Washstand, with rouge royal Marble Top, £22 : 10 : 0.

COLLEGE GREEN, BRISTOL.

. New Illustrated Catalogue, 1,000 Engravings, Post Free. .

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—How odd it seems in these days to be staying in a place where the newspaper does not arrive until five in the afternoon, and where no one seems to take much notice of it when it does arrive. That is the kind of place in which to spend a holiday and forget there are such things as daily papers, and dream that there is no world beyond the big fields that stretch far away to the horizon. But to stay there at the present moment, when we live in eager anticipation of any news that may arrive from South Africa, is certainly trying, particularly when it is considered rather affected for a woman to show a real interest in foreign affairs of any sort. I don't suppose you ever find yourself in such an out-of-the-way, old-world sort of spot. And indeed it is not often that I have experienced such a state of things in England. However, for three days last week I did enjoy this unusual sensation of absolute retirement from the world and all excitement, except that of the very turbulent weather. The wind blew unceasingly, the rain came down with remorseless energy, the roads were turned into river beds, and it was only a cheerful fire and a lively house party that kept us all from becoming gloomy and morose, except when we went out. Then, indeed, there was a certain pleasurable excitement in battling with the wind and rain, untrammelled by umbrellas, which would have been perfectly useless, and got up in mackintoshes and short skirts that no rain could penetrate, no mud destroy. Mrs. N—— was one of the party, and, as I need not tell you, she at once compared that rain with the rain in the tropics. During her six months' stay "in the tropics" she seems to have gone through more experiences of the discords of Nature than most people meet with in years. Earthquakes, tornadoes, and the most unprecedented thunder-storms seem to have dogged her steps in the cruellest manner. I am generally careful that the conversation shall not get round to the subject of such physical disturbances, of which I am a little tired; but this time it was not to me that she was talking, and I only caught the well-known phrase when I was walking just in front of her. And I was rather grateful to her then, as it reminded me of the mackintosh about which Sylvia asked me. There is no doubt, you may tell her, that she should take a light one out to Jamaica with her. She will find she will always want one with her when out riding, for storms of rain come up so quickly and unexpectedly that to have some such protection at hand becomes an absolute necessity.

For riding, nothing could be better than the new-shaped coats which I saw at Cording's. They are made in light mackintosh material, and are cut so that they just reach the saddle on one side, and completely cover the skirt and the stirrup on the other. They are fitted with two very small straps, which are to be fastened to two tiny buttons are sewn on the habit in such a manner that they would never be noticed when not in use. Thus equipped, Sylvia would find she could defy any storm of rain; but should she dislike the ordinary mackintosh material, she can have one of these coats made to order in any fine tweed she chooses, which would then be submitted to the proper process to make it thoroughly waterproof.

As it may be useful to her, I send Sylvia a sketch of a nice mackintosh for walking, made in a shape that is very becoming to a smart figure. It can be had in cravenette, or any other light waterproof material, made double-breasted, fastened with large buttons, and finished with a velvet collar and cuffs. Then there is the Talma coat, which is double-breasted, with the sleeve put in right up to the neck, after the manner of some of the men's mackintoshes. It has a deep pocket on each side, and a slit through which the dress can easily be held up, and which can be buttoned up when not in use. The Talma coat I saw was very light indeed, and made in a pretty green shower-proof material, but it can be had in waterproof cloth or tweed if desired. Marl twists, for instance, are charming for the purpose. One coat in this material was very nice. It had the bodice lined with mauve silk, a strap across the back, and two more to draw in the sleeves at the wrists. But enough of mackintoshes, which I know will bore you, though in self-defence I must say that Sylvia begged me for hints when we last met. Bertha tells me she went the other night to such a jolly little dance given by Colonel Pengelly and the officers of the Royal Marine Artillery at the Eastney Barracks. There were about 250 people present, all of whom seemed to enjoy themselves enormously, Colonel Pengelly, Major Gaitskell, and the other officers being indefatigable in looking after their guests. Dancing took place in the messroom, which always makes a capital ballroom, and the band, of course, was everything that could be desired. Amongst those present were Mrs. Pengelly, who wore a pretty dress of pink and black; Miss Pengelly, who was in white; Mrs. Nicholls, in white and pale green; Miss Berger, in black satin; Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, the latter in a very pretty pink costume trimmed with roses; Major and Mrs. Wynyard, the latter wearing black satin and lace; Miss Hulbert and Miss Crookenden, in white; Miss Russell, whose white dress was relieved by trails of red roses; and Mrs. Robilliard, in mauve with black lace.

A MACKINTOSH FOR SYLVIA.

Alice still writes me the brightest, happiest letters from Simla. I know her sister thought that long before this Alice would be weary of the life out there, and be longing for the

(Continued on page x.)

Digitized by Google

A New Hydro, and the Best.

By MICHAEL MOSCOW.

HYDROS have helped materially in maintaining the soundness of the British constitution, in a physical if not a political sense, though in this latter regard it is a truism that the healthy digestion of the Englishman has played no mean part in the proud pre-eminence that he enjoys in the comity of nations. However, I deal not now with the questions of dominancy of race, but simply with what appeals to most of us, in accord with the laws of self-preservation—the subject of personal hygiene.

In the early sixties, hydropathy was an experiment. To-day, in its larger significance of hydrotherapy, it is a great success; nay, more, it is an actual necessity in the exigencies of modern life-conditions. In these days people work at high-pressure, mentally and muscularly, and become jaded, "out of sorts," and, in a word, sufferers from malaise. Medicine availeth little; and hence it is that a restorative course hydrotherapeutic is "indicated," to use the physician's phrase. Little wonder is it, then, that palatial establishments have sprung into prosperous existence all over the country, from the Far North to the Sunny South, establishments modestly calling themselves Hydros, but which might well be dubbed Halls of Health. The newest of these, and unquestionably one of the best, is the CLIFTON GRAND SPA and HYDRO, just recently opened, and now in full and comfortable operation.

DRAWING ROOM

Clifton is a place that needs not the artful adventitious aid of imagination in the describing of its many advantages—unlike some other towns that have been "made" by master minds exuberant in poetic expression. Statistics, yes, dry statistics, tell the tale of its salubrity in full measure. A general death-rate of 13·2 in 1897 as compared with 19·1 for thirty-three large towns of England and Wales, and a zymotic rate of 1·0 against 2·8 testify to the health of the place. A grand air, balmy, benign, yet bracing; an equable temperature; a wealth of sunshine; and a romantic situation make Clifton an ideal residence for the seeker after health and recuperation. Another advantage of the place is its convenience of access from all parts of the Kingdom. The Midland, London and North Western, and Great Western Railways all serve Bristol with capital trainage, the latter Company, indeed, bringing London within two-and-a-half hours by a speedy and comfortable service of express trains. Nowadays, time is really the measure of distance; and time is money, as we all know.

Hence it was a right excellent idea to choose the Down of Clifton as the site of the GRAND SPA and HYDRO. The spot selected lies a hundred yards or so from the famous Suspension Bridge, and over against the historic hot-wells Spring, and the top-most station of the Rocks Railway. The Grand Pump Room, opened a few years ago, immediately adjoins, and, indeed, now forms part of the establishment. Below, and on either side, lies the Gorge of the Avon, while opposite are Leigh Woods, Nightingale Valley, and away in the distance a spur of the Mendip Hills. A more enchanting position could not have been found, but we must leave it to enter the Hydro and see what science and art besides Nature can do for the betterment of our bodies and the sequential solace of our souls.

The residential part of the house is everything that heart could wish. All the rooms are big and airy, bright and sunny, except a few that are reserved for those who prefer less spacious quarters and subdued lighting. The public apartments open upon the beautiful scenery of the Avon, and are fitted and furnished with everything that modern methods can suggest. Even the smoke-room is a Moorish miracle of art, while science finds play in the billiard-room, where a couple of fine tables by Thurston tempt the cue-rious. Cosy corners abound, even the landing being provided with luxurious couches and chairs, though there is no "getting up stairs" unless you so desire, a passenger elevator being provided.

The way to an Englishman's heart is popularly supposed to be through his digestive apparatus; but whether this be so or not, the fact remains that the cuisine at Clifton Spa and Hydro is simply capital. A clever chef commands the kitchen, and caters equally for the man blessed with a hearty appetite (he soon gets one at Clifton!) and the dyspeptic who needs special care in the administration of his diet scale. The table is at once liberal, refined, appropriate, and ample. There is nothing of the semi-starvation that is unfortunately too common at some Hydros, as I have experienced to my exasperation of soul and exhaus ion of body. Oh! those Sunday suppers at certain Scotch Spas! "A few parritch!" and a "wheenie" of dry cheese, washed down with water, followed by a night of sleeplessness aggravated by a morbid craving to eat the soap! But at Clifton they are merciful as well as magnificent. Do you wake in the night and think you need sustenance, you have but to touch an electric bell, and lo! you are served with a cup of hot cocoa and a rusk. Or, on your way to the bath, fortifiers are supplied in the shape of hot fluid foods with biscuits, and so forth—often a necessary thing with those who are not over strong.

The baths themselves are quite unique. No pains or expense have been spared to this end. The best Continental systems have been observed, and in some cases improved upon, the result being that every approved method of treatment is here procurable, from the saline and effervescent baths of Nauheim to the Aix-douche, from electricity to the pack, from the Turkish to the Russian. And the installation is further excellent from the fact that it is all in duplicate. The ladies have an equally complete hydropathic fitment; and it thus becomes possible for all the members of a family to take their baths at the same hour instead of, as at many places, at odd times—to the disturbance of pleasure plans to be enjoyed together.

The whole establishment is under the medical supervision of the resident physician, Dr. C. J. Whitby, who brings his long experience at other Hydros to bear in the administration of the curative resources of the place. The peculiar needs of every patient are carefully observed, and the method of treatment prescribed and directed. Thus, no one is left to the rule of thumb treatment of the ordinary Hydro, but each case receives its own special care, with all the skill that modern medicine and applied science can ensure.

The famous water at the Hot-wells, for centuries in high repute for its excellent qualities, is freely "on tap" on every floor of the Hydro, in addition to being the raison d'être of the Grand Pump Room—the finest in the country. The water is anything but a nauseous tipple. It is, in fact, very much like the popular table waters of Germany—soft, refreshing, and palatable.

A word about the charges. For the modest sum of two-and-a-half guineas per week, one can have full board, an excellent bedroom, attendance, the run of the establishment, and the use of the general and hydropathic baths, including the Turkish and Russian baths, but excepting, of course, the electric and Weir-Mitchell Treatment, which involve some extra cost.

How it is done at the price is "one of those things that no fellah can understand," as Sothern used to say; but, like Mr. Maskelyne's magic box, the solution of the mystery is open to all. £500 reward is not offered; but a stay at CLIFTON GRAND SPA and HYDRO, like virtue, brings its own reward—in this case in the shape of increased health and happiness; a combination we all desire, and seldom get. It is compassable at Clifton. Verbum sat sapientis!

Digitized by Google

time when she could come home and see her friends. But she need not have been uneasy, for Alice has always been able, without an effort, to adapt herself to every change in her surroundings that she has had to experience. Is it a trait, do you think, that she has inherited from a long line of military ancestors? I sometimes think it must be so. But however it may have arisen, it has been a decidedly useful gift to her, and has many a time stood her in good stead since she threw in her fortunes with those of that very ardent soldier Dick.

Therefore, whilst she is at Simla, and gaiety is the order of the day, Alice gives herself up to it all with a will, enjoying every ball and party that comes in her way, and in her brightness and liveliness she makes everyone else enjoy them too. For such high spirits are very infectious, unless one is well inoculated with cynicism and misanthropy.

Her last amusement has been to help at the large bazaar in aid of the Mayo School, a bazaar which she writes was delightfully arranged and so very pretty. It was opened by Lady Curzon, and at the several stalls presided Lady Gaselee, Lady Melliss, Mesdames Rivaz, Franklin, Beresford Lovett, Tyler, Duperier, Wilkie, Hendley, and many others too numerous to be mentioned in detail.

Alice also gives a glowing account of the ball at Simla which was given by the Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery at the beginning of the month. The ballroom, she says, was beautifully decorated, guns and miniature bridges giving a particular character to the scene. The guests, who numbered about 500, were received by General Turner, R.E., and Mrs. Turner, and General Tyler, R.A., and Mrs. Tyler, whilst amongst those present were Lady Curzon and the Misses Leiter, Sir William and Lady Lockhart, and Sir George and Lady Luck.

Alice speaks, too, of helping in another big bazaar, which was to come off this week in aid of the proposed sanatorium, and after that she said the season would be practically over.

Immense interest—Bob tells me—was shown in the final match of the Poona junior polo tournament, played between the Royal Artillery from Kirkee and the 20th Hussars from Mhow. The game was very exciting, he said, and both teams played splendidly throughout. For the Gunners there played Mr. Montressor, Mr. Bond, Mr. Byron, and Mr. Newman, and for the Hussars Mr. Percy Smith, Mr. Gibbs, Mr. Goring, and Mr. Lee, whilst Major Kirk and Mr. Luard acted as umpires. The match ended in favour of the Gunners with fifteen goals and one subsidiary to the Hussars' three goals and one subsidiary.

In the Nasik golf tournament Mrs. Macdonald has been doing very well, winning the Royal West India Golf Club silver medal, with a score of 89, whilst Miss Fredoux won the second prize with 100. Mrs. Montgomery carried off the handicap prize with 81, and Miss Plunkett came second with 116 less 18.

Amongst other events in the tournament was the competition for the cup presented by the Governor. For this there were a good many entries, but the match had not been finished when my correspondent wrote. In the handicap foursomes, Mr. Kelly and Captain Hicks defeated Captain Rogers and Mr. Young by 6 up and 4 to play.

To come back to London and its doings, I need hardly tell you that Miss Eveline Rothschild's wedding was a very pretty one, and it had an additional interest to those who had never before witnessed a Jewish marriage ceremony. It is also unnecessary to tell you that the bridegroom was Mr. Clive Behrens, R.H.A., and that the wedding took place at the Jewish Synagogue in St. Petersburgh Place.

I never saw anything prettier than the decorations of the synagogue, the huge palms, the wreaths and masses of white flowers, and the trails of smilax contrasting well with the rich red of the canopy under which the bride and bridegroom stood during the ceremony. The bride wore a beautiful dress of white satin draped with a tablier of Brussels lace, whilst the long Court train was bordered with the same rich lace, and lined with spotted net. On the head was a wreath of myrtle, from which hung a net veil bordered with Brussels lace. She was attended by six bridesmaids, Lady Sybil Primrose, Lady M. Bathurst, Miss Henrique, Miss Montefiore, Miss Behrens, and Miss Adeane, who all wore dresses of silk in a lovely shade of blue, made with yokes of chiffon and Valenciennes lace. Their bodices were trimmed with tiny tucks separated by rows of hem-stitching, and their hats, in the large picture fashion, were trimmed with bunches of red roses, which matched the flowers in their lovely bouquets. Two small pages—Lord Apsley and Master H. Smith—also attended the bride, wearing charmingly quaint costumes.

Lady Rothschild subsequently held a reception in Piccadilly, where the beautiful presents were shown in the large drawing-room. They numbered 1,000, and included a beautiful bracelet from the Prince of Wales.

Yours affectionately, CONSTANCE.

* Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.*

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK, SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK, with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

FOUR POINTS:

No Finger Marks,
No Labour,
A Brilliant Polish, and
A Pleasant Perfume.

STONE'S PERFUMED FURNITURE CREAM.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., and 2s. 6d. each, direct from

STONE AND SON, EXETER.

Or at all respectable Stores.

Don't Cough - use
They at once check the Cough and remove the cause.
The Unrivalled
One Lozenge alone relieves.
Sold everywhere, Tins 13½d. each.
Keating's Lozenges

URGENT APPEAL
FOR IMMEDIATE HELP.

THE HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN
GREAT ORMOND STREET, LONDON, W.C.
Patron: THE QUEEN.
President: THE DUKE OF FIFE, K.T.
Chairman: ARTHUR LUCAS, Esq.
Vice-Chairman: JOHN MURRAY, Esq.

Never since its foundation in 1852 has this Hospital—the first Children's Hospital in the British Empire—been in such want of money.

Five thousand pounds needed at once to keep the wards open.

The Committee appeal for money to pay for the cost of treating about 450 Children every day.

Collecting Lists forwarded on application to ADRIAN HOPE, Secretary.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.
EPPS'S
GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
COCOA
BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

Digitized by Google

NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

The Most Popular Sixpenny Weekly.

6,000,000 Copies of the NAVY AND ARMY have been sold. First issued December 20, 1895. The following is a list of the ships of the British and Foreign Navies illustrations of which have appeared in the paper :—

BATTLE-SHIPS.

Alexandra, March 20, 1896.
,, August 13, 1898.
Anson, March 20, 1896.
Barfleur, March 20, 1896.
,, March 12, 1897.
Benbow, June 25, 1897.
Cæsar, March 4, 1898.
Camperdown, March 12, 1897.
Centurion, January 24, 1896.
,, July 29, 1899.
Conqueror, May 14, 1897.
Devastation, March 20, 1896.
Dreadnought, March 20, 1896.
,, June 25, 1897.
Edinburgh, March 20, 1896.
Empress of India, January 24, 1896.
,, ,, August 27, 1898.
,, ,, May 20, 1899.
Formidable, December 3, 1898.
Glory, July 22, 1899.
Hannibal, January 7, 1898.
Hood, March 20, 1896.
Illustrious, July 2, 1898.
Implacable, March 25, 1899.
Inflexible, March 20, 1896.
,, December 25, 1896.
,, June 25, 1897.
Jupiter, February 25, 1899.
Magnificent (in dock), Jan. 31, 1896.
Majestic, January 24, 1896.
,, March 6, 1896.
,, August 13, 1898.
Mars, January 22, 1897.
,, June 25, 1897.
Nile, March 20, 1896.
,, December 11, 1896.
,, March 12, 1897.
,, October 1, 1898.
Ocean, July 23, 1898.
Prince George, June 25, 1897.
,, ,, December 10, 1897.
,, ,, July 1, 1899.
Ramillies, January 24, 1896.
,, March 12, 1897.
Renown, June 25, 1897.
Resolution, January 24, 1896.
,, July 1, 1899.
Revenge, January 24, 1896.
,, March 12, 1897.
Royal Oak, January 24, 1896.
Royal Sovereign, January 17, 1896.
Sans Pareil, March 20, 1896.
,, ,, October 1, 1898.
Thunderer, March 20, 1896.
,, October 1, 1898.
Trafalgar, January 24, 1896.
,, October 1, 1898.
Vengeance, August 12, 1899.
Victory, May 28, 1898.
,, June 3, 1899.

CRUISERS.

Æolus, March 19, 1897.
Amphitrite, July 30, 1898.
,, July 22, 1899.
Andromeda, February 18, 1899.
Argonaut, July 15, 1899.
Arrogant, March 26, 1898.
Astræa, March 12, 1897.
Aurora, April 8, 1899.
Australia, March 20, 1896.
Bellona, January 24, 1896.
Black Prince, July 30, 1898.
Blake, January 24, 1896.
,, June 25, 1897.
Blenheim, January 24, 1896.
Bonaventure, June 25, 1897.
,, April 30, 1898.
,, August 5, 1899.
Brilliant, June 25, 1897.
Calypso, December 31, 1898.
Champion, December 31, 1898.
Charybdis, January 24, 1896.
Cleopatra, March 20, 1896.
,, December 31, 1898.
Comus, May 20, 1899.
Crescent, March 20, 1896.
,, June 25, 1897.
,, June 4, 1898.
,, July 2, 1898.
Diadem, March 26, 1898.
Dido, June 4, 1898.
Eclipse, February 4, 1899.
Europa, July 2, 1898.
,, July 15, 1899.
Furious, February 18, 1899.
,, August 19, 1899.
Galatea, March 20, 1896.
Gibraltar, January 24, 1896.
,, April 8, 1899.
,, June 10, 1899
Hawke, March 12, 1897.
Hearty, September 16, 1899.
Hermes, May 7, 1898.
Hermione, January 24, 1896.
Immortalité, April 8, 1899.
Imperieuse, May 27, 1899.
,, September 16, 1899.
Intrepid, April 1, 1899.
Isis, June 4, 1898.
Juno, July 29, 1899.
Leander, June 25, 1897.
Melampus, March 20, 1896.
Mercury, June 25, 1897.
Mersey, March 20, 1896.
Minerva, June 25, 1897.
Narcissus, June 24, 1899.
Niobe, July 2, 1898.
Ocean, March 4, 1899.
Orlando, March 20, 1896.
Pelorus, June 25, 1897.
Porpoise, March 25, 1899.
Powerful, September 18, 1896.
,, June 11, 1897.
,, June 25, 1897.
,, January 7, 1899.
Psyche, June 17, 1899.
Pylades, July 29, 1899.
Raleigh, December 31, 1898.
Retribution, March 20, 1896.
Royal Arthur, March 20, 1896.
,, ,, January 7, 1898.
Royalist, October 29, 1898.
,, April 15, 1899.
St. George, January 24, 1896.
,, February 4, 1898.
Spartiate, December 3, 1898.
Sybille, March 12, 1897.
Talbot, June 25, 1897.
,, March 25, 1899.
Tartar, December 11, 1896.
Tauranga, December 17, 1898.
Terrible, May 21, 1898.
,, May 28, 1898.
,, April 15, 1899.
Theseus, January 24, 1896.
Tourmaline, May 13, 1899.
Undaunted, November 5, 1898.
Venus, February 11, 1899.
Volage, September 25, 1896.
,, December 31, 1898.
Wallaroo, October 29, 1898.
Warspite, March 20, 1896.
,, May 27, 1899.

TORPEDO CRAFT.

Ardent, September 4, 1896.
,, March 12, 1897.
Bullfinch, August 12, 1899.
Chamois, March 25, 1899.
Comet, April 22, 1899.
Crane, March 25, 1899.
Daring, January 24, 1896.
Desperate, July 16, 1898.
Excellent, April 22, 1899.
Flying Fish, March 25, 1899.
Halcyon, January 24, 1896.
Havock, October 2, 1896.
Hornet, October 2, 1896.
Hunter, June 25, 1897.
,, March 25, 1899.
Janus, July 16, 1898.
Karrakatta, October 29, 1898.
Opossum, June 25, 1897.
Polyphemus, April 9, 1898.
Ranger, June 25, 1897.
,, March 25, 1899.
Spanker, October 1, 1898.
Speedy, June 25, 1897.
Star, March 25, 1899.
Swordfish, July 16, 1898.
Teaser, March 25, 1899.
Terror, June 3, 1899.
Vernon, September 24, 1898.
Vesuvius, October 22, 1898.
Violet, March 25, 1899.
Vulcan, July 24, 1896.
,, August 7, 1896.
,, February 25, 1899.
Whiting, December 17, 1898.

Torpedo-boats.

No. 75, January 17, 1896.
No, 95, June 25, 1897.

TRAINING VESSELS, YACHTS, Etc.

Alberta, June 25, 1897.
Ant, July 22, 1899.
Asia, November 12, 1898.
Britannia, January 11, 1898.
,, June 24, 1899.
Caledonia, November 13, 1896.
Cambridge, May 14, 1897.
Conway, May 7, 1898.
Cruiser, April 15, 1899.
Dædalus, May 13, 1899.
Dart, October 29, 1898.
Duke of Wellington, April 17, 1896.
,, ,, Nov. 12, 1898.
Dwarf, December 3, 1898.
Edgar, July 1, 1899.
Egeria, February 18, 1898.
Elfin, February 11, 1899.
Goldfinch, October 29, 1898.
Hannibal, November 12, 1898.
Heron, March 26, 1898.
Implacable, January 8, 1897.
Impregnable, July 24, 1896.
,, April 22, 1899.
,, July 15, 1899.
Indus, March 4, 1899.
Lapwing, May 28, 1897.
Liberty, June 18, 1898.
Lion, January 8, 1897.
,, August 5, 1899.
Macquarie, June 18, 1898.
Magpie, August 13, 1898.
Marlborough, November 12, 1898.
Martin, March 5, 1897.
,, June 18, 1898.
,, June 10, 1899.
Melik, May 7, 1898.
Nautilus, June 18, 1898.
Northampton, May 13, 1899.
Osborne, June 25, 1897.
Penelope, June 25, 1897.
Pilot, June 18, 1898.
Racer, January 14, 1898.
Rattler, August 6, 1897.
St. Vincent, March 6, 1896.
Scorpion, September 3, 1897.
Seaflower, June 18, 1898.
Sealark, November 13, 1896.
,, June 18, 1898.
Sultan, March 26, 1898.
Terror, September 3, 1897.
Victoria & Albert, May 13, 1899.
,, ,, June 3, 1899.
,, ,, Sept. 2, 1899.
Waterwitch, October 29, 1898.

FOREIGN VESSELS.

American.

Baltimore, March 11, 1899.
Boston, March 11, 1899.
Brooklyn, May 7, 1898.
Charleston, March 11, 1899.
Columbia, May 7, 1898.
,, May 21, 1898.
Cushing, June 18, 1898.
Detroit, March 11, 1899.
Indiana, May 7, 1898.
Katahdin, June 18, 1898.
Marblehead, June 4, 1898.
Massachusetts, August 13, 1898.
Miantonomoh, June 18, 1898.
Minneapolis, March 12, 1897.
,, August 13, 1898.
New Orleans, June 4, 1898.
New York, May 7, 1898.
Olympia, March 11, 1899.
Oregon, May 21, 1898.
Petrel, March 11, 1899.
Philadelphia, April 15, 1899.
Porter, June 18, 1898.
St. Louis, May 21, 1898.
St. Paul, October 22, 1898.
San Francisco, March 12, 1897.
,, ,, June 4, 1898.
Sheridan, May 6, 1899.
Stiletto, June 18, 1898.
Terror, June 18, 1898.
Texas, August 13, 1898.

Argentine.

Buenos Aires, May 14, 1898.

Austrian.

Ferdinand Max, November 12, 1897.
Kaiser Franz Josef, March 12, 1897.
Kaiserin Elisabeth, Nov. 12, 1897.
Kaiserin Maria Theresia, March 12, 1897.

Brazilian.

Marechal Floriano, Aug. 19, 1899.
Quinze de Novembro, Aug. 16, 1898.

Chilian.

Blanco Encalada, May 28, 1898.
Esmeralda, April 30, 1898.
Nueve de Julio, May 28, 1898.
O'Higgins, May 14, 1898.

French.

Amiral Charner, March 12, 1897.
Aquilon, October 29, 1898.
Bayard, April 9, 1898.
Bouvines, October 29, 1898.
Bugeaud, March 12, 1897.
Catinat, October 29, 1898.
Charles Martel, March 12, 1897.
D'Assas, April 29, 1899.
D'Entrecasteaux, April 9, 1898.
Descartes, April 9, 1898.
Dupuy de Lome, March 12, 1897.
Foudre, March 12, 1897.
,, August 20, 1898.
Gustave Zede, May 6, 1899.
Gymnote, May 6, 1899.
Hoche, March 12, 1897.
Jaureguiberry, March 12, 1897.
Jean Bart, April 9, 1898.
Jeanne D'Arc, June 24, 1899.
Jemmapes, October 29, 1898.
Linois, March 12, 1897.
Massena, October 29, 1898.
Nielly, April 8, 1899.
Pascal, April 9, 1898.
Sfax, June 24, 1899.
Surcouf, October 29, 1898.
Torpedo-boats—
No. 64, March 18, 1899.
No. 178, March 18, 1899.
No. 216, March 18, 1899.
Trehouart, October 29, 1898.
Valmy, October 29, 1898.
Vauban, April 9, 1898.
Wattignies, March 12, 1897.

German.

Baden, June 10, 1899.
Comoran, March 4, 1898.
,, June 17, 1899.
Deutschland, March 4, 1898.
Falke, March 25, 1899.
Gefion, March 4, 1898.
Hagen, October 1, 1898.
Hohenzollern, September 17, 1897.
Irene, March 4, 1898.
Kaiser, March 4, 1898.
Kaiserin Augusta, March 12, 1897
,, ,, March 4, 1898.
Kurfurst Wilhelm, Sept. 17, 1897.
,, ,, June 10, 1899.
Odin, October 1, 1898.
Prinzess Wilhelm, March 4, 1898.

Greek.

Spetsai, March 12, 1897.

Italian.

Andrea Doria, March 12, 1897.
Elba, April 1, 1899.
Liguria, March 12, 1897.
Marco Polo, March 12, 1897.
Piemonte, April 2, 1898.
Re Umberto, March 12, 1897.
Savoia, May 6, 1899.
,, May 13, 1899.
Sicilia, March 12, 1897.
Stromboli, March 12, 1897.
,, April 1, 1899.

Japanese.

Akebono, July 15, 1899.
Asahi, April 1, 1899.
Idzumi, April 2, 1898.
Kasagi, April 8, 1899.
Shinonome, July 15, 1899.
Takasago, June 25, 1898.
Tatsuta, May 14, 1898.
Yashima, April 2, 1898.
Yoshino, April 2, 1898.

Norwegian.

Harald Haarfagre, June 25, 1898.
Tordenskjold, June 25, 1898.

Russian.

Dmitri Donskoi, April 23, 1898.
Ermak, April 22, 1899.
Georgei Pobiedonosets, March 12, 1897.
Grosiastchy, March 12, 1897.
Lissoi Veliky, April 23, 1898.
Moskva, April 23, 1898.
Pamyat Azova, April 23, 1898.
Rossia, April 23, 1898.
Rurik, April 23, 1898.
Standart, September 17, 1897.

Spanish.

Alfonso XIII., August 20, 1898.
Carlos V., June 25, 1898.
Columbia, May 21, 1898.
El Solitario, May 14, 1898.
Furor, June 4, 1898.
Infanta Maria Teresa, June 11, 1898.
Isla de Luzon, May 21, 1898.
Lepanto, June 25, 1898.
Normannia, May 21, 1898.
Pluton, June 4, 1898.
Princesa de Asturias, June 25, 1898.
Reina Mercedes, August 26, 1899.
Terror, May 14, 1898.
Vitoria, May 14, 1898.
Vizcaya, April 23, 1898.

Turkish.

Fuad, March 12, 1897.
Stamboul, February 5, 1897.

Digitized by Google

Fry's

PURE CONCENTRATED

Cocoa

"The cocoa drinking season is now upon us," Ex-Military Attaché writes, "and Fry's is the most popular in military messes. It is always too good to be advertised down. I always carry some of it in my portmanteau when travelling, and make a cup with my hot shaving water immediately my valet brings it to my bedroom. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught drink Fry's Cocoa, and so do most of the upper ten thousand."—Aldershot Review.

Instantly Opened and Focussed.

Instantly Closed for Pocket.

THE MOST USEFUL CLASS IN EXISTENCE. CAN BE CARRIED IN THE WAISTCOAT POCKET. DOES NOT WEIGH MORE THAN AN ORDINARY WATCH.

THE "AITCHISON" PATENT

POCKET BINOCULAR FIELD GLASS.

AITCHISON & Co., 428, STRAND,

ALSO AT

47, FLEET ST., 6, POULTRY, & 46, FENCHURCH ST., LONDON.

Important Testimony from THE UNITED STATES WAR DEPT.

Capt. CRAIG, War Dept., Washington, United States, writes: "I am directed by the Chief Signal Officer of the United States Army to say that Aitchison's Patent Pocket Field Glasses are found to be extremely convenient and portable, and of good service."

No. 1, Achromatic, 6 Lenses,

£3:3:0

No. 2, Achromatic, 12 Lenses,

HIGHER POWER.

£5:5:0

Complete in Soft Leather Purse Case.
Hard Leather Sling Case, 5s. extra.

CARRIAGE PAID TO ANY PART OF THE WORLD.

NEW ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST POST FREE.

BAYLISS JONES & BAYLISS'

UNCLIMBABLE RAILINGS, ETC.

AT LOW PRICES.

ALSO MAKERS OF Wrought Iron Wine-Bins.

IRON HURDLES, FENCING GATES, &c.

COMBINED-MESH NETTING.

Write for Price List.

Average 20 per cent. cheaper than ordinary Netting.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF ALL KINDS OF HURDLES, FENCING, GATES, &c., FREE

VICTORIA WORKS, WOLVERHAMPTON.

LONDON OFFICES AND SHOW ROOMS—139 & 141, CANNON STREET, E.C.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21st, 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 142.

S. Smith & Son, Ltd.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

9, Strand, London,

Jewellers & Clock Makers,

Makers of Marine Chronometers and Kew Observatory Certificated Watches.

PRIZE MEDAL ELECTRICAL EXHIBITION, 1892, FOR

NON-MAGNETISABLE CHRONOGRAPHS.

No. 138.—OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE OF "STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH, £8 8 0
(See page vi. of this number.)

No. 82.—OUR OWN SPECIAL ALL ENGLISH "STRAND" COMPENSATED LEVER, Silver Cases, £5. (See page vi. of this number.)

For the convenience of Customers desiring the benefit of Early Purchases, S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., have adopted

"The Times"

(Encyclopaedia Britannica) Novel Plan of 20 Monthly Payments,

particulars of which, together with their "TREATISE ON WATCHES" (just published, 125 pp., 400 illustrations, Third Edition), may be obtained free on application.

OUR LIST OF PURCHASERS CONTAINS NAMES OF THE HIGHEST IN THE LAND.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.

IRISH Fish Napkins, 2/11 per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5/6 per doz. Table Cloths (2 yards square), 2/6; 2½ × 3 yards, 5/6. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Irish Linen Pillow Cases, 10/6 per doz. Real Irish Linen Sheeting, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1/11 per yard. Roller Towelling, 3d. per yard. Surplice Linen, 7d. per yard. Dusters from 3/3 per doz. Linen Glass Cloths, 4/9 per doz.

SAMPLES & PRICE LISTS POST FREE. DAMASK

Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1/4½ each. Fine Linens and Linen Diaper, 8½d. per yard. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4/6 per dozen.

TABLE AND HOUSE LINEN.

N.B.-To prevent delay, all Letters & Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

LEA & PERRIN'S SAUCE.

Lea & Perrins

Is printed in BLUE ink across the outside wrapper of every bottle of

AVOID CHEAP COPIES.

THE ORIGINAL WORCESTERSHIRE.

Digitized by Google

The Original

MILD
IN RED
PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM
IN BLUE
PACKETS & TINS.

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

CARRIAGE PAID TO ALL STATIONS.

. . Trapnell & Gane, . .

Exc llent Solid Hazlewood Bedroom Suite, comprising 4 ft. Wardrobe, 3 ft. 6 in. Dressing Chest, with Reflex Mirrors, 3 ft. 6 in. Washstand, with rouge royal Marble Top. £22 : 10 : 0.

COLLEGE GREEN, BRISTOL.

. New Illustrated Catalogue, 1,000 Engravings, Post Free. .

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 142. Saturday, October 21st, 1899.

DR. GEORGE HORATIO JONES
The Old-Established Surgeon-Dentist of
57, Great Russell Street
(directly facing the British Museum),
May be consulted daily, as usual, for the best English and American Dentistry. Moderate Fees. Extension of premises, Great Russell Mansions, next door.
See name under "Dentists," Post Office Directory.

The ART of . .
Graceful Horse Riding
TAUGHT AT
SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,
EARL'S COURT.
Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship." 2/6.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.—A vacancy occurs for a gentleman to act as MANAGER of one of Sandow's Schools of Physical Culture. Must have had good business training, and of good social position. A thorough knowledge of physical culture. A good salary will be paid to a fully competent man. Apply by letter only, giving fullest particulars of how previously employed, age, etc., to Managing Director, Sandow Ltd., Sandow Hall, Savoy Corner, Victoria Embankment, W.C.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),
Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with
Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,
PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS
FOR
MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE,
WOOLWICH, SANDHURST,
AND ALL
MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS;
also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:
MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899.

		Marks.
*1st UNIVERSITY.—	A. E. M. Ward	1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

		Marks.
*1st ARTILLERY.—	C. H. Clark	1792

(After a few months' reading.)

*20th Infantry.—	L. J. Le Fleming	1582
35th "	A. Moore	1485
38th "	J. C. Hooper	1463
*72nd "	W. B. Mitford	1310
*76th "	A. J. M. Gordon	1280

*1st trial direct.
March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.

N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.
Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, S.W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8 p.m. "An Interrupted Honeymoon."
COMEDY, Panton St., W.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C. New play in October.
DRURY LANE, W.C. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "Man and His Makers." Wed. and Sat. 2 p.m.
LYRIC, W., 8 30 p.m. "El Capitan." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W. "The Moonlight Blossom."
PRINCESS'S, W.
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Prince of Borneo."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C.
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Runaway Girl." Thurs. 2.30 p.m.
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Great Ruby."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "Carl Rosa Opera Company." Saturday. 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E. "Orlando Dando."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. "A Greek Slave."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "La Poupée."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Paul Jones." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "Two Little Vagabonds."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W. "The Belle of New York." Wed. 2.30.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "The Manœuvres of Jane.'
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's). "Sporting Life."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The White Heather."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E. "The Circus Girl."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "Don Quixote."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Gay Parisienne."
ROYAL, Stratford, E. "The Life We Lead."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The White Heather."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W. "The Mariners of England."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junct'n, S.W. "Lights o' London."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "On Active Service."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI Strand W.C., 8 p.m.

URGENT APPEAL
FOR IMMEDIATE HELP.

THE HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN
GREAT ORMOND STREET, LONDON, W.C.
Patron: THE QUEEN.
President: THE DUKE OF FIFE, K.T.
Chairman: ARTHUR LUCAS, Esq.
Vice-Chairman: JOHN MURRAY, Esq.

Never since its foundation in 1852 has this Hospital—the first Children's Hospital in the British Empire—been in such want of money.

Five thousand pounds needed at once to keep the wards open.

The Committee appeal for money to pay for the cost of treating about 450 Children every day.

Collecting Lists forwarded on application to ADRIAN HOPE, Secretary.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought),
GREENWICH, S.E.
Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.
AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.
P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL
HOLLOWAY.
Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.
The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 2,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £10,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED.
L. H. GLENTON-KERR, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND
And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.
£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.
Bankers, Messrs. Drummond
ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

WEST LONDON HOSPITAL,
HAMMERSMITH ROAD, W. (101 beds.)
Patron: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President: THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, K.G.
Treasurer: THE LORD ROTHSCHILD.
FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED for opening new wards for 80 additional beds.
R. J GILBERT, Secretary-Superintendent.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN
And CHILDREN,
MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.
Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.
W. GUNTRIP KING, Secretary

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.
The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of
TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS
and their crews in thorough efficiency.
In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.
Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION,
BROMPTON.
The Hospital contains 321 Beds, and in 1897 received 1,681 In-patients. 13,098 Out-patients were also treated. The yearly requirements of the Hospital cannot be estimated at less than £25,000 a year. Further, it has been decided upon the unanimous and urgent advice of the Medical Staff to establish a
"COUNTRY BRANCH AND CONVALESCENT HOME,"
and it is estimated that £20,000 will be needed to inaugurate this new departure.
The Charity being Unendowed, is dependent on Donations, Annual Subscriptions, and Legacies, Contributions are therefore earnestly solicited in aid of both objects.
Bankers:
Messrs. WILLIAMS, DEACON, & MANCHESTER & SALFORD BANK,
20, Birchin Lane, London.
WILLIAM H. THEOBALD, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP

Ever used WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP for shampooing? No? Then you have missed one of the greatest luxuries imaginable. It is simply marvelous what a great mass of thick, creamy lather a small piece of WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP will make when rubbed into the hair and scalp. How cleansing, cooling and refreshing it is! How thoroughly it removes every particle of dandruff, and how soft, "fluffy" and silky it leaves the hair!

Like to try it? Sample free for 1d. stamp to pay postage.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAPS are the recognized Standard the world over.

Sold by Chemists, Hair dressers and Perfumers, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING STICKS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' LUXURY SHAVING TABLETS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' AMERICAN SHAVING TABLETS, 6d
WILLIAMS' "JERSEY CREAM" TOILET SOAP, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp, by addressing—

The J. B. WILLIAMS CO., 64 Gt. Russell St., LONDON, W. C., or 161 Clarence St., SYDNEY. Chief Offices and Laboratories, GLASTONBURY, CONN., U. S. A.

FOUR POINTS:

No Finger Marks,
No Labour,
A Brilliant Polish, and
A Pleasant Perfume.

STONE'S PERFUMED FURNITURE CREAM.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., and 2s. 6d. each, direct from

STONE AND SON, EXETER.

Or at all respectable Stores.

BATH, THE QUEEN OF SPAS.

THIS City of Unrivalled Hot Mineral Springs is the Finest Health Resort in Europe.

Magnificent Suite of Baths.

Latest appliances for the Nauheim (Thermalsoolbad) Treatment.

FINE ROMAN REMAINS.
CHARMING SCENERY. GOOD HOTELS
BEAUTIFUL PARKS.
BAND PERFORMANCES DAILY.

Write to Baths' Manager for Illustrated work, Bath as a Health Resort. Price One Shilling.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.

writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.

"I have now prescribed them for the "last 8 years in my hospitals and private "practice, and find them of great benefit. "I certainly and most strongly "recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

STUARTS, Bill Discounters,

45, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

ADVANCES made to all classes, without delay. Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes discounted, Loans on Mortgage of Real or Personal Estate, Reversions, etc.

Town and country applications have immediate attention. A representative will call on applicants if required. Interest arranged in advance, and repayments made to suit borrower's convenience. Before applying elsewhere write or call at STUART'S, 45, Marlborough Street, London, W. All communications treated in strict confidence. Telephone 2068 Gerrard. Telegraphic Address: "DEXTRO, LONDON."

Royal National . . Lifeboat Institution.

THERE being a vacancy in the Inspecting Staff of this Institution, the Committee call for Candidates for the vacant post, who must be under forty years of age, must have followed the sea as a profession, and had good experience in the management of boats and the command of men.

Candidates must send in copies of their certificates to the Secretary of the Institution on or before 20th November, 1899.

Full information may be obtained at the Institution, 14, John Street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Jack's Exclusive Privilege
The "Powerful." From China for the Cape. (Illustrated)	121
Haulbowline. Our Only Irish Dockyard. (Illustrated)	122
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	123
Cavalry Raids. (Illustrated)	125
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	126
Editorial Notices; Our Diary	127
The Treachery at Bronkhorst Spruit ...	128
The Transvaal Forces. (Illustrated) ...	128
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Nine Illustrations)	129
The Indian Contingent Leaving Bombay. (Illustrated)	132
From Malta to South Africa. (Illus.)	134
Ordered on Service. (Illustrated) ...	135
"Bunter's Cruise: A Tale of the New Navy." By Charles Gleig. Illustrated by T. S. C. Crowther ...	136
The Soldiers' Battle	137
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	139
The War News and Disposition of Troops	139
The Telegraph Battalion. How Communication is Kept Up Between Armies. (Illustrated)	140
The Art and Mystery of Swordsmanship. How Soldiers are Trained. (Illustrated)	141
	143

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Third Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY IN HOME WATERS.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. h. Hulk. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. g.v. Gun Vessel. y. Yacht. T. Tender. s.s. Survey Ship. d.s. Depot-ship. P. Portsmouth. D. Devonport. C. Chatham. S. Sheerness. i. Instructional Torpedo Flotilla. c.g. Coast Guard. p.g. Port Guard. W.I. Whale Island.

Agincourt, cr.	Com. D. St. A. Wake	T. to Boscawen
Alarm, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. Powley	T. to Galatea, c.g.
Albacore, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. J. W. Steward	Ireland
Alberta, y.	Staff-Capt. G. A. Broad	T. to Victoria and [Albert
Alexandra, B.	Capt. Count F. C. Metaxa, A.D.C. (Vice-Adml. Sir Compton E. Domvile, K.C.B.).	Portland, c.g.
Algiers, h.	Capt. G. L. Atkinson, A.D.C. (Rear-Adml. S. C. Holland).	Medway Reserve C.
Antelope, t.g.b.	Com. O. A. Stokes	Portishead (R.N.R)
Arrogant, cr.	Capt. A. W. E. Protheroe	Channel Squadron
Asia, h.	Capt. A. A. C. Parr (Rear-Admiral P. Aldrich).	Portsmouth [Reserves
Australia, cr.	Capt. J. M. McQuhae, C.B.	S'th'pton Wr., c.g.
Bat, t.b.d.	Com. A. L. Duff	T. to Vivid, i.
Benbow, B.	Capt. R. P. Humpage	Greenock, c.g.
Black Prince, cr.	Com. W. J. Grogan	Queenstown (boys)
Blonde, cr.	Com. C. H. Dare	Iceland (fisheries)
Boscawen, h.	Capt. T. H. M. Jerram	Portland (boys)
Britannia, h.	Capt. Hon. A. G. Curzon-Howe, C.B., C.M.G.	Dartmouth (cadets)
Briton, h.	Lieut.-Com. A. C. Spearman	Inverness (R.N.R.)
Caledonia, h.	Com. J. G. Hewitt	Queensferry (boys)
Calliope, cr.	Capt. H. P. Routh	T. to Northampton
Cambridge, h.	Capt. R. W. Craigie.	Gunnery School, D.
Champion, cr.	Capt. F. O. Pike	Training Squad.
Circe, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. G. S. Q. Carr, C.M.G.	T. to Severn, c.g.
Cleopatra, cr.	Capt. R. K. McAlpine	Training Squad.
Clyde, h.	Com. J. P. Montgomery	Aberdeen (R.N.R.)
Collingwood, B.	Capt. H. C. Bigge	Bantry, c.g.
Colossus, B.	Capt. S. A. Johnson.	Holyhead, c.g.
Conqueror, B.	. . . . .	T. to Cambridge
Crane, t.b.d.	Com. C. G. Treherne	T. to Victory, i.
Curacoa, cr.	Com. H. Lyon.	T. to Northampton
Curlew, g.v.	. . . . .	T. to Cambridge
Cygnet, t.b.d.	Com. M. E. F. Kerr	T. to Pembroke, i.
Dædalus, h.	Lieut.-Com. B. C. Barber	Bristol (R.N.R.)
Defiance, h.	Capt. F. T. Hamilton	Torpedo School, D.
Diadem, cr.	Capt. H. S. F. Niblett	Channel Squadron
D. of Wellingt'n, h.	Capt. J. L. Hammet	Depôt Ship, P.
Durham, h.	Lieut.-Com. W. F. Forrest	Leith (R.N.R.)
Eagle, h.	Com. C. E. Gladstone	Liverpool (R.N.R.)
Elfin, y.	Staff-Com. J. E. Tully.	T. to Victoria and [Albert
Enchantress, y.	Staff-Com. P. D. Ouless	Admiralty Yacht, P
Excellent	Capt. W. H. May, M.V.O.	Gunnery Sch., W.I.
Fawn, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. K. Laird	T. to Victory, i.
Ferret, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. S. A. Perry-Ayscough	T. to Vivid, i.
Fire Queen, y.	Staff-Capt. T. Hawkins Smith	T. to Victory
Flirt, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Thomas	T. to Victory
Flying Fish, t.b.d.	Com. A. G. Meredyth	T. to Victory, i.
Furious, cr.	Capt. L. E. Wintz	Channel Squadron
Galatea, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cross	Hull, c.g.
Gauges, h.	Com. W. V. Anson	Harwich (boys)
Gleaner, t.g.b.	Com. F. H. Peyton	Gravesend (R.N.R)
Gossamer, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. T. Cole	T. to Melampus, c.g.
Hannibal, B.	Capt. Sir B. W. Walker, Bart., C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Haughty, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. La T. Leatham	T. to Pembroke, i.
Hearty, g.b.	Com. H. G. King Hall, D.S.O.	North Sea (fish'rs)
Hecla	Com. W. J. Scullard (N)	Torpedo Depôt, P.
Hero, B.	Com. W. de Salis.	T. to Excellent
Howe, B.	Captain E. H. M. Davis, C.M.G. (Rear-Adml. A. P. M. Lake).	Queenstown, p.g.
Hunter, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. Robert G. Corbett	T. to Victory, i.
Impregnable, h.	Capt. A. C. B. Bromley	Devonport (boys)
Indus, h.	Capt. W. Marrack (Rear-Adml. T. S. Jackson).	D'nport Reserves
Jackal, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Tancred	Coast of Scotland [(fisheries)
Janus, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Corbett	T. to Pembroke
Jaseur, t.g.b.	Com. W. Carey	T. to Vernon
Jason, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Bruce.	Particular Service
Jupiter, B.	Capt. J. Durnford, C.B., D.S.O.	Channel Squadron
Kite, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. P. W. Hope.	T. to Excellent
Landrail, g.v.	. . . . .	T. to Wildfire
Leda, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. V. Maud	T. to Australia, c.g
Liberty, brig.	Lieut.-Com. C. H. Morgan	T. to Lion
Lightning, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. C. O. Mansergh	T. to Victory, i.
Lion, h.	Com. E. G. Shortland.	Devonport (boys)
Lynx, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Holland.	T. to Vivid
Magnet, tug.	Lieut.-Com. J. Webber	T. to Victory
Magnificent, B.	Capt. J. Ferris (Rear-Adml. A. D. Fanshawe).	Channel Squadron
Majestic, B.	Capt. G. Le C. Egerton, C.B. (Vice-Admiral Sir H. H. Rawson, K.C.B.).	Channel Squadron
Mallard, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. G. Webster	T. to Pembroke, i.
Mars, B.	Capt. H. J. May, C.B.	Channel Squadron
Martin, brig.	Lieut.-Com. S. M. Agnew	T. to St. Vincent
Medea, cr.	Com. C. G. May	S'th'pton (R.N.R.)
Medusa, cr.	Com. A. L. K. Knapton	N. Shields (R.N.R)
Melampus, cr.	Capt. R. N. Gresley	Kingstown, c.g.
Mermaid, t.b.d.	Com. J. M. de Robeck	T. to Pembroke, i.
Minotaur, cr.	Com. E. G. Barton	T. to Boscawen
Nautilus, brig	Lieut.-Com. H. H. D. Tothill	T. to Impregnable
Niger, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. H. Curteis	T. to Rodney, c.g.
Nile, B.	Capt. G. C. Langley	Devonport, p.g.
Niobe, cr.	Capt A. L. Winsloe	Channel Squadron
Northampton, cr.	Capt. H. A. W. Onslow	Recruiting Service
Northumberl'd, cr.	Com. C. E. Tower	Depôt Ship, C.
Onyx, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. Oliver	T. to Severn, c.g.
Osborne, y.	Capt. C. Windham	Royal Yacht, P.
Pactolus, cr.	Capt. F. J. Foley	Channel Squadron
Panther, t.b.d.	Com. J. I. Graham	T. to Vivid, i.
Pelorus, c.	Capt. H. C. B. Hulbert	Channel Squadron
Pembroke, h.	Capt. A. Macleod.	Medway Res'ves, C
Pilot, brig	Lieut.-Com. W. J. S. Alderson	T. to Impregnable
Porcupine, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. C. P. Beaty-Pownall	T. to Pembroke
President, h.	Com. A. C. Woods	W.I. Docks (R.N.R)
Prince George, B.	Capt. A. Barrow	Channel Squadron
Racer, sloop	Com. H. W. Steele (N)	T. to Britannia
Raleigh, cr.	Commodore E. S. Poe, M.V.O.	Training Squad.
Raven, g.b.	Com. A. Meldrum	Channel Islands
Renard, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. H. Eyre	T. to Colossus, c.g.
Repulse, B.	Capt. R. F. O. Foote, C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Research, s.	Capt. W. U. Moore	Home Waters
Resolution, B.	Capt. C. R Arbuthnot.	Channel Squadron
Rodney, B.	Capt. G. W. Russell	Queensferry, c.g.
St. Vincent, h.	Com. C. F. Thursby	Portsmouth (boys)
Sans Pareil, B.	Capt. J. R. E. Pattisson	Sheerness, p.g.
Seaflower, brig.	Lieut.-Com. E. G. H. Gamble	T. to Boscawen
Seagull, t.g.b.	Com. H. Grant-Dalton	Particular Service
Seahorse, s.	Staff-Com. G. S. Keigwin	Home Waters
Seal, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. A. J. Payne	T. to Vivid, i.
Severn, cr.	Capt. W. L. H. Browne	Harwich, c.g.
Shark, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. E. Corbett	T. to Vivid, i.
Sharpshooter t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. J. Pocock	Devonport [(Eng'r students)
Spanker, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. H. E. F. Worthington	T. to Alexandra, c.g.
Star, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. F. W. Kinahan	T. to Victory, i.
Sturgeon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. Luce	T. to Pembroke
Swordfish, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. Tibbets	T. to Pembroke
Thrasher, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. T. D. Pratt	T. to Vivid, i.
Thunderer, B.	Capt. J. E. Blaxland	Pembroke, p.g.
Trafalgar, B.	Capt. H. L. F. Royle, D.S.O.	Portsmouth, p.g.
Traveller, tug	Lieut.-Com. R. A. Cathie	T. to Vivid
Triton, s.	Capt. G. E. Richards	Home Waters
Unicorn, h.	Lieut.-Com. E. L. Austen	Dundee (R.N.R.)
Vernon, h.	Capt. C. G. Robinson	Torpedo School, P.
Vesuvius, g.b.	Lt.-Com. F. C. U. V. Wentworth	T. to Vernon
Victoria & Albert, y.	R.-Adml. Sir J. R. T. Fullerton, K.C.V.O., C.B., A.D.C.	Royal Yacht, P.
Victory, h.	Capt. F.C. B. Bridgeman (Adml. Sir M. Culme-Seymour, Bart., G.C.B.).	Portsmouth
Violet, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. B. Sparks.	T. to Victory
Vivid, y.	Capt. H. T. Grenfell (Adml. Sir H. Fairfax, K.C.B.).	Devonport
Volage, cr.	Capt. G. H. Cherry.	Training Squad.
Wanderer, barque	Lieut.-Com. L. de W. Satow	T. to Boscawen
Wildfire, y.	Capt. C. Campbell, C.B., D.S.O. (Vice-Adl. Sir N. Bowden-Smith, K.C.B.).	Sheerness
Wolf, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. C. Kemble-Lambert.	T. to Vivid
Wye, s.	Staff-Com. C. R. H. Robinson	Particular Service

THE NAVY.—Numerous illustrations have appeared in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of nearly all the ships in Her Majesty's Fleet. Lists can be obtained on application.

Digitized by Google

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

"STRAND" Watch with Cap on.

9, Strand, W.C.

No. 82. ALL ENGLISH.
As Half-Hunter or Full Hunting Cases, Silver, £6 6s.; 18ct. Gold, £16 16s.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our "TREATISE ON WATCHES," just published 125 pp., 400 illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138.
"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18-ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

The finest quality and value ever produced.

Crystal Glass, Silver, £5; 18-ct. Gold, £13 15s.

Special Size for Ladies, £5 15s. and £12 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be obtained on our new system of payment by Monthly Instalments.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MAR LANE, LONDON.

RED WHITE AND BLUE FRENCH COFFEE

SOLD EVERYWHERE

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER

Digitized by Google

Bovril to the Front

As a highly concentrated and delicious food of unquestioned purity, possessing both nourishing and stimulating qualities in a degree unequalled by any preparation of its kind, Bovril has leapt into universal favour. With Bovril a strengthening and sustaining meal can be provided in the shortest possible time.

Bovril contains all the flesh-forming constituents of prime ox beef in a form easy of digestion and assimilation—a perfect combination. Hence its unique value as a means of increasing vitality and maintaining physical strength.

BOVRIL
Campaigning Rations.

A large quantity of these Rations has been supplied for use by the BRITISH MILITARY FORCES in SOUTH AFRICA.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY
CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

SMITH, ELDER & CO.'S LIST.

IMPORTANT NEW WORK BY THE AUTHOR OF "DEEDS THAT WON THE EMPIRE."
In 4 vols, crown 8vo. With Portraits, Facsimiles, and Plans. 6s each.

HOW ENGLAND SAVED EUROPE:
THE STORY OF THE GREAT WAR (1793-1815).

By W. H. FITCHETT, LL.D.
Author of "Deeds that Won the Empire," "Fights for the Flag," etc.

VOL. I., FROM THE LOW COUNTRIES TO EGYPT,
WILL BE PUBLISHED IN OCTOBER, and the remaining volumes at intervals.

By THE SAME AUTHOR.

FIGHTS FOR THE FLAG. SECOND EDITION. With 16 Portraits, 13 Plans, and a Facsimile Letter of the Duke of Marlborough. Crown 8vo, 6s.

Review of Reviews—"This is the second volume of the series which has achieved one of the greatest literary successes of our time. . . . As a gift book, or as a book to take up and read at odd moments, or to devour at a prolonged sitting, this book has few equals."

DEEDS THAT WON THE EMPIRE. NINTH EDITION With 16 Portraits and 11 Plans. Crown 8vo, 6s.

Spectator.—"Not since Macaulay ceased to write has English literature produced a writer capable of infusing such life and vigour into historical scenes. The wholesome and manly tone of Mr. Fitchett's book is specially satisfactory. . . . The book cannot but take the reader by storm wherever it finds him."

NEW WORK BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE CRUISE OF THE 'CACHALOT.'"
Just Published. With Eight full-page Illustrations, specially drawn by Arthur Twidle. Large post 8vo, 8s. 6d.

THE LOG OF A SEA WAIF:

Being Recollections of the First Four Years of my Sea Life. By FRANK T. BULLEN, F.R.G.S., Author of "The Cruise of the 'Cachalot.'" "Idylls of the Sea," etc.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

THE CRUISE OF THE "CACHALOT." Round the World after Sperm Whales. The Volume includes a Letter to the Author from RUDYARD KIPLING. FOURTH EDITION. With 8 Illustrations and a Chart, large post 8vo, 8s. 6d.

World.—"Without exception one of the most charming sea-stories which it has been our luck to peruse for many a long day."

Bookman.—"Here is a glorious salt-sea book, true every word of it, and thrilling with adventure. . . . The spirit of daring is there, and plenty of adventure. . . . It is not a juvenile book, but boys will revel in it, and men who have still some of their boyish sympathies intact, will find it as refreshing as an ocean holiday."

IMMEDIATELY, crown 8vo, in paper cover, 1s.; or, in cloth, 1s. 6d.

THE WAY THEY HAVE IN THE NAVY. Being a Day-to-Day Record of the Recent Naval Manœuvres.

LONDON: SMITH, ELDER & CO., 15, WATERLOO PLACE.

LEAN'S

ROYAL NAVY LIST

SUPPORTED BY THE ADMIRALTY.

CONTAINING THE

War and Meritorious Services of Officers on the Active and Retired Lists of the Royal Navy and Royal Marine Forces.

WITH ALL THE ROYAL ORDERS, MEDALS, DECORATIONS, AND HONOURS GIVEN FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICES.

The Dates of all Commissions and of all Retirements, with Dates of Birth of Flag Officers, Captains and Officers of the Royal Marines, showing at a glance their progressive rank from entrance in the Navy to the present time.

A List of Ships on Active Service, giving the Tonnage, Steam Power, and Class, with their Officers arranged in order of Seniority.

The War Services of all the Famous Battle Ships of the Royal Navy, showing the Glorious Records of our "First Line of Defence."

The Officers of the Royal Indian Marine, the Australasian Naval Defence Forces, and of the Royal Naval Reserve. A complete Alphabetical List of all Officers, both active and retired, in the Royal Navy and Royal Marines, and of all officers in the Royal Indian Marine and Royal Naval Reserve.

An Exhaustive List of all the Civil Departments of the British Admiralty.

PUBLISHED QUARTERLY (500 PAGES) PRICE 7/6, POST FREE.

Annual Subscriptions (payable in advance), £1 7s. 6d., post free.

LONDON: WITHERBY & CO., PUBLISHERS, 326, HIGH HOLBORN, W.C.

☞ Officers are earnestly requested to send at once their special services to the Editor.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—Last year we saw indications that faced cloths in white or in delicately tinted shades of colour were to be much worn, both for morning and evening dresses. But when the summer appeared it became essentially a season of muslins, lace, and chiffon, the hot weather making for the lightest and thinnest of materials; and the adoption of anything heavier was considered impossible save by the economical. This winter, however, the light-coloured cloths are once again to the fore, their chill appearance relieved by the addition of fur and the generous use of lace, giving that note of femininity which is the characteristic of almost all dress at the moment. The masculine is no more tolerated, except for the hardest wear. Its reign, for the present at any rate, is as much a thing of the past as is the sway of crinolines and chignons. As I said to you a little time ago, I would particularly draw your attention to the white, the blue, and the mastic-coloured cloths as being very useful dresses for Cairo. And as you tell me your cousin is about to start, hoping for a gay winter there, I send you my promised sketch of a suitable costume in this material, and one that is particularly smart. It is braided with silver cord, whilst pieces of green velvet are introduced into the trimming, giving a contrast that is decidedly pleasing to the eye. With it is worn a tight-fitting vest, also braided with silver. You can imagine how charming all this looks when finished with a large white fox boa—one of those beautiful things that make just a perfect setting to a pretty face. The muff matches the boa, and the white hat is trimmed with green velvet and feathers.

The other figure in the sketch is wearing a very fashionable long, semi-fitting coat, trimmed with sable. The collar is of embroidered silk, the pattern of the brocade being outlined with gold tinsel thread. It is a handsome coat and looks very well with such a toque as you see here, the crown of old rose-coloured panne being edged with fur, and a tuft of ospreys finishing it at one side. The sable boa shown in the picture reminds me to tell you how frequently lace is also used with such things just now. I saw one the other day that was made very broad at the back, so as to form quite a deep collar, whilst in front it was very cleverly arranged with a scarf of old lace. Incongruous as this may sound to you, it really was very pretty, this mixture of lace and fur being most attractive, requiring no introduction, for its fascinations are realised at once. Even on a whole dress such a combination is prevalent, and I must commend it to your consideration when you are helping to choose the outfit for your cousin. One such dress I have in my mind was entirely composed of ruches of soft white chiffon alternating with fur, whilst the bodice was gracefully made with a fichu that was fastened at the left shoulder with an old paste buckle. It had the most delightfully fluffy effect, and would just suit Edith, who, you tell me, is not very tall.

TWO WALKING COSTUMES.

And then let me warn you that it is really quite useless for you to fight any more for plainer skirts. Frills have slowly but with much determination made their way. A muslin dress for South Africa had these frills covering the whole skirt from the waist to the feet, the polonaise overskirt just opening up the left side to show the tiny flounces peeping out. Each frill was edged with lace, and I cannot deny that the whole effect was as pretty as it well could be. In cloth straight flounces are used, the whole dress being often covered with them—bodice, sleeves, and skirt. The foundation is, as a rule, in silk or satin, whilst the flounces, when cut in faced cloth, have the edges left raw rather than hemmed. I had just written so far in this letter to you when Esther ran in to ask me to go and choose Christmas cards with her. I was really aghast at the idea. Christmas seems so very far off; but, as she reminded me, we shall very soon be sending our good wishes and our presents to friends in China and Hong Kong. So, it being a lovely morning, I was tempted, and sallied forth with her, and we were very soon engrossed in turning over dozens of boxes of pictures, almanacs, and cards. All these things are even less Christmassy than usual this year, prettiness, and in some cases artistic value, being more considered than the suitability of the subjects. Some of those I liked best were evidently suggested by Wedgwood china, being coloured with that peculiarly lovely shade of blue, and bearing graceful Grecian figures, embossed in white. Most of these cards contained almanacs, which are indeed to be seen in every shape and form this year. I also saw some very well got up cards with black and white sketches, showing sailors and soldiers of every rank in the Navy and Army; whilst lithographs of pictures, chiefly of subjects in the last century, are to be had in profusion, in black and white, in sepia, or in red.

To-night I have been to hear Neufeld lecture at St. James's Hall. The place was packed with a very enthusiastic audience, who listened with intense interest to his tale of imprisonment and sufferings. He told it all so simply and straightforwardly that it appealed to everyone present. It was well illustrated with many limelight pictures. One marvelled as one listened at the power of endurance the man showed, and it seemed astonishing that his dread fear of becoming insane should not have been realised.

The last picture on the sheet was a portrait of the Sirdar. You can imagine with what storms of applause that was received, whilst the lecturer described the never-to-be-forgotten moment when he entered his prison and gripped him by the hand. Again and again Neufeld reiterated his praises of this great soldier and of all who were with him, who not only saved one, but thousands of prisoners from torture. It was altogether a most interesting evening, and I am quite sorry you were not with me to enjoy it too. Seeing the man and hearing him lecture made things seem very real that before were perhaps vague and shadowy.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Elsie has just arrived in Bombay, and she tells me she found everyone in a tremendous state of excitement about the departure of the troops for the Transvaal. She grumbles a good deal that she never sees anything of her husband, as he is busy from morning till night looking after the arrangements for the transports, etc. She supposes he likes it, but for her it is very dull, and she will be quite glad when all the fuss is over and they can settle down to a quieter life. You know the way she writes, as if everything had been arranged just to annoy her. She enjoys a little grievance; but really she is perfectly happy all the time, only it is a habit with her that she does not like people to think so.

Later on in the letter Elsie does allow that it was rather exciting going down to see the transports start. There was always a large crowd assembled to give them a hearty cheer as they steamed out, whilst the men on board were all in excellent spirits, singing, and cheering again in return. In every case the work of embarkation was carried on in the most speedy fashion, the scene in the docks being always one of the most indescribable bustle and hard work.

At Calcutta, too, there was much excitement over the departure of the "Nurani" and the "Henzadi," both transports carrying troops to South Africa. But it has been the same everywhere. Even far away from all Naval and Military stations no one talks or thinks of anything else. It is natural, indeed, that such excitement should be so universal, for there is not a man or woman whom one meets in any rank of life who has not a brother, friend, husband, or son either already in the Transvaal or going thither.

The result is that there is an utter cessation of military entertainments in most places. Everyone is far too busy to arrange anything of the sort. So the only dance of which I have news to tell you this week is from Simla. Alice went to it, of course, and she writes that she had a splendid time, and enjoyed every moment of it. It was given at Barnes Court, and was a calico ball, everyone being asked to go in fancy dress, and prizes were given for the costumes that showed the greatest ingenuity and the most originality of idea.

The Misses Leiter were clothed as Puritans, their grey dresses and prim caps suiting them well. The prizes were allotted by ballot, with the result that the first was awarded to Miss King, who was in a charming costume as a Watteau shepherdess, whilst Mrs. Mansfield won the second as Gainsborough's Mrs. Hallet. Amongst the men Captain Tod won the first honours as "The Game of Bridge."

Miss Violet Vivian's wedding was very smart and very pretty indeed. St. Peter's, Eaton Square, was most beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms and white flowers, and the ceremony was performed by the Bishop of Wakefield, Archdeacon of London, and Prebendary Webb-Peploe. The bride, as you know, is the daughter of the late Lord Swansea, and sister of the present peer, and the bridegroom Captain Douglas Campbell, of the Seaforth Highlanders.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Odo R. Vivian, wore a lovely dress of white satin Duchesse veiled with white chiffon and draped with Brussels lace. The bodice was made with a transparent chemisette of the Brussels lace, whilst chiffon was arranged prettily about it, and the long plain sleeves were of white satin.

There were ten bridesmaids, the Misses Vivian, sisters of the bride, Miss Evelyn Campbell, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Clarice Vivian, Miss Heneage, Miss Beatrice Loyd, and Miss Thorold, cousins of the bride. The bridesmaids' dresses were very lovely, being made of white satin with polonaises of lace, whilst the bodices were finished with fichus of chiffon and lace. Streamers of chiffon strewn with bunches of violets hung from the waist, and the hats were of violet velvet trimmed with ostrich feathers, with strings that, coming from the back of the hat, were brought round to the front of the bodice, where they were caught and fastened with a bunch of violets. Their bouquets were of white flowers, violets and bog myrtle, and they wore curb chain bracelets, both bouquets and bracelets being the gifts of the bridegroom.

The wedding presents were very beautiful, and included a handsome silver bowl from Lieutenant-Colonel Munro and the officers of the Seaforth Highlanders.

Yours affectionately,

CONSTANCE.

* Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.*

ENCORE RAZOR

SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co., Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,

who will supply through nearest Agent.

THE

ARMY ASSURANCE AGENCY.

LIFE. War Risks. World-wide.
ACCIDENTS. Residence abroad.
FIRE. Residence abroad.
BURGLARY.
HORSES.
MARINE RISKS.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison, or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing, without endorsement or removal.

Life Premiums payable quarterly, if desired.

Refund of Income Duty obtained, by arrangement with the War Office, on sums paid for Life and Accident Insurances.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due.

Apply for Prospectus

MANAGER, 16, Glasshouse St., Piccadilly Circus, W.

BRANCH OFFICE: 9, UNION STREET, ALDERSHOT.
NAVAL BRANCH: 15, PEMBROKE ROAD, PORTSMOUTH.

THREEPENCE EACH, AT ALL RESPECTABLE TOBACCONISTS.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

EXQUISITE MILD FLAVOUR AND MOST DELICATE AROMA;

ALSO

FLOR DE DINDIGUL CIGARETTES (all tobacco leaf, no paper), a delightful wholesome Whiff, 1d. each. Sole Importers, BEWLAY & Co., LTD., 49, 74, and 156, Strand, and 143, Cheapside. Established 1780. Price lists, post free.

Digitized by Google

NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

ESSENTIALLY POPULAR IN TONE.

The Navy and Army through a Camera.

IF you have friends or relatives in the Queen's Services; if you wish to enter the Army, Navy, or Volunteers; if you desire to learn anything about the Defences of your Country, or the elements which make Foreign States powerful, either as friends or foes; if you want to know about the Building of Ships, the Manufacture of Guns, or the Home Life of our Soldiers and Sailors—you will find much to interest you in the pages of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

6,000,000 Copies of the NAVY AND ARMY have been sold. First issued December 20, 1895. The following is a list of some of the Naval Officers whose Photographs have appeared in the paper:—

Adair, Captain C. H., May 27, 1899.
Aldrich, Rear-Admiral Pelham, August 12, 1899.
Alington, Rear-Admiral A. H., January 31, 1896.
Andoe, Rear-Admiral H. G., November 12, 1897.
Andrews, Surgeon O. W., May 6, 1899.
Anstruther, Commander R. H., Oct. 15, 1898.
Avalon, Admiral Lord Hood of, March 5, 1897.
Awdry, R. A., Esq., April 16, 1897.
Accountant-General of the Navy.
Bacon, Commander R. H. S., February 21, 1896.
Bainbridge, Captain J. H., October 1, 1898.
Baker, Commander C. J., July 23, 1898.
Barlow, Captain C. J., January 31, 1896.
Barrow, Captain A., March 20, 1896, and July 22, 1899.
Battenberg, Prince Louis of, March 26, 1898, and April 1, 1899.
Bayly, Captain E. F., April 8, 1899.
Bedford, Rear-Admiral Sir F., August 7, 1896, April 22, 1899, and June 24, 1899.
Beresford, Vice-Adml. Lord C., Jan. 17, 1896.
Bickford, Captain A. K., October 30, 1896.
Bird, Lieutenant F. G., October 15, 1898.
Bosanquet, Rear-Admiral D. H., June 24, 1899.
Bourke, Commodore M. A., December 31, 1898.
Bridge, Vice-Admiral C. A. G., Nov. 27, 1896.
Bridgeman, Captain F. C. B., October 22, 1898.
Bridson, Commander J. R., November 26, 1898.
Brock, Captain E. E., January 31, 1896.
Bromley, Captain A. C., October 30, 1896.
Brough, Captain J., October 16, 1896.
Browning, Commander M. E., August 13, 1898.
Brownrigg Lieut.-Commander, Feb. 4, 1899.
Buckle, Vice-Admiral C. E., August 6, 1897.
Buller, Vice-Admiral Sir A., October 16, 1896, and September 16, 1899.
Burke, Captain J. H. T., May 13, 1899.
Burr, Captain J. Leslie, June 3, 1899.
Campbell, Captain C., February 21, 1896.
Campbell, Commander H. H., June 4, 1898, and June 24, 1899.
Carden, Commander S. H., February 21, 1896.
Carey, Commander E E., October 30, 1896.
Carpenter, Captain A., October 8, 1898.
Carr, Rear-Admiral H. J., April 2, 1898, and August 5, 1899.
Chamberlain, Mr. M. P., April 16, 1897.
Civil Lord of the Admiralty.
Charlton, Com. R. E. F. B., May 13, 1899.
Chaytor, Lieutenant W. C., March 18, 1899.
Cherry, Captain G. H., December 31, 1898.
Christian, Commander A. H., June 17, 1899.
Church, Rear-Admiral E. J., May 28, 1898.
Clanwilliam, Admiral Earl of, May 1, 1896.
Clarke, Commander H. J. L., April 8, 1899.
Cleveland, Vice-Admiral H. F., Sept. 17, 1897.
Coke, Commander C. H., November 12, 1898.
Colmore, Commander R. B., March 20, 1896.
Colomb, Vice-Admiral P. H., January 21, 1898.
Colville, Captain Hon. S., June 4, 1898.
Corner, Lieutenant F. W., June 18, 1898.
Cotton, Lieut. R. G. A. Stapleton, Nov. 5, 1898.
Cullen, Commander P., November 12, 1897.
Culme-Seymour, Admiral Sir M., Jan. 3, 1896, July 21, 1896, Oct. 22, 1898, and Sept. 16, 1899.
Cumming, Captain R., November 12, 1897.
Dale, Vice-Admiral A. T., February 21, 1896.
Davy, Lieutenant E. G., November 5, 1898.
Delmege, Surgeon, M.D., November 5, 1898.
Deverell, Commander G. S., August 12, 1899.
Domville, Vice-Admiral Sir C., October 2, 1896.
Douglas, Rear-Admiral A. L., April 8, 1899.
Dowell, Admiral Sir W. M., September 4, 1896.
D'Oyly, Lieutenant W. H., September 16, 1899.
Drummond, Vice-Admiral E. C., Jan. 22, 1897.
Dundas, Commander C. H., March 4, 1899.
Durnford, Captain J., September 24, 1898, October 22, 1898, and September 16, 1899.
Durston, Sir A. J., July 9, 1898.
Engineer-in-Chief of the Navy.
Edinburgh, Duke of, July 1, 1899.
Ellis, Lieut. E. H. F. Heaton, May 27, 1899.
Ethelston, Commander A. P., April 23, 1898.
Everett, Lieutenant A. F., March 26, 1898, and April 1, 1899.
Fairfax, Admiral Sir H., July 10, 1896, and June 10, 1899.
Fanshawe, Rear-Admiral A. D., Aug. 19, 1899.
Fawckner, Commander W. B., Sept. 17, 1898.
Fellowes, Rear-Admiral J., April 16, 1898.
Fisher, Vice-Admiral Sir J., May 29, 1896, April 22, 1899, and June 3, 1899.
Fitzgerald, Rear-Adml. C. C. P., Feb. 18, 1898.
Francklin, Lieutenant P., June 3, 1899.
Fremantle, Admiral Hon. Sir E., Aug. 21, 1896, and June 10, 1899.
Fremantle, Lieutenant S. R., August 13, 1898.
Fullerton, Rear-Adl. Sir J. R. T., May 13, 1899.
Gaunt, Commander E. F. A., Nov. 27, 1896.
Germany, Hon. Admiral of the Fleet H.I.M. Emperor of, Dec. 25, 1896, and Aug. 26, 1899.
Giffard, Captain G. A., October 1, 1898.
Goldsmith, Captain Sir W., Nov. 12, 1897.
Goschen, Mr. G. J., April 16, 1897, and September 16, 1899.
First Lord of the Admiralty.
Graham, Captain W. H. B., October 15, 1898.
Gresley, Captain R. N., December 31, 1898.
Griffiths, Lieutenant L., June 17, 1899.
Groome, Captain R. L., July 8, 1899.
Grubb, Admiral Sir W. H., October 29, 1897.
Gwyne, Mr. T., April 16, 1897.
Director of Navy Contracts.
Hall, Commander H. King, Sept. 16, 1899.
Hallifax, Captain J. S., October 1, 1898.
Halsey, Lieutenant A., February 21, 1896.
Hamilton, Admiral Sir R. Vesey, April 2, 1897.
Hamilton, Captain F. T., September 16, 1899.
Harris, Rear-Admiral Sir R. H., July 8, 1899.
Hay, Adml. Sir J. C. Dalrymple, June 11, 1897, and September 17, 1897.
Heath, Admiral Sir L., January 7, 1898.
Herbert, Admiral Sir F., August 6, 1898.
Hilston, Inspector-General, February 19, 1897.
Hood, Lord, of Avalon, September 16, 1899.
Hopkins, Admiral Sir J., August 30, 1896, and September 3, 1897.
Hoskins, Admiral Sir A. H., May 28, 1897.
Hotham, Admiral Sir C. F., March 18, 1899, and August 5, 1899.
Howe, Captain Hon. A. G. Curzon, January 14, 1898, and July 22, 1899.
Jackson, Captain H. B., August 20, 1897.
Jackson, Staff-Surgeon H. S., Nov. 12, 1898.
James, Commander H., September 17, 1897.
Jeffreys, Captain E., June 26, 1896.
Jenkins, Rear-Admiral A. B., April 22, 1899.
Keene, Lieut. W. G. E. Ruck, Jan. 21, 1896.
Kemp, Lieutenant T. W., April 8, 1899.
Kennard, Lieutenant M. A., July 8, 1899.
Kennedy, Vice-Adml. Sir W. R., April 17, 1896.
Keppel, Admiral of the Fleet Hon. Sir H., January 17, 1896, February 4, 1898, and September 16, 1899.
Keppel, Commander Colin, December 17, 1898.
Kerr, Vice-Admiral Right Hon. Lord W. T., December 20, 1895, March 20, 1896, and April 22, 1899.
Knott, Inspector-General T. H., Nov. 12, 1898.
Knowles, Vice-Admiral Sir G. C. F., Bart., January 14, 1898.
Lake, Rear-Admiral A. P. M., Nov. 12, 1898.
Lambert, Mr. G. T., April 16, 1897.
Director of Greenwich Hospital.
Lambton, Captain Hon. H., April 23, 1898, and September 16, 1899.
Lang, Captain W. M., May 14, 1897.
Lang, Commander E. L., April 9, 1898.
Langley, Captain G. C., April 30, 1898.
Leiningen, Admiral Prince of, Sept. 3, 1897.
Leveson, Commander A., September 16, 1899.
Limpus, Commander A. H., June 18, 1898.
Luard, Admiral Sir W. G., November 26, 1897.
Lyons, Admiral Sir A. M., November 13, 1896.
Macartney, Mr. W. G. E., April 16, 1897.
Parliamentary and Financial Secretary to the Admiralty.
McClintock, Admiral Sir F. L., Dec. 11, 1896.
Macdonald, Inspector-Gen. H., May 13, 1899.
Macgregor, Sir Evan, April 16, 1897.
Permanent Secretary to the Admiralty.
Mackenzie, Lieutenant C., May 13, 1899.
Maillard, Surgeon W. G., M.D., Oct. 15, 1898.
Mann, Rear-Admiral W. F. S., March 18, 1899, and July 29, 1899.
May, Captain W. H., June 17, 1899, and Sept. 16, 1899.
Miller, Mr. G. W., April 16, 1897.
Director of Naval Stores.
Miller, Captain, May 7, 1898.
Milne, Admiral Sir A., March 20, 1896.
Molyneux, Vice-Adml. Sir R. H. M., Feb. 5, 1897.
Montgomery, Captain R. A. J., August 5, 1899.
Mundy, Commander G. H. B., Sept. 4, 1896.
Napier, Commander Trevylyan, Sept. 16, 1899.
Neville, Captain G., June 4, 1898.
Nicholas, Lieutenant J., April 23, 1898.
Nicholson, Admiral Sir H. F., June 18, 1898.
Nicholson, Sub.-Lieut. E. H. M., Oct. 15, 1898.
Norbury, Sir H. F., March 18, 1898.
Medical Director-General of the Navy.
Norcock, Captain C. J., September 16, 1899.
Ogilvy, Lieutenant F. C. A., June 18, 1898.
Ommanney, Admiral Sir E., April 9, 1898.
Palliser, Rear-Admiral Bury, May 15, 1896, and May 27, 1899.
Parr, Captain A. C., August 13, 1898.
Pattison, Captain J. R. E., September 3, 1898.
Pearson, Rear-Admiral H. L., March 4, 1898, and February 18, 1899.
Pelly, Captain E. R., June 17, 1899.
Phillimore, Lieutenant R., November 26, 1898.
Pike, Captain F. O., December 31, 1898.
Pocklington, Captain A. J., December 31, 1898.
Poe, Commander E. S., December 31, 1898.
Poore, Captain Sir R., July 23, 1898.
Powell, Captain F., September 17, 1898.
Prothero, Captain R. C., July 8, 1899.
Rawson, Rear-Admiral Sir H. H., January 8, 1897, January 7, 1899, and April 1, 1899.
Rex, Lieutenant C. G., June 24, 1899.
Rice, Rear-Admiral E., October 1, 1897.
Richards, Admiral Sir F., December 31, 1898.
Rickard, Secretary H. H., October 22, 1898.
Riddle, Captain D. M., January 7, 1898.
Robertson, Commander C. H., Nov. 27, 1896.
Robinson, Captain C. G., June 18, 1898.
Rolfe, Rear-Admiral E. N., October 30, 1896.
Rolland, Vice-Admiral W. R., February 4, 1898.
Roxby, Commander H., November 5, 1898.
Russell, Captain G. W., March 4, 1899.
St. Clair, Rear-Admiral W. H. C., July 22, 1899.
St. John, Vice-Admiral H. C., April 30, 1898.
Salmon, Admiral Sir Nowell, April 3, 1896.
Sampson, Rear-Admiral, May 21, 1898.
Saunders, Lieutenant F. J., October 16, 1896.
Sawle, Captain C. F. G., June 24, 1899.
Scott, Admiral Lord C. T. M. Douglas, July 23, 1897.
Seymour, Vice-Adml. Sir E. H., Sept. 18, 1896.
Seymour, Lieutenant Culme, Sept. 17, 1898.
Shortland, Commander E. G., August 5, 1899.
Sinclair, Lieut. E. S. Alexander, Oct. 22, 1898.
Sinclair, Lieutenant J. A. G., Sept. 16, 1899.
Smith, Vice-Adl. Sir N. Bowden, Aug. 13, 1898.
Stephenson, Vice-Adml. Sir H. F., July 9, 1897, February 4, 1898, March 25, 1898, and December 31, 1898.
Stewart, Admiral Sir W. H., April 30, 1897.
Streatfield, Lieutenant P., June 24, 1899.
Sturdee, Commander F. C. D., March 25, 1899.
Talbot, Commander H., July 9, 1898.
Thursby, Commander C. F., Sept. 17, 1898.
Tudor, Commander F. C., May 6, 1899.
Tuffnell, Commander L. G., Sept. 16, 1899.
Walker, Captain Sir B., May 6, 1899.
Walker, Captain T. P., May 27, 1899.
Watson, Captain Burgess, June 3, 1899.
Wells, Vice-Admiral R., February 21, 1896.
Wells, Midshipman G. A., February 21, 1896.
Wharton, Rear-Adml. Sir W. J. L., Mar. 18, 1897.
White, Sir W., April 16, 1897, and June 11, 1898.
Chief Constructor of the Navy.
Williams, Commander P. H., March 20, 1896.
Williams, Commander A. H. G., May 27, 1899.
Williamson, Mr. J., April 16, 1897.
Director of Dockyards.
Wilson, Rear-Admiral A. K., May 14, 1898.
Windham, Captain C., November 5, 1898.
Winslow, Captain A. L., June 17, 1899.
Wintz, Captain L. E., November 26, 1898.
Wolfe, Captain G. C. B., October 16, 1896.
York, Captain the Duke of, December 20, 1895, June 4, 1898, July 2, 1898, and July 22, 1899.
York, Captain H.R.H. Prince Edward of, December 17, 1898.
Yorke, Mr. H. F. R., April 16, 1897.
Director of Victualling to the Navy.

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII. (Just Ready), cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

Aspinall's Enamel.

EASY TO APPLY.

USED ON H.M. SHIPS.

SPECIAL TERMS TO OFFICERS OF THE SERVICE.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL, Ltd., NEW CROSS, London, S.E.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 28th, 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d
Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 143.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.
Rates and particulars of—THE ARMY ASSURANCE AGENCY,
16, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
Collier's
BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.
COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, 53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

Chas. Frodsham & Co., Ltd.,
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKERS TO THE QUEEN.
115, NEW BOND STREET, W.
(Removed from 84, STRAND),
SOLE MAKERS OF THE CELEBRATED "Chas. Frodsham" Watches, beg to say that their only addresses are:—
115, NEW BOND STREET, W.
AND WORKSHOPS, 11, DUKE STREET, ADELPHI, W.C.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
CAMBRIC
CHILDREN'S ... ... 1/3 do
LADIES' ... ... 2/3 ,,
GENTLEMEN'S ... 3/3 ,,
Hem-stitched, LADIES', 2/9 doz. ,, ,, ... 3/11 ,,
PRICE LISTS POST FREE.
POCKET
Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.
"Cheapest handkerchiefs I have ever seen."—SYLVIA'S JOURNAL.
HANDKERCHIEFS.
N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY . . .
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.
Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.
Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.
BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.
Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.
MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

NEW PUBLICATIONS

Of GEORGE NEWNES, LTD.

"The only adequate exposition in English of the principles of the new Geography and their application to the facts which are embraced in the subject."—The Times.

THE INTERNATIONAL GEOGRAPHY. A Compendium of Geographical Information. Written by 70 of the foremost Geographers, Explorers, Statisticians, Consuls, etc. Edited by HUGH ROBERT MILL, D.Sc. 1,110 pages, demy 8vo, with 488 Illustrations, 15s.

THE ROYAL ATLAS OF ENGLAND AND WALES. Reduced from the Ordnance Survey. 120 pages of Maps, with Index of 35,000 Places. Edited by J. G. BARTHOLOMEW, F.R.G.S. Crown folio, cloth extra, 16s. net; half morocco, 18s. 6d. net.

THE CITIZEN'S ATLAS. Comprising 100 Maps and Gazetteer. Edited by J. G. BARTHOLOMEW, F.R.G.S. Crown folio, cloth extra, 16s. net.; half morocco, 18s. 6d. net.

THE BOOK OF CRICKET. A Gallery of Famous Players. Edited by C. B. FRY. Copiously Illustrated and magnificently printed on Superfine Art Paper. 256 pages, crown folio, handsomely bound in cloth, with gilt leaves, 12s. 6d. net.

THE NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED. Vol. VIII. (March 25th to September 16th, 1899). 624 illustrated pages, crown folio, cloth extra, gilt leaves, 18s.

THE ARABIAN NIGHTS ENTERTAINMENTS. About 400 pages, demy 4to, with upwards of 500 original Illustrations. Beautifully printed on Superfine Art Paper, 15s.

ENGLISH CATHEDRALS ILLUSTRATED. By FRANCIS BOND, M.A., F.G.S. The only Illustrated Work which comprises an historical and architectural account of the whole of the English and Welsh Cathedrals in one volume. 334 pages, with 180 Illustrations from Photographs. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 6s.

THE STRAND MAGAZINE. Vol. XVII. (January to June, 1899). 820 pages, fully Illustrated, royal 8vo, cloth extra, gilt leaves, 6s. 6d.

THE WIDE WORLD MAGAZINE. Vol. III. (April to September, 1899). 676 pages, crown 4to., copiously Illustrated, 6s. 6d.

THE CAPTAIN. Vol. I. (April to September, 1899). Crown 4to, fully Illustrated, price 6s.

DEPARTMENTAL DITTIES, AND OTHER VERSES. By RUDYARD KIPLING. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 6s.

FLASHLIGHTS ON NATURE. By GRANT ALLEN. With 150 Illustrations by FREDERICK ENOCK. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 6s.

THE ADVENTURES OF LOUIS DE ROUGEMONT. As Told by Himself. 396 pages, with 46 Illustrations. Handsomely bound, 6s.

THE NEW DICTIONARY.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE. To which are added selected lists of proper names, with phonetic pronunciation, and abbreviations in common use, with their meanings. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 3s. 6d.

LIGHT, SHADE AND SHADOW. With Introductory Model Drawing, Models, and Casts, etc. By JOHN SKEAPING. With numerous Illustrations. 224 pages, cloth, 3s. 6d.

 Will be found especially valuable to Art Students, and Pupil and Assistant Teachers.

THE STORY OF ICE IN THE PRESENT AND PAST. By WILLIAM A. BREND, B.A. With 37 Illustrations. Being No. 24 of the Library of Useful Stories. Pott 8vo, cloth, 1s.

NEWNES' SIXPENNY BOOKS

ARE ALL THE RAGE. ARE THE CREAM OF ENGLISH LITERATURE.

The BEST WORKS of the MOST POPULAR WRITERS of the DAY.

BY POST 8D. EACH. LIST OF THE SERIES. BY POST 8D. EACH.

H. RIDER HAGGARD.

JESS: A Story of the Transvaal War of 1880-1.
SHE: A History of Adventure.

MAXWELL GRAY.

THE SILENCE OF DEAN MAITLAND.

BEATRICE HARRADEN.

SHIPS THAT PASS IN THE NIGHT.

GEORGE MEREDITH.

THE ORDEAL OF RICHARD FEVEREL.

RUDYARD KIPLING.

DEPARTMENTAL DITTIES.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD.

ROBERT ELSMERE.
HISTORY OF DAVID GRIEVE.

H. S. MORRISON.

A YANKEE BOY'S SUCCESS.

With Introduction by CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

W. E. GLADSTONE.

THE IMPREGNABLE ROCK OF HOLY SCRIPTURE.

A Series of Old Testament Studies.

A. CONAN DOYLE.

THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES.
MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES.
THE SIGN OF FOUR.
THE EXPLOITS OF BRIGADIER GERARD.

7 to 12, SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 143. Saturday, October 28th, 1899.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),
Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with
Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,
PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS
FOR
MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE,
WOOLWICH, SANDHURST,
AND ALL
MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS;
also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:
MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899.

	Marks.
*FIRST UNIVERSITY.—A. E. M. Ward	1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

	Marks.
*FIRST ARTILLERY.—C. H. Clark ... ... (After a few months' reading.)	1792
*20th Infantry.—L. J. Le Fleming	1582
35th " A. Moore	1485
38th " J. C. Hooper	1463
*72nd " W. B. Mitford	1310
*76th " A. J. M. Gordon	1280

*1st trial direct.
March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.
N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.
Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, S.W.

Royal National Lifeboat Institution.

THERE being a vacancy in the Inspecting Staff of this Institution, the Committee call for Candidates for the vacant post, who must be under forty years of age, must have followed the sea as a profession, and had good experience in the management of boats and the command of men.
Candidates must send in copies of their certificates to the Secretary of the Institution on or before 20th November, 1899.
Full information may be obtained at the Institution, 14, John Street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

BAGGAGE
Shipped and Warehoused.
CURTISS & SONS, Ltd.,
23, WEST SMITHFIELD, LONDON, E.C.;
ALSO AT SOUTHAMPTON, PLYMOUTH, DEVONPORT, CHATHAM
RYDE, & PORTSMOUTH.
Household Removals.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.
The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of
TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS
and their crews in thorough efficiency.
In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.
Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.
Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.
AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.
P. MICHELLI, Secretary

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8 p.m. "An Interrupted Honeymoon."
COMEDY, Panton St., W.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Moonlight Blossom."
PRINCESS'S, W.
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Prince of Borneo."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C.
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Adventures of Lady Ursula." Thurs. 2.30 p.m.
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Great Ruby."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Belle of New York." Sat. 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Two Little Vagabonds."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. "Gentleman Jo
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Thou Shalt not Kill."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "In Old Kentucky." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "Belle of New York."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Manœuvres of Jane." Wed. 2.30.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "Boy Bob."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m. "An American Citizen."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The Middleman."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 8 p.m. "The Geisha."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "One of the Best."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Captain Swift."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "A Sailor's Knot."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Tyranny of Tears."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Serving the Queen."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junct'n, S.W., 8 p.m. "Little Miss Nobody."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Crimes of Paris."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

MAJOR BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.
During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.
These include
WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.
Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.
HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils on

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.
It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.
CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.
(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).
Telegrams—"Exercitus London."
Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

A New Hydro, and the Best.

By MICHAEL MOSCOW.

HYDROS have helped materially in maintaining the soundness of the British constitution, in a physical if not a political sense, though in this latter regard it is a truism that the healthy digestion of the Englishman has played no mean part in the proud pre-eminence that he enjoys in the comity of nations. However, I deal not now with the questions of dominancy of race, but simply with what appeals to most of us, in accord with the laws of self-preservation—the subject of personal hygiene.

In the early sixties, hydropathy was an experiment. To-day, in its larger significance of hydrotherapy, it is a great success; nay, more, it is an actual necessity in the exigencies of modern life-conditions. In these days people work at high-pressure, mentally and muscularly, and become jaded, "out of sorts," and, in a word, sufferers from malaise. Medicine availeth little; and hence it is that a restorative course hydrotherapeutic is "indicated," to use the physician's phrase. Little wonder is it, then, that palatial establishments have sprung into prosperous existence all over the country, from the Far North to the Sunny South, establishments modestly calling themselves Hydros, but which might well be dubbed Halls of Health. The newest of these, and unquestionably one of the best, is the CLIFTON GRAND SPA and HYDRO, just recently opened, and now in full and comfortable operation.

DRAWING ROOM

Clifton is a place that needs not the artful adventitious aid of imagination in the describing of its many advantages—unlike some other towns that have been "made" by master minds exuberant in poetic expression. Statistics, yes, dry statistics, tell the tale of its salubrity in full measure. A general death-rate of 13·2 in 1897 as compared with 19·1 for thirty-three large towns of England and Wales, and a zymotic rate of 1·0 against 2·8 testify to the health of the place. A grand air, balmy, benign, yet bracing; an equable temperature; a wealth of sunshine; and a romantic situation make Clifton an ideal residence for the seeker after health and recuperation. Another advantage of the place is its convenience of access from all parts of the Kingdom. The Midland, London and North Western, and Great Western Railways all serve Bristol with capital trainage, the latter Company, indeed, bringing London within two-and-a-half hours by a speedy and comfortable service of express trains. Nowadays, time is really the measure of distance; and time is money, as we all know.

Hence it was a right excellent idea to choose the Down of Clifton as the site of the GRAND SPA and HYDRO. The spot selected lies a hundred yards or so from the famous Suspension Bridge, and over against the historic hot-wells Spring, and the top-most station of the Rocks Railway. The Grand Pump Room, opened a few years ago, immediately adjoins, and, indeed, now forms part of the establishment. Below, and on either side, lies the Gorge of the Avon, while opposite are Leigh Woods, Nightingale Valley, and away in the distance a spur of the Mendip Hills. A more enchanting position could not have been found, but we must leave it to enter the Hydro and see what science and art besides Nature can do for the betterment of our bodies and the sequential solace of our souls.

The residential part of the house is everything that heart could wish. All the rooms are big and airy, bright and sunny, except a few that are reserved for those who prefer less spacious quarters and subdued lighting. The public apartments open upon the beautiful scenery of the Avon, and are fitted and furnished with everything that modern methods can suggest. Even the smoke-room is a Moorish miracle of art, while science finds play in the billiard-room, where a couple of fine tables by Thurston tempt the cue-rious. Cosy corners abound, even the landing being provided with luxurious couches and chairs, though there is no "getting up stairs" unless you so desire, a passenger elevator being provided.

The way to an Englishman's heart is popularly supposed to be through his digestive apparatus; but whether this be so or not, the fact remains that the cuisine at Clifton Spa and Hydro is simply capital. A clever chef commands the kitchen, and caters equally for the man blessed with a hearty appetite (he soon gets one at Clifton!) and the dyspeptic who needs special care in the administration of his diet scale. The table is at once liberal, refined, appropriate, and ample. There is nothing of the semi-starvation that is unfortunately too common at some Hydros, as I have experienced to my exasperation of soul and exhaustion of body. Oh! those Sunday suppers at certain Scotch Spas! "A few parritch" and a "whee ie" of dry cheese, washed down with water, followed by a night of sleeplessness aggravated by a morbid craving to eat the soap! But at Clifton they are merciful as well as magnificent. Do you wake in the night and think you need sustenance, you have but to touch an electric bell, and lo! you are served with a cup of hot cocoa and a rusk. Or, on your way to the bath, fortifiers are supplied in the shape of hot fluid foods with biscuits, and so forth—often a necessary thing with those who are not over strong.

The baths themselves are quite unique. No pains or expense have been spared to this end. The best Continental systems have been observed, and in some cases improved upon, the result being that every approved method of treatment is here procurable, from the saline and effervescent baths of Nauheim to the Aix-douche, from electricity to the pack, from the Turkish to the Russian. And the installation is further excellent from the fact that it is all in duplicate. The ladies have an equally complete hydropathic fitment; and it thus becomes possible for all the members of a family to take their baths at the same hour instead of, as at many places, at odd times—to the disturbance of pleasure plans to be enjoyed together.

The whole establishment is under the medical supervision of the resident physician, Dr. C. J. Whitby, who brings his long experience at other Hydros to bear in the administration of the curative resources of the place. The peculiar needs of every patient are carefully observed, and the method of treatment prescribed and directed. Thus, no one is left to the rule of thumb treatment of the ordinary Hydro, but each case receives its own special care, with all the skill that modern medicine and applied science can ensure.

The famous water at the Hot-wells, for centuries in high repute for its excellent qualities, is freely "on tap" on every floor of the Hydro, in addition to being the raison d'être of the Grand Pump Room—the finest in the country. The water is anything but a nauseous tipple. It is, in fact, very much like the popular table waters of Germany—soft, refreshing, and palatable.

A word about the charges. For the modest sum of two-and-a-half guineas per week, one can have full board, an excellent bedroom, attendance, the run of the establishment, and the use of the general and hydropathic baths, including the Turkish and Russian baths, but excepting, of course, the electric and Weir-Mitchell Treatment, which involve some extra cost.

How it is done at the price is "one of those things that no fellah can understand," as Sothern used to say; but, like Mr. Maskelyne's magic box, the solution of the mystery is open to all. £500 reward is not offered; but a stay at CLIFTON GRAND SPA and HYDRO, like virtue, brings its own reward—in this case in the shape of increased health and happiness; a combination we all desire, and seldom get. It is compassable at Clifton. Verbum sat sabientis!

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: The Sailor's Return ...	145
The Jamaica Militia. From a Correspondent. (Illustrated)	146
A Fine Old "European" Regiment. The 2nd Battalion Royal Munster Fusiliers. (Illustrated)	147
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	149
British and Transvaal Artillery Compared	150
Editorial Notices; Our Diary	150
Tommy Atkins, Tragedian	151
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	151
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	152
With the Combatants in South Africa. Natalians and Transvaalers. (Illus.)	153
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Eight Illus.) ...	156
Colonial Contingents for the Cape. (Illustrated)	158
Now at the Front. (Illustrated) ...	159
"Bunter's Cruise: A Tale of the New Navy." By Charles Gleig. Illustrated by T. S. C. Crowther ...	161
Pothefstroom	163
The Story of the War	164
Off for South Africa. "Good-bye, Good Luck." (Illus.)...	165
Leading the Way to the Cape. Embarkation of the 2nd Infantry Brigade. (Illustrated)	166
On Board the "Tribune." (Illustrated)	167

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Fourth Week.]

THE QUARTERS OF THE INFANTRY REGIMENTS.*

	Battn.
Grenadier G'ds	1.	Col. V. Hatton, C.B.	Windsor
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Chelsea
	3.	Lieut.-Col. E. M. S. Crabbe	For South Africa
Coldstream G'ds	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. E. Codrington	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. R. Stopford	For South Africa
	3.	Lieut.-Col. V. J. Dawson	Tower of London
Scots Guards	1.	Col. A. H. Paget	For South Africa
	A.	2. Col. I. R. Jones	Wellington Bar'ks.
Royal Scots (1st)	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. P. Morgan-Payler.	Belfast
	2.	Lieut.-Col. T. F. Ross	Poona
Queen's (Rl. West Surrey Reg., 2nd)	1.	Col. J. S. Collins	Gharial, Punjab
	2.	Lt.-Col. E. O. F. Hamilton	For South Africa
The Buffs (East Kent Reg., 3rd)	1.	Col. A. E. Ommanney	Kamptee
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. A. Hickson	Brighton
King's Own (Rl. Lancaster 4th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. Rowlandson	Singapore
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. W. Yeatherd	Lichfield
Northumberland Fusiliers (5th).	1.	Lt.-Col. C. G. C. Money, C.B.	Cape Colony
	2.	Lt.-Col. R. L. A. Pennington	For South Africa
Ryl. Warwickshire Regiment (6th).	1.	Lt.-Col. W. E. G. Forbes, C.B.	Madras
	2.	Lieut.-Col. M. Q. Jones, C.B.	Colchester
	B.	3. Lieut.-Col. A. W. F. Jackson	Malta
Royal Fusiliers (7th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. P. B. Rodick	Nusseerabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. C. Donald	For South Africa
	B.	3. Lieut.-Col. J. E. Briggs	Gibraltar
King's (Liverpool Regiment, 8th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. L. S. Mellor	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. S. H. Harrison	Enniskillen
Norfolk Regiment (9th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. L. Govan	Bombay
	2.	Lieut.-Col. L. H. Phillips	Fermoy
Lincolnshire Reg. (10th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. R. Lowth, C.B.	Secunderabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. R. Roberts	Aldershot
Devonshire Reg. (11th).	1.	Col. J. H. Yule	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. M. Bullock	For South Africa
Suffolk Regiment (12th)	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. J. Watson	Dover
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. R. Townley	Quetta
Somersetshire L.I. (13th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. A. Walsh	Rawal Pindi
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. J. Gallwey	For South Africa
West Yorkshire Regiment (14th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. Grant-Dalton	Kurrachee
	2.	Col. F. W. Kitchener	For South Africa
East Yorkshire Regiment (15th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. F. Garnett	Belgaum
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. W. Ward	Templemore
Bedfordshire Reg. (16th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. H. Riddell	Mooltan
	2.	Col. W. O. Cavenagh	Dublin
Leicestershire Reg. (17th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. D. Carleton	Ladysmith, Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. W. McKinstry	Curragh
Royal Irish Reg. (18th).	1.	Lt.-Col. H. W. N. Guinness	Buttevant
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. B. Forster	Mhow
Yorkshire Reg. (19th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Bowles	Bradford
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. J. Spottiswoode	Dagshai
Lancashire Fus. (20th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. L. E. May	Crete
	2.	Lt.-Cl. C. J. Blomfield, D.S.O.	Chatham
	B.	3. Lieut.-Col. R. G. Bruxner-Randall.	Malta
Royal Scots Fus. (21st).	1.	Lt.-Col. A. H. Abercrombie	Peshawur
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. E. Carr	For South Africa
Cheshire Regiment (22nd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. W. Bromfield	Secunderabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. F. Curteis	Limerick
Royal Welsh Fus. (23rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. C. H. Thorold	For South Africa
	2.	Lt.-Col. Hon. R. H. Bertie	Hong Kong
South Wales Borderers (24th).	1.	Lt.-Col. H. G. Mainwaring	Chakrata
	2.	Col. R. A. P. Clements, D.S.O., A.D.C.	Dublin
K.O. Scottish Borderers (25th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. W. Godfray	Dublin
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. T. W. Hewat	Cawnpore
Cameronians (Sct. Rifles, 26th-90th)	1.	Lieut.-Col. S. H. Lomax	Lucknow
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. Cooke	For South Africa
Royal Inniskilling Fus. (27th-108th)	1.	Lt.-Col. T. M. G. Thackeray	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. M. Greenfield	Dalhousie
Gloucestershire Reg. (28th-61st).	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. P. Wilford	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. F. Lindsell	Aldershot
Worcestershire Reg. (29th-36th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. O. H. Oakes	Plymouth
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. S. Allen	Bermuda
East Lancashire Reg. (30th-59th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. J. A. Wright	Jersey
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. G. Watson	Ranikhet
East Surrey Reg. (31st-70th).	1.	Lt.-Col. W. J. H. Frodsham	Jhansi
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. H. W. Harris	For South Africa
Duke of Cornwall's L.I. (32nd-46th).	1.	Col. C. F. A. Turnbull	Lucknow
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. Aldworth, D.S.O.	For South Africa
D. of Wellington's (W. Riding Reg., 33rd-76th).	1.	Lt.-Col. G. E. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Dover
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. E. Belfield	Bangalore
Border Regiment (34th-55th).	1.	Col. T. H. E. Hinde	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. S. Wood	Bareilly
Royal Sussex Reg. (35th-107th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. B. D. A. Donne	Malta
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. C. Young	Sealkote
Hampshire Reg. (37th-67th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. R. Parkinson	Cherat, Punjab
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. E. Briggs	Cork
South Staffords're Reg. (38th-80th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Savage	Kinsale
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. Moore	Thayetmyo, Burma
Dorsetshire Reg. (39th-54th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. J. J. Kentish	Nowshera, Punjab
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Law	Shorncliffe
South Lancashire Reg. (40th-82nd)	1.	L.-C. W. McCarthy-O'Leary	Preston
	2.	L.-C. A. F. G. Richardson	Jubbulpore
Welsh Regiment (41st-69th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. J. F. Banfield	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. S. L. Penno	Ahmednugger
The Black Watch (Ryl. Highland's 42nd-73rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. G. Grogan	Sitapur
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. H. C. Coode	For South Africa
Oxfordshire L.I. (43rd-52nd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. A. Strachan	Devonport
	2.	Col. F. H. Plowden	Ferozepore
Essex Regiment (44th-56th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. E. Stephenson	Warley
	2.	Lieut.-Col. T. Stock	Shwebo, Burma
Sherwood F'r'sters (Derbyshire Rg., (45th-95th).	1.	Col. H. L. Smith-Dorrien, D.S.O.	Crete
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Bulpett	Aden
Loyal North Lancashire Regim't. (47th-81st).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. G. Kekewich	Cape Colony
	2.	Lt.-Col. B. A. Satterthwaite	Malta
Northamptonshire Reg. (48th-58th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. B. Capper	Allahabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Denny	For South Africa
Rl. Berkshire Reg. (49th-66th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. C. Carter	Portsmouth
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. Evans-Gordon	Natal
Queen's Own (Ryl. West Kent Reg., 50th-97th).	1.	L.-C. C. W. H. Evans, D.S.O.	Rangoon
	2.	Lt.-Col. E. A. W. S. Grove	Egypt
King's Own L.I. (51st-105th).	1.	L.-C. Sir H. A. W. Johnson, Bart.	Sheffield
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. St. L. Barter	Mauritius
King's (Shropshire L.I., 53rd-85th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Collette	Poona
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. Spens	For South Africa
Middlesex Reg. (57th-77th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. G. White	Welling'n, Madras
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. W. Hill	Woolwich
King's Royal Rifle Corps (60th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. H. Gunning	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. G. Grimwood	Natal
	3.	L.-C. R. G. Buchanan-Riddell	For South Africa
	4.	Lieut.-Col. E. W. Herbert	Cork
Wiltshire Regim't. (62nd-99th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Harford	Quetta
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Carter	Guernsey
Manchester Reg. (63rd-96th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. E. R. Curran	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. P. Ridley	Manchester
North Staffords're Reg. (64th-98th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. Currie, C.B.	Subathu
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. E. Bradley	Newry
York & Lancaster Reg. (65th-84th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. J. Kirkpatrick	York
	2.	Col. H. Boughey	Agra
Durham Light I. (68th-106th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. L. Woodland	For South Africa
	2.	Lt.-Col. A. de B. V. Paget	Mandalay
Highland Light I. (71st-74th).	1.	Col. F. M. Reid	For South Africa
	2.	Lt.-Col. R. D. B. Rutherford	Ceylon
Seaforth Highl'rs (72nd-78th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. A. Campbell	Egypt
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. W. Hughes-Hallett, D.S.O.	For South Africa
Gordon Highl'rs (75th-92nd).	1.	Lt.-Col. G. T. F. Downman	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. H. Dick-Cunyngham, V.C.	Natal
Q.O. Cameron H'rs (79th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. F. A. Watson-Kennedy.	Egypt
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. M. Hunt	Aldershot
Royal Irish Rifles (83rd-86th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. Haggard	Dum Dum
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. A. Eagar	For South Africa
Ryl. Irish Fusiliers (87th-89th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. R. C. Carleton	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. Reeves	For South Africa
Connaught Ran's (88th-94th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. L. G. Brooke	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. E. Harman	Meerut
Argyll & Sutherl'd H'rs (91st-93rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. H. Campbell	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. L. J. Goff	Ranikhet
Leinster Regiment (100th-109th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Martin	Halifax, N.S.
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. G. Glancy	Barbados
Ryl. Munster Fus. (101st-104th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. S. Evans	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. P. S. Druitt	Dinapore
Royal Dublin Fus. (102nd-103rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. A. Mills	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. D. Cooper	Maritzburg, Natal
Rifle Brigade	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. B. Norcott	For South Africa
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. T. E. Metcalfe	Cape Frontier
	3.	Lieut.-Col. W. R. Kenyon-Slaney.	Kuldana
	4.	Lieut.-Col. A. R. Pemberton	Dublin
West India Reg.	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. L. Bayley	Sierra Leone
	2.	Lieut.-Col. D. M. Allen	Jamaica
	3.	Lieut.-Col. A. Bor	St. Helena
Hong Kong Reg.		Lieut.-Col. J. M. A. Retallick	Hong Kong
Chinese Regiment	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Bower	Wei-hai-Wei
West African Reg.		L.-C. G. G. Cunningham, D.S.O.
B.C. Africa Rifles	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. H. Manning	Central Africa
	2.	Major H. E. J. Brake, R.A.	Mauritius
Provisional Batt.		Lieut.-Col. C. H. Kelly	Shorncliffe

A. 3rd Battalion about to be formed. B. 4th Battalion in course of formation.

* The disposition of all our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the "Navy and Army Illustrated."

Digitized by Google

HOTELS DE LUXE.

CAIRO.

GHEZIREH PALACE

AND

SHEPHEARD'S HOTEL.

For Tariffs, full particulars, and to reserve accommodation, apply to

The International Sleeping Car Company,

14, COCKSPUR STREET, LONDON.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian

. . Ales. . .

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.

IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

ASPINALL'S

"INDIAN"

ENAMEL.

For all Exterior Work, Big Guns, Turrets, &c.

ASPINALL'S "O" ENAMEL for all Interior Work, on Ships Cabins, Mess Rooms, &c.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL.

NON-POISONOUS

We have supplied our special quality Enamels to most of H.M. Ships, for both Interior and Exterior Work, which have given entire satisfaction.

Also our Special Zinc White, and Varnishes.

Works:—NEW CROSS, LONDON.

PARIS DEPOT: 24, Rue Alibert.

U.S. DEPOT: 98, Beekman Street, NEW YORK.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S

SOUP

SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE

WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

Royal Naval Tailors and Outfitters.

HIGH STREET, PORTSMOUTH.

LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W. (On Fridays.)

RED WHITE AND BLUE FRENCH COFFEE

SOLD EVERYWHERE

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

Digitized by Google

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE,

24, THROGMORTON STREET.

'War in the Transvaal!'

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE,

24, THROGMORTON STREET.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

Try a 2d., 6d., or 1s. Tin.

Try a 2d., 6d., or 1s. Tin.

STEPHENS'

DOES NOT

WHITE

STAIN THE

KNIFE

HANDLES.

POWDER

Sample 1s. tin will be sent post free on receipt of 12 stamps, and first 50 requests opened every Tuesday morning will not only have the Knife Powder sent on per return of post, but the stamps forwarded will be returned to the senders if they have not already received a similar return from us.

SOLE AGENTS—

"C. CHANCELLOR" CO.,

13, CLERKENWELL ROAD,

LONDON, E.C.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—Was there ever a season in the year when you were not busy buying clothes for yourself, or, as is more frequently the case, choosing them for one or other of your numerous friends scattered all over the known world. You are apt to call yourself an idler, yet it always seems to me that your occupation is as arduous as any of the recognised professions women can enter. You have gained a character for good nature, and now you have to live up to it, or become a bitter disappointment to "all who knew you." At this moment, you say, your thoughts are chiefly concentrated on hats, on the important questions as to the shape they should take, the material of which they should be made, and the size they should attain, in order to be fashionable. To take the last question first. It is quite imperative that hats should be very large, or very small, and if small that they should take the form of a toque. The medium-sized hat must not be worn. It is not to be seen on anyone who wishes to be well dressed, nor, indeed, I may say in passing, are bonnets. For a long time now our mothers and grandmothers, who are old-fashioned enough to like to dress in a manner that they consider suitable to their age, have been lamenting deeply at this stern decree. They wander round all the shops in London, only to return home in despair; and then sadly they try to compose their minds to face the adoption of the juvenile toque.

As to the shape of these toques, they can really be turned and twisted just to suit the particular style of each wearer. Some are neat, trim little arrangements, fitting the head closely like a crown of fur or velvet. Others are twisted and crumpled up in the most fantastic fashion. Many have high narrow crowns, and these last are likely to be favourites, giving as they do the height which is needed to make any headgear becoming to the average woman.

The materials used are panne, velvet, fur, or felt, and combinations of the same. The one that is here sketched for you is composed of white fox, trimmed with a knot of green velvet, and finished with an osprey fastened on one side with a quaint antique jewelled ornament; it is decidedly pretty, as are all these white fox toques. All fur enhances the beauty of a good complexion, but white fox seems to have this power in a greater degree than its brethren, sable, mink, ermine, or chinchilla, all of which are so much seen just now. Another very smart toque is of hairy felt in a light shade of brown, and trimmed with ostrich feathers in a contrasting and darker brown. In the front is an upright ribbon bow fastened with an old paste buckle, and from the latter rises a bird of Paradise plume. Another is of crumpled felt trimmed with velvet and ostrich feathers. The felt is white, and the velvet an emerald green, which perhaps sounds rather heavy-looking, but in reality it is exceedingly pretty, and very smart too.

WHITE FOX TOQUE.

The large hats are chiefly of felt or velvet. The latter are stitched all over, after the manner so much in vogue just now. To my mind, it spoils the effect of the velvet, taking off just the softness which is its charm. But as fashion decrees the stitching is to prevail, I suppose we must bow our heads and submit. Some of the large velvet hats are lined with folds of white chiffon or soft silk, and sometimes with long ostrich feathers. Nothing could be prettier. At other times these linings are in pink, or other delicate colours which may suit the wearer better than white. But nothing is in better taste than the pure white. Faint old-world tints of velvet are also used for the hats themselves; so you see there is a great variety in the choice of millinery set before you, such a variety, indeed, that I have been tempted to discourse to you too long on this subject, and I must hurry on to tell you my news.

You have known for a very long time now that Bertha has been extremely interested in the Royal Seamen and Marines' Orphan Home and Schools, and she is always planning some work or other to help on their funds. This morning I had a long letter from her telling me of the annual ball which is given in aid of the institution, under the special patronage of the Lords of the Admiralty, and which she generally thinks it is her duty to attend. It came off last week at Southsea, in the Esplanade Assembly Rooms, and in every way it was a great success. Mr. Goschen was there, also Admiral Douglas, Mr. Austen Chamberlain, Lord William Kerr, Sir Baker Russell and Lady Baker Russell, Sir Michael Culme-Seymour and Lady Culme-Seymour, Rear-Admiral Pelham Aldrich, and numbers of Naval and Military officers attached to the port and garrison. Lady Culme-Seymour's dress of black velvet was draped with old guipure, and she wore diamond ornaments and tiara. Her daughter, Mrs. Napier, was also in black, with the bodice arranged with turquoise velvet and lace. Lady Baker Russell wore white corded silk trimmed with lace. Lady Tuson was in black and pink brocade. Miss Hallowes wore a lovely dress of grey satin, brocaded with pink rosebuds, and the bodice was arranged with rose-coloured chiffon. Mrs. Isherwood was in black embroidered with silver, and diamond ornaments. Many other dresses Bertha described to me, but I leave them to tell you of the "At Home" given by Major-General R. M. Stewart and the officers of the Royal Artillery stationed at Portsmouth, Gosport, and Hilsea.

This was also a great success. It took place at the Town Hall, Portsmouth, and no fewer than 2,000 people were present. The Artillery band, as you may imagine, was much

Digitized by Google

JAEGER

TRADE MARK

PURE WOOL UNDERWEAR, NIGHT WEAR, HOSE, PYJAMAS, RUGS, BLANKETS, SLEEPING BAGS, CASHMERE SHEETS, DRESSING GOWNS, SHAWLS, CORSETS, HATS AND CAPS, BOOTS.

126, Regent Street, W.;
456, Strand (Charing Cross), W.C.;
115, Victoria Street (Six doors West of A. & N. Stores), S.W.;
30, Sloane Street, S.W.;
85 and 86, Cheapside, E.C.

PURE WOOL Sporting and General Tailors:
42, CONDUIT STREET, W.

Jaeger 'HEALTH CULTURE' (188 pp.) Free, should be READ.
Jaeger ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST should be STUDIED.
Jaeger PURE WOOL CLOTHING PROTECTS from CHILL.

THREEPENCE EACH, AT ALL RESPECTABLE TOBACCONISTS.
FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.
EXQUISITE MILD FLAVOUR AND MOST DELICATE AROMA;
ALSO
FLOR DE DINDIGUL CIGARETTES (all tobacco leaf, no paper), a delightful wholesome Whiff, 1d. each. Sole Importers, BEWLAY & Co., LTD., 49, 74, and 156, Strand, and 143, Cheapside. Established 1780. Price lists, post free.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

THE "OSMAN"
Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY
BARLOW & JONES, Limited,
MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.
And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

A BOOKLET OF AMUSING AND ATTRACTIVE
NURSERY JINGLES,
Beautifully Printed in Colours,
SENT FREE on application if this paper is mentioned.
A post-card will do.

FRAME FOOD CO., Ltd., Battersea, LONDON.

We Season the World.

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

The Five Noted Seasons of the World—

For Fish, Flesh, and Fowl of all kinds.

SPRING, SUMMER, AUTUMN, WINTER AND

YORKSHIRE RELISH

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., & 2s. each. Beware of Substitutions. Sole Proprietors: GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & CO., LEEDS.

Digitized by Google

appreciated, and "Rule, Britannia!" which opened the programme, was greeted with the greatest enthusiasm. Tea was served in the Mayor's banqueting-room, and at long tables in the corridors. All the arrangements were in the hands of Captain Rosseter, Major Block, Major Wynyard, Captain Grepe, and Captain Strange, who certainly did all they could to make the afternoon enjoyable.

Bertha also tells me that she went over to Southampton to see Sir Redvers Buller and his staff embark. Of course the crowd there was tremendous, and the enthusiasm very great. The country certainly seems to have gone quite mad over this war, and our troops have no cause for complaint in the hearty farewells with which they have all been sent off. And you should have seen the people crowding round Chelsea and Wellington Barracks when the Reserves were coming in. Each man might have been some entirely new description of soldier, judging from the interest he excited.

You and all women of Great Britain can show very real interest in these men who have gone to fight for their country, by sending a contribution to the National Red Cross Society, for which the Ladies' Field has, with the approval of Lord Wantage, opened a subscription list. Cheques and postal orders should be made payable to the secretary of the Ladies' Field and the National Red Cross Society, and crossed "Capital and Counties Bank." The funds thus subscribed will help to supply two hospital railway trains for the transport of the sick and wounded in the Transvaal, and provide for the employment of a hospital ship for their conveyance from Natal to the Cape and home.

No matter how small the amount, any subscription will be gratefully received. And I expect many women will be glad to feel that they can in this way help, if it be only a little, to relieve the terrible sufferings that must be always the accompaniment of war, however "glorious."

Indeed, in one way or another, there is a very great deal that everyone can do just now to show that their sympathy with our soldiers and their families goes deeper than the surface, and is not merely worked up by the excitement of the moment.

Yesterday I was talking to the secretary of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association, who told me how greatly they are in need of funds in the present emergency. It is easy to understand this. For if you realise how many men will soon be serving in South Africa, you may have a vague idea of the enormous number of women and children who must be in great need of help and support. And it is to give such help and support when husbands and fathers are on active service that the association exists.

It is, as you know, by no means a new society, hastily got together to meet the demands of the moment, but it is of long standing, and a recognised national society, with the Queen as patron, and the Princess of Wales as president, whilst it numbers the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha and the Duke of Connaught amongst its trustees. It is the association, too, to which Sir Redvers Buller hoped the canteens of the various regiments proceeding abroad would make liberal allowances. So you see that it is not only supported by ladies of high degree, but also by generals and commanding officers.

But though the society is of such long standing and well recognised, you can understand that its funds are not so boundless that they can, without extra assistance, do all that will be required of them on an occasion like the present. So a special appeal has been issued, with the sanction of the Princess of Wales and the council—an appeal that you may have seen in the daily papers—asking for extra subscriptions and donations. Thus, my dear Betty, you can render great assistance by taking a collecting card, by getting up entertainments for the support of the association, by asking the clergy of the churches and chapels in your neighbourhood to give offertories for the same purpose, or by sending money of your own straight to the office, 23, Queen Anne's Gate, Westminster, S.W. In any of these ways you can help, and you will then know that you are doing something to alleviate the distress amongst our soldiers' wives, whether they are married "on the strength," "off the strength," or whether their husbands are in the Reserve, and now serving with the colours.

Oddly enough, after talking yesterday to the secretary, to-day I had a visit from a friend who is doing a great deal for the society at Weybridge. She came to ask me to call your attention to the special appeal, and to ask you to give all the assistance you can. One word more and I shall have done. Don't forget if you send any subscriptions to the treasurer, Colonel James Gildea, at the office in Queen Anne's Gate, that cheques and postal orders should be crossed "Coutts and Co."; and remember every penny will be of use.

Yours affectionately,

CONSTANCE.

 Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK, SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK, with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

FOUR POINTS:

No Finger Marks,
No Labour,
A Brilliant Polish, and
A Pleasant Perfume.

STONE'S PERFUMED FURNITURE CREAM.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., and 2s. 6d. each, direct from

STONE AND SON, EXETER.

Or at all respectable Stores.

STUARTS, Bill Discounters,

45, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W

ADVANCES made to all classes, without delay. Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes discounted, Loans on Mortgage of Real or Personal Estate, Reversions, etc.

Town and country applications have immediate attention. A representative will call on applicants if required. Interest arranged in advance, and repayments made to suit borrower's convenience. Before applying elsewhere write or call at STUART'S, 45, Marlborough Street, London, W. All communications treated in strict confidence. Telephone 2068 Gerrard. Telegraphic Address: "DEXTRO, LONDON."

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

Digitized by Google

THE

SITUATION IN SOUTH AFRICA.

SPECIAL DOUBLE WAR NUMBER

OF

Navy and Army Illustrated.

ONE SHILLING.

FOURTH EDITION NOW READY.

All the Actors & Scenes in the Drama.

Over One Hundred Photographs and Pictures are reproduced in this Special Number, illustrative of the Military Forces and strategic points, Boer and British, with the movements of troops.

SPECIAL WAR MAP.

The whole story of the complication is told by competent writers, and no pains have been spared to make the Number comprehensively illustrative of what has happened and is likely to occur.

IN THE

Navy and Army Illustrated.

PRICE SIXPENCE WEEKLY.

The Story of the War will be told from week to week, with special illustrations from its correspondents and photographic artists at the front, in Cape Colony, Natal and Rhodesia.

Those who have military friends in South Africa will learn the whereabouts of every regiment in the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED weekly list, showing the distribution of the troops.

Every picture is fully described, and every article is fully illustrated.

GEORGE NEWNES, Ltd., 7-12, SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.

Digitized by Google

Fry's

PURE CONCENTRATED

Cocoa.

"The cocoa drinking season is now upon us," Ex-Military Attaché writes, "and Fry's is the most popular in military messes. It is always too good to be advertised down. I always carry some of it in my portmanteau when travelling, and make a cup with my hot shaving water immediately my valet brings it to my bedroom. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught drink Fry's Cocoa, and so do most of the upper ten thousand."—Aldershot Review.

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS.

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

BAYLISS JONES & BAYLISS'

LOW IRON FENCING, LISTS FREE PRICES.

WIRE FENCING, TREE GUARDS, GATES,
Railing, Wheelbarrows, Stable Fittings, Corrugated Sheets, &c.

ALSO MAKERS OF DOG, POULTRY, TENNIS, AND CRICKET GROUND FENCING.

LISTS FREE.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF ALL KINDS OF HURDLES, FENCING, GATES, &c. FREE.

VICTORIA WORKS, WOLVERHAMPTON.

LONDON OFFICES AND SHOW ROOMS—139 & 141, CANNON STREET, E.C.

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 83—87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. Editorial Offices, 20, Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

ATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4th, 1899.

OUR SOLDIERS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

dited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
ffices, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 144.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

UNRIVALLED SITUATION IN LONDON.

THE
LANGHAM HOTEL,
PORTLAND PLACE & REGENT STREET, W.

SEPARATE APARTMENTS
FOR
Regimental, Hunt, & Private Dinners, etc.
MODERN IMPROVEMENTS. MODERATE TARIFF.

London & Paris Exchange, Ltd.
Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET.

"WAR IN THE TRANSVAAL!"

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.
ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:
LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, Ltd.,
24, THROGMORTON STREET.

HÔTEL MÉTROPOLE,
CANNES.
One of the most magnificent Hotels in the Riviera.
OPENS END OF OCTOBER.
Beautifully situated in elevated and well-sheltered position, due South. Apartments, en suite, with Bathroom, etc. Splendid Cuisine and Wines. Electric Light. Perfect Sanitation. Lift. Hotel private grounds, twenty-seven acres. Tariff at Grand, Metropole, Victoria, and First Avenue Hotels, London, and at Metropole, Brighton.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
THE LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON.
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
9/- AND 10/6 PER DAY.

PICTURES ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 144. Saturday, November 4th, 1899.

DR. GEORGE HORATIO JONES
The Old-Established Surgeon-Dentist of
57, Great Russell Street
(directly facing the British Museum),
May be consulted daily, as usual, for the best English and American Dentistry. Moderate Fees, Extension of premises, Great Russell Mansions, next door.
See name under "Dentists," Post Office Directory.

The ART of . .
Graceful Horse Riding
TAUGHT AT
SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,
EARL'S COURT.
Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

Royal National . . Lifeboat Institution.

THERE being a vacancy in the Inspecting Staff of this Institution, the Committee call for Candidates for the vacant post, who must be under forty years of age, must have followed the sea as a profession, and had good experience in the management of boats and the command of men.

Candidates must send in copies of their certificates to the Secretary of the Institution on or before 20th November, 1899.

Full information may be obtained at the Institution, 14, John Street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.
The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of
TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS
and their crews in thorough efficiency.
In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.
Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.
Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.
AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.
P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8 p.m. "An Interrupted Honeymoon."
COMEDY, Panton St., W.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Moonlight Blossom."
PRINCESS'S, W.
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Prince of Borneo."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "Capt. Birchell's Luck."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "Sporting Life."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Great Ruby."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The White Heather." Sat. 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Two Little Vagabonds."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. "Paul Jones."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Derby Winner."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "In Old Kentucky." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "Lost in London."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Adventure of Lady Ursula." Wed. 2.30.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m. "A Greek Slave."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The Great Ruby."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 8 p.m. "The Three Musketeers."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "Serving the Queen."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Sweet Nancy."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Sins of the Fathers."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Tyranny of Tears."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Thou Shalt not Kill."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junct'n, S.W., 8 p.m. "Little Miss Nobody."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "My Jack."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

MAJOR BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.
During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.
These include
WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.
Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.
HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.
It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.
CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.
(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).
Telegrams—"Exercitus London."
Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

LATHER that's Big, and Thick, and Creamy; that will not dry on the face, and that will soften the beard and make easy work for the razor:

LATHER that's Soothing, Comforting, Refreshing. These qualities have made Williams' Shaving Soaps the favorites with generations of shavers, all over the world.

Sold by chemists, hairdressers and perfumers all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

Williams' Shaving Sticks, 1s. Williams' Luxury Shaving Tablets, 1s.
Williams' American Shaving Tablets, 6d. Williams "Jersey Cream" Toilet Soap, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp, by addressing—

The J. B. Williams Co., 64 Gt. Russell St., London, W. C., or 161 Clarence St., Sydney.
Chief Offices and Laboratories,—Glastonbury, Conn., U. S. A.

Goddard's Plate Powder

Admitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro-Plate.

In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

SIX GOLD MEDALS.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.

writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.

"I have now prescribed them for the "last 8 years in my hospitals and private "practice, and find them of great benefit. "I certainly and most strongly "recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

STUARTS, Bill Discounters,

45, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W

ADVANCES made to all classes, without delay. Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes discounted, Loans on Mortgage of Real or Personal Estate, Reversions, etc.

Town and country applications have immediate attention. A representative will call on applicants if required. Interest arranged in advance, and repayments made to suit borrower's convenience. Before applying elsewhere write or call at STUART'S, 45, Marlborough Street, London, W. All communications treated in strict confidence. Telephone 2068 Gerrard. Telegraphic Address: "DEXTRO, LONDON."

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

QUERY?

If you smoke Cigars, why not smoke good ones—especially when you can get them at a low price?

TERMS:
NET CASH WITH ORDER.

NOTE:
ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST POST FREE.

The "PSYCHE" Brand of BORNEO CIGARS have all the charm which connoisseurs have learned to associate with the best Borneo leaf. They are of delightful flavour, thoroughly well made, and undoubtedly the best substitutes extant for Havanas, which in good condition are now practically unobtainable.

PRICES:

(In Boxes of 50): Total Cost to Buyers, 20/- per 100. SAMPLES: 6 for P.O. 1/6, Post Free; or 18 Cigars of various Brands, for P.O. 3/6, 6/-, or 10/-.

MARTIN BROS., Cigar Specialists, 5, Mark Lane,
LONDON, E.C. (And Havana and Guernsey).

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: "Good-bye, Daddy. Wish I was Going Too." An Incident at the Recent Departure of Troops for South Africa	169
Our Colonial Forces: New Zealand. Part V. (Illustrated)	170
The Old Powder and the New. Firing Cordite and Black Powder. (Illus.)	172
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	173
Editorial Notices; Our Diary	174
Ventilation in Ships. (Illustrated) ...	174
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	176
The Fighting in Natal. In Touch with the Foe. (Illustrated)	177
"Sons of the Empire" at the Front. Some of the South African Contingents. (Illustrated)	178
Scenes on the Fighting Line. (Illus.)	180
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Eight Illustrations)	181
Leaving for the Cape. The Departure of Troops for South Africa. (Illustrated)	183
"Bunter's Cruise: A Tale of the New Navy." By Charles Gleig. Illustrated by T. S. C. Crowther ...	185
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	187
The Story of the War	188
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	188
Under the Red Cross. Hospital Ships for South Africa. (Illustrated) ...	189
Scenes of Naval and Military Life. In Church on Board the "Britannia." Country Visitors at Manœuvres. (Illustrated)	190
Railway Engineers for South Africa. The 2nd Cheshire Railway Corps. (Illustrated)	191
A Friend In Need. Lighting Up Under Difficulties. (Illustrated)	192

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Royal Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

First Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY ON FOREIGN SERVICE.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. h.d.s. Harbour Defence Ship. d.v. Despatch Vessel. y. Yacht. sur.v. Surveying Vessel. d.s. Depot-ship. r.g.b. River Gun-boat. t.d.s. Torpedo Depot-ship.

Abyssinia, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Alacrity, d.v.	Com. A. H. Smith-Dorrien	China
Alert, sloop	Com. H. Savile	North America
Algerine, sloop	Com. E. J. W. Slade	China
Amphion, cr.	Capt. Frank Finnis	Pacific
Andromeda, cr.	Capt. J. L. Burr, C.M.G.	Mediterranean
Anson, B.	Capt. W. Wilson	Mediterranean
Ardent, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. F. E. Walters	Mediterranean
Astræa, cr.	Capt. A. W. Paget	Mediterranean
Assaye, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. O. U. Coates	East Indies
Aurora, cr.	Capt. E. H. Bayly	China
Banshee, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. L. Watts-Jones	Mediterranean
Barfleur, B.	Capt. Hon. S. C. J. Colville, C.B. (Rear-Al. C. C. P. Fitzgerald)	China
Barracouta, cr.	Com. R. H. Peirse	C. of Good Hope
Barrosa, cr.	Com. W. F. Tunnard	C. of Good Hope
Beagle, sloop	Com. Hon. H. A. S. Stanhope	S. E. C. of America
Bonaventure, cr.	Ct. R. A. J. Montgomerie, C.B.	China
Boomerang, t.g.b.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Boxer, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. J. Twiselton-Wykeham-Fiennes	Mediterranean
Brisk, cr.	Com. R. B. S. Wrey	China
Bruizer, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. L. Hulton	Mediterranean
Buzzard, sloop	Com. L. F. G. Tippinge	North America
Cæsar, B.	Capt. E. H. Gamble	Mediterranean
Centurion, B.	Capt. J. R. Jellicoe (Vice-Adml. Sir E. H. Seymour, K.C.B.).	China
Cockatrice, g.b.	Com. H. N. Rolfe	Danube
Columbine, y.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Williamson	North America
Comus, cr.	Capt. G. A. Giffard	North America
Crescent, cr.	Capt. C. J. G. Sawle (Vice-Adl. Sir F. G. D. Bedford, K.C.B.).	North America
Cruiser, sloop	Com. L. G. Tufnell	Mediterranean
Daphne, sloop	Com. C. W. Winnington-Ingram.	China
Dart, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. Parry	Australia
Devastation, B.	Capt. F. S. Inglefield	Gibraltar
Dido, cr.	Capt. G. Neville	Mediterranean
Doris, cr.	Ct. R. C. Prothero (Rear-Adml. Sir R. H. Harris, K.C.M.G.).	C. of Good Hope
Dragon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Lambert	Mediterranean
Dwarf, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. F. Shakespear	C. of Good Hope
Earnest, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Baird	Mediterranean
Eclipse, cr.	Capt. P. W. Bush (Rear-Admiral H. D. Bosanquet).	East Indies
Egeria, sur.v.	Com. M. H. Smyth	Pacific
Empress of India B	Capt. H. H. Dyke	Mediterranean
Endymion, cr.	Capt. G. A. Callaghan	China
Esk, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. Chadwick	China
Fame, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. J. B. Keyes	China
Fearless, cr.	Com. H. R. P. Floyd	Mediterranean
Flora, cr.	Commodore R. L. Groome	S. E. C. of America
Foam, t.b.d.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Forte, cr.	Capt. E. P. Jones	C. of Good Hope
Griffon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. Hon. H. G. Brand	Mediterranean
Halcyon, t.g.b.	Com. S. W. A. H. Gray	Mediterranean
Handy, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. A. Moreton	China
Harrier, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. P. Walter	Mediterranean
Hart, t.b.d.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Hazard, t.g.b.	Com. P. V. Lewes, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Hebe, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Taylor	Mediterranean
Herald, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. Harvey	River Zambesi
Hermione, cr.	Capt. R. S. D. Cumming	China
Hibernia, d.s.	Com. W. Ricketts (Rear-Adml. R. M. Lloyd, C.B.).	Malta Reserves
Hood, B.	Capt. A. C. Corry	Mediterranean
Hotspur, h.d.s.	Com. C. S. Elliot	Bermuda
Humber, store-ship	Com. H. J. Davison	China
Hussar, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. M. R. Hill	Mediterranean
Icarus, sloop	Com. G. F. S. Knowling	Pacific
Illustrious, B.	Capt. Sir R. Poore, Bart.	Mediterranean
Imogene, d.v.	Com. E. J. Bain	Mediterranean
Indefatigable, cr.	Capt. F. L. Campbell	North America
Iphigenia, cr.	Capt. H. N. Dudding	China
Isis, cr.	Capt. G. M. Henderson	Mediterranean
Karrakatta, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Harbord	Australia
Katoomba, cr.	Capt. H. W. S. Gibson	Sydney Reserves
Lapwing, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Lambert	East Indies
Leander, cr.	Capt. F. F. Fegen	Pacific
Liffey, d.s.	Staff-Com. P. H. Wright	Coquimbo
Linnet, g.b.	Com. W. W. Smythe	China
Lizard, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Watson	Australia
Magdala, h.d.s.	Capt. H. L. Fleet	Bombay Reserves
Magicienne, cr.	Capt. W. B. Fisher	C. of Good Hope
Marathon, cr.	Capt. J. G. M. Field	East Indies
Melita, sloop	Com. I. M. Fraser, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Melpomene, cr.	Capt. J. Denison	East Indies
Mildura, cr.	Capt. H. Leah	Australia
Mohawk, cr.	Com. F. H. P. W. Freeman	Australia
Monarch, B.	Capt. R. D. B. Bruce	Simon's Bay
Mosquito, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. L. Cox	River Zambesi
Nymphe, sloop	Com. R. B. Farquhar	Mediterranean
Orion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Orlando, cr.	Capt. J. H. T. Burke	China
Partridge, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Hunt	C. of Good Hope
Peacock, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. S. G. Douglas	China
Pearl, cr.	Capt. J. E. C. Goodrich	North America
Pegasus, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cochran	S. E. C. of America
Penguin, sur.v.	Capt. J. W. Combe	Australia
Phaeton, cr.	Capt. F. G. Kirby	Pacific
Pheasant, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. G. Smith	Pacific
Philomel, cr.	Capt. J. E. Bearcroft	C. of Good Hope
Phœnix, sloop	Com. R. P. Cochran	China
Pigeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Moubray	East Indies
Pigmy, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. E. Green	China
Plassy, t.g.b.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Plover, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. V. de M. Cowper	China
Polyphemus, ram	Com. E. L. Lang	Mediterranean
Pomone, cr.	Capt. E. A. Simons	East Indies
Porpoise, cr.	Com. A. H. D. Ravenhill	Australia
Powerful, cr.	Capt. Hon. Hedworth Lambton	C. of Good Hope
Proserpine, cr.	Capt. J. L. Marx	North America
Psyche, cr.	Ct. F. C. Pelly	North America
Pylades, cr.	Com. R. G. O. Tupper	Australia
Quail, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Rymer	North America
Racoon, cr.	Com. G. H. Hewett	East Indies
Rambler, sur.v.	Com. H. E. P. Cust	West Indies
Ramillies, B.	Capt. W. des V. Hamilton	Mediterranean
Rattler, g.b.	Lt.-Com. Hon. G. A. Hardinge.	China
Redpole, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. F. H. Booth.	China
Renown, B.	Capt. D. McN. Riddel (Vice-Admiral Sir J. A. Fisher, K.C.B.).	Mediterranean
Revenge, B.	Capt. C. J. Briggs (Rear-Admiral Sir G. H. U. Noel, K.C.M.G.).	Mediterranean
Ringarooma, cr.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Ringdove, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. F. Ayscough	Australia
Rocket, t.b.d.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Royal Arthur, cr.	Capt. C. G. Dicken (Rear-Adml. H. L. Pearson).	Australia
Royal Oak, B.	Capt. W. H. B. Graham	Mediterranean
Royal Sovereign, B.	Capt. M. P. O'Callaghan	Mediterranean
Rupert, h.d.s.	Com. A. B. G. Grenfell.	Alexandria
Salamander, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. C. Villiers	Mediterranean
Sandfly, t.g.b.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Sandpiper, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. C. Carr	China
Scorpion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Snipe, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Oldham	China
Sparrow, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. Wilkin, D.S.O.	C. of Good Hope
Sparrowhawk, t.b.d	(Reserve Esquimault)	Pacific
Sphinx, s.	Com. H. A. Phillips.	East Indies
Stork, sur.v.	Com. H. J. Gedge	Mediterranean
Surprise, d.v.	Com. F. W. F. Hervey	Mediterranean
Swallow, sloop	Com. E. F. Inglefield	S. E. C. of America
Swift, g.b.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Talbot, cr.	Capt. G. A. Primrose	C. of Good Hope
Tamar, d.s.	Commodore F. Powell, C.B.	Hong Kong
Tartar, cr.	Com. F. R. W. Morgan	C. of Good Hope
Tauranga, cr.	Capt. L. C. Stuart	Australia
Terrible, cr.	Capt. Percy Scott	C. of Good Hope
Terror, d.s.	Capt. T. MacGill, C.B.	Bermuda
Theseus, cr.	Capt. V. A. Tisdall	C. of Good Hope
Thetis, cr.	Capt. W. S. Rees	Mediterranean
Thrush, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. W. Pochin	C. of Good Hope
Torch, sloop	Com. H. Preedy	Australia
Tribune, cr.	Capt. R. S. Rolleston	North America
Tyne, supply-ship	Com. K. Wade.	Mediterranean
Undaunted, cr.	Capt. A. C. Clarke	China
Urgent, d.s.	Commodore W. H. Henderson.	Jamaica
Venus, cr.	Capt. Sir A. B. Milne, Bart.	Mediterranean
Victorious, B.	Capt. A. Schomberg	China
Virago, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. T. F. Pike	Pacific
Vulcan, t.d.s.	Capt. R. W. White	Mediterranean
Wallaroo, cr.	Capt. A. M. Farquhar	Australia
Warspite, cr.	Capt. T. P Walker (Rear-Adml. Beaumont).	Pacific
Waterwitch, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. W. P. Dawson	China
Whiting, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. Kelly	China
Widgeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. F. Gurney	C. of Good Hope
Wivern, h.d.s.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Woodcock, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. R. Watson	China
Woodlark, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. T. R. Barton	China

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

Naval and Military Tailors and Outfitters.

56, PALL MALL, (OPPOSITE MARLBOROUGH HOUSE) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO COMPLETE AFRICAN OUTFITS.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passengers Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

RED WHITE AND BLUE FRENCH COFFEE

SOLD EVERYWHERE

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 18 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

The International Sleeping Car Co.

TRAINS DE LUXE.

CALAIS TO MARSEILLES, NICE, MONTE CARLO, &c. Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

CALAIS TO ROME AND NAPLES.

Every Tuesday and Thursday.

And Three other Daily Services to the SOUTH.

Full and detailed information sent gratis, and all Tickets supplied at the Company's Chief London Offices, 14, COCKSPUR STREET, S.W.

The Official Guide and Time Book of the Company, "THE CONTINENTAL TRAVELLER," sent post free on application.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian Ales.

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.

IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 21d. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries, PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

	Per Doz.
Bordered. Children's	1s. 3d.
Ladies'	2s. 3d.
Gents'	3s. 3d.
Hemstitched. Ladies'	2s. 9d.
Gents'	3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d. per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

ENCORE RAZOR

SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co., Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,

who will supply through nearest Agent.

Digitized by Google

Battle-fields of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

THESE three pictures of scenes in which our soldiers have lately fought so gallantly are exceedingly interesting. The position the late Sir William Symons held at Glencoe was one of great danger, and Brigadier-General Yule could not have retired unimpeded if the gallant general now dead had not made that crippling attack upon the Boers posted on the rough hill our illustration depicts. Up that rugged steep the brave King's Royal Rifles and Dublin Fusiliers dashed, and swept the enemy before them—a brilliant victory for our arms. Long will Britons remember the splendid services of the "Gay Gordons," the Imperial Light Horse, the Devonshires, the Manchesters, and the Artillery at Elandslaagte. It was a glorious victory, won also to extricate General Yule from the position at Glencoe and Dundee. In the ranks of the Gordons are many gaps, and it is easy to see from our picture how difficult was the ground our soldiers crossed. The position of the Boers was strong, and their guns were well served by German gunners, but the dash and devotion of our soldiers carried them over that broken ground, and they stormed the defence and captured the guns and many of the enemy, while the cavalry rode through and through the fugitives. Never was victory more complete.

Photo. Copyright. ELANDSLAAGTE, OCTOBER 21. "Navy & Army."
On the Battle-field: A Typical Boer Fighting Ground.

Our last picture is of Colonel Baden-Powell's headquarters at Mafeking. Information came slowly through from that beleaguered town, but every scrap of news told of the vigorous courage of its garrison. Not many more than a handful of men formed that garrison, and yet a gallant sortie inflicted a terrible loss upon the enemy; and they were, as one may say, "hoist with their own petard" when they pounded with their shells that truck of dynamite. Then came news that Mafeking was on fire, but though its neighbour, the Baralong village, would burn like a torch, there does not seem to be much that is inflammable at Mafeking.

Photo. Copyright. Temple.
BADEN-POWELL'S HEADQUARTERS—AT MAFEKING: THE OLD POST ROAD.

If Boer statements are to be trusted, Commandant Cronje brought up heavy guns for the purpose of bombarding the place, and these caused the outbreak. But those who are defending the town do not appear to consider their situation as desperate as has been made out.

The defence of the place will belong to the romance of our military annals.

Photo. Copyright. GLENCOE, OCTOBER 20. "Navy & Army."
The Hill on which was Planted the Boer Artillery.

Digitized by Google

Bovril to the Front

As a highly concentrated and delicious food of unquestioned purity, possessing both nourishing and stimulating qualities in a degree unequalled by any preparation of its kind, Bovril has leapt into universal favour. With Bovril a strengthening and sustaining meal can be provided in the shortest possible time.

Bovril contains all the flesh-forming constituents of prime ox beef in a form easy of digestion and assimilation—a perfect combination. Hence its unique value as a means of increasing vitality and maintaining physical strength.

BOVRIL
Campaigning Rations.

A large quantity of these Rations has been supplied for use by the BRITISH MILITARY FORCES in SOUTH AFRICA.

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for

Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

"To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull."

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere
in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

THREEPENCE EACH, AT ALL RESPECTABLE TOBACCONISTS.
SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.
EXQUISITE MILD FLAVOUR AND MOST DELICATE AROMA;
ALSO
FLOR DE DINDIGUL CIGARETTES (all tobacco leaf, no paper), a delightful wholesome Whiff, 1d. each. Sole Importers, BEWLAY & Co., LTD., 49, 74, and 156, Strand, and 143, Cheapside. Established 1780. Price lists, post free.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY . . .

Pickering's 'Blanco'

For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House Eastcheap, London, E.C.

"LÉRINA,"
The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY
The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lérins,
SITUATED ON
THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,
WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.
To be obtained from
ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.
WHOLESALE AGENTS:
COVERDALE POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

Digitized by Google

For the Sweethearts and Wives of Our Sailors and Soldiers.

My dear Betty,—Last week I wrote to you about the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association, with which is incorporated the Soldiers' Help Society. As the former does all it can to help the wives and families when the husbands and fathers are on active service, so the latter is always employed in helping the men when they are discharged. It is now especially busy in building convalescent homes and homes of rest for these discharged soldiers. The foundation-stone of the first is to be laid at Bisley in December by Princess Christian, Lady Pirbright having given five or six acres of land for the home, whilst on November 13 a large ball is to take place in the Grosvenor Rooms, Grand Hotel, Birmingham, the funds proceeding from which are to go towards the establishment of such buildings in Warwickshire. This ball should be a great success, as it is under the patronage of Princess Christian, Princess Henry of Battenberg, the Duchess of Connaught, the Duchess of Sutherland, General Swaine, Lord Leigh, and many other people of note.

The work the Soldiers' Help Society does covers an enormous amount of ground, and it is most interesting to anyone to whom such undertakings appeal. And as it grows it is hoped that it may materially and beneficially affect the recruiting in this country. More of all this I will tell you later, if you care to hear about it. For the present, I know your sympathies are more with the men on the Active List than with those who are discharged. But these convalescent homes will, when built, be invaluable for those time-expired soldiers who return out of health through wounds or fever from a campaign like the present.

Another society of which I have been asked to tell you is the War Employment Bureau, 101, Fleet Street, which is an immediate outcome of the present needs. Its object is to find employment for the wives and families of Reservists called out to join the colours in South Africa. The council first aim at providing this employment in the neighbourhood of the homes of the Reservists, but when necessary the women will be helped to find it elsewhere.

Many large employers of labour have already been asked to send in their names, if willing to give preferential employment to such candidates. And in nearly every case a cordial reply has been received. To many more an appeal has been made through the Press, and before you get this letter the list of firms responding will probably have been published.

Of course it is a very great matter that the homes of these Reserve men should not be broken up in their absence To help in maintaining them the War Employment Bureau exists. Lord Wolseley has given his absolute approval to the scheme. "Anything which is done should be done quickly," he truly says. This applies, indeed, to everything that is being done to relieve the present distress. And from the way people are working it seems to be very well realised.

On Friday week I went to see the Duke of Connaught inspect the Scots Guards at Chelsea Barracks. It would have been interesting, as are all these inspections of troops about to proceed to the Transvaal; but when the atmosphere is so thick that you can scarcely see 20-yds. in front of you, the effect, as you may imagine, is somewhat spoiled. This was the case on Friday. Only the men quite near to me could I see, so excepting for the march past it really was very disappointing.

Next day, long before the sun rose, people were up and hurrying away to see the Guards off from Waterloo and Nine Elms Stations. It was a repetition of the farewell scenes that have continually taken place during the last few weeks. And again the fog was thick and cold, and again it did not damp the enthusiasm of the men and of their numerous well-wishers.

Last week I had no space to tell you of the festivities that attended the launching of the "Bulwark" at Plymouth. Esther tells me they had a most glorious day for it, "as warm as summer," so the thousands of people who crowded the slopes of Mount Wise and every other available point of view enjoyed themselves to the utmost. Lady Fairfax performed the ceremony, and the officers of the "Nile," "Cambridge," and "Impregnable" gave large "At Homes," which were particularly delightful entertainments, as each ended with dancing.

Esther says she will not have many festivities to tell me about this winter. For from Plymouth, as from every other garrison, all the men have gone forth to the war, and the relations left behind will be too anxious to think of amusing themselves to any great extent.

Yours affectionately, Constance.

 Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.

Jaeger Pure Undyed Camel's Hair . . . . SLEEPING BAGS

Are Indispensable for Officers Ordered to the Front.

Made in 2 layers, 6ft. long. No. 138, 25/-. No 118, 35/-.

Made in 3 layers, 6ft. long. No. 139, 35/-. No. 119, 45/-.

126, Regent Street, W.
456, Strand (Charing Cross), W.
30, Sloane Street, S.W.

TRADE MARK. Dr. Jaeger's Sanitary Woollen System Co. Ltd. Sole Concessionaires. Pure Wool Warranted.

115, Victoria Street, S.W.
(6 doors West of A. & N. Stores.)
85 & 86, Cheapside, E.C.

Digitized by Google

NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

The Most Popular Sixpenny Weekly.

IF you have friends or relatives in the Queen's Services; if you wish to enter the Army, Navy, or Volunteers; if you desire to learn anything about the Defences of your Country, or the elements which make Foreign States powerful, either as friends or foes; if you want to know about the Building of Ships, the Manufacture of Guns, or the Home Life of our Soldiers and Sailors—you will find much to interest you in the pages of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

6,000,000 Copies of the NAVY AND ARMY have been sold. First issued December 20, 1895. The following is a list of the corps of the British Army illustrations of which have appeared in the paper:—

CAVALRY.

Regular Troops.

1st Life Guards, January 31, 1896.
,, ,, March 20, 1896.
,, ,, April 3, 1896.
,, ,, Sept. 10, 1898.
,, ,, Dec. 10, 1898.
2nd Life Guards, April 3, 1896.
,, ,, July 16, 1898.
Royal Horse G'ds, Jan. 17, 1896.
,, ,, ,, April 17, 1896.
,, ,, ,, July 16, 1898.
,, ,, ,, June 10, 1899.
1st Dragoon G'ds, Sept. 3, 1897.
,, ,, July 16, 1898.
2nd Dragoon G'ds, Sept. 10, 1898.
3rd Dragoon G'ds, Oct. 16, 1896.
,, ,, Dec. 24, 1897.
,, ,, July 16, 1898.
5th Dragoon G'ds, Oct. 15, 1897.
6th Dragoon G'ds, June 3, 1899.
7th Dragoon G'ds, July 16, 1898.
1st Dragoons, January 3, 1896.
,, ,, September 10, 1898.
2nd Dragoons, December 20, 1895.
,, ,, January 31, 1896.
,, ,, May 1, 1896.
,, ,, October 2, 1896.
3rd Hussars, May 20, 1896.
5th Lancers, January 17, 1898.
,, ,, December 17, 1898.
6th Dragoons, July 15, 1899.
7th Hussars, May 28, 1897.
,, ,, September 10, 1898.
8th Hussars, July 9, 1897.
,, ,, July 16, 1898.
9th Lancers, January 17, 1896.
,, ,, March 6, 1896.
,, ,, January 7, 1898.
10th Hussars, July 23, 1897.
,, ,, December 17, 1898.
11th Hussars, January 22, 1897.
,, ,, May 21, 1898.
12th Lancers, December 17, 1898.
13th Hussars, July 23, 1897.
,, ,, August 20, 1897.
14th Hussars, May 28, 1897.
,, ,, July 23, 1897.
15th Hussars, July 9, 1898.
16th Lancers, October 29, 1897.
,, ,, September 10, 1898.
,, ,, May 20, 1899.
17th Lancers, February 21, 1896.
,, ,, March 20, 1896.
,, ,, April 3, 1896.
,, ,, January 7, 1897.
,, ,, September 10, 1898.
18th Hussars, April 2, 1898.
19th Hussars, September 18, 1896.
21st Lancers, October 15, 1897.
,, ,, October 22, 1898.
,, ,, May 6, 1899.

Yeomanry.

Ayrshire, July 16, 1897.
Cheshire, July 2, 1898.
,, June 24, 1899.
Gloucestershire, April 9, 1897.
Herts, April 9, 1897.
,, February 25, 1898.
West Kent, February 25, 1898.
Lanarkshire, April 9, 1897.
D. of Lancaster's Own, Feb. 25, 1898.
Berwickshire, July 16, 1897.
Middlesex, April 9, 1897.
West Somerset, February 25, 1898.
Staffordshire, February 25, 1898.
Royal Wiltshire, July 2, 1898.
Worcestershire, February 25, 1898.
Yorkshire, April 9, 1897.

ROYAL ARTILLERY.

Royal Horse Artillery.

D Battery, July 10, 1896.
I Battery, August 7, 1896.
Q Battery, September 3, 1898.

Field Artillery.

73rd Battery, January 22, 1897.
18th Battery, January 22, 1897.
92nd Battery, June 24, 1899.

Mountain Artillery.

No. 4 Battery, September 18, 1896.
No. 10 Battery, November 13, 1896.

Militia.

Antrim, November 26, 1897.
Edinburgh, July 16, 1898.
West of Scotland, Oct. 15, 1898.
Hants and Isle of Wight, July 1, 1899.

Volunteers.

Kent, October 2, 1896.
Norfolk, July 25, 1898.
,, June 10, 1899.
1st Sussex, April 9, 1897.
Cinque Ports, 2. Sept. 16, 1899.
Shropshire, July 16, 1897.
1st London, May 14, 1898.
3rd Middlesex, September 4, 1896.
,, ,, August 30, 1898.

Royal Marine Artillery.

August 21, 1896.

Royal Malta Artillery.

August 7, 1896.
November 26, 1897.
June 3, 1899.
August 5, 1899.

Bermuda Militia Artillery.

January 21, 1898.

ENGINEERS.

Militia.

Royal Monmouthshire, October 29, 1898.

Volunteers.

Aberdeenshire, April 9, 1897.
,, August 26, 1899.
Cheshire, July 16, 1897.
Hampshire, October 22, 1898.
London, September 24, 1898.
Middlesex, September 24, 1898.
Tower Hamlets, Sept. 24, 1898.
,, ,, August 19. 1899.
Yorkshire, February 25, 1898.

Submarine Miners.

Severn Division, April 9, 1897.

INFANTRY.

Grenadier G'ds, 3. April 3, 1896.
,, ,, 1. Aug. 21, 1896.
,, ,, 2. Oct. 16, 1896.
,, ,, 1. May 14, 1897.
,, ,, 1. Sept. 10, 1898.
Coldstream G'ds, 1. Dec. 20, 1895.
,, ,, 1. April 3, 1896.
,, ,, 1. Mar. 25, 1899.
,, ,, 3. April 9, 1898.
,, ,, 2. June 4, 1898.
Scots Guards, 1. February 21, 1896.
,, ,, July 29, 1899.
Queen's (R. W. Surrey Regiment), V 1. July 16, 1897.
1. July 1, 1899.
East Kent Regiment, 2. June 17, 1899.
King's Own (R. Lancaster Regt.), 2. August 21, 1896.
1. October 16, 1896.
1. April 23, 1898.
Northumberland Fusiliers, V 1. April 9, 1897.
2. May 28, 1898.
1. May 13, 1899.
Royal Warwickshire Regiment, V 1. February 25, 1898.
1. April 30, 1898.
2. September 2, 1899.
Royal Fusiliers, V 2. July 16, 1897.
,, ,, V 1. Feb. 25, 1898.
,, ,, 3. June 18, 1898.
1st King's Liverpool Regiment, August 19, 1899.
Norfolk Regt., M 2, July 2, 1898.
Lincolnshire Rt., 1. May 15, 1896.
,, ,, 1. Oct. 15, 1897.
,, ,, V 1. Aug. 26, 1899.
,, ,, V 2. Aug. 26, 1899.
Devonshire Rt., 2. March 6, 1896.
,, ,, 2. March 20, 1896.
,, ,, 2. April 17, 1896.
,, ,, V 1. July 16, 1897.
,, ,, V 2. Feb. 25, 1898.
,, ,, M March 18, 1899.
Suffolk Regt., 1. January 17, 1896.
,, ,, January 14, 1899.
,, ,, 1. July 15, 1899.
Somersetshire Light Infantry, 2. February 21, 1896.
V 3. July 16, 1897.
West Yorkshire Regiment, 3. March 4, 1898.
2. May 20, 1899.
East Yorkshire, Feb. 25, 1898.
Royal Irish Regiment, M 3. March 14, 1897.
Yorkshire Regt., 1. April 9, 1898.
,, ,, April 1, 1899.
Lancashire Fusiliers, 2. September 10, 1898.
Royal Scots Fusiliers, 1. April 17, 1896.
1. May 1, 1896.
Royal Welsh Fusiliers, 1. November 12, 1898.
1. April 1, 1899.
K.O.S. Borderers, 2. Oct. 2, 1896.
,, ,, 2. May 28, 1897.
Gloucestershire, 2. May 1, 1896.
,, 2. May 21, 1897.
East Surrey, V 4. April 22, 1899.
Duke of Wellington's (W. R. Rt.), 2. August 21, 1896.
2. October 30, 1896.
Hampshire Regiment, V 3. April 9, 1897.
V 1. July 9, 1898.
March 18, 1899.
3. July 8, 1899.
South Staffordshire Regiment, V 1. & 3. February 25, 1898.
Dorsetshire Regt., 2. Jan. 8, 1897.
,, ,, 2. June 11, 1898.
South Lancashire Regiment, 1. October 15, 1898.
Welsh Regt., V 3. Feb. 25, 1898.
The Black Watch (Rl. Highl'd's), 1. March 18, 1898.
2. November 19, 1898.
Oxfordshire Light Infantry, 2. September 17, 1897.
2. December 24, 1897.
Essex Regiment, 2. Aug. 13, 1898.
Derbyshire Regiment, V 2. August 26, 1899.
Loyal North Lancashire Regt., 3. October 15, 1897.
Royal Berkshire Regiment, 2. March 20, 1896.
1. September 18, 1896.
3. August 6, 1898.
Queen's Own (R. W. K. Regt.), 2. December 11, 1896.
March 11, 1899.
August 5, 1899.
3. August 12, 1899.

Royal Marines.

Plymouth Division, Dec. 24, 1897.
Portsmouth ,, Dec. 17, 1898.
Walmer Depôt, Feb. 4, 1899.
,, ,, Feb. 18, 1899.
,, ,, Mar. 14, 1899.

King's Shropshire L.I. Regiment, 2. August 12, 1899.
Middlesex Regt., 1. May 29, 1896.
,, ,, 1. May 21, 1897.
King's Royal Rifle Corps, 3. March 15, 1896.
V 6. May 15, 1896.
October 16, 1896.
V 1. July 16, 1897.
V 4. February 25, 1898.
V 5. April 22, 1899.
Wiltshire Rt., V 2. July 16, 1897.
Manchester Rt., V 2. April 9, 1897.
,, ,, 2. June 25, 1898.
,, ,, 1. August 19, 1899.
North Staffordshire Regiment, V 2. February 25, 1898.
Durham Light Infantry, 2. May 28, 1897.
M 4. July 1, 1899.
Highland Light Infantry, V 3. February 25, 1898.
Seaforth Highlanders, 2. September 4, 1896.
1. February 4, 1898.
V 2. April 9, 1898.
1. April 30, 1898.
Gordon Highlanders, 1. September 17, 1897.
1. November 12, 1897.
Q. O. Cameron Highlanders, 1. May 7, 1898.
Royal Irish Rifles, 1. May 14, 1897.
1st Royal Irish Fusiliers, June 10, 1899.
Argyll & Sutherland Highlanders, 2. February 21, 1896.
1. June 12, 1896.
V 6. February 25, 1898.
Leinster Regt., 1. July 30, 1898.
Royal Munster Fusiliers, 1. September 16, 1899.
Rifle Brigade, V 6. April 9, 1897.
,, ,, V 7. July 16, 1897.
,, ,, V 1. Oct. 22, 1898.
,, ,, March 18, 1899.
West India Regt., Dec. 10, 1898.
,, ,, ,, April 1, 1899.
Hong Kong Rt., May 14, 1897.
Royal Army Medical Corps, January 17, 1896.
Army Ordnance Corps, May 28, 1897.

Channel Islands' Militia.

Guernsey, May 28, 1897.
,, May 27, 1899.
Jersey Militia, Dec. 10, 1898.

Volunteer Infantry Brigades.

North London, July 16, 1897.
South London, July 16, 1897.
North Midland, July 16, 1897.
Plymouth, November 5, 1898.
Staffordshire, February 25, 1898.
Surrey, July 16, 1897.
Tyne and Tees, July 22, 1899.
South Wales, August 5, 1899.

1.—1st Battalion. 2.—2nd Battalion. 3.—3rd Battalion. M.—Militia. V.—Volunteers.

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII. (Just Ready), cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

Aspinall's Enamel.

"O" QUALITY FOR STATE ROOMS & CABINS

EASY TO APPLY.

USED ON H.M. SHIPS.

ASPINALL'S SHIPS' ENAMEL

INDIAN QUALITY FOR DECK WORK, GUNS, TURRETS &c

SPECIAL TERMS TO OFFICERS OF THE SERVICE.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL, Ltd., NEW CROSS, London, S.E.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY NOVEMBER 11th 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 145.

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,
217, PICCADILLY, corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
Collier's
BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.

COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81 CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
LINEN COLLARS. LADIES' 3-fold from 3/6 doz.
" GENTS' 4-fold, 4/11 per doz.
CUFFS for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5/11 per doz.
PRICE LISTS POST FREE. COLLARS, Write for Samples of Damasks, etc
CUFFS, AND SHIRTS.
MATCHLESS SHIRTS. Fine quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Pure Linen Fronts, 35/6 per ½-doz. (to measure, 2/- extra).
N.B.—Old Shirts made good as new with best materials in neckbands, cuffs and fronts for 14/- per ½-doz.
N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.
Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.
Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.
BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named
Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers etc.
MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 145. Saturday, November 11th, 1899.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),
Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with
Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,
PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS
FOR
MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE,
WOOLWICH, SANDHURST,
AND ALL
MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS;
also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:
MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899.

		Marks.
*FIRST UNIVERSITY.—A. E. M. Ward	... ...	1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

		Marks.
*FIRST ARTILLERY.—C. H. Clark (After a few months' reading.)	... ...	1792
*20th Infantry.—L. J. Le Fleming	... ...	1582
35th " A. Moore	... ...	1485
38th " J. C. Hooper	... ...	1463
*72nd " W. B. Mitford	... ...	1310
*76th " A. J. M. Gordon	... ...	1280

*1st trial direct.
March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.

N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.

Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, S.W.

STUARTS, Bill Discounters,
45, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

ADVANCES made to all classes, without delay. Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes discounted, Loans on Mortgage of Real or Personal Estate, Reversions, etc.

Town and country applications have immediate attention. A representative will call on applicants if required. Interest arranged in advance, and repayments made to suit borrower's convenience. Before applying elsewhere write or call at STUART'S, 45, Marlborough Street, London, W. All communications treated in strict confidence. Telephone 2068 Gerrard. Telegraphic Address: "DEXTRO, LONDON."

JUNIOR APPOINTMENTS IN THE SUPPLY AND ACCOUNTING DEPARTMENTS OF THE ADMIRALTY (18-20).
15th November, Forthcoming Examination.

The date specified is the latest at which applications can be received. They must be made on forms to be obtained, with particulars, from the Secretary, Civil Service Commission, London, S.W.

FEE 60 GUINEAS
SCHOOL SHIP "CONWAY"
LIVERPOOL.
FOR TRAINING YOUNG GENTLEMEN TO BECOME OFFICERS IN MERCHANT STEAMERS.
FOR PROSPECTUS APPLY TO THE CAPT., A.T. MILLER, R.N.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards or saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8 p.m. "An Interrupted Honeymoon."
COMEDY, Panton St., W.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Moonlight Blossom."
PRINCESS'S, W.
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Prince of Borneo."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "Capt. Birchell's Luck."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "Little Miss Nobody."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "On Active Service."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "Paul Jones." Sat. 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "The Greek Slave."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2 p.m. "Boy Bob."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Human Nature."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. The Compton Comedy Co. Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "The White Heather."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Runaway Girl." Wed. 2.30.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "A Royal Divorce."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The Great Ruby."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 8 p.m. "The Liars."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "A Soldier and a Man."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "The Circus Girl."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "In Old Madrid."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "Gentleman Joe."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Cheer, Boys, Cheer."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junct'n, S.W., 8 p.m. "Sporting Life."
SURREY, S.E 7.45 p.m. "Driven from Home."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

MAJOR BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.
(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London"
Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY

AT THIS

AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;

£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo,

and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,

£2 2 0

IT IS THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO. LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.,
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
} LONDON.

THREEPENCE EACH, AT ALL RESPECTABLE TOBACCONISTS.

SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

EXQUISITE MILD FLAVOUR AND MOST DELICATE AROMA;

ALSO

FLOR DE DINDIGUL CIGARETTES (all tobacco leaf, no paper), a delightful wholesome Whiff, 1d. each. Sole Importers, BEWLAY & Co., LTD., 49, 74, and 156, Strand, and 143, Cheapside. Established 1780. Price lists, post free.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK,

SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK, with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

"THREE THINGS THAT WOMEN HIGHLY HOLD."

Exquisite Models. Perfect Fit. Guaranteed Wear.

The Y & N DIAGONAL SEAM

"No shape but this can please your dainty eye."

Will not split in the Seams, nor tear in the Fabric.

Made in White, Black, and all the fashionable Colours and Shades, in Italian Cloth, Satin and Coutil.

4/11, 5/11, 6/11, 7/11
per pair and upwards.

THREE GOLD MEDALS.

"Admirably modelled, exquisitely neat and strong."—Queen.

"The most comfortable corset ever made."—Ladies' Pictorial.

"The best make of corsets is the Y & N Diagonal Seam."—Gentlewoman.

CAUTION.—See that the REGISTERED TRADE MARK "Y. & N. Diagonal Seam," is imprinted on every Corset and on every Box. No others are genuine.

Sold by the principal Drapers and Ladies' Outfitters throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND
And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.

£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.

Bankers, Messrs. Drummond. ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

THE "OSMAN"

Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES,
Limited,
MANCHESTER;
LONDON AND BOLTON.

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

SAVIGEAR'S

Guide to . . Horsemanship and Horse-Training.

EDITED BY

Lieut.-Col. J. GRAHAM.

Price 2/6.

Sold at the Earl's Court Riding-School.

"A manual of great excellence and of many merits."—ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE.

"About the most useful hand-book that has ever been placed in the hands of the public."—THE FIELD.

"No young officer should be without the volume."—NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED

"Ought to be most useful for Militia Officers and candidates for Woolwich and Sandhurst."—COUNTRY LIFE.

"No one can read it without benefit."—ALDERSHOT NEWS

London: FARMER and SONS, Kensington.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: On the Alert. An Hussar Scout as He will be Seen in the Near Future in South Africa	193
For Use at the Cape. Equipping and Training a Landing Party. (Illus.)	194
Bound for Pretoria. More Troops for South Africa. (Illustrated) ...	195
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	197
Editorial Notices; The Navy and Army Diary	198
The Lost Battalions	198
Naval Charities. (Illustrated)	199
Notes and Queries for Everyone... ...	200
More Troops for South Africa. (Illus.)	201
Mountain Batteries. (Illustrated) ...	203
The Special Service Squadron. (Illus.)	205
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Ten Illustrations.)	206
Capewards. From Our Special Correspondent. (Illus.)	208
"Bunter's Cruise: A Tale of the New Navy." By Charles Gleig. Illustrated by T. S. C. Crowther ...	209
The Gallant Dead	211
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	211
The Story of the War	212
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	212
Our Army Reserve. (Illustrated) ...	213
The "Britannia's" Beagles. The Opening of the Season. (Illustrated)	214
The "Cabinet" of a Destroyer. The Officers of the "Star." (Illustrated)	216

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Second Week.]

THE CAVALRY, ROYAL ARTILLERY, AND ROYAL ENGINEERS.*

CAVALRY.

*1st Life Guards	Lieut.-Col. C. N. Miles.	Windsor
*2nd "	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Neeld	Regent's Park
*Royal Horse Gds.	Col. J. F. Brocklehurst, M.V.O.	Hyde Park
1st Dragoon Gds.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Owen	Dublin
2nd "	Lieut.-Col. J. Lambert	York
3rd "	Lieut.-Col. U. G. C. de Burgh	Dundalk
4th "	Lieut.-Col. G. D. F. Sulivan	Rawul Pindi
5th "	Col. R. S. S. Baden-Powell	Ladysmith, Natal
6th "	Lieut.-Col. T. C. Porter	For S. Africa
7th "	Lieut.-Col. W. H. M. Lowe	Colchester
1st Dragoons	Lieut.-Col. J. F. Burn-Murdoch	For S. Africa
2nd "	Lt.-Col. Hon. W. P. Alexander.	For S. Africa
3rd Hussars	Lt.-Col. W. N. Wogan-Browne.	Lucknow
4th "	Lieut.-Col. W. A. Ramsay	Secunderabad
5th Lancers	Col. J. F. M. Fawcett	Ladysmith, Natal
6th Dragoons	Lt.-Col. H. C. Page-Henderson	For S. Africa
7th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. Hon. R. T. Lawley	Norwich
8th "	Lieut.-Col. P. L. Clowes	Curragh Camp
9th Lancers	Lieut.-Col. B. Gough	Natal
10th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. R. B. W. Fisher	For S. Africa
11th "	Lieut.-Col. E. R. Courtenay.	Meerut
12th Lancers	Lt.-Col. D. S. W., Earl of Airlie	For S. Africa
13th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. H. J. Blagrove	For S. Africa
14th "	Lieut.-Col. G. H. C. Hamilton	For S. Africa
15th "	Lieut.-Col. J. R. P. Gordon	Meerut
16th Lancers	Lieut.-Col. H. L. Aylmer	Umballa
17th "	Lieut.-Col. M. G. Neeld	Ballincollig
18th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. B. D. Moller	Ladysmith, Natal
19th "	L.-C. C. B. H. Wolseley-Jenkins	Ladysmith, Natal
20th "	Lieut.-Col. H. G. P. Beauchamp	Mhow
21st Lancers	L.-C. W. G. Crole Wyndham, C.B.	Egypt

* A three squadron composite regiment of Household Cavalry goes to South Africa under command of Lieutenant-Colonel A. D. Neeld.

ROYAL REGIMENT OF ARTILLERY.

Royal Horse Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.
A.—Meerut
B.—Lucknow
C.—Mhow
D.—Umballa
E.—Kirkee
F.—Sealkote
G.—For South Africa
H.—Meerut
I.—Umballa
J.—Bangalore
K.—Rawul Pindi
L.—Secunderabad
M.—Woolwich
N.—Woolwich
O.—For South Africa
P.—For South Africa
Q.—Newbridge
R.—For South Africa
S.—Kirkee (for home)
T.—Ipswich
U.—Newbridge

Royal Field Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.
1.—Kirkee
2.—Shorncliffe
3.—Campbellpore
4.—For South Africa
5.—Athlone
6.—Cawnpore
7.—For South Africa
8.—Christchurch
9.—Limerick
10.—Woolwich
11.—Meean Meer
12.—Jullundur
13.—Natal
14.—For South Africa
15.—Meerut
16.—Kirkee
17.—Woolwich
18.—Natal
19.—Exeter
20.—Ipswich
21.—Natal
22.—Mhow
23.—Secunderabad
24.—Peshawur
25.—Bangalore
26.—Shorncliffe
27.—Neemuch
28.—Athlone
29.—Kirkee
30.—Fyzabad
31.—Hyderabad
32.—Jhansi
33.—St. Thomas' [Mount
34.—Ahmedabad
35.—Kurrachee
36.—Nusseerabad
37.—For South Africa
38.—For South Africa
39.—Hilsea
40.—Bangalore
41.—Lucknow
42.—Natal
43.—Shorncliffe
44.—Colchester
45.—St. Thomas' Mt.
46.—Dinapore
47.—Ferozepore
48.—Barrackpore
49.—Belgaum
50.—Agra
51.—Rawul Pindi
52.—Jubbulpore
53.—Natal
54.—Meerut
55.—Saugor
56.—Egypt
57.—Meean Meer
58.—Kamptee
59.—Woolwich
60.—Allahabad
61.—For South Africa
62.—Natal
63.—For South Africa
64.—Aldershot
65.—For South Africa
66.—For South Africa
67.—Natal
68.—Hilsea
69.—Natal
70.—Bareilly
71.—Mooltan
72.—Bellary
73.—For South Africa
74.—For South Africa
75.—Natal
76.—Athlone
77.—For South Africa
78.—For South Africa
79.—For South Africa
80.—Nowgong
81.—Trowbridge
82.—Exeter
83.—Colchester
84.—Newcastle
85.—Clonmel
86.—Newcastle
87.—Seaforth
88.—Weedon
89.—Hilsea
90.—Longford
91.—Waterford
92.—Birmingham
93.—Cahir
94.—Leeds
95.—Leeds

Royal Garrison Artillery.

MOUNTAIN DIVISION.

Battery.
1.—Lundi Kotal
2.—Khyra Gali
3.—Bara Gali
4.—For South Africa
5.—Kalabagh
6.—Jutogh
7.—Quetta
8.—Darjeeling
9.—Mandalay
10.—Natal

EASTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Dover).
Depôt No. 1, Dover. No. 2, Great Yarmouth.

Co.
1.—Calcutta
2.—St. Helena
3.—Rangoon (for
4.—Kurrachee [Aden)
5.—Malta (for
6.—Dover [Bermuda)
7.—(S.T.) Mooltan
8.—Aden
9.—Allahabad
10.—Shoeburyness
11.—Gibraltar
12.—Mooltan
13.—Bombay
14.—Isle of Wight
15.—Dover
16.—Egypt [Bermuda)
17.—Malta (for
18.—Gibraltar
19.—Gibraltar [Malta)
20.—Gibraltar (for
21.—Sheerness
22.—(H.) Sheerness
23.—Shoeburyness
24.—Delhi
25.—Hong Kong
26.—(S.T.) Bombay
27.—Sheerness
28.—Landguard Fort
29.—Leith Fort

SOUTHERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Portsmouth).
Depôt No. 1, Fort Rowner, Gosport. No. 2, Seaforth Barracks, Liverpool.

Co.
1.—Malta
2.—Gibraltar
3.—Portsmouth
4.—Portsmouth
5.—Agra
6.—Roorkee
7.—Weymouth
8.—Bermuda (for [Halifax, N.S.)
9.—Roorkee
10.—Portsmouth (for [Malta)
11.—Roorkee
12.—Singapore
13.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight
14.—Cork Harbour
15.—(S.T.) Ft. Grange, [Gosport
16.—Malta
17.—Malta
18.—Aden
19.—Malta
20.—(S.T.) Fort [Fareham
21.—Portsmouth
22.—Jamaica
23.—Quetta
24.—(H.) Campbell- [pore
25.—Hong Kong
26.—Gibraltar
27.—Malta
28.—Weymouth
29.—Barrackpore
30.—Portsmouth
31.—Malta
32.—Cork Harb'r (for [Gibraltar)
33.—Thobba
34.—Trincomalee
35.—Singapore
36.—Gibraltar
37.—Ceylon
38.—Hong Kong
39.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight
40.—Cork Harbour
41.—Portsmouth

WESTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Devonport).
Depôt No. 1, Citadel, Plymouth. No. 2, Scarborough.

Co.
1.—St. Lucia
2.—Pembroke Dock
3.—Bermuda (for [Halifax, N.S.)
4.—Ferozepore
5.—Rawul Pindi
6.—Dunbar
7.—Jhansi
8.—Mauritius
9.—(H) Secunderab'd
10.—Devonport
11.—Fort St. George
12.—Jersey
13.—Devonport
14.—C. of Good Hope
15.—(S.T.) Ft. Efford, [Plymouth
16.—Aden
17.—Devonport
18.—Bombay
19.—Esquimault
20.—Halifax, N.S. (for [Jamaica)
21.—Bermuda
22.—Rangoon
23.—C. of Good Hope
24.—Malta
25.—Quetta
26.—Mauritius
27.—Pembroke Dock
28.—Londonderry
29.—Fort Bovisand, [Plymouth

H. Heavy.

ROYAL MALTA ART'Y.
Malta

S.T. Siege Train.

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Co.
1st (F.) Cork Harbour
2nd (F.) Egypt
3rd (F.) Bermuda
4th (Sub.) Gosport
5th (F.) Portsmouth
6th (F.) Gibraltar
7th (Fd.) S. Africa
8th (Ry.) S. Africa
9th (F.) Chatham
10th (Ry.) S. Africa
11th (Fd.) for S. Africa
12th (Fd.) Aldershot
13th (Sur.) Clifton, [Bristol
14th (Sur.) Dublin
15th (F.) Gibraltar
16th (Sur.) Bedford
17th (Fd.) for S. Africa
18th (F.) Halifax, N.S.
19th (Sur.) Southamp- [ton
20th (F.) Gibraltar
21st (Sub.) Felixstowe
22nd (Sub.) I. of Wight
23rd (Fd.) Natal
24th (F.) Malta
25th (F.) Hong Kong
26th (Fd.) for S. Africa
27th (Sub.) Bermuda
28th (Sub.) Malta
29th (F.) Cape Town
30th (Sub.) Plymouth
31st (F.) for S. Africa
32nd (F.) Gibraltar
33rd (Sub.) Cork Harb.
34th (Sub.) Gravesend
35th (Sub.) Pembroke [Dock
36th (F.) Bermuda
37th (Fd.) Curragh
38th (Fd.) Shorncliffe
39th (Sub.) Sheerness
40th (Sub.) Halifax, [N.S.
41st (F.) Hdqrs. and ½ Co. Ceylon; ½ Co. Singapore
42nd (F.) Malta
43rd (F.) Mauritius
A (D.) Chatham
B (D.) Chatham
C (D.) Chatham
D (D.) Chatham
E (D.) Chatham
F (D.) Chatham
G (D.) Chatham
M (Sub.) Chatham
N (D.) Chatham
H Army Hqrs., India

TELEGRAPH BATN.:
1st Div., South Africa
2nd Div., 28, Newgate [Street

BRIDGING BATN.:
A Troop, for S. Africa
B Troop, Aldershot
Field Troop, for South [Africa
Field D., R.E. Troops, [Aldershot
Balloon D. and Sect., [South Africa

COAST BATTALION (Submarine Miners):

Sect.
1 (Tyne) N. Shields
2 (Severn) Cardiff
3 (Clyde) Greenock
4 (Humber) Paull
5 (Tees) Middlesbr'gh
6 (Tay) Broughty [Ferry
7 (Forth) Leith, ["Dido," hulk
8 (Mersey) Liverpool
9 (Falmouth) Falm'th
10 (Weym'th) Weym'th

LOCAL COMPANIES ABROAD:
Singapore (Sub.) [Singapore
Hong Kong (Sub.) [Hong Kong
Ceylon (Sub.) [Trincomalee
Mauritius (Sub.) [Mauritius
W. India (Sub) Jamaica
W. India (Fort.) ½ Co. Jamaica, 1 Sect.
Sierra Leone, 1 Sect.
St. Lucia.

F. Fortress. Fd. Field. Sub. Submarine. Sur. Survey. Ry. Railway. D. Depot.

* The Disposition of our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Digitized by Google

. . THE . .

International Fur Store.

GENTLEMEN'S

FUR-LINED

OVERCOATS

READY FOR IMMEDIATE

WEAR.

163 and 165, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Digitized by Google

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD.

Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET.

'War in the Transvaal!'

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD.

24, THROGMORTON STREET.

ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE.

A NATURAL TONIC.

"THE ORIGINAL ST. RAPHAEL TONIC WINE."

This Wine is prepared according to the recipes of Professors Pasteur and Bouchardat.

This Wine is the ONLY ONE USED in the Paris Hospitals for Anæmia, Debility, Convalescents, Bronchial Affections; also for Young Girls and Children.

ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE is most efficacious as a Tonic, and must not be confounded with Coca, Kola, or Quin Quina preparations, which act on the nervous system without any nourishing properties.

To Ladies Nursing is much more beneficial than Stout.

To avoid spurious imitations each bottle bears on the neck the address of the Sole Agents:

E. GALLAIS & CO. (Limited),
90, PICCADILLY, W.

ALLEN & WRIGHT,

217, Piccadilly, W. MAKERS OF 26, Poultry, E.C. (LONDON.)

Extra Quality (only) Briar Root Pipes.

TRADE A & W MARK.

Stamped on Stem of all Pipes of our manufacture.

Our Pipes have secured extensive patronage in the NAVY and ARMY on account of their FINE QUALITY and FINISH.

No. 66 (See Illustration) 10/6

Useful Companion Case in Real Morocco, containing 2 A & W silver-mounted Briars (medium size) 1 Horn and 1 Vulcanite Mouthpiece.

No. 65 - - - 9/6

Same design in smaller size pipes.

No. 66a - - - 12/6

Same design in extra large pipes.

No. 89 - - 14/-

Useful Companion Case in Real Morocco, containing 2 A & W silver-mounted Briars, 1 Horn and 1 Vulcanite Mouthpiece.

No. 123 - - 12/6

Handy Companion Case in Real Morocco, containing 2 A & W silver-mounted Briars (short stem, light sporting pipes), 1 Horn and 1 Vulcanite Mouthpiece.

ALLEN & WRIGHT'S CATALOGUE

with Illustrations of great variety of COMPANION CASES (containing 2, 3, 4, 6 and 8 Pipes) and other SPECIALITIES, POST FREE.

217, PICCADILLY, W., and 26, POULTRY, E.C. (LONDON).

A GOOD HONEST, STERLING ARTICLE.

AS MADE FOR H.M. THE QUEEN, AND REGULARLY SUPPLIED TO THE LEADING STEAMSHIP COMPANIES.

PALETHORPES'

ROYAL CAMBRIDGE

SAUSAGES.

Purity and Quality incontestable. Guaranteed made of Prime British-fed Pork at our Model Factory, splendidly equipped with our own Patent Machinery.

LARGEST MAKERS IN THE WORLD, AWARDED 10 GOLD MEDALS.

Of Grocers, Game Dealers, etc.

For name of nearest Agent write to—

PALETHORPES, Limited,
DUDLEY PORT, STAFFS.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

9, Strand, W.C.

"STRAND" Watch with Cap on.

No. 82. ALL ENGLISH.
As Half-Hunter or Full Hunting Cases, Silver, £6 6s.; 18ct. Gold, £16 16s.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published 160 pp., 400 illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138.
"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18-ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine-Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

The finest quality and value ever produced.

Crystal Glass, Silver, £5; 18-ct. Gold, £13 15s.
Special Size for Ladies, £5 15s. and £12 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be obtained on our new system of payment by Monthly Instalments.

Digitized by Google

Battle-fields of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

DEFENDING THE CITY OF DIAMONDS.

A Patrol of the Kimberley Horse Returning to Camp.

LAST week we were able to give, among what the Times calls our "up-to-date war pictures," illustrations of the battle-fields of Glencoe and Elandslaagte, with scenes near Mafeking, where the Boers encountered Baden-Powell's men and the armoured train. This week we are again enabled to give a series of similarly interesting pictures.

Everybody has heard by this time of the famous Diamond Fields Horse, a body of men equipped and maintained principally by the celebrated De Beers Mine at Kimberley, and the majority of the men composing which are drawn from the employés of that company. The manner in which these gallant fellows, with comrades of other corps, Volunteers and Regulars, have stood shoulder to shoulder in the defence of the Diamond City makes a notable picture in the history of the present struggle. A good idea of the material of which the corps is formed may be gathered from our illustration of a patrol returning to camp. These men, indeed, have played their part in rendering Kimberley, in the words of Mr. Rhodes, "as safe as Piccadilly." On October 26 an official telegram received at the War Office stated, "Armoured train got within 1,900-yds. Boer laager, three miles south Crocodile Pool." An engagement ensued, in which considerable damage was done to the Boers, and since that date there have been other engagements close to the spot shown in our illustration. The last illustration portrays a scene on the River Tugela, on which is situated the town of Colenso. Here it is that an important bridge spans the river, and along the banks runs the telegraph wire the cutting of which severed our communication with Ladysmith for a time. The Tugela must play its part in the drama now proceeding in South Africa, as it has done more than once before in the history of Natal.

ON THE RAILWAY NEAR CROCODILE POOL.

The Scene of an Armoured Train Action in Rhodesia.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

ON THE TUGELA IN NATAL—A STRATEGIC POINT OF SOME IMPORTANCE AT PRESENT.

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO
HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
And the ROYAL FAMILY.

Naval and Military Tailors and Outfitters.

56, PALL MALL, (OPPOSITE MARLBOROUGH HOUSE) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO COMPLETE AFRICAN OUTFITS.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

SMOKE

PIONEER

CIGARETTES

3D.

PER PACKET

CHAS. FRODSHAM & CO., LTD.,

115, NEW BOND ST., LONDON, W.

Watch & Clock

MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, NEW BOND ST.

LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—I quite agree with you that Ethel is rather lucky to be going out with her husband to Malta, instead of being left amongst the many sorrowing grass-widows the war has created. But at the same time I can quite understand her ambition that he should be to the front in everything, even if that means present sorrow to herself. It sounds brutal to those who know no ambition—they prefer the happiness that has no history. They may be wise, and they certainly cannot understand the power of the passion for success in life, and they never have much sympathy for it. But that it exists, and is stronger sometimes than love itself, they must see if they observe at all. But to come to Ethel and her blouses, which is to you more important. She should certainly take a great many out with her. They are worn as much as ever; but they must on all occasions harmonise, not contrast, with the skirt. On the voyage, of course, she will find them very useful, but there will be many occasions in Malta itself on which they will be invaluable. All these blouses, she should remember, must be very smart. No work should be spared in making them. Openwork stitching, piping, tucks, insertions, appliqué, all take time and trouble, but they are necessary if the blouse is to reach the standard set by present fashion. The result is so charmingly dainty and picturesque that to the clever amateur dressmaker these blouses must be quite a pleasure to make; professionals are usually too much rushed, I imagine, to enjoy a great expenditure of time in the very minute handwork that all this wealth of decoration implies. I now send you a sketch of three fascinating blouses, which I hope may give you some ideas. You must imagine that the woman in the picture is Ethel, intent on buying her outfit. The shirt she is wearing is of green silk corded. It is made in a comparatively simple fashion, as it is to be worn with a coat and skirt of cloth of the same shade of green. It has bishop sleeves finished with cuffs, which are edged with velvet and trimmed with lace. There is also a narrow vest of velvet fastened with tiny jewelled buttons and edged with bands of écru lace. This might be made in any conceivable shade of silk and velvet, but, as I must again remind you, it is all-important that this should harmonise with the colour of the coat and skirt.

THREE FASCINATING BLOUSES.

On the stands you see two other blouses, one for morning and the other for evening wear. The former is of soft silk, opening over a vest of tucked chiffon and lace, and trimmed with broad insertion and lace. The latter is of white lace over chiffon, and is to be worn over an under-bodice of silk. The chiffon may seem to you unnecessary, but it makes the greatest difference to the effect of the whole, softening it until it is infinitely more becoming. To finish off this blouse there is a loop of cerise velvet arranged in a graceful manner in the centre of the bodice and caught together with pearl ornaments.

Shawl patterns are once more very prevalent, and some of them when carried out in silk are exceedingly pretty. A blouse made in this material was very smart, being greatly improved by the introduction of white silk and pipings. The main part of the bodice was of the shawl-patterned silk, which was cut away for about 5-in. below the neck, and again down the front. It was edged with five rows of piping run quite closely together, and each reflecting some colour in the shawl pattern. The white silk, tucked all over with the tiniest of tucks, was then introduced, giving the appearance of a sort of under-bodice; whilst a long tie of black chiffon, knotted at the neck and again lower down, hung with fringed ends below the waist. These fringed ties you can introduce wherever and however you like, so that you take care to arrange them gracefully. Some are caught together without plan or design; some form a very negligé sort of sailor knot; others cut into two are fastened to the collar in little rosettes, and are loosely knotted an inch or two before they reach the waist. All these are just aimless ornaments, but for all that they are decidedly pretty and attractive. Are you one of the people who have been making pyjamas for the soldiers? I was staying in a house last week where no one did anything else but stitch at these grey-blue flannel garments. They were really quite a pretty colour, I can assure you, and I hope the men will appreciate them. There were only three days in which to make them, so you may imagine how everyone stitched. There was hardly time even for the gossip which is supposed always to attend such undertakings.

More voluntary workers are still wanted to assist the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association in distributing funds, etc. Especially in and around London is this need felt; so if you know energetic people in these districts who have not yet taken up any work, you can urge them to start local committees and otherwise busy themselves in this direction. Yours affectionately, CONSTANCE.

* Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.*

Digitized by Google

HUNTING NOVELTY.

The 'Cloutsham' Stock

(Regd.)

A COMPLETE STOCK AND CRAVAT IN ONE, WITH NO LOOSE PARTS FOR WASHING.

Price 4/6 Post Free.

—

CELLULOID STIFFENER, 6d. extra.

Coloured Cravats for Shooting, Golf, etc., made to Order only.

CRAVAT OPEN FOR WASHING.

If Coloured, or Figured White Cravats are required, send for Patterns.
For Plain White Taffeta "Cloutshams," send neck size and remittance.

Jaeger

PURE WOOL

Sporting Tailors,

42, CONDUIT ST., W.

Telegrams: "HIGHMOST, LONDON."

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for

Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

"To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull."

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:
COVERDALE POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

LEAN'S

ROYAL NAVY LIST

SUPPORTED BY THE ADMIRALTY.

CONTAINING THE

War and Meritorious Services of Officers on the Active and Retired Lists of the Royal Navy and Royal Marine Forces.

WITH ALL THE ROYAL ORDERS, MEDALS, DECORATIONS, AND HONOURS GIVEN FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICES.

The Dates of all Commissions and of all Retirements, with Dates of Birth of Flag Officers, Captains and Officers of the Royal Marines, showing at a glance their progressive rank from entrance in the Navy to the present time.

A List of Ships on Active Service, giving the Tonnage, Steam Power, and Class, with their Officers arranged in order of Seniority.

The War Services of all the Famous Battle Ships of the Royal Navy, showing the Glorious Records of our "First Line of Defence."

The Officers of the Royal Indian Marine, the Australasian Naval Defence Forces, and of the Royal Naval Reserve. A complete Alphabetical List of all Officers, both active and retired, in the Royal Navy and Royal Marines, and of all officers in the Royal Indian Marine and Royal Naval Reserve.

An Exhaustive List of all the Civil Departments of the British Admiralty.

PUBLISHED QUARTERLY (500 PAGES) PRICE 7/6, POST FREE.

Annual Subscriptions (payable in advance), £1 7s. 6d., post free.

LONDON: WITHERBY & CO., PUBLISHERS, 326, HIGH HOLBORN, W.C.

☞ Officers are earnestly requested to send at once their special services to the Editor.

THE

ARMY ASSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

LIFE. War Risks. World-wide.
ACCIDENTS. Residence abroad.
FIRE. Residence abroad.
BURGLARY.
HORSES.
MARINE RISKS.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison, or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing, without endorsement or removal.

Life Premiums payable quarterly, if desired.

Refund of Income Duty obtained, by arrangement with the War Office, on sums paid for Life and Accident Insurances.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due.

Apply for Prospectus,

MANAGER, 217 Piccadilly (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.),

BRANCH OFFICE: 9, UNION STREET, ALDERSHOT.
NAVAL BRANCH: 15, PEMBROKE ROAD, PORTSMOUTH.

Digitized by Google

Fry's

PURE CONCENTRATED

Cocoa

"The cocoa drinking season is now upon us," Ex-Military Attaché writes, "and Fry's is the most popular in military messes. It is always too good to be advertised down. I always carry some of it in my portmanteau when travelling, and make a cup with my hot shaving water immediately my valet brings it to my bedroom. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught drink Fry's Cocoa, and so do most of the upper ten thousand."—Aldershot Review.

Instantly Opened and Focussed.

Instantly Closed for Pocket.

THE MOST USEFUL CLASS IN EXISTENCE. CAN BE CARRIED IN THE WAISTCOAT POCKET. DOES NOT WEICH MORE THAN AN ORDINARY WATCH

THE "AITCHISON" PATENT

POCKET BINOCULAR FIELD GLASS.

AITCHISON & Co., 428, STRAND,

ALSO AT

47, FLEET ST., 6, POULTRY, & 46, FENCHURCH ST., LONDON.

Important Testimony from THE UNITED STATES WAR DEPT.

Capt. CRAIG, War Dept., Washington, United States, writes: "I am directed by the Chief Signal Officer of the United States Army to say that Aitchison's Patent Pocket Field Glasses are found to be extremely convenient and portable, and of good service."

No. 1, Achromatic, 6 Lenses,

£3:3:0

No. 2, Achromatic, 12 Lenses,

HIGHER POWER.

£5:5:0

Complete in Soft Leather Purse Case.
Hard Leather Sling Case, 5s. extra.

CARRIAGE PAID TO ANY PART OF THE WORLD.

NEW ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST POST FREE.

BAYLISS JONES & BAYLISS'

EXTRA STRONG UNCLIMBABLE ANGLE-IRON RAILING, No. 1101.

AT LOW PRICES.

ALSO MAKERS OF DOG, POULTRY AND LAWN TENNIS FENCING.

UNCLIMBABLE GALVANIZED CORRUGATED SHEET IRON FENCING.

LISTS FREE.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF ALL KINDS OF HURDLES, FENCING, GATES, &c., FREE.

VICTORIA WORKS, WOLVERHAMPTON.

LONDON OFFICES AND SHOW ROOMS—139 & 141, CANNON STREET, E.C.

Digitized by Google

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 83—87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. Editorial Offices, 19, Tavistock Street, London W.C.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18th, 1899.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 146.

London & Paris Exchange, Ltd.
Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET.

"WAR IN THE TRANSVAAL!"

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.
ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:
LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, Ltd.,
24, THROGMORTON STREET

W. CATER & Co.,
To Her Majesty the Queen.
H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family.

NAVAL AND MILITARY
Tailors and Outfitters,
56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.
ESTABLISHED 1776.
Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

HÔTEL MÉTROPOLE LONDON
"THE MOST COMFORTABLE HOTEL IN THE WORLD."
NEW ILLUSTRATED TARIFF SENT ON APPLICATION.
SPLENDID POSITION, FINE CUISINE, CHOICE WINES.
GORDON HOTELS, Ltd.

LEA & PERRIN'S SAUCE.
Lea & Perrins
Is printed in BLUE ink across the outside wrapper of every bottle of
THE ORIGINAL WORCESTERSHIRE.
AVOID CHEAP COPIES.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
THE LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON.
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
9/- TO 16/6 PER DAY.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY

AT THIS

AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;

£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo.

and every other sound reproduced.

IT IS

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,

£2 2 0

THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.,
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
} LONDON.

THREEPENCE EACH, AT ALL RESPECTABLE TOBACCONISTS.

SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

EXQUISITE MILD FLAVOUR AND MOST DELICATE AROMA;

ALSO

FLOR DE DINDIGUL CIGARETTES (all tobacco leaf, no paper), a delightful wholesome Whiff, 1d. each. Sole Importers, BEWLAY & Co., LTD., 49, 74, and 156, Strand, and 143, Cheapside. Established 1780. Price lists, post free

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette.")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 146. Saturday, November 18th, 1899.

DR. GEORGE HORATIO JONES

The Old-Established Surgeon-Dentist of

57, Great Russell Street

(directly facing the British Museum),

May be consulted daily, as usual, for the best English and American Dentistry. Moderate Fees, Extension of premises, Great Russell Mansions, next door.
See name under "Dentists," Post Office Directory.

The ART of . .

Graceful Horse Riding

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort or Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. En Pension from 10 francs. South sea view; nearest golf links.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS

and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards or saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8 p.m. "An Interrupted Honeymoon."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps.'
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Moonlight Blossom."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "In Old Kentucky."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "Capt. Birchell's Luck."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "A Greek Slave."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "Sons of the Empire."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "Orlando Dando." Sat. 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "The Tyranny of Tears."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2 p.m. "The Circus Girl."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cheer, Boys, Cheer."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Gentleman Joe." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "The Swiss Express."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Three Musketeers." Wed. 2.30.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "The Only Way."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "One of the Best."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Serving the Queen."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 8 p.m. "The Liars."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "How London Lives."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "A Woman's Revenge."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "Gentleman Joe."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "One of the Best."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junct'n, S.W., 8 p.m. "Miss Chiquita."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The English Woman."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH and MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.

(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London"

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP

THE J. B. WILLIAMS CO., Glastonbury, Conn.

Dear Sirs:—

I enclose a picture taken by me at one of the leading hairdressers in this city yesterday. While awaiting "my turn," the old gentleman in the chair entered and asked if he could be shaved. Being told that he could, he asked what soap they used, and said if they didn't use WILLIAMS' Soap he would go elsewhere. He stated that he was ninety-three years old, and had used nothing but WILLIAMS' Soap for more than half of his life. That many years ago his face had been badly poisoned in a shop where one of the so-called cheap soaps was used, and he had suffered agonies. He at once quit that shop and went to one where WILLIAMS' Soap was always used. Since then he had fought shy of all hairdressers who did not use "WILLIAMS' SOAP."

Very Respectfully, J. W. URQUHART,
Detroit, Mich.

MORAL: Protect yourself by insisting that your barber uses WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP. Accept no substitute from dealers, if you shave yourself. Williams' Soaps are sold all over the world.

Sold by chemists, hairdressers and perfumers all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

Williams' Shaving Sticks, 1s. Williams' Luxury Shaving Tablets, 1s.
Williams' American Shaving Tablets, 6d. Williams' "Jersey Cream" Toilet Soap, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp by addressing—

THE J. B. WILLIAMS CO., 64 Great Russell Street, London, W. C., or 161 Clarence Street, Sydney.
Chief Offices and Laboratories,—Glastonbury, Conn., U. S. A.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.

writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.

"I have now prescribed them for the "last 8 years in my hospitals and private "practice, and find them of great benefit. "I certainly and most strongly "recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"THREE THINGS THAT WOMEN HIGHLY HOLD."

Exquisite Models. Perfect Fit. Guaranteed Wear.

The Y & N DIAGONAL SEAM

"No shape but this can please your dainty eye."

Will not split in the Seams, nor tear in the Fabric.

Made in White, Black, and all the fashionable Colours and Shades, in Italian Cloth, Satin and Coutil.

4/11, 5/11, 6/11, 7/11

per pair and upwards.

THREE GOLD MEDALS.

"Admirably modelled, exquisitely neat and strong."—Queen.

"The most comfortable corset ever made."—Ladies' Pictorial.

"The best make of corsets is the Y & N Diagonal Seam."—Gentlewoman.

CAUTION.—See that the REGISTERED TRADE MARK "Y. & N. Diagonal Seam," is imprinted on every Corset and on every Box. No others are genuine.

Sold by the principal Drapers and Ladies' Outfitters throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies.

The "Osman" TURKISH TOWELS AND BATH MATS.

MADE BY

Barlow & Jones,

Limited.

MANCHESTER,
LONDON
AND BOLTON.

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

ENCORE RAZOR

SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co.,
Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,
who will supply through nearest Agents.

Country Life Illustrated,

VOL. V.

Printed on Art Paper.

Cloth, Gilt Edges, 21s. ea.; or Half-Morocco, 25s. ea.

Vols. 1, 2, 3 & 4 (Nos. 1 to 104) are out of print.

OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, W.C.

BATH, THE QUEEN OF SPAS.

THIS City of Unrivalled Hot Mineral Springs is the Finest Health Resort in Europe.

Magnificent Suite of Baths.

Latest appliances for the Nauheim (Thermalsoolbad) Treatment.

FINE ROMAN REMAINS.
CHARMING SCENERY. GOOD HOTELS.
BEAUTIFUL PARKS.
BAND PERFORMANCES DAILY.

Write to Baths' Manager for Illustrated work, Bath as a Health Resort. Price One Shilling.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: "Run on the Rocks" ...	217
The Heroes We Mourn. Photographs of the Officers Killed in South Africa	218
The Naval Guns at Ladysmith. Blue-jackets at Gun Drill. (Illustrated)	219
The Disaster at Darjeeling. (Illustrated)	220
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	221
Editorial Notices; The Navy and Army Diary	222
Notes and Queries for Everyone... ...	222
The Queen's Shilling. (Illustrated) ...	223
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	224
With the Troops at the Front. Illustrated by Photographs Taken by Special Correspondents at Dundee, Ladysmith, etc....	225
More Embarkations. Troops Departing for the Front. (Illustrated) ...	228
The Homecoming of the 21st Lancers. (Illustrated)	230
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Eight Illustrations)	231
"Bunter's Cruise: A Tale of the New Navy." By Charles Gleig. Illustrated by T. S. C. Crowther ...	233
Cruisers as Troop-ships	235
A Veteran of the Sea	235
The Story of the War	236
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	236
Our Colonial Forces: New Zealand. Part VI. (Illustrated)	237
Small-Arm Training for the Sea Service. The New Rifle Range at Malta. (Illustrated)...	239
Three Old Ocean Warriors. Wooden Walls with Histories. (Illustrated)	240

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Third Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY IN HOME WATERS.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. h. Hulk. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. g.v. Gun Vessel. y. Yacht. T. Tender. s.s. Survey Ship. d.s. Depot-ship. P. Portsmouth. D. Devonport. C. Chatham. S. Sheerness. i. Instructional Torpedo Flotilla. c.g. Coast Guard. p.g. Port Guard. W.I. Whale Island.

Agincourt, cr.	Com. D. St. A. Wake	T. to Boscawen
Alarm, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. Powley	T. to Galatea, c.g.
Albacore, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. J. W. Steward	Ireland [Albert
Alberta, y.	Staff-Capt. G. A. Broad	T. to Victoria and
Alexandra, B.	Capt. Count F. C. Metaxa, A.D.C. (Vice-Adml. Sir Compton E Domvile, K.C.B.).	Portland, c.g.
Algiers, h.	Capt. G. L. Atkinson, A.D.C. (Rear-Adml. S. C. Holland).	Medway Reserve C.
Antelope, t.g.b.	Com. O. A. Stokes	Portishead (R.N.R)
Ariel, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. O. G. Webster	T. to Pembroke, i.
Arrogant, cr.	Capt. A. W. E. Protheroe	Channel Squadron
Asia, h.	Capt. A. A. C. Parr (Rear-Admiral P. Aldrich).	Portsmouth [Reserves
Australia, cr.	Capt. J. M. McQuhae, C.B.	S'th'pton Wr., c.g.
Bat, t.b.d.	Com. A. L. Duff	T. to Vivid, i.
Benbow, B.	Capt. R. P. Humpage	Greenock, c.g.
Black Prince, cr.	Com. W. J. Grogan	Queenstown (boys)
Boscawen, h.	Capt. T. H. M. Jerram	Portland (boys)
Britannia, h.	Capt. Hon. A. G. Curzon-Howe, C.B., C.M.G.	Dartmouth (cadets)
Briton, h.	Lieut.-Com. A. C. Spearman	Inverness (R.N.R.)
Caledonia, h.	Com. J. G. Hewitt	Queensferry (boys)
Calliope, cr.	Capt. H. P. Routh	T. to Northampton
Cambrian, cr.	Capt. R. K. McAlpine	Training Squadron
Cambridge, h.	Capt. R. W. Craigie	Gunnery School, D.
Circe, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. G. S. Q. Carr, C.M.G.	T. to Severn, c.g.
Clyde, h.	Com. J. P. Montgomery	Aberdeen (R.N.R.)
Collingwood, B.	Capt. F. W. Fisher	Bantry, c.g.
Colossus, B.	Capt. S. A. Johnson	Holyhead, c.g.
Conqueror, B.		T. to Cambridge
Crane, t.b.d.	Com. T. D. W. Napier	T. to Victory, i.
Curacoa, cr.	Com. H. Lyon	T. to Northampton
Curlew, g.v.		T. to Cambridge
Cygnet, t.b.d.	Com. M. E. F. Kerr	T. to Pembroke, i.
Dædalus, h.	Lieut.-Com. B. C. Barber	Bristol (R.N.R.)
Defiance, h.	Capt. F. T. Hamilton	Torpedo School, D.
Diadem, cr.	Capt. H. S. F. Niblett	Channel Squadron
D. of Wellingt'n, h.	Capt. J. L. Hammet	Depôt Ship, P.
Durham, h.	Lieut.-Com. W. F. Forrest	Leith (R.N.R.)
Eagle, h.	Com. C. E. Gladstone	Liverpool (R.N.R.)
Edinburgh, B.	Com. W. G. Van Ingen	T. to Wildfire [(Gunnery School)
Elfin, y.	Staff-Com. J. E. Tully	T. to Victoria and [Albert
Enchantress, y.	Staff-Capt. P. D. Ouless	Admiralty Yacht, P
Excellent	Capt. W. H. May, M.V.O.	Gunnery Sch., W.I.
Fawn, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. K. Laird	T. to Victory, i.
Ferret, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. S. A. Perry-Ayscough	T. to Vivid, i.
Fire Queen, y.	Staff-Capt. T. Hawkins Smith	T. to Victory
Flirt, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Thomas	T. to Victory
Flying Fish, t.b.d.	Com. M. Singer	T. to Victory, i.
Furious, cr.	Capt. L. E. Wintz	Channel Squadron
Galatea, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cross	Hull, c.g.
Ganges, h.	Com. W. V. Anson	Harwich (boys)
Gleaner, t.g.b.	Com. F. H. Peyton	Gravesend (R.N.R)
Gossamer, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. T. Cole	T. to Melampus, c.g.
Hannibal, B.	Capt. Sir B. W. Walker, Bart., C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Haughty, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. La T. Leatham	T. to Pembroke, i.
Hearty, g.b.	Com. H. G. King Hall, D.S.O.	North Sea [(fisheries)
Hecla	Com. W. J. Scullard (N)	Torpedo Depôt, P.
Hero, B.	Com. W. de Salis	T. to Excellent
Howe, B.	Captain E. H. M. Davis, C.M.G. (Rear-Adml. A. P. M. Lake).	Queenstown, p.g.
Impregnable, h.	Capt. A. C. B. Bromley	Devonport (boys)
Indus, h.	Capt. W. Marrack (Rear-Adml. T. S. Jackson).	D'nport Reserves
Jackal, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Tancred	Coast of Scotland [(fisheries)
Janus, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Corbett	T. to Pembroke
Jaseur, t.g.b.	Com. W. Carey	T. to Vernon
Jason, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Bruce	Particular Service
Juno, cr.	Capt. G. H. Cherry	Training Squadron
Jupiter, B.	Capt. J. Durnford, C.B., D.S.O.	Channel Squadron
Kite, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. P. W. Hope	T. to Excellent
Landrail, g.v.		T. to Wildfire
Leda, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. V. Maud	T. to Australia, c.g.
Liberty, brig.	Lieut.-Com. C. H. Morgan	T. to Lion
Lightning, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. C. O. Mansergh	T. to Victory, i.
Lion, h.	Com. E. G. Shortland	Devonport (boys)
Lynx, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Holland	T. to Vivid
Magnet, tug.	Lieut.-Com. J. Webber	T. to Victory
Magnificent, B.	Capt. J. Ferris (Rear-Adml. A. D. Fanshawe).	Channel Squadron
Majestic, B.	Capt. G. Le C. Egerton, C.B. (Vice-Admiral Sir H. H. Rawson, K.C.B.).	Channel Squadron
Mars, B.	Capt. H. J. May, C.B.	Channel Squadron
Martin, brig.	Lieut.-Com. S. M. Agnew	T. to St. Vincent
Medea, cr.	Com. C. G. May	S'th'pton (R.N.R.)
Medusa, cr.	Com. A. L. K. Knapton	N. Shields (R.N.R)
Melampus, cr.	Capt. R. N. Gresley	Kingstown, c.g.
Mermaid, t.b.d.	Com. J. M. de Robeck	T. to Pembroke, i.
Minerva, cr.	Capt. F. O. Pike	Training Squadron
Minotaur, cr.	Com. E. G. Barton	T. to Boscawen
Nautilus, brig	Lieut.-Com. H. H. D. Tothill	T. to Impregnable
Nile, B.	Capt. G. C. Langley	Devonport, p.g.
Niobe, cr.	Capt A. L. Winsloe	Channel Squadron
Northampton, cr.	Capt. H. A. W. Onslow	Recruiting Service
Northumberl'd, cr.	Com. C. E. Tower	Depôt Ship, C.
Onyx, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. Oliver	T. to Severn, c.g.
Osborne, y.	Capt. C. Windham	Royal Yacht, P.
Pactolus, cr.	Capt. F. J. Foley	Channel Squadron
Panther, t.b.d.	Com. J. I. Graham	T. to Vivid, i.
Pelorus, c.	Capt. H. C. B. Hulbert	Channel Squadron
Pembroke, h.	Capt. A. Macleod	Medway Res'ves, C
Pilot, brig	Lieut.-Com. W. J. S. Alderson	T. to Impregnable
Porcupine, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. C. P. Beaty-Pownall	T. to Pembroke
President, h.	Com. A. C. Woods	W.I. Docks (R.N.R)
Prince George, B.	Capt. A. Barrow	Channel Squadron
Racer, sloop	Com. M. N. Beatty (N)	T. to Britannia
Raven, g.b.	Com. A. Meldrum	Channel Islands
Renard, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. H. Eyre	T. to Colossus, c.g.
Repulse, B.	Capt. R. F. O. Foote, C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Research, s.	Capt. W. U. Moore	Home Waters
Resolution, B.	Capt. C. R Arbuthnot	Channel Squadron
Rodney, B.	Capt. G. W. Russell	Queensferry, c.g.
St. George, cr.	Com. E. V. Poe, M.V.O., A.D.C.	Training Squadron
St. Vincent, h.	Com. C. F. Thursby	Portsmouth (boys)
Sans Pareil, B.	Capt. H. C. Bigge	Sheerness, p.g.
Seaflower, brig.	Lieut.-Com. E. G. H. Gamble	T. to Boscawen
Seagull, t.g.b.	Com. H. Grant-Dalton	Particular Service
Seahorse, s.	Staff-Com. G. S. Keigwin	Home Waters
Seal, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. A. J. Payne	T. to Vivid, i.
Severn, cr.	Capt. W. L. H. Browne	Harwich, c.g.
Shark, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. E. Corbett	T. to Vivid, i.
Sheldrake, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. H. Curteis	T. to Rodney
Spanker, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. H. E. F. Worthington	T. to Alexandra, c.g.
Star, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. F. W. Kinahan	T. to Victory, i.
Starfish, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. G. Corbett	T. to Victory, i.
Sturgeon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. Luce	T. to Pembroke
Swordfish, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. Tibbets	T. to Pembroke
Thrasher, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. T. D. Pratt	T. to Vivid, i.
Thunderer, B.	Capt. J. E. Blaxland	Pembroke, p.g.
Trafalgar, B.	Capt. H. L. F. Royle, D.S.O.	Portsmouth, p.g.
Traveller, tug	Lieut.-Com. R. A. Cathie	T. to Vivid
Triton, s.	Capt. G. E. Richards	Home Waters
Unicorn, h.	Lieut.-Com. E. L. Austen	Dundee (R.N.R.)
Vernon, h.	Capt. C. G. Robinson	Torpedo School, P.
Vesuvius, g.b.	Lt.-Com. F. C. U. V. Wentworth	T. to Vernon
Victoria & Albert, y.	R.-Adml. Sir J. R. T. Fullerton, K.C.V.O., C.B., A.D.C.	Royal Yacht, P.
Victory, h.	Capt. F. C. B. Bridgeman (Adml. Sir M. Culme-Seymour, Bart., G.C.B.).	Portsmouth
Violet, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. B. Sparks	T. to Victory
Vivid, y.	Capt. H. T. Grenfell (Adml. Sir H. Fairfax, K.C.B.).	Devonport
Wanderer, barque	Lieut.-Com. L. de W. Satow	T. to Boscawen
Wildfire, y.	Capt. C. Campbell, C.B., D.S.O. (Admiral Sir N. Bowden-Smith, K.C.B.).	Sheerness
Wolf, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. C. Kemble-Lambert.	T. to Vivid
Wye, s.	Staff-Com. C. R. H. Robinson	Particular Service

THE NAVY.—Numerous illustrations have appeared in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of nearly all the ships in Her Majesty's Fleet. Lists can be obtained on application.

Digitized by Google

The Best Children's Chromo Presentation Books of the Season.

Size, Royal 4to, (or 12½ by 9½ inches), handsomely bound in stiff picture boards, cloth backs, 3s. 6d. each.

Pictures for Little Englanders.—Pictured by A. S. Forrest, and Verses by Frank Green. (A companion book to Mrs. Ames' "A B C for Baby Patriots.")

"A B C for Baby Patriots" was styled by the trade and the Press as being the best and smartest book of the season, but we think "Pictures for Little Englanders" even beats that.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

I am ready, aye ready!
Let foeman advance;
I can easily vanquish
Six soldiers from France.

A reduction of one of the coloured pictures from "Little Englanders."

The Gimcrack Jingle Alphabet.—Drawn by Ingles Rhode, author and artist of "The Pickletons," which was one of the most successful books published last year.

Eminent art critics are of opinion that the drawings in this book surpass even those of "The Pickletons."

T Thomas a Tattamus took two T's,
To tie two tubs to two tall trees.
Tell me quickly, if you please,
How many T's there are in these.

A B C for Baby Patriots.—By Mrs. Ernest Ames. New edition now ready.

This alphabet is composed of amusing topical verses, ably illustrated by full-page coloured plates. These are as vivid in their colouring as they are the most humorous in conception, and the book bids fair to be the most successful gift book of modern times. The drawings are exceptionally clever, and the colouring a distinct novelty. The verses are also exceedingly smart.

A reduction in one printing of one of the coloured pictures from "A B C for Baby Patriots."

D is the Daring
We show on the field,
Which makes every enemy
Vanish or yield.

The Pickletons.—Told and drawn by Ingles Rhode.

This exceedingly clever and amusingly-illustrated story consists of twenty-four pages of coloured illustrations, which are masterpieces of Mr. Ingles Rhode's art and humour.

A rriving at a seaport town
They haunt the landing stages;
Until a captain, hoarse and brown,
Their services engages.

London: DEAN & SON, Ltd., 160a, Fleet Street, E.C.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, Ltd., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian Ales.

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

The International Sleeping Car Co.

TRAINS DE LUXE.

CALAIS TO NICE, MONTE CARLO, AND SAN REMO. Every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and SUNDAY. (Until Dec. 10, on Mondays & Fridays Only.

CALAIS TO ROME. Every Tuesday and Thursday. (Tuesdays Only Till Jan. 11.)

And Three other Daily Services to the SOUTH.

Full and detailed information sent gratis, and all Tickets supplied at the Company's Chief London Offices, 14, COCKSPUR STREET, S.W.

The Official Guide and Time Book of the Company, "THE CONTINENTAL TRAVELLER," sent post free on application.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING OF OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passengers Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

RED WHITE AND BLUE FRENCH COFFEE

SOLD EVERYWHERE

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices rom 2rd. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries, PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE, AND COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising Every Requisite for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered.
	Children's	1s. 3d.
	Ladies'	2s. 3d.
	Gents'	3s. 3d.
Hemstitched.
	Ladies'	2s. 9d.
	Gents'	3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d. per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

"STRAND" Watch with Cap on.

No. 82. ALL ENGLISH.
As Half-Hunter or Full Hunting Cases, Silver, £6 6s.; 18ct. Gold, £16 16s.

9, Strand, W.C.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published 160 pp., 400 illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138.
"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18-ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine-Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

The finest quality and value ever produced.

Crystal Glass, Silver, £5; 18-ct, Gold, £13 15s.

Special Size for Ladies, £5 15s. and £12 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be obtained on our new system of payment by Monthly Instalments.

Digitized by Google

Battle-fields of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

WE are now able to add to our series four pictures of places which are greatly in the public mind. Fort Tuli is the outpost of Rhodesia, on the north side of the Transvaal, beyond the Limpopo, where Colonel Plumer has been keeping the Boers well occupied. His column was formed early in October, and he had an outpost affair at Rhodes's Drift across the Limpopo on October 23, in which Captain Blackburn, of the Cameronians, and three men were killed. Since the communications were cut news has been scanty from the gallant officer, but there have been persistent reports of his advance southward to reinforce Mafeking. At the end of last week news reached London that on November 2 a small convoy of Plumer's column was attacked by the Boers, who captured it, and six men were reported missing. Lobatsi, of which we illustrate the railway station on the Bechuanaland railway, was one of the first places occupied by the Boers, who on October 13 destroyed the railway bridge at Aasvogel Kop near there, thus cutting Plumer's communications with Mafeking.

FORT TULI.
Colonel Plumer's Frontier Post in Rhodesia.

Another illustration is of the market square at the latter place, where Colonel Baden-Powell is making a defence that will long be memorable. There has, perhaps, never been a better example of soldier-like courage and resource than the heroic defenders of Mafeking have displayed in their vigorous sorties and the measures they have taken to resist assault, and all with a light heart that has had a breezy effect even on people at home, who began with some fear for the stout little garrison there. Our last illustration is of one of the most important strategic points—the Orange River bridge between Kimberley and De Aar.

LOBATSI.
One of the First Places Occupied by the Boers

THE MARKET SQUARE, MAFEKING.
Where Business is Conducted Regardless of Bombardment.

Photos Copyright. THE ORANGE RIVER BRIDGE, HOPETOWN. "Navy & Army."
One of the Most Important Strategic Points.

Colonel Kinkaid, the commandant at Hopetown, believes that the bridge will withstand efforts at demolition. It is constructed of iron girders supported upon eighteen concrete pillars, and is about 300-yds. long. In our illustration the river is low, but now it has risen and is in flood.

Works that are regarded as impregnable have been raised commanding the bridge, Colonel Kincaid having been assisted by Majors Coleridge and Jackson and Captains Mills and Boileau. The plain is a perfect battle-field, and the men are full of fight.

Digitized by Google

SMITH, ELDER & CO.'S LIST.

IMPORTANT NEW WORK BY THE AUTHOR OF "DEEDS THAT WON THE EMPIRE."
In 4 vols., crown 8vo. With Portraits, Facsimiles, and Plans. 6s each

HOW ENGLAND SAVED EUROPE:
THE STORY OF THE GREAT WAR (1793-1815).

By W. H. FITCHETT, LL.D.,
Author of "Deeds that Won the Empire," "Fights for the Flag," etc.

VOL. I., FROM THE LOW COUNTRIES TO EGYPT, IS READY, and the remaining volumes will be published at intervals.

By THE SAME AUTHOR.

FIGHTS FOR THE FLAG. Second Edition. With 16 Portraits, 13 Plans, and a Facsimile Letter of the Duke of Marlborough. Crown 8vo, 6s.

Review of Reviews.—"This is the second volume of the series which has achieved one of the greatest literary successes of our time. . . . As a gift book, or as a book to take up and read at odd moments, or to devour at a prolonged sitting, this book has few equals."

DEEDS THAT WON THE EMPIRE. TENTH EDITION. With 16 Portraits and 11 Plans. Crown 8vo, 6s.

Spectator.—"Not since Macaulay ceased to write has English literature produced a writer capable of infusing such life and vigour into historical scenes. The wholesome and manly tone of Mr. Fitchett's book is specially satisfactory. . . . The book cannot but take the reader by storm wherever it finds him."

NEW WORK BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE CRUISE OF THE 'CACHALOT.'"
With Eight full-page Illustrations, specially drawn by Arthur Twidle. Large post 8vo, 8s. 6d.

THE LOG OF A SEA WAIF:

Being Recollections of the First Four Years of my Sea Life. By FRANK T. BULLEN, F.R.G.S., Author of "The Cruise of the 'Cachalot.'" "Idylls of the Sea," etc.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

THE CRUISE OF THE "CACHALOT." Round the World after Sperm Whales. The Volume includes a Letter to the Author from RUDYARD KIPLING. FOURTH EDITION. With 8 Illustrations and a Chart, large post 8vo, 8s. 6d.

World.—"Without exception one of the most charming sea-stories which it has been our luck to peruse for many a long day."

Bookman.—"Here is a glorious salt-sea book, true every word of it, and thrilling with adventure. . . . The spirit of daring is there, and plenty of adventure. . . . It is not a juvenile book, but boys will revel in it, and men who have still some of their boyish sympathies intact, will find it as refreshing as an ocean holiday."

THE WAY THEY HAVE IN THE NAVY. Being a Day-to-Day Record of the Recent Naval Manœuvres. Crown 8vo, in paper cover, 1s.; or in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Spectator.—"We recommend it most heartily, and without any misgiving."

LONDON: SMITH, ELDER & CO., 15, WATERLOO PLACE.

SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & CO.'S

NAVAL & MILITARY PUBLICATIONS

NOW READY.

"THE BRITISH ARMY"

This handsome and entirely new royal 8vo work on the British Army, contains 27 full-page Plates, thirteen being in colours, giving the uniforms of the different Regiments, with Portraits of Officers and many other Illustrations. The work is written by a Lieutenant-Colonel in the British Army, and has an Introduction by Major-General F. MAURICE, C.B., commanding the Woolwich Division, who describes the work as "The most recent and accurate account of the Army as it is."

The Publishers thought it would be appropriate to bind this work in the actual material used for the Uniforms of our Soldiers in South Africa, etc., known as

"KHAKI"

The price of this most timely Work on our Army is 12s. 6d. net.

DEDICATED TO THE BRITISH ARMY.

Two Vols., 8vo, 36s. net. Uniform with the Two-Volume Edition of Mahan's "NELSON."

THE LIFE OF WELLINGTON

The Restoration of the Martial Power of Great Britain.
By the Right Hon. Sir HERBERT MAXWELL, M.P., Bart., F.R.S.
Profusely Illustrated with Maps, Battle Plans, Photogravures, etc.

This Memoir covers both the military and civil career of the Duke. . . . In respect to the campaign of Waterloo, about which such abundant controversy has arisen, full advantage has been taken of the researches of recent writers—French, German, American and English. . . . The present Duke has afforded Sir Herbert Maxwell full facility for examining many MSS. revealing motives hitherto obscure, and explain conduct hitherto misinterpreted or imperfectly understood. Besides this important source of information, the confidential correspondence of the Duke of Wellington with the second Marquess and Marchioness of Salisbury, and her Ladyship's journals have been placed at the author's disposal by the present Marquess of Salisbury, and will be found to contain a great deal of most interesting matter.

Illustrated Prospectus sent post free on application. [Ready shortly.

THE DOWNFALL OF SPAIN

Naval History of the Spanish-American War.
By H. W. WILSON, Author of "Ironclads in Action,"
Demy 8vo, with numerous full-page Illustrations, Maps, Charts, and Battle Plans. 14s. net.
Ready Shortly.

OUR NAVY FOR A THOUSAND YEARS

(King Alfred to Khartoum.)
By Captain S. EARDLEY-WILMOT.
With many Illustrations of Ships, showing their progressive stages from century to century. Illustrated. Crown 8vo, cloth, 6s. Nearly Ready.

Now Ready. In One Vol. of over 750 pages. Price 12s. 6d. net. The New, Revised, and much Cheaper Edition of

CAPT. MAHAN'S LIFE OF NELSON

With New Preface by Captain MAHAN.

The Illustrations and Battle Plans as in the two vol. 36s. Edition (still in print), and an ENTIRELY NEW CHART, giving the general lines of Nelson's Cruisings, 1777 to 1805, with Crossed Flags in Red, indicating his chief Battles.

"A cheap edition of this masterpiece is a national benefit. Captain Mahan is a most accomplished naval critic of the day, and he has traced the development of Nelson's powers and described his successive victories in a way that makes this book a professional classic."—QUARTERLY REVIEW.

 A Complete List of New Books sent post free on application.

LONDON: SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & CO., LTD.
ST. DUNSTAN'S HOUSE, FETTER LANE, FLEET STREET, E.C.

A GRAPHIC, ACCURATE, AND CAREFULLY PREPARED ILLUSTRATED NARRATIVE

OF

THE BOER WAR

will appear in the NEW ISSUE of

Battles of the Nineteenth Century of which PART I. is Now Ready, price 7d., including

A LARGE MAP IN COLOURS OF THE SEAT OF THE WAR.

Part 1. has already been reprinted to meet the immense demand. Orders for Part 2 (ready Nov. 24th), in which the narrative of the Boer War will be commenced, should be registered at once.

CASSELL & COMPANY, Ltd., and all Booksellers.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—You will not be surprised to hear that Esther has been with me for the last hour, sitting in my biggest arm-chair, and talking. As I expected, she has come up to town in a hurry, "because she likes to be in the centre of things." She wants to hear the latest news at the very moment it is published. It was too trying to stand dawdling about waiting for the paper every morning, as was inevitable in the country, so she packed up and came to town, and here she will remain—until Christmas, at any rate. I am very glad to see her again, bringing with her so much life and freshness that she is quite invigorating, like a breath of air from the country, which she so despises for the moment; and if Esther does take things in a superficial, light manner, it is rather a relief when everyone else is so serious and anxious. She looks very pretty, too, in her fashionable long sealskin that reaches right to the ground and is beautifully trimmed with sable and ermine. You will see in the sketch I send you how it is made, with the ermine arranged as a high storm-collar and revers as wide, the sable edging them in soft narrow bands and then widening out to form a sort of shaped flounce. It suits her so well, with ruffles of fine old lace about the neck, and a picturesque velvet hat trimmed with a knot of pale blue velvet and a long ostrich feather.

This sort of coat would be capital for anyone going out to a cold station such as Halifax. I cannot imagine anything more delightful than to find oneself sleighing, dressed in luxurious furs of that description. No frost, however severe, no wind, however biting, could do much against such a wealth of warm clothing. For walking, of course it is quite impossible to wear these long coats—they are far too heavy; but there are short tight-fitting ones that are smart and very useful for that purpose. They are seen in sealskin, astrachan, caracule, and mink, and nearly every case they are trimmed with some contrasting fur. To-day I saw one of sealskin trimmed with chinchilla which was charmingly pretty, whilst a black caracule made with open fronts, showing a waistcoat of white caracule, was very becoming. Some of the fur coats are relieved by the introduction of velvet, the latter being let in as a sort of insertion in some cases, just a touch of it on the cuffs and down the front; or, again, it is added as appliqué on the fur. One little coat of black caracule had this appliqué in white velvet, which was finely embroidered with coloured silks. Very smart, indeed, it was, though I did not really admire it; the contrast was too strong; but, when the same fur had green velvet insertions, the mixture was quite worthy of praise, the brightness of the moss-green showing delicately amongst the black, and making a most charming effect. Fur capes are all lined with delicate shades of silk or with white satin. A very handsome arrangement of sable was not only lined with pale mauve, but it had also a yoke of the same colour finely tucked, the yoke itself being surmounted by a high collar of fur.

A FUR COAT.

Esther, in spite of her light-heartedness, has a good many friends at the front, and one or two amongst those at Pretoria. I agree with her that it must be irritating for them to be out of everything until the end of the war, unless they are lucky enough to be exchanged as were a few last week. She was wishing she could send out to them one of Edison's Bell phonographs with all the latest songs from the best musical pieces, with Mrs. Tree reciting "The Absent-minded Beggar" at the Palace, and with just a few of the most inspiriting marches played by their own military bands. It would enliven them no doubt. It would also enliven the Boers, I should imagine, if they suddenly heard some of our most spirited national music poured out in the midst of their own entrenchments. The prisoners might have rather a bad quarter of an hour afterwards.

War news continues to be the one topic of universal interest. I was dining at Prince's an evening or so ago, and almost every scrap of conversation I overheard referred solely to the position of things in South Africa; everybody seemed to have some relation or connection who was either going or had gone out to fight. Prince's is very popular, from a smart point of view, and whilst waiting for my party I devoted myself to the study of the various cloaks and evening wraps, of which there was a great variety, from the long regal-looking garment in black velvet and ermine to the crimson shawl-shaped cape of grebe with pink satin lining. One very effective wrap in seal velvet was composed of three capes, or deep, scantily cut, circular flounces, one above the other; each cape or flounce was decorated with a wavy line of string-coloured coarse lace insertion, and the whole was handsomely finished with a narrow edging of fluffy bear.

Yours affectionately,

CONSTANCE.

 Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.

Digitized by Google

USED FOR 50 Years.

ST. JACOBS OIL

CURES RHEUMATISM SORENESS STIFFNESS SPRAINS

CONQUERS PAIN!

BOVRIL

and the Boer War.

HER MAJESTY'S WAR OFFICE, again recognising its scientific value, have ordered LARGE SUPPLIES OF BOVRIL FOR USE IN THE FIELD HOSPITALS.

BOVRIL LIMITED are also supplying large quantities of their Emergency Rations for the Troops actively engaged.

TO THOSE WHO HAVE FRIENDS AT THE FRONT.—A small box, containing one dozen 4-oz. bottles of Bovril, packed as sent out from the Company's Warehouses, can be purchased from nearly every Grocer in the Kingdom.

BOVRIL

BOVRIL LIMITED (FOOD SPECIALISTS), CONTRACTORS TO THE ADMIRALTY, WAR OFFICE, INDIA OFFICE, AND FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS.

CATERERS FOR RECENT MILITARY EXPEDITIONS, INCLUDING THOSE OF BENIN, ASHANTE, CHITRAL, AND THE SOUDAN, ALSO FOR ARCTIC EXPEDITIONS.

Half a Guinea sent now Brings Enough Reading for a Lifetime.

. . . A GREAT OPPORTUNITY. . . .

The issue by The Standard of THE LIBRARY OF FAMOUS LITERATURE, on the same plan of monthly payments that proved so successful with The Times issue of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," promises to meet with an extraordinary success. The advance-of-publication orders for this unique Library have already reached a remarkable figure. The Library is offered at special introductory prices equivalent to 50 per cent. from the regular prices. These prices will be advanced as soon as the Library is ready for delivery, but meanwhile The Standard's offer presents an attractive opportunity to secure at once, upon the preliminary payment of but half a guinea, the complete set of twenty large handsomely bound volumes. The latter contain 10,000 royal octavo pages, and comprise a thousand masterpieces of the world's literature, from the dawn of letters to the best work of living authors: enough reading, in truth, for a lifetime.

EDITED BY Dr. RICHARD GARNETT, C.B.

THE LIBRARY OF FAMOUS LITERATURE is edited by Dr. Richard Garnett, C.B., who has just retired from his post as Keeper of Printed Books at the British Museum after half a century of service. Many of the most eminent men of letters have collaborated in the production of the Library, and have written for it a brilliant series of original essays. The work is richly embellished with 500 apposite illustrations and rare coloured plates, printed separately from the text on heavy enamelled paper. It is arranged in chronological order, and, aside from providing an endless store of the most interesting reading, affords a fascinating view of letters in every age and in every clime. It is a new and original work, and in mere extent is equalled only by great books of reference like the "Encyclopædia Britannica."

EDITED BY
Dr. Richard Garnett, C.B.

ISSUED BY The Standard,

WHAT THIS GREAT WORK IS.

It is difficult, if not absurd, to attempt to convey an adequate idea of so great a work. It is much like endeavouring to give a friend an idea of a vast exposition, such as, for example, that which will be held in Paris next year, by sending him a few extracts from the catalogue. THE LIBRARY OF FAMOUS LITERATURE is precisely what its title indicates—a huge treasury of the finest and most interesting pieces of literature, from the dawn of civilization down to and including the authors of our own day—that is to say, from the old Babylonian story of Istar and the quaint Egyptian tale of Two Brothers, the most ancient pieces of literature extant, to the best work of living writers, like Tolstoi, Hardy, Swinburne, Mark Twain, or Kipling. It contains everything: the great classics like the Iliad and the Odyssey; wonderful stories like the great Bharata Tale (the Manabharata of the Ancient Hindoos); poetry and stories from every people who ever lived and sung; the best of history, from writers like Mommsen and Curtius, Freeman and Froude, Gibbon and Green; bits of adventure and stories of wild life; the pith of the great philosophers like Hobbes and Locke and Hume and Spencer; fascinating chapters of science from writers like Huxley and Darwin and Proctor; famous letters from famous writers of letters; oratorical masterpieces from Demosthenes and Cicero to John Bright and Gladstone; choice pages from the intimate thoughts of diarists like Amiel and Samuel Pepys; epigrams and maxims from men like La Rochefoucauld and Dean Swift; philosophical reflections from writers like Rousseau and Pascal; religious writings like those of Cardinal Newman, Thomas a Kempis, and Dean Farrar; biting sarcasm from a Heine or an Isben; pathos and humour from writers like Charles Lamb, Bret Harte, or Oliver Wendell Holmes; fables from La Fontaine; autobiographies like Benjamin Franklin's; in fine, the whole gamut of literary production from grave to gay, from the deepest questions that concern the human soul to the lightest jests of a Horace, a Sterne, a Rabelais, or a Max O'Rell.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Those who subscribe now, in advance of Publication, may obtain the Complete Work, Twenty Volumes, at a Reduction of 50 per cent. from the regular prices. The entire Twenty Volumes will be sent, all at one time, upon a preliminary payment of but Half a Guinea; further payments, after the Twenty Volumes are in your home, to be at the rate of 9, 12, 15, or 21 shillings per month, according to the binding.

A HANDSOMELY ILLUSTRATED PROSPECTUS.

If you will state where you read this notice, The Standard will send post paid to any address a large, Illustrated Prospectus of the LIBRARY OF FAMOUS LITERATURE, together with specimen pages, pages from the index, and the like. But those who prefer to file their Subscriptions at once, and thus take advantage of the Special Prices, which are offered in advance of the day of publication, may examine the work, in the different styles of binding, at The Standard Office, 23, St. Bride Street, near Ludgate Circus; at "Mitchell's" Royal Subscription Library, 33, Old Bond Street, W.; at the Civil Service Stores, 28, Haymarket; and at the Junior Army and Navy Stores, Waterloo Place, where Orders may be booked, both for Cash Payments and on Monthly Instalments.

The Library of Famous Literature is not, and will not, be sold in parts or in single volumes but only in complete sets.

Digitized by Google

THE GOOD OLD FLAG,

LIKE "ASPINALL'S ENAMEL,"

CANNOT BE BEATEN.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL

USED ON H.M. SHIPS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

SPECIAL TERMS TO OFFICERS OF THE SERVICE.

SPECIAL QUALITIES FOR LARGE DECORATIVE WORK.

"O" QUALITY. For State Rooms, Cabins, and General Interior Work.

"INDIAN" QUALITY. For Deck Work, Guns, Turrets, and General Exterior Work.

HEAD OFFICES:—

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL, LTD., NEW CROSS, LONDON, S.E.

Digitized by Google

Printed by Hudson & Kearns, 83—87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, W.C.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25th, 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 147.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.
Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,
217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W).

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
Collier's
BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.
COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
IRISH DAMASK TABLE AND HOUSE LINEN.
Fish Napkins, 2/11 per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5/6 per doz. Table Cloths (2 yards square), 2/6; 2½×3 yards 5/6. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Irish Linens Pillow Cases, 10/6 per doz. Real Irish Linen Sheeting, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1/11 per yard. Roller Towelling, 3d. per yard. Surplice Linen, 7d. per yard. Dusters from 3/3 per doz. Linen Glass Cloths, 4/9 per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1/4½ each. Fine Linens and Linen Diaper, 8½d. per yard. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4/6 per dozen.
SAMPLES & PRICE LISTS POST FREE.
N.B.-To prevent delay, all Letters & Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.
Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.
Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.
BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named
Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.
MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

THREEPENCE EACH, AT ALL RESPECTABLE TOBACCONISTS.

SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

EXQUISITE MILD FLAVOUR AND MOST DELICATE AROMA;

ALSO

FLOR DE DINDIGUL CIGARETTES (all tobacco leaf, no paper), a delightful wholesome Whiff, 1d. each. Sole Importers, BEWLAY & Co., LTD., 49, 74, and 156, Strand, and 143, Cheapside. Established 1780. Price lists, post free.

HUNTING NOVELTY.

The 'Cloutsham' Stock

(Regd.)

A COMPLETE STOCK AND CRAVAT IN ONE, WITH NO LOOSE PARTS FOR WASHING.

Price 4/6 Post Free.

Coloured Cravats for Shooting Golf, etc., made to Order only.

CELLULOID STIFFENER, 6d. extra.

CRAVAT OPEN FOR WASHING.

If Coloured, or Figured White Cravats are required, send for Patterns.

For Plain White Taffeta "Cloutshams," send neck size and remittance.

Jaeger

PURE WOOL

Sporting Tailors,

42, CONDUIT ST., W.

Telegrams: "HIGHMOST, LONDON."

A BOOKLET OF AMUSING AND ATTRACTIVE

NURSERY JINGLES,

Beautifully Printed in Colours,

SENT FREE on application if this paper is mentioned. A post-card will do.

FRAME FOOD CO., Ltd., Battersea, LONDON.

THE "OSMAN"

Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES, Limited,

MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

SHIPS FOR SALE

TENDERS WILL BE RECEIVED

Until 12 o'clock Noon on Tuesday the 12th December, 1899, for the purchase of the following Ships as they lie at the Dockyards named (to which British subjects only will be admitted):—

Ship.	Lying at	Displacement.
"Carysfort"	Devonport	2380 (designed)
"Constance"	Devonport	2380 (designed)
"Conquest"	Devonport	2380 (designed)
"Shannon"	Devonport	5455 (fully equipped)
"Prince Albert"	Devonport	3880 (fully equipped)
"Minx"	Devonport	250 (fully equipped)
"Acorn"	Sheerness	1094 Tonnage B.M.
"Torpedo Boat No. 19"	Portsmouth	65
" " " No. 98"	Portsmouth	18
Iron Docking Tray	Pembroke	Displacement. 540

Forms of tender, containing conditions of Contract and all particulars, may be obtained on personal application at this Office, or by letter addressed "DIRECTOR OF NAVY CONTRACTS, ADMIRALTY, LONDON, S.W."

T. GWYN,
Director of Navy Contracts.

CONTRACT DEPARTMENT,
ADMIRALTY, LONDON, S.W.,
15th November, 1899.

THE

SITUATION IN SOUTH AFRICA.

THE SPECIAL DOUBLE WAR NUMBER

OF

Navy & Army Illustrated,

ONE SHILLING,

Has been reprinted, and can now be obtained from the Publishers.

All the Actors and Scenes in the Drama.

Over One Hundred Photographs and Pictures are reproduced in this Special Number, illustrative of the Military Forces and Strategic points, Boer and British, with the movements of troops.

SPECIAL WAR MAP.

The whole story of the complication is told by competent writers, and no pains have been spared to make the Number comprehensively illustrative of what has happened and is likely to occur.

GEORGE NEWNES, Ltd., 7-12, Southampton St., Strand, W.C.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette.")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 147. Saturday, November 25th, 1899.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),

Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with

Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,

PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS
FOR
MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE,
WOOLWICH, SANDHURST,
AND ALL
MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS;
also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:

MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899.

		Marks.
*FIRST UNIVERSITY.—	A. E. M. Ward	1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

		Marks.
*FIRST ARTILLERY.—	C. H. Clark	1792
	(After a few months' reading.)
*20th Infantry.—	L. J. Le Fleming	1582
35th "	A. Moore	1485
38th "	J. C. Hooper	1463
*72nd "	W. B. Mitford	1310
*76th "	A. J. M. Gordon	1280

*1st trial direct.

March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.

N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.

Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, S.W.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
*8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
MARCH, 1899.
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

First-Class Certificates.

HOME AND FOREIGN
CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES.

N.C.O.'s and MEN, at home or abroad, can be prepared by post for the half-yearly Exams. Classes are now forming for March, 1900.—RANDALL J. FOX (Ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8 p.m. "An Interrupted Honeymoon."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W C., 8 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Canary."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "In Old Kentucky."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Happy Life."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "Gay Piccadilly."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "How London Lives."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Greek Slave." Sat. 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "The Swiss Express."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2 p.m. "The Geisha."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Only Way."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Gentleman Joe." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "The Great Ruby."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 8 p.m. "Charley's Aunt." Wed. 2.30.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "The White Heather."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Rip Van Winkle."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Mohawk Minstrels."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 8 p.m. "Little Miss Nobody."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "The Sign of the Cross."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "A Greek Slave."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "A Queen's Vengeance."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "La Poupée."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. Soldiers of the Queen."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Circus Girl."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Sins of the Fathers."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH and MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.

(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London"

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

The Union of Taste = = = with Economy.

The Oakleigh Series of inexpensive Bookcases, Cabinets, etc., now being introduced by TRAPNELL and GANE, indicate once more how happily taste and economy may be blended in the equipment of the home.

This series, one of which we here illustrate, consists at present of six different designs all made in solid oak, artistically carved, well polished and finished, and sent carriage paid to any station in the kingdom at most moderate prices.

The Bookcase illustrated is four feet eight inches high, two feet two inches wide, with four shelves. Price 14s. 6d.

Large Furniture Catalogue containing over 1,000 Illustrations, post free.

TRAPNELL & GANE, MANUFACTURERS OF Inexpensive Furniture,

COLLEGE GREEN, BRISTOL.

Branches: QUEEN ST., CARDIFF; COMMERCIAL ST., NEWPORT, MON.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK, SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK, with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

The Troops In South Africa.

The PUBLISHER of the "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE" begs to announce that he has Coloured Pictures of each BRITISH REGIMENT in, or ordered to, South Africa, and will be pleased to supply copies of the same. Price 6½d. each Regiment, post free to any part of the World. Full List on Application.

Apply—The MANAGER, "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE." Offices—3, York St., Covent Garden, London, W.C.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:
The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. En Pension from 10 francs. South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort or Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought) GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Kimberley on the Defensive. The Search-light at Work at Night. (Illustrated)	241
The Heroes We Mourn. Portraits of Officers Killed in the Recent Fighting. (Illustrated)	242
The Other Side. Pictures from the Transvaal. (Illustrated)	243
To Destroy an Enemy's Commerce. The Third-class Cruiser "Barham." (Illustrated)	244
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	245
Editorial Notices; Our Diary	246
A Way They Had in the Navy. (Illus.)	246
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	248
The Queen and Her Soldiers. More Troops for South Africa. (Illus.)	249
With the Natal Field Force. In Camp with Sir George White. (Illustrated)	252
Sailors of the Queen. The Naval Brigade Landed at Simon's Town. (Illustrated)	253
On South African Soil. The Troops now Arriving at Cape Town and Durban. (Illustrated)	255
Armoured Trains—Real and Ideal ...	257
"The Gallant Gay Hussar"	258
Heroes We Mourn. Biographies and Anecdotes of the Deceased Officers ...	259
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	259
The Story of the War	260
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	260
The Navy at the Cape. Seamen and Guns at the Front. (Illustrated) ...	261
Calcutta to Natal. The Troops from India for South Africa. (Illustrated)	262
On Board the "Andromeda." The Officers and Crew and Their Work. (Illustrated)	263

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Fourth Week]

THE QUARTERS OF THE INFANTRY REGIMENTS.*

	Battn.
Grenadier G'ds	1.	Col. V. Hatton, C.B.	Windsor
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Wellington Bar'ks.
	3.	Lieut.-Col. E. M. S. Crabbe	South Africa
Coldstream G'ds	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. E. Codrington	South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. R. Stopford	Cape Colony
	3.	Lieut.-Col. V. J. Dawson	Tower of London
Scots Guards	1.	Col. A. H. Paget	Cape Colony
	A. 2.	Col. I. R. Jones	Wellington Bar'ks.
Royal Scots (1st)	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. P. Morgan-Payler.	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. T. F. Ross	Poona
Queen's (Rl. West Surrey Reg., 2nd)	1.	Col. J. S. Collins	Gharial, Punjab
	2.	Lt.-Col. E. O. F. Hamilton	Natal
The Buffs (East Kent Reg., 3rd)	1.	Col. A. E. Ommanney	Kamptee
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. A. Hickson	Brighton
King's Own (Rl. Lancaster 4th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. Rowlandson	Singapore
	2.	Col. M. E. Crofton	For South Africa
Northumberland Fusiliers (5th).	1.	Lt.-Col. C. G. C. Money, C.B.	Cape Colony
	2.	Lt.-Col. R. L. A. Pennington	South Africa
Ryl. Warwickshire Regiment (6th).	1.	Lt.-Col. W. E. G. Forbes, C.B.	Madras
	2.	Lieut.-Col. M. Q. Jones, C.B.	For South Africa
	B. 3.	Lieut.-Col. A. W. F. Jackson	Malta
Royal Fusiliers (7th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. P. B. Rodick	Nusseerabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. C. Donald	South Africa
	B. 3.	Lieut.-Col. J. E. Briggs	Gibraltar
King's (Liverpool Regiment, 8th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. L. S. Mellor	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. S. H. Harrison	Enniskillen
Norfolk Regiment (9th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. L. Govan	Bombay
	2.	Lieut.-Col. L. H. Phillips	Fermoy
Lincolnshire Reg. (10th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. R. Lowth, C.B.	Secunderabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. R. Roberts	Aldershot
Devonshire Reg. (11th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. W. Park	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. M. Bullock	South Africa
Suffolk Regiment (12th)	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. J. Watson	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. R. Townley	Quetta
Somersetshire L.I. (13th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. A. Walsh	Rawal Pindi
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. J. Gallwey	South Africa
West Yorkshire Regiment (14th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. Grant-Dalton	Kurrachee
	2.	Col. F. W. Kitchener	Natal
East Yorkshire Regiment (15th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. F. Garnett	Belgaum
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. W. Ward	Templemore
Bedfordshire Reg. (16th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. H. Riddell	Mooltan
	2.	Col. W. O. Cavenagh	Dublin
Leicestershire Reg. (17th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. D. Carleton	Ladysmith, Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. W. McKinstry	Curragh
Royal Irish Reg. (18th).	1.	Lt.-Col. H. W. N. Guinness	Buttevant
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. B. Forster	Mhow
Yorkshire Reg. (19th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Bowles	For South Africa
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. J. Spottiswoode	Dagshai
Lancashire Fus. (20th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. L. E. May	Crete
	2.	Lt.-Cl. C. J. Blomfield, D.S.O.	For South Africa
	B. 3.	Lieut.-Col. R. G. Bruxner-Randall.	Malta
Royal Scots Fus. (21st).	1.	Lt.-Col. A. H. Abercrombie	Peshawur
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. E. Carr	Natal
Cheshire Regiment (22nd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. W. Bromfield	Secunderabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. F. Curteis	Limerick
Royal Welsh Fus. (23rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. C. H. Thorold	Natal
	2.	Lt.-Col. Hon. R. H. Bertie	Hong Kong
South Wales Borderers (24th).	1.	Lt.-Col. H. G. Mainwaring	Chakrata
	2.	Col. R. A. P. Clements, D.S.O., A.D.C.	Dublin
K.O. Scottish Borderers (25th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. W. Godfray	Dublin
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. T. W. Hewat	Cawnpore
Cameronians (Sct. Rifles, 26th-90th)	1.	Lieut.-Col. S. H. Lomax	Lucknow
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. Cooke	South Africa
Royal Inniskilling Fus. (27th-108th)	1.	Lt.-Col. T. M. G. Thackeray	South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. M. Greenfield	Dalhousie
Gloucestershire Reg. (28th-61st).	1.	. . . . .	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. F. Lindsell	Aldershot
Worcestershire Reg. (29th-36th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. O. H. Oakes	Plymouth
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. S. Allen	Halifax
East Lancashire Reg. (30th-59th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. J. A. Wright	Jersey
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. G. Watson	Ranikhet
East Surrey Reg. (31st-70th).	1.	Lt.-Col. W. J. H. Frodsham	Jhansi
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. H. W. Harris	Natal
Duke of Cornwall's L.I. (32nd-46th).	1.	Col. C. F. A. Turnbull	Lucknow
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. Aldworth, D.S.O.	South Africa
D. of Wellington's (W. Riding Reg., 33rd-76th).	1.	Lt.-Col. G. E. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Dover
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. E. Belfield	Rangoon
Border Regiment (34th-55th).	1.	Col. T. H. E. Hinde	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. S. Wood	Bareilly
Royal Sussex Reg. (35th-107th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. B. D. A. Donne	Malta
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. C. Young	Sealkote
Hampshire Reg. (37th-67th)	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. R. Parkinson	Cherat, Punjab
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. E. Briggs	Cork
South Staffords're Reg. (38th-80th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Savage	Dinsale
	2.	Lieut.-Col. N. S. Allen	Thayetmyo, Burma
Dorsetshire Reg. (39th-54th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. J. J. Kentish	Nowshera, Punjab
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Law	For South Africa
South Lancashire Reg. (40th-82nd)	1.	L.-C. W. McCarthy-O'Leary	For South Africa
	2.	L.-C. A. F. G. Richardson	Jubbulpore
Welsh Regiment (41st-69th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. J. F. Banfield	South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. S. L. Penno	Ahmednugger
The Black Watch (Ryl. Highland's 42nd-73rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. G. Grogan	Sitapur
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. H. C. Coode	Cape Colony
Oxfordshire L.I. (43rd-52nd).	1.	Lt.-Col. Hon. A. E. Dalzell	Devonport
	2.	Col. F. H. Plowden	Ferozepore
Essex Regiment (44th-56th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. E. Stephenson	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. T. Stock	Shwebo, Burma
Sherwood F'r'sters (Derbyshire Rg., (45th-95th).	1.	Col. H. L. Smith-Dorrien, D.S.O.	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Bulpett	Malta
Loyal North Lancashire Regim't. (47th-81st).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. G. Kekewich	Kimberley
	2.	Lt.-Col. B. A. Satterthwaite	Malta
Northamptonshire Reg. (48th-58th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. B. Capper	Fyzabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Denny	Cape Colony
Rl. Berkshire Reg. (49th-66th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. C. Carter	Portsmouth
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. Evans-Gordon	Natal
Queen's Own (Ryl. West Kent Reg., 50th-97th).	1.	L.-C. C. W. H. Evans, D.S.O.	Aden
	2.	Lt.-Col. E. A. W. S. Grove	Egypt
King's Own Yorks. L.I. (51st-105th).	1.	L.-C. Sir H. A. W. Johnson, Bart.	Sheffield
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. St. L. Barter	Cape Colony
King's (Shropshire L.I., 53rd-85th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Collette	Poona
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. Spens	South Africa
Middlesex Reg. (57th-77th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. G. White	Welling'n, Madras
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. W. Hill	For South Africa
King's Royal Rifle Corps (60th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Gore-Browne	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. G. Grimwood	Natal
	3.	L.-C. R. G. Buchanan-Riddell	South Africa
	4.	Lieut.-Col. E. W. Herbert	Cork
Wiltshire Regim't. (62nd-99th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Harford	Quetta
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Carter	Aldershot
Manchester Reg. (63rd-96th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. E. R. Curran	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. T. Reay	Manchester
North Staffords're Reg. (64th-98th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. Currie, C.B.	Subathu
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. E. Bradley	Newry
York & Lancaster Reg. (65th-84th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. J. Kirkpatrick	For South Africa
	2.	Col. H. Boughey	Agra
Durham Light I. (68th-106th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. L. Woodland	South Africa
	2.	Lt.-Col. A. de B. V. Paget	Mandalay
Highland Light I. (71st-74th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. R. Kelham	Cape Colony
	2.	Lt.-Col. R. D. B. Rutherford	Ceylon
Seaforth Highl'rs (72nd-78th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. A. Campbell	Egypt
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. W. Hughes-Hallett, D.S.O.	South Africa
Gordon Highl'rs (75th-92nd).	1.	Lt.-Col. G. T. F. Downman	South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. H. Dick-Cunyngham, V.C.	Natal
Q.O. Cameron H'rs (79th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. F. A. Watson-Kennedy.	Egypt
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. M. Hunt	Gibraltar
Royal Irish Rifles (83rd-86th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. Haggard	Dum Dum
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. A. Eagar	Cape Colony
Ryl. Irish Fusiliers (87th-89th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. R. C. Carleton	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. Reeves	Natal
Connaught Ran's (88th-94th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. L. G. Brooke	South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. E. Harman	Meerut
Argyll & Sutherl'd H'rs (91st-93rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. H. Campbell	South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. L. J. Goff	Ranikhet
Leinster Regiment (100th-109th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Martin	Halifax, N.S. (for
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. G. Glancy	Barbados [home)
Ryl. Munster Fus. (101st-104th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. S. Evans	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. P. S. Druitt	Dinapore
Royal Dublin Fus. (102nd-103rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. A. Mills	South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. D. Cooper	Maritzburg, Natal
Rifle Brigade	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. B. Norcott	South Africa
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. T. E. Metcalfe	Cape Frontier
	3.	Lieut.-Col. W. R. Kenyon-Slaney.	Kuldana
	4.	Lieut.-Col. A. R. Pemberton	Dublin
West India Reg.	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. L. Bayley	Bermuda
	2.	Lieut.-Col. D. M. Allen	Jamaica
	3.	Lieut.-Col. A. Bor	Sierra Leone
Hong Kong Reg.		Lieut.-Col. J. M. A. Retallick	Hong Kong
Chinese Regiment	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Bower	Wei-hai-Wei
West African Reg.		L.-C. G. G. Cunningham, D.S.O.
B.C. Africa Rifles	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. H. Manning	Central Africa
	2.	Major H. E. J. Brake, R.A.	Mauritius
Provisional Batt.		Lieut.-Col. C. H. Kelly	Shorncliffe

A. 3rd Battalion about to be formed. B. 4th Battalion in course of formation.

 The disposition of all Our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the "Navy and Army Illustrated."*

Digitized by Google

ASPINALL'S
"INDIAN"
ENAMEL.

For all Exterior Work, Big Guns, Turrets, &c.

ASPINALL'S "O" ENAMEL for all Interior Work, on Ships Cabins, Mess Rooms, &c.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL.

NON-POISONOUS

We have supplied our special quality Enamels to most of H.M. Ships, for both Interior and Exterior Work, which have given entire satisfaction.

Also our Special Zinc White, and Varnishes.

Works:—NEW CROSS, LONDON.
PARIS DEPOT: 24, Rue Alibert.
U.S. DEPOT: 98, Beekman Street, NEW YORK.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE
WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.
E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

HOTELS DE LUXE.

CAIRO.

GHEZIREH PALACE
AND SHEPHEARD'S HOTEL.

For Tariffs, full particulars, and to reserve accommodation, apply to
The International Sleeping Car Company,
14, COCKSPUR STREET, LONDON.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,
(LATE GALT & GIEVE)
ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.
DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W.
(On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian
. . Ales. . .

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.
AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

RED WHITE AND BLUE FRENCH COFFEE
SOLD EVERYWHERE
DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

Digitized by Google

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD

Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET.

'War in the Transvaal!'

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD.

24, THROGMORTON STREET.

ALLEN & WRIGHT,

217, Piccadilly, W. [MAKERS OF] 26, Poultry, E.C. (LONDON.)

Extra Quality (only) Briar Root Pipes.

TRADE A & W MARK.

Stamped on Stem of all Pipes of our manufacture.

Our Pipes have secured extensive patronage in the NAVY and ARMY on account of their FINE QUALITY and FINISH.

No. 89 - - - 14/-

Useful Companion Case, in Real Morocco, containing 2 A & W silver mounted finest quality Briar Pipes (medium size), 1 with Horn and 1 with Vulcanite Mouthpiece.

No. 108 - - - 15/6

Useful Triplet Case, in Real Morocco, containing 3 A & W silver-mounted Briar Pipes (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces.

No. 109 - - - 23/-

Same Design. 1 pipe fitted with sterling silver wind cover.

No. 110 - - - 33/6

Same Design. 2 silver-mounted Briar Pipes, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpiece, and 1 finest Meerschaum with FINE color Block Amber Mouthpiece, to fit either of straight pipes.

No. 108.

ALLEN & WRIGHT'S CATALOGUE

with Illustrations of great variety of COMPANION CASES (containing 2, 3, 4, 6 and 8 Pipes) and other SPECIALITIES, POST FREE.

217, PICCADILLY, W., and 26, POULTRY, E.C. (LONDON).

A GOOD HONEST, STERLING ARTICLE.

AS MADE FOR H.M. THE QUEEN, AND REGULARLY SUPPLIED TO THE LEADING STEAMSHIP COMPANIES.

PALETHORPES'

ROYAL CAMBRIDGE

SAUSAGES.

Purity and Quality incontestable. Guaranteed made of Prime British-fed Pork at our Model Factory, splendidly equipped with our own Patent Machinery.

LARGEST MAKERS IN THE WORLD, AWARDED 10 GOLD MEDALS.

Of Grocers, Game Dealers, etc.

For name of nearest Agent write to—

PALETHORPES, Limited,

DUDLEY PORT, STAFFS.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE, AND COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising Every Requisite for Field use

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

9, Strand, W.C.

"STRAND" Watch with Cap on.

No. 82. ALL ENGLISH.
As Half-Hunter or Full Hunting Cases, Silver, £6 6s.; 18ct. Gold, £16 16s.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published 160 pp., 400 illustrations, Third Edition. Free on application.

No. 138

"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.

OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18-ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

The finest quality and value ever produced.

Crystal Glass, Silver, £5; 18-ct. Gold, £13 15s.

Special Size for Ladies, £5 15s. and £12 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be obtained on our new system of payment by Monthly Instalments.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

FOR

CRICKET, RACQUET, FOOTBALL, FIVES, POLO, HOCKEY, GOLF,

ETC.

Special Terms to "Naval and Military."

WOOLWICH, S.E.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co., LTD.,

115, NEW BOND ST., LONDON, W.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

Watch & Clock

MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, NEW BOND ST.

LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—Here in town, as everywhere else, we are looking forward to a very quiet winter, and a cessation from all balls and other festivities. And, indeed, it is right that it should be so. Nothing would be more unnatural than for English people to be amusing themselves in dancing and other frivolities whilst so great a number of their fellow-countrymen, and many of their friends or relations, are daily in peril of their lives. And this is so strongly felt that nearly all entertainments talked of are those organised for the aid of the wives and families of our soldiers and sailors, or for the support of their widows and orphans.

It is, indeed, very delightful to see how everyone is working so energetically for these ends; and I think many whose hearts are full of anxiety at this time are glad to find work waiting for them to do, work which must appeal to their sympathies as women, and as wives or mothers of soldiers.

In view of all the entertainments arranged for the various funds, I will send you next week a sketch of a dainty bolero, suitable for wearing on such occasions. It is made of tucked chiffon, with tiny pieces of lace inserted here and there, and it is further enriched with those lovely raised roses which are the latest development of painted chiffon. This bolero is charming when worn over a muslin or lace underbodice, whilst it might also give an additional smartness to a white satin blouse. And if the bodice be cut low, a fichu arranged at the neck, and fastened on each side with a pearl ornament, it makes a pretty addition for a theatre or concert. If such a bolero is worn with a skirt made of the beautiful soft white satin that hangs so gracefully, and is entirely destitute of pattern or design, the dress will be found most useful, and it will have the advantage of being easily varied by some little alteration in the bolero or bodice. For Elsie's travelling dress I can recommend nothing better than an Irish homespun, which is quite an ideal material for the most useful, and, in such cases, the indispensable, coat and skirt. If she were careful to choose one not too heavy she would find that she could wear it for over a week on the voyage, as she goes the whole way by sea, and there are many days in Calcutta when such a dress would be most comfortable in the early morning hours. The homespuns are made in every variety of cloths or tweeds, diagonals, checks, or the plain material can be used in every shade and mixture of colours, so that Elsie should have no difficulty in finding one to suit her taste; or, rather, the difficulty is that when so many are pretty it takes a long time to decide where one's choice is to rest. At least, that is what Esther and I found when she brought a quantity of patterns round to me and asked me to help her to choose her new golfing dress. There were a great many greys that I very much liked, and which are of the particular shade, tell her, that would suit Elsie; one delicate light grey would look quite delightful with a white shirt. Then a pale blue tweed would suit the fancy of the moment for light-coloured cloths, whilst if she prefers a louder design, a cream checked with full brown, and showing a thread of soft blue, is one that I would particularly recommend to her. But, after all, such descriptions can help her but little, so I advise her to write to Messrs. Hamilton and Co., the White House, Portrush, Ireland, and they will send her a selection of patterns that will give her a very good estimate of what the Irish can do in this direction.

A CHARMINGLY DRESSY FROCK FOR AN ENTERTAINMENT.

The café chantant at Claridge's Hotel on Saturday, organised by Mrs. Brown-Potter for the "Maine" Hospital Ship Fund, was a very brilliant affair, the programme being excellent, and the informal arrangement of the whole event making it particularly enjoyable. Every penny will be needed to maintain the ship in service until the war is over, and upon this our American sisters are determined. The treasurer, Mrs. Ronalds, 7, Cadogan Square, will willingly accept any donations sent to her by her own countrywomen for the purpose.

For the benefit of my friends, I have been making a serious study of the dinner-gowns I have seen during the last few evenings at Prince's Restaurant. First, and in highest favour, is the close-fitting polonaise. Some of the gowns worn without a polonaise were absolutely plain and tight-fitting over the hips. Prince's was very full again on Sunday night.

Yours affectionately,

CONSTANCE.

Digitized by Google

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two Weights (heavy and light), and in a Variety of Colours. SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

Is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., Ltd.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

Never Fails.
Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for
Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

"To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull."

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY
The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lérins,
SITUATED ON
THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,
WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.
To be obtained from
All Stores and Wine Merchants.
Wholesale Agents:
COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY
AT THIS
AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;
£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo, and every other sound reproduced.

IT IS

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON
For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,
£2 2 0

THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.,
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
} LONDON.

British . . Manufacture.

PRICE - - £12 12s.
Metal Case, 10s. 6d., or
Solid Leather Case, £2. 10s.

THE EMPIRE TYPEWRITER.

The Best and Strongest Portable Machine in the Market.
A FAVOURITE WITH MILITARY AND NAVAL OFFICERS.
Weighs but 20 lbs. in case.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS— CHIEF WORKS: Montreal, Canada.

The Empire Typewriter Syndicate, Ltd.,
77, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

Naval and Military Tailors and Outfitters.

56, PALL MALL, (OPPOSITE MARLBOROUGH HOUSE) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO COMPLETE AFRICAN OUTFITS.

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

We Season the World.

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

The Five Noted Seasons of the World — SPRING, SUMMER, AUTUMN, WINTER AND

For Fish, Flesh, and Fowl of all kinds.

YORKSHIRE RELISH

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., & 2s. each. Beware of Substitutions. Sole Proprietors: GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & CO., LEEDS.

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 83—85, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. Editorial Offices, 20, Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2nd, 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
Vol. IX.
No 148.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

London & Paris Exchange, Ltd.
Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET

"WAR IN THE TRANSVAAL!"

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.
ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:
LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, Ltd.,
24, THROGMORTON STREET.

W. CATER & Co.,
To Her Majesty the Queen.
H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family.

NAVAL AND MILITARY
Tailors and Outfitters,
56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.
ESTABLISHED 1776.
Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

HOTEL VICTORIA, LONDON.
NORTHUMBERLAND AVENUE.
Orchestra performs during Luncheon and Dinner. Lunch 3s. 6d. Dinner 5s. Finest Cuisine and Wines. Open to non-residents.
GORDON HOTELS, Ltd.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
CAMBRIC
CHILDREN'S ... ... 1/3 doz.
LADIES' ... ... 2/3 ,,
GENTLEMEN'. ... 3/3 ,,
Hem-stitched, LADIES', 2/9 doz. ,, ,, ... 3/11 ,,
PRICE LISTS POST FREE.
POCKET
Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.
"Cheapest handkerchiefs I have ever seen."—SYLVIA'S JOURNAL.
HANDKERCHIEFS.
N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
FROM 10/6 PER DAY.
Telegraphic Addresses { For Management, "UNPARALLELED." For Visitors, "ERMINITES"

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette.")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 148. Saturday, December 2nd, 1899.

DR. GEORGE HORATIO JONES
The Old-Established Surgeon-Dentist of
57, Great Russell Street
(directly facing the British Museum),
May be consulted daily, as usual, for the best English and American Dentistry. Moderate Fees. Extension of premises, Great Russell Mansions, next door.
See name under "Dentists," Post Office Directory.

The ART of . . .
Graceful Horse Riding
TAUGHT AT
SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,
EARL'S COURT.
Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1314
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
*8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
MARCH, 1899.
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

First-Class Certificates.

HOME AND FOREIGN
CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES.

N.C.O.'s and MEN, at home or abroad, can be prepared by post for the half-yearly Exams. Classes are now forming for March, 1900.—RANDALL J. FOX (Ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Silver King."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Canary."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "In Old Kentucky."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.30 p.m. H.M.S. "Pinafore."—"Trial by Jury."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Happy Life."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "La Poupee."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "Lady Godiva."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "In Gay Piccadilly."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2 p.m. "The Only Way."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Gay Parisienne."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Lights o' London." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E. "The Geisha."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 8 p.m. "A Greek Slave." Wed. 2.30
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "Sporting Life."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "The Circus Girl."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Mohawk Minstrels."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 8 p.m. "The Broken Melody."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E. "Secrets of the Harem."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "A French Maid."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Passions Power."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Adventures of Lady Ursula."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "The Ladder of Life."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Circus Girl."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "For a Child's Sake."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 31.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London"
Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

Of course it is WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP—no other could produce such a mass of thick, creamy lather—no other soap so thoroughly softens the beard and makes shaving such a soothing, refreshing part of the morning toilet. Search the world over and you won't find the equal of WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAPS.

Sold by chemists, hairdressers and perfumers all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

Williams' Shaving Sticks, 1s. Williams' Luxury Shaving Tablets, 1s.
Williams' American Shaving Tablets, 6d. Williams' "Jersey Cream" Toilet Soap, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp, by addressing—

The J. B. Williams Co., 64 Gt. Russell St., London, W. C., or 161 Clarence St., Sydney.
Chief Offices and Laboratories,—Glastonbury, Conn., U. S. A.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.

writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.

"I have now prescribed them for the last 8 years in my hospitals and private practice, and find them of great benefit. I certainly and most strongly recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

Goddard's Plate Powder

Admitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro-Plate.

In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

SIX GOLD MEDALS.

ENCORE RAZOR SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—Messrs. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.
FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.
GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.
HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.
SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.
PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co.,
Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,
who will supply through nearest Agents.

Country Life Illustrated,
VOL. V.
Printed on Art Paper.
Cloth, Gilt Edges, 21s. ea.; or Half-Morocco, 25s. ea.
Vols. 1, 2, 3 & 4 (Nos. 1 to 104) are out of print.
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, W.C.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:
The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. En Pension from 10 francs. South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. Hook, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. Fourault, Managing Director. V. Benoist, Administrateur.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought)
GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. Michelli, Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL
HOLLOWAY.

Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.

The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 2,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £10,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED.

L. H. Glenton-Kerr, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND
And CONVALESCENT HOME, Limpsfield.

£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.

Bankers, Messrs. Drummond. Arthur E. Reade, Secretary.

WEST LONDON HOSPITAL,
Hammersmith Road, W. (101 beds.)

Patron: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President: THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, K.G.
Treasurer: THE LORD ROTHSCHILD.
FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED for opening new wards for 80 additional beds.

R. J. Gilbert, Secretary-Superintendent.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN
And CHILDREN,
Marylebone Road, N.W.

Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.

W. Guntrip King, Secretary.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS

and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, Charles Dibdin, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION,
BROMPTON.

The Hospital contains 321 Beds, and in 1897 received 1,681 In-patients. 13,098 Out-patients were also treated. The yearly requirements of the Hospital cannot be estimated at less than £25,000 a year. Further, it has been decided upon the unanimous and urgent advice of the Medical Staff to establish a

"COUNTRY BRANCH AND CONVALESCENT HOME,"

and it is estimated that £20,000 will be needed to inaugurate this new departure.

The Charity being Unendowed, is dependent on Donations, Annual Subscriptions, and Legacies, Contributions are therefore earnestly solicited in aid of both objects.

Bankers:
Messrs. Williams, Deacon, & Manchester & Salford Bank, 20, Birchin Lane, London.

WILLIAM H. THEOBALD, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: News of His Promotion. A Scene in a Military Hospital ...	265
The Handy Man. Our Seamen at the Cape. (Illustrated)	266
Lieutenant Godfrey and the Band of the "Blues." (Illustrated)	267
A Type of French War-ship. The Battle-ship "Lazare Carnot," Recently in Hand at Toulon Dockyard. (Illus.)	268
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	269
Editorial Notices; Our Diary	270
Medical Comforts in the Navy	270
Prisoners of War. (Illustrated) ...	271
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	272
In and About Mafeking. (Illustrated)	273
To Relieve Kimberley. (Illustrated) ...	274
Two Very Modern Implements of War. The New Howitzer Gun and Steam Plough. (Illustrated)	275
The Struggle Round the Tugela. (Illustrated)	277
Beleaguered Ladysmith. Photographs Taken In and Around the Camp. (Illustrated)	279
Constable Coo, V.C. (Illustrated) ...	281
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	283
The Story of the War	284
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	284
Per Mare, per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Ten Illustrations)	285
Our Colonial Forces: New Zealand. Part VII. (Illustrated)	287

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Royal Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

First Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY ON FOREIGN SERVICE.

B. Battle ship. g.b. Gun boat. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. h.d.s. Harbour Defence Ship. d.v. Despatch Vessel. y. Yacht. sur.v. Surveying Vessel. d.s. Depot-ship. r.g.b. River Gun-boat. t.d.s. Torpedo Depot-ship.

Abyssinia, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Alacrity, d.v.	Com. A. H. Smith-Dorrien	China
Alert, sloop	Com. H. Savile	North America
Algerine, sloop	Com. E. J. W. Slade	China
Amphion, cr.	Capt. Frank Finnis	Pacific
Andromeda, cr.	Capt. J. L. Burr, C.M.G.	Mediterranean
Anson, B.	Capt. W. Wilson	Mediterranean
Ardent, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. F. E. Walters	Mediterranean
Astræa, cr.	Capt. A. W. Paget	Mediterranean
Assaye, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. O. U. Coates	East Indies
Aurora, cr.	Capt. E. H. Bayly	China
Banshee, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. L. Watts-Jones	Mediterranean
Barfleur, B.	Capt. Hon. S. C. J. Colville, C.B. (Rear-Al. C. C. P. Fitzgerald)	China
Barham, cr.	Com. H. L. Tottenham	Mediterranean
Barracouta, cr.	Com. R. H. Peirse	C. of Good Hope
Barrosa, cr.	Com. W. F. Tunnard	C. of Good Hope
Beagle, sloop	Com. Hon. H. A. S. Stanhope	S. E. C. of America
Bonaventure, cr.	Ct. R. A. J. Montgomerie, C.B.	China
Boomerang, t.g.b.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Boxer, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. J. Twiselton-Wykeham-Fiennes	Mediterranean
Brisk, cr.	Com. R. B. S. Wrey	China
Bruizer, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. L. Hulton	Mediterranean
Buzzard, sloop	Com. L. F. G. Tippinge	North America
Cæsar, B.	Capt. E. H. Gamble	Mediterranean
Canopus, B.	Capt. W. H. Fawkes	Mediterranean
Centurion, B.	Capt. J. R. Jellicoe (Vice-Adml. Sir E. H. Seymour, K.C.B.).	China
Cockatrice, g.b.	Com. H. N. Rolfe	Danube
Columbine, y.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Williamson	North America
Comus, cr.	Capt. G. A. Giffard	North America
Crescent, cr.	Capt. C. J. G. Sawle (Vice-Adl. Sir F. G. D. Bedford, K.C.B.).	North America
Cruiser, sloop	Com. L. G. Tufnell	Mediterranean
Daphne, sloop	Com. C. W. Winnington-Ingram.	China
Dart, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. Parry	Australia
Devastation, B.	Capt. F. S. Inglefield	Gibraltar
Dido, cr.	Capt. G. Neville	Mediterranean
Doris, cr.	Ct. R. C. Prothero (Rear-Adml. Sir R. H. Harris, K.C.M.G.).	C. of Good Hope
Dragon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Lambert	Mediterranean
Dwarf, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. F. Shakespear	C. of Good Hope
Earnest, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Baird	Mediterranean
Eclipse, cr.	Capt. P. W. Bush (Rear-Admiral H. D. Bosanquet).	East Indies
Egeria, sur.v.	Com. M. H. Smyth	Pacific
Empress of India B	Capt. H. H. Dyke	Mediterranean
Endymion, cr.	Capt. G. A. Callaghan	China
Esk, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. Chadwick.	China
Fame, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. J. B. Keyes	China
Fearless, cr.	Com. H. R. P. Floyd	Mediterranean
Flora, cr.	Commodore R. L. Groome	S. E. C. of America
Foam, t.b.d.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Forte, cr.	Capt. E. P. Jones	C. of Good Hope
Griffon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. Hon. H. G. Brand	Mediterranean
Halcyon, t.g.b.	Com. S. W. A. H. Gray	Mediterranean
Handy, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. A. Moreton	China
Harrier, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. P. Walter	Mediterranean
Hart, t.b.d.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Hazard, t.g.b.	Com. P. V. Lewes, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Hebe, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Taylor.	Mediterranean
Herald, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. Harvey	River Zambesi
Hermes, cr.	Capt. F. H. Henderson	North America
Hermione, cr.	Capt. R. S. D. Cumming	China
Hibernia, d.s.	Com. W. Ricketts (Rear-Adml. R. M. Lloyd, C.B.).	Malta Reserves
Hood, B.	Capt. A. C. Corry.	Mediterranean
Hotspur, h.d.s.	Com. C. S. Elliot.	Bermuda
Humber, store-ship	Com. H. J. Davison.	China
Hussar, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. M. R. Hill	Mediterranean
Icarus, sloop	Com. G. F. S. Knowling	Pacific
Illustrious, B.	Capt. Sir R. Poore, Bart.	Mediterranean
Imogene, d.v.	Com. E. J. Bain	Mediterranean
Indefatigable, cr.	Capt. F. L. Campbell	North America
Iphigenia, cr.	Capt. H. N. Dudding	China
Isis, cr.	Capt. G. M. Henderson	Mediterranean
Karrakatta, t.g.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Harbord.	Australia
Katoomba, cr.	Capt. H. W. S. Gibson	Sydney Reserves
Lapwing, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Lambert	East Indies
Leander, cr.	Capt. F. F. Fegen	Pacific
Liffey, d.s.	Staff-Com. P. H. Wright	Coquimbo
Linnet, g.b.	Com. W. W. Smythe	China
Lizard, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Watson	Australia
Magdala, h.d.s.	Capt. H. L. Fleet.	Bombay Reserves
Magicienne, cr.	Capt. W. B. Fisher	C. of Good Hope
Magpie, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. K. Laird	C. of Good Hope (to relieve Sparrow)
Marathon, cr.	Capt. J. G. M. Field.	East Indies
Melita, sloop	Com. I. M. Fraser, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Melpomene, cr.	Capt. J. Denison	East Indies
Mildura, cr.	Capt. H. Leah	Australia
Mohawk, cr.	Com. F. H. P. W. Freeman	Australia
Monarch, B.	Capt. R. D. B. Bruce	Simon's Bay
Mosquito, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. L. Cox	River Zambesi
Nymphe, sloop	Com. R. B. Farquhar	Mediterranean
Orion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Orlando, cr.	Capt. J. H. T. Burke	China
Partridge, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Hunt	C. of Good Hope
Peacock, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. S. G. Douglas	China
Pearl, cr.	Capt. J. E. C. Goodrich	North America
Pegasus, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cochran	S. E. C. of America
Pelorus, cr.	Capt. H. C. B. Hulbert	C. of Good Hope
Penguin, sur.v.	Capt. J. W. Combe	Australia
Phaeton, cr.	Capt. F. G. Kirby	Pacific
Pheasant, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. G. Smith.	Pacific
Philomel, cr.	Capt. J. E. Bearcroft	C. of Good Hope
Phœnix, sloop	Com. R. P. Cochran.	China
Pigeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Moubray.	East Indies
Pigmy, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. E. Green	China
Plassy, t.g.b.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Plover, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. V. de M. Cowper	China
Polyphemus, ram.	Com. E. L. Lang.	Mediterranean
Pomone, cr.	Capt. E. A. Simons	East Indies
Porpoise, cr.	Com. A. H. D. Ravenhill	Australia
Powerful, cr.	Capt. Hon. Hedworth Lambton	C. of Good Hope
Proserpine, cr.	Capt. J. L. Marx	North America
Psyche, cr.	Ct. F. C. Pelly	North America
Pylades, cr.	Com. R. G. O. Tupper.	Australia
Quail, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Rymer	North America
Racoon, cr.	Com. G. H. Hewett.	East Indies
Rambler, sur.v.	Com. H. E. P. Cust.	West Indies
Ramillies, B.	Capt. W. des V. Hamilton	Mediterranean
Rattler, g.b.	Lt.-Com. Hon. G. A. Hardinge.	China
Redpole, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. F. H. Booth.	China
Renown, B.	Capt. D. McN. Riddel (Vice-Admiral Sir J. A. Fisher, K.C.B.).	Mediterranean
Revenge, B.	Capt. C. J. Briggs (Rear-Admiral Sir G. H. U. Noel, K.C.M.G.).	Mediterranean
Ringarooma, cr.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Ringdove, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. F. Ayscough	Australia
Rocket, t.b.d.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Royal Arthur, cr.	Capt. C. G. Dicken (Rear-Adml. H. L. Pearson).	Australia
Royal Oak, B.	Capt. W. H. B. Graham	Mediterranean
Royal Sovereign, B.	Capt. M. P. O'Callaghan	Mediterranean
Rupert, h.d.s.	Com. A. B. G. Grenfell.	Alexandria
Sandfly, t.g.b.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Sandpiper, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. C. Carr	China
Scorpion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Snipe, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Oldham	China
Sparrow, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. Wilkin, D.S.O.	C. of Good Hope (to be relieved by Magpie)
Sparrowhawk, t.b.d	(Reserve Esquimault)	Pacific
Sphinx, s.	Com. H. A. Phillips.	East Indies
Surprise, d.v.	Com. F. W. F. Hervey	Mediterranean
Swallow, sloop	Com. F. W. Keary	S. E. C. of America
Swift, g.b.	(Reserve Hong Kong).	China
Tamar, d.s.	Commodore F. Powell, C.B.	Hong Kong
Tartar, cr.	Com. F. R. W. Morgan	C. of Good Hope
Tauranga, cr.	Capt. L. C. Stuart	Australia
Terrible, cr.	Capt. Percy Scott	C. of Good Hope
Terror, d.s.	Capt. T. MacGill, C.B.	Bermuda
Theseus, cr.	Capt. V. A. Tisdall	Mediterranean
Thetis, cr.	Capt. W. S. Rees	Mediterranean
Thrush, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. W. Pochin	C. of Good Hope
Torch, sloop	Com. H. Preedy	Australia
Tribune, cr.	Capt. R. S. Rolleston	North America
Tyne, supply-ship	Com. K. Wade.	Mediterranean
Undaunted, cr.	Capt. A. C. Clarke	China
Urgent, d.s.	Commodore W. H. Henderson.	Jamaica
Venus, cr.	Capt. Sir A. B. Milne, Bart.	Mediterranean
Victorious, B.	Capt. A. Schomberg	China
Virago, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. T. F. Pike	Pacific
Vulcan, t.t.s.	Capt. R. W. White	Mediterranean
Wallaroo, cr.	Capt. A. M. Farquhar	Australia
Warspite, cr.	Capt. T. P Walker (Rear-Adml. Beaumont).	Pacific
Waterwitch, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. W. P. Dawson	China
Whiting, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. Kelly	China
Widgeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. F. Gurney	C. of Good Hope
Wivern, h.d.s.	(Reserve Hong Kong).	China
Woodcock, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. R. Watson	China
Woodlark, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. B. Barton	China

Digitized by Google

The Best Children's Chromo Presentation Books of the Season.

Size, Royal 4to, (or 12½ by 9½ inches), handsomely bound in stiff picture boards, cloth backs, 3s. 6d. each.

Pictures for Little Englanders.—Pictured by A. S. FORREST, and Verses by FRANK GREEN. (A companion book to Mrs. AMES' "A B C for Baby Patriots.")

"A B C for Baby Patriots" was styled by the trade and the Press as being the best and smartest book of the season, but we think "Pictures for Little Englanders" even beats that.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

I am ready, aye ready! Let foeman advance; | I can easily vanquish Six soldiers from France.

A reduction of one of the coloured pictures from "Little Englanders."

The Gimcrack Jingle Alphabet.—Drawn by INGLES RHODE, author and artist of "The Pickletons," which was one of the most successful books published last year.

Eminent art critics are of opinion that the drawings in this book surpass even those of "The Pickletons."

Thomas a Tattamus took two T's, To tie two tubs to two tall trees. | Tell me quickly, if you please, How many T's there are in these.

A B C for Baby Patriots.—By Mrs. ERNEST AMES. New edition now ready.

This alphabet is composed of amusing topical verses, ably illustrated by full-page coloured plates. These are as vivid in their colouring as they are the most humorous in conception, and the book bids fair to be the most successful gift book of modern times. The drawings are exceptionally clever, and the colouring a distinct novelty The verses are also exceedingly smart.

A reduction in one printing of one of the coloured pictures from "A B C for Baby Patriots."

D is the Daring We show on the field, | Which makes every enemy Vanish or yield.

The Pickletons.—Told and drawn by INGLES RHODE.

This exceedingly clever and amusingly-illustrated story consists of twenty-four pages of coloured illustrations, which are masterpieces of Mr. INGLES RHODE's art and humour.

Arriving at a seaport town They haunt the landing stages; | Until a captain, hoarse and brown, Their services engages.

London: DEAN & SON, Ltd., 160a, Fleet Street, E.C.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian Ales.

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

The International Sleeping Car Co.

TRAINS DE LUXE.

CALAIS TO NICE, MONTE CARLO, AND SAN REMO. Every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and SUNDAY. (UNTIL DEC. 10, ON MONDAYS & FRIDAYS ONLY.)

CALAIS TO ROME. Every Tuesday and Thursday. (TUESDAYS ONLY TILL JAN. 11.)

And Three other Daily Services to the SOUTH.

Full and detailed information sent gratis, and all Tickets supplied at the Company's Chief London Offices, 14, COCKSPUR STREET, S.W.

The Official Guide and Time Book of the Company, "THE CONTINENTAL TRAVELLER," sent post free on application.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING OF OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passengers Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

RED WHITE AND BLUE FRENCH COFFEE

SOLD EVERYWHERE

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 2½d. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries,

PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE, AND COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

USEFUL PRESENTS

FOR OUR SOLDIERS AT THE FRONT.

217, Piccadilly, W., LONDON. ALLEN & WRIGHT, 26, Poultry, E.C., LONDON.

MAKERS OF FINEST QUALITY (ONLY) BRIAR ROOT & MEERSCHAUM PIPES

Distinct in QUALITY, FINISH & STYLE.

No. 123 - 12/6. 2 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces. Short, light Pipes.

No. 98 - - 25/-. 4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto for indoor use.

No. 68 - 10/6. 2 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size). Horn and Vulcanite Stems.

ALL IN BEST LONDON-MADE MOROCCO CASES.

TRADE A & W MARK

No. 143 - 31/-. 6 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces (medium sized pipes, Army style).

HIGHEST CLASS GOODS MADE.

EVERY PIPE GUARANTEED.

No. 95 - - 29/-. 4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (large size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto for indoor use.

No. 108 - 15/6. 3 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems.

No. 94 - - 32/-. 4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (large size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF "A & W's SPECIALITIES IN FINE GOODS POST FREE.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & CO., LTD.,

115, NEW BOND ST., LONDON, W.

Illustrated Catalogue on application.

Watch & Clock

MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, NEW BOND ST.

LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

THE

ARMY ASSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

LIFE. War Risks. World wide.

ACCIDENTS. Residence abroad.

FIRE. Residence abroad

BURGLARY.

HORSES.

MARINE RISKS.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison, or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing, without endorsement or removal.

Life Premiums payable quarterly, if desired.

Refund of Income Duty obtained, by arrangement with the War Office, on sums paid for Life and Accident Insurances.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due.

Apply for Prospectus,

MANAGER, 217 Piccadilly (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.),

BRANCH OFFICE: 9, UNION STREET, ALDERSHOT.

NAVAL BRANCH: 15, PEMBROKE ROAD, PORTSMOUTH.

Digitized by Google

Battle-fields of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

THE military situation in Natal developed with such rapidity that the pictures of battle scenes which we present to-day are of very considerable interest. The Bushman's River is that stream which rises near the Giant's Castle, the highest point in the Drakensberg range, and that flows north-eastward to the Tugela. Upon it lies the little town of Estcourt, which became the base of our operations when the enemy drew round Ladysmith, and where General Hildyard has done so much since in keeping them active and alarmed. The valley of the Bushman's River has seen a good deal of the operations of our scouts, and some skirmishing during the present campaign, and its part in the operations is probably not yet over.

When the Boers endeavoured to isolate General Hildyard they threw a considerable force upon the railway between Estcourt and the Mooi River. The idea was to cut off Estcourt on the south, just as it was cut off on the north, and to prevent any approach to the Mooi River. Our illustration of that river is very characteristic of it, and was taken near the place where Major-General Barton installed his camp to protect the railway bridge which carries the line from Ladysmith and Estcourt to Pieter Maritzburg. The only disappointing thing about the attack on the Mooi River camp was that the range of our military guns proved insufficient. The Boers shelled the camp on November 22, and more determinedly on the next day, but they did no damage that could be of the smallest advantage to themselves, which is, indeed, the usual thing in this campaign. One temptation which probably led them to their invasion of the Mooi River valley was the exceeding richness of it, for the Natal farmers had trekked southward to this region, driving their flocks and herds before them, and the Boers raided and looted right and left as they came. Their chief success in the pillaging way was that they were able to seize 300 valuable horses, the property of the Natal Stud Company, valued at £15,000. But what certainly did surprise us was that they were bold enough to bring their guns down to the Mooi River, including a Howitzer, which, however, they seemed to handle very clumsily. Our illustration shows an ox-team waggon, the common carriage and conveyance of the country where the railway does not avail.

Our other illustration is of a very interesting place. It is of the hill at Ladysmith upon which the Boers planted the famous gun known as "Long Tom," that redoubtable piece upon the achievements of which they placed such delusive hopes.

ON THE BUSHMAN'S RIVER NEAR ESTCOURT.
Where the Boers have been Busy Looting.

AN INTERESTING SCENE AT LADYSMITH.
The Hill upon which "Long Tom" was Planted.

A DRIFT ON THE MOOI RIVER.
Near this Place the Boers Attacked General Barton's Camp.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

Digitized by Google

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

"STRAND" Watch with Cap on.

9, Strand, W.C.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published 160 pp., 400 illustrations, Third Edition. Free on application.

No. 82. ALL ENGLISH.
As Half-Hunter or Full Hunting Cases, Silver, £6 6s.; 18ct. Gold, £16 16s.

No. 138.
"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18-ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

The finest quality and value ever produced.

Crystal Glass, Silver, £5; 18-ct. Gold, £13 15s.

Special Size for Ladies, £5 15s. and £12 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be obtained on our new system of payment by Monthly Instalments.

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY

AT THIS

AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;

£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo, and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated, £2 2 0

IT IS THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD., 39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
OR
EDISONIA, LTD., 25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C. } LONDON.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS. SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

Is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., LTD,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

British Manufacture.

PRICE - - £12 12s.

Metal Case, 10s. 6d., or
Solid Leather Case, £2. 10s.

THE EMPIRE TYPEWRITER.

The Best and Strongest Portable Machine in the Market.

A FAVOURITE WITH MILITARY AND NAVAL OFFICERS.

Weighs but 20 lbs. in case.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS— CHIEF WORKS: Montreal, Canada.

The Empire Typewriter Syndicate, Ltd.,
77, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY

Pickering's 'Blanco'

For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:

JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.

Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London E.C.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—I had just begun to write to you yesterday when Esther rushed in to disturb me as usual. She does it so continually just at my busiest moments, that I think she imagines it is good discipline for me. And she always takes care to come dressed in something very pretty, and calculated to rouse my envy, which, perhaps, is also part of the discipline. This morning she had on the charming grey cloth dress a picture of which I sent you last week. Very light grey it was, and made with white silk revers, braided with thin striped grey and white silk cord. On these revers were quaintly-designed empiecements of panne in a darker shade of the grey, and this panne in its turn was outlined with a piped edging of grey silk. The skirt opened sufficiently to show an under-skirt of white silk similarly braided and ornamented. This dress she had had made to wear at the concert at Claridge's Hotel, and it decidedly was well suited for such an occasion, for it was exceptionally smart and pretty.

Talking of that concert, are you going next Monday evening to the "At Home" at the Hotel Cecil which is being organised by the Society of American Women in London for the same purpose—I mean for their hospital ship? It promises to be quite as smart an affair as the other, and I only hope it will be as successful from a monetary point of view. The tableaux vivants, in which the American ladies take part, will, I expect, prove a great attraction to many, whilst to others the supper included in the guinea tickets will no doubt be an important factor. But I am wandering away from Esther. The purpose of her visit was to ask me to help her to choose Christmas presents for her many friends in Natal. She said that she had been running round to all the shops alone, but could find nothing that exactly suited her taste. So I promised I would go with her this morning, and punctually at eleven o'clock we sallied forth on a regular present-hunting expedition. But, as you may well suppose, my advice counted for nothing. When the crucial moment came she knew exactly what she wanted, so I patiently looked on and did little else than help her to admire every purchase as she made it. Luckily for her, most of her friends were smokers, so many of the presents she bought were pipes and other things intimately connected with tobacco. With pipes, her great difficulty was to decide on the respective merits of straight or bent ones, and I must confess I could not help her in the least. However, she solved the difficulty by buying a charming Morocco case at Allen and Wright's, in Piccadilly Circus, which held one of each, and was quite inexpensive. We found some difficulty at first, for we were shown such a variety of cases, some with two pipes, some with four, others even with six or eight; but at last her mind was made up, and I am thankful to say that when once it is made up it does not change again. Then she bought a tobacco pouch made of antelope skin, with an initial beautifully worked on it in gold thread and silk, the letter being taken from a quaint old English alphabet. Esther was so pleased with this that she ordered another, to have a monogram worked in the same way. And then she bought a cigarette holder made of a lovely piece of amber encircled with a gold snake, and packed away in a neat little silver case to hang on a watch chain, and she nearly added to it one made of tortoise-shell, and another of ivory, because they were so tempting. And she even began to consider what cigarettes she should buy; but here I advised her to stop, for what woman ever knew how to choose cigarettes for a man? For a wonder she took my advice, and bought instead a sweetly pretty gun-metal cigarette case, set all over with tiny turquoises. After that we went off to a fancy leather shop to see what we could pick up there. And so we kept on for the whole morning, until, contented though tired, and loaded with far too many presents, she came with me to lunch at Prince's. Here, she says, she often goes when she is alone, for she knows she can always rely on receiving as much courtesy and attention as if she were escorted by a whole bodyguard of brothers and cousins. We had an excellent lunch, of which we were badly in need after our hard morning's work, and between the courses and our snatches of gossip we criticised the various toques that we saw there, in every variety of shape and material. And now I know you are longing for me to describe those toques, but I have no time or space this week, as I want to call your attention to the fact that the best way to forward papers, books, and other presents to the soldiers in South Africa is to send them prepaid to the Pall Mall Deposit and Forwarding Company, Carlton Street, Regent Street, who will forward them free to Cape Town and Durban, where they will be handed over to the commanding officer for distribution. This is a convenience that has already been much appreciated, and so have the special arrangements the same Company has made for sending out parcels to officers. About seven tons weight of things have been sent each week to the soldiers since the war began. But though a great deal has already gone, more is still wanted, which reminds me to ask you if you are making any of the Tam-o'-Shanters, Cardigan jackets, etc., Lady White has appealed for?

Yours affectionately,

Constance.

A DAINTY BOLERO.

* Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.*

Digitized by Google

At the Front and In the Front.

WAR OFFICE ORDERS.

In recognition of the peculiar suitability and great value of

FOR FIELD HOSPITAL USE,

and in acknowledgment of successful experiences in previous campaigns, Her Majesty's WAR OFFICE have commanded the dispatch of further large supplies for the troops in South Africa.

BOVRIL LIMITED are also supplying large quantities of their SPECIAL EMERGENCY RATIONS for the TROOPS actively engaged.

TO THOSE WHO HAVE FRIENDS AT THE FRONT.

Boxes containing ONE DOZEN BOTTLES, packed as sent out from the Company's Warehouses, can be purchased of any grocer or chemist in the kingdom.

HUNTING NOVELTY.

The 'Cloutsham' Stock

(Regd.)

A COMPLETE STOCK AND CRAVAT IN ONE, WITH NO LOOSE PARTS FOR WASHING.

Price 4/6 Post Free.

Coloured Cravats for Shooting Golf, etc., made to Order only.

CELLULOID STIFFENER, 6d. extra.

CRAVAT OPEN FOR WASHING.

If Coloured, or Figured White Cravats are required, send for Patterns.
For Plain White Taffeta "Cloutshams," send neck size and remittance.

Jaeger

PURE WOOL

Sporting Tailors,

42, CONDUIT ST., W.

Telegrams: "HIGHMOST, LONDON."

THREEPENCE EACH, AT ALL RESPECTABLE TOBACCONISTS.

SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

EXQUISITE MILD FLAVOUR AND MOST DELICATE AROMA.

ALSO

FLOR DE DINDIGUL CIGARETTES (all tobacco leaf, no paper, a delightful wholesome Whiff, 1d. each). Sole Importers, BEWLAY & Co., LTD., 49, 74 and 156, Strand, and 143, Cheapside. Established 1780. Price lists, post free

THE

SITUATION IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The Special Double War Number

OF

NAVY & ARMY Illustrated,

ONE SHILLING,

Has been reprinted, and can now be obtained from the Publishers.

All the Actors and Scenes in the Drama.

Over One Hundred Photographs and Pictures are reproduced in this Special Number, illustrative of the Military Forces and Strategic points, Boer and British, with the movements of troops.

SPECIAL WAR MAP.

The whole story of the complication is told by competent writers, and no pains have been spared to make the Number comprehensively illustrative of what has happened and is likely to occur.

GEORGE NEWNES, Ltd., 7-12, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

Digitized by Google

THE GOOD OLD FLAG,

LIKE "ASPINALL'S ENAMEL,"

CANNOT BE BEATEN.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL

USED ON H.M. SHIPS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

SPECIAL TERMS TO OFFICERS OF THE SERVICE.

The finest colors in the world.

SPECIAL QUALITIES FOR LARGE DECORATIVE WORK.

"O" QUALITY. For State Rooms, Cabins, and General Interior Work.

"INDIAN" QUALITY. For Deck Work, Guns, Turrets, and General Exterior Work.

HEAD OFFICES:—

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL, LTD., NEW CROSS, LONDON, S.E.

Printed by HARNS, 83—87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. Editorial Offices, 20, Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9th, 1899.

OUR DOUBLE CHRISTMAS NUMBER NEXT WEEK.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED

ed by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
es, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 149.

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,
217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.).

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

Collier's

BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.

COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
LINEN COLLARS, CUFFS, AND SHIRTS.
COLLARS. LADIES' 3-fold from 3/6 per doz.
" GENTS' 4-fold, 4/11 per doz.
CUFFS for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5/11 per doz.
PRICE LISTS POST FREE. Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.
MATCHLESS SHIRTS. Fine quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Pure Linen Fronts, 35/6 per ½-doz. (to measure, 2/- extra).
N.B.—Old Shirts made good as new with best materials in neckbands, cuffs and fronts for 14/- per ½-doz.
N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.
Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.
Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.
BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named
Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.
MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette.")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No 149. Saturday, December 9th, 1899

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),
Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with
Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,
PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS FOR MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE,
WOOLWICH, SANDHURST,
AND ALL
MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS;
also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:
MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899.

	Marks.
*FIRST UNIVERSITY.—A. E. M. Ward	1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

	Marks.
*FIRST ARTILLERY.—C. H. Clark ... ... (After a few months' reading.)	1792
*20th Infantry.—L. J. Le Fleming	1582
35th " A. Moore	1485
38th " J. C. Hooper	1463
*72nd " W. B. Mitford	1310
*76th " A. J. M. Gordon	1280

*1st trial direct.

March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.
N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.
Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK. S.W.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.
There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
MARCH, 1899.
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

First-Class Certificates.
HOME AND FOREIGN
CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES.
N.C.O.'s and MEN, at home or abroad, can be prepared by post for the half-yearly Exams. Send for particulars of classes now forming for March Exam., 1900.—RANDALL J. FOX (Ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

FEE 60 GUINEAS
SCHOOL SHIP "CONWAY"
LIVERPOOL.
FOR TRAINING YOUNG GENTLEMEN TO BECOME OFFICERS IN MERCHANT STEAMERS.
FOR PROSPECTUS APPLY TO THE CAPT., A.T. MILLER, R.N.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S W., 8.30 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Silver King."
LYRIC, W., 8 30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Canary."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "In Old Kentucky."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Lady of Ostend."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Harbour Lights."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "In the Ranks."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "Alone in London." Sat. 2.30.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "One of the Best."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2 p.m. "Alone in London."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. The Mohawk Minstrels.
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Lights o' London." Thurs. 2.30.
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 8 p.m. "Soldiers of the Queen."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 8 p.m. "A Greek Slave." Wed. 2.30.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. "Charley's Aunt."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "The Circus Girl."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Why Smith Left Home."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 8 p.m. "Sons of the Cord and Steel."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "On the Frontier."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Lord and Lady Algy."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. Special Attractions.
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "Jim the Penman."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Lady Godiva."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Circus Girl."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. Closed, to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.
During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.
These include
WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.
Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.
HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.
It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.
CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.
(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).
Telegrams—"Exercitus London"
Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

'Flor de Dindigul' Cigars

SAMPLES
5 for 1/-
12 Stamps

3D EACH

6 GOLD MEDALS

Bewlay & Co. LIMITED. 49 STRAND & 143 CHEAPSIDE, & of all respectable Tobacconists

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for

Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

"To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull."

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK,

SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.
Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. En Pension from 10 francs. South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administratcur.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

The Troops In South Africa.

The PUBLISHER of the "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE" begs to announce that he has Coloured Pictures of each BRITISH REGIMENT in, or ordered to, South Africa, and will be pleased to supply copies of the same. Price 6½d. each Regiment, post free to any part of the World. Full List on Application.

Apply—The MANAGER, "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE." Offices—3, York St., Covent Garden, London, W.C.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS

and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought)

GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Second Week.]

THE CAVALRY, ROYAL ARTILLERY, AND ROYAL ENGINEERS.*

CAVALRY.

1st Life Guards	Lieut.-Col. C. N. Miles.	Windsor
2nd "	L.-Cl. J. A. Smith-Cuninghame	Regent's Park
Royal Horse Gds.	Lt.-Col. G. Lord Binning	Hyde Park
Composite Regt.— Househ. Cavalry	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Neeld	For South Africa
1st Dragoon Gds.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Owen	Dublin
2nd "	Lieut.-Col. G. P. Douglas	York
3rd "	Lieut.-Col. U. G. C. de Burgh	Dundalk
4th "	Lieut.-Col. G. D. F. Sulivan	Rawul Pindi
5th "	Lieut.-Col. St. J. C. Gore	Ladysmith, Natal
6th "	Lieut.-Col. T. C. Porter	South Africa
7th "	Lieut.-Col. W. H. M. Lowe	Colchester
1st Dragoons	Lieut.-Col. J. F. Burn-Murdoch	Natal
2nd "	Lt.-Col. Hon. W. P. Alexander.	South Africa
3rd Hussars	Lt.-Col. W. N. Wogan-Browne.	Lucknow
4th "	Lieut.-Col. W. A. Ramsay	Secunderabad
5th Lancers	Col. J. F. M. Fawcett	Ladysmith, Natal
6th Dragoons	Lt.-Col. H. C. Page-Henderson	Cape Colony
7th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. Hon. R. T. Lawley	Norwich
8th "	Lieut.-Col. P. L. Clowes	Curragh Camp
9th Lancers	Lieut.-Col. B. Gough	Cape Colony
10th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. R. B. W. Fisher	South Africa
11th "	Lieut.-Col. E. R. Courtenay.	Cairo
12th Lancers	Lt.-Col. D. S. W., Earl of Airlie	Natal
13th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. H. J. Blagrove	South Africa
14th "	Lieut.-Col. G. H. C. Hamilton	South Africa
15th "	Lieut.-Col. J. R. P. Gordon	Meerut
16th Lancers	Lieut.-Col. H. L. Aylmer	Umballa
17th "	Lieut.-Col. M. G. Neeld	Ballincollig
18th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. B. D. Moller	Ladysmith, Natal
19th "	L.-C. C. B. H. Wolseley-Jenkins	Ladysmith, Natal
20th "	Lieut.-Col. H. G. P. Beauchamp	Mhow
21st Lancers	L.-C. W. G. Crole Wyndham, C.B.	Curragh

ROYAL REGIMENT OF ARTILLERY.

Royal Horse Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.
A.—Meerut
B.—Lucknow
C.—Mhow
D.—Umballa
E.—Kirkee
F.—Sealkote
G.—Cape Colony
H.—Meerut
I.—Umballa
J.—Bangalore
K.—Rawul Pindi
L.—Secunderabad
M.—Newbridge
N.—Woolwich
O.—Cape Colony
P.—Cape Colony
Q.—For South Africa
R.—Cape Colony
S.—Woolwich
T.—For South Africa
U.—For South Africa

Royal Field Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.
1.—Kirkee
2.—Shorncliffe
3.—Campbellpore
4.—South Africa
5.—Athlone
6.—Cawnpore
7.—Natal
8.—Christchurch
9.—Limerick
10.—Woolwich
11.—Meean Meer
12.—Jullundur
13.—Natal
14.—Natal
15.—Meerut
16.—Kirkee
17.—Woolwich
18.—Natal
19.—For South Africa
20.—For South Africa
21.—Natal
22.—Mhow
23.—Secunderabad
24.—Peshawur
25.—Bangalore
26.—Shorncliffe
27.—Neemuch
28.—For South Africa
29.—Kirkee
30.—Fyzabad
31.—Hyderabad
32.—Jhansi
33.—St. Thomas' [Mount
34.—Ahmedabad
35.—Kurrachee
36.—Nusseerabad
37.—South Africa
38.—South Africa
39.—Hilsea
40.—Bangalore
41.—Lucknow
42.—Natal
43.—Shorncliffe
44.—Colchester
45.—St. Thomas' Mt.
46.—Dinapore
47.—Ferozepore
48.—Barrackpore
49.—Belgaum
50.—Agra
51.—Rawul Pindi
52.—Jubbulpore
53.—Natal
54.—Meerut
55.—Saugor
56.—Egypt
57.—Meean Meer
58.—Kamptee
59.—Woolwich
60.—Allahabad
61.—For South Africa
62.—Natal
63.—South Africa
64.—For South Africa
65.—South Africa
66.—Natal
67.—Natal
68.—Hilsea
69.—Natal
70.—Bareilly
71.—Mooltan
72.—Bellary
73.—South Africa
74.—Natal
75.—Natal
76.—Aldershot
77.—South Africa
78.—South Africa
79.—For South Africa
80.—Nowgong
81.—Aldershot
82.—Aldershot
83.—Aldershot
84.—Aldershot
85.—Aldershot
86.—Newcastle
87.—Newcastle
88.—Weedon
89.—Hilsea
90.—Longford
91.—Waterford
92.—Curragh
93.—Cahir
94.—Leeds
95.—Leeds

Royal Garrison Artillery.

MOUNTAIN DIVISION.

Battery.
1.—Lundi Kotal
2.—Khyra Gali
3.—Bara Gali
4.—For South Africa
5.—Kalabagh
6.—Jutogh
7.—Quetta
8.—Darjeeling
9.—Mandalay
10.—Natal

EASTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Dover).
Depôt No. 1, Dover. No. 2, Great Yarmouth.

Co.
1.—Calcutta
2.—St. Helena
3.—Rangoon (for
4.—Kurrachee[Aden)
5.—Malta (for
6.—Dover [Bermuda)
7.—(S.T.) Mooltan
8.—Aden
9.—Allahabad
10.—Shoeburyness
11.—Gibraltar
12.—Woolwich
13.—Bombay
14.—Isle of Wight
15.—Dover
16.—Egypt [Bermuda)
17.—Malta (for
18.—Gibraltar
19.—Gibraltar [Malta)
20.—Gibraltar (for
21.—Sheerness
22.—(H.) Sheerness
23.—Shoeburyness
24.—Delhi
25.—Hong Kong
26.—(S.T.) Bombay
27.—Sheerness
28.—Landguard Fort
29.—Leith Fort

SOUTHERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Portsmouth).
Depôt No. 1, Fort Rowner, Gosport. No. 2, Seaforth Barracks, Liverpool.

Co.
1.—Malta
2.—Gibraltar
3.—Portsmouth
4.—Portsmouth
5.—Agra
6.—Roorkee
7.—Weymouth
8.—Bermuda (for [Halifax, N.S.)
9.—Roorkee
10.—Portsmouth (for [Malta)
11.—Roorkee
12.—Singapore
13.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight
14.—Cork Harbour
15.—(S.T.)Ft. Grange, [Gosport
16.—Malta
17.—Malta
18.—Aden
19.—Malta
20.—(S.T.) For South [Africa
21.—Portsmouth
22.—Jamaica
23.—Quetta
24.—(H.) Campbell- [pore
25.—Hong Kong
26.—Gibraltar
27.—Malta
28.—Weymouth
29.—Barrackpore
30.—Portsmouth
31.—Malta
32.—Cork Harb'r (for [Gibraltar)
33.—Thobba
34.—Trincomalee
35.—Singapore
36.—Gibraltar
37.—Ceylon
38.—Hong Kong
39.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight
40.—Cork Harbour
41.—Portsmouth

WESTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Devonport).
Depôt No. 1, Citadel, Plymouth. No. 2, Scarborough.

Co.
1.—St. Lucia
2.—Pembroke Dock
3.—Halifax
4.—Ferozepore
5.—Rawul Pindi
6.—Dunbar
7.—Jhansi
8.—Mauritius
9.—(H) Secunderab'd
10.—Devonport
11.—Fort St. George
12.—Jersey
13.—Devonport
14.—C. of Good Hope
15.—(S.T.) for S. Africa
16.—Aden
17.—Devonport
18.—Bombay
19.—Esquimault
20.—Halifax, N.S. (for [Jamaica)
21.—Bermuda
22.—Rangoon
23.—Kimberley
24.—Malta
25.—Quetta
26.—Mauritius
27.—Pembroke Dock
28.—Londonderry
29.—Fort Bovisand, [Plymouth

ROYAL MALTA ART'Y
Malta

H. Heavy. S.T. Siege Train.

Co.
1st (F.) Cork Harbour
2nd (F.) Egypt
3rd (F.) Bermuda
4th (Sub.) Gosport
5th (F.) Portsmouth
6th (F.) South Africa
7th (Fd.) S. Africa
8th (Ry.) S. Africa
9th (F.) Chatham
10th (Ry.) S. Africa
11th (Fd.) S. Africa
12th (Fd.) Aldershot
13th (Sur.) Clifton, [Bristol
14th (Sur.) Dublin
15th (F.) Gibraltar
16th (Sur.) Bedford
17th (Fd.) S. Africa
18th (F.) Halifax, N.S.
19th (Sur.) Southamp- [ton
20th (F.) South Africa
21st (Sub.) Felixstowe
22nd (Sub.) I. of Wight
23rd (Fd.) Natal
24th (F.) Malta
25th (F.) Hong Kong
26th (Fd.) S. Africa
27th (Sub.) Bermuda
28th (Sub.) Malta
29th (F.) Cape Town
30th (Sub.) Plymouth
31st (F.) South Africa
32nd (F.) Gibraltar
33rd (Sub.) Cork Harb.
34th (Sub.) Gravesend

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Co.
35th (Sub.) Pembroke [Dock
36th (F.) Bermuda
37th (Fd.) for S. Africa
38th (Fd.) Shorncliffe
39th (Sub.) Sheerness
40th (Sub.) Halifax, [N.S.
41st (F.) Hdqrs. and ½ Co. Ceylon; ½ Co. Singapore
42nd (F.) South Africa
43rd (F.) Mauritius
A (D.) Chatham
B (D.) Chatham
C (D.) Chatham
D (D.) Chatham
E (D.) Chatham
F (D.) Chatham
G (D.) Chatham
M (Sub.) Chatham
N (D.) Chatham
H Army Hqrs., India

TELEGRAPH BATN.:
1st Div., South Africa
2nd Div., 28, Newgate [Street

BRIDGING BATN.:
A Troop, South Africa
B Troop, Aldershot

Field Troop, S. Africa
Field D., R.E. Troops, [Aldershot
Balloon D. and Sect., [South Africa

COAST BATTALION (Submarine Miners):

Sect.
1 (Tyne) N. Shields
2 (Severn) Cardiff
3 (Clyde) Greenock
4 (Humber) Paull
5 (Tees) Middlesbr'gh
6 (Tay) Broughty [Ferry
7 (Forth) Leith, ["Dido," hulk
8 (Mersey) Liverpool
9 (Falmouth) Falm'th
10 (Weym'th) Weym'th

LOCAL COMPANIES ABROAD:
Singapore (Sub.) [Singapore
Hong Kong (Sub.) [Hong Kong
Ceylon (Sub.) [Trincomalee
Mauritius (Sub.) [Mauritius
W. India (Sub) Jamaica
W. India (Fort.) ½ Co. Jamaica, 1 Sect. Sierra Leone, 1 Sect. St. Lucia.

F. Fortress. Fd. Field. Sub. Submarine. Sur. Survey. Ry. Railway. D. Depot.

* The Disposition of our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

THE NAVY AND ARMY.—Numerous illustrations have appeared in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of nearly all the ships in Her Majesty's Fleet, and of the regiments in either the Home, Indian, or Colonial Armies. Lists can be obtained on application.

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII., cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings each, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS.
SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & CO., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

Try a 2d., 6d., or 1s. Tin.

Try a 2d., 6d., or 1s. Tin.

STEPHENS'
DOES NOT WHITE
STAIN THE KNIFE HANDLES.
POWDER

Sample 1s. tin will be sent post free on receipt of 12 stamps, and first 50 requests opened every Tuesday morning will not only have the Knife Powder sent on per return of post, but the stamps forwarded will be returned to the senders if they have not already received a similar return from us.

SOLE AGENTS—
"C. CHANCELLOR" CO.,
13, CLERKENWELL ROAD,
LONDON, E.C.

THE NEW
'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY
AT THIS
AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;
£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo,
and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON.
For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,
£2 2 0

IT IS THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
} LONDON.

HUNTING NOVELTY.

The 'Cloutsham' Stock
(Regd.)

A COMPLETE STOCK AND CRAVAT IN ONE, WITH NO LOOSE PARTS FOR WASHING.

Price
4/6
Post Free.

Coloured Cravats for Shooting, Golf, etc., made to Order only.

CELLULOID STIFFENER,
6d. extra.

CRAVAT OPEN FOR WASHING.

If Coloured, or Figured White Cravats are required, send for Patterns.
For Plain White Taffeta "Cloutshams," send neck size and remittance.

PURE WOOL

Jaeger

Sporting Tailors,
42, CONDUIT ST., W.
Telegrams: "HIGHMOST, LONDON."

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: The Observation Balloon at Ladysmith. Reconnoitring the Boer Position	289
Martial Law in Durban. (Illustrated)	290
The North American Station. (Illustrated)	291
Scenes of Naval Life—
A Naval Washing Day. (Illustrated)	292
A 6-in. Gun in Action. (Illustrated)	292
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	293
Editorial Notices	294
The Navy and Army Diary	294
Military Scouting. (Illustrated)	294
Literary News and Books to be Read—
A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	296
With White at Ladysmith. (Illustrated)—
Photographs from Our Special Correspondent at the Front	297
The Boer Prisoners at the Cape. (Illustrated)	301
On the Way to Cape Town. (Illustrated)	302
"Up Doubles the 'Handy Man.'" (Illustrated)	303
Shoulder to Shoulder. (Illustrated)	304
Afloat and Ashore—
Notes and Queries for Everyone	305
A Day on the Lower Deck. (Illustrated)	306
The Story of the War	308
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	308
War Trains—
From Our Special Correspondent. (Illustrated)	309
On the Sea—
The Latest Departures for South Africa. (Illustrated)	310

The Pall Mall Deposit

STORAGE AND FORWARDING
OF
OFFICERS' BAGGAGE AND KIT
A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military and Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.,

Carlton Street, Regent Street, S.W.;

And Arthur Street, Aldershot.

THE "OSMAN"
Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.
MADE BY
BARLOW & JONES, Limited,
MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.
And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

A BOOKLET OF AMUSING AND ATTRACTIVE
NURSERY JINGLES,
Beautifully Printed in Colours,
SENT FREE on application if this paper is mentioned.
A post-card will do.

FRAME FOOD CO., Ltd., Battersea, LONDON.

OLYMPIA. NOW OPEN. TWICE DAILY.
SOLE LESSEE AND MANAGER - - - - MR. EDWIN CLEARY.
OPEN DECEMBER 2nd.
BRITON, BOER, AND BLACK IN SAVAGE AFRICA.

OLYMPIA. NOW OPEN. TWICE DAILY.
A STUPENDOUS NEW SHOW.
ILLUSTRATING PEACE AND WAR.
THE REAL ARMOURED TRAIN IN ACTUAL BATTLE.
THE MOST MAGNIFICENT PROMENADE IN LONDON.
OPEN MIDDAY TO MIDNIGHT,

OLYMPIA. NOW OPEN. TWICE DAILY.
THE GREAT KAFFIR KRAAL.
THE GENUINE SOUDANESE VILLAGE.
THE MAHDI'S BLACK WARRIORS.
THE DEATH DANCE.
A GENUINE ESKIMO ENCAMPMENT.
TEAMS OF SLEDGE DOGS.

OLYMPIA. NOW OPEN. TWICE DAILY.
MORE FOR THE MONEY THAN EVER OFFERED.
THOUSANDS OF SHILLING SEATS.
THE NEW SHOW IS THE BIGGEST AND THE BEST.
Now Open, Midday to Midnight.

Digitized by Google

. . THE . .

International . Fur . Store.

GENTLEMEN'S

FUR-LINED

OVERCOATS

READY FOR IMMEDIATE WEAR.

163 & 165, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Digitized by Google

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD

Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET.

'War in the Transvaal!'

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD.

24, THROGMORTON STREET.

Useful Christmas Gifts.

217, PICCADILLY, W.; ALLEN & WRIGHT'S 26, POULTRY, E.C., LONDON.

Extra Quality Briar-Root Pipes

GOLD AND SILVER-MOUNTED.

These Celebrated Pipes are held in great favour by best class of smokers; they are exceptionally well-made of FINEST MATERIAL THROUGHOUT, AND SOLD AT LOWEST PRICES, FOR BEST GOODS.

No. 119 - 3/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar, Horn or Vulcanite Stem. Morocco case, 2/- extra. With fine Amber Stem, in case, 11/6 to 13/-. Ditto, and 15 ct. Gold Mount, 21/-.

No. 116 - 5/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar, Horn or Vulcanite Stem. Morocco case, 2/- extra. with Fine Amber Stem, in case, 12/6 to 15/-. Ditto, and 15 ct. Gold Mount, 28/6.

No. 117 - 3/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar, Horn or Vulcanite Stem. Morocco case, 2/- extra. Fine Amber Stem, in case, 11/6 to 13/-. Ditto, and 15 ct. Gold Mount, 21/-

No. 48 - 12/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar, Horn or Vulcanite Stem, and Solid Silver Wind Cover, in Morocco case. No. 40, same style, curved shape, 12/6.

No. 41 - 5/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar, Horn or Vulcanite Stem, in Morocco case. No. 40, same style, straight, 5/6

No. 46 12/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar, Horn or Vulcanite Stem, in Morocco case, Solid Silver Chain Cover. No. 47, same style, curved shape, 12/6.

No. 34 - 3/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar, Horn or Vulcanite Stem. Morocco case, 2/- extra. With fine Amber Stem, in case, 13/6. Ditto, and 15 ct. Gold Mount, 27/6.

No. 34a - 3/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar. Horn or Vulcanite Stem, Morocco case, 2/- extra. With fine Amber Stem, in case, 13/6. Ditto, and 15 ct. Gold Mount, 27/6.

No. 38 - 3/6. A & W Silver-Mounted Briar, Horn or Vulcanite Stem. Morocco case, 2/- extra. With fine Amber Stem, in case, 13/6.

For Specialities in Companion Cases of 2, 3, 4, 6 and 8 Pipes, Pouches, Cigar and Cigarette Holders in Amber, etc., etc., see

ALLEN & WRIGHT'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, POST FREE,

217, Piccadilly, W., & 26, Poultry, E.C., London.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,

AND

COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

A GOOD HONEST, STERLING ARTICLE.

AS MADE FOR H.M. THE QUEEN, AND REGULARLY SUPPLIED TO THE LEADING STEAMSHIP COMPANIES.

PALETHORPES'

ROYAL CAMBRIDGE

SAUSAGES.

Purity and Quality incontestable. Guaranteed made of Prime British-fed Pork at our Model Factory, splendidly equipped with our own Patent Machinery.

LARGEST MAKERS IN THE WORLD, AWARDED 10 GOLD MEDALS.

Of Grocers, Game Dealers, etc.

For name of nearest Agent write to—

PALETHORPES, Limited,

DUDLEY PORT, STAFFS.

The Best Children's Chromo Presentation Books of the Season.

Size, Royal 4to, (or 12½ by 9½ inches), handsomely bound in stiff picture boards, cloth backs, 3s. 6d. each.

Pictures for Little Englanders.—Pictured by A. S. FORREST, and Verses by FRANK GREEN. (A companion book to Mrs. AMES' "A B C for Baby Patriots.")

"A B C for Baby Patriots" was styled by the trade and the Press as being the best and smartest book of the season, but we think "Pictures for Little Englanders" even beats that.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

I am ready, aye ready! Let foeman advance; | I can easily vanquish Six soldiers from France.

A reduction of one of the coloured pictures from "Little Englanders."

The Gimcrack Jingle Alphabet.—Drawn by INGLES RHODE, author and artist of "The Pickletons," which was one of the most successful books published last year. Eminent art critics are of opinion that the drawings in this book surpass even those of "The Pickletons."

T Thomas a Tattamus took two T's, To tie two tubs to two tall trees. | Tell me quickly, if you please, How many T's there are in these.

A B C for Baby Patriots.—By Mrs. ERNEST AMES. New edition now ready.

This alphabet is composed of amusing topical verses, ably illustrated by full-page coloured plates. These are as vivid in their colouring as they are the most humorous in conception, and the book bids fair to be the most successful gift book of modern times. The drawings are exceptionally clever, and the colouring a distinct novelty. The verses are also exceedingly smart.

A reduction in one printing of one of the coloured pictures from "A B C for Baby Patriots."

D is the Daring We show on the field, | Which makes every enemy Vanish or yield.

The Pickletons.—Told and drawn by INGLES RHODE.

This exceedingly clever and amusingly-illustrated story consists of twenty-four pages of coloured illustrations, which are masterpieces of Mr. INGLES RHODE's art and humour.

A rriving at a seaport town They haunt the landing stages; | Until a captain, hoarse and brown, Their services engages.

London: DEAN & SON, Ltd., 160a, Fleet Street, E.C.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

FOR

CRICKET, RACQUET, FOOTBALL, FIVES, POLO, HOCKEY, GOLF,

ETC.

Special Terms to "Naval and Military."

WOOLWICH, S.E.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

"STRAND" Watch with Cap on.

9, Strand, W.C.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our "TREATISE ON WATCHES," just published, 125 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 82. ALL ENGLISH.
As Half-Hunter or Full Hunting Cases, Silver, £6 6s.; 18ct. Gold, £16 16s.

No. 138.
"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

18ct. Gold	£21:0:0
Steel or Silver Cases... ... each	8:8:0
With 30 Minute Recorder	5:5:0

The finest quality and value ever produced.

Crystal Glass, Silver, £5; 18ct. Gold, £13 15s.
Special Size for Ladies, £5 15s. and £12 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be obtained on our new system of payment by Monthly Instalments.

D E A R E S T

DIAMOND EMERALD AMETHYST RUBY EMERALD SAPPHIRE TOPAZ

Our New Registered No. 211,798 Bracelet, Best Gold and Real Stones, Price £5 15s.

R EM EM BR AN CE

RUBY EMERALD MOONSTONE EMERALD MOONSTONE BERYL RUBY AMETHYST NEPHRITE CRYSOLITE EMERALD

Our latest Registered No. 12,237, Best Gold and Real Stones, £6 15s.

S. SMITH & SON, LTD., 9, Strand, W.C. Watchmakers to the Admiralty.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co., LTD.,

115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

Watch & Clock MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, NEW BOND ST.
LONDON, W.,
And Workshops,
11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

Digitized by Google

Military Families.

A WORTHY son of his country is Thomas Tuersley, whose portrait with those of his six soldier sons is here given. Tuersley, who is now seventy-three, enlisted in the 3rd Buffs in 1849, and was discharged in 1866, after having put over twenty-one years with the colours. In that time he earned the Crimean, Turkish, and good conduct medals, and is a claimant for the Canadian medal about to be issued.

Five of his sons chose the Royal Artillery for their career. The eldest, William, shown under his father, is thirty-eight, has completed upwards of twenty years, a good deal of which was in India, and is now Sergeant-Instructor in the 1st Devon Volunteer Artillery. On his right is Charles, twenty-six years of age, who, after eleven years' service, has attained a similar position as his brother, and is now Sergeant-Instructor to the Forfar and Kincardine Volunteer Artillery at Montrose. On his left is Alfred, aged twenty-two, who only enlisted about two years ago, and who is now serving as a Bombardier in the 19th Field Battery at Exeter. Above Charles is Albert, aged nineteen, who enlisted before his brother and put in three years' boy service. He is now a Bombardier in the same battery as Alfred. Frank, opposite to him, is the baby of the family, he being only seventeen, though he has been in the Service since 1895. He is a trumpeter in the 6th Field Battery at Cawnpore. The second son, Charles Tuersley, joined the Army Service Corps in 1884, and served through the Suakin Campaign of 1885. He was recently serving at Woolwich, his rank being sergeant.

THOMAS TUERSLEY AND HIS SIX SOLDIER SONS.
The Photos. are by Messrs. Speight, Holliday, Ferry, North Camp Photo. Co., Cooper, and Pritchett.

Photo. Copyright. Winter
BANDMASTER RICHARDSON, 3rd RIFLE BRIGADE,
And His Enlisted Sons.

ANOTHER interesting Military family group is that of Bandmaster E. J. Richardson, 3rd Battalion Rifle Brigade, and his five enlisted sons. The latter are evidently capital "chips of the old block," from the smart sergeant on the left to the bright young Highlander on the right. The former, by the way, is a clerk in the Headquarters Office of the Punjab command, while the latter is serving in the land of the "Forty-twa." Mr. Richardson himself enlisted in the old 76th (now the 2nd West Riding Regiment) over forty years ago, and subsequently embarked for India on October 16, 1863. An Indian voyage took time in those days, and it was not until January 31, 1864, that the regiment landed at Fort St. George, Madras. Returning to England in 1876, Richardson was sent to Kneller Hall, and was promoted as bandmaster to his present battalion in 1878. He leaves the Army in the forthcoming trooping season.

OUR third group is unique, for it represents the family gathered at the "golden wedding" of one who has devoted his life to the Military Service of the State, and whose sons have followed in his footsteps, as he did in that of his own father. For the father of Sergeant Shrapnell enlisted in 1796 in the Grenadier Guards, and served in that corps until he was wounded at Waterloo nineteen years later.

Sergeant Shrapnell enlisted in the East India Company's Artillery in 1847, and served in it until, after the Mutiny, it was incorporated in the Royal Artillery, in which he completed his twenty-one years for pension.

Since 1868 he has, as a pensioner, been employed at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich. The eldest son joined the senior Service, and retired from the Royal Navy in 1894 as a first-class petty officer, after having completed twenty years' service.

The second son—whose portrait has been artificially introduced into the picture—is a warrant officer in the Royal Engineers now serving at Wei-hai-Wei, to which station he was sent as the first Royal Engineer Foreman of Works after its being taken over by the British Government. He has now completed twenty-four years' service.

The third son is also in the Royal Engineers, being a company sergeant-major, now stationed at the Curragh, and he will in three months have put in twenty-one years' service.

Photo. Copyright. Wood.
A SOLDIER AND HIS FAMILY.
Sergeant Shrapnell and His Military Sons.

In all, father and three sons have contributed 106 years of their life's work to the service of Her Majesty, and, if the grandfather's term be added, the three generations can show a record of a century and a-quarter of service.

Fortunately there are many families that can show a similar one.

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

Naval and Military Tailors and Outfitters.

56, PALL MALL, (OPPOSITE MARLBOROUGH HOUSE) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO COMPLETE AFRICAN OUTFITS.

HOTELS DE LUXE.

MONTE CARLO.

Riviera Palace.

NICE.

Riviera Palace.

ABBAZIA.

the NICE of the Adriatic.

HOTEL STEPHANIE,

and other Hotels and Villas.

For tariffs, full particulars, and to reserve accommodation, apply to

THE INTERNATIONAL SLEEPING CAR CO., 14, COCKSPUR ST., LONDON, W.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian

. . Ales. . .

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.

IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

STRAIGHTFORWARD TRUTHS

No roundabout tale need be invented to . . . . prove the merits of the YOST Typewriter. A plain statement of its achievements is sufficient to prove that it is the popular Writing . . . Machine.

IT HAS BEEN AWARDED

TWENTY GOLD MEDALS, and other Honours, in the severest competition.

ENGLISH, CONTINENTAL, and COLONIAL GOVERNMENTS have adopted it, in some instances to the exclusion of other writing machines.

EMPERORS, KINGS, QUEENS . . . PRINCES, and REPUBLICAN RULERS use it in their daily work.

40,000 COMMERCIAL and PROFESSIONAL GENTLEMEN HAVE FOUND IT INDISPENSABLE TO THE RAPID DESPATCH OF BUSINESS.

Sent on Free Trial for Seven Days.

Catalogue Post Free

THE YOST TYPEWRITER CO., Ltd.,

50, Holborn Viaduct, London, E.C.

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.

DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.)

LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W.

(On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—The Lancet, July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from Wine."—Medical Press, August, '99.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—

I have not delayed a moment in doing what you told me, and I forthwith send you sketches of three evening dresses to be worn when you are singing at one or other of the concerts that you say you are getting up in support of the various war funds. Each of these dresses differs from the others in material and colour, so that I shall be very unlucky if I have not succeeded in giving you at least one idea of which you may approve. The dress on the right is made of panne, in that soft parma mauve which is so universally becoming—except to a very bad skin. It is made in rather a severe style, being unrelieved by much trimming There is just a slight drapery of tulle on the bodice, and an under-skirt of pleated tulle peeps out below the panne, which is richly embroidered on bodice and skirt with a large design in paillettes. Such severity of style is quite à la Parisienne, a beautiful example of it being the dress Mrs. Langtry wears at the Garrick when she recites "The Absent-minded Beggar." It follows the lines of the figure, and is quite without frills or furbelows. Just an edging of beautiful point de Paris lace, with an insertion of gold and silver, is brought down the corsage and skirt and then continued round the very graceful train. It is a lovely dress, and, being made in that new figured panne, shows the most beautiful lights and shades as Mrs. Langtry stands on the stage; whilst the soft black rosette with its long streamers fastened to the right shoulder is a very pretty finish, besides being a good contrast. But to go back to the sketch, the dress on the left is of white satin draped with lace, which is also bright with paillettes, whilst the under-skirt is of kilted chiffon, edged with a frill. In the background you see another made of pale powder-blue cloth, trimmed with crêpe de chine, which also forms the long fichu thrown gracefully over the shoulders. The under-skirt curves away at one side to the front and back, and so discloses an under-skirt of ivory guipure lace, and the costume is finished with long sleeves that reach to the wrist, and are also made of the cream-coloured guipure. This dress I saw at Prince's the other night. I noticed it at once, though there were a very great number of people present, all talking about the war. Amongst them were many representatives of the Army, so you may imagine how it was discussed—even more keenly than usual, which is saying a good deal. I saw both General Waring and General Dickson there, whilst Sir William Armstrong was one of a small supper-party, and in the salon Sir W. H. White, Director of Naval Construction, was in the chair at a big dinner of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers.

Then to come to your question about a present for Bob. If you particularly want to send him something that you can make yourself, you cannot do better than knit him some warm woollen gloves to sleep in. The nights, you know, are terribly cold in South Africa, so they will be the greatest boon to him when sleeping in the open. Knit them in the best wool and make them rather large; they are sure to be really useful. A homely present, you will say; but the thing to consider is what will be of use, as otherwise your present will only be in the way, and will probably have to be left behind, which is the last thing you would wish, I know.

Esther has gone down to Southsea for a few days, to get a little sunshine, she says, as she is tired of grey London. She sent me an account of a little dance the sub-lieutenants of the Royal Naval College gave the other night at the Sandringham Hotel. Everything was very well arranged, and the rooms were most prettily decorated with flags, whilst on the supper-tables were vases of beautiful chrysanthemums. The band of the "Excellent" played throughout the evening, and dancing was kept up with great spirit. Amongst others present Esther noticed Mrs. Alison, in black, with sequins and lovely diamonds; Miss Alison, in blue satin; Miss Raban, who wore yellow satin, with violets on the shoulders; Mrs. Hardy, in black; Miss F. Breton, in pale blue satin and violets; Miss Silver, in pale blue, trimmed with lace and knots of black velvet; Miss Boyd, in pink brocade, and Miss G. Boyd, in white, with red flowers; Miss Laurence-Gordon, in black satin, with lace on the bodice, and a pink sash; and Miss Hart, in white, trimmed with blue.

EVENING DRESSES.

Alice sends me the account of a wedding which took place at Ahmednagar, in the early part of November, between Miss Agnes Lane, third daughter of Colonel Lane, R.A.M.C., and Mr. R. E. C. Hall, 8th Bombay Infantry. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely white satin dress with a Court train of rich brocade, the whole being daintly trimmed with chiffon and orange blossoms. There were two bridesmaids, Miss Lane and Miss M. Lane, who both had pretty dresses of white muslin worn over blue and finished with blue silk sashes. The hats were also blue, trimmed with folds of white tulle and bunches of cornflowers. After the ceremony Mrs. Lane held a reception, which was attended by many friends, whom she welcomed in a handsome dress of black satin trimmed with lover's knots and black lace. Colonel Lanyon Penno, of the Welsh Regiment, proposed the health of the bride, and Mr. M. T. Elderton, of the 8th Bombay Regiment, replied to the toast of the bridesmaids.

Nothing daunted by the landslip, Alice went up to Darjeeling for the end of the season, and had a very good time, too, with dinners and a dance, and one or two picnics besides. She says she means to get up there again next year if only her friends take the same house. Some people will persist in calling the place unsafe, and vow that they will never set foot therein again; but Alice says she thinks it is all nonsense, and that people who know what they are talking about say they have no fear of a second disaster, and that she may come up another season with as easy a mind as she ever took with her to Simla.

Yours affectionately, CONSTANCE.

Digitized by Google

ASPINALL'S
"INDIAN"
ENAMEL.

For all Exterior Work, Big Guns, Turrets, &c.

ASPINALL'S "O" ENAMEL for all Interior Work, on Ships Cabins, Mess Rooms, &c.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL.

NON-POISONOUS

We have supplied our special quality Enamels to most of H.M. Ships, for both Interior and Exterior Work, which have given entire satisfaction.

Also our Special Zinc White, and Varnishes.

Works:—NEW CROSS, LONDON.
PARIS DEPOT: 24, Rue Alibert.
U.S. DEPOT: 98, Beekman Street, NEW YORK.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE
WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.
E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE
RED WHITE & BLUE
FRENCH COFFEE.
DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.
In making, use rather less quantity, it being so much stronger than ordinary Coffee.
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

SMOKE
PIONEER
CIGARETTES
3D.
PER PACKET

"LERINA,"
The FINEST LIQUEUR.
HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.
MADE BY
The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,
SITUATED ON
THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,
WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA
To be obtained from
ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.
WHOLESALE AGENTS:
COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

Digitized by Google

Fry's

PURE CONCENTRATED

Cocoa

"The cocoa drinking season is now upon us," Ex-Military Attaché writes, "and Fry's is the most popular in military messes. It is always too good to be advertised down. I always carry some of it in my portmanteau when travelling, and make a cup with my hot shaving water immediately my valet brings it to my bedroom. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught drink Fry's Cocoa, and so do most of the upper ten thousand."—Aldershot Review.

The Best Glass for South Africa

BECAUSE:

GLASS OPEN.

GLASS CLOSED.

It only Weighs Five Ounces.
It is only One Inch Thick when Closed.
It is as Powerful as many Glasses Five Times as Large.
It is the Most Rapid to Use and Focus.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular gives every satisfaction."

LORD LONSDALE writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular is satisfactory in every way, and answers its purpose well."

CAPT. A. H. LEE, Royal Military College, Kingston, Canada, writes—
"I am immensely pleased with the Patent Pocket Binocular, power and definition little short of marvellous, and their extraordinary compactness and lightness makes them of especial value from a military point of view."

UNITED STATES WAR DEPARTMENT.—CAPT. CRAIG writes—
"I am directed by the CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICERS of the UNITED STATES ARMY to say that Aitchison's Patent Pocket Field Glasses are found to be extremely convenient and portable, and of good service."

Superior, Achromatic, 6 Lenses - - £3 3 0
Ditto extra power, 12 Lenses - - £5 5 0
Complete in Soft Leather Purse Case.

Hard Leather Sling Case, 5s. extra. Post Free to any part of the World.

Illustrations and Particulars Post Free from:

AITCHISON & CO., 428, STRAND, LONDON;

Also at 47, Fleet Street; 6, Poultry; and 46, Fenchurch Street, London.

BAYLISS JONES & BAYLISS'

UNCLIMBABLE RAILINGS, ETC.

AT LOW PRICES.

ALSO MAKERS OF Wrought Iron Wine-Bins.

IRON HURDLES, FENCING GATES, &c.

COMBINED-MESH NETTING.

Write for Price List.

Averages 20 per cent cheaper than ordinary Netting.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF ALL KINDS OF HURDLES, FENCING, GATES, &c., FREE.

VICTORIA WORKS, WOLVERHAMPTON.

LONDON OFFICES AND SHOW ROOMS—139 & 141, CANNON STREET, E.C.

Digitized by Google

S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. ... Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

"Navy and Army Illustrated," Saturday, December 16th, 1899.

PRICE ONE SHILLING. BY POST, 1/0½.

NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

ROUND THE WORLD
THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF
NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED

DIEU ET MON DROIT

Edited by Commander CHAS. N. ROBINSON (of the "Army and Navy Gazette.")

VOL. IX.—No. 150. [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.] SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1899. [Subscription Price, per annum, Post free, Inland, 28s. 2d. Foreign, 34s. 8d.

HUNTING AND SHOOTING ACCIDENTS.

IMPERIAL ACCIDENT, LIVE STOCK AND GENERAL INSURANCE CO., LTD.
(ESTABLISHED 1878).
HEAD OFFICES: 17, PALL MALL EAST, LONDON, S.W.

A PREMIUM OF £5 (CLASS 1) WILL INSURE PAYMENT OF THE FOLLOWING SUMS IN CASE OF ACCIDENT:—

£1000 on DEATH from Accident.
£2000 do. if by Railway Accident.
£1000 on LOSS of TWO LIMBS or TWO EYES.
£2000 do. if by Railway Accident.
£500 on LOSS of ONE LIMB or ONE EYE.
£1000 do. if by Railway Accident.
£30 Annuity on Permanent Total Disablement from Injuries other than above.

£6 per week during Temporary Total Disablement.
£12 do. if by Railway Accident.
£1 10s. per week, Temporary Partial Disablement.
£3 do. if by Railway Accident.
£6 per week during Temporary Total Disablement caused by Typhoid, Typhus, or Scarlet Fever, Diphtheria, Small-Pox, or Measles.

Claims paid, nearly £200,000.

B. S. ESSEX, MANAGER.

Accident Prospectuses, &c., sent post free on application. Agents required.

London & Paris Exchange, Ltd.

Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET.

"WAR IN THE TRANSVAAL!"

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:
LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, Ltd.,
24, THROGMORTON STREET.

PALL MALL SAFE DEPOSIT.

SAFES & STRONG ROOMS FROM ONE GUINEA. ABSOLUTELY FIRE AND BURGLAR PROOF.

Handsomely-appointed Reading and Writing Rooms, &c.

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE

Collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

Full information of the
PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING CO., Ltd.,
CARLTON STREET, REGENT STREET, S.W.

W. CATER & Co.,

To Her Majesty the Queen.
H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family.

NAVAL AND MILITARY
Tailors and Outfitters,
56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.
ESTABLISHED 1776.
Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—The Lancet. July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from wine."—Medical Press. August, '99.

GRAND HOTEL, LONDON.

Unrivalled for its splendid situation. Recherché cuisine and wines. Dinner, 6 to 8.30, 5s., available for non-residents.

GORDON HOTELS, Ltd.

LEA & PERRIN'S SAUCE.

Is printed in BLUE ink across the outside wrapper of every bottle of

AVOID CHEAP COPIES.

THE ORIGINAL WORCESTERSHIRE.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON.
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
FROM 10/6 PER DAY.

Telegraphic Addresses: For Management, "UNPARALLELED." For Visitors, "ERMINITES."

Digitized by Google

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY
AT THIS
AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;
£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo.
and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,
£2 2 0

IT IS
THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
LONDON.

HUNTING NOVELTY.

The 'Cloutsham' Stock

(Regd.)

A COMPLETE STOCK AND CRAVAT IN ONE WITH NO LOOSE PARTS FOR WASHING.

Price
4/6
Post Free.

Coloured Cravats for Shooting, Golf, etc., made to Order only.

CELLULOID STIFFENER
6d. extra.

CRAVAT OPEN FOR WASHING.

If Coloured, or Figured White Cravats are required, send for Patterns.
For Plain White Taffeta "Cloutshams," send neck size and remittance.

Jaeger

PURE WOOL
Sporting Tailors,
42, CONDUIT ST., W.
Telegrams: "HIGHMOST, LONDON."

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No 150. Saturday, December 16th, 1899.

The ART of . .

Graceful Horse Riding

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),

RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
MARCH, 1899.
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

First-Class Certificates.

HOME AND FOREIGN
CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES.

N.C.O.'s and MEN, at home or abroad, can be prepared by post for the half-yearly Exams. Send for particulars of classes now forming for March Exam., 1900.—RANDALL J. FOX (Ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

GIRL'S COMPANIONSHIP DESIRED for their only girl, aged twelve years, by Doctor and his wife. Large house facing Square. Excellent governess kept, though daily attendance at good school can be arranged. Fencing, dancing, piano, and violin lessons. Holiday at sea-side. Moderate terms.—Mrs. PEARSE, 75, Warwick Square, S.W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "El Capitan."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Christian."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Silver King."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Canary."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Absented-Minded Beggar."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Lady of Ostend."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Downfall of Pride."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. On Dec. 23rd, "The Geisha."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Our Boys."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2 p.m. Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 8 p.m. Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 23rd, "Dick Whittington."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 8 p.m. "A Greek Slave." Wed. 2.30.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2 Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 23rd, "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 8 p.m. "Sons of the Cord and Steel."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Aladdin."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Lord and Lady Algy."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Lady Godiva."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Greek Slave."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "A Daughter of Ishmael."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. Closed to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. Closed, to prepare Pantomime on Dec. 26th, "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London"
Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP

A half century of unrivalled popularity has demonstrated that WILLIAMS' are the ONLY REAL SHAVING SOAPS.

Sold by chemists, hairdressers and perfumers all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

Williams' Shaving Sticks, 1s.
Williams' Luxury Shaving Tablets, 1s.
Williams' American Shaving Tablets, 6d.
Williams' "Jersey Cream" Toilet Soap, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp by addressing—
The J. B. Williams Co., 64 Gt. Russell Street, London, W. C. or 161 Clarence Street, Sydney.
Head Offices and Laboratories,—Glastonbury, Conn., U. S. A.

J. W. SMART, BILLIARD TABLE MANUFACTURER

15, College Green, BRISTOL.

Awarded Gold Medal of Merit for Excellence at Licensed Victuallers' Exhibition, March, 1897.

Sole Agent for Bonzoline Billiard Balls; £1 11s. 6d. per Set, 2 1-16th.

CUES, TIPS, CHALK AND EVERY REQUISITE FOR THE GAME IN STOCK.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

TO LET.

BERKS.—Well Furnished HOUSE, for the Winter months. Three reception, five best bed and dressing rooms, four bedrooms on second floor, large kitchen, pantry, etc.; good garden and greenhouse, coach-house, and stabling for three horses. Two miles from station, near telegraph; 30 miles from London; good train service. 10 guineas a week.

Address "M. A.," 20, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

ENCORE RAZOR

SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—Messrs. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.
FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.
GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.
HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.
SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.
PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co.,
Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,
who will supply through nearest Agents.

TATTOOING.

HIGH-CLASS ARTISTIC ELECTRIC TATTOOING.
Any Design, Colour, or Tint.
By ALFRED SOUTH, Tattoo Artist.
Patronised by Royalty and leading Members of Society.
22, COCKSPUR ST., CHARING CROSS, LONDON, S.W.
P.S.—First-class Workmanship Guaranteed.
Highest Testimonials from Officers of Her Majesty's Services
HOURS 10 A.M. TO 6 P.M.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. Hook, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. Fourault, Managing Director. V. Benoist, Administrateur.

BATH, THE QUEEN OF SPAS.

THIS City of Unrivalled Hot Mineral Springs is the Finest Health Resort in Europe.

Magnificent Suite of Baths.

Latest appliances for the Nauheim (Thermalsoolbad) Treatment.

FINE ROMAN REMAINS.
CHARMING SCENERY. GOOD HOTELS.
BEAUTIFUL PARKS.
BAND PERFORMANCES DAILY.

Write to Baths' Manager for Illustrated work, Bath as a Health Resort. Price One Shilling.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.
writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.
"I have now prescribed them for the last 8 years in my hospitals and private practice, and find them of great benefit. I certainly and most strongly recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

Digitized by Google

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Third Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY IN HOME WATERS.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. h. Hulk. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. g.v. Gun Vessel. y. Yacht. T. Tender. s.s. Survey Ship. d.s. Depot-ship. P. Portsmouth. D. Devonport. C. Chatham. S. Sheerness. i. Instructional Torpedo Flotilla. c.g. Coast Guard. p.g. Port Guard. W.I. Whale Island.

Agincourt, cr.	Com. D. St. A. Wake	T. to Boscawen
Alarm, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. Powley	T. to Galatea, c.g.
Albacore, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. J. W. Steward	Ireland
Alberta, y.	Staff-Capt. G. A. Broad	[Albert
Alexandra, B.	Capt. Count F. C. Metaxa, A.D.C. (Vice-Adml. Sir Compton E. Domvile, K.C.B.).	T. to Victoria and Portland, c.g.
Algiers, h.	Capt. G. L. Atkinson, A.D.C. (Rear-Adml. S. C. Holland).	Medway Reserve C.
Angler, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. Tibbets	T. to Pembroke
Antelope, t.g.b.	Com. O. A. Stokes	Portishead (R.N.R)
Ariel, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. O. G. Webster	T. to Pembroke, i.
Arrogant, cr.	Capt. A. W. E. Protheroe	Channel Squadron
Asia, h.	Capt. A. A. C. Parr (Rear-Admiral P. Aldrich).	Portsmouth
Australia, cr.	Capt. J. M. McQuhae, C.B.	[Reserves
Bat, t.b.d.	Com. A. L. Duff	Southampton
Benbow, B.	Capt. R. P. Humpage	[Water, c.g.
Black Prince, cr.	Com. W. J. Grogan	T. to Vivid, i.
Boscawen, h.	Capt. T. H. M. Jerram	Greenock, c.g.
Britannia, h.	Capt. Hon. A. G. Curzon-Howe, C.B., C.M.G.	Queenstown (boys)
Briton, h.	Lieut.-Com. A. C. Spearman	Portland (boys)
Caledonia, h.	Com. J. G. Hewitt	Dartmouth (cadets)
Calliope, cr.	Capt. H. P. Routh	Inverness (R.N.R.)
Cambrian, cr.	Capt. R. K. McAlpine.	Queensferry (boys)
Cambridge, h.	Capt. R. W. Craigie.	T. to Northampton
Circe, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. G. S. Q. Carr, C.M.G.	Training Squadron
Clyde, h.	Com. J. P. Montgomery	Gunnery School, D.
Collingwood, B.	Capt. F. W. Fisher	T. to Severn, c.g.
Colossus, B.	Capt. S. A. Johnson.	Aberdeen (R.N.R.)
Conqueror, B.		Bantry, c.g.
Coquette, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. C. P. Beaty-Pownall	Holyhead, c.g.
Crane, t.b.d.	Com. T. D. W. Napier	T. to Cambridge
Curacoa, cr.	Com. H. Lyon.	T. to Pembroke
Curlew, g.v.		T. to Victory, i.
Cygnet, t.b.d.	Com. Hon. H. L. A. Hood	T. to Northampton
Dædalus, h.	Lieut.-Com. B. C. Barber	T. to Cambridge
Defiance, h.	Capt. F. T. Hamilton	T. to Pembroke, i.
Diadem, cr.	Capt. H. S. F. Niblett	Bristol (R.N.R.)
D. of Wellingt'n, h.	Capt. J. L. Hammet	Torpedo School, D.
Durham, h.	Lieut.-Com. W. F. Forrest	Channel Squadron
Eagle, h.	Com. C. E. Gladstone	Depôt Ship, P.
Edinburgh, B.	Com. W. G. Van Ingen	Leith (R.N.R.)
Elfin, y.	Staff-Com. J. E. Tully.	Liverpool (R.N.R.)
Enchantress, y.	Staff-Capt. P. D. Ouless	T. to Wildfire
Europa, cr.	Capt. A. J. Pocklington	[(Gunnery School)
Excellent	Capt. W. H. May, M.V.O.	T. to Victoria and
Fawn, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. K. Laird	[Albert
Ferret, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. S. A. Perry-Ayscough	Admiralty Yacht, P
Fire Queen, y.	Staff-Capt. T. Hawkins Smith	Particular Service
Flirt, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Thomas	Gunnery Sch., W.I.
Flying Fish, t.b.d.	Com. M. Singer	T. to Victory, i.
Galatea, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cross	T. to Victory
Ganges, h.	Com. W. V. Anson	T. to Victory, i.
Gleaner, t.g.b.	Com. F. H. Peyton	Hull, c.g.
Gossamer, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. T. Cole	Harwich (boys)
Hannibal, B.	Capt. Sir B. W. Walker, Bart., C.M.G.	Gravesend (R.N.R)
Haughty, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. La T. Leatham	T. to Melampus, c.g.
Hearty, g.b.	Com. H. G. King Hall, D.S.O.	Channel Squadron
Hecla	Com. W. J. Scullard (N)	T. to Pembroke, i.
Hero, B.	Com. W. de Salis.	North Sea
Howe, B.	Captain E. H. M. Davis, C.M.G. (Rear-Adml. A. P. M. Lake).	[(fisheries)
Impregnable, h.	Capt. A. C. B. Bromley	Torpedo Depôt, P.
Indus, h.	Capt. W. Marrack (Rear-Adml. T. S. Jackson).	T. to Excellent
Jackal, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Tancred	Queenstown, p.g.
Janus, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Corbett	Devonport (boys)
Jaseur, t.g.b.	Com. W. Carey	D'nport Reserves
Jason, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Bruce.	Coast of Scotland
Juno, cr.	Capt. G. H. Cherry	[(fisheries)
Jupiter, B.	Capt. J. Durnford, C.B., D.S.O.	T. to Pembroke
Kite, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. P. W. Hope.	T. to Vivid, i.
Landrail, g.v.		Particular Service
Leda, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. V. Maud	Training Squadron
Liberty, brig.	Lieut.-Com. C. H. Morgan	Channel Squadron
Lightning, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. C. O. Mansergh	Recruiting Service
Lion, h.	Com. E. G. Shortland.	Depôt Ship, C.
Lynx, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Holland.	T. to Severn, c.g.
Magnet, tug.	Lieut.-Com. J. Webber	Royal Yacht, P.
Magnificent, B.	Capt. J. Ferris (Rear-Adml. A. D. Fanshawe).	Channel Squadron
Majestic, B.	Capt. G. Le C. Egerton, C.B. (Vice-Admiral Sir H. H. Rawson, K.C.B.).	Channel Squadron
Mars, B.	Capt. H. J. May, C.B.	Channel Squadron
Martin, brig.	Lieut.-Com. S. M. Agnew	T. to St. Vincent
Medea, cr.	Com. C. G. May	S'th'pton (R.N.R.)
Medusa, cr.	Com. A. L. K. Knapton	N. Shields (R.N.R)
Melampus, cr.	Capt. R. N. Gresley	Kingstown, c.g.
Mermaid, t.b.d.	Com. M. E. F. Kerr	T. to Pembroke, i.
Minerva, cr.	Capt. F. O. Pike	Training Squadron
Minotaur, cr.	Com. E. G. Barton	T. to Boscawen
Nautilus, brig.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. D. Tothill	T. to Impregnable
Nile, B.	Capt. G. C. Langley	Devonport, p.g.
Niobe, cr.	Capt A. L. Winsloe	Channel Squadron
Northampton, cr.	Capt. H. A. W. Onslow	Recruiting Service
Northumberl'd, cr.	Com. C. E. Tower	Depôt Ship, C.
Onyx, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. Oliver	T. to Severn, c.g.
Osborne, y.	Capt. C. Windham	Royal Yacht, P.
Pactolus, cr.	Capt. F. J. Foley	Channel Squadron
Panther, t.b.d.	Com. J. I. Graham	T. to Vivid, i.
Pembroke, h.	Capt. A. Macleod.	Medway Res'ves, C
Pilot, brig.	Lieut.-Com. W. J. S. Alderson	T. to Impregnable
President, h.	Com. A. C. Woods	W.I. Docks (R.N.R)
Prince George, B.	Capt. A. Barrow	Channel Squadron
Racer, sloop	Com. M. N. Beatty (N)	T. to Britannia
Raven, g.b.	Com. A. Meldrum	Channel Islands
Renard, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. H. Eyre	T. to Colossus, c.g.
Repulse, B.	Capt. R. F. O. Foote, C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Research, s.	Capt. W. U. Moore	Home Waters
Resolution, B.	Capt. C. R Arbuthnot.	Channel Squadron
Rodney, B.	Capt. G. W. Russell	Queensferry, c.g.
St. George, cr.	Com. E. V. Poe, M.V.O., A.D.C.	Training Squadron
St. Vincent, h.	Com. C. F. Thursby	Portsmouth (boys)
Sans Pareil, B.	Capt. H. C. Bigge	Sheerness, p.g.
Seaflower, brig.	Lieut.-Com. E. G. H. Gamble.	T. to Boscawen
Seagull, t.g.b.	Com. H. Grant-Dalton	Particular Service
Seahorse, s.	Staff-Com. G. S. Keigwin	Home Waters
Seal, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. A. J. Payne	T. to Vivid, i.
Severn, cr.	Capt. W. L. H. Browne	Harwich, c.g.
Shark, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. E. Corbett	T. to Vivid, i.
Sheldrake, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. H. Curteis	T. to Rodney
Spanker, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. H. E. F. Worthington	T. to Alexandra, c.g.
Star, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. F. W. Kinahan	T. to Victory, i.
Starfish, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. G. Corbett	T. to Victory, i.
Sturgeon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. Luce	T. to Pembroke
Thrasher, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. T. D. Pratt	T. to Vivid, i.
Thunderer, B.	Capt. J. E. Blaxland	Pembroke, p.g.
Trafalgar, B.	Capt. H. L. F. Royle, D.S.O.	Portsmouth, p.g.
Traveller, tug	Lieut.-Com. R. A. Cathie	T. to Vivid
Triton, s.	Capt. G. E. Richards	Home Waters
Unicorn, h.	Lieut.-Com. E. L. Austen	Dundee (R.N.R.)
Vernon, h.	Capt. C. G. Robinson	Torpedo School, P.
Vesuvius, g.b.	Lt.-Com. F. C. U. V. Wentworth	T. to Vernon
Victoria & Albert, y.	R.-Adml. Sir J. R. T. Fullerton, K.C.V.O., C.B., A.D.C.	Royal Yacht, P.
Victory, h.	Capt. F. C. B. Bridgeman (Adml. Sir M. Culme-Seymour, Bart., G.C.B.).	Portsmouth
Violet, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. B. Sparks.	T. to Victory
Vivid, y.	Capt. H. T. Grenfell (Adml. Sir H. Fairfax, K.C.B.).	Devonport
Wanderer, barque	Lieut.-Com. L. de W. Satow	T. to Boscawen
Wildfire, y.	Capt. C. Campbell, C.B., D.S.O. (Admiral Sir N. Bowden-Smith, K.C.B.).	Sheerness
Wolf, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. C. Kemble-Lambert.	T. to Vivid
Wye, s.	Staff-Com. C. R. H. Robinson	Particular Service

 The Disposition of our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

THE NAVY AND ARMY.—Numerous illustrations have appeared in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of nearly all the ships in Her Majesty's Fleet, and of the regiments in either the Home, Indian, or Colonial Armies. Lists can be obtained on application.

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII., cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings each, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

'Flor de Dindigul' Cigars

SAMPLES
5 for 1/-
12 Stamps

3D EACH

6 GOLD MEDALS

Bewlay & Co. LIMITED. 49 STRAND & 143 CHEAPSIDE, & of all respectable Tobacconists

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two Weights (heavy and light), and in a Variety of Colours.
SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., Ltd.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Her Majesty the Queen ...	313
With White at Ladysmith. (Illustrated) ...	314
At Port Elizabeth. (Illustrated) ...	315
Kimberley at Bay. (Illustrated) ...	316
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay ...	317
Editorial Notices ...	318
The Navy and Army Diary ...	318
Hands Across the Sea ...	318
Literary News and Books to be Read— A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear ...	319
Christmas in the Army a Hundred Years Ago. (Illustrated)	320
The British Drum-beat Round the World. From North to South and East to West. (Illustrated) ...	321, 329
Round the Camp Fire: On Service in South Africa— By I. Bloundelle-Burton. " F. G. Engelbach. " C. Gleig. " C. H. Temple ... By Major A. Griffiths. " Com. E. P. Statham. " John Stockholm. ...	325, 345, 353
For Soldiers' and Sailors' Kith and Kin— Prominent Workers for the Cause. For Pity's Sake. (Illustrated) ...	333
The Men We Have Fought. (Illustrated) ...	334
Christmas Day in the British Camp. (Illustrated) ...	336
Christmas Day in the Boer Camp. (Illustrated) ...	337
Soldiers of the Sea. (Illustrated) ...	338
American Sympathy Embodied— The Hospital-ship "Maine," Chartered and Fitted Out Entirely by American Ladies. A Meeting of the Committee of the "Maine" Hospital-ship Fund. (Illustrated) ...	340
The Terrors of the Line. (Illustrated) ...	341
Places of Interest Connected with the Boer War. (Illustrated) ...	343
Christmas in the Services. (Illustrated) ...	349
To Drink "Her Majesty" on Christmas Day. Serving Out the Ship's Grog. (Illustrated) ...	351
Christmas in the Navy a Hundred Years Ago. (Illustrated) ...	355
The Story of the War ...	356
Disposition of Troops in South Africa ...	356

The Pall Mall Deposit

STORAGE AND FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE AND KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military and Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.,

Carlton Street, Regent Street, S.W.;

And Arthur Street, Aldershot.

Digitized by Google

The Best Children's Chromo Presentation Books of the Season.

Size, Royal 4to, (or 12½ by 9½ inches), handsomely bound in stiff picture boards, cloth backs, 3s. 6d. each.

Pictures for Little Englanders.—Pictured by A. S. Forrest, and Verses by Frank Green. (A companion book to Mrs. Ames' "A B C for Baby Patriots.")

"A B C for Baby Patriots" was styled by the trade and the Press as being the best and smartest book of the season, but we think "Pictures for Little Englanders" even beats that.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

I am ready, aye ready! | I can easily vanquish
Let foeman advance; | Six soldiers from France.

A reduction of one of the coloured pictures from "Little Englanders."

The Gimcrack Jingle Alphabet.—Drawn by Ingles Rhode, author and artist of "The Pickletons," which was one of the most successful books published last year.

Eminent art critics are of opinion that the drawings in this book surpass even those of "The Pickletons."

Thomas a Tattamus took two T's, | Tell me quickly, if you please,
To tie two tubs to two tall trees. | How many T's there are in these.

A B C for Baby Patriots.—By Mrs. Ernest Ames. New edition now ready.

This alphabet is composed of amusing topical verses, ably illustrated by full-page coloured plates. These are as vivid in their colouring as they are the most humorous in conception, and the book bids fair to be the most successful gift book of modern times. The drawings are exceptionally clever, and the colouring a distinct novelty. The verses are also exceedingly smart.

A reduction in one printing of one of the coloured pictures from "A B C for Baby-Patriots."

D is the Daring | Which makes every enemy
We show on the field, | Vanish or yield.

The Pickletons.—Told and drawn by Ingles Rhode.

This exceedingly clever and amusingly-illustrated story consists of twenty-four pages of coloured illustrations, which are masterpieces of Mr. Ingles Rhode's art and humour.

Arriving at a seaport town | Until a captain, hoarse and brown,
They haunt the landing stages; | Their services engages.

London: DEAN & SON, Ltd., 160a, Fleet Street, E.C.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, Ltd., 18 Trinity St., LONDON, S.E.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian Ales.

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

The International Sleeping Car Co.

TRAINS DE LUXE.

CALAIS TO NICE, MONTE CARLO, AND SAN REMO. Every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and SUNDAY.

CALAIS TO ROME. Every Tuesday and Thursday. (Tuesdays Only Till Jan. 11.)

And Three other Daily Services to the SOUTH.

Full and detailed information sent gratis, and all Tickets supplied at the Company's Chief London Offices, 14, COCKSPUR STREET, S.W.

The Official Guide and Time Book of the Company, "THE CONTINENTAL TRAVELLER," sent post free on application.

A Unique Christmas Present.

SPECIALLY SUITABLE FOR

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.

ROSS' PATENT NEW MODEL PRISMATIC BINOCULAR GLASSES.

"The Power and Field of a Telescope in the Compass of an Opera Glass."

COMBINING PERFECT MECHANICAL CONSTRUCTION. EXTREME PORTABILITY AND RIGIDITY. HIGH POWER AND SPLENDID DEFINITION.

Used by Officers of South African Field Force.

Magnification.	£	s.	d.
8 Diameters	8	0	0
10 "	10	0	0
12 "	10	0	0

Screw Focussing Adjustment, £1 each extra.

PRICE LISTS FREE.

ROSS, Limited, Manufacturing Opticians, 111, New Bond St., London, W., and 31, Cockspur St., Charing Cross, S.W.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE

RED WHITE & BLUE

FRENCH COFFEE.

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

In making, use rather less quantity, it being so much stronger than ordinary Coffee.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Digitized by Google

The Parisian Diamond Company.

Illustrated Price List of Christmas Presents post free.

85, New Bond St.; 143, Regent St.; 43, Burlington Arcade, W.

OPPOSITE MARSHALL & SNELGROVE'S.) (FACING LIBERTY'S, CHESHAM HOUSE.) (BURLINGTON GARDENS END.)

Digitized by Google

THE BEST SERVICE LIST.

Published the first week in January.

Crown 8vo, Navy Blue and Scarlet Cloth.

WHITAKER'S

Naval and Military

5/- DIRECTORY 5/-

AND

INDIAN ARMY LIST,

1900.

Contains the Army List, the Navy List, and the Indian Army List, and in One Alphabetical List, Commissioned Officers of the Two Services (Active and Retired), with station or postal address, showing Rewards, War Services and Decorations, an Obituary for 1899, and several Appendices.

This Work has received the warmest commendation from the most distinguished Officers in Her Majesty's Service.

WHITAKER'S PEERAGE,

2/6 1900. 2/6

BEING A

Directory of Titled Persons.

Containing everything usually sought for in a Peerage, together with much information not to be found elsewhere.

THE CHEAPEST AND HANDIEST PEERAGE EVER ISSUED.

London: Whitaker's Almanack Office, 12, Warwick Lane, E.C.

W. THACKER & CO.'s LIST.

The Imperial Russian Navy.

Its Past, Present, and Future.

By FRED T. JANE, Author of "The Port Guard-Ship," "All the World's Fighting Ships" (Naval Annual), "The Torpedo in Peace and War," Inventor of the Jane Naval War Game (Naval Kriegspiel), etc., etc.

With 150 Illustrations from Sketches and Drawings by the Author and from Photographs.

Royal 8vo, cloth extra, 30/- net.

With Sampson through the War.

By W. A. M. GOODE.

An Account of the Naval Operations of the North Atlantic Squadron during the Spanish War of 1898.

With Chapters specially contributed by Rear-Admiral SAMPSON, U.S.N., Capt. R. D. EVANS, U.S.N., and Commander C. C. TODD, U.S.N.

With Portraits of Naval Officers, Illustrations, and Maps.

Demy 8vo, cloth, 10/6.

FIFTH YEAR OF ISSUE.

Clowes' Naval Pocket Book, 1900.

Edited by L. G. CARR LAUGHTON.

The most valuable work of reference now available, containing a full list of Battleships, Ironclads, Gunboats, Cruisers, Torpedo Boats, a List of Dry Docks, and other valuable information, concerning ALL THE NAVIES OF THE WORLD. Corrected to February, 1899.

"A handy volume for use anywhere and everywhere. . . . Surprisingly accurate. . . . A marvel of cheapness."—NAVAL AND MILITARY RECORD.

Cloth, 16mo. In preparation.

The Captain of the "Mary Rose."

By W. LAIRD CLOWES, Author of "The Naval Pocket Book."

Illustrated by the CHEVALIER DE MARTINO and FRED T. JANE.

SEVENTH EDITION.

"The most notable Book of the season."—STANDARD.

Demy 8vo, cloth, 6s.

Blake of the "Rattlesnake."

Or, The Man who Saved England.

A STORY OF TORPEDO WARFARE IN 189—.

By FRED T. JANE.

Illustrated by the Author. Large crown 8vo, 3/6

The Torpedo in Peace and War.

By FRED T. JANE.

Author of "Blake of the 'Rattlesnake,'" "All the World's Fighting Ships," Inventor of the Jane Naval War Game, etc.

With about 30 full-page and a great many smaller Illustrations, the greater part of which are reproductions of Sketches made at Sea on board Torpedo Craft by the Author

Oblong folio, cloth gilt, 10/6.

W. THACKER & CO., 2, CREED LANE, E.C.

Books of the Hour

PUBLISHED BY CASSELL & CO.

NEW WORK BY D. H. PARRY.

JUST READY. Price 6s.

The "Death or Glory Boys." The Story of the 17th Lancers. By D. H. PARRY, Author of "Britain's Roll of Glory," etc. With Frontispiece.

Mr. Parry follows the career of the regiment in peace and war from the time when it came into existence just after the glorious death of Wolfe, at Quebec, down to the present day—in Ireland, in America, in India—wherever it has "won Glory or faced Death." It will be found an eventful record, and vividly and accurately set forth.

Peril and Patriotism: True Tales of Heroic Deeds and Startling Adventures. Profusely Illustrated by leading artists with Stirring Pictures expressly prepared for the Work. In Two Vols., 4s. each; or One Vol., 7s. 6d.

The Wars of the 'Nineties. A History of the Warfare of the Last Ten Years of the 19th Century, By A. HILLIARD ATTERIDGE. Profusely Illustrated. With Numerous Stirring Battle Pictures, Portraits, Maps, Plans. etc., etc. Complete in One Vol., 7s. 6d.

The Queen's Empire. With nearly 700 exquisite Illustrations, reproduced from authentic photographs. In Two Vols., 9s. each.

Jenetha's Venture. A Story of the Siege of Delhi. By COLONEL HARCOURT. 6s.

A King's Hussar. Being the Military Memoirs for Twenty-five Years of a Troop-Sergeant-Major of the 14th (King's) Hussars. Edited by HERBERT COMPTON. 3s. 6d.

A Free Lance in a Far Land. By HERBERT COMPTON. 3s. 6d.

Memories and Studies of War and Peace. By ARCHIBALD FORBES, LL.D. Cheap Edition, 6s.

The Black Watch. The Record of an Historic Regiment. By ARCHIBALD FORBES, LL.D. 6s.

Britain's Roll of Glory; or, the Victoria Cross, its Heroes and their Valour. By D. H. PARRY. Illustrated. Cheap Edition, price 3s. 6d.

The Garden of Swords: a Story of the Siege of Strasburg. By MAX PEMBERTON. 6s.

Scarlet and Blue; or, Songs for Soldiers and Sailors. By JOHN FARMER. Cloth, 5s. Words only, paper, 6d.; cloth, 9d.

British Battles on Land and Sea. By JAMES GRANT. With about 800 Illustrations. Cheap Edition. Complete in Four Vols., 3s. 6d. each.

Cassell's History of the Franco-German War. Complete in Two Vols., containing about 500 Illustrations. Cheap Edition. 6s. each.

A Gun-Room Ditty Box. By G. STEWART BOWLES. With a Preface by Rear-Admiral LORD CHARLES BERESFORD, C.B., etc. 2s.

CASSELL & CO., LIMITED,

LONDON, PARIS, NEW YORK AND MELBOURNE.

Digitized by Google

A HISTORY OF

The British Army.

By the Hon. J. W. FORTESCUE.

FIRST PART.

TO THE CLOSE OF THE SEVEN YEARS' WAR.

In Two Vols.

With numerous Maps and Plans. 8vo, 36s. net.

ADMIRALTY AND HORSE GUARDS GAZETTE.—"Great as must of necessity be the task of writing a history of the British Army, that task has been performed by Mr. Fortescue with infinite care as to details, and with no mean literary power."

MACMILLAN AND CO., LIMITED, LONDON.

"A VERY TIMELY VOLUME."

AFRICA IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY. By EDGAR SANDERSON, M.A., Author of "The British Empire," &c. With a Map and Four Portraits on Copper, Sir Herbert Kitchener, General Gordon, Lord Cromer, Rt. Hon. Cecil Rhodes, 5s.

"The story of the opening up and exploration of the African continent is sketched with great skill and accuracy. This is undoubtedly the best summary of modern African history that we have had.—"Pall Mall Gazette."

THE WAR IN THE PENINSULA. By ALEXANDER INNES SHAND, Author of "The Life of Sir Edward Hamley." With Four Portraits on Copper—Soult, Masséna, Wellington, Sir John Moore, and Six Plans, 5s.

"Concise and well told."—"Outlook."

"Admirably lucid and well proportioned, well equipped with maps and plans, and contains excellent portraits."—"Glasgow Herald."

EVENTS OF OUR OWN TIME.

THE WAR IN THE CRIMEA. By GENERAL SIR EDWARD HAMLEY, K.C.B With 5 Maps and Plans, and 4 Portraits on Copper, cloth, 5s.

THE INDIAN MUTINOFY 1857. By COLONEL MALLESON, C.S.I. With 3 Plans and 4 Portraits on Copper, cloth, 5s.

THE AFGHAN WARS OF 1839-42 AND 1878-80. By ARCHIBALD FORBES. With 4 Portraits on Copper, and Maps and Plans, cloth, 5s.

THE REFOUNDING OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE. By COLONEL MALLESON, C.S.I. With Maps and Plans, and 4 Portraits on Copper, cloth, 5s.

ACHIEVEMENTS IN ENGINEERING DURING THE LAST HALF-CENTURY. By PROFESSOR VERNON HARCOURT. With many Illustrations, cloth, 5s.

THE LIBERATION OF ITALY, 1815-1870, By the COUNTESS MARTINENGO CESARESCO. With Portraits, 5s.

LONDON: SEELEY & CO., LIMITED, 38, GREAT RUSSELL STREET.

EYRE & SPOTTISWOODE.

BAILEY'S INDEX TO "THE TIMES." Monthly Parts, 3s. each; Subscription for the Year, 30s.; Annual Volume, 15s. Subscription to Monthly Parts and Annual Volume, 42s.

"It is a feat in indexing."—Star.

"We cordially wish it every success."—Echo.

"We think there is little doubt that there will be such a demand for it as to make it an undoubted success."—Westminster Gazette.

"OUR JACK:" the History of the Union Jack. 6d. In tastefully designed wrapper. Terms for quantities.

"Should be largely distributed throughout our schools."—Army and Navy Gazette.

"All soldiers and sailors will read with interest."—Regiment.

SOUTH AFRICA. Copies of the 1881 and 1884 Conventions, and Papers containing Despatches on the Events leading up to; also Blue Books of the present Period, are upon sale at varying prices.

THE BRAVE SONS OF SKYE. By Lieut.-Col. JOHN MACINNES. Containing the Military Records (compiled from authentic sources) of the leading Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers, and Private Soldiers whom "Eilean a Cheo" has produced, with 100 Portraits. Red Cloth, 15s.

ENGLISH ARMY LIST AND COMMISSION REGISTERS. Edited by CHARLES DALTON, F.R.G.S., Editor of the "Waterloo Roll Call," &c. Vol. IV., 1694-1702. 25s.

THE BLENHEIM ROLL, 1704. Edited and Annotated by CHARLES DALTON, F.R.G.S. 7s. 6d.

NAVAL AND MILITARY FUNDS AND INSTITUTIONS. By Colonel GILDEA Commanding 4th Battalion Royal Warwickshire Regiment. 1s. 6d.

LONDON: EAST HARDING STREET, E.C.

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

FOR

CRICKET, RACQUET, FOOTBALL, FIVES, POLO, HOCKEY, GOLF,

ETC.

Special Terms to "Naval and Military."

WOOLWICH, S.E.

"LEGS WIN BATTLES

Price 13/6 and upwards.

MILITARY BOOT.

but feet are necessary to legs, and feet demand very skilful treatment, not too much boot, but just boot enough."

Major-General Fitz Roy Hart, C.B., in some recent necessary hints for camping on active service says: "When in the neighbourhood of the enemy, or within reach of possible night attack, all officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, should sleep fully dressed, including boots laced . . . ."

Sleeping in laced boots, or slitting them, is no longer necessary with which are made with a fastening that supersedes laces, as is shewn in the illustration, and can be pulled on and secured as quickly as a belt can be buckled. It gives the boot that comfortable and healthful feeling which is essential to a light and quick step, while at the same time supporting the ankle.

SOUTHALL'S Patent Boots

The New South Wales Lancers wear them and have repeated their orders.

SOUTHALL & CO., Dept. 74, Kirkstall Road, LEEDS.

Write for Illustrated Catalogue, free, giving full particulars of their military and other styles of Patent Boots.

London Address: 35, NORFOLK STREET, STRAND.

Digitized by Google

MAYTHORN & SON, Coach Builders,

. . BIGGLESWADE. . .

Brougham and Victoria Department in MAYTHORN & SON'S Showrooms, (From a Photograph).

THE Factory and Showrooms are close to Biggleswade Station, and an inspection of the large and varied show of Carriages and Harness on view—second to none in England—is, we are confident, all that is necessary to induce an order from all who seek perfection of style and general excellence.

Biggleswade is on the Great Northern main line, about 70 minutes' ride from King's Cross, and also within short distances of stations on the Midland and London and North-Western Railways, and is therefore easily accessible from all parts of the kingdom.

(10045)
Maythorn's Improved Station Brougham

(2402)
Maythorn's Duchess Victoria.

(9746)
Maythorn's Panelled "Wellbury."

(10054)
Maythorn's "Oakley" as a Phaeton.

(9935)
Maythorn's Headed Victoria Buggy.

(9657)
Maythorn's Sporting Dog Cart.

"In purchasing MAYTHORN & SON'S Celebrated Carriages direct from their works only ONE moderate profit is paid, and, no excessive rents having to be provided for, Carriages of the best style, uniform high quality and superb finish are secured at a minimum saving of 20 per cent. in price."

Illustrations, etc., of all kinds of carriages, with cash prices and Hire Purchase Terms, sent on application. India-rubber Tyres of all kinds fitted at most moderate charges. Hundreds of unsolicited testimonials. Special facilities for executing Colonial and Foreign orders. Telegraphic Address: "MAYTHORN, BIGGLESWADE." Sole Address—

MAYTHORN & SON, Biggleswade, Beds. No Agents.

Digitized by Google

The National Explosives Company.

[By Our Special Correspondent.]

IN war-time it would be difficult to find a subject more apropos than the production of those strange and extraordinarily powerful explosives which have supplanted the "villainous saltpetre" of the last generation. What can be done by cordite, lyddite, and other weird compounds is being illustrated in luridly graphic fashion by the despatches we are daily receiving from the seat of war. The projection of great shells to a distance of over six miles, the wholesale and utter destruction wrought within a large area by the bursting of a single projectile, are incidents almost as familiar as the making of bulls'-eyes at 1,000-yds. and upwards during the Bisley Meeting. But as to the creation and production of these explosives comparatively little is known by the general public, a very large section of which is under the impression that this class of work is entirely in the hands of the Government Ordnance Factories. Such is, however, not the case, and it is a striking feature of our national resources that the Government should in this respect be as ably assisted as it is by private enterprise. During the preparation for, and the actual progress of, a war of any considerable magnitude the Government factories could not hope to cope with the requirements of the situation, and are therefore only too thankful to avail themselves habitually of the services of private firms who have made a speciality of the manufacture of explosives for purposes of peaceful mining, as well as for those of active warfare. Among such firms the National Explosives Company occupies an important place. Its factory was

ACID TANK AND TEAM

METHOD OF TRANSPORT OF EXPLOSIVES.

CONCENTRATION OF ACID.

Digitized by Google

established about a dozen years ago for the manufacture of mining explosives, but latterly it has combined with this industry the supply of cordite to the Admiralty and the War Office. Cordite, as we all know, or ought to know, is the best and most regular propellant which has yet been discovered, and is in use in all classes of weapons, from the 12-in. Naval gun to the Webley pistol. It is a stringy substance, varying in coarseness from very thin threads, with a diameter of the hundredth part of an inch, to ropy half-inch cords as used in the larger types of Naval ordnance. Gun-cotton enters largely into the composition of cordite, and it is most important that it should be of the highest quality. The National Explosives Company is at a considerable advantage in this connection, as it manufactures its own gun-cotton, in circumstances which enable it to exercise the greatest care in production and selection. The factory of the National Explosives Company is situated at Hayle, in Cornwall, which is the last station of any importance this side of Penzance. The factory occupies an area of 150 acres, and is quite unlike a "factory" in the ordinary sense of the term. Owing to the very necessary restrictions placed by the Home Office on the manufacture of high explosives, it would be quite impossible to conduct the operations of this company under one roof, or even in any one large group of buildings. Accordingly, the factory consists, apart from the structures devoted to the distribution of electric light and compressed air, of a number of scattered buildings, each protected by great ramparts of earth extending well above its roof. As a matter of fact, only two fatal accidents have occurred at the National Explosives Company's factory since its establishment—a striking evidence of the good management of the institution and the scrupulous care exhibited in regard to every detail.

NITRO-GLYCERINE—SECONDARY SEPARATION.

Our illustrations, of course, give no clear idea of the extent of the company's operations, but they give an interesting indication of their nature. Warm admiration is aroused by the perfection of order and regularity observed. At the same time, one might grow fancifully reflective on the almost miraculous powers of destruction which those employed at this factory bottle up in substances which to the uninitiated eye appear not much more dreadful than macaroni or cotton-wool. Work goes on at this factory night and day; and it is doubtless owing to this fact, which, again, is due to a succession of immense orders from Government and other quarters, that the National Explosives Company is a thoroughly prosperous and progressive concern. Even the "man in the street" can understand that this designation is fairly applicable to a company which in three successive years has paid a steady dividend of 11 per cent. on its ordinary shares after placing substantial sums to the reserve, notwithstanding the fact that the prices of explosives have of late years been much lowered by severe competition. The National Explosives Company also deserves a full share of the credit due to large employers of labour, and it has certainly raised the neighbourhood of Hayle to a condition of activity and prosperity which it would otherwise certainly not have enjoyed.

NITRATION OF GLYCERINE.

MAKING BLASTING CARTRIDGES.

Digitized by Google

FIELD-GLASSES AND RANGE-FINDING.

WHEN we read of the artillery duels and engagements at long range that are so frequently mentioned in despatches from South Africa, we begin to understand how very important a part of an officer's equipment is a good field-glass. The necessity for the article, which is not so obvious at first sight, is thoroughly brought home to us when we remember at what a distance the enemy can strike us, or, what is perhaps a more pleasant way of putting it, how easily we can strike him even when he is a long way off. Lord Wolseley, in his "Soldier's Pocket Book," includes a telescope or a pair of field-glasses among the articles in an officer's kit "to be worn or carried on the person." The general opinion is that field-glasses are better than a telescope for service in the field. The focus is more easily found by most people with binoculars. Besides, a good telescope is a trifle clumsy to carry. Having discovered the enemy with the glasses, the next thing to do is, of course, to estimate how far off he is—which is naturally not an easy matter. This is done by means of a telemeter, or range-finder, and there are several systems to choose from. Many of them are very elaborate. Colonel Nolan's telemeter is well known in the Service for guns. It consists of a pair of angle measures, right and left, each formed of a pair of telescopes, placed at right angles to and across each other, one telescope being much larger than the other. These instruments are mounted on tripods, which fold up and are carried just as level legs are. Besides the angle measures and their fittings, a 50-yd. measuring tape and a metal calculating roller are necessary. Space will not allow us to describe how the range-finder is used; besides it might prove rather dry reading if we were to set forth all the calculations that are necessary to obtain a satisfactory result. Enough has been said to show that range-finding is not such a very easy task, and requires implements and calculations. We have, however, seen a new range-finder which is very simple. Messrs. Aitchison, the well-known opticians, of 428, Strand, have produced a telemeter, combined with a field-glass, which obviates all mathematical calculation. The field-glass can be used alone, or in combination with the telemeter, by pulling back a small shutter in the left eye-piece. The instrument is very simple in construction. The principle is that in the left tube a plain glass with a micrometer scale engraved upon it has been introduced. When the glass is used in the ordinary way this scale is not seen, but on pulling aside a small shutter in the left eye-piece, a magnifying-glass is brought to bear upon the micrometer, which is then thrown across the field of view without interfering with the person under observation. The next thing to do is to see the person observed, so that the lines of the micrometer scale are brought against him, when it is easy to judge the distance with great accuracy. The micrometer scale is based on the average height of an English soldier, but the calculation is very little affected if the object viewed should be an inch or two shorter or taller. If horsemen are being observed the height of the horse's eyes may be taken as agreeing with that of a man. Our illustrations will help the reader to understand how very simple the telemetric binocular field-glass is, and how the instrument works. One shows the two eye-pieces of the instrument, with the shutter pulled down so that the telemeter may be used; the other shows the micrometer scale.

SOUVENIRS.

OFFICERS' PRESENTS TO THEIR WIVES AND SWEETHEARTS.

IN the shops, as elsewhere, the topic of the moment is the war. It pervades all the latest ideas for Christmas presents, from the tiny midget frames, the miniature housewives, made expressly so that they can be slipped into an envelope and sent straight off to the front, in the sure hope that they are not large enough to be inconvenient even on the longest and most rapid march.

Small hand-glasses were in enormous demand a little time ago, when they were being rapidly bought up by the officers, whose kit has been so limited for this campaign. So great, indeed, was the run on them that one man at least found it impossible to get such a glass for love or money a week or two ago, and was reduced to gratitude for a cracked one, for which he paid the large sum of 5s.

At the toy shops drums, tin soldiers, and all the paraphernalia pertaining to Naval and Military life are much in request, and very lively times are in store for the parents whose boys and girls will be the joyous recipients of such gifts. With the blasts of toy trumpets, the beat of drums, and the rattling of gun carriages, Christmas will be no quiet season in such households.

As for the parting gifts wives give their husbands when they start for South Africa, these leave room for very little sentiment, all being bound down by the sternest necessity to be, before all things, useful. Kit-bags, woollen gloves, Tam-o'-Shanters, long knitted vests, all such odds and ends that men will seldom think of for themselves, even blocks of compressed food-stuffs, number amongst these prosaic presents. For staff officers fountain pens are added to the list, and for the luxurious an elaborate housewife, beautifully stitched and embroidered, to hang up in the cabin, with scissors, needles, and cottons, makes its appearance at the last moment.

Husbands are more fortunate in this respect. They are not limited by such practical regard for utility, so their choice can be determined entirely by their inclination. Frames for the photograph taken just before departure is a usual gift, such frames being so particularly pretty at this moment that they hold their own amongst the tempting nicknacks of the season. Jewels of all descriptions are also decided favourites, there being many very charming new designs for setting the stones, the fashion in this direction changing as rapidly as in any other department of dress. Paste, too, is so prettily made up now that it ranks amongst the very acceptable presents, the Parisian Diamond Company having sold many for the purpose in the last five or six weeks. A pretty paste buckle, brooch, or a pair of earrings makes a great addition to an evening dress, particularly when lace or chiffon comes into the fabrication of the costume. The relief it gives just makes the difference between a well-finished toilette and one that is put on hastily and without thought. Therefore such ornaments are really very useful, especially when so many officers' wives are helping to make these anxious months pass quickly by assisting at the various entertainments that are drawing large sums of money for the war funds. Long strings of pearls are also being largely worn on these occasions, the ropes of seed pearls being especially pretty, particularly when they are finished off with diamond drops. Here and there an original mind starts off on some entirely new idea, when the gift is all the more acceptable for its unexpectedness.

Digitized by Google

The Army Assurance Association

217, PICCADILLY;

Corner of Piccadilly Circus, LONDON, W.

BRANCH OFFICE: IMPERIAL BUILDINGS, GROSVENOR ROAD, ALDERSHOT.

FOR THE ARMY AND NAVY

The Horse Guards - Whitehall.

AND AUXILIARY FORCES.

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES.

Table I.—ACCIDENT AND DISEASE INSURANCES.

THE COMPREHENSIVE POLICY

Issued for this Association covers Double the usual Compensation in the event of Death, Loss of Eyes or Limbs, or Temporary Disablement (Total or Partial), when arising from Railway Accident, Compensation for Disablement from

Scarlet, Typhus, or Typhoid Fever, Small Pox, Measles, or Diphtheria

(The Disease Compensations in Europe only),

And a SPECIAL ANNUITY for cases of Permanent Total Disablement from accidental injuries other than Loss of Eyes or Limbs, for which large capital sums are payable, as already mentioned.

The premiums for these Special Advantages do not greatly vary from those for Policies providing the ordinary compensations for Death or Disablement caused by accidental means only.

An Officer of the Army, Navy, or Auxiliary Forces can for an ANNUAL PREMIUM OF £5 INSURE:—

Higher Benefits at Proportionate Rates

£1,000 at Death from Accident of any kind.
£2,000 do. from Railway Accident.
£1,000 for Loss of Two Eyes or Two Limbs, from Accident of any kind.
£2,000 do. do. from Railway Accident.
£500 for Loss of One Eye or One Limb, from Accident of any kind.
£1,000 do. do. from Railway Accident.
£30 Special Annuity for Permanent Total Disablement from accidental injuries other than Loss of Eyes or Limbs.
£6 per week Total Disablement from Accident of any kind.
£12 per week Total Disablement from Railway Accident.
£6 per week Total Disablement from Scarlet, Typhus, or Typhoid Fever, Small Pox, Measles, or Diphtheria (in Europe only.)

£1 10s. per week Partial Disablement from Accident of any kind.
£3 per week do. do. from Railway Accident.

Annual Premium for Half Benefits, £2 15s.

The Premium is £4 if the Compensation for Partial Disablement is not covered.

The weekly allowance is limited to 26 Weeks' Compensation for any one Accident or illness.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—On an Officer proceeding beyond the limits of Europe the Disease Allowances are excluded, but the Foreign Residence is covered for Accidents without extra premium, including voyages to and fro.

FOR OTHER TABLES, SEE PROSPECTUS.

SPECIAL CONDITIONS.—No extra premium for Playing Polo, or riding in Regimental Races, or (in India) Gymkhanas. For other Races or Steeplechases, an extra premium of £2 per annum is charged. Weekly Compensation for Non-fatal Injuries is limited to 26 weeks for any one injury under all Tables.

War Risks and Civil Riots.—Accidents occurring during a Campaign or whilst called out in aid of the Civil Power are covered under the Policies of the Company, provided they are not directly attributable to the operations of the Enemy nor caused directly by the Rioters.

Premiums collected through Bankers or Agents on permanent authority whether the insured is at Home or Abroad.

Refund of Income Duty obtained on all sums paid for Life and Accident Insurances.

REDUCTION OF PREMIUMS.

A Bonus of 10 per cent. on future premiums paid is allowed after 5 years' consecutive insurance. Transfers from other Companies are effected without loss of Bonus, or break of period to entitle same.

Arrangements for the issue of these Special Army Policies have been made by this Association with the ACCIDENT INSURANCE COMPANY, Ltd. (FOUNDED 1849.)

One of the Oldest and Strongest Offices in the Kingdom. Over £1,000,000 paid in claims.

APPLY FOR SPECIAL ARMY PROSPECTUSES, ALSO OF—

LIFE INSURANCE. Covering War and Climate Risks from the outset at the lowest possible rates.

FIRE AND BURGLARY. Special Policies requiring no endorsement on removal, also whilst in Camp and during transit.

217, PICCADILLY, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, LONDON, W.

Digitized by Google

BENEDICTINE MONKS.

OFFICERS OF HER MAJESTY'S NAVY AND ARMY.

A REAL CONNOISSEUR'S greatest pleasure is to place before his friends something delicious, unique, original, authentic, genuine. This combination is found only in Silos, the true and only Liqueur made by the

BENEDICTINE MONKS.

Silos Liqueur is the finest and most delicious that has ever been before the world. It is Délicieuse Hygiénique, Bienfaisante.

Why is it necessary to advertise an article of such perfection?

Because, even if we had for sale

SOVEREIGNS AT ONE PENNY EACH,

we should sell none if we let no one know it.

Then if advertising is so essential, why have we not sooner resorted thereto on a large scale?

Because our principals, the Benedictine Monks, expressed a desire that we should avoid noisy or broadcast advertising. They wrote:—"Nous sommes décidés à garder la reserve qui convient à notre état. Nous considérons la réclame tapageuse à la mode comme peu digne."

Then why this present advertisement?

This occasion is entirely exceptional. The object is to make a Special Offer to officers who are readers of NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED; to offer them a large bottle, containing about 40 liqueur glasses—the largest bottle imported, which is always sold at 9s. 6d., for little more than half that price, viz.:—5s. per bottle, equal to about 1½d. per glass.

But why need we on any occasion offer to supply the liqueur at half-price if it is truly so very superior?

Because, having obtained this special permission to advertise, we want it to have the greatest possible result. We believe that no officer to whom our offer becomes known will fail to send to us for a bottle. We believe that those who have never tasted Silos Liqueur will be induced to try it, and we are sure that thereafter Silos will be their favourite Liqueur, and they will henceforth always order it in preference to any other, even though Silos is the most expensive liqueur on the market.

To those who send us the Coupon below, with a remittance of 5s., we will send packed and carriage free, to any address in the United Kingdom, One Large Bottle, usually sold at 9s. 6d. Not more than One Bottle will be delivered to any one address.

Why is the coupon necessary?

Because, although we want a large number of people to make the acquaintance of Silos Liqueur, we want to keep the demand within limits we are able to cope with, and we reserve to ourselves the right, if the demand too far exceeds our expectations, to cease deliveries and return remittances to senders.

PRESS OPINIONS.—"Its digestive qualities are undoubted and its purity undeniable."—THE COURT JOURNAL. "It is an ideal liqueur."—THE ILLUSTRATED SPORTING AND DRAMATIC NEWS. "Leaves in the taste a fragrant and soothing sense of satisfaction."—ROD AND GUN. "One of the very finest Liqueurs ever offered to the public."—DOVER OBSERVER. "One of the most delicious Liqueurs extant."—HERTS GUARDIAN. "Nous l'avons trouvé délicieux."—COURRIER DE LONDRES.

PERSONAL OPINIONS.—"Drury Lane Theatre. . . . I find Silos Liqueur remarkably good and pleasant, and shall always have it in the house.—Truly yours (Signed) HENRY NEVILLE."

"Maidstone. . . . You will be glad to hear the Silos Liqueur has been much appreciated, and patients who could not be induced to take brandy and similar stimulants have been helped by your liqueur and their strength sustained. (Signed) ARTHUR B. URMSTON, Special Sanitary Committee of Maidstone during Typhoid epidemic."

H. & T. WALKER, 41, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Sole Agents in United Kingdom and Colonies of the Benedictine Monks of the Royal Monastery at Silos.

Please supply, packed and delivered free, to address herewith, a 9s. 6d. Bottle of Silos Liqueur at the reduced price of Five Shillings.

COUPON WORTH 4/6.

STRAIGHTFORWARD TRUTHS

No roundabout tale need be invented to . . . . prove the merits of the YOST Typewriter. A plain statement of its achievements is sufficient to prove that it is the popular Writing . . . Machine.

IT HAS BEEN AWARDED

TWENTY GOLD MEDALS, and other Honours, in the severest competition.

ENGLISH, CONTINENTAL, and COLONIAL GOVERNMENTS have adopted it, in some instances to the exclusion of other writing machines.

EMPERORS, KINGS, QUEENS . . . PRINCES, and REPUBLICAN RULERS use it in their daily work.

40,000 COMMERCIAL and PROFESSIONAL GENTLEMEN HAVE FOUND IT INDISPENSABLE TO THE RAPID DESPATCH OF BUSINESS.

Sent on Free Trial for Seven Days.

Catalogue Post Free.

THE YOST TYPEWRITER CO., Ltd., 50, Holborn Viaduct, London, E.C.

SMOKE GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

Digitized by Google

ST. JACOBS OIL

The standard and only reliable Embrocation for human use known.

An eminent divine recently asked a great London physician: "What is the leading Embrocation for Rheumatism, Chest Colds, Sprains and general bodily Aches and Pains?" "Why, St. Jacobs Oil, of course." "Which, then, is the second best?" "There is no second best—the others are quite out of sight."

The above voices the public mind throughout civilisation. St. Jacobs Oil has received 12 Gold Medals on account of its marvellous pain-killing qualities from different International Exhibitions. Prescribed by the leading Medical men throughout the world. Used regularly on board all Atlantic Liners, on the Warships of all Nations, and in the Metropolitan and Provincial Hospitals. It has been established 50 years. 20 million bottles sold annually. It cures every ache and pain. It penetrates and removes the cause of pain.

ACTS LIKE MAGIC.

CONQUERS PAIN!

Sold by all Dealers in Medicine throughout the World in 1/1½ and 2/6 sizes.

The CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., 45, Farringdon Road, London, Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers.

DE LA RUE & CO'S FOUNTAIN PENS

Designed to Suit all Tastes and Requirements,
AND MADE THROUGHOUT IN THEIR OWN WORKSHOPS.

THE "PELICAN" (PATENTED)

A Fountain Pen with Shut-off Valve

ORDINARY SIZE, 10/6 — WITH 14-CARAT GOLD PEN, IRIDIUM-POINTED. — EXTRA LARGE, 16/6

Writes Instantly and Continuously, and may be carried in any position without fear of leakage.

THE "NOTA BENE" STYLO

Or FLUID PENCIL (PATENTED)

5/-  5/-

The Stylo may be considered the HANDIEST OF ALL WRITING INSTRUMENTS, as it is always ready for use without adjustment, and may be carried in any position without fear of leakage.

DE LA RUE'S

"ISOBATH" INKSTAND (Patented)

Has a LARGE RESERVOIR of INK, Secure from Dust and Evaporation.

The Float is so weighted and poised as always to keep the Ink in the Dipping-Well at the same level.

PRICES from 2/6 to 45/-

Section, showing Construction.

ALSO THE

"SWIFT" WRITING INKS

Specially recommended for the above Pens and Inkstands.

Sold by all Stationers. Wholesale only by the Sole Manufacturers,
THOS. DE LA RUE & CO. Ltd., BUNHILL ROW, LONDON, E.C.

Capt. K . . LE in South Africa.

NO SIR!

TORTOISE-SHELL MIXTURE

Is NOT made of BOER TOBACCO.

IT IS A VERY POPULAR BRITISH MIXTURE, now being introduced into the Transvaal, along with another very popular British Mixture, very much in evidence in South Africa just now. Sold only in 1-oz. Packets, and 2, 4, and 8-oz. Tortoise-Shell Tins. The ¼-lb. and ½-lb. tins are recommended for keeping the mixture in good condition.

Tortoise-Shell Cigarettes are highly recommended. They Need No Puffing.

MANUFACTURED AND GUARANTEED BY—
W. A. & A. C. CHURCHMAN, Ipswich, Norwich and London. (Est. 1790.)

Digitized by Google

THIS LITTLE LADY WON FIRST PRIZE IN A BEAUTY COMPETITION,

By kind permission of] THE LITTLE COCOA QUEEN. [Messrs. J. S. FRY & SONS, Ld Bristol.

The Best Glass for South Africa

BECAUSE:

GLASS OPEN.

GLASS CLOSED.

It only Weighs Five Ounces.
It is only One Inch Thick when Closed.
It is as Powerful as many Glasses Five Times as Large.
It is the Most Rapid to Use and Focus.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular gives every satisfaction."

LORD LONSDALE writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular is satisfactory in every way, and answers its purpose well."

CAPT. A. H. LEE, Royal Military College, Kingston, Canada, writes—
"I am immensely pleased with the Patent Pocket Binocular, power and definition little short of marvellous, and their extraordinary compactness and lightness makes them of especial value from a military point of view."

UNITED STATES WAR DEPARTMENT.—CAPT. CRAIG writes—
"I am directed by the CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICERS of the UNITED STATES ARMY to say that Aitchison's Patent Pocket Field Glasses are found to be extremely convenient and portable, and of good service."

Superior, Achromatic, 6 Lenses - - £3 3 0
Ditto extra power, 12 Lenses - - £5 5 0
Complete in Soft Leather Purse Case.

Hard Leather Sling Case, 5s. extra. Post Free to any part of the World.

Illustrations and Particulars Post Free from:

AITCHISON & CO., 428, STRAND, LONDON;

Also at 47, Fleet Street; 6, Poultry; and 46, Fenchurch Street, London.

Digitized by Google

The National Explosives Co.,

LIMITED.

Offices: 11, AUSTIN FRIARS, LONDON, E.C.

Factory: HAYLE, CORNWALL.

MANUFACTURERS OF

Dynamite, Gelignite, Gelatine Dynamite, and Blasting Gelatine

FOR USE IN MINING OPERATIONS, and

CORDITE

For Military and Naval Use.

CONTRACTORS TO H.M. ADMIRALTY AND WAR OFFICE.

AGENTS: HOME and FOREIGN.

WM. AINSLEY & BRO., Ltd.	Waddington Street, Durham.
W. J. BAYNES	5, Bedford Street, North Shields.
J. H. BEAN & CO.	Albion Street, Leeds.
FLEMING & CO.	31, Robertson Street, Glasgow.
A. FRANCIS	Tavistock, Devon.
HOLLAND & CARSON	Gresford, N. Wales.
E. LIDGEY	Perranwell, Cornwall.
THE PATENT ELECTRIC SHOT FIRING CO.	31, Gluman Gate, Chesterfield.
C. E. & H. M. PEEL	Swansea.
SAMUEL RAINE	Midsomer Norton, Somerset.
JOHN RUSSELL	111, Duke Street, Whitehaven.

THE NATIONAL EXPLOSIVES CO.,

LIMITED.

Branch Office: 31, Queen Street, Melbourne.

McARTHUR & PERKS	68½, Pitt St., Sydney, and Kalgoorlie.
BUTTERWORTH & CO.	Port Adelaide.
A. M. HERTZBERG & CO.	Brisbane.
J. A. BENJAMIN & CO., Ld.	Charters Towers.
JOHN DUTHIE & CO., Ld.	Wellington, N.Z.
L. D. NATHAN & CO.	Auckland, N.Z.
GORDON, WOODROFFE & CO.	Madras.

Also Correspondents and Sub-Agents at:

HOBART, LAUNCESTON, FREMANTLE, COOLGARDIE, PORT ELIZABETH, KIMBERLEY, EAST LONDON, AXIM, ETC., ETC.

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 21d. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries, PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE, AND COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

Useful Christmas Gifts.

217, PICCADILLY, W. LONDON. ALLEN & WRIGHT 26, POULTRY, E.C. LONDON.

MAKERS OF FINEST (ONLY) QUALITY BRIAR & MEERSCHAUM PIPES.

No. 34 - - 3/6. In Morocco Case 5/6.

A & W Silver-Mounted Briar (medium size), Horn or Vulcanite Stem.

With Fine Amber Stem (in Case) - - - - - 13/6.

With Fine Amber Stem and 15ct. Gold Mount (in Case), 27/6.

No. 34a 3/6. In Morocco Case - 5/6.

A & W Silver-Mounted Briar (medium size), Horn or Vulcanite Stem.

With Fine Amber Stem (in Case) - - - - - 13/6.

With Fine Amber Stem and 15ct. Gold Mount (in Case), 27/6.

No. 71 - - 6/-. In Morocco Case - - 8/6.

A & W Silver-Mounted Briar (medium size), Horn or Vulcanite Stem.

With Fine Amber Stem (in Case) - - - - - 20/-.

With Fine Amber Stem and 15ct. Gold Mount (in Case), 30/-.

Fine Antelope Skin Pouch lined rubber), with Silver Shield,

10z. - - - - 6/6

20z. - - - - 7/6

With 9ct. Gold Shields, 10/6 and 11/6.

Engraving (best style), 2/6.

Very handsome Dk. Green Air-tight Tobacco Jar, to hold half-pound, with Hall-marked Silver Rim, 10/6. Silver Monograms, 2 and 3 letters, 4/6 and 5/-

Plain Jar, Unmounted - - 6/-.

Fine Antelope Skin Pouch (lined rubber) with any initial letter hand embroidered in Gold shaded black.

1 oz. - - - 6/6

2 oz. - - - 7/6

Monograms embroidered to order (finest work only), 4/- to 6/- each.

No. 123 - 12/6

2 A & W Silver Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn or Vulcanite stems in Morocco Case. Short, Light, Pipes.

No. 98 - - 25/-

4 A & W Silver Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite stem, and 6 in. do. for indoor use, in Morocco Case.

No. 92 - - 12/-

2 A & W Silver Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite stems. In Morocco Case, with 1 Amber stem, 20/-.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF HIGH-CLASS SPECIALITIES, POST FREE.

Bootmaker to the Royal Family.

M. Hoban,

LATE MANAGER TO SCAFE'S PATENT, 104, NEW BOND STREET, W. Now Established at

28, UPPER BERKELEY STREET, PORTMAN SQUARE, W.

(NEAR MARBLE ARCH)

Specialite: SCAFE'S PATENT.

For many years, while Manager of SCAFE'S PATENT Leather and Rubber Boot Company, Mr. HOBAN has been honoured with the patronage of the following Members of the Royal Family:—

H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.
H.I.M. The German Emperor and King of Prussia.
H.I.M. The German Empress and Queen of Prussia.
H.I.M. The Empress Frederick of Germany.
H.R.H. The Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, K.G.
H.R.H. The Duchess of Connaught and Strathearn
H.R.H. The Princess Christian (of Schleswig-Holstein).
H.R.H. The Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne).
H.R.H. Duchess of Albany.
H.R.H. The Princess Beatrice (Princess Henry of Battenberg).
H.R.H. The Princess Louise (Duchess of Fife).
H.R.H. The Prince Henry of Prussia.
H.R.H. The Princess Henry of Prussia.
H.R.H. The Princess Adolf (of Schaumburg-Lippe).
H.R.H. The Princess Victoria (of Schleswig-Holstein).
H.G.D.H. The Princess Alix of Hesse.

SCAFE'S PATENT SOLE has now been tested not only by several members of the Royal Family, but by almost every one interested in Sport, and it has now been proved, without a doubt, that the PATENT SOLE is most suitable for SHOOTING BOOTS. Because one may obtain a perfectly Waterproof Boot that is light in weight, which is the greatest comfort to anyone enjoying a long day's shooting.

GOLFING BOOTS. Because, not only are they waterproof and light, but they grip the ground in a solid way, which is of the greatest importance to Golfers.

FOR COUNTRY WALKING BOOTS AND SHOES. To avert a cold, leading medical men will advise you to wear SCAFE'S PATENT SOLES on all your boots.

IMPORTANT. SCAFE'S PATENT SOLE is a complete failure in a Waterproof Boot unless made up by an experienced workman.

Ladies' & Gentlemen's Riding, Shooting Military and Court Bootmaker.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

9, Strand, W.C.

NO. 86 "STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.

18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.

Gold Crystal, £13 15s.

Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s

Silver Crystal, £5.

Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138

STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.

OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times" Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments

Digitized by Google

Battle-fields of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

THE Tugela is a river which has played a very important part in the course of the war, and we are able to add to this series of battle scenes a picture of a drift on its upper waters, where the Boers established themselves in force to resist Sir Redvers Buller's anticipated flank march. The hasty retirement which the enemy made from the Mooi to the Tugela was one of the most remarkable episodes in the campaign. The invasion of Southern Natal had ignominiously collapsed, and General Joubert, before he was taken ill, ordered the retreat on the Tugela. The Boers then became alarmed by the great accession to our strength, and when their spies informed them that Sir Redvers Buller had set his forces in motion they immediately took steps to resist or impede the passage of our troops, not only at Colenso, but at the drifts above and below, which, when the water falls, are easily fordable.

The next picture takes us to the Western Frontier. It is from a photograph of a place near Belmont, on the road to the Modder, through which large supply waggons have carried provisions and stores to the front. Even when the railway had been made good, the common conveyance of the country was utilised, for the rolling-stock was scarcely adequate to the great work of feeding and providing a great army continually increasing. The relief of Kimberley cost many lives, and the place itself would have welcomed these waggons. In the very sortie in which gallant Major Scott-Turner, of the Black Watch, the life and soul of much of the fighting, was killed, a large quantity of foodstuffs was captured from the Boers.

The defence of Mafeking will become legendary in the annals of our Army, and we are glad to be able to give another view of its environs, in a scene on the Molopo River, with a distant glimpse of the town. The Boers have a laager close by the place, and in it, no doubt, Colonel Baden-Powell has kept them very much on the alert. He impressed them with a lively respect for our cold steel, and when Cronje trekked south to meet Lord Methuen, the natives spread the report that his men said they had encountered devils and not men at Mafeking.

The defence of the place is decidedly the most picturesque episode in the whole war, and it becomes the more remarkable when we remember that Colonel Baden-Powell has depended upon the colonial levies he has inspired.

All honour to these gallant men!

A DRIFT ON THE UPPER TUGELA.
Where the Boers were in Force to Resist Sir Redvers Buller's Anticipated Flank Attack.

ON THE WESTERN FRONTIER.
Supply Waggons Outspanning.

Photos. Copyright ON THE MOLOPO RIVER. "Navy & Army."
With a Distant View of Mafeking.

Digitized by Google

FOR XMAS AND THE NEW YEAR.

The Up-to-Date Practical Invention.

For Making any Aerated Water YOURSELF, or Aerating any liquid YOURSELF with or without dilution with the special bottle and shown at side.

Special Bottle, 4/6.

Send your friends this most acceptable Christmas or New Year's Gift.

WINTER at Home.
SUMMER in our Colonies.

MAKES STILL WINES SPARKLING!

You Aerate WHAT, WHEN and WHERE you choose.

"YOU SHAKE THE BOTTLE, NATURE DOES THE REST."

"Sparklets"

Immense quantities shipped to Africa for the use of our troops.

The one indispensable Article under all circumstances at Home and Abroad.

1 doz. "Sparklets" weight 4 oz., 1/- per box.
One "Sparklet" the equivalent of 1½ bottles Soda Water.

The special bottle and "Sparklets" are packed in a convenient form for sending to the COLONIES by POST or otherwise.

OF ALL CHEMISTS, STORES, &c.

Wholesale only from the Patentees, AERATORS, Ltd., Broad Street, London, E.C.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY

Pickering's 'Blanco'

For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:

JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.

Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co., LTD.,

115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

Watch & Clock

MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, NEW BOND ST.

LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

FIRE.

UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

LIFE.

(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714

HEAD OFFICE:

81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.

Accumulated Funds: £3,250,000.

Subscribed Capital: £450,000.

Annual Income - £900,000.

Special Rates for Naval and Military Officers.

MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS.
INTERIM BONUSES. LIBERAL CONDITIONS.
PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.

Fire Manager, W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager, A. F. BAILEY. Actuary, L. K. PAGDEN.

CHARLES DARRELL, Secretary.

J. W. ELVERY

And CO.'S

Waterproofs.

COATS

— FOR —

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

SPÉCIALITÉ—

DRAB BOX CLOTH COATS

£3 3 0.

Thick Woollen Frieze Weather resisting Talma Coats

£2 2 0.

Waterproof Hunting Coats

£1 10 0.

DRIVING APRONS AND SERVANTS' WATERPROOFS.

31, CONDUIT STREET,

LONDON, W.

(One Door from New Bond Street.)

Also at 46 & 47, Lower Sackville Street; 18½, Nassau Street, DUBLIN. And at 78, Patrick Street, CORK.

Digitized by Google

Khartoum of To-Day.

THE FOOTBALL TEAM OF THE 9th SOUDANESE.
Winners of the First Football Match Played at Khartoum.

THE FOOTBALL TEAM OF THE 11th SOUDANESE.
Beaten by Three Goals to One.

IT is little more than a month ago when British officers and native troops crushed once and for all the barbarous tyranny that made a hell of a vast expanse of Northern Africa. Khartoum and the Soudan are freed from the Khalifa'

TAKEN THE QUEEN'S SHILLING.
Dervish Recruits for the East African Rifles.

TRUE AND FAITHFUL.
Dervish Women from Khartoum who will Accompany Their Soldier Husbands to East Africa tyranny, and the town that was the scene of the murder of one of the noblest soldiers and most Christian gentlemen that ever wore Her Majesty's uniform is the base from which British pluck and British enterprise are continuing the great

UNDER SAFE GUARD.
A Batch of Prisoners after Omdurman.

CABIN'D, CRIBB'D, CONFIN'D.
Dervish Prisoners in Omdurman.

work the nation has undertaken—that of the civilisation of Darkest Africa. For it is and must be this country that will civilise Darkest Africa. Not the least important factor in this work will be the rail and wire, and for this and other works of public utility labour will be required, and to-day the heretofore adherents of the Khalifa are busily employed—and getting well paid for—constructing embankments, laying rails, and building up the ruined city of Khartoum.

Fine stalwart fellows are these Soudanese, as is shown in the two groups here illustrated, which depict batches of Dervish prisoners. Of course to-day the ordinary prisoners of war have been released, except a few of the more important and dangerous characters, who have been deported to Egypt. Another picture represents one of the old forts of Omdurman, from which place, as our readers know, the seat of government has now been removed to Khartoum. These pictures, in fact, are typical of Khartoum and its condition twelve months ago, while the remaining typify the Khartoum of to-day. The two football teams here depicted are those of the 9th and 11th Soudanese, who had the honour to play the first football match at Omdurman on the Mosque Square in front of the Mahdi's Tomb. The teams were trained, the 9th by Staff-Sergeant McConnell, the 11th by Sergeant Scott-Barbour, who has since, for his services in the Soudan, been promoted to a second lieutenancy in the Highland Light Infantry. Another of our illustrations shows Soudanese recruits for the East African Rifles enlisted at Khartoum. A group of women accompanying their husbands to East Africa are here shown. The men were enlisted at Khartoum by Major Harrison, D.S.O., and Captain Godfrey, who are shown in the picture.

Photos. Copyright. THE KHALIFA'S STRONGHOLD. "Navy & Army."
One of the Forts of Omdurman.

Digitized by Google

A General's Testimonial.

The following is an extract from Field-Marshal Lord Roberts' "Forty-one Years in India," relating to the Lushai Expedition:—

"Constant hard work and exposure in a peculiarly malarious and relaxing climate had told upon the whole force, while our having to depend for so long upon tinned meats . . . . had been very trying for the officers . . . My wife and some anonymous kind friend sent by post small tins of Liebig's Extract, which were highly appreciated."

Notwithstanding the unprecedented demand for South Africa, the Liebig Company are prepared to execute all orders in full, whether for home consumption or for friends at the front.

Every Jar Signed

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT.

J. Liebig

In BLUE.

This Trophy of Swords,

Affixed on Heraldic Shield, with Brass Suspender, all complete.

Price Ten Shillings and Sixpence.

Cheques and Post Orders to—

THE DECORATIONS COMPANY,

"THE ARMOURY,"

29, LEICESTER SQUARE, LONDON.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered.
Children's		1s. 3d.
Ladies'		2s. 3d.
Gents'		3s. 3d.
Hemstitched.
Ladies'		2s. 9d.
Gents'		3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d. per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6 l. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—Every day I hear of some new entertainment that is being organised for the war funds. The restless energy so characteristic of the time is naturally finding its outlet in the direction in which all our thoughts are turned at the moment. This morning I had a letter from Bertha, telling me of some living pictures which Mrs. Robert Price, wife of the member for East Norfolk, is getting up for the war fund. The event will take place at the Queen's Gate Hall, on Thursday, January 18, at half-past eight. The Princess Christian has promised her immediate patronage, also Lord Rosebery, Lord Kimberley, Lord George Hamilton, Lord Loch, General Sir Archibald Alison and Lady Alison, General Sir H. Prendergast, Lady Wodehouse, Lady Methuen, the Dowager Lady Westbury, Lady Harcourt, Sir David and Lady Tennant, Mrs. Gully, Mrs. Chamberlain, Admiral Maxse, Major-General Robinson, Major-General Maurice, and many others. Mr. Alfred Parsons, A.R.A., is arranging the pictures, which will be after various well-known paintings and engravings; and some members of the band of the Royal Engineers have volunteered their services, by kind permission of the commandant, Major-General T. Fraser. The entertainment therefore promises to be in all respects a very great success.

This week I send you another sketch of a dress that would be suitable for wearing at any of the forthcoming patriotic concerts at which you may be assisting. This one is, however, more suitable for a smaller affair than were those I sent you last week, but though it is less smart, it is very pretty and effective if carried out in white oriental satin, with transparent neck and sleeves of tucked point d'esprit lace. Where these meet the bodice the satin is cut in points bound with blue crêpe de chine, beneath which are empiécements of lace enriched with a sprinkling of turquoises. The rosettes are of the blue crêpe de chine, which also drapes the bodice, and hangs from a third rosette almost to the bottom of the skirt. This is looped up gracefully at each side to show a petticoat of the esprit lace tucked as in the neck and sleeves. This style of dress also looks very well if carried out in soft woollen crêpe, relieved by chiffon of geranium colour. For an afternoon concert it would, in these materials, make an exceedingly pretty costume for a young girl, and as such I recommend the idea to your consideration.

A PRETTY CONCERT DRESS.

I have been a great deal to Princes' lately, and when there I generally take mental notes of the people I see or the gossip I hear, and all for your benefit, for too well I know how greedy you are for such news. I saw Lady Harbord and Lord Stratheden the last time I was there, when I was particularly struck with the music played by the orchestra during dinner. But really it is always good, and so well arranged by the director (Bocchi), the selections never being too long nor too noisy, so one can enjoy them comfortably without interruption to one's conversation.

At Princes', too, I met Jack, who told me he had heard from Norah, she having arrived in New Zealand just when the greatest excitement prevailed, as the colony learned that the Imperial Government had accepted the volunteers for the Transvaal. Before they started, the men were encamped, under Major Robin, at Karori, about three miles out of Wellington, where the officers were royally entertained by everyone in the neighbourhood, and on the eve of their departure a dinner was given at Government House, after which Lady Ranfurly held a large reception, wearing a lovely crimson dress and beautiful diamonds. The next day the town was crowded with visitors from all parts of the colony come to see the contingent go off. The men arrived at Jervois Quay at half-past three, where they were received by the Governor, the Premier, the Mayor, and Leader of the Opposition, after which the men embarked in the "Waimera," which had been fitted out as a troop-ship in an incredibly short space of time. As the ship moved off she was followed by about twenty steamers, large and small, as far as the Heads, where the Governor bade them a final farewell, he, Lady Ranfurly, and Lady Constance Knox being on board the "Tubanekai." Then the "Waimera" steamed off amidst the firing of guns and rockets and much playing of bands. Norah said it was a delightfully sunny day, and the scene was lovely and most stirring, the loyalty and enthusiasm displayed being tremendous.

There was much excitement at Secunderabad when the finals were played in the polo tournament for the Nizam's cup, when Sir Vicar ul Oomrah was "At Home" on the ground, where an enormous crowd had gathered to watch the contest. The struggle was between the 4th Hussars and the Golcondas; both played their best, and the match was tremendously exciting. It ended at last in victory for the Golcondas by eight goals and one subsidiary to the Hussars' four goals and four subsidiaries. The cup, valued at 10,000 rupees, was presented to the winners by Sir Trevor Plowden in the absence of the Nizam. The teams were: Mr. Watkin, Mr. Rotheram, Major Hoare (who played with his broken leg in splints), and Major Kincaid Smith for the 4th Hussars; for the Golcondas, Jemadar Abid Khan, Shah Murza Beg, Captain Osman Yar Jung, and Mr. Killader; whilst the umpires were Captain Hussey, R.H.A., and Mr. Orr, and the referees Mr. Anthony, Mr. Swain, Mr. Tatchell, and Mr. Johnson.

It is unluckily time for this to come to an end, and I have only space to tell you that Messrs. Bewlay and Co. have sent off 21,000 Flor de Dindigul cigars as a gift to the troops in South Africa, a fact that will please you, as you generally show so much anxiety that they should not be deprived of their smoking, poor things.

Yours affectionately, CONSTANCE.

* Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor of this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.*

Digitized by Google

METHUEN'S MARCH.

The Daily Telegraph of the 28th ult. referred to the fact that Lord Methuen's column, lightly equipped for a rapid advance, carries none but EMERGENCY RATIONS.

By order of THE WAR OFFICE BOVRIL LIMITED are supplying large quantities of their special EMERGENCY RATIONS for the troops actively engaged. The supplementary orders of the Government Authorities for further quantities of

BOVRIL FOR FIELD HOSPITAL USE,

are also a highly satisfactory endorsement of the favourable opinions expressed after several experiences with BOVRIL in previous campaigns and military expeditions.

A GOOD HONEST, STERLING ARTICLE.

AS MADE FOR H.M. THE QUEEN, AND REGULARLY SUPPLIED TO THE LEADING STEAMSHIP COMPANIES.

PALETHORPES'

ROYAL CAMBRIDGE

SAUSAGES.

Purity and Quality incontestable. Guaranteed made of Prime British-fed Pork at our Model Factory, splendidly equipped with our own Patent Machinery.

LARGEST MAKERS IN THE WORLD, AWARDED 10 GOLD MEDALS.

Of Grocers, Game Dealers, etc.

For name of nearest Agent write to—

PALETHORPES, Limited,
DUDLEY PORT, STAFFS.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

ENGLISH STEEL.
REAL GERMAN GROUND.

SPROCK'S . . . RAZORS.

Black Handles	5/-	each.
Ivory Handles	7/6	„
Pairs in Cases (Black)	16/6
„ (Ivory)	21/-

WHOLESALE:

PARTON, SON & CO.,

BULL RING, BIRMINGHAM.

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

Collier's

BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

FINEST LIQUEURS.

Devonshire Sloe Gin.

SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.

CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.

CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.

COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,

53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23rd, 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 151.

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,
217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.).

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Collier's

FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.

COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, RECENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
IRISH DAMASK TABLE AND HOUSE LINEN.
Fish Napkins, 2/11 per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5/6 per doz. Table Cloths (2 yards square), 2/6; 2½×3 yards 5/6. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Irish Linens Pillow Cases, 10/6 per doz. Real Irish Linen Sheeting, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1/11 per yard. Roller Towelling, 3d. per yard. Surplice Linen, 7d. per yard. Dusters from 3/3 per doz. Linen Glass Cloths, 4/9 per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1/4½ each. Fine Linens and Linen Diaper, 8½d. per yard. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4/6 per dozen.
SAMPLES & PRICE LISTS POST FREE.
N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letters & Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.
Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.
Much better and more convenient than Pipe-clay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.
BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.
Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.
MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London E.C.

Digitized by Google

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

FOR JANUARY ONLY.

3D. 6D. 9D.

A Risin' Sun Metal Polish GIVEN WITH Stephens' White Knife Powder

FREE 4½D. 4½D.

FOR

NINEPENCE FOR FOURPENCE-HALFPENNY.

To be obtained from nearly all Grocers, Ironmongers, Oilmen, and Stores. One tin convinces. Nearest Retailer's Name and Address sent with pleasure.

STEPHENS' WHITE KNIFE POWDER does not stain the handles.

C. CHANCELLOR & CO., 13, Clerkenwell Rd., LONDON, E.C.

THE

ARMY ASSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

LIFE. War Risks. World-wide.
ACCIDENTS. Residence abroad.
FIRE. Residence abroad.
BURGLARY.
HORSES.
MARINE RISKS.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison, or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing, without endorsement or removal.

Life Premiums payable quarterly, if desired.

Refund of Income Duty obtained, by arrangement with the War Office, on sums paid for Life and Accident Insurances.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due.

Apply for Prospectus,

MANAGER, 217 Piccadilly (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.),

BRANCH OFFICE: 9, UNION STREET, ALDERSHOT.

NAVAL BRANCH: 15, PEMBROKE ROAD, PORTSMOUTH.

THE "OSMAN"

Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES, Limited,

MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette.")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No 151. Saturday, December 23rd, 1899.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),

Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with

Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,

PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS FOR MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE, WOOLWICH, SANDHURST, AND ALL MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS; also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:

MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899

		Marks.
*FIRST UNIVERSITY.—	A. E. M. Ward	1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

		Marks.
*FIRST ARTILLERY.—	C. H. Clark ... ... (After a few months' reading.)	1792
*20th Infantry.—	L. J. Le Fleming	1582
35th "	A. Moore	1485
38th "	J. C. Hooper	1463
*72nd "	W. B. Mitford	1310
*76th "	A. J. M. Gordon	1280

*1st trial direct.

March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.

N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.

Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, S.W.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075

MARCH, 1899.

3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

First-Class Certificates.

HOME AND FOREIGN
CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES.

N.C.O.'s and MEN, at home or abroad, can be prepared by post for the half-yearly Exams. Send for particulars of classes now forming for March Exam., 1900.—RANDALL J. FOX (Ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Children of the Ghetto."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Canary."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Absented-Minded Beggar."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Lady of Ostend."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN.

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha." At 2 p.m., "Alice in Wonderland."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Cinderella."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Silver King."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Aladdin."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "La Poupee."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "The Great World of London."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Greek Slave."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Jack of Hearts."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH and MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge)
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile: DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

[Telegrams—"Exercitus London"

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

A Charming Christmas Present

GUARANTEED

BEST QUALITY

Cutlery Cabinets

Mahogany Case, Cloth Lined, containing 53 Articles. Size, when closed, 16 by 10½ by 3¼ inches.

W 5. Best Ivory Knives and A. Quality Electro-Plate,

£7 10 0

W 7. Ivoride Knives and B. Quality Electro-Plate,

£6 0 0

Write direct to the Manufacturers :

THOMAS TURNER & CO., SUFFOLK WORKS, SHEFFIELD.

Who will supply through their nearest Agent.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK,

SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address : "BIRKBECK, LONDON."

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

TO LET.

BERKS.—Well Furnished HOUSE, for the Winter months. Three reception, five best bed and dressing rooms, four bedrooms on second floor, large kitchen, pantry, etc.; good garden and greenhouse, coach-house, and stabling for three horses. Two miles from station, near telegraph; 30 miles from London; good train service. 10 guineas a week.

Address "M. A.," 20, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

The Troops In South Africa.

The PUBLISHER of the "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE" begs to announce that he has Coloured Pictures of each BRITISH REGIMENT in, or ordered to, South Africa, and will be pleased to supply copies of the same. Price 6½d. each Regiment, post free to any part of the World. Full List on Application.

Apply—The MANAGER, "ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE." Offices—3, York St., Covent Garden, London, W.C.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Fourth Week.]

THE QUARTERS OF THE INFANTRY REGIMENTS.

	Battn.
Grenadier G'ds	1. Col. V. Hatton, C.B.	Windsor
	2. Lieut.-Col. F. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Wellington Bar'ks.
	3. Lieut.-Col. E. M. S. Crabbe	Cape Colony
Coldstream G'ds	1. Lieut.-Col. A. E. Codrington	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col.	Cape Colony
	3. Lieut.-Col. V. J. Dawson	Tower of London
Scots Guards	1. Col. A. H. Paget	Cape Colony
	2. Col. I. R. Jones	Wellington Bar'ks.
	3. Major Hon. C. Harbord (tem.)	Chelsea
Royal Scots (1st)	1. Lieut.-Col. E. P. Morgan-Payler.	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. T. F. Ross	Poona
Queen's (Rl. West Surrey Reg., 2nd)	1. Col. J. S. Collins	Gharial, Punjab
	2. Lt.-Col. E. O. F. Hamilton	Natal
The Buffs (East Kent Reg., 3rd)	1. Col. A. E. Ommanney	Kamptee
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. A. Hickson	For South Africa
King's Own (Rl. Lancaster 4th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. Rowlandson	Singapore
	2. Col. M. E. Crofton	For South Africa
Northumberland Fusiliers (5th).	1. Lt.-Col. C. G. C. Money, C.B.	Cape Colony
	2. Lt.-Col. R. L. A. Pennington	Cape Colony
Ryl. Warwickshire Regiment (6th).	1. Lt.-Col. W. E. G. Forbes, C.B.	Madras
	2. Lieut.-Col. M. Q. Jones, C.B.	For South Africa
*	3. Lieut.-Col. A. W. F. Jackson	Malta
Royal Fusiliers (7th).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. P. B. Rodick	Nusseerabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. C. Donald	Natal
*	3. Lieut.-Col. J. E. Briggs	Gibraltar
King's (Liverpool Regiment, 8th).	1. Lieut.-Col. L. S. Mellor	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. S. H. Harrison	Enniskillen
Norfolk Regiment (9th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. L. Govan	Bombay
	2. Lieut.-Col. L. H. Phillips	Fermoy
Lincolnshire Reg. (10th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. R. Lowth, C.B.	Secunderabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. R. Roberts	For South Africa
Devonshire Reg. (11th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. W. Park	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. M. Bullock	Natal
Suffolk Regiment (12th)	1. Lieut.-Col. A. J. Watson	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. R. Townley	Quetta
Somersetshire L.I. (13th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. A. Walsh	Rawal Pindi
	2. Lieut.-Col. E. J. Gallwey	Natal
West Yorkshire Regiment (14th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. Grant-Dalton	Kurrachee
	2. Col. F. W. Kitchener	Natal
East Yorkshire Regiment (15th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. F. Garnett	Belgaum
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. W. Ward	Templemore
Bedfordshire Reg. (16th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Riddell	Mooltan
	2. Col. W. O. Cavenagh	For South Africa
Leicestershire Reg. (17th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. D. Carleton	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. W. McKinstry	Curragh
Royal Irish Reg. (18th).	1. Lt.-Col. H. W. N. Guinness	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. B. Forster	Mhow
Yorkshire Reg. (19th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Bowles	For South Africa
	2. Lt.-Col. C. J. Spottiswoode	Umballa
Lancashire Fus. (20th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. L. E. May	Crete
	2. Lt.-Cl. C. J. Blomfield, D.S.O.	For South Africa
*	3. Lieut.-Col. R. G. Bruxner-Randall.	Malta
Royal Scots Fus. (21st).	1. Lt.-Col. A. H. Abercrombie	Peshawur
	2. Lieut.-Col. E. E. Carr	Natal
Cheshire Regiment (22nd).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. W. Bromfield	Secunderabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. F. Curteis	Limerick
Royal Welsh Fus. (23rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. C. H. Thorold	Natal
	2. Lt.-Col. Hon. R. H. Bertie	Hong Kong
South Wales Borderers (24th).	1. Lt.-Col. H. G. Mainwaring	Chakrata
	2. Col. R. A. P. Clements, D.S.O., A.D.C.	Dublin
K.O. Scottish Borderers (25th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. W. Godfray	Dublin
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. T. W. Hewat	Cawnpore
Cameronians (Sct. Rifles, 26th-90th)	1. Lieut.-Col. S. H. Lomax	Lucknow
	2. Lieut.-Col. E. Cooke	Natal
Royal Inniskilling Fus. (27th-108th)	1. Lt.-Col. T. M. G. Thackeray	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. M. Greenfield	Meean Meer
Gloucestershire Reg. (28th-61st).	1. Lieut.-Col. S. Humphery	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. F. Lindsell	For South Africa
Worcestershire Reg. (29th-36th).	1. Lieut.-Col. O. H. Oakes	Guernsey
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. Coningham	For South Africa
East Lancashire Reg. (30th-59th).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. J. A. Wright	Jersey
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. G. Watson	Ranikhet
East Surrey Reg. (31st-70th).	1. Lt.-Col. W. J. H. Frodsham	Jhansi
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. H. W. Harris	Natal
Duke of Cornwall's L.I. (32nd-46th).	1. Col. C. F. A. Turnbull	Lucknow
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. Aldworth, D.S.O.	Cape Colony
D. of Wellington's (W. Riding Reg., 33rd-76th).	1. Lt.-Col. G. E. Lloyd, D.S.O.	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. E. Belfield	Rangoon
Border Regiment (34th-55th).	1. Col. T. H. E. Hinde	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. S. Wood	Bareilly
Royal Sussex Reg. (35th-107th).	1. Lieut.-Col. B. D. A. Donne	Malta
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. C. Young	Sealkote
Hampshire Reg. (37th-67th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. R. Parkinson	Cherat, Punjab
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. E. Briggs	Cork
South Staffords're Reg. (38th-80th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Savage	Gibraltar
	2. Lieut.-Col. N. S. Allen	Thayetmyo, Burma
Dorsetshire Reg. (39th-54th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. J. J. Kentish	Nowshera, Punjab
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. H. Law	For South Africa
South Lancashire Reg. (40th-82nd)	1. L.-C. W. McCarthy-O'Leary	For South Africa
	2. L.-C. A. F. G. Richardson	Jubbulpore
Welsh Regiment (41st-69th).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. J. F. Banfield	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. F. S. L. Penno	Ahmednugger
The Black Watch (Ryl. Highland's 42nd-73rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. E. G. Grogan	Sitapur
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. H. C. Coode	Cape Colony
Oxfordshire L.I. (43rd-52nd).	1. Lt.-Col. Hon. A. E. Dalzell	For South Africa
	2. Col. F. H. Plowden	Ferozepore
Essex Regiment (44th-56th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. E. Stephenson	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. T. Stock	Shwebo, Burma
Sherwood F'r'sters (Derbyshire Rg., (45th-95th).	1. Col. H. L. Smith-Dorrien, D.S.O.	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. D. Bulpett	Malta
Loyal North Lancashire Regim't. (47th-81st).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. G. Kekewich	Cape Colony
	2. Lt.-Col. B. A. Satterthwaite	Malta
Northamptonshire Reg. (48th-58th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. B. Capper	Allahabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Denny	Cape Colony
Rl. Berkshire Reg. (49th-66th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. C. Carter	Portsmouth
	2. Lt.-Col. C. Evans-Gordon	Natal
Queen's Own (Ryl. West Kent Reg., 50th-97th).	1. L.-C. C. W. H. Evans, D.S.O.	Aden
	2. Lt.-Col. E. A. W. S. Grove	Egypt
King's Own Yorks. L.I. (51st-105th)	1. L.-C. Sir H. A. W. Johnson, Bart.	Sheffield
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. St. L. Barter	Cape Colony
King's (Shropshire L.I., 53rd-85th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. H. Collette	Poona
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. Spens	Cape Colony
Middlesex Reg. (57th-77th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. G. White	Welling'n, Madras
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. W. Hill	For South Africa
King's Royal Rifle Corps (60th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Gore-Browne	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. G. Grimwood	Natal
	3. L.-C. R. G. Buchanan-Riddell	Natal
	4. Lieut.-Col. E. W. Herbert	Cork
Wiltshire Regim't. (62nd-99th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Harford	Quetta
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. M. Carter	For South Africa
Manchester Reg. (63rd-96th).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. E. R. Curran	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. T. Reay	Manchester
North Staffords're Reg. (64th-98th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. Currie, C.B.	Subathu
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. E. Bradley	Newry
York & Lancaster Reg. (65th-84th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. J. Kirkpatrick	For South Africa
	2. Col. H. Boughey	Agra
Durham Light I. (68th-106th).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. L. Woodland	Natal
	2. Lt.-Col. A. de B. V. Paget	Mandalay
Highland Light I. (71st-74th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. R. Kelham	Cape Colony
	2. Lt.-Col. R. D. B. Rutherford	Ceylon
Seaforth Highl'rs (72nd-78th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. A. Campbell	Egypt
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. W. Hughes-Hallett, D.S.O.	Cape Colony
Gordon Highl'rs (75th-92nd).	1. Lt.-Col. G. T. F. Downman	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Dick-Cunyngham, V.C.	Natal
Q.O. Cameron H'rs (79th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. F. A. Watson-Kennedy.	Egypt
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. M. Hunt	Gibraltar
Royal Irish Rifles (83rd-86th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. Haggard	Fort William, [Bengal
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. A. Eagar	Cape Colony
Ryl. Irish Fusiliers (87th-89th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. R. C. Carleton	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. Reeves	Natal
Connaught Ran's (88th-94th).	1. Lieut.-Col. L. G. Brooke	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. E. Harman	Meerut
Argyll & Sutherl'd H'rs (91st-93rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. L. J. Goff	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. H. Campbell	Ranikhet
Leinster Regiment (100th-109th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Martin	Halifax, N.S.
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. G. Glancy	Barbados
Ryl. Munster Fus. (101st-104th).	1. Lieut.-Col. E. S. Evans	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. P. S. Druitt	Dinapore
Royal Dublin Fus. (102nd-103rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. A. Mills	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. D. Cooper	Natal
Rifle Brigade	1. Lieut.-Col. C. H. B. Norcott	Natal
	2. Lt.-Col. C. T. E. Metcalfe	Natal
	3. Lieut.-Col. W. R. Kenyon-Slaney.	Rawal Pindi
	4. Lieut.-Col. A. R. Pemberton	Dublin
West India Reg.	1. Lieut.-Col. A. L. Bayley	Bermuda
	2. Lieut.-Col. D. M. Allen	Jamaica
	3. Lieut.-Col. A. Bor	Sierra Leone
Hong Kong Reg.	Lieut.-Col. J. M. A. Retallick	Hong Kong
Chinese Regiment	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Bower	Wei-hai-Wei
West African Reg.	L.-C. G. G. Cunningham, D.S.O.
B.C. Africa Rifles	1. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Manning	Central Africa
	2. Lt.-Col. H. E. J. Brake, R.A.	Mauritius
Provisional Batt.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Kelly	Shorncliffe

* 4th Battalion in course of formation.

 The Disposition of our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

THE NAVY AND ARMY.—Numerous illustrations have appeared in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of nearly all the ships in Her Majesty's Fleet, and of the regiments in either the Home, Indian, or Colonial Armies. Lists can be obtained on application.

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII., cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings each, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

The Best Children's Chromo Presentation Books of the Season.

Size, Royal 4to, (or 12½ by 9¾ inches), handsomely bound in stiff picture boards, cloth backs, 3s. 6d. each.

Pictures for Little Englanders.—Pictured by A. S. FORREST, and Verses by FRANK GREEN. (A companion book to Mrs. AMES' "A B C for Baby Patriots.")

"A B C for Baby Patriots" was styled by the trade and the Press as being the best and smartest book of the season, but we think "Pictures for Little Englanders" even beats that.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

I am ready, aye ready! Let foeman advance; | I can easily vanquish Six soldiers from France.

A reduction of one of the coloured pictures from "Little Englanders."

The Gimcrack Jingle Alphabet.—Drawn by INGLES RHODE, author and artist of "The Pickletons," which was one of the most successful books published last year. Eminent art critics are of opinion that the drawings in this book surpass even those of "The Pickletons."

T Thomas a Tattamus took two T's, To tie two tubs to two tall trees. | Tell me quickly, if you please, How many T's there are in these.

A B C for Baby Patriots.—By Mrs. ERNEST AMES. New edition now ready.

This alphabet is composed of amusing topical verses, ably illustrated by full-page coloured plates. These are as vivid in their colouring as they are the most humorous in conception, and the book bids fair to be the most successful gift book of modern times. The drawings are exceptionally clever, and the colouring a distinct novelty. The verses are also exceedingly smart.

A reduction in one printing of one of the coloured pictures from "A B C for Baby Patriots."

D is the Daring We show on the field, | Which makes every enemy Vanish or yield.

The Pickletons.—Told and drawn by INGLES RHODE. This exceedingly clever and amusingly-illustrated story consists of twenty-four pages of coloured illustrations, which are masterpieces of Mr. INGLES RHODE's art and humour.

A rriving at a seaport town They haunt the landing stages; | Until a captain, hoarse and brown, Their services engages.

London: DEAN & SON, Ltd., 160a, Fleet Street, E.C.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian Ales. . .

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.
DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.)
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W.
(On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

HOTELS DE LUXE.

CAIRO.

GHEZIREH PALACE

AND

SHEPHEARD'S HOTEL.

For Tariffs, full particulars, and to reserve accommodation, apply to

The International Sleeping Car Company,

14, COCKSPUR STREET, LONDON.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE

RED WHITE & BLUE

FRENCH COFFEE.

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

In making, use rather less quantity, it being so much stronger than ordinary Coffee.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Digitized by Google

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD.

Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET.

'War in the Transvaal!'

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD.

24, THROGMORTON STREET.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,

AND

COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

USEFUL CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

217, PICCADILLY, W. LONDON.

ALLEN & WRIGHT

26, POULTRY, E.C. LONDON.

MAKERS OF FINEST QUALITY (ONLY) BRIAR ROOT & MEERSCHAUM PIPES

Distinct in QUALITY, FINISH & STYLE.

No. 123 - 12/6.
2 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces. Short, light Pipes.

No. 98 - - 25/-.
4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto for indoor use.

No. 68 - 10/6.
2 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems.

ALL IN BEST LONDON-MADE MOROCCO CASES.

TRADE A & W MARK

No. 143 - 31/-.
6 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces (medium sized pipes, Army style).

HIGHEST CLASS GOODS MADE.

EVERY PIPE GUARANTEED.

No. 95 - - 29/-.
4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (large size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto for indoor use.

No. 108 - 15/6.
3 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems.

No. 94 - - 32/-.
4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (large size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF "A & W's SPECIALITIES IN FINE GOODS POST FREE.

A GOOD HONEST, STERLING ARTICLE.

AS MADE FOR H.M. THE QUEEN, AND REGULARLY SUPPLIED TO THE LEADING STEAMSHIP COMPANIES.

PALETHORPES'

ROYAL CAMBRIDGE

SAUSAGES.

Purity and Quality incontestable. Guaranteed made of Prime British-fed Pork at our Model Factory, splendidly equipped with our own Patent Machinery.

LARGEST MAKERS IN THE WORLD, AWARDED 10 GOLD MEDALS.

Of Grocers, Game Dealers, etc.

For name of nearest Agent write to—

PALETHORPES, Limited,

DUDLEY PORT, STAFFS.

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—Lancet, July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from Wine."—Medical Press, August, '99.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co., LTD.,

115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

Watch & Clock

MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, NEW BOND ST.

LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

WE are able this week to present to our readers four pictures closely connected with the disaster which befel General Gatacre's column. Three of them are of scenes at Queenstown, which was his base, while the fourth is of Stormberg Pass, through which the railway ascends after leaving Sterkstroom. All four are admirably illustrative of the very difficult nature of the country in which General Gatacre conducted his operation. The level region near Queenstown itself gives place to lofty mountains with rugged steeps and dangerous defiles.

Photo. Copyright. STORMBERG PASS. "Navy & Army."
Showing Bushman's Hoek, from which Our Troops Retired.

QUEENSTOWN, LOOKING TO THE SOUTH.
Showing the Imperial Camp.

THE MAIN STREET OF QUEENSTOWN.
Looking Towards Stormberg.

The little city of Queenstown was formed early in November into an advanced depôt of supplies, and when all was ready General Gatacre made it his headquarters. With one exception, our views were expressly taken for this paper under the care of our Special Correspondent. Queenstown itself lies in an extensive basin surrounded by the hills, and is scarcely capable of being easily placed in a state of defence. Indeed, it is situated, like Ladysmith and other South African towns, in a situation where a water supply can be secured without expense. The views of Queenstown were taken from the clock tower of the municipal buildings, and in one of them will be seen a conical hill known as Bowker's Kop, with a blunted summit, which is an excellent example of the type of kopjes frequently found in the district.

The second illustration shows the camp of the British troops on the south side of the town, with the native location, consisting of mud huts, wisely placed at some distance from the borough boundaries. Just to the right of the camp the troops will be seen digging shelter trenches for the safety of military stores.

The last picture gives a view in the direction of the Stormberg Range, with the table mountain called Hang Klip, nearly 7,000-ft. high, while in the view above we have Cathcart Street, the main thoroughfare of Queenstown, and the distant mountains towards Putter's Kraal. The railway from East London to Stormberg Junction runs on the north and east of the town at the foot of Bowker's Kop, and northward up the valley towards the Hang Klip. The first picture is of the Stormberg Pass, and shows a train slowly ascending towards the great mountain range. The point is on the steepest curve of the gradient along Bushman's Hoek, from which place it will be remembered General Gatacre retired to Sterkstroom after the disaster.

Photos. Copyright. VIEW FROM THE TOWN LOOKING NORTH. Ford.
With Hang Klip in the Distance.

Digitized by Google

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E. Lists Free.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

STRAIGHTFORWARD TRUTHS

No roundabout tale need be invented to .... prove the merits of the YOST Typewriter. A plain statement of its achievements is sufficient to prove that it is the popular Writing . . . Machine.

IT HAS BEEN AWARDED

TWENTY GOLD MEDALS, and other Honours, in the severest competition.

ENGLISH, CONTINENTAL, and COLONIAL GOVERNMENTS have adopted it, in some instances to the exclusion of other writing machines.

EMPERORS, KINGS, QUEENS . . . PRINCES, and REPUBLICAN RULERS use it in their daily work.

40,000 COMMERCIAL and PROFESSIONAL GENTLEMEN HAVE FOUND IT INDISPENSABLE TO THE RAPID DESPATCH OF BUSINESS.

Sent on Free Trial for Seven Days.

Catalogue Post Free

THE YOST TYPEWRITER CO., Ltd.,
50, Holborn Viaduct, London, E.C.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

9, Strand, W.C.

NO. 86 'STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.
18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.
Gold Crystal, £13 15s.
Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s
Silver Crystal, £5.
Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138
"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0
Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0
With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times" Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—I quite agree with you that it is a most difficult matter to know how best to dress for being photographed. It is necessary that your costume should be more or less in the prevailing fashion, and yet it should be able to stand the test of time, so that five or six years hence it may not have the frightful effect that so often strikes one on looking through books of photographs which were taken only just so long ago. Of course, the great thing is to aim at something artistic, which will make the photograph a picture that can never be ugly or ridiculous. So as an idea for your special photograph, which you say must be a good one as it is going to travel so far, I send you a sketch of a dress worn by a woman who has lately been sitting to an artist for her portrait. Here, you see, there is nothing that is opposed to the modes of the moment, and yet it is thoroughly picturesque and becoming. It is an evening dress made of cream lace, with the low bodice relieved by a narrow band of cherry-coloured ribbon velvet. The long cloak is of velvet, lined with ermine and trimmed with sable, whilst the collar is composed of soft masses of crêpe de chine, long ends of which fall from the neck. The large picture hat is of black velvet, trimmed with masses of feathers, as are so many this winter. The effect of the whole, dress, cloak, and hat, was as graceful and pretty as it well could be. So I recommend it to your notice, and if you tried something of the same description, I am sure you would be quite delighted with the result. Certainly there never was a time, at least in this century, when dress was more suitable for pictures than it is now, with the long draperies and the chiffons and laces which every well-turned-out woman decks herself withal. I saw at Princes' the other day a very striking dress of old rose panne, which was so gracefully made that it would have done very well for a picture. It was worn with a deep cape of very dark sable, and a toque to match, the latter being trimmed with white tulle and some white bird of Paradise feathers. It is indeed a pleasure to look at such dresses—they are so really beautiful. I could not find out who its wearer was. The only people of note who happened to be near me were Lady Ormonde and the Princess of Monaco, but I did hear that many other well-known people had left just a few minutes before I went in.

A "PICTURE" DRESS.

I have just seen some of the original pictures to be represented in the tableaux which Mrs. Robert Price is organising for the Wives' and Families' Fund, as I told you last week. They certainly ought to be a great success, especially as Mr. Alfred Parsons is taking so very much trouble about them, giving a great deal of his valuable time to the preparations, and being most particular about all the details, so that the pictures may be as perfect as possible. Amongst those who are going to take part are Mrs. Fred Hulton, Mrs. Avery, Mrs. Lambkin, Mrs. Dives, Mrs. Robert Price, Mrs. Priestley, the Misses Darling, Mrs. Marcet, Mrs. Symonds, Mrs. Piggott, Miss Janet Tooth, Miss Campbell, Miss Carson, Miss Linklater, Colonel Darling, Captain Symonds, R.N., Professor Lankester, Mr. Grantham, Mr. Forbes Lankester, Mr. Temple Franks, Mr. Dives, Mr. Orgill, Mr. Dunlop, Mr. Penton, Mr. Adrian Pollock, etc., whilst the pictures are to be "Faith, Hope, and Charity," "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "The Doctor," "The Queen's Maries," "Old Gold Cigarette," "Britannia's Bulwarks," "Nelson's First Voyage," "A Good Story," "First Words of Love," "Delicious Mazawattee Tea," "The Mistletoe Bough," and "Missing." Mr. Parsons has designed the programme, which will be extremely pretty, and a suitable selection of music and songs has been made to accompany the exhibition of each picture. I am glad to tell you that money has lately come in well for the Soldiers' Homes at Bisley, so that the Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society has been able to order the second home to be begun. It has been its great wish from motives of economy to proceed with the homes while the contractors' plant is on the spot. At Bath, too, the idea is taking root, and Mrs. Hawthorn has undertaken the organisation of a convalescent hospital to receive the sick men on their return from the front, whilst the society is renting a cottage to which the patients can be drafted when well enough to leave the hospital, though still wanting proper care and attention. This Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society now has more than 12,000 voluntary workers scattered throughout the United Kingdom, the only paid agents being the general secretary and his two assistants, who work at the head office at Piccadilly Mansions. The idea of the homes, which the society hopes to see started in every county in the kingdom, is entirely due to Princess Christian, who planned out the scheme in the spring of this year. Since then she has taken the deepest interest in the matter, and she and Princess Henry of Battenberg regularly attend every committee meeting called to consider the matter. Alice tells me that the Welsh Regiment gave a very successful ball at their mess at Ahmednagar in honour of the presentation of their new colours. Everything was so prettily arranged that it was quite a pleasure to be there, apart from the ordinary enjoyment of dancing. Cosy corners were arranged here and there; the grounds were beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns; the ball-room was decorated with draperies of red, white, and green muslins, trophies of bayonets, and scrolls bearing the names of the battles in which the regiment has distinguished itself; an archway was adorned with the old colours, and the new ones were displayed on a pyramid of drums, guarded by a colour-sergeant of the regiment. The supper tent was decorated in red, white, and green, whilst the little tables were prettily arranged with large white chrysanthemums. Everything went off in the gayest manner, the guests evidently enjoying themselves throughout the whole evening.

Yours affectionately, CONSTANCE.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY
AT THIS
AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;
£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo,
and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,
£2 2 0

IT IS
THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
} LONDON.

SMOKE

PIONEER

CIGARETTES

3D.

PER PACKET

Never Fails.
Established 25 YEARS.
Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.
Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.
Try it also for
Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

"To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull.'

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS
SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE
is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.
MADE OF ALL WOOL.
FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & CO., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

Naval and Military Tailors and Outfitters.

56, PALL MALL, (OPPOSITE MARLBOROUGH HOUSE) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO COMPLETE AFRICAN OUTFITS.

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

We Season the World.

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

The Five Noted Seasons of the World — SPRING, SUMMER, AUTUMN, WINTER AND

For Fish, Flesh, and Fowl of all kinds.

YORKSHIRE RELISH

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., & 2s. each. Beware of Substitutions. Sole Proprietors: GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & CO., LEEDS.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 30th, 1899.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

ted by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
ices, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 152

London & Paris Exchange, Ltd.
Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET.

"WAR IN THE TRANSVAAL!"

Several opportunities now occur to purchase good Shares at low prices. Full particulars contained in our Stock Exchange Report.

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

ADDRESS:
LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, Ltd.,
24, THROGMORTON STREET.

HÔTEL MÉTROPOLE, LONDON.

Splendid Cuisine and Wines.
Moderate Prices.

Service à la carte and Table d'Hote. No band.

Offers unequalled accommodation for real Comfort and Luxury in every detail. Available for non-residents.

GORDON HOTELS, LTD.

UNRIVALLED SITUATION IN LONDON.

THE
LANGHAM HOTEL,
PORTLAND PLACE & REGENT STREET, W.

SEPARATE APARTMENTS
FOR
Regimental, Hunt, & Private Dinners, etc.
MODERN IMPROVEMENTS. MODERATE TARIFF.

MARTELL'S

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—The Lancet, July, '99

THREE STAR

"A genuine old Brandy made from wine."—Medical Press, August, '99

BRANDY.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON.
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
FROM 10/6 PER DAY.
Telegraphic Addresses: For Management, "UNPARALLELED" For Visitors, "ERMINITES."

Digitized by Google

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

'Flor de Dindigul' Cigars

SAMPLES
5 for 1/-
12 Stamps

3D EACH

6
GOLD MEDALS

Bewlay & Co. LIMITED. 49 STRAND & 143 CHEAPSIDE, & of all respectable Tobacconists

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY

AT THIS

AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;

£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo,

and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON

For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,

£2 2 0

IT IS THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD., 39, Charing Cross Road, W.C. 25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C. Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C. } LONDON.
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS
SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette.")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No 152. Saturday, December 30th, 1899.

The ART of . .

Graceful Horse Riding

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075

MARCH, 1899.

3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

First-Class Certificates.

HOME AND FOREIGN

CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES.

N.C.O.'s and MEN, at home or abroad, can be prepared by post for the half-yearly Exams. Send for particulars of classes now forming for March Exam., 1900.—RANDALL J. FOX (Ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Children of the Ghetto."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message rom Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8.30 p.m. "The Degenerates."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
OPERA COMIQUE, W.C.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Absented-Minded Beggar."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Lady of Ostend."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha." At 2 p.m., "Alice in Wonderland."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. Puss in Boots."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Cinderella."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7,30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Aladdin."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "La Poupee."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Two Hussars."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Greek Slave."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Jack of Hearts."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river afford opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London"

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP

This is how he looked when he tried a substitute for Williams' Soap, which his dealer urged upon him.

This is his expression when he had again procured the "Old Reliable" Williams' Shaving Soap.

Just compare Williams' Soap with any other. See the BIG, THICK, CREAMY LATHER. Notice how long it remains moist on you face. How thoroughly it softens the beard. How easily and smoothly your razor cuts. What a soothed, refreshed, velvety feeling your face has after shaving.

Now—take almost any other soap. Note the thin, frothy lather. See how quickly it dries. How your razor "pulls." How your face smarts and itches. How dry the skin feels. Then you will appreciate the force of the illustration above, and will understand why ninety-nine men out of every hundred insist upon Williams' Shaving Soap.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAPS are used by all first-class Hair-dressers.

Sold by Chemists, Hair-dressers and Perfumers all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING STICKS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' LUXURY SHAVING TABLETS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' AMERICAN SHAVING TABLETS, 6d.
WILLIAMS' "JERSEY CREAM" TOILET SOAP, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp by addressing—

The J. B. WILLIAMS' CO., 64 Gt. Russell St., LONDON, W. C., or 161 Clarence St., SYDNEY. Chief Offices and Laboratories—GLASTONBURY, CONN., U. S. A.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL HOLLOWAY.

Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.

The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 2,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £10,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED.

L. H. GLENTON-KERR, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.

£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.

Bankers, Messrs. Drummond.

ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

WEST LONDON HOSPITAL, HAMMERSMITH ROAD, W. (101 beds.)

Patron: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President: THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, K.G.
Treasurer: THE LORD ROTHSCHILD.

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED for opening new wards for 80 additional beds.

R. J. GILBERT, Secretary-Superintendent.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN [And CHILDREN, MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.

Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.

W. GUNTRIP KING, Secretary.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS

and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION, BROMPTON.

The Hospital contains 321 Beds, and in 1897 received 1,681 In-patients. 13,098 Out-patients were also treated. The yearly requirements of the Hospital cannot be estimated at less than £25,000 a year. Further, it has been decided upon the unanimous and urgent advice of the Medical Staff to establish a

"COUNTRY BRANCH AND CONVALESCENT HOME,"

and it is estimated that £20,000 will be needed to inaugurate this new departure.

The Charity being Unendowed, is dependent on Donations, Annual Subscriptions, and Legacies, Contributions are therefore earnestly solicited in aid of both objects.

Bankers:
Messrs. WILLIAMS, DEACON, & MANCHESTER & SALFORD BANK
20, Birchin Lane, London
WILLIAM H. THEOBALD, Secretary

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.

writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.

"I have now prescribed them for the "last 8 years in my hospitals and private "practice, and find them of great benefit. "I certainly and most strongly "recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

TO LET.

BERKS.—Well Furnished HOUSE, for the Winter months. Three reception, five best bed and dressing rooms, four bedrooms on second floor, large kitchen, pantry, etc.; good garden and greenhouse, coach-house, and stabling for three horses. Two miles from station, near telegraph; 30 miles from London; good train service. 10 guineas a week.

Address "M. A.," 20, Tavistock Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

ENCORE RAZOR

SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co.,
Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,
who will supply through nearest Agents.

Country Life Illustrated,

VOL. V.

Printed on Art Paper.

Cloth, Gilt Edges, 21s. ea.; or Half-Morocco, 25s. ea.

Vols. 1, 2, 3, & 4 (Nos. 1 to 104) are out of print.

OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, W.C.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: The Right Hon. Field-Marshal Lord Roberts, V.C., K.P., etc., Commander-in-Chief in South Africa	385
The Imperial Service Troops. The Kashmir Army. (Illustrated) ...	386
Per Mare, Per Terram. A Pictorial Record by Many Hands. (Illustrated)	387
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	389
Editorial Notices	390
The Navy and Army Diary	390
Some Ghost Tales of the Sea (Illustrated)	391
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	392
Food for the Boers	392
In Ladysmith. (Illustrated)	393
With Kekewich and Rhodes at Kimberley. (Illustrated)	395
On the Tugela. Some of Buller's Scouts. (Illustrated)	396
The Second Boer War. Reinforcements for Methuen. (Illustrated)	398
With Gatacre's Column. (Illustrated)	400
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	401
Omnibus War Horses	402
Real Ghosts in the Army. (Illustrated)	403
The Story of the War	404
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	404
Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories. Waltham Abbey.—II. (Illustrated)	405
Durban and the War. (Illustrated) ...	407

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

SHIPS IN RESERVE, AND THOSE BEING BUILT.

SHIPS NOT IN COMMISSION.

Achilles, cr.	Portsmouth
Active, cr.	Portsmouth
Æolus, cr.	Devonport
Agamemnon, B.	Devonport
Ajax, B.	Chatham
Albatross, t.b.d.	Chatham
Amphion, cr.	Chatham
Amphitrite, cr.	Chatham
Andromache, cr.	Chatham
Anson, B.	Portsmouth
Apollo, cr.	Chatham
Archer, cr.	Chatham
Argonaut, cr.	Chatham
Ariadne, cr.	Chatham
Audacious, B.	Chatham
Avon, t.b.d.	Chatham
Basilisk, sloop	Sheerness
Belleisle, c.d.s.	Devonport
Bellerophon, B.	Devonport
Bittern, t.b.d.	Chatham
Blake, cr.	Devonport
Blanche, cr.	Devonport
Blenheim, cr.	Chatham
Blonde, cr.	Devonport
Boadicea, cr.	Portsmouth
Bramble, g.b.	Devonport
Brilliant, cr.	Chatham
Bullfinch, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Calypso, cr.	Devonport
Camperdown, B.	Portsmouth
Chamois, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Champion, cr.	Chatham
Charger, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Charybdis, cr.	Devonport
Cheerful, t.b.d.	Chatham
Cleopatra, cr.	Devonport
Condor, sloop	Sheerness
Conflict, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Contest, t.b.d.	Chatham
Coquette, t.b.d.	Chatham
Cordelia, cr.	Portsmouth
Cossack, cr.	Chatham
Cyclops, c.d.s.	Sheerness
Cynthia, t.b.d.	Chatham
Daring, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Dasher, t.b.d.	Chatham
Decoy, t.b.d.	Devonport
Desperate, t.b.d.	Chatham
Diana, cr	Chatham
Dreadnought, B.	Chatham
Edgar, cr.	Devonport
Fairy, t.b.d.	Devonport
Formidable, B.	Portsmouth
Forth, cr.	Devonport
Fox, cr.	Portsmouth
Gibraltar, cr.	Portsmouth
Gipsy, t.b.d.	Devonport
Gladiator, cr.	Portsmouth
Glatton, c.d.s.	Portsmouth
Goliath, B.	Chatham
Gorgon, c.d.s.	Devonport
Grafton, cr.	Chatham
Grasshopper, t.g.b.	Chatham
Hardy, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Hasty, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Havock, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Hawke, cr.	Chatham
Hecate, c.d.s.	Devonport
Hercules, B.	Portsmouth
Highflyer, cr.	Devonport
Hornet, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Hunter, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Hussar, t.g.b.	Devonport
Hyacinth, cr.	Devonport
Hydra, c.d.s.	Sheerness
Immortalité, cr.	Sheerness
Imperieuse, cr.	Portsmouth
Implacable, B.	Devonport
Inflexible, B.	Portsmouth
Intrepid, cr.	Portsmouth
Invincible, B.	Portsmouth
Iris, cr.	Portsmouth
Iron Duke, B.	Portsmouth
Latona, cr.	Portsmouth
Leopard, t.b.d.	Devonport
Leven, t.b.d.	Devonport
Locust, t.b.d.	Devonport
Mallard, t.b.d.	Chatham
Mercury, cr.	Portsmouth
Mersey, cr.	Chatham
Naiad, cr.	Portsmouth
Narcissus, cr.	Portsmouth
Nelson, cr.	Portsmouth
Neptune, B.	Portsmouth
Niger, t.g.b.	Chatham
Nightingale, g.b.	Chatham
Nymphe, sloop	Portsmouth
Ocean, B.	Devonport
Opossum, t.b.d.	Devonport
Osprey, t.b.d.	Devonport
Otter, t.b.d.	Devonport
Pallas, cr.	Portsmouth
Pelican, sloop	Devonport
Perseus, cr.	Sheerness
Phœbe, cr.	Devonport
Pique, cr.	Devonport
Prometheus, cr.	Sheerness
Pyramus, cr.	Chatham
Rainbow, cr.	Devonport
Raleigh, cr.	Portsmouth
Ranger, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Rapid, cr.	Devonport
Rattlesnake, t.g.b.	Portsmouth
Redbreast, g.b.	Haulbowline
Retribution, cr.	Devonport
Robin, g.b.	Chatham
Rosario, sloop	Sheerness
Salmon, t.b.d.	Chatham
Sappho, cr.	Chatham
Satellite, cr.	Sheerness
Scylla, cr.	Chatham
Sharpshooter, t.g.b.	Devonport
Sirius, cr.	Devonport
Skate, t.b.d.	Devonport
Skipjack, t.g.b.	Chatham
Snapper, t.b.d.	Chatham
Spartan, cr.	Devonport
Spartiate, cr.	Pembroke D.
Speedwell, t.g.b.	Devonport
Speedy, t.g.b.	Sheerness
Spider, t.g.b.	Devonport
Spiteful, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Spitfire, t.b.d.	Chatham
Sultan, B.	Portsmouth
Sunfish, t.b.d.	Devonport
Superb, B.	Chatham
Surly, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Swiftsure, B.	Portsmouth
Swordfish, t.b.d.	Chatham
Sybille, cr.	Portsmouth
Sylvia, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Talbot, cr.	Devonport
Teazer, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Temeraire, B.	Devonport
Terpsichore, cr.	Chatham
Thames, cr.	Devonport
Thistle, g.b.	Devonport
Triumph, B.	Devonport
Vindictive, cr.	Chatham
Volage, cr.	Devonport
Vulture, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Warrior, cr.	Portsmouth
Wild Swan, sloop	Devonport
Wizard, t.b.d.	Portsmouth
Zebra, t.b.d.	Chatham

SHIPS BUILDING.

Aboukir, cr.	Glasgow
Albemarle, B.	Chatham
Albion, B.	Blackwall
Arab, t.b.d.	Clydebank
Bacchante, cr.	Glasgow
Bedford, cr.	Glasgow
Brazen, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Britomart, g.b.	Liverpool
Bulwark, B.	Devonport
Cornwallis, B.	Blackwall
Cressy, cr.	Glasgow
Dove, t.b.d.	Hull
Drake, cr.	Pembroke
Duncan, B.	Blackwall
Electra, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Espiegle, sloop	Sheerness
Essex, cr.	Pembroke
Euryalus, cr.	Barrow
Exmouth, B.	Birkenhead
Express, t.b.d.	Birkenhead
Falcon, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Fantome, sloop	Sheerness
Fervent, t.b.d.	Paisley
Glory, B.	Birkenhead
Good Hope, cr.	Glasgow
Greyhound, t.b.d.	Newcastle
Hogue, cr.	Barrow
Irresistible, B.	Chatham
Kent, cr.	Portsmouth
Kestrel, t.b.d.	Glasgow
King Alfred, cr.	Barrow
Lee, t.b.d.	Sunderland
Leviathan, B.	Glasgow
Lively, t.b.d.	Birkenhead
London, B.	Portsmouth
Monmouth, cr.	Glasgow
Montagu, B.	Devonport
Mutine, sloop	Birkenhead
Myrmidon, t.b.d.	Jarrow
Orwell, t.b.d.	Birkenhead
Ostrich, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Pandora, cr.	Portsmouth
Petrel, t.b.d.	Jarrow
Pioneer, cr.	Chatham
Racehorse, t.b.d.	Newcastle
Recruit, t.b.d.	Glasgow
Rinaldo, cr.	Birkenhead
Roebuck, t.b.d.	Newcastle
Russell, B.	Jarrow
Shearwater, sloop	Sheerness
Sprightly, t.b.d.	Birkenhead
Stag, t.b.d.	Chiswick
Success, t.b.d.	Sunderland
Sutlej, cr.	Glasgow
Syren, t.b.d.	Jarrow
Venerable, B.	Chatham
Vengeance, B.	Barrow
Vestal, sloop	Sheerness
Viper, t.b.d.	Newcastle
Vixen, t.b.d.	Barrow
Zephyr, t.b.d.	Paisley
Royal Yacht	Pembroke
Third-class Cruiser No. 1	Portsmouth
,, ,, No. 2	Chatham
,, ,, No. 3	Devonport

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. cr. Cruiser.
t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat.

 The Disposition of our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

THE NAVY AND ARMY.—Numerous illustrations have appeared in NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of nearly all the ships in Her Majesty's Fleet, and of the regiments in either the Home, Indian, or Colonial Armies. Lists can be obtained on application.

Digitized by Google

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL

Is invaluable for Touching up all articles of furniture which have become dingy with age.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL.

NON-POISONOUS

Messrs. ASPINALL'S ENAMEL, LTD., will be pleased to send, free on application, a card showing over 100 Colours in which their Enamel is made, with full particulars of their other Specialities.

Works:—NEW CROSS, LONDON.

PARIS DEPOT: 24, Rue Alibert.

U.S. DEPOT: 98, Beekman Street, NEW YORK.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.

Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian Ales.

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

The International Sleeping Car Co.

TRAINS DE LUXE.

CALAIS TO NICE, MONTE CARLO, AND SAN REMO. Every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and SUNDAY.

CALAIS TO ROME. Every Tuesday and Thursday. (TUESDAYS ONLY TILL JAN. 11.)

And Three other Daily Services to the SOUTH.

Full and detailed information sent gratis, and all Tickets supplied at the Company's Chief London Offices, 14, COCKSPUR STREET, S.W.

The Official Guide and Time Book of the Company, "THE CONTINENTAL TRAVELLER," sent post free on application.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & CO., LTD.,

115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

Watch & Clock MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, NEW BOND ST.

LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE

RED WHITE & BLUE

FRENCH COFFEE.

DELICIOUS FOR BREAKFAST & AFTER DINNER.

In making, use rather less quantity, it being so much stronger than ordinary Coffee.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 2ɪd. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries, PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING OF OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passengers Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE, AND COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered.
Children's		1s. 3d.
Ladies'		2s. 3d
Gents'		3s. 3d.
Hemstitched.
Ladies'		2s. 9d.
Gents'		3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d. per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

9, Strand, W.C.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138.

"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.

OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

NO. 86 'STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.

18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.

Gold Crystal, £13 15s.

Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s

Silver Crystal, £5.

Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times" Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

THE river Modder is likely always to be remembered in the annals of the British Army in association with the repulse of Lord Methuen's column beyond it on December 11. The Black Watch will not forget it. But that reverse followed on a victory of notable character on November 28. The battle of the Modder River was, in its way, unique. It was a gunner's battle, and the most sanguinary and fiercely-contested engagement that had so far marked Lord Methuen's march. The Guards, on that occasion, lost terribly as they advanced on the right under a murderous fire. They scarcely saw the enemy, who was concealed in his trenches, but the attack was made in brilliant style, and General Pole-Carew was able to throw a force across the river. The Naval Brigade distinguished itself particularly on that day, by scaling a kopje on which the enemy was strongly posted, and driving him off in gallant fashion. One correspondent said, truly, that a finer exhibition of splendid bravery could not have been witnessed. Our picture shows a train passing over the Modder Bridge, and the pont or ferry which is near. Another illustration is of the Limpopo or Crocodile River, where some of Colonel Plumer's men are seen crossing by a ferry. We have yet to hear the full story of that gallant officer's achievement on the Rhodesian border, but we may be quite sure that it has been almost as full of incident and as fertile in resource as Colonel Baden-Powell's heroic stand at Mafeking. Colonel Plumer had confided to him a distant outpost of our dominion, where it was necessary to hold a strong position on the river, and very well has he accomplished his task, refusing to be bound to one place, but moving to and fro as the necessity arose or the opportunity offered for disconcerting the enemy.

THE BRIDGE OVER THE MODDER RIVER.
The Scene of Lord Methuen's Victory of November 28.

THE CAMP AT DUNDEE.
Showing Impati Mountain and the Place where General Symons Fell.

The third picture is more interesting still. It takes us back to the first action of the war, showing the camp at Dundee, with Impati Mountain in the background, and it illustrates the place where gallant Sir William Symons was mortally wounded. We all know how that notable action was fought—how the Boer general, Lucas Meyer, precipitated the attack too soon, before his colleague Erasmus was ready to assault. But if Sir William Symons had hesitated the day would have gone badly for us, and the subsequent course of the campaign would have been different. That attack paralysed the Boer advance, enabled troops to reach Ladysmith unimpeded, and made possible the withdrawal of the column under General Yule. Sir William Symons, therefore, in falling on the field of battle, not only covered himself with the honour of the brave soldier, but rendered a real service to his country. As will be seen, the district round Dundee is singularly adapted to the tactics of the Boers, and lent itself in no degree to the operations of an outnumbered force like that which he commanded.

Excellent as was the service rendered by the men who fought at Talana Hill, it is now clear that they fought in defence of a position which would probably never have been occupied if we had rightly apprehended the strength of the Boer attack on Natal.

Photos. Copyright. A FERRY ACROSS THE LIMPOPO. "Navy & Army."
Illustrating the Passage of a Party of Colonel Plumer's Men.

Digitized by Google

STRAIGHTFORWARD TRUTHS

No roundabout tale need be invented to .... prove the merits of the YOST Typewriter. A plain statement of its achievements is sufficient to prove that it is the popular Writing ... Machine.

IT HAS BEEN AWARDED

TWENTY GOLD MEDALS, and other Honours, in the severest competition.

ENGLISH, CONTINENTAL, and COLONIAL GOVERNMENTS have adopted it, in some instances to the exclusion of other writing machines.

EMPERORS, KINGS, QUEENS ... PRINCES, and REPUBLICAN RULERS use it in their daily work.

40,000 COMMERCIAL and PROFESSIONAL GENTLEMEN HAVE FOUND IT INDISPENSABLE TO THE RAPID DESPATCH OF BUSINESS.

Sent on Free Trial for Seven Days.

Catalogue Post Free

THE YOST TYPEWRITER CO., Ltd.,
50, Holborn Viaduct, London, E.C.

As good as a Garment.

When you begin to feel the effects of the cold, Bovril is as good as an extra wrap.

The penetrating dampness of the present season is sure to find out the weak places in our armour of health, leaving the unwary with that depressing chilly sensation which forebodes a severe cold, or, worse still, an attack of

INFLUENZA.

The most reliable preventive is an occasional cup of hot Bovril, which sets up a generous glow of body heat, quickening the sluggish circulation and bracing up the nervous system. Health, Vitality, Warmth—these are our natural safeguards—Bovril ensures their permanence.

FOR INFLUENZA AND COLDS.

THE "OSMAN"
Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES, Limited,
MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.
And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

A BOOKLET OF AMUSING AND ATTRACTIVE

NURSERY JINGLES,

Beautifully Printed in Colours,
SENT FREE on application if this paper is mentioned.
A post-card will do.

FRAME FOOD CO., Ltd., Battersea, LONDON.

The New Material for Flannels, Surgical Dressing, Horse Clothing, &c. Does not get damp with perspiration and give cold.

"PETANELLE" WOOL.

A derivative of Peat. A natural Antiseptic and Deodorant.

THE HOSPITAL says: "The great advantage this peat-fibre preparation, 'Petanelle' possesses is its Power of Deodorizing; this speaks for itself. There is still a long list of inherent virtues to be noticed in regard to it; (1) its absorbing power is extraordinarily high; it is stated that it absorbs gradually and continuously, liquid equal to fourteen times its own weight, and gases equal to at least nine times its own volume. (2) It is aseptic and antiseptic, undergoing no change in itself in any condition or circumstance, and effectually killing all microbes when brought into contact with them. (3) Absorbed liquids are readily diffused and evaporated by its agency."

THE LANCET says: "Its absorbent power is great; we found that one specimen took up more than twelve times its own weight of water. It seems to possess the power of retarding the growth of micro-organisms, and this, of course, enhances its value."

Professor JAMES BAYNE'S Analysis of "PETANELLE" Disinfecting Powder. CHEMICAL LABORATORY, CAMDEN TOWN, August 14th, 1899.

I hereby certify that I have analysed a sample of the "PETANELLE" DISINFECTING POWDER. I find it consists of Peat Powder, mixed with solid and liquid Antiseptics and Disinfectants, and is scented with pine and other essential oils. I have submitted the powder to the most severe tests, and the results of my experiments are in every respect highly favourable. The powder possesses both Antiseptic and Disinfecting properties in a marked degree, and its action as a deodorizer is very rapid and lasting. Unlike many deodorizers, it does not, after destroying one odour leave another unpleasant one in its place; on the contrary the odour of the essential oils which remains, is decidedly pleasant and refreshing.

The powder will, undoubtedly, be found of the greatest service for mixing with the earth in dry closets, for sprinkling over manure heaps, and for general use in stables and kennels; in fact, wherever a quick and reliable deodorizer is required, as no matter how intolerable the stench may be, it is most effectually destroyed in a few minutes.

(Signed) JAMES BAYNE, F.C.S., Professor of Chemistry in the Royal Veterinary College.

PATE, BURKE & Co., 6, WOOL EXCHANGE, BASINGHALL ST., LONDON, E.C.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—It has been a sad Christmas for many, and a season of great anxiety to many more, so everyone is rejoiced that it has come and gone, and with it all the necessity for putting on an air of gaiety that few can feel. Now we can once more settle down to the routine of life, trusting that the New Year may have happier times in store for us. The last thing I did before I left town was to go down to the West India Docks to see the presentation of the Union Jack to the American hospital ship "Maine." The day before all London had been enveloped in a thick fog, and it was much feared that the function would be but a melancholy affair after all. But just at the right moment the sun began to shine, and to light up the somewhat dismal surroundings of the docks, so that there was really no cause for complaint. I even ventured to remark to an American that "it was a nice day." I regretted it directly afterwards though, as he answered "Is this what you call a nice day in England?" And I felt sorry that I had given away my country's climate in that manner.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Louise, accompanied by Captain McNeill, came down in a special train, and were received and entertained at lunch in the saloon cabin by the ladies of the executive committee. The rest of the guests travelled in a second special train an hour or two later, and arrived just in time to witness the event of the day.

It was a pretty sight. There, on the upper deck, stood the Royal party, with their guard of honour of the Church Lads' Brigade, the band of the Scots Guards, Lady Randolph Churchill, Mrs. Ronalds, Mrs. Blow, and the other ladies who have worked so hard to collect the money and to bring the task of fitting out the "Maine" to a satisfactory conclusion. There, also, were Sir Arthur Sullivan, Lord Charles Beresford, and other notables. The Duke of Connaught, in a charming speech, said he presented the Union Jack in the name of Her Majesty, "in token of her recognition of the generosity and the charity American ladies and gentlemen have shown towards soldiers of their own kin, and speaking their own language, who are now fighting gallantly in South Africa." Lady Randolph Churchill replied in the name of the committee, the Bishop of Islington blessed the flag, and it was run up to the mainmast, where it was speedily unfurled to the cheers of all present and the strains of "Rule Britannia." The Stars and Stripes were then hoisted at the mizzen, and the Red Cross flag at the fore. The ceremony was now over, and the Royal party took their departure, whilst everyone else stayed to inspect the ship, which seems to be fitted up as perfectly as such a ship can be. There are five wards, with 218 beds, and there are spare beds and spare room for many more if needed. They are arranged with electric fans to regulate the temperature, and with a steam stove for cooking odds and ends, if needed, in the night, whilst the laundry is fitted up with electric and steam arrangements, so that clothes can be washed, dried, and disinfected as speedily as possible.

The wards looked very bright and airy with their cots, everything being painted white and pale green. All are alike, there being no difference between that for the officers and those for the men, except that the former are smaller. It made one rather sad, as you may imagine, seeing all these preparations, and yet there was a cheerful side when one remembered that we shall not now lose men unnecessarily from want of such ventilation and other special comforts as they will have on board the new hospital ships, but which were impossible in the ordinary troop-ships.

An entire dress of rose-pink panne would at first hearing sound a little outré, especially when worn by a lady of mature age, but a very striking figure at Prince's Restaurant on Sunday night was an elderly lady, whose coiffure was of the whitest, and whose gown was of rose-pink panne, with sleeves of white net and silver paillettes; her ornaments were diamonds and rose-pink ostrich tips. The Dumb Friends' League held a very successful ball and supper at Princes' a few evenings ago, and judging from all accounts the fund must have benefited largely in consequence.

A TUCKED FELT HAT.

The hat sketch I send you this week must speak for itself, as I have so little space left. These picture hats are still very fashionable, and they are very attractive, in contrast with the toques that are also seen on all sides. This hat is made of tucked felt in a pretty fawn colour, black feathers being arranged on the crown and a white plume under the brim, being fastened in its place by a bunch of chrysanthemums.

Yours affectionately, Constance.

 Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS.

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

Digitized by Google

Printed by Hudson & Kearns, 83—87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, South... Street, London, W.C.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 6th, 1900.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

ed by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
es, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d
Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 153.

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.
Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,
217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.).

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
Collier's
BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.
COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE
A NATURAL TONIC.
"THE ORIGINAL ST. RAPHAEL TONIC WINE."

This Wine is prepared according to the recipes of Professors Pasteur and Bouchardat.
This Wine is the ONLY ONE USED in the Paris Hospitals for Anæmia, Debility, Convalescents, Bronchial Affections; also for Young Girls and Children.
ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE is most efficacious as a Tonic, and must not be confounded with Coca, Kola, or Quin Quina preparations, which act on the nervous system without any nourishing properties.
To Ladies Nursing is much more beneficial than Stout.

To avoid spurious imitations each bottle bears on the neck the address of the SOLE AGENTS:
E. GALLAIS & CO. (Limited),
90, PICCADILLY, W.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.
Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.
Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.
BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.
Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.
MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London E.C.

Digitized by Google

HUNTING NOVELTY.

The 'Cloutsham' Stock

(Regd.)

A COMPLETE STOCK AND CRAVAT IN ONE, WITH NO LOOSE PARTS FOR WASHING.

Price 4/6 Post Free.

Coloured Cravats for Shooting, Golf, etc., made to Order only.

CELLULOID STIFFENER, 6d. extra.

CRAVAT OPEN FOR WASHING.

If Coloured, or Figured White Cravats are required, send for Patterns. For Plain White Taffeta "Cloutshams," send neck size and remittance.

Jaeger

PURE WOOL

Sporting Tailors,

42, CONDUIT ST., W

Telegrams: "HIGHMOST, LONDON."

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No 153. Saturday, January 6th, 1900.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),

Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with

Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,

PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS FOR MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE, WOOLWICH, SANDHURST, AND ALL MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS; also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:

MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899.

		Marks.
*FIRST UNIVERSITY.—	A. E. M. Ward	1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

		Marks.
*FIRST ARTILLERY.—	C. H. Clark ... ... (After a few months' reading.)	1792
*20th Infantry.—	L. J. Le Fleming	1582
35th "	A. Moore	1485
38th "	J. C. Hooper	1463
*72nd "	W. B. Mitford	1310
*76th "	A. J. M. Gordon	1280

*1st trial direct.

March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.

N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.

Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, S.W.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
	MARCH, 1899.
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

First-Class Certificates.

HOME AND FOREIGN
CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES.

N.C.O.'s and MEN, at home or abroad, can be prepared by post for the half-yearly Exams. Send for particulars of classes now forming for March Exam., 1900.—RANDALL J. FOX (Ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

FEE 60 GUINEAS
SCHOOL SHIP "CONWAY"
LIVERPOOL.
FOR TRAINING YOUNG GENTLEMEN TO BECOME OFFICERS IN MERCHANT STEAMERS.
FOR PROSPECTUS APPLY TO THE CAPT., A.T. MILLER, R.N.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Drink."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Absented-Minded Beggar."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "Jane."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha." At 2 p.m., "Alice in Wonderland."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. Puss in Boots."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Cinderella."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Aladdin."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "A Greek Slave."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Man to Man."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Gaiety Girl."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Jack of Hearts."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH and MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London"

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK,

SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

Don't Cough - use
They at once check the Cough and remove the cause.
The Unrivalled
One Lozenge alone relieves.
Sold everywhere, Tins 13½d. each.
Keating's Lozenges

Goddard's Plate Powder

Admitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro-Plate.

In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

SIX GOLD MEDALS.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

JEWSBURY & BROWN'S

ORIENTAL TOOTH PASTE.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:
The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

THE "OSMAN"

Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES, Limited,

MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

Red White & Blue

IN MAKING, USE LESS QUANTITY, IT BEING SO MUCH STRONGER THAN ORDINARY COFFEE

SOLD EVERY WHERE!

Coffee=Delicious for Breakfast & after Dinner.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: The "Handy Man" ...	409
Left for the Mediterranean. (Illustrated)	410
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	411
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	413
Editorial Notices	414
The Navy and Army Diary	414
Heroes We Mourn	414
Coercion and the Volunteers. (Illus.)...	415
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	416
The Natal Railways and the War. (Illustrated)	417
From Continent to Continent. The Australasian Contribution to the Imperial Idea. (Illustrated) ...	418
A Tribute to Empire. The Heroes We Mourn. (Illustrated)	420
Citizen Soldiers for South Africa. The Volunteer Contingents for the Front. (Illustrated)	421
The Wounded from the Front and Reinforcements. (Illustrated) ...	423
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	425
The Bombardment of Saltport. (Illustrated)	426
The Story of the War	428
Disposition of Troops in South Africa...	428
Cricketing Soldiers. Some Notable Men of the Season. (Illustrated)...	429
Our Colonial Forces: New Zealand.—IX. (Illustrated)	431

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Royal Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

First Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY ON FOREIGN SERVICE.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. h.d.s. Harbour Defence Ship. d.v. Despatch Vessel. y. Yacht. sur.v. Surveying Vessel. d.s. Depot-ship. r.g.b. River Gun-boat. t.d.s. Torpedo Depot-ship.

Abyssinia, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Alacrity, d.v.	Com. A. H. Smith-Dorrien	China
Alert, sloop	Com. H. Savile	North America
Algerine, sloop	Com. E. J. W. Slade	China
Andromeda, cr.	Capt. J. L. Burr, C.M.G.	Mediterranean
Ardent, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. H. Richardson	Mediterranean
Astræa, cr.	Capt. A. W. Paget	Mediterranean
Assaye, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. O. U. Coates	East Indies
Aurora, cr.	Capt. E. H. Bayly	China
Banshee, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. L. Watts-Jones	Mediterranean
Barfleur, B.	Capt. J. S. Warrender (Rear-Admiral J. A. T. Bruce)	China
Barham, cr.	Com. H. L. Tottenham	Mediterranean
Barracouta, cr.	Com. R. H. Peirse	C. of Good Hope
Barrosa, cr.	Com. W. F. Tunnard	C. of Good Hope
Beagle, sloop	Com. Hon. H. A. S. Stanhope	S. E. C. of America
Bonaventure, cr.	Ct. R. A. J. Montgomerie, C.B.	China
Boomerang, t.g.b.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Boxer, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. J. Twiselton-Wykeham-Fiennes	Mediterranean
Brisk, cr.	Com. R. B. S. Wrey	China
Bruizer, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. L. Hulton	Mediterranean
Buzzard, sloop	Com. L. F. G. Tippinge	North America
Cæsar, B.	Capt. E. H. Gamble	Mediterranean
Canopus, B.	Capt. W. H. Fawkes	Mediterranean
Centurion, B.	Capt. J. R. Jellicoe (Vice-Adml. Sir E. H. Seymour, K.C.B.).	China
Cockatrice, g.b.	Com. H. N. Rolfe	Danube
Columbine, y.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Williamson	North America
Comus, cr.	Capt. G. A. Giffard	North America
Crescent, cr.	Capt. C. J. G. Sawle (Vice-Adl. Sir F. G. D. Bedford, K.C.B.).	North America
Cruiser, sloop	Com. L. G. Tufnell	Mediterranean
Daphne, sloop	Com. C. W. Winnington-Ingram.	China
Dart, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. Parry	Australia
Devastation, B.	Capt. F. S. Inglefield	Gibraltar
Dido, cr.	Capt. G. Neville	Mediterranean
Doris, cr.	Ct. R. C. Prothero (Rear-Adml. Sir R. H. Harris, K.C.M.G.).	C. of Good Hope
Dragon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Lambert	Mediterranean
Dryad, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. Dineley	Mediterranean
Dwarf, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. F. Shakespear.	C. of Good Hope
Earnest, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Baird	Mediterranean
Eclipse, cr.	Capt. P. W. Bush (Rear-Admiral H. D. Bosanquet).	East Indies
Egeria, sur.v.	Com. M. H. Smyth	Pacific
Empress of India B	Capt. H. H. Dyke	Mediterranean
Endymion, cr.	Capt. G. A. Callaghan	China
Esk, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. Chadwick.	China
Fame, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. J. B. Keyes	China
Fearless, cr.	Com. H. R. P. Floyd	C. of Good Hope
Flora, cr.	Commodore R. L. Groome	S. E. C. of America
Foam, t.b.d.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Forte, cr.	Capt. E. P. Jones	C. of Good Hope
Griffon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. Hon. H. G. Brand	Mediterranean
Halcyon, t.g.b.	Com. S. W. A. H. Gray	Mediterranean
Handy, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. A. Moreton	China
Harrier, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. P. Walter	Mediterranean
Hart, t.b.d.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Hazard, t.g.b.	Com. P. V. Lewes, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Hebe, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Taylor.	Mediterranean
Herald, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. Harvey	River Zambesi
Hermes, cr.	Capt. F. H. Henderson	North America
Hermione, cr.	Capt. R. S. D. Cumming	China
Hibernia, d.s.	Com. W. Ricketts (Rear-Adml. R. M. Lloyd, C.B.).	Malta Reserves
Highflyer, cr.	Capt. F. E. E. Brock	East Indies (to relieve Eclipse)
Hood, B.	Capt. A. C. Corry.	Mediterranean
Hotspur, h.d.s.	Com. C. S. Elliot.	Bermuda
Humber, store-ship	Com. H. J. Davison	China
Icarus, sloop	Com. G. F. S. Knowling	Pacific
Illustrious, B.	Capt. Sir R. Poore, Bart.	Mediterranean
Imogene, d.v.	Com. E. J. Bain	Mediterranean
Indefatigable, cr.	Capt. F. L. Campbell	North America
Iphigenia, cr.	Capt. H. N. Dudding	China
Isis, cr.	Capt. G. M. Henderson	Mediterranean
Karrakatta, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Harbord.	Australia
Katoomba, cr.	Capt. H. L. F. Royle, D.S.O.	Sydney Reserves
Lapwing, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Lambert	East Indies
Leander, cr.	Capt. F. F. Fegen	Pacific
Liffey, d.s.	Staff-Com. P. H. Wright	Coquimbo
Linnet, g.b.	Com. W. W. Smythe	China
Lizard, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Watson	Australia
Magdala, h.d.s.	Capt. T. Y. Greet.	Bombay Reserves
Magicienne, cr.	Capt. W. B. Fisher	C. of Good Hope
Magpie, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. K. Laird	C. of Good Hope
Marathon, cr.	Capt. J. G. M. Field.	East Indies
Melita, sloop	Com. I. M. Fraser, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Melpomene, cr.	Capt. J. Denison	East Indies
Mildura, cr.	Capt. H. Leah	Australia
Mohawk, cr.	Com. F. H. P. W. Freeman	Australia
Monarch, B.	Capt. R. D. B. Bruce	Simon's Bay
Mosquito, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. L. Cox	River Zambesi
Orion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Orlando, cr.	Capt. J. H. T. Burke	China
Partridge, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Hunt	C. of Good Hope
Peacock, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. S. G. Douglas	China
Pearl, cr.	Capt. J. E. C. Goodrich	North America
Pegasus, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cochran	S. E. C. of America
Pelorus, cr.	Capt. H. C. B. Hulbert	C. of Good Hope
Penguin, sur.v.	Capt. J. W. Combe	Australia
Phaeton, cr.	Capt. F. G. Kirby	Pacific
Pheasant, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. G. Smith.	Pacific
Philomel, cr.	Capt. J. E. Bearcroft	C. of Good Hope
Phœnix, sloop	Com. R. P. Cochran.	China
Pigeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Moubray.	East Indies
Pigmy, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. E. Green	China
Plassy, t.g.b.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Plover, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. V. de M. Cowper	China
Polyphemus, ram	Com. E. L. Lang	Mediterranean
Pomone, cr.	Capt. E. A. Simons	East Indies
Porpoise, cr.	Com. A. H. D. Ravenhill	Australia
Powerful, cr.	Capt. Hon. Hedworth Lambton	C. of Good Hope
Proserpine, cr.	Capt. J. L. Marx	North America
Psyche, cr.	Capt. F. R. Pelly	North America
Pylades, cr.	Com. R. G. O. Tupper	Australia
Quail, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Rymer	North America
Racoon, cr.	Com. G. H. Hewett	East Indies
Rambler, sur.v.	Com. H. E. P. Cust	West Indies
Ramillies, B.	Capt. W. des V. Hamilton	Mediterranean
Rattler, g.b.	Lt.-Com. Hon. G. A. Hardinge.	China
Redpole, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. F. H. Booth.	China
Renown, B.	Capt. D. McN. Riddel (Vice-Admiral Sir J. A. Fisher, K.C.B.).	Mediterranean
Revenge, B.	Capt. C. J. Briggs (Rear-Admiral Sir G. H. U. Noel, K.C.M.G.).	Mediterranean
Ringarooma, cr.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Ringdove, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. F. Ayscough	Australia
Rocket, t.b.d.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Royal Arthur, cr.	Capt. C. G. Dicken (Rear-Adml. H. L. Pearson).	Australia
Royal Oak, B.	Capt. W. H. B. Graham	Mediterranean
Royal Sovereign, B.	Capt. M. P. O'Callaghan	Mediterranean
Rupert, h.d.s.	Com. A. B. G. Grenfell.	Alexandria
Salamander, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. C. Villiers	Mediterranean
Sandfly, t.g.b.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Sandpiper, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. C. Carr	China
Scorpion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Scout, cr.	Com. W. de Salis.	Mediterranean
Snipe, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Oldham	China
Sparrowhawk, t.b.d	(Reserve Esquimault)	Pacific
Sphinx, s.	Com. H. A. Phillips.	East Indies
Surprise, d.v.	Com. F. W. F. Hervey	Mediterranean
Swallow, sloop	Com. E. F. Inglefield	S. E. C. of America
Swift, g.b.	(Reserve Hong Kong).	China
Tamar, d.s.	Commodore F. Powell, C.B.	Hong Kong
Tartar, cr.	Com. F. R. W. Morgan	C. of Good Hope
Tauranga, cr.	Capt. L. C. Stuart	Australia
Terrible, cr.	Capt. Percy Scott	C. of Good Hope
Terror, d.s.	Capt. T. MacGill, C.B.	Bermuda
Theseus, cr.	Capt. V. A. Tisdall	Mediterranean
Thetis, cr.	Capt. W. S. Rees	C. of Good Hope
Thrush, g.b.	(Reserve Simon's Bay)	C. of Good Hope
Torch, sloop	Com. H. Preedy	Australia
Tribune, cr.	Capt. R. S. Rolleston	North America
Tyne, supply-ship	Com. K. Wade.	Mediterranean
Undaunted, cr.	Capt. A. C. Clarke	China
Urgent, d.s.	Commodore E. H. M. Davis, C.M.G.	Jamaica
Venus, cr.	Capt. Sir A. B. Milne, Bart.	Mediterranean
Victorious, B.	Capt. A. Schomberg	China
Virago, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. T. F. Pike	Pacific
Vulcan, t.d.s.	Capt. H. B. Jackson	Mediterranean
Wallaroo, cr.	Capt. A. M. Farquhar	Australia
Warspite, cr.	Capt. T. P Walker (Rear-Adml. Beaumont).	Pacific
Waterwitch, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. W. P. Dawson	China
Whiting, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. Kelly	China
Widgeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. F. Gurney	C. of Good Hope
Wivern, h.d.s.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Woodcock, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. R. Watson	China
Woodlark, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. E. Hillman	China

Digitized by Google

The International Fur Store.

GENTLEMEN'S

FUR-LINED

OVERCOATS

READY FOR IMMEDIATE WEAR,

FROM

£10

ONLY ADDRESS

163 & 165, Regent Street, London, W.

Digitized by Google

How to Speculate Successfully in War Time.

"How to Speculate Successfully in War Time." Important Article and Advice contained in this week's Stock Market Report, just issued, post free, by the

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD

Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Telephone: 1861 Avenue.

Telegrams: "PLENARILY, LONDON."

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE, AND COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.
DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.)
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W.
(On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—Lancet, July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from Wine."—Medical Press, August, '99.

HOTELS DE LUXE.

MONTE CARLO.

Riviera Palace.

NICE.

Riviera Palace.

ABBAZIA.

the NICE of the Adriatic.

HOTEL STEPHANIE,

and other Hotels and Villas.

For tariffs, full particulars, and to reserve accommodation, apply to

THE INTERNATIONAL SLEEPING CAR CO., 14, COCKSPUR ST., LONDON, W.

THE

No. 4 YOST Typewriter

Learnt more Quickly,
Prints Better,
Writes Faster,
Lasts Longer,
Needs Less Repairs
Than any other Typewriter on the Market.

CATALOGUE POST FREE.

50, HOLBORN VIADUCT, E.C., & 303, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

9, Strand, W.C.

NO. 86 "STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.
18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.
Gold Crystal, £13 15s.
Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s.
Silver Crystal, £5.
Silver Half-Hunter, £6 15s.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138
"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra-Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0
Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0
With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times" Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

WE shall yet have a gallant story of the doings of Colonel Plumer, one of whose camps on the Crocodile River we depict. It was from near this place that he made his great flying invasion of the Transvaal. Leaving on December 1, his force penetrated to Pietersburg, something like 120 miles within the enemy's border, and found that all the men had gone south. He reached the terminus of the railway to Pretoria, at a point nearly half-way from the Crocodile to Kruger's stronghold.

The picture of the Mooi River carries us to Natal, and to the scene of the great Boer raid. They did not penetrate much further, and a rapid retreat began on November 23. But fearful havoc had been wrought to the possessions and farmstock of the colonists. The loyal men who had sent their youths to fight in the battles round Ladysmith found themselves defenceless and subject to wholesale pillage by the enemy, while our advancing forces were scarcely able to leave the railway. Great misery and enormous loss were inflicted, but it must surely be made good, and the enemy must suffer.

Our fine concluding picture shows the Frere railway bridge as it was wrecked by the Boers, for which also they must be punished. Here was the camp of the Ladysmith Relief Force, 29 miles south of the place. The men seen in the picture belong to the East Surrey Regiment, and were encamped by the trestle bridge erected near the wreckage. The constructive work was considerable, and delayed Sir Redvers Buller's advance. Bridge wrecking cannot in any circumstances do more than delay our troops in their advance upon the capital of the Transvaal Republic, and Great Britain can better play a waiting game than her foe.

WITH PLUMER'S COLUMN.
A Camp at Rhodes's Drift.

ON THE MOOI RIVER
In the Rich Distri Raided by the Boers.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

FRERE RAILWAY BRIDGE—DESTROYED BY THE BOERS, NOVEMBER 25, 1899.

Digitized by Google

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E. Lists Free.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian Ales.

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.

AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

SMOKE

PIONEER

CIGARETTES

3D.

PER PACKET

CHAS. FRODSHAM & CO., LTD.,

115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

Watch & Clock

MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, NEW BOND ST.

LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—I have just been sending out a tea-gown to a friend in Singapore, who asked me for something that would not be oppressive to wear when the hot weather came round again. After hunting about for some time I bought such a pretty one that I really must send you a sketch of it. This tea-gown would do for any hot climate, as it is as light as it can possibly be, and at the same time it is extremely smart. Brussels appliqué is the material of which Edith's was made, but some of the beautiful embroidered nets would make a good and less expensive substitute, whilst the overdrapery is of clear net appliqué with a quaint design of pale pink silk, edged with very narrow lace. A free velvet chevre bow fastened on one side of the bodice just gives the particular finish which is the fashion just now, one touch of some strongly contrasting colour being seen on all the smartest dresses. In home dress-making, too, we see this idea carried out, but too often without much care or thought, and the result is disastrous. The contrast, which is really artistic in the one case, becomes an ugly patch of colour in the other.

With such tea-gowns as the one I have described lace fichus are very much worn just now. The other day I saw quantities of them in one of the best shops, where I was shown a beautiful Marie Antoinette fichu of Brussels appliqué, which I longed to send to Edith with her tea-gown. Their lace collarettes, too, I greatly admired, and such good lace has the advantage of being continually useful, so that money laid out in it is never wasted.

I had a letter from Norah last week, which arrived just after I had sent off mine to you. She writes from Malta, where she had hoped to have a very good time, but of course the war has spoiled the season there as elsewhere. However, the people did brighten up in honour of the visit of the Austro-Hungarian Squadron, under Rear-Admiral Count Montecuccoli-Poliyago. Admiral Sir John Fisher and Lady Fisher gave a dinner at Admiralty House on the evening of their arrival, and held a reception afterwards, which was attended by the Governor of the Island, and by numerous Naval and Military officers.

TEA-GOWN FOR A HOT CLIMATE.

Next afternoon the officers of the fleet were entertained at San Antonio, and in the evening the Governor gave a large dinner, which was followed by a ball at the Malta Union Club. There were about 700 guests present at the ball, which was a very successful affair; the floor and music were excellent, and the decorations were beautiful, consisting chiefly of flags of all nations, conspicuous amongst them being that of the distinguished visitors. Next day the races were held, and in the evening there was a gala performance at the opera, when the house was crowded to hear "Carmen." This turned out to be the concluding entertainment of the week, for the reception arranged by the Governor at the Palace was given up owing to the bad news received from South Africa. This, of course, cast a gloom over the place, but up till then the week had been very successful, and the Austro-Hungarian fleet left Malta, Norah says, well pleased with the cordial reception that had been given to both officers and men.

I saw many pretty dresses the other evening at Princes', when in spite of so many people being out of town the rooms were quite full. Amongst other well-known personages I saw Admiral Maxse, Lord Sudeley, and a number of military men who are anxiously looking for a summons to the front.

A paper sent me this week is the Christian Globe, which has a good musical supplement. But what particularly interested me was a short account of the Basutos, which is much to the point at the present moment, but I have come to the end of my letter, so I cannot quote from it as I otherwise would do.

Yours affectionately, CONSTANCE.

Digitized by Google

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered.
Children's		1s. 3d.
Ladies'		2s. 3d
Gents'		3s. 3d.
Hemstitched.
Ladies'		2s. 9d.
Gents'		3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d. per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two Weights (heavy and light), and in a Variety of Colours. SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S

NEW PATENT

SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., Ltd.
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY
AT THIS
AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;

£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo,
and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON
For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,
£2 2 0

IT IS THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
LONDON.

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for
Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull.'

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere
in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

Digitized by Google

The Best Glass for South Africa

BECAUSE:

GLASS OPEN.

GLASS CLOSED.

It only Weighs Five Ounces.
It is only One Inch Thick when Closed.
It is as Powerful as many Glasses Five Times as Large.
It is the Most Rapid to Use and Focus.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular gives every satisfaction."

LORD LONSDALE writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular is satisfactory in every way, and answers its purpose well."

CAPT. A. H. LEE, Royal Military College, Kingston, Canada, writes—
"I am immensely pleased with the Patent Pocket Binocular, power and definition little short of marvellous, and their extraordinary compactness and lightness makes them of especial value from a military point of view."

UNITED STATES WAR DEPARTMENT.—CAPT. CRAIG writes—
"I am directed by the CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICERS of the UNITED STATES ARMY to say that Aitchison's Patent Pocket Field Glasses are found to be extremely convenient and portable, and of good service."

Superior, Achromatic, 6 Lenses - - £3 3 0
Ditto extra power, 12 Lenses - - £5 5 0
Complete in Soft Leather Purse Case.

Hard Leather Sling Case, 5s. extra. Post Free to any part of the World.

Illustrations and Particulars Post Free from:

AITCHISON & CO., 428, STRAND, LONDON;

Also at 47, Fleet Street; 6, Poultry; and 46, Fenchurch Street, London.

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS.

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

Digitized by Google

Printed by Hudson & Kearns, ...

SATURDAY, JANUARY 13th, 1900.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

ted by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
ices, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 154.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

HOW TO SPECULATE SUCCESSFULLY IN WAR TIME.

"How to Speculate Successfully in War Time." Important Article and Advice contained in this week's Stock Market Report, just issued, post free, by the London & Paris Exchange, Ltd.

HEAD OFFICES:
24, THROGMORTON STREET, LONDON, E.C.
Telephone: 1861 Avenue. Telegrams: "PLENARILY, LONDON."

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—The Lancet, July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from wine.—Medical Press, August, '99.

LEA & PERRIN'S SAUCE.

Lea & Perrins

Is printed in BLUE ink across the outside wrapper of every bottle of

THE ORIGINAL WORCESTERSHIRE.

AVOID CHEAP COPIES.

HOTEL VICTORIA, LONDON.

NORTHUMBERLAND AVENUE.

Orchestra performs during Luncheon and Dinner. Lunch 3s. 6d. Dinner 5s. Finest Cuisine and Wines. Open to non-residents.

GORDON HOTELS, Ltd.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON.
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
FROM 10/6 PER DAY.

Telegraphic Addresses: For Management, "UNPARALLELED." For Visitors, "ERMINITES."

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No 154. Saturday, January 13th, 1900.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130
DECEMBER, 1899.
*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

The ART of . .

Graceful Horse Riding

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship," 2/6.

First-Class Certificates.

EVERY N.C.O. and PRIVATE soldier at HOME or ABROAD who wants his FIRST should send a post card at once for particulars of the new and popular system. CHANGE of STATION does not interfere. Special help for those who cannot attend a garrison school. CLASSES are now forming for the MARCH EXAM.—RANDALL J. FOX (ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Drink.'
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "My Daughter-in-Law."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "The Black Tulip."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "King John."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "The Absented-Minded Beggar."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "Jane."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "David Garrick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha." At 2 p.m., "Alice in Wonderland."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. Puss in Boots."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Cinderella."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Aladdin."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "A Gaiety Girl."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Power of Gold."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Gaiety Girl."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Jack of Hearts."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea." Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

Digitized by Google

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP

You instantly recognize WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP. It is impossible to mistake its thick, creamy, softening lather or its delicate, refreshing odor, for there is nothing else like it. Under its soothing influence shaving becomes a lathery luxury, and a feeling of intense satisfaction takes possession of you.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAPS are used by all first-class hair-dressers.

Sold by Chemists, Hair-dressers and Perfumers all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING STICKS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' LUXURY SHAVING TABLETS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' AMERICAN SHAVING TABLETS, 6d.
WILLIAMS' "JERSEY CREAM" TOILET SOAP, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp, by addressing—

The J. B. WILLIAMS CO., 64 Gt. Russell St., LONDON, W. C., or 161 Clarence St., SYDNEY. Chief Offices and Laboratories, GLASTONBURY, CONN., U. S. A.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

"THREE THINGS THAT WOMEN HIGHLY HOLD."

Exquisite Models. Perfect Fit. Guaranteed Wear.

The Y & N DIAGONAL SEAM

"No shape but this can please your dainty eye."

Will not split in the Seams, nor tear in the Fabric.

Made in White, Black, and all the fashionable Colours and Shades, in Italian Cloth, Satin and Coutil.

4/11, 5/11, 6/11, 7/11

per pair and upwards.

THREE GOLD MEDALS.

"Admirably modelled, exquisitely neat and strong."—Queen.

"The most comfortable corset ever made."—Ladies' Pictorial.

"The best make of corsets is the Y & N Diagonal Seam."—Gentlewoman.

CAUTION.—See that the REGISTERED TRADE MARK "Y. & N. Diagonal Seam," is imprinted on every Corset and on every Box. No others are genuine.

Sold by the principal Drapers and Ladies' Outfitters throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies.

WEST LONDON HOSPITAL,

HAMMERSMITH ROAD, W. (101 beds.)

Patron: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President: THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, K.G.
Treasurer: THE LORD ROTHSCHILD.

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED for opening new wards for 80 additional beds.

R. J. GILBERT, Secretary-Superintendent.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN And CHILDREN,

MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.

Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.

W. GUNTRIP KING, Secretary.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS

and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION,

BROMPTON.

The Hospital contains 321 Beds, and in 1897 received 1,681 In-patients. 13,098 Out-patients were also treated. The yearly requirements of the Hospital cannot be estimated at less than £25,000 a year. Further, it has been decided upon the unanimous and urgent advice of the Medical Staff to establish a

"COUNTRY BRANCH AND CONVALESCENT HOME,"

and it is estimated that £20,000 will be needed to inaugurate this new departure.

The Charity being Unendowed, is dependent on Donations, Annual Subscriptions, and Legacies, Contributions are therefore earnestly solicited in aid of both objects.

Bankers:
Messrs. WILLIAMS, DEACON, & MANCHESTER & SALFORD BANK
20, Birchin Lane, London
WILLIAM H. THEOBALD, Secretary

ENCORE RAZOR

SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 8s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co.,
Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,

who will supply through nearest Agents.

Country Life Illustrated,

VOL. VI.

Printed on Art Paper.

Cloth, Gilt Edges, 21s. ea.; or Half-Morocco, 25s. ea.

Vols. 1, 2, 3, & 4 (Nos. 1 to 104) are out of print.

OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, W.C.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.

writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.

"I have now prescribed them for the last 8 years in my hospitals and private practice, and find them of great benefit. I certainly and most strongly recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S COCOA

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Facing Storm and Foe. The "Hannibal" in a Gale ...	433
Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories. Waltham Abbey.—III. By Frederick G. Engelbach. Photographs Specially Taken for "N. & A. I."	434
The 3rd Battalion Royal Welsh Fusiliers. (Illustrated)	435
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	437
Editorial Notices	438
The Navy and Army Diary	438
The "Frobisher's" Escape. (Illustrated)	438
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	440
The War: In the Cape Colony. (Illustrated)	441
On the Modder River. (Illustrated) ...	444
Scenes in Ladysmith. (Illustrated) ...	445
With Our Forces in Natal. (Illustrated)	446
The Bombardment of Saltport.—II. (Illustrated)	449
The Wounded at the Front	451
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	451
The Story of the War	452
Disposition of Troops in South Africa ...	452
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	453
"At the Breech of the Four-point-seven." (Illustrated)	456

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Second Week.]

THE CAVALRY, ROYAL ARTILLERY, AND ROYAL ENGINEERS.*

CAVALRY.

1st Life Guards	Lieut.-Col. C. N. Miles. . . .	Windsor
2nd "	L.-Cl. J. A. Smith-Cuninghame	Regent's Park
Royal Horse Gds.	Lt.-Col. G. Lord Binning . .	Hyde Park
Composite Regt.— Househ. Cavalry	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Neeld . . .	Cape Colony
1st Dragoon Gds.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Owen . . .	Dublin
2nd "	Lieut.-Col. G. P. Douglas . .	York
3rd "	Lieut.-Col. U. G. C. de Burgh .	Dundalk
4th "	Lieut.-Col. G. D. F. Sulivan . .	Rawul Pindi
5th "	Lieut.-Col. St. J. C. Gore . .	Ladysmith, Natal
6th "	Lieut.-Col. T. C. Porter . . .	South Africa
7th "	Lieut.-Col. W. H. M. Lowe . .	For South Africa
1st Dragoons . .	Lieut.-Col. J. F. Burn-Murdoch	Natal
2nd " . .	Lt.-Col. Hon. W. P. Alexander.	South Africa
3rd Hussars . . .	Lt.-Col. W. N. Wogan-Browne.	Lucknow
4th " . . .	Lieut.-Col. W. A. Ramsay . .	Secunderabad
5th Lancers . . .	Col. J. F. M. Fawcett	Ladysmith, Natal
6th Dragoons . .	Lt.-Col. H. C. Page-Henderson	Cape Colony
7th Hussars . . .	Lieut.-Col. Hon. R. T. Lawley .	Norwich
8th " . . .	Lieut.-Col. P. L. Clowes . . .	Aldershot
9th Lancers . . .	Lieut.-Col. B. Gough	Cape Colony
10th Hussars . .	Lieut.-Col. R. B. W. Fisher . .	South Africa
11th " . .	Lieut.-Col. E. R. Courtenay. .	Cairo
12th Lancers . .	Lt.-Col. D. S. W., Earl of Airlie	Cape Colony
13th Hussars . .	Lieut.-Col. H. J. Blagrove . .	Natal
14th " . .	Lieut.-Col. G. H. C. Hamilton .	South Africa
15th " . .	Lieut.-Col. J. R. P. Gordon . .	Meerut
16th Lancers . .	Lieut.-Col. H. L. Aylmer . . .	South Africa
17th " . .	Lieut.-Col. M. G. Neeld . . .	For South Africa
18th Hussars . .	Lieut.-Col. B. D. Moller . . .	Ladysmith, Natal
19th " . .	L.-C. C. B. H. Wolseley-Jenkins	Ladysmith, Natal
20th " . .	Lieut.-Col. H. G. P. Beauchamp	Mhow
21st Lancers . . .	L.-C. W. G. Crole Wyndham, C.B.	Curragh

ROYAL REGIMENT OF ARTILLERY.

Royal Horse Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
A.—South Africa	H.—Meerut	O.—Cape Colony
B.—Lucknow	I.—Umballa	P.—Cape Colony
C.—Mhow	J.—South Africa	Q.—For South Africa
D.—Umballa	K.—Rawul Pindi	R.—Cape Colony
E.—Kirkee	L.—Secunderabad	S.—Aldershot
F.—Sealkote	M.—Newbridge	T.—For South Africa
G.—Cape Colony	N.—Aldershot	U.—For South Africa

Royal Field Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
1.—Kirkee	34.—Ahmedabad	66.—Natal
2.—Shorncliffe	35.—Kurrachee	67.—Natal
3.—Campbellpore	36.—Nusseerabad	68.—Hilsea
4.—South Africa	37.—South Africa	69.—Natal
5.—Athlone	38.—South Africa	70.—Bareilly
6.—Cawnpore	39.—Hilsea	71.—Mooltan
7.—Natal	40.—Bangalore	72.—Bellary
8.—Hilsea	41.—Lucknow	73.—South Africa
9.—Athlone	42.—Natal	74.—Natal
10.—Aldershot	43.—Woolwich	75.—Natal
11.—Meean Meer	44.—Colchester	76.—F South Africa
12.—Jullundur	45.—St. Thomas' [Mount	77.—South Africa
13.—Natal	46.—Dinapore	78.—Woolwich
14.—Natal	47.—Ferozepore	79.—For South Africa
15.—Meerut	48.—Barrackpore	80.—Nowgong
16.—Kirkee	49.—Belgaum	81.—For South Africa
17.—Woolwich	50.—Agra	82.—For South Africa
18.—Natal	51.—Rawul Pindi	83.—For South Africa
19.—Natal	52.—Jubbulpore	84.—For South Africa
20.—South Africa	53.—Natal	85.—For South Africa
21.—Natal	54.—Meerut	86.—Newcastle
22.—Mhow	55.—Saugor	87.—Newcastle
23.—Secunderabad	56.—Egypt	88.—Weedon
24.—Peshawur	57.—Meean Meer	89.—Aldershot
25.—Bangalore	58.—Kamptee	90.—Aldershot
26.—Aldershot	59.—Woolwich	91.—Aldershot
27.—Neemuch	60.—Allahabad	92.—Aldershot
28.—Natal	61.—For South Africa	93.—Cahir
29.—Kirkee	62.—Natal	94.—Leeds
30.—Fyzabad	63.—Natal	95.—Leeds
31.—Hyderabad	64.—For South Africa	96.—Seaforth
32.—Jhansi	65.—South Africa	97.—Ipswich
33.—St. Thomas' Mt.		98.—Ipswich

Royal Garrison Artillery.

MOUNTAIN DIVISION.

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
1.—Lundi Kotal	5.—Kalabagh	8.—Darjeeling
2.—Khyra Gali	6.—Jutogh	9.—Mandalay
3.—Bara Gali	7.—Quetta	10.—Natal
4.—Natal

EASTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Dover).

Depôt No. 1, Dover. No. 2, Great Yarmouth.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—Calcutta	11.—Gibraltar	21.—Sheerness
2.—St. Helena	12.—Dover	22.—(H.) Sheerness
3.—Rangoon (for	13.—Bombay	23.—Shoeburyness
4.—Kurrachee [Aden)	14.—Isle of Wight	24.—Delhi
5.—Malta (for	15.—Dover	25.—Hong Kong
6.—Dover [Bermuda)	16.—Egypt [Bermuda)	26.—(S.T.) Bombay
7.—(S.T.) Mooltan	17.—Malta (for	27.—Sheerness
8.—Aden	18.—Gibraltar	28.—Landguard Fort
9.—Allahabad	19.—Gibraltar [Malta)	29.—Leith Fort
10.—Shoeburyness	20.—Gibraltar (for

SOUTHERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Portsmouth).

Depôt No. 1, Fort Rowner, Gosport. No. 2, Seaforth Barracks, Liverpool.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—Malta	15.—(S.T.) for S. Africa	29.—Barrackpore
2.—Gibraltar	16.—For South Africa	30.—Portsmouth
3.—Portsmouth	17.—Malta	31.—Malta
4.—Portsmouth	18.—Aden	32.—Cork Harb'r (for [Gibraltar)
5.—Agra	19.—Malta	33.—Thobba
6.—Roorkee	20.—(S.T.) Ft. Fareh'm	34.—Trincomalee
7.—Weymouth	21.—Portsmouth	35.—Singapore
8.—Bermuda (for [Halifax, N.S.)	22.—Jamaica	36.—For South Africa
9.—Roorkee	23.—Quetta	37.—Ceylon
10.—Gibraltar	24.—(H.) Campbell- [pore	38.—Hong Kong
11.—Roorkee	25.—Hong Kong	39.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight
12.—Singapore	26.—Gibraltar	40.—Cork Harbour
13.—Malta	27.—Malta	41.—Portsmouth
14.—Cork Harbour	28.—Weymouth

WESTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Devonport).

Depôt No. 1, Citadel, Plymouth. No. 2, Scarborough.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—St. Lucia	12.—Jersey	22.—Rangoon
2.—Plymouth	13.—Pembroke Dock	23.—Kimberley
3.—Halifax	14.—C. of Good Hope	24.—Malta
4.—Ferozepore	15.—(S.T.) Gosport	25.—Quetta
5.—Rawul Pindi	16.—Aden	26.—Mauritius
6.—Dunbar	17.—Devonport	27.—Pembroke Dock
7.—Jhansi	18.—Bombay	28.—Londonderry
8.—Mauritius	19.—Esquimault	29.—Fort Bovisand, [Plymouth
9.—(H) Secunderab'd	20.—Halifax, N.S. (for [Jamaica)	ROYAL MALTA ART'Y. Malta
10.—Devonport	21.—Bermuda
11.—Fort St. George

H. Heavy. S.T. Siege Trai .

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Co.	Co.
1st (F.) Cork Harbour	35th (Sub.) Pembroke [Dock	Field D., R.E. Troops, [Aldershot
2nd (F.) Egypt	36th (F.) Bermuda	Balloon D. and Sect., [South Africa
3rd (F.) Bermuda	37th (Fd.) for S. Africa
4th (Sub.) Gosport	38th (Fd.) Shorncliffe	COAST BATTALION (Submarine Miners):
5th (F.) Portsmouth	39th (Sub.) Sheerness
6th (F.) South Africa	40th (Sub.) Halifax, [N.S.	Sect.
7th (Fd.) S. Africa	41st (F.) Hdqrs. and ½ Co. Ceylon; ½ Co. Singapore	1 (Tyne) N. Shields
8th (Ry.) S. Africa	42nd (F.) South Africa	2 (Severn) Cardiff
9th (Fd.) For S. Africa	43rd (F.) Mauritius	3 (Clyde) Greenock
10th (Ry.) S. Africa	A (D.) Chatham	4 (Humber) Paull
11th (Fd.) S. Africa	B (D.) Chatham	5 (Tees) Middlesbr'gh
12th (Fd.) S. Africa	C (D.) Chatham	6 (Tay) Broughty [Ferry
13th (Sur.) Clifton, [Bristol	D (D.) Chatham	7 (Forth) Leith, ["Dido," hulk
14th (Sur.) Dublin	E (D.) Chatham	8 (Mersey) Liverpool
15th (F.) Gibraltar	F (D.) Chatham	9 (Falmouth) Falm'th
16th (Sur.) Bedford	G (D.) Chatham	10 (Weymouth) [Weymouth
17th (Fd.) S. Africa	M (Sub.) Chatham
18th (F.) Halifax, N.S.	N (D.) Chatham	LOCAL COMPANIES ABROAD:
19th (Sur.) Southamp- [ton	H Army Hqrs., India
20th (F.) South Africa	TELEGRAPH BATN.:	Singapore (Sub.)
21st (Sub.) Felixstowe	1st Div., South Africa	Hong Kong (Sub.)
22nd (Sub.) I. of Wight	2nd Div., 28, Newgate [Street	Ceylon (Sub.) [Trincomalee
23rd (Fd.) Natal		Mauritius (Sub.)
24th (F.) Malta	BRIDGING BATN.:	Sierra Leone (F.)
25th (F.) Hong Kong	A Troop, South Africa	West India (Sub.) [Jamaica
26th (Fd.) S. Africa	B Troop, Aldershot	W. India (F.)
27th (Sub.) Bermuda		½ Co. Jamaica, 1 Section at St. Lucia
28th (Sub.) Malta	Field Troop, S. Africa
29th (F.) Cape Town
30th (Sub.) Plymouth
31st (F.) South Africa
32nd (F.) Gibraltar
33rd (Sub.) Cork Harb.
34th (Sub.) Gravesend

F. Fortress. Fd. Field. Sub. Submarine. Sur. Survey. Ry. Railway. D. Depot.

* The Disposition of our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Digitized by Google

The Eyes of the Army!

ROSS' PATENT NEW MODEL Prismatic Binocular Glasses.

COMBINING

PERFECT MECHANICAL CONSTRUCTION.
EXTREME PORTABILITY and RIGIDITY.
HIGH POWER and SPLENDID DEFINITION.

"The Power and Field of a Telescope in the compass of an Opera Glass."

Focussing by adjustment of eyepieces. Each eyepiece should be focussed separately, so as to allow for differences in refraction of the eyes. The eyecups can be turned up or down, until a distant object appears clearly defined.

PRICES.

Magnification.	Binocular	Monocular.
6 diameters	£8 0 0	£3 15 0
8 "	8 0 0	3 15 0
10 "	10 0 0	4 15 0
12 "	10 0 0	4 15 0

With screw focussing adjustment, £1 each extra.

Supplied to Officers of the South African Field Force.

Send for COMPLETE CATALOGUE of Telescopes, Field Glasses, Photographic Cameras, and Apparatus of all descriptions.
Gold Medals and Highest Awards at all Great Exhibitions.

ROSS, LTD., 111, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON, W.
And 31, COCKSPUR STREET, CHARING CROSS, S.W.
OPTICAL WORKS: CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.
Contractors to Her Majesty's Governments, British and Colonial, also to the Principal Foreign Governments.
ESTABLISHED 1830.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON, S.E.

Red White & Blue Coffee=Delicious for Breakfast & after Dinner.

IN MAKING, USE LESS QUANTITY, IT BEING SO MUCH STRONGER THAN ORDINARY COFFEE

SOLD EVERYWHERE!

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo=Bavarian . . Ales. . .

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.
AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

The International Sleeping Car Co.

TRAINS DE LUXE.

CALAIS TO NICE, MONTE CARLO, AND SAN REMO. Every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and SUNDAY.

CALAIS TO ROME. Every Tuesday and Thursday.

And Three other Daily Services to the SOUTH.

Full and detailed information sent gratis, and all Tickets supplied at the Company's Chief London Offices, 14, COCKSPUR STREET, S.W.
The Official Guide and Time Book of the Company, "THE CONTINENTAL TRAVELLER," sent post free on application.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co., LIMITED,

115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Watch & Clock MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, New Bond St. LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 2½d. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries, PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,

AND

COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered.
Children's		1s. 3d.
Ladies'		2s. 3d
Gents'		3s. 3d.
Hemstitched.
Ladies'		2s. 9d.
Gents'		3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts, 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

9, Strand, W.C.

NO. 86 "STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.

8ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.

Gold Crystal, £13 15s.

Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s.

Silver Crystal, £5.

Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Certificate and Warranty with every Watch. Postage Free at Our Own Risk.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

No. 138.

"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH.

OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases... ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder 5:5:0

Special Notice.—All our Watches and Jewellery can be had upon our ("The Times" Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

AT one time, when we were feeling a little anxiety as to the situation of Colonel Baden-Powell at Mafeking, we received intelligence altogether with surprise that Colonel Holdsworth was approaching to his relief with an armoured train, repairing the way as he came, from the direction of Mochudi; and, at the very worst, we said, the gallant "B. P." could fight his way through, and join hands with the advancing column, which, at Mochudi, was not much more than 100 miles from Mafeking. Intelligence concerning Colonel Holdsworth's advance from the north has been very scanty and intermittent, but he has had one or two brushes with the Boers, and his exact position is uncertain. The illustration shows a train crossing through the drift on the Metsi Maclana River.

WITH COLONEL HOLDSWORTH.
On the Metsi Maclana River.

The next illustration is of a scene to which all eyes are turned. It is of the Tugela River in flood. Like all other South African water-courses, this river, whose very name signifies "fear," rises with great rapidity, owing to heavy rains in the mountains, and sweeps everything before it in an angry torrent. The Boers who established themselves with guns on Hlangwane Hill necessarily attached very great importance to their communications with the camps on the north side of the river, and viewed with dismay a rapid rise in the stream which swept away the temporary bridge they had constructed. Hlangwane Hill was a position on Sir Redvers Buller's right flank, but that force of Boers which crossed higher up on his left at Springfield must have been filled with some trepidation as to the conduct of the river behind them. This is not the place in which to deal with the situation on the Tugela, but the illustration shows what has been a considerable obstacle to General Buller.

THE TUGELA RIVER IN FLOOD.
A Source of Anxiety to the Boers.

The last picture is of one of General French's camps on the veldt during his advance from Naauwpoort towards Colesberg. The operations of the gallant officer—who, after winning the day at Elandslaagte, escaped from Ladysmith to take command of an inadequate force, which was to protect De Aar Junction and hold the Boers in check in the Hanover and Colesberg region—were watched with exceeding interest. The movement from Arundel was conducted with extreme care, but General French was fortunate in having with him a good force of mounted troops, and some colonials, who have shown that they are the very best men for work in that country. When, therefore, it became known that he had advanced to Rensburg, and, by making a detour, had succeeded in driving a large force back upon Norvals Pont, and had thrown himself in the way of the retreat of the rest of the enemy upon that position, his operations were viewed with the very greatest interest. The numerous hills thereabout are not continuous, but are thickly dotted about the veldt, a circumstance which really called for the employment of a larger force than General French had at his disposal.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army

WITH GENERAL FRENCH—A CAMP ON THE VELDT.

Digitized by Google

INFLUENZA

The Enemy at Home.

Effectual resistance to the enemy's attack is offered by whose warmth-giving, vitalising powers provide an immediate stimulus when strength and tone are absolutely necessary to protect the system from the danger of infection.

BOVRIL,

BOVRIL

repels the Enemy.

HUNTING NOVELTY.

The 'Cloutsham' Stock

(Regd.)

A COMPLETE STOCK AND CRAVAT IN ONE, WITH NO LOOSE PARTS FOR WASHING.

Price 4/6 Post Free.

CELLULOID STIFFENER, 6d. extra.

Coloured Cravats for Shooting, Golf, etc., made to Order only.

CRAVAT OPEN FOR WASHING.

If Coloured, or Figured White Cravats are required, send for Patterns.
For Plain White Taffeta "Cloutshams," send neck size and remittance.

Jaeger PURE WOOL Sporting Tailors,

42, CONDUIT ST., W.

Telegrams: "HIGHMOST, LONDON."

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY AT THIS AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;

£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo, and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated, £2 2 0

THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD., OR EDISONIA, LTD. 39, Charing Cross Road, W.C. 25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C. Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C. LONDON.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS. SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S NEW PATENT

SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children, IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY. Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6. (EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & CO., LTD., WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—Has it ever struck you what an enormous number of amateur generals we have in England at the present moment? Really almost every man or woman one meets seems to think him or herself a born strategist and leader of men, and criticises the situation in South Africa in as assured a manner as if a soldier born. And when such critics get tired of that they wander on to the foolishness of the authorities in sending the invalids home instead of letting them have the benefit of the climate out there. Whether this is foolish or no, you and I, dear Betty, are far too modest and too reticent with our opinions to decide. But, at the same time, I do not hesitate to tell any of your friends amongst the wounded and invalided officers who may be returning home depressed from pain and fever, that there is no place like Mentone for restoring the nerves and building up new life in those who are weak and ill. Being within fifteen minutes of Monte Carlo and forty minutes of Nice, San Remo, etc., the invalid, as he gets better, can have plenty of change and amusement; whilst, when he is at his weakest, the lovely sunshine, the bracing air, and the beauty of the orange and lemon trees, palms, olives, and the loveliness of the flowers which grow with such wild luxuriance in Mentone and the neighbourhood, all combine to cheer his spirits and hasten his recovery. There are many very comfortable hotels and villas there, too, amongst which the Bellevue may be recommended as being personally managed by the English proprietor, whilst the cuisine is under the direction of the French chef; and more important still at the moment is the fact that arrangements have been made for the war news to be telegraphed to the hotel, so that no Englishman may feel cut off from the latest reports from the front, even though he be sunning himself in the warm bays of Mentone.

AN OPERA CLOAK.

With regard to dress this week, I send you a sketch of an opera cloak which is both warm and graceful, and just the thing to wear at evening entertainments in this cold damp weather. I saw one made exactly like this at Princes' last week, worn over a lovely dress of pale blue oriental satin, with inch-wide tucks extending from the hem halfway up the skirt, where they were met by perpendicular insertions of white lace, each insertion being separated at small intervals from the other by rows of narrow black velvet. The corsage was very charming, being a bewildering arrangement of blue chiffon, black bébé velvet, diamond ornaments, and white lace, and the whole effect was decidedly smart.

Norah writes to me again this week telling me all the news there is from Malta. First, she gives me an account of the presentation of new colours to the 3rd Battalion of the Warwickshire Regiment by Sir Francis Grenfell. It was a most beautiful day for the occasion, and the Florian Parade was gay with crowds of people dressed in their smartest clothes. The ceremony began with the usual religious service, which was read by the Rev. A. Malim, Chaplain to the Forces, and the colours were consecrated by the Bishop of Gibraltar. When it was all over, the colonel and officers of the regiment entertained the Governor and about 190 other guests at luncheon in their mess in Florian Barracks. In the afternoon, everyone met again at the first "At Home" of the "Gloamings"—as the delightful little entertainments got up and run by three ladies to pass the hour of gloaming, from 5 to 6 p.m., are called. They take place every Thursday at the Grand Studio in the Strada Reale, and consist of an entertainment and tea, the proceeds of which are given over to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association. The room was simply packed on the day that these little gatherings were inaugurated, and many people had to go away, being unable to find a seat. The entertainment began by General O'Callaghan, singing "Mandalay" to a new setting, which delighted everyone. This was followed by an amusing little play, entitled "To Oblige Benson," which was acted extremely well by Mrs. Lynden Bell, Mrs. Heriot, Colonel Bridgman, Captain James, and Captain Heriot, Colonel Bridgman being especially amusing. So with one thing and another there has been enough going on in Malta to keep everyone from moping, in spite of the war making it so very dull a season. The Opera House is always crowded too, particularly when "La Bohème" is played. When it is announced the house is always full to overflowing.

Yours affectionately, CONSTANCE.

* Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.*

Digitized by Google

This Trophy of Swords,

Affixed on Heraldic Shield, with Brass Suspender, all complete.

Price Ten Shillings and Sixpence.

Cheques and Post Orders to—

THE DECORATIONS COMPANY,

"THE ARMOURY,"

29, LEICESTER SQUARE, LONDON.

The Union of Taste with Economy.

The Oakleigh Series of inexpensive Bookcases, Cabinets, etc., now being introduced by TRAPNELL & GANE, indicate once more how happily taste and economy may be blended in the equipment of the home.

This series, one of which we here illustrate, consists at present of six different designs all made in solid oak, artistically carved, well polished and finished, and sent carriage paid to any station in the kingdom at most moderate prices.

The Bookcase illustrated is four feet eight inches high, two feet two inches wide, with four shelves. Price 14s. 6d.

Large Furniture Catalogue, containing over 1,000 Illustrations, post free.

TRAPNELL & GANE, MANUFACTURERS OF INEXPENSIVE FURNITURE,

COLLEGE GREEN, BRISTOL.

Branches: QUEEN STREET, CARDIFF; COMMERCIAL STREET, NEWPORT, MON.

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

The Pall Mall Deposit

STORAGE AND FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE AND KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military and Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.,

Carlton Street, Regent Street, S.W.;

And Arthur Street, Aldershot.

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 83—87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 & 12, Southampton Street, Strand. Editorial Offices, 20, Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, JANUARY 20th, 1900.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL IX.
No. 155

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,
217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.).

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.

(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.

SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.

Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
Collier's
BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.

COLLIER & Co., Wine Merchants to H.M. THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, 53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE
A NATURAL TONIC.
"THE ORIGINAL ST. RAPHAEL TONIC WINE."

This Wine is prepared according to the recipes of Professors Pasteur and Bouchardat.
This Wine is the ONLY ONE USED in the Paris Hospitals for Anæmia, Debility, Convalescents, Bronchial Affections; also for Young Girls and Children.
ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE is most efficacious as a Tonic, and must not be confounded with Coca, Kola, or Quin Quina preparations, which act on the nervous system without any nourishing properties.
To Ladies Nursing is much more beneficial than Stout.

To avoid spurious imitations each bottle bears on the neck the address of the SOLE AGENTS:
E. GALLAIS & CO. (Limited),
90, PICCADILLY, W.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.
Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.
Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.
BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.
Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.
MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

The Pall Mall Deposit

STORAGE AND FORWARDING
OF
OFFICERS' BAGGAGE AND KIT
A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military and Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.,

Carlton Street, Regent Street, S.W.;

And Arthur Street, Aldershot.

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS.

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No 155. Saturday, January 20th, 1900.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

DECEMBER, 1899.

*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

CAPTAIN FULLER (late R.E.),

Assisted by Major KING, and in co-operation with

Mr. H. F. TRIPPEL,

PREPARES RESIDENT and NON-RESIDENT PUPILS FOR MILITIA LITERARY and COMPETITIVE, WOOLWICH, SANDHURST, AND ALL MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS; also officers for Promotion and for the Staff College.

RECENT SUCCESSES:

MILITIA COMPETITIVE, September, 1899

		Marks.
*FIRST UNIVERSITY.	A. E. M. Ward	1843

Mr. Ward read with Capt. Fuller FOR EIGHT WEEKS ONLY, and the Subjects were entirely new to him. This result has never been surpassed.

		Marks.
*FIRST ARTILLERY.	C. H. Clark (After a few months' reading.)	1792
*20th Infantry.	L. J. Le Fleming	1582
35th "	A. Moore	1485
38th "	J. C. Hooper	1463
*72nd "	W. B. Mitford	1310
*76th "	A. J. M. Gordon	1280

*1st trial direct.

March, 1899.—8 competed, all passed.
1898.—13 competed, all passed.

N.B.—No Pupil who has read with Capt. Fuller, during the last four years, has finally failed to pass.

Work carried on in small classes, which ensures close attention to each Pupil.

TWICKENHAM PARK, S.W.

First-Class Certificates.

EVERY N.C.O. and PRIVATE soldier at HOME or ABROAD who wants his FIRST should send a post card at once for particulars of the new and popular system. CHANGE of STATION does not interfere. Special help for those who cannot attend a garrison school. CLASSES are now forming for the MARCH EXAM.—RANDALL J. FOX (ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Two Little Vagabonds."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "The Masked Ball."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "How London Lives."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. New Play in January, 1900.
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "Jane."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Elixir of Youth."
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "David Garrick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha." At 2 p.m., "Alice in Wonderland."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Cinderella."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Gipsy Jack."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Cinderella."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "The Iron Maiden."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "Alice in Wonderland."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Jack of Hearts."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH and MR. H. A. STERN, M.A. (Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 129 Pupils were prepared and 127 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—44 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—24 out of 25.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—9 out of 9.
COOPER'S HILL—3 out of 3.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—1 out of 1.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
19 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotio candidates and day pupils).
7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK, SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

JEWSBURY & BROWN'S

ORIENTAL TOOTH PASTE.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL, HOLLOWAY.

Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.

The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 2,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £10,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED.

L. H. GLENTON-KERR, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.

£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.

Bankers, Messrs. Drummond. ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought). GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

P. MICHELLI, Secretary.

The Union of Taste with Economy.

The Oakleigh Series of inexpensive Bookcases, Cabinets, etc., now being introduced by TRAPNELL & GANE, indicate once more how happily taste and economy may be blended in the equipment of the home.

This series, one of which we here illustrate, consists at present of six different designs all made in solid oak, artistically carved, well polished and finished, and sent carriage paid to any station in the kingdom at most moderate prices.

The Bookcase illustrated is four feet eight inches high, two feet two inches wide, with four shelves. Price 14s. 6d.

Large Furniture Catalogue, containing over 1,000 Illustrations, post free.

TRAPNELL & GANE, MANUFACTURERS OF INEXPENSIVE FURNITURE,

COLLEGE GREEN, BRISTOL.

Branches: QUEEN STREET, CARDIFF; COMMERCIAL STREET, NEWPORT, MON.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: The Despatch Rider's Farewell
The Second Boer War. (Illustrated) ...	457
The Navy in South Africa. A Busy Time for the "Handy Man." (Illus.)	458
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	460
Editorial Notices	461
The Navy and Army Diary	462
On Guard. (Illustrated)	462
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear	464
Events in Natal. (Illustrated)	465
With Galacre's Column. (Illustrated)	468
The Queensland Mounted Infantry. With Colonel Pilcher. (Illustrated)	469
In the Cape Colony. In Maitland Camp. (Illustrated)	470
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	473
Tales of the Gun-room. (Illustrated) ...	474
Disposition of Troops in South Africa ...	475
The Story of the War	476
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	477

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Third Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY IN HOME WATERS.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. h. Hulk. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. g.v. Gun Vessel. y. Yacht. T. Tender. s.s. Survey Ship. d.s. Depot-ship. P. Portsmouth. D. Devonport. C. Chatham. S. Sheerness. i. Instructional Torpedo Flotilla. c.g. Coast Guard. p.g. Port Guard. W.I. Whale Island.

Agincourt, cr.	Com. D. St. A. Wake	T. to Boscawen
Alarm, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. Powley	T. to Galatea, c.g.
Albacore, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. J. W. Steward	Ireland [Albert
Alberta, y.	Staff-Capt. G. A. Broad	T. to Victoria and
Alexandra, B.	Capt. Count F. C. Metaxa, A.D.C. (Vice-Adml. Sir Compton E. Domvile, K.C.B.).	Portland, c.g.
Algiers, h.	Capt. G. L. Atkinson, A.D.C. (Rear-Adml. S. C. Holland).	Medway Reserve C.
Angler, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. Tibbets	T. to Pembroke
Antelope, t.g.b.	Com. O. A. Stokes	Portishead (R.N.R)
Ariel, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. G. Webster	T. to Pembroke, i.
Arrogant, cr.	Capt. A. W. E. Protheroe	Channel Squadron
Asia, h.	Capt. A. A. C. Parr (Rear-Admiral P. Aldrich).	Portsmouth [Reserves
Australia, cr.	Capt. C. H. Adair	Southampton [Water, c.g.
Bat, t.b.d.	Com. A. L. Duff	T. to Vivid, i.
Benbow, B.	Capt. R. P. Humpage	Greenock, c.g.
Black Prince, cr.	Com. W. J. Grogan	Queenstown (boys)
Boscawen, h.	Capt. T. H. M. Jerram	Portland (boys)
Britannia, h.	Capt. Hon. A. G. Curzon-Howe, C.B., C.M.G.	Dartmouth (cadets)
Briton, h.	Lieut.-Com. A. C. Spearman	Inverness (R.N.R.)
Caledonia, h.	Com. J. G. Hewitt	Queensferry (boys)
Calliope, cr.	Capt. H. P. Routh	T. to Northampton
Cambrian, cr.	Capt. R. K. McAlpine.	Training Squadron
Cambridge, h.	Capt. R. W. Craigie.	Gunnery School, D.
Circe, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. G. S. Q. Carr, C.M.G.	T. to Severn, c.g.
Clyde, h.	Com. J. P. Montgomery	Aberdeen (R.N.R.)
Collingwood, B.	Capt. F. W. Fisher	Bantry, c.g.
Colossus, B.	Capt. S. A. Johnson.	Holyhead, c.g.
Conqueror, B.		T. to Cambridge
Coquette, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. C. P. Beaty-Pownall	T. to Pembroke
Crane, t.b.d.	Com. T. D. W. Napier	T. to Victory, i.
Curacoa, cr.	Com. H. Lyon.	T. to Northampton
Curlew, g.v.		T. to Cambridge
Cygnet, t.b.d.	Com. Hon. H. L. A. Hood	T. to Pembroke, i.
Dædalus, h.	Lieut.-Com. B. C. Barber	Bristol (R.N.R.)
Defiance, h.	Capt. F. T. Hamilton	Torpedo School, D.
Diadem, cr.	Capt. H. S. F. Niblett	Channel Squadron
Dolphin, sloop	Lieut.-Com. J. Luce	T. to Boscawen
D. of Wellingt'n, h.	Capt. W. de V. Hamilton	Depôt Ship, P.
Durham, h.	Lieut.-Com. W. F. Forrest	Leith (R.N.R.)
Eagle, h.	Com. C. E. Gladstone	Liverpool (R.N.R.)
Edinburgh, B.	Com. W. G. Van Ingen	T. to Wildfire [(Gunnery School)
Elfin, y.	Staff-Com. J. E. Tully.	T. to Victoria and [Albert
Enchantress, y.	Staff-Capt. P. D. Ouless	Admiralty Yacht, P
Europa, cr.	Capt. A. J. Pocklington	Particular Service
Excellent	Capt. W. H. May, M.V.O.	Gunnery Sch., W.I.
Fawn, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. W. Dalgety	T. to Victory, i.
Ferret, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. N. Hunter	T. to Vivid, i.
Fire Queen, y.	Staff-Capt. T. Hawkins Smith	T. to Victory
Flirt, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Thomas	T. to Victory
Flying Fish, t.b.d.	Com. M. Singer	T. to Victory, i.
Furious, cr.	Capt. L. E. Wintz	Channel Squadron
Galatea, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cross	Hull, c.g.
Ganges, h.	Com. W. V. Anson	Harwich (boys)
Gleaner, t.g.b.	Com. F. H. Peyton	Gravesend (R.N.R)
Gossamer, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. T. Cole	T. to Melampus, c.g.
Hannibal, B.	Capt. Sir B. W. Walker, Bart., C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Haughty, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. La T. Leatham	T. to Pembroke, i.
Hearty, g.b.	Com. H. G. King Hall, D.S.O.	North Sea [(fisheries)
Hecla	Com. W. J. Scullard (N)	Torpedo Depôt, P.
Hero, B.	Com. W. de Salis.	T. to Excellent
Highflyer, cr.	Capt. F. E. E. Brock	T. Squadron (Tem.)
Howe, B.	Captain H. L. Fleet (Rear-Adml. A. P. M. Lake).	Queenstown, p.g.
Impregnable, h.	Capt. A. C. B. Bromley	Devonport (boys)
Indus, h.	Capt. W. Marrack (Rear-Adml. T. S. Jackson).	D'nport Reserves
Jackal, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Tancred	Coast of Scotland [(fisheries)
Janus, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. C. F. Corbett	T. to Pembroke
Jaseur, t.g.b.	Com. W. Carey	T. to Vernon
Jason, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Bruce.	Particular Service
Juno, cr.	Capt. G. H. Cherry	Training Squadron
Jupiter, B.	Capt. J. Durnford, C.B., D.S.O.	Channel Squadron
Kite, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. P. W. Hope.	T. to Excellent
Landrail, g.v.		T. to Wildfire
Latona, cr.	Capt. H. C. A. Baynes.	Particular Service
Leda, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. V. Maud	T. to Australia, c.g.
Liberty, brig.	Lieut.-Com. C. H. Morgan	T. to Lion
Lightning, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. C. O. Mansergh	T. to Victory, i.
Lion, h.	Com. E. G. Shortland.	Devonport (boys)
Lynx, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. S. H. Radcliffe	T. to Vivid
Magnet, tug.	Lieut.-Com. J. Webber	T. to Victory
Magnificent, B.	Capt. J. Ferris (Rear-Adml. A. D. Fanshawe).	Channel Squadron
Majestic, B.	Capt. G. Le C. Egerton, C.B. (Vice-Admiral Sir H. H. Rawson, K.C.B.).	Channel Squadron
Mars, B.	Capt. H. J. May, C.B.	Channel Squadron
Martin, brig.	Lieut.-Com. S. M. Agnew	T. to St. Vincent
Medea, cr.	Com. C. G. May	S'th'pton (R.N.R.)
Medusa, cr.	Com. A. L. K. Knapton	N. Shields (R.N.R)
Melampus, cr.	Capt. R. N. Gresley	Kingstown, c.g.
Mermaid, t.b.d.	Com. M. E. F. Kerr	T. to Pembroke, i.
Minerva, cr.	Capt. F. O. Pike	Training Squadron
Minotaur, cr.	Com. E. G. Barton	T. to Boscawen
Nautilus, brig	Lieut.-Com. H. H. D. Tothill	T. to Impregnable
Nile, B.	Capt. G. C. Langley	Devonport, p.g.
Northampton, cr.	Capt. H. A. W. Onslow	Recruiting Service
Northumberl'd, cr.	Com. C. E. Tower	Depôt Ship, C.
Onyx, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. Oliver	T. to Severn, c.g.
Osborne, y.	Capt. C. Windham	Royal Yacht, P.
Pactolus, cr.	Capt. F. J. Foley	Channel Squadron
Panther, t.b.d.	Com. J. I. Graham	T. to Vivid, i.
Pembroke, h.	Capt. A. Macleod.	Medway Res'ves, C
Pilot, brig	Lieut.-Com. W. J. S. Alderson	T. to Impregnable
President, h.	Com. A. C. Woods	W.I. Docks (R.N.R)
Prince George, B.	Capt. A. Barrow	Channel Squadron
Racer, sloop	Com. M. S. Beatty (N)	T. to Britannia
Raven, g.b.	Com. A. Meldrum	Channel Islands
Renard, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. H. Eyre	T. to Colossus, c.g.
Repulse, B.	Capt. R. F. O. Foote, C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Research, s.	Capt. W. U. Moore	Home Waters
Resolution, B.	Capt. C. R Arbuthnot.	Channel Squadron
Rodney, B.	Capt. G. W. Russell	Queensferry, c.g.
St. George, cr.	Com. E. V. Poe, M.V.O., A.D.C.	Training Squadron
St. Vincent, h.	Com. C. F. Thursby	Portsmouth (boys)
Sans Pareil, B.	Capt. H. C. Bigge	Sheerness, p.g.
Seaflower, brig.	Lieut.-Com. E. G. H. Gamble	T. to Boscawen
Seagull, t.g.b.	Com. H. Grant-Dalton	Particular Service
Seahorse, s.	Staff-Com. G. S. Keigwin	Home Waters
Seal, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. A. J. Payne	T. to Vivid, i.
Severn, cr.	Capt. W. L. H. Browne	Harwich, c.g.
Shark, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. E. Corbett	T. to Vivid, i.
Sheldrake, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. H. Curteis	T. to Rodney
Spanker, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. H. E. F. Worthington	T. to Alexandra, c.g.
Star, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. B. S. Evans	T. to Victory, i.
Starfish, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. G. Corbett	T. to Victory, i.
Sturgeon, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. McG. Lockhart	T. to Pembroke
Thrasher, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. T. D. Pratt	T. to Vivid, i.
Thunderer, B.	Capt. J. E. Blaxland	Pembroke, p.g.
Trafalgar, B.	Capt. G. A. Primrose	Portsmouth, p.g.
Traveller, tug	Lieut.-Com. R. A. Cathie	T. to Vivid
Triton, s.	Capt. G. E. Richards	Home Waters
Unicorn, h.	Lieut.-Com. E. L. Austen	Dundee (R.N.R.)
Vernon, h.	Capt. C. G. Robinson	Torpedo School, P.
Vesuvius, g.b.	Lt.-Com. F. C. U. V. Wentworth	T. to Vernon
Victoria & Albert, y.	R.-Adml. Sir J. R. T. Fullerton, K.C.V.O., C.B., A.D.C.	Royal Yacht, P.
Victory, h.	Capt. F. C. B. Bridgeman (Adml. Sir M. Culme-Seymour, Bart., G.C.B.).	Portsmouth
Violet, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. B. Sparks.	T. to Victory
Vivid, y.	Capt. H. T. Grenfell (Adml. Sir H. Fairfax, K.C.B.).	Devonport
Wanderer, barque	Lieut.-Com. L. de W. Satow	T. to Boscawen
Wildfire, y.	Capt. C. Campbell, C.B., D.S.O., A.D.C. (Admiral Sir N. Bowden-Smith, K.C.B.).	Sheerness
Wolf, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. C. Kemble-Lambert.	T. to Vivid
Wye, s.	Staff-Com. C. R. H. Robinson	Particular Service

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII., cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings each, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co.,
LIMITED,
115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Watch & Clock
MAKERS
To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, New Bond St.
LONDON, W.,
And Workshops,
11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.
DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.)
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W.
(On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

HOTELS DE LUXE.

CAIRO.

GHEZIREH PALACE
AND SHEPHEARD'S HOTEL.

For Tariffs, full particulars, and to reserve accommodation, apply to

The International Sleeping Car Company,
14, COCKSPUR STREET, LONDON.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS.

Anglo-Bavarian
. . Ales. . .

IN CASK, from 1/- PER GAL.
IN BOTTLES, from 2/6 per doz. IMPERIAL PINTS.

BREWERY: SHEPTON MALLET.
AGENCIES IN ALL TOWNS.

Red White & Blue

IN MAKING, USE LESS QUANTITY, IT BEING SO MUCH STRONGER THAN ORDINARY COFFEE

SOLD EVERY WHERE!

Coffee-Delicious
for Breakfast & after Dinner.

THE
ARMY ASSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

LIFE. War Risks. World-wide.
ACCIDENTS. Residence abroad.
FIRE. Residence abroad.
BURGLARY.
HORSES.
MARINE RISKS.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison, or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing, without endorsement or removal.

Life Premiums payable quarterly, if desired.

Refund of Income Duty obtained, by arrangement with the War Office, on sums paid for Life and Accident Insurances.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due.

Apply for Prospectus,
MANAGER, 217 Piccadilly (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.),
BRANCH OFFICE: 9, UNION STREET, ALDERSHOT.
NAVAL BRANCH: 15, PEMBROKE ROAD, PORTSMOUTH.

Digitized by Google

How to Speculate Successfully in War Time.

"How to Speculate Successfully in War Time." Important Article and Advice contained in this week's Stock Market Report, just issued, post free, by the

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD

Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Telephone: 1861 Avenue.

Telegrams: "PLENARILY, LONDON."

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE, AND COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—Lancet, July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from Wine."—Medical Press, August, '99.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered. Children's		1s. 3d.
Ladies'		2s. 3d
Gents'		3s. 3d.
Hemstitched. Ladies'		2s. 9d.
Gents'		3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

THE

No. 4 YOST Typewriter

Learnt more Quickly,

Prints Better,

Writes Faster,

Lasts Longer,

Needs Less Repairs

Than any other Typewriter on the Market.

CATALOGUE POST FREE.

50, HOLBORN VIADUCT, E.C., & 303, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., 9, STRAND, W.C.

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

JEWELLERS, CLOCKMAKERS AND SILVERSMITHS.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

ALSO JEWELLERY CATALOGUE.

No. 138.

"STRAND" CHRONOGRAPH

OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder ... 5:5:0

18ct. Gold 15:15:0

OUR REGISTERED 1900 BROOCH.
35 Clear Set Diamonds, 2 Whole Pearls, and Fine Gold... ... ... £5 5 0
Exceptional value and strength.

NO. 86 "STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.
18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.
Gold Crystal, £13 15s. Silver Crystal, £5.
Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s.
Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times" Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

COLONEL BADEN-POWELL'S STRONGHOLD.
From which he made the Great Sortie on December 26.

Photos. Copyright WITH COLONEL PILCHER "Navy & Army."
A Loyalist's Farm near Douglas.

Photo. Copyright. NORVALS PONT. G. W. Wilson.
An Important Strategic Point.

IT was through the Boers that we first heard of the heroic sortie of the Protectorate Regiment and the Bechuanaland Rifles on December 26 from the hard-pressed stronghold of Colonel Baden-Powell. The enemy were, unfortunately, too well informed concerning it. Spies had been at work, and our gallant men found the enemy well prepared at Game Tree, and the scrub surrounding it was alive with Boers, and nothing could live through the hail of fire—explosive bullets—that was poured upon the advancing troops under command of Captains Vernon and Sandford. With extraordinary heroism the two officers, accompanied by Lieutenant Paton and scout Cooke, the guide, rushed forward, and a few men even reached the sandbags of the fort, but all three officers were killed, and Vernon and Paton actually climbed the ditch and thrust their revolvers through the loopholes of the fort, only to be shot themselves the next moment. Eighteen men also fell, and many were wounded; but still the irrepressible garrison of Mafeking reports itself all well, and in a very "satisfactory condition." Certainly Colonel Baden-Powell and his colonials have given the Boers a hard nut to crack.

It is a pleasure to illustrate anything concerning gallant achievements, and our picture of the farm of a loyalist in the region swept clear of Boers by Lieutenant-Colonel Pilcher relates to one not less than splendid.

Those Queenslanders and Canadians, with the men of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry who accompanied them, are the right sort of soldiers to beat the Boers at their own game. They have the mobility that we should have liked to discover on the Tugela and the Modder. The force of 500 left Belmont on the last day of the old year, and covered twenty-one miles before sunset, and on the next day, after a long march of twenty miles, the Boers were completely defeated by the exercise of sterling military qualities at Sunnyside. On the third and fourth days the distances covered were fifteen miles, the refugees then being of the company, and twenty-four miles. The loyal farmers were paid for what was consumed, while the disloyal colonists' possessions were commandeered, and the men who had levanted were marked for future penalties. Douglas was temporarily occupied, and given a refreshing sight of the flag, and all the loyalists from the place and the neighbouring farms were conveyed in safety to Belmont. The operation had been completely successful, and indicates the way in which we must yet outdo the Boers.

Our last picture is of Norvals Pont, that important strategic position where the railway crosses the Orange River to Bloemfontein. This and the waggon road bridge are places of immense importance to the Boers who have crossed into Cape Colony, and their communications with which General French threatened by his advance against Colesberg.

Digitized by Google

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E. Lists Free.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS. SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

SMOKE PIONEER CIGARETTES

3D.

PER PACKET

THE "OSMAN" Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES, Limited,
MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—I am so sorry that I had not room last week to answer Bob's questions about Kodaks, so I make haste to do so now.

I was much interested in all he told me about his experiments, and I was very sorry that he had disappointments in his first photographs at Singapore. But really it is entirely his own fault if his films do not answer in that climate, for I can tell you from Jack's experience with them in such damp, hot places, that, if he will only take the trouble to keep his camera, when loaded, carefully wrapped up, and free from damp and heat, he will find the films every bit as good as they are in England. They should, however, be continually sealed up, and all sensitive photographic films and plates should be exposed and developed as soon as possible after removal from their cases. All this means very little extra care and trouble, so that even Bob might be induced to follow such simple directions, and I hope his next attempts will be more satisfactory.

By the way, have you seen the latest Kodak just brought out? It is called the No. 2 Folding Bull's-eye Kodak, and is especially provided with a new arrangement in the form of a removable spool-holder, which makes the recharging of the camera most delightfully simple. For travelling, this Kodak has the great advantage of being extremely light, weighing but 15-oz., whilst the pictures are quite large enough for ordinary work—just 3½-in. by 3½-in.—and when folded it is only 1¾-in. in thickness. It can, of course, be loaded and unloaded in daylight, and can be used for both hand and stand work; and it costs but £2 2s. So altogether it is just the present for that nephew of yours. You should encourage him to take up photography; you never know when it may be useful in the Navy.

You say Katie asks for a sketch of a dress for skating in Halifax, whereupon I send you the enclosed, which looks very well made in a really brilliant shade of red cloth; people are so often afraid of the bright reds, and get in their stead one of the dull crimsons, which never look so well. It is very simply trimmed with black velvet strappings, whilst the vest is of white cloth or panne, braided with black, the under-skirt carrying out the same idea. No headgear worn with this costume would look better than a toque of white fox fur, with a black velvet chou placed just in the centre of the front and a bird of paradise plume waving from the crown, whilst if worn for a walking costume a large black velvet hat would look even better; but it must be all black, and trimmed only with long ostrich feathers.

A DRESS FOR SKATING.

In this country we cannot hope for any skating this winter, I am much afraid, and we had our hopes raised in such a tantalising manner just before Christmas. Really we should almost forget how to skate, it is so long since we had anything but warm, damp seasons, if it were not for the artificial ice with which we are so luxuriously provided at Princes', which reminds me to tell you that the directors of that comfortable restaurant, MM. Benoist and Fourault, who are also directors of the Hotel l'Hermitage, Monte Carlo, have made an offer to the War Office of free accommodation for two of the officers invalided home from South Africa. Everyone still works hard for the soldiers, either indirectly by helping their wives and families, or directly by sending out comforts to the front in the shape of warm clothing or little luxuries for the sick and wounded. What with the numerous Volunteers and Militiamen who are going or have gone, there is scarcely anyone that has not some near friend or relation on the active list, and thus everyone has some connection with one or other of the regiments at the front, which makes the collection and despatch of the presents easier than it otherwise might be. It may be useful to tell those who are not yet doing anything that warm woollen socks and Tam-o'-Shanter caps are most in demand just now, the latter being found more convenient than those of the Balaclava shape, which are apt to cover the ears so closely that they deaden the sound too much for men who have even in their sleep to be on the alert. The Southampton County Clothing Branch have been able to do much for the sick and wounded men since October 10, when the secretary opened a subscription list in their aid; in response she had received up to December 30 last the sum of £600 2s. 9d., for which she is most deeply grateful. This sum has enabled her to despatch to the base hospital at Wynberg 117 dozen pairs of socks, 55 dozen best woven vests and drawers, whilst to No. 4 Field Hospital, which sailed on the "Majestic," she sent £25 worth of condensed soups and wine, a large supply of bed jackets, nightingales, pyjama suits, feather pillows, flannel suits, etc., many of which were supplied by generous workers from all parts of England, and to Major J. Drew Moir, the medical officer in charge, she was able to give a cheque for £30, to be spent in purchasing fresh milk, eggs, and fruit in South Africa. Besides this she sent various garments to Lord Methuen's column, and others to the 10th Hussars and to the 2nd Battalion Warwickshire Regiment, in addition to distributing clothes to the women and children, for whom she received no less than 2,000 articles. Well pleased that her society has been able to do so much in the past, Mrs. Moreton hopes that kind friends will help them to do still more in the future, for help will be badly needed so long as the war lasts.

Yours affectionately,

Constance.

Digitized by Google

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for

Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull."

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere
in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY
AT THIS
AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated;
£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo,
and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON
For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,
£2 2 0

IT IS
THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
} LONDON.

WOOL FOR THE WAR.

Khaki Drill spells Chill.

Write or wire for details of complete

PURE WOOL REGULATION FIELD SERVICE OUTFIT.

SPECIAL KHAKI WOOLLEN SERGE FOR YEOMANRY.

Jaeger

MILITARY AND SPORTING
PURE WOOL TAILORS,
42, CONDUIT STREET, W.
Telegrams: "Highmost, London."

'Flor de Dindigul' Cigars

SAMPLES
5 for 1/-
12 Stamps

3D EACH

6 GOLD MEDALS

Bewlay & Co. LIMITED
49 STRAND & 143 CHEAPSIDE,
& of all respectable Tobacconists

Digitized by Google

Fry's

PURE CONCENTRATED

Cocoa

"The cocoa drinking season is now upon us," Ex-Military Attaché writes, "and Fry's is the most popular in military messes. It is always too good to be advertised down. I always carry some of it in my portmanteau when travelling, and make a cup with my hot shaving water immediately my valet brings it to my bedroom. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught drink Fry's Cocoa, and so do most of the upper ten thousand."—Aldershot Review.

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

We Season the World.

The Five Noted Seasons of the World — SPRING, SUMMER, AUTUMN, WINTER AND For Fish, Flesh, and Fowl of all kinds.

YORKSHIRE RELISH

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., & 2s. each. Beware of Substitutions. Sole Proprietors: GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & CO., LEEDS.

Digitized by Google

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 83—87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7, 8, ... Street, London, W.C.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 27th, 1900.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Edited by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
Offices, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL IX.
No 156

W. CATER & Co.,
To Her Majesty the Queen.
H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family.

NAVAL AND MILITARY
Tailors and Outfitters,
56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.
ESTABLISHED 1776.
Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

UNRIVALLED SITUATION IN LONDON.

THE
LANGHAM HOTEL,
PORTLAND PLACE & REGENT STREET, W.

SEPARATE APARTMENTS
FOR
Regimental, Hunt, & Private Dinners, etc.
MODERN IMPROVEMENTS. MODERATE TARIFF.

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—The Lancet. July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from wine."—Medical Press. August, '99.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
CAMBRIC
CHILDREN'S ... ... 1/3 doz.
LADIES' ... ... 2/3 ,,
GENTLEMEN'S ... 3/3 ,,
Hem-stitched, LADIES', 2/9 doz. ,, ,, ... 3/11 ,,
PRICE LISTS POST FREE.
POCKET
Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.
"Cheapest handkerchiefs I have ever seen."—SYLVIA'S JOURNAL.
HANDKERCHIEFS.
N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON.
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
FROM 10/6 PER DAY.
Telegraphic Addresses: For Management, "UNPARALLELED." For Visitors, "ERMINITE."

Digitized by Google

FOR JANUARY ONLY.

3D.	A Risin' Sun Metal Polish	FREE
	GIVEN WITH Stephens' White Knife Powder
6D.		4½D.
9D.	FOR	4½D.

NINEPENCE FOR FOURPENCE-HALFPENNY.

To be obtained from nearly all Grocers, Ironmongers, Oilmen, and Stores. One tin convinces. Nearest Retailer's Name and Address sent with pleasure.

STEPHENS' WHITE KNIFE POWDER does not stain the handles.

C. CHANCELLOR & Co., 13, Clerkenwell Rd., LONDON, E.C.

WOOL FOR THE WAR.

Khaki Drill spells Chill.

Write or wire for details of complete

PURE WOOL REGULATION FIELD SERVICE OUTFIT.

SPECIAL KHAKI WOOLLEN SERGE FOR YEOMANRY.

Jaeger

MILITARY AND SPORTING PURE WOOL TAILORS,

42, CONDUIT STREET, W.

Telegrams: "Highmost, London."

The New Material for Flannels, Surgical Dressing, Horse Clothing, &c. Does not get damp with perspiration and give cold.

"PETANELLE" WOOL.

A derivative of Peat. A natural Antiseptic and Deodorant.

THE HOSPITAL says: "The great advantage this peat-fibre preparation, 'Petanelle' possesses is its Power of Deodorizing; this speaks for itself. There is still a long list of inherent virtues to be noticed in regard to it; (1) its absorbing power is extraordinarily high; it is stated that it absorbs gradually and continuously, liquid equal to fourteen times its own weight, and gases equal to at least nine times its own volume. (2) It is aseptic and antiseptic, undergoing no change in itself in any condition or circumstance, and effectually killing all microbes when brought into contact with them. (3) Absorbed liquids are readily diffused and evaporated by its agency."

THE LANCET says: "Its absorbent power is great; we found that one specimen took up more than twelve times its own weight of water. It seems to possess the power of retarding the growth of micro-organisms, and this, of course, enhances its value."

Professor JAMES BAYNE'S Analysis of "PETANELLE" Disinfecting Powder. CHEMICAL LABORATORY, CAMDEN TOWN, August 14th, 1899.

I hereby certify that I have analysed a sample of the "PETANELLE" DISINFECTING POWDER. I find it consists of Peat Powder, mixed with solid and liquid Antiseptics and Disinfectants, and is scented with pine and other essential oils. I have submitted the powder to the most severe tests, and the results of my experiments are in every respect highly favourable. The powder possesses both Antiseptic and Disinfecting properties in a marked degree, and its action as a deodorizer is very rapid and lasting. Unlike many deodorizers, it does not, after destroying one odour leave another unpleasant one in its place; on the contrary the odour of the essential oils which remains, is decidedly pleasant and refreshing.

The powder will, undoubtedly, be found of the greatest service for mixing with the earth in dry closets, for sprinkling over manure heaps, and for general use in stables and kennels; in fact, wherever a quick and reliable deodorizer is required, as no matter how intolerable the stench may be, it is most effectually destroyed in a few minutes.

(Signed) JAMES BAYNE, F.C.S., Professor of Chemistry in the Royal Veterinary College.

PATE, BURKE & CO.,

6, WOOL EXCHANGE, BASINGHALL STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 156. Saturday, January 27th, 1900.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130
DECEMBER, 1899.
*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

The ART of . .

ROUGH RIDING

S.B.&Co. (MILITARY AND CIVIL)

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship and Rough Riding," 2/6.

First-Class Certificates.

EVERY N.C.O. and PRIVATE soldier at HOME or ABROAD who wants his FIRST should send a post card at once for particulars of the new and popular system. CHANGE of STATION does not interfere. Special help for those who cannot attend a garrison school. CLASSES are now forming for the MARCH EXAM.—RANDALL J. FOX (ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Two Little Vagabonds."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "The Masked Ball."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "How London Lives."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. "Rupert of Hentzau."
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "Jane."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m.
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "David Garrick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha." At 2 p.m., "Alice in Wonderland."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Puss in Boots.'
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Cinderella."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m.
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "The Ups and Downs of Life."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Cinderella."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Rogues and Vagabonds."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "Charley's Aunt."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Jack of Hearts."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH and MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT

FOUR-AND-A-HALF YEARS' RECORD.

During the 4½ years ending June, 1899, 142 Pupils were prepared and 131 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—13 out of 15.
SANDHURST—45 out of 49.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—26 out of 27.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—10 out of 10.
COOPER'S HILL—4 out of 4
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—2 out of 2.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
20 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153. Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP

"Rubbing it in"!

"Well lathered is half shaved."

After applying the thick, cream-like lather of Williams' Soap to the face, a little time spent "Rubbing it in" is well repaid. This is one of the secrets of easy shaving. The beard is softened, the razor cuts easily, the pores are cleansed and stimulated, and a healthful condition of the face thereby produced.

Sold by chemists, hairdressers and perfumers all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING STICKS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' LUXURY SHAVING TABLETS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' AMERICAN SHAVING TABLETS, 6d.
WILLIAMS' "JERSEY CREAM" TOILET SOAP, 6d.
Trial Tablet Williams' Shaving Soap for 1d. stamp, by addressing—
The J. B. Williams Co., 64 Gt. Russell St., London, W. C., or 161 Clarence St., Sydney.
Chief Offices and Laboratories—Glastonbury, Conn., U. S. A.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. Hook, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. Fourault, Managing Director. V. Benoist, Administrateur.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.

writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.

"I have now prescribed them for the last 8 years in my hospitals and private practice, and find them of great benefit. I certainly and most strongly recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

WEST LONDON HOSPITAL,

Hammersmith Road, W. (101 beds.)

Patron: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President: THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, K.G.
Treasurer: THE LORD ROTHSCHILD.

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED for opening new wards for 80 additional beds.

R. J. Gilbert, Secretary-Superintendent.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN

And CHILDREN,
Marylebone Road, N.W.

Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.

W. Guntrip King, Secretary.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS

and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, Charles Dibdin, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION,

BROMPTON.

The Hospital contains 321 Beds, and in 1897 received 1,681 In-patients. 13,098 Out-patients were also treated. The yearly requirements of the Hospital cannot be estimated at less than £25,000 a year. Further, it has been decided upon the unanimous and urgent advice of the Medical Staff to establish a

"COUNTRY BRANCH AND CONVALESCENT HOME,"

and it is estimated that £20,000 will be needed to inaugurate this new departure.

The Charity being Unendowed, is dependent on Donations, Annual Subscriptions, and Legacies, Contributions are therefore earnestly solicited in aid of both objects.

Bankers:
Messrs. Williams, Deacon, & Manchester & Salford Bank,
20, Birchin Lane, London,
WILLIAM H. THEOBALD, Secretary

ENCORE RAZOR

SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—Messrs. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.
FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.
GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.
HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.
SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.
PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,

T. TURNER & Co.,
Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,

who will supply through nearest Agents.

Country Life Illustrated,

VOL. VI.

Printed on Art Paper.

Cloth, Gilt Edges, 21s. ea.; or Half-Morocco, 25s. ea.

Vols. 1, 2, 3, & 4 (Nos. 1 to 104) are out of print.

OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK STREET W.C.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"THREE THINGS THAT WOMEN HIGHLY HOLD."

Exquisite Models. Perfect Fit. Guaranteed Wear.

The Y & N DIAGONAL SEAM

"No shape but this can please your dainty eye."

Will not split in the Seams, nor tear in the Fabric.

Made in White, Black, and all the fashionable Colours and Shades, in Italian Cloth, Satin and Coutil.

4/11, 5/11, 6/11, 7/11

per pair and upwards.

THREE GOLD MEDALS.

"Admirably modelled, exquisitely neat and strong."—Queen.

"The most comfortable corset ever made."—Ladies' Pictorial.

"The best make of corsets is the Y & N Diagonal Seam."—Gentlewoman.

CAUTION.—See that the REGISTERED TRADE MARK "Y. & N. Diagonal Seam," is imprinted on every Corset and on every Box. No others are genuine.

Sold by the principal Drapers and Ladies' Outfitters throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: With French at Rensburg	481
Delagoa Bay and the War. (Illustrated)	482
Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories. Enfield Lock.—I. (Illustrated) ...	483
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	485
Editorial Notices	486
The Navy and Army Diary	486
A Way They Had in the Navy ...	486
Literary News and Books to be Read. A Review of Newly-published Books and Notices of Books to Appear ...	488
The Battle of Modder River. (Illus.)	489
The City of London Imperial Volunteers. (Illustrated)	490
Operating on the Orange River. (Illus.)	492
The Battle of Colenso. With Buller in Natal. (Illustrated)	493
In the Central Theatre of War. (Illus.)	494
With General French at Naauwpoort Camp	496
The Story of the War	497
Deeds of Valour	498
Afloat and Ashore. Notes and Queries for Everyone	499
Disposition of Troops in South Africa ...	500
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	501
For Service in South Africa. (Illus.)	504

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Fourth Week.]

THE QUARTERS OF THE INFANTRY REGIMENTS.

	Battn.
Grenadier G'ds	1. Col. V. Hatton, C.B.	Windsor
	2. Lieut.-Col. F. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Wellington [Barracks.
	3. Lieut.-Col. E. M. S. Crabbe	Cape Colony
Coldstream G'ds	1. Lieut.-Col. A. E. Codrington	Cape Colony
	2. L.-C. Hon. A. H. Henniker-Major.	Cape Colony
	3. Lieut.-Col. V. J. Dawson	Chelsea
Scots Guards	1. Col. A. H. Paget	Cape Colony
	2. Col. I. R. Jones	Chelsea
	3. Major Hon. C. Harbord (tem.)	Chelsea
Royal Scots (1st)	1. Lieut.-Col. E. P. Morgan-Payler.	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. T. F. Ross	Poona
Queen's (Rl. West Surrey Reg., 2nd)	1. Col. J. S. Collins	Rawal Pindi
	2. Lt.-Col. E. O. F. Hamilton	Natal
The Buffs (East Kent Reg., 3rd)	1. Col. A. E. Ommanney	Kamptee
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. A. Hickson	Cape Colony
King's Own (Rl. Lancaster 4th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. Rowlandson	Singapore
	2. Col. M. E. Crofton	Cape Colony
Northumberland Fusiliers (5th).	1. Lt.-Col. C. G. C. Money, C.B.	Cape Colony
	2. Lt.-Col. R. L. A. Pennington	Cape Colony
Ryl. Warwickshire Regiment (6th).	1. Lt.-Col. W. E. G. Forbes, C.B.	Madras
	2. Lieut.-Col. M. Q. Jones, C.B.	Cape Colony
	* 3. Lieut.-Col. A. W. F. Jackson	Malta
Royal Fusiliers (7th).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. P. B. Rodick	Nusseerabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. C. Donald	Natal
	* 3. Lieut.-Col. J. E. Briggs	Gibraltar
King's (Liverpool Regiment, 8th).	1. Lieut.-Col. L. S. Mellor	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. S. H. Harrison	Enniskillen
Norfolk Regiment (9th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. L. Govan	Bombay
	2. Lieut.-Col. L. H. Phillips	For South Africa
Lincolnshire Reg. (10th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. R. Lowth, C.B.	Secunderabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. R. Roberts	For South Africa
Devonshire Reg. (11th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. W. Park	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. M. Bullock	Natal
Suffolk Regiment (12th)	1. Lt.-Col. G. F. C. Mackenzie	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. R. Townley	Quetta
Somersetshire L.I. (13th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. A. Walsh	Rawal Pindi
	2. Lieut.-Col. E. J. Gallwey	Natal
West Yorkshire Regiment (14th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. Grant-Dalton	Kurrachee
	2. Col. F. W. Kitchener	Natal
East Yorkshire Regiment (15th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. F. Garnett	Belgaum
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. W. Ward	Templemore
Bedfordshire Reg. (16th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Riddell	Mooltan
	2. Col. W. O. Cavenagh	Natal
Leicestershire Reg. (17th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. D. Carleton	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. W. McKinstry	Curragh
Royal Irish Reg. (18th).	1. Lt.-Col. H. W. N. Guinness	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. B. Forster	Mhow
Yorkshire Reg. (19th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Bowles	Cape Colony
	2. Lt.-Col. C. J. Spottiswoode	Umballa
Lancashire Fus. (20th).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. L. E. May	Crete
	2. Lt.-Cl. C. J. Blomfield, D.S.O.	Natal
	* 3. Lieut.-Col. R. G. Bruxner-Randall.	Malta
Royal Scots Fus. (21st).	1. Lt.-Col. A. H. Abercrombie	Peshawur
	2. Lieut.-Col. E. E. Carr	Natal
Cheshire Regiment (22nd).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. W. Bromfield	Secunderabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. F. Curteis	For South Africa
Royal Welsh Fus. (23rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. C. H. Thorold	Natal
	2. Lt.-Col. Hon. R. H. Bertie	Hong Kong
South Wales Borderers (24th).	1. Lt.-Col. H. G. Mainwaring	Chakrata
	2. Lieut.-Col. Hon. U. de R. B. Roche.	For South Africa
K.O. Scottish Borderers (25th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. W. Godfray	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. T. W. Hewat	Cawnpore
Cameronians (Sct. Rifles, 26th-90th)	1. Lieut.-Col. S. H. Lomax	Lucknow
	2. Lieut.-Col. E. Cooke	Natal
Royal Inniskilling Fus. (27th-108th)	1. Lt.-Col. T. M. G. Thackeray	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. M. Greenfield	Meean Meer
Gloucestershire Reg. (28th-61st).	1. Lieut.-Col.	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. F. Lindsell	For South Africa
Worcestershire Reg. (29th-36th).	1. Lieut.-Col. O. H. Oakes	Aldershot
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. Coningham	Cape Colony
East Lancashire Reg. (30th-59th).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. J. A. Wright	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. G. Watson	Ranikhet
East Surrey Reg. 31st-70th).	1. Lt.-Col. W. J. H. Frodsham	Jhansi
	2. Lieut.-Col. R. H. W. Harris	Natal
Duke of Cornwall's L.I. (32nd-46th).	1. Col. C. F. A. Turnbull	Lucknow
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. Aldworth, D.S.O.	Cape Colony
D. of Wellington's (W. Riding Reg., 33rd-76th).	1. Lt.-Col. G. E. Lloyd, D.S.O.	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. S. J. Trench	Rangoon
Border Regiment (34th-55th).	1. Col. T. H. E. Hinde	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. S. Wood	Bareilly
Royal Sussex Reg. (35th-107th).	1. Lieut.-Col. B. D. A. Donne	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. C. Young	Sealkote
Hampshire Reg. (37th-67th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. R. Parkinson	Cherat, Punjab
	2. Lieut.-Col. W. E. Briggs	For South Africa
South Staffords're Reg. (38th-80th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Savage	Gibraltar
	2. Lieut.-Col. N. S. Allen	Thayetmyo, Burma
Dorsetshire Reg. (39th-54th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. J. J. Kentish	Nowshera, Punjab
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. H. Law	Natal
South Lancashire Reg. (40th-82nd)	1. L.-C. W. McCarthy-O'Leary	Natal
	2. L.-C. A. F. G. Richardson	Jubbulpore
Welsh Regiment (41st-69th).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. J. F. Banfield	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. F. S. L. Penno	Ahmednugger
The Black Watch (Ryl. Highland's 42nd-73rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. E. G. Grogan	Sitapur
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. M. Carthew-Yorstoun.	Cape Colony
Oxfordshire L.I. (43rd-52nd).	1. Lt.-Col. Hon. A. E. Dalzell	Cape Colony
	2. Col. F. H. Plowden	Ferozepore
Essex Regiment (44th-56th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. E. Stephenson	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. T. Stock	Shwebo, Burma
Sherwood F'r'sters (Derbyshire Rg., (45th-95th).	1. Col. H. L. Smith-Dorrien, D.S.O.	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. D. Bulpett	Malta
Loyal North Lancashire Regim't. (47th-81st).	1. Lieut.-Col. R. G. Kekewich	Cape Colony
	2. Lt.-Col. B. A. Satterthwaite	Malta
Northamptonshire Reg. (48th-58th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. B. Capper	Allahabad
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Denny	Cape Colony
Rl. Berkshire Reg. (49th-66th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. C. Carter	Parkhurst
	2. Lt.-Col. C. Evans-Gordon	Cape Colony
Queen's Own (Ryl. West Kent Reg., 50th-97th).	1. L.-C. C. W. H. Evans, D.S.O.	Aden
	2. Lt.-Col. E. A. W. S. Grove	For South Africa
King's Own Yorks. L.I. (51st-105th)	1. L.-C. Sir H. A. W. Johnson, Bart.	Buttevant
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. St. L. Barter	Cape Colony
King's (Shropshire L.I., 53rd-85th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. H. Collette	Poona
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. Spens	Cape Colony
Middlesex Reg. (57th-77th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. G. White	Welling'n, Madras
	2. Lieut.-Col. A. W. Hill	Natal
King's Royal Rifle Corps (60th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Gore-Browne	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. G. G. Grimwood	Natal
	3. L.-C. R. G. Buchanan-Riddell	Natal
	4. Lieut.-Col. E. W. Herbert	Cork
Wiltshire Regim't. (62nd-99th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. C. Harford	Quetta
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. M. Carter	Cape Colony
Manchester Reg. (63rd-96th).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. E. R. Curran	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. T. Reay	Dublin
North Staffords're Reg. (64th-98th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. Currie, C.B.	Subathu
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. E. Bradley	For South Africa
York & Lancaster Reg. (65th-84th).	1. Lieut.-Col. W. J. Kirkpatrick	Natal
	2. Col. H. Boughey	Agra
Durham Light I. (68th-106th).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. L. Woodland	Natal
	2. Lt.-Col. A. de B. V. Paget	Mandalay
Highland Light I. (71st-74th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. R. Kelham	Cape Colony
	2. Lt.-Col. R. D. B. Rutherford	Ceylon
Seaforth Highl'rs (72nd-78th).	1. Lieut.-Col. J. A. Campbell	Egypt
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. W. Hughes-Hallett, D.S.O.	Cape Colony
Gordon Highl'rs (75th-92nd).	1. Lt.-Col. M. A. Scott	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col.	Natal
Q.O. Cameron H'rs (79th).	1. Lieut.-Col. T. F. A. Watson-Kennedy.	Egypt
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. M. Hunt	Gibraltar
Royal Irish Rifles (83rd-86th).	1. Lieut.-Col. C. Haggard	Fort William, [Bengal
	2. Lieut.-Col. H. A. Eagar	Cape Colony
Ryl. Irish Fusiliers (87th-89th).	1. Lieut.-Col. F. R. C. Carleton	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. Reeves	Natal
Connaught Ran's (88th-94th).	1. Lieut.-Col. L. G. Brooke	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. E. Harman	Meerut
Argyll & Sutherl'd H'rs (91st-93rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. A. Wilson	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. H. Campbell	Ranikhet
Leinster Regiment (100th-109th).	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Martin	For South Africa
	2. Lieut.-Col. J. G. Glancy	Barbados
Ryl. Munster Fus. (101st-104th).	1. Lieut.-Col. E. S. Evans	Cape Colony
	2. Lieut.-Col. P. S. Druitt	Dinapore
Royal Dublin Fus. (102nd-103rd).	1. Lieut.-Col. G. A. Mills	Natal
	2. Lieut.-Col. C. D. Cooper	Natal
Rifle Brigade	1. Lieut.-Col. A. E. W Colville	Natal
	2. Lt.-Col. C. T. E. Metcalfe	Natal
	3. Lieut.-Col. W. R. Kenyon-Slaney.	Rawal Pindi
	4. Lieut.-Col. A. R. Pemberton	Dublin
West India Reg.	1. Lieut.-Col. A. L. Bayley	Bermuda
	2. Lieut.-Col. D. M. Allen	Jamaica
	3. Lieut.-Col. A. Bor	Sierra Leone
Hong Kong Reg.	Lieut.-Col. J. M. A. Retallick	Hong Kong
Chinese Regiment	1. Lieut.-Col. H. Bower	Wei-hai-Wei
West African Reg.	Lieut.-Col. F. M. H. Marshall
B.C. Africa Rifles	1. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Manning	Central Africa
	2. Lt.-Col. H. E. J. Brake, R.A.	Mauritius
Provisional Batt.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Kelly	Shorncliffe

* 4th Battalion in course of formation.

Militia Battalions embodied for garrison service will be found elsewhere.

Digitized by Google

"The Eyes of the Navy and Army."

ROSS' PATENT NEW MODEL Prismatic Binocular FIELD GLASSES.

The power and Field of a Telescope in the Compass of an Opera Glass. Supplied to hundreds of officers of

THE SOUTH AFRICAN FIELD FORCE.

8 Diameters, £8 0 0
10 ,, £10 0 0
12 ,, £10 0 0

WITH SCREW FOCUSSING ADJUSTMENT, £1 EACH EXTRA.

ROSS, LTD.,

Manufacturing Opticians,

Contractors to Her Majesty's Governments, British and Colonial, also to the Principal Foreign Governments,

Established 1830.
LISTS FREE.

111, NEW BOND ST., & 31, COCKSPUR ST.,
LONDON, W.; CHARING CROSS, S.W.

THE MOST ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT, & PORTABLE FORM OF SOUP.

LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES

THESE SQUARES ARE PREPARED IN 13 VARIETIES (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.) AND SHOULD FIND A PLACE IN EVERY STORE-ROOM, BEING INVALUABLE FOR MAKING SOUP AT SHORT NOTICE OR IMPROVING STOCK. THEY WILL KEEP GOOD ANY REASONABLE LENGTH OF TIME AND ARE PACKED IN NEAT BOXES CONTAINING 6 & 12 SQUARES

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON, S.E.

The International Sleeping Car Co.

TRAINS DE LUXE.

CALAIS TO NICE, MONTE CARLO, AND SAN REMO. Every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and SUNDAY.

CALAIS TO ROME. Every Tuesday and Thursday.

And Three other Daily Services to the SOUTH.

Full and detailed information sent gratis, and all Tickets supplied at the Company's Chief London Offices, 14, COCKSPUR STREET, S.W.
The Official Guide and Time Book of the Company, "THE CONTINENTAL TRAVELLER," sent post free on application.

Red White & Blue

IN MAKING, USE LESS QUANTITY, IT BEING SO MUCH STRONGER THAN ORDINARY COFFEE

SOLD EVERY WHERE!

Coffee=Delicious for Breakfast & after Dinner.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING OF OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Oarlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co., LIMITED,
115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Watch & Clock MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, New Bond St.
LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,
11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 2rd. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries, PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

"LÉRINA"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,

AND

COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

The Army Assurance Association.

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES:

Life. (War Risks. World-Wide.)

Accidents and Diseases.

Fire. (Residence Abroad.)

Burglary, &c.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing without endorsement on removal.

SPECIAL QUOTATIONS FOR MESSES.

Refund of Income Duty obtained by arrangement with the War Office, on all Life and Accident Premiums.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due, on permanent order.

Apply for Prospectus, MANAGER,

217, PICCADILLY, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, W.

Branch Office: IMPERIAL BUILDINGS, GROSVENOR ROAD, ALDERSHOT.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., 9, STRAND, W.C.

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

JEWELLERS, CLOCKMAKERS AND SILVERSMITHS.

5-stone all Diamond Half Hoop Rings, best quality Stones, from £5 to £150.

3 Pearl or Turquoise and 2 Diamonds, 18ct. Gold, £5 5 0

THE LARGEST VARIETY ALWAYS IN STOCK.

NO. 86 STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.

18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s. 18ct. Gold Crystal, £13 15s. Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s. Silver Crystal, £5. Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition. Free on application.

ALSO JEWELLERY CATALOGUE.

No. 138.

STRAND CHRONOGRAPH

OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder ... 5:5:0

18ct. Gold 15:15:0

Special Notice.—All Watches and Jewellery can be had upon our ("The Times Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

Battlefields and Scenes of the War.

PLACES WHERE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE FOUGHT.

WE are now able to add three remarkable pictures to our series of battle scenes in South Africa. That which heads the page brings to mind the great gallantry of the Naval Brigade with Lord Methuen's column, while those below illustrate the events that preceded. The force for the relief of Kimberley concentrated at the Orange River Station about November 19, and we have already illustrated the railway bridge there, about which a veritable entrenched camp has grown. Hope Town is a place of considerable importance near the bridge, and during the advance it became a great centre of supplies for our troops, and it is interesting also because it was in the neighbourhood that diamonds were first discovered in South Africa.

The next scene, chronologically, is of the camp at Belmont, at which place Lord Methuen defeated the Boers on November 23, carrying three successive ridges at the point of the bayonet. It was in this notable action that the Grenadier Guards, the Scots Guards, and the Northumberland Fusiliers so greatly distinguished themselves. The result was a real victory, for the Boers were driven out after very stubbornly resisting our advance, and we lost to the number of more than 200. The enemy's position was of great strength on a series of hills, extending about a dozen miles, and commanded the road to Kimberley. All our troops displayed the greatest gallantry, and the victory opened the way to the Modder River.

In the picture of the battle-field of Graspan, or, as it is officially styled, Enslin, a further stage in the fighting march to the Modder, will be seen the used cartridge-cases of the Naval Brigade, which, with the Yorkshire Light Infantry, won the laurels of the day. The guns were used with splendid effect, and of the courage of the Bluejackets and Marines and of the Yorkshiremen too much cannot be said. When the Naval contingent advanced to the foot of the hills they were met by a terrible hail of bullets. It was in this advance that Commander Ethelston was mortally wounded, and one by one other officers fell as they advanced to the desperate assault. The Naval detachment had lost its leaders, but the impetuous rush was extraordinary.

The height was to be taken at any cost, and it was gallantly carried, the Artillery galloping round in rear of the position and shelling the crowds of flying Boers as they went. The splendid dash of the seamen will not be forgotten. Man by man, with their Yorkshire comrades, they climbed up through the fiery hail, returning the discharge with a coolness that can scarcely be overpraised. Contempt of danger, a never-failing spring of patriotism, and readiness in all emergencies, are a great inheritance among our seamen, and they have never failed in their duty when the country has called for their services. There is, therefore, very great interest in our picture of the place from which their advance began.

GRASPAN.
The Place from which the Naval Brigade Advanced.

THE CAMP AT BELMONT.
Where the Boers were Defeated on November 23.

Photos. Copyright. "Navy & Army."

HOPE TOWN
The Base for the Advance from the Orange River.

Digitized by Google

THE SPHERE,

THE GREAT NEW WEEKLY ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

Edited by CLEMENT SHORTER. Price SIXPENCE.

THE FIRST NUMBER OF "THE SPHERE" will be Published on the 27th JANUARY, and will be obtainable of all Newsagents and Booksellers, and at all the Railway Bookstalls.

THE SPHERE will contain the most interesting Pictures of the War in South Africa, from Sketches and Photographs taken by our Six Special War Artists.

THE SPHERE will be a bright, up-to-date Paper for the home.

THE SPHERE will be printed by Messrs. EYRE AND SPOTTISWOODE, the QUEEN'S PRINTERS, on fine paper, and will be got up in all respects in the very best style.

THE SPHERE will spare no expense to illustrate all current events of interest in the finest and most artistic manner.

THE SPHERE will take its place in the front rank of Illustrated Newspapers, and will be a distinct advance in illustrated journalism.

THE SPHERE will not be overcrowded with advertisements. It will appeal to everyone who can afford to take in a Sixpenny Weekly Paper.

. . Six Special War Artists, . .

A number of the most distinguished newspaper Artists and of the most famous writers of the day will contribute to THE SPHERE.

THE WRITERS WHO WILL CONTRIBUTE TO THE FIRST VOLUME INCLUDE:

S. Baring-Gould
Robert Buchanan
Shan F. Bullock
Hall Caine
Robert W. Chambers
Miss Marie Corelli
F. Marion Crawford
Mrs. Andrew Dean
Austin Dobson
George Gissing
Thomas Hardy
E. W. Hornung
Maarten Maartens
A. E. W. Mason
F. Frankfort Moore
E. Nesbit
W. E. Norris
Ouida
Max Pemberton
W. Pett Ridge
Adeline Sergeant
Flora Annie Steel
J. A. Steuart.
Mrs. Humphry Ward

THE ARTISTS WHO WILL WORK FOR THE SPHERE INCLUDE:

W. D. Almond, R.I.
Stanley Berkeley
A. Birkenruth
Miss Maude Clarke
Oscar Eckhardt
J. Finnemore, R.I.
Hedley Fitton
M. Greiffenhagen
James Greig
Miss Chris Hammond
Dudley Hardy, R.I.
A. Standish Hartrick
G. Grenville Manton
Phil May, R.I.
Sidney Paget
Wal Paget
J. Bernard Partridge, R.I.
Carton Moore Park
Robert M. Paxton
Fred Pegram
Joseph Pennell
Ernest Prater
Linley Sambourne
W. T. Smedley.
Solomon J. Solomon, A.R.A.
Lancelot Speed
Lance Thackeray
Hugh Thomson, R.I.
F. H. Townsend
Edgar Wilson
T. Walter Wilson, R.I.
W. B. Wollen, R.I.

Every Newsagent can supply it if it is ordered at once; he can procure all that may be required if he orders at once, but he cannot ensure this after the date of publication.

FOR A FAITHFUL PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WAR SEE

The Sphere.

PUBLISHING OFFICE:

6, Great New Street, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—Each week I have tried in vain to find space to tell you of the doings at Malta, that island being one of the few places where any gaiety is going on. This week Norah writes to tell me about the second Club dance to which she went. It was not quite so crowded as that given when the Austrian Fleet was in the harbour, but it went off very well all the same. Sir John and Lady Fisher, who had a large dinner party the same evening, came in with their guests, Lady Fisher wearing black and her daughters fine white muslin, with bunches of pink roses in the bodices; and Lady Mary Sackville, who is staying in Malta with her sister, Lady Edina Strickland, looked very smart in a lovely dress of spangled net over pale blue, and turquoise blue velvet twisted in her hair.

Next evening everyone was to be found in the "Empress of India" to see the burlesque "Robin Hood" given by the officers. There had been dinner parties in most of the ships beforehand, everyone afterwards going aboard the "Empress of India." The arrangements were perfect, and the decorations and scenery wonderfully good, and the music, singing, and acting, in Norah's opinion, could not have been better. Mr. Collard was excellent as Robin Hood, whilst the skirt dancing of Mr. Green as Maid Marian was wonderful, and delighted everyone. Mr. Turner, as the Sheriff of Nottingham, kept everyone in fits of laughter, and Lieutenant Vereker, as an Interviewer, in a frock coat, and with a large note-book and camera, was also most amusing. Refreshments were served after the performance, and very greatly were they appreciated, as it was very late before people left the ship for their somewhat wet journey homewards.

Mrs. Robert Price's tableaux for the war fund on the 18th were a great success. And rightly so, for Mrs. Price, Lady Tennant, and Mrs. Dives were most energetic in making arrangements and in selling tickets before the event. Mrs. Arthur Paget's masques and tableaux will be the next interesting entertainment of the kind, when the supper is to be held at Princes', and the whole of the proceeds will be devoted to the fund.

Mind you look out for the new paper, the Sphere, which will have many first-rate pictures of the war. It will be under the editorship of Mr. Clement Shorter, who has retained many of the leading black and white artists, including several who have gone to South Africa, whilst Lord Rosslyn and Colonel Hoskier are to send photographs of interesting places and exciting events in Cape Colony and Natal.

A LINEN GOWN.

Were you not astounded to find that last Monday was the twenty-first anniversary of the defence of Rorke's Drift? I really could hardly believe it when I came upon the memorandum in "Holloway's Almanac" for this year. I am rather fond of looking through the days in this way, just to recall the important events of the past. Like every newspaper and magazine just now, this almanac refers to South African incidents of days gone by whenever it possibly can. It has also many odds and ends of information concerning old customs in England and abroad which are very entertaining to glance through. But I must not continue to write in this manner, or you will be wondering when I am going to describe the dress I promised you for Maud. I remembered your request about sending something more useful than muslin, so I chose this one in Harris linen, which I do hope she will like. It is made in pale green, with the bolero turned back with revers of openwork embroidery, through which we have a glimpse of the white linen which lines it. The skirt is trimmed with the same embroidery, whilst the vest is of tucked muslin, finished with a lace tie, and round the waist a white silk sash with fringed ends. Choosing such a cool dress made one feel very chilly, and I longed to pack myself up with it and go out to Maud for a time, particularly as I ordered it on one of those rainy days that are so depressing when combined with a very cold wind. But to grumble at the weather is too hackneyed, so I will bore you with no more to-day. I have just space enough to give you a little more information about Mrs. Robert Price's tableaux. The war pictures were some of the most impressive, "The Last Grip," represented by Colonel Darling, R.E., and Mr. Dunlop, quite bringing down the house; its pathos was greatly intensified by the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," which was played while the tableau was being exhibited. Luke Fildes' "The Doctor" was another most effective picture, Mr. Robert Price, M.P., being splendid as the doctor, and Miss Aileen Lambkin made a pathetic little figure, lying with the full light of the lamp shining on her as she quietly slept, whilst in the background stood the anxious, sorrowful father, his wife weeping by his side. Four hundred and fifty pounds was cleared for the fund before the evening was over, this being the result of sales of tickets, tea, and pictures.

Yours affectionately,
CONSTANCE.

Digitized by Google

INFLUENZA

The Enemy at Home.

While our gallant forces in South Africa are engaged in warfare against a wily and redoubtable enemy, we at home have to combat a foe not less insidious and dangerous—viz., Influenza.

All our regular medical men are fully engaged in the strife, while BOVRIL is acting as a in warding off the enemy.

VOLUNTEER FORCE

With the germs of Influenza everywhere in the air at the present moment, no person in a low state of health and spirits is safe from the infection. Body-warmth, vitality, strength—these must be constantly stimulated and maintained.

A cup of hot BOVRIL taken now and again will do this most effectually, thus supplying the system with the necessary powers of resistance.

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY

AT THIS

AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated

£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo.

and every other sound reproduced.

IT IS

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON

For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,

£2 2 0

THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C.
LONDON.

'Flor de Dindigul' Cigars

SAMPLES
5 for 1/-
12 Stamps

3D EACH

6 GOLD MEDALS

Bewlay & Co. LIMITED. 49 STRAND & 143 CHEAPSIDE, & of all respectable Tobacconists

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & CO., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd, 1900.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

ted by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
ces, 20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. [illegible]X.
No. [illegible]7.

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,
217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.).

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN. COLLIER'S BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.
COLLIER & Co., 53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

To ensure a speedy recovery from Influenza take
ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE
A NATURAL TONIC.
"THE ORIGINAL ST. RAPHAEL TONIC WINE."

This Wine is prepared according to the recipes of Professors Pasteur and Bouchardat.
This Wine is the ONLY ONE USED in the Paris Hospitals for Anæmia, Debility, Convalescents, Bronchial Affections; also for Young Girls and Children.
ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE is most efficacious as a Tonic, and must not be confounded with Coca, Kola, or Quin Quina preparations, which act on the nervous system without any nourishing properties.
To Ladies Nursing is much more beneficial than Stout.

To avoid spurious imitations each bottle bears on the neck the address of the SOLE AGENTS:
E. GALLAIS & CO. (Limited),
90, PICCADILLY, W.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
LINEN COLLARS. LADIES' 3-fold from 3/6 per doz.
" GENTS' 4-fold, 4/11 per doz.
CUFFS for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5/11 per doz.
PRICE LISTS POST FREE. COLLARS, Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.
CUFFS, AND SHIRTS.
MATCHLESS SHIRTS. Fine quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Pure Linen Fronts, 35/6 per ½-doz. (to measure, 2/- extra).
N.B.—Old Shirts made good as new with best materials in neckbands, cuffs and fronts for 14/- per ½-doz.
N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

Digitized by Google

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

WOOL FOR THE WAR.

Khaki Drill spells Chill.

Write or wire for details of complete

PURE WOOL REGULATION FIELD SERVICE OUTFIT.

SPECIAL KHAKI WOOLLEN SERGE FOR YEOMANRY.

Jaeger

MILITARY AND SPORTING PURE WOOL TAILORS,

42, CONDUIT STREET, W.

Telegrams: "Highmost, London."

'Flor de Dindigul' Cigars

SAMPLES 5 for 1/- 12 Stamps

3D EACH

6 GOLD MEDALS

Bewlay & Co. LIMITED 49 STRAND & 143 CHEAPSIDE, & of all respectable Tobacconists

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 157. Saturday, February 3rd, 1900.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130
DECEMBER, 1899.
*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

The ART of . .

ROUGH RIDING

(MILITARY AND CIVIL)

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship and Rough Riding," 2/6.

First-Class Certificates.

EVERY N.C.O. and PRIVATE soldier at HOME or ABROAD who wants his FIRST should send a post card at once for particulars of the new and popular system. CHANGE of STATION does not interfere. Special help for those who cannot attend a garrison school. CLASSES are now forming for the MARCH EXAM.—RANDALL J. FOX (ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Two Little Vagabonds."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m.
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "The Masked Ball."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C, 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Runaway Girl." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S W., 8.30 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "How London Lives."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W.
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. "Rupert of Hentzau."
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "Jane."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m.
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "David Garrick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha." At 2 p.m., "Alice in Wonderland."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Cinderella."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m.
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "The Ups and Downs of Life."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Cinderella."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Rogues and Vagabonds."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "Charley's Aunt."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Jack of Hearts."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FIVE YEARS' RECORD.

During the last five years 156 Pupils were prepared and 144 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—14 out of 16.
SANDHURST—53 out of 53.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—28 out of 29.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—10 out of 10.
COOPER'S HILL—4 out of 4.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—2 out of 2.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
20 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

THE "OSMAN"
Turkish Towels and Bath Mats.

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES, Limited,
MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY

Pickering's 'Blanco'

For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

REMOVES STAINS AND DISCOLOURATIONS, AND ENSURES EVENNESS OF COLOUR, AND A SOFT, SILKY SURFACE OF GLOSSY SATIN-LIKE APPEARANCE.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:

JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.

Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK,
SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.
Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S
GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
COCOA
BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

JEWSBURY & BROWN'S

ORIENTAL TOOTH PASTE.

Goddard's Plate Powder

Admitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro-Plate.

In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

SIX GOLD MEDALS.

HOTELS, CLUBS, etc.

JUNIOR
Naval & Military Club
96, PICCADILLY, W.

The Club House will be Opened for the use of Members on Monday, February 26th next, at 9 a.m.

February 1st, 1900.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:
The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.
HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.
GRAND HOTEL.
CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Holden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. Hook, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,
PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend. AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED. F. MICHELLI, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: The Advance to Magersfontein	505
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	506
The Imperial Yeomanry. (Illustrated)	508
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	509
Editorial Notices	510
The Navy and Army Diary	510
Horse Sickness in South Africa ...	510
Disposition of Troops in South Africa ...	511
War Pictures at Magersfontein	512
South African Volunteers: Colonial Troops with Generals Buller, Gatacre, and French. (Illustrated)	513
The Camp and Operations of Gatacre in Cape Colony. (Illustrated) ...	514
Some of Methuen's Scouts on the Modder River. (Illustrated)	516
With the Naval Brigade. (Illustrated)	517
In Camp on the Modder. (Illustrated)	518
The Relief of Ladysmith. With Our Forces on the Tugela. (Illustrated)	520
The War Correspondent in South Africa. (Illustrated)	521
Insurance Companies and the War ...	522
Battlefields and Scenes of the War. (Illus.)	523
The Story of the War	524
Munitions of War for South Africa. (Illustrated)	525
Our Colonial Forces. New Zealand.—X. (Illustrated)	527

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Royal Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

First Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY ON FOREIGN SERVICE.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. h.d.s. Harbour Defence Ship. d.v. Despatch Vessel. y. Yacht. sur.v. Surveying Vessel. d.s. Depot-ship. r.g.b. River Gun-boat. t.d.s. Torpedo Depot-ship.

Abyssinia, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Alacrity, d.v.	Com. A. H. Smith-Dorrien	China
Alert, sloop	Com. H. Savile	North America
Algerine, sloop	Com. E. J. W. Slade	China
Andromeda, cr.	Capt. J. L. Burr, C.M.G.	Mediterranean
Ardent, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. H. Richardson	Mediterranean
Astræa, cr.	Capt. A. W. Paget	Mediterranean
Assaye, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. O. U. Coates	East Indies
Aurora, cr.	Capt. E. H. Bayly	China
Banshee, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. L. Watts-Jones	Mediterranean
Barfleur, B.	Capt. J. S. Warrender (Rear-Admiral J. A. T. Bruce)	China
Barham, cr.	Com. H. L. Tottenham	Mediterranean
Barracouta, cr.	Com. R. H. Peirse	C. of Good Hope
Barrosa, cr.	Com. W. F. Tunnard	C. of Good Hope
Beagle, sloop	Com. Hon. H. A. S. Stanhope	S. E. C. of America
Bonaventure, cr.	Ct. R. A. J. Montgomerie, C.B.	China
Boomerang, t.g.b.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Boxer, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. J. Twiselton-Wykeham-Fiennes	Mediterranean
Brisk, cr.	Com. R. B. S. Wrey	China
Bruizer, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. L. Hulton	Mediterranean
Buzzard, sloop	Com. L. F. G. Tippinge	North America
Cæsar, B.	Capt. E. H. Gamble	Mediterranean
Canopus, B.	Capt. W. H. Fawkes	Mediterranean
Centurion, B.	Capt. J. R. Jellicoe (Vice-Adml. Sir E. H. Seymour, K.C.B.).	China
Cockatrice, g.b.	Com. H. N. Rolfe	Danube
Columbine, y.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Williamson	North America
Comus, cr.	Capt. G. A. Giffard	North America
Crescent, cr.	Capt. C. J. G. Sawle (Vice-Adl. Sir F. G. D. Bedford, K.C.B.).	North America
Cruiser, sloop	Com. L. G. Tufnell	Mediterranean
Daphne, sloop	Com. C. W. Winnington-Ingram.	China
Dart, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. Parry	Australia
Devastation, B.	Capt. F. S. Inglefield	Gibraltar
Dido, cr.	Capt. G. Neville	Mediterranean
Doris, cr.	Ct. R. C. Prothero (Rear-Adml. Sir R. H. Harris, K.C.M.G.).	C. of Good Hope
Dragon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Lambert	Mediterranean
Dryad, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. Dineley	Mediterranean
Dwarf, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. F. Shakespear	C. of Good Hope
Earnest, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Baird	Mediterranean
Eclipse, cr.	Capt. P. W. Bush (Rear-Admiral H. D. Bosanquet).	East Indies
Egeria, sur.v.	Com. M. H. Smyth	Pacific
Empress of India B	Capt. H. H. Dyke	Mediterranean
Endymion, cr.	Capt. G. A. Callaghan	China
Esk, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. Chadwick.	China
Fame, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. J. B. Keyes	China
Fearless, cr.	Com. H. R. P. Floyd	C. of Good Hope
Flora, cr.	Commodore R. L. Groome	S. E. C. of America
Foam, t.b.d.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Forte, cr.	Capt. E. P. Jones	C. of Good Hope
Griffon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. Hon. H. G. Brand	Mediterranean
Halcyon, t.g.b.	Com. S. W. A. H. Gray	Mediterranean
Handy, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. A. Moreton	China
Hart, t.b.d.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Hazard, t.g.b.	Com. P. V. Lewes, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Hebe, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Taylor.	Mediterranean
Herald, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. Harvey	River Zambesi
Hermes, cr.	Capt. F. H. Henderson	North America
Hermione, cr.	Capt. R. S. D. Cumming	China
Hibernia, d.s.	Com. W. Ricketts (Rear-Adml. Burges Watson, C.V.O.).	Malta Reserves
Highflyer, cr.	Capt. F. E. E. Brock	East Indies (to relieve Eclipse)
Hood, B.	Capt. A. C. Corry.	Mediterranean
Hotspur, h.d.s.	Com. C. S. Elliot	Bermuda
Humber, store-ship	Com. H. J. Davison	China
Icarus, sloop	Com. G. F. S. Knowling	Pacific
Illustrious, B.	Capt. Sir R. Poore, Bart.	Mediterranean
Imogene, d.v.	Com. E. J. Bain	Mediterranean
Indefatigable, cr.	Capt. F. L. Campbell	North America
Iphigenia, cr.	Capt. H. N. Dudding (to be relieved by Pique).	China
Isis, cr.	Capt. G. M. Henderson	Mediterranean
Karrakatta, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Harbord.	Australia
Katoomba, cr.	Capt. H. L. F. Royle, D.S.O.	Sydney Reserves
Lapwing, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Lambert	East Indies
Leander, cr.	Capt. F. F. Fegen	Pacific
Liffey, d.s.	Staff-Com. P. H. Wright	Coquimbo
Linnet, g.b.	Com. W. W. Smythe	China
Lizard, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Watson	Australia
Magdala, h.d.s.	Capt. T. Y. Greet.	Bombay Reserves
Magicienne, cr.	Capt. W. B. Fisher	C. of Good Hope
Magpie, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. K. Laird	C. of Good Hope
Marathon, cr.	Capt. J. G. M. Field.	East Indies
Melita, sloop	Com. I. M. Fraser, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Melpomene, cr.	Capt. J. Denison	East Indies
Mildura, cr.	Capt. H. Leah	Australia
Mohawk, cr.	Com. F. H. P. W. Freeman	Australia
Monarch, B.	Capt. R. D. B. Bruce	Simon's Bay
Mosquito, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. L. Cox	River Zambesi
Orion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Orlando, cr.	Capt. J. H. T. Burke	China
Partridge, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Hunt	C. of Good Hope
Peacock, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. S. G. Douglas	China
Pearl, cr.	Capt. J. E. C. Goodrich	North America
Pegasus, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cochran	S. E. C. of America
Pelorus, cr.	Capt. H. C. B. Hulbert	C. of Good Hope
Penguin, sur.v.	Capt. J. W. Combe	Australia
Phaeton, cr.	Capt. F. G. Kirby	Pacific
Pheasant, g.b.	Com. H. G. Smith	Pacific
Philomel, cr.	Capt. J. E. Bearcroft	C. of Good Hope
Phœnix, sloop	Com. R. P. Cochran.	China
Pigeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. O. V. de Satge	East Indies
Pigmy, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. E. Green	China
Pique, cr.	(Will relieve Iphigenia)	China
Plassy, t.g.b.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Plover, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. V. de M. Cowper	China
Polyphemus, ram	Com. E. L. Lang	Mediterranean
Pomone, cr.	Capt. E. A. Simons	East Indies
Porpoise, cr.	Com. A. H. D. Ravenhill	Australia
Powerful, cr.	Capt. Hon. Hedworth Lambton	C. of Good Hope
Proserpine, cr.	Capt. J. L. Marx	North America
Psyche, cr.	Capt. F. R. Pelly	North America
Pylades, cr.	Com. R. G. O. Tupper	Australia
Quail, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Rymer	North America
Racoon, cr.	Com. A. E. A. Grant	East Indies
Rambler, sur.v.	Com. H. E. P. Cust	West Indies
Ramillies, B.	Capt. R. S. Lowry	Mediterranean
Rattler, g.b.	Lt.-Com. Hon. G. A. Hardinge.	China
Redpole, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Corbett	China
Renown, B.	Capt. D. McN. Riddel (Vice-Admiral Sir J. A. Fisher, K.C.B.).	Mediterranean
Revenge, B.	Capt. J. F. King Hall (Rear-Adl. Lord Charles Beresford, C.B.).	Mediterranean
Ringarooma, cr.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Ringdove, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. F. Ayscough	Australia
Rocket, t.b.d.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Royal Arthur, cr.	Capt. C. G. Dicken (Rear-Adml. H. L. Pearson).	Australia
Royal Oak, B.	Capt. W. H. B. Graham	Mediterranean
Royal Sovereign, B.	Capt. M. P. O'Callaghan	Mediterranean
Rupert, h.d.s.	Com. A. B. G. Grenfell.	Alexandria
Salamander, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. C. Villiers	Mediterranean
Sandfly, t.g.b.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Sandpiper, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. C. Carr	China
Scorpion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Scout, cr.	Com. W. de Salis.	Mediterranean
Snipe, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Oldham	China
Sparrowhawk, t.b.d	(Reserve Esquimault)	Pacific
Speedy, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. G. W. Davy	Mediterranean
Sphinx, s.	Com. H. A. Phillips.	East Indies
Surprise, d.v.	Com. F. W. F. Hervey	Mediterranean
Swallow, sloop	Com. E. F. Inglefield	S. E. C. of America
Swift, g.b.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Tamar, d.s.	Commodore F. Powell, C.B.	Hong Kong
Tartar, cr.	Com. F. R. W. Morgan	C. of Good Hope
Tauranga, cr.	Capt. L. C. Stuart	Australia
Terrible, cr.	Capt. Percy Scott	C. of Good Hope
Terror, d.s.	Capt. T. MacGill, C.B.	Bermuda
Theseus, cr.	Capt. V. A. Tisdall	Mediterranean
Thetis, cr.	Capt. W. S. Rees	C. of Good Hope
Thrush, g.b.	(Reserve Simon's Bay)	C. of Good Hope
Torch, sloop	Com. H. Preedy	Australia
Tribune, cr.	Capt. R. S. Rolleston	North America
Tyne, supply-ship	Com. K. Wade.	Mediterranean
Undaunted, cr.	Capt. A. C. Clarke	China
Urgent, d.s.	Commodore E. H. M. Davis, C.M.G.	Jamaica
Venus, cr.	Capt. Sir A. B. Milne, Bart.	Mediterranean
Victorious, B.	Capt. A. Schomberg	China
Virago, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. T. F. Pike	Pacific
Vulcan, t.d.s.	Capt. H. B. Jackson	Mediterranean
Wallaroo, cr.	Capt. F. C. M. Noel.	Australia
Warspite, cr.	Capt. T. P Walker (Rear-Adml. Beaumont).	Pacific
Waterwitch, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. W. P. Dawson	China
Whiting, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. Kelly	China
Widgeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. F. Gurney	C. of Good Hope
Wivern, h.d.s.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Woodcock, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. R. Watson	China
Woodlark, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. E. Hillman	China

Digitized by Google

HEATH & GEORGE,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Gymnastic Apparatus

TO HER MAJESTY'S ARMY & NAVY.

Calisthenic and Gun Drill Apparatus, the Italian Fencing Swords and Helmets, latest Aldershot pattern, and every description of Gymnastic Apparatus for public and private use.

Catalogues Free.

18, GOSWELL ROAD, LONDON, E.C.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.
DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.)
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W. (On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

LAZENBY'S

ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT & PORTABLE

SOUP SQUARES

These squares are prepared in 13 Varieties (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.), and should find a place in every store-room, being invaluable for making soup at short notice or improving stock. They will keep good any reasonable length of time, and are packed in neat boxes containing 6 & 12 Squares.

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON, S.E.

LAZENBY'S

13 VARIETIES.

SOUP SQUARES

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING OF OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passengers Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

Red White & Blue

IN MAKING, USE LESS QUANTITY, IT BEING SO MUCH STRONGER THAN ORDINARY COFFEE

SOLD EVERY WHERE!

Coffee=Delicious for Breakfast & after Dinner.

MARTELL'S

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—Lancet, July, '99.

THREE STAR BRANDY.

"A genuine old Brandy made from Wine."—Medical Press, August, '99.

"LERINA"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

Digitized by Google

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E. Lists Free.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,

AND

COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

THE

No. 4 YOST Typewriter

Learnt more Quickly,

Prints Better,

Writes Faster,

Lasts Longer,

Needs Less Repairs

Than any other Typewriter on the Market.

CATALOGUE POST FREE.

50, HOLBORN VIADUCT, E.C., & 303, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

USEFUL PRESENTS.

FOR OUR SOLDIERS AT THE FRONT.

217, PICCADILLY, W. (LONDON.) ALLEN & WRIGHT 26, POULTRY, E.C. LONDON.

MAKERS OF FINEST QUALITY (ONLY) BRIAR ROOT & MEERSCHAUM PIPES

Distinct in QUALITY, FINISH & STYLE.

No. 123 - 12/6. 2 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces. Short, light Pipes.

No. 98 - - 25/-. 4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto for indoor use.

No. 68 - 10/6. 2 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems.

ALL IN BEST LONDON-MADE MOROCCO CASES.

TRADE A & W MARK

No. 143 - - 31/-. 6 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces. (medium sized pipes, Army style).

HIGHEST CLASS GOODS MADE.

EVERY PIPE GUARANTEED.

No. 95 - - 29/-. 4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (large size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto for indoor use.

No. 108 - 15/6. 3 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems.

No. 94 - - 32/-. 4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (large size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF "A & W's SPECIALITIES IN FINE GOODS" POST FREE.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., 9, STRAND, W.C.

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

JEWELLERS, CLOCKMAKERS AND SILVERSMITHS.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

OUR 1900 BROOCH.

Registered No. 850921.

35 Clear Set Diamonds, 2 Whole Pearls, and Fine Gold £5 5 0

Exceptional value and strength.

NO. 86 STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.

18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.

18ct. Gold Crystal, £13 15s.

Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s. Silver Crystal, £5. Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition. Free on application.

ALSO JEWELLERY CATALOGUE

No. 138.

STRAND CHRONOGRAPH

OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases ... each 8:8:0

With 30 Minute Recorder ... 5:5:0

18ct. Gold 15:15:0

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—Do you see how hard everyone has been working to get the Imperial Yeomanry base hospital ready, and also the wonderful response there has been to the appeal for money and other necessaries? There was a very influential committee appointed to manage affairs, as you have probably read in the daily papers, and many of its members have been by no means content just to give their names, but have worked regularly and energetically, so that everything might be prepared by the proper time. Lady Essex, Lady Tweedmouth, Mrs. Lucas, and other ladies have been going daily to the committee-rooms at the Pall Mall Deposit, Carlton Street, where they have attended to all the necessary business in the most systematic way. Others have been getting up concerts and other entertainments in various villages and towns, so that the arrangements for the hospital should in no way be hampered by want of money.

Another member of the committee who has been of considerable assistance is Captain Arthur Haggard, late of the Shropshire Light Infantry, who is manager of the Military and Naval Branch of the Pall Mall Deposit. One day when I went down to the committee-rooms to see how things were progressing, Captain Haggard not only showed me all the cases of presents that had come in for the hospital, but took me into the baggage-rooms, which were really a most interesting sight, being piled up with trophies and other things belonging to the various regiments now at the front. A great deal of regimental silver is there too, and I should very much like to have seen that, but it was all stored away in safes out of my reach. There were also pile upon pile of baggage belonging to individual officers, most of whom are in South Africa, but some are on ordinary foreign service, and have here stored the things they have left behind. The Pall Mall Deposit is certainly a most convenient place for such a purpose, so, too, is the branch warehouse at Aldershot, and they both have the additional recommendation of being inexpensive.

Yes, indeed, you did read my letter quite wrongly if you understood that MM. Benoist and Fourrault—who had offered free accommodation at the Hermitage, Monte Carlo, to two of the wounded officers returning from South Africa—are directors of Princes' Skating Rink; it is Princes' Restaurant, of course, with which they are connected. It is here, too, that the supper following Mrs. Arthur Paget's masque will be held, and the proceeds—by the generosity of the directors—will be devoted entirely to Mrs. Paget's fund.

Maud complains that I never think of giving any hints for children's frocks, so I make haste to wipe off the reproach, and send a sketch showing a dress for a little girl of two and a-half, and another for a child of ten. The latter is a smart little lace costume, made entirely in white, of course, and finished with crêpe de chine sash and with revers of silk edged with chiffon ruching; whilst the mite of two is in a white silk frock, simply made with a yoke of tucked silk and lace insertion. The good lady with the children, and supposed to be their mother, is wearing a charming dress of white crêpe de chine, trimmed on the bodice with appliqué lace, of which also the sleeves are made, whilst the décolletage is edged with three very narrow rows of black velvet.

And, whilst I am on the subject of dress, I must not forget to tell you that the other day I saw that Miss Maud Alberga, of Old Burlington Street, has some of the very pretty hats she makes for hot climates, where the sun shines a little more genially than is its usual habit in England. Miss Alberga has made quite a speciality of these hats, as she has found they have met with much success. The crown is generally of very openwork fancy straw, and then all round, instead of a brim, there is a full frill of fine linen edged with lace, giving a very fresh and light effect, which is most becoming. Those I saw were of tuscan-coloured straw and white linen, a combination which was very pretty and looked so cool.

Yours affectionately, Constance.

SMART FROCKS FOR CHILDREN.

Digitized by Google

THE SPHERE,

THE GREAT NEW WEEKLY ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER.

Edited by CLEMENT SHORTER. Price SIXPENCE.

THE FIRST NUMBER OF "THE SPHERE" is now ready, and is obtainable of all Newsagents and Booksellers, and at all the Railway Bookstalls.

THE SPHERE contains the most interesting Pictures of the War in South Africa, from Sketches and Photographs taken by our Six Special War Artists.

THE SPHERE is a bright, up-to-date Paper for the home.

THE SPHERE is printed by Messrs. EYRE AND SPOTTISWOODE, the QUEEN'S PRINTERS, on fine paper, and will be got up in all respects in the very best style.

THE SPHERE will spare no expense to illustrate all current events of interest in the finest and most artistic manner.

THE SPHERE will take its place in the front rank of Illustrated Newspapers, and will be a distinct advance in illustrated journalism.

THE SPHERE is not overcrowded with advertisements. It appeals to everyone who can afford to take in a Sixpenny Weekly Paper.

. . Six Special War Artists, . .

A number of the most distinguished newspaper Artists and of the most famous writers of the day will contribute to THE SPHERE.

THE WRITERS WHO WILL CONTRIBUTE TO THE FIRST VOLUME INCLUDE:

S. Baring-Gould
Robert Buchanan
Shan F. Bullock
Hall Caine
Robert W. Chambers
Miss Marie Corelli
F. Marion Crawford
Mrs. Andrew Dean
Austin Dobson
George Gissing
Thomas Hardy
E. W. Hornung
Maarten Maartens
A. E. W. Mason
F. Frankfort Moore
E. Nesbit
W. E. Norris
Ouida
Max Pemberton
W. Pett Ridge
Adeline Sergeant
Flora Annie Steel
J. A. Steuart.
Mrs. Humphry Ward

THE ARTISTS WHO WILL WORK FOR THE SPHERE INCLUDE:

W. D. Almond, R.I.
Stanley Berkeley
A. Birkenruth
Miss Maude Clarke
Oscar Eckhardt
J. Finnemore, R.I.
Hedley Fitton
M. Greiffenhagen
James Greig
Miss Chris Hammond
Dudley Hardy, R.I.
A. Standish Hartrick
G. Grenville Manton
Phil May, R.I.
Sidney Paget
Wal Paget
J. Bernard Partridge, R.I.
Carton Moore Park
Robert M. Paxton
Fred Pegram
Joseph Pennell
Ernest Prater
Linley Sambourne
W. T. Smedley.
Solomon J. Solomon, A.R.A.
Lancelot Speed
Lance Thackeray
Hugh Thomson, R.I.
F. H. Townsend
Edgar Wilson
T. Walter Wilson, R.I.
W. B. Wollen, R.I.

FOR A FAITHFUL PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WAR SEE

The Sphere. PUBLISHING OFFICE: 6, Great New Street, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

"CAXO."—A commission in the Yeomanry is obtained through the lord-lieutenant of the county to which the regiment belongs. Subalterns must, when they join, be over seventeen years of age; otherwise there does not appear to be any age limit, though it stands to reason that a middle-aged man would scarcely be selected as a subaltern. A candidate for a commission must be medically fit, and must be of fair height and chest measurement. There does not seem to be any fixed standard. You should order from Messrs. Eyre and Spottiswoode, East Harding Street, Fetter Lane, Fleet Street, E.C., a copy of the "Yeomanry Regulations" (price 1s. 6d.), which you will find much information that would be useful to you.

* * * *

"W. F. A."—Please apply to Messrs. Lambert Weston and Son, 23, Sandgate Road, Folkestone.

* * * *

PERCIVAL R. T. (Africa).—You are too old to get a commission in a cavalry regiment through Sandhurst. You might still obtain it either through the Militia or as a University candidate. I advise you to write at once to the Director-General of Military Education, Horse Guards, or to Messrs. Eyre and Spottiswoode, East Harding Street, Fleet Street, London, E.C., for the "Regulations under which Commissions in the Army may be obtained by Officers in the Militia." The price of the pamphlet is 1d. To obtain a commission in that way you must be under twenty-two, and must have served two trainings. There is another way of obtaining it, and that is through a University. A graduate may compete up to the age of twenty-two. Again, one student in each of the chartered Universities in the colonies is given a cadetship at Sandhurst every year. I fear you have left it too late, as if you are already twenty years of age I do not see how you could manage two Militia trainings before you are twenty-two. If you are a University man there may be a chance for you. In that case, write to either of the addresses for regulations. Your height is all right, and from what you say I scarcely think there would be any trouble about your sight. As to the cost of living in a cavalry regiment, you will find your question answered fully in the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of September 23, 1899, under the head "Notes and Queries." Also in the issue of December 23, 1899, you will find still further information that is likely to be useful to you.

* * * *

"WEST KENSINGTON."—It is not easy to say who is the most popular officer in the British Army. Public taste is fickle, and the hero of to-day is too often forgotten to-morrow. I saw in a daily paper the other day an interview with a firm of photographic agents, and there it was stated that the most popular photograph just now was that of Colonel R. S. S. Baden-Powell, the gallant defender of Mafeking. Lord Roberts, Sir Redvers Buller, and Lord Kitchener were next in demand, while portraits of Sir George White and Generals Gatacre and French were also sold in large numbers.

* * * *

DENNIS HOWARD.—The word "India" on the regimental colour signifies that the regiment in question took part in the various operations against Hyder Ali in 1780-82. Services in the Indian Mutiny Campaign are commemorated by the words "Central India" borne on the colour of the regiments who took part in the campaign.

* * * *

"ENQUIRER" (Dublin).—The official returns are as follows: (1897) Regular Army, 212,231; First Class Army Reserve, 78,100; Militia, 107,878; Yeomanry, 9,400; Volunteers, 236,059—general total, 643,668. (1898) Regular Army, 212,393; First Class Army Reserve, 82,005; Militia, 105,531; Yeomanry, 9,409; Volunteers, 231,798—general total, 641,136. (1899) Regular Army, 222,373; First Class Army Reserve, 78,798; Militia, 103,647; Yeomanry, 9,413; Volunteers, 230,812—general total, 645,043. The returns for 1900 are not yet published.

* * * *

"C."—The duties of the Commander-in-Chief were defined by an Order in Council some four years ago. He commands Her Majesty's Military Forces at home and abroad, and regularly issues orders to them, known officially as "Army Orders," and endorsed with a fac-simile of his signature. As adviser of the Secretary of State on all military matters, he gives his advice from time to time when changes are contemplated, or when schemes are suggested for defence at home and abroad. He is further charged with the general distribution of the Army at home and abroad, and the arrangements for mobilisation, as well as with the collection of military information. Perhaps one of his most important duties is the selecting of officers to fill staff and other appointments, and for special promotion. His recommendations would, of course, always be approved by Her Majesty, without whose formal sanction no appointment is gazetted.

* * * *

ONE of the things Napoleon could not tolerate was ridicule, and rather than endure it he sacrificed on one occasion a branch of his army. The incident is but little known, but it comes very apropos at the present moment, when military ballooning is being brought so prominently to the fore. On the occasion of his coronation in 1805, a small fire balloon was sent up from the Place de la Concorde, in Paris. To it were attached the Imperial cipher and crown. The balloon fell early next morning at Rome, and while the bag and netting dropped into Lake Bratiano, the crown caught in and remained fastened to the tomb of Nero. The incident was too good a one for the caricaturists of the day not to avail themselves of, and they plied pen and pencil so mercilessly that, despite the valuable services which the balloon corps had already rendered, Napoleon, when he heard of the occurrence, flew into a passion and then and there decreed its abolition. The French did not utilise balloons for military purposes again until 1859.

* * * *

H. YATES.—According to the latest return available, the strength of the regular Army—excluding officers—was 222,373. The First Class Army Reserve numbered 78,798, and the Second Class Army Reserve, 41. There were in the ranks of the Militia 103,647 non-commissioned officers and men, in the Volunteers 230,678, and in the Yeomanry—cavalry included—9,413 non-commissioned officers and men. In January, 1899, the general total of Regulars, Militia, Reserve, etc., was officially given as 645,043. The annual report giving the strength of the various sections of the Army dated January, 1900, will no doubt be published shortly. (See reply to "Enquirer.")

* * * *

"S. P."—You are quite right; the Order of British India is of exactly the same date as the Order of Merit. In fact, the same general orders brought both into being in 1837. The former, however, is in no sense "for valour" pure and simple, but is conferred only for long and honourable service. Moreover, it is not open to the rank and file, but is conferred only on officers. It is in two classes, each of 100 in number. The first class, which carries with it a personal allowance of two rupees per diem, is open only to subadars, and members receive the title of Sirdar Bahadur. The second class is open to all native officers, gives one rupee per diem allowance, and carries with it the title of Bahadur. The Star of the first class is one-eighth of an inch larger than that of the second class, and has a centre of light blue enamel, whereas the enamel in the centre is dark blue. Moreover, the first class Star has the crown between the top points. In both classes the enamel has on it a lion statant, with the title of the Order in a garter around. The ribbon is red in both classes, but broader in the first. It is worn round the neck, outside the uniform.

* * * *

"A. F. K."—The difference between Field and Horse Artillery is very great. Horse Artillery have the 12-pounder gun, which is much lighter than the 15-pounder gun, the weapon of the Field Artillery. Again, the Horse Artilleryman's uniform is different, as he wears the jacket heavily laced with gold or yellow braid, whereas the Field Artilleryman wears the tunic like the rest of the regiment. Moreover, in the Horse Artillery the gunners are all mounted, as well as the drivers, and they are not seated on the gun-carriage and limbers, as is the case in the Field Artillery. In the Field Artillery eight gunners are seated, two on the gun, two on the limber, and four on the gun ammunition waggon. In fact, Horse Artillery are meant to act with and go wherever cavalry can go. Field Artillery work with infantry. The Horse Artillery battery at war strength is 179, as against 171 in the Field Artillery battery, and it has 191 horses instead of the 131 belonging to a Field battery. Field batteries armed with the new 5-in. howitzer are more heavily manned and horsed than those using the 15-pounder. The strength of a howitzer battery is 195 in all ranks, and the number of horses 156.

* * * *

AN infantry brigade may consist of two or more battalions, but it usually consists of four. As a rule the officer in command is a major-general or colonel. In the latter case the officer commanding is styled brigadier-general while in command; on his staff are a brigade-major and an aide-de-camp. Broadly speaking, the former may be said to perform the work of adjutant as regards the brigade. The latter is, of course, the constant attendant of the officer commanding the brigade, and carries orders in the field. In addition to the staff, there are altogether 116 officers and 2,924 non-commissioned officers and men, a total of 4,040 of all ranks, with the four battalions, but these numbers do not include the supply column, bearer company, or field hospital, all three of which strictly speaking form part of an infantry brigade. With the first there are five, with the second three, and with the last-named five officers. Without going into further detail it may be enough to say that when a brigade takes the field there are present 132 officers, 4,214 of other ranks, 373 horses, four machine guns, four Maltese carts, thirty-one other carts, forty general service waggons, and ten ambulance waggons. A brigade leaves at the base four officers and 426 of other ranks.

* * * *

MILITARY cyclists have only recently been recognised in our regular Army, although they have for years been seen in the Volunteer force, and have done good work at manœuvres and field days. There is no corps existing in peace time, except for the purposes of instruction, and it is composed in much the same manner as the corps of mounted infantry formed at Aldershot and the Curragh from time to time. A cyclist company consists of 135 of all ranks, made up as follows: One captain, four subalterns, one colour-sergeant, four sergeants, four corporals, one bugler, and 120 privates. The great advantage of a cyclist corps over mounted infantry is that it requires rations for the men only, whereas the horses of the latter require to be fed. The whole strength of a cyclist corps, too, may be brought into action at one time, whereas only 75 per cent. of mounted infantry can use their rifles simultaneously. The remaining 25 per cent. hold the horses in rear.

THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for

Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull."

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

GENRL. BULLER & PIONEER Cigarettes are in Everyone's Mouth and have Gone to the —Front— owing to their Superiority over all Others

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS. SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & CO., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

THE NEW

'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY
AT THIS
AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated
£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo,
and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,
£2 2 0

IT IS
THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C
LONDON.

Digitized by Google

The Best Glass for South Africa

BECAUSE:

GLASS OPEN.

GLASS CLOSED.

It only Weighs Five Ounces.
It is only One Inch Thick when Closed.
It is as Powerful as many Glasses Five Times as Large.
It is the Most Rapid to Use and Focus.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular gives every satisfaction."

LORD LONSDALE writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular is satisfactory in every way, and answers its purpose well."

CAPT. A. H. LEE, Royal Military College, Kingston, Canada, writes—
"I am immensely pleased with the Patent Pocket Binocular, power and definition little short of marvellous, and their extraordinary compactness and lightness makes them of especial value from a military point of view."

UNITED STATES WAR DEPARTMENT.—CAPT. CRAIG writes—
"I am directed by the CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICERS of the UNITED STATES ARMY to say that Aitchison's Patent Pocket Field Glasses are found to be extremely convenient and portable, and of good service."

Superior, Achromatic, 6 Lenses - - £3 3 0
Ditto extra power, 12 Lenses - - £5 5 0
Complete in Soft Leather Purse Case.

Hard Leather Sling Case, 5s. extra. Post Free to any part of the World.

Illustrations and Particulars Post Free from:

AITCHISON & CO., 428, STRAND, LONDON;

Also at 47, Fleet Street; 6, Poultry; and 46, Fenchurch Street, London.

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

Digitized by Google

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 8a, 8b, Southwark Street, London. G.P.O. Publishing Office, ... Street, London, W.C.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 10th 1900.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

ed by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON. R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
es, 20. TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN. W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
VOL. IX.
No. 158.

W. CATER & Co.,
To Her Majesty the Queen.
H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family.

NAVAL AND MILITARY
Tailors and Outfitters,
56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON,
ESTABLISHED 1776. S.W.
Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

MARTELL'S
"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—The Lancet. July, '99.
THREE STAR
"A genuine old Brandy made from wine."—Medical Press. August, '99.
BRANDY.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON.
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
FROM 10/6 PER DAY.
Telegraphic Addresses: For Management, "UNPARALLELED." For Visitors, "ERMINITES."

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
IRISH Fish Napkins, 2/11 per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5/6 per doz. Table Cloths (2 yards square), 2/6; 2½ × 3 yards 5/6. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Irish Linens Pillow Cases, 10/6 per doz. Real Irish Linen Sheeting, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1/11 per yard. Roller Towelling, 3d. per yard.
SAMPLES & PRICE LISTS POST FREE. DAMASK Surplice Linen, 7d. per yard. Dusters from 3/3 per doz. Linen Glass Cloths, 4/9 per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1/4½ each. Fine Linens and Linen Diaper, 8½d. per yard. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4/6 per dozen,
TABLE AND HOUSE LINEN.
N.B.-To prevent delay, all Letters & Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

LEA & PERRIN'S SAUCE.
Lea & Perrins
Is printed in BLUE ink across the outside wrapper of every bottle of
AVOID CHEAP COPIES.
THE ORIGINAL WORCESTERSHIRE.

Digitized by Google

The Pall Mall Deposit

STORAGE AND FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE AND KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military and Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.,

Carlton Street, Regent Street, S.W.;

And Arthur Street, Aldershot.

WOOL FOR THE WAR.

Khaki Drill spells Chill.

Write or wire for details of complete

PURE WOOL

REGULATION

FIELD SERVICE OUTFIT.

SPECIAL KHAKI WOOLLEN SERGE FOR YEOMANRY.

Jaeger

MILITARY AND SPORTING

PURE WOOL TAILORS,

42, CONDUIT STREET, W.

Telegrams: "Highmost, London."

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 158. Saturday, February 10th, 1900.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130
DECEMBER, 1899.
*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

The ART of . .

ROUGH RIDING

(MILITARY AND CIVIL)

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship and Rough Riding," 2/6.

First-Class Certificates.

EVERY N.C.O. and PRIVATE soldier at HOME or ABROAD who wants his FIRST should send a post-card at once for particulars of the new and popular system. CHANGE of STATION does not interfere. Special help for those who cannot attend a garrison school. CLASSES are now forming for the MARCH EXAM.—RANDALL J. FOX (ex-Army Schoolmaster), 368, Acton Lane, London, W.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Two Little Vagabonds"
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "Money."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "The Masked Ball."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Messenger Boy." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "How London Lives."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W. "The Canary."
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. "Rupert of Hentzau."
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Wrong Mr. Wright."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "What Happened to Jones."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m.
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "David Garrick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha." At 2 p.m., "Alice in Wonderland."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dangers of London."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "A Gaiety Girl."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "Dick Whittington."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Charley's Aunt."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Two Orphans."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "The Private Secretary."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Is Life Worth Living."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "Soldiers of the Queen."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Jack of Hearts."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Robinson Crusoe."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Goody Two Shoes."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),
PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FIVE YEARS' RECORD.

During the last five years 156 Pupils were prepared and 144 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—14 out of 16.
SANDHURST—53 out of 58.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—28 out of 29.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—10 out of 10.
COOPER'S HILL—4 out of 4.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—2 out of 2.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
20 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils) 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAPS are SIMPLY INCOMPARABLE for their Rich, Cream-like Lather, the peculiar softening action on the beard, and the wonderfully soothing, refreshing effect upon the face.

Sold by Chemists, Hairdressers and Perfumers, all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING STICKS, 1s. WILLIAMS' LUXURY SHAVING TABLETS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' AMERICAN SHAVING TABLETS, 6d. WILLIAMS' "JERSEY CREAM" TOILET SOAP, 6d
Trial Tablet WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP for 1d. stamp, by addressing—
The J. B. WILLIAMS CO., 64 Gt. Russell St., LONDON, W. C., or 161 Clarence St., SYDNEY
Chief Offices and Laboratories—GLASTONBURY, CONN., U. S. A.

WEST LONDON HOSPITAL,
HAMMERSMITH ROAD, W. (101 beds.)
Patron: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President: THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, K.G.
Treasurer: THE LORD ROTHSCHILD.
FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED for opening new wards for 80 additional beds.
R. J. GILBERT, Secretary-Superintendent.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN And CHILDREN,
MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.
Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.
W. GUNTRIP KING, Secretary.

MAN THE LIFEBOAT.

The Committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution earnestly APPEAL for funds to enable them to maintain their fleet of

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOUR LIFEBOATS

and their crews in thorough efficiency.

In 1898 the Institution granted Rewards for saving 756 Lives.

Annual subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received by the Secretary, CHARLES DIBDIN, Esq., 14, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and by all the Banks in the United Kingdom.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION,
BROMPTON.
The Hospital contains 321 Beds, and in 1897 received 1,681 In-patients. 13,098 Out-patients were also treated. The yearly requirements of the Hospital cannot be estimated at less than £25,000 a year. Further, it has been decided upon the unanimous and urgent advice of the Medical Staff to establish a

"COUNTRY BRANCH AND CONVALESCENT HOME,"

and it isestimated that £20,000 will be needed to inaugurate this new departure.

The Charity being Unendowed, is dependent on Donations, Annual Subscriptions, and Legacies, Contributions are therefore earnestly solicited in aid of both objects.

Bankers:
Messrs. WILLIAMS, DEACON, & MANCHESTER & SALFORD BANK,
20, Birchin Lane, London,
WILLIAM H. THEOBALD, Secretary.

ENCORE RAZOR SEND FOR FREE LIST OF CASES.

ASK FOR "ENCORE" POCKET AND TABLE CUTLERY.

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.
FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.
GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.
HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.
SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.
PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to makers,
T. TURNER & Co.,
Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD,
who will supply through nearest Agents.

Country Life Illustrated,
VOL. VI.
Printed on Art Paper.
Cloth, Gilt Edges, 21s. ea.; or Half-Morocco, 25s. ea.
Vols. 1, 2, 3, & 4 (Nos. 1 to 104) are out of print.
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK STREET, W.C.

HOTELS, CLUBS, etc.

JUNIOR
Naval & Military Club
96, PICCADILLY, W.

The Club House will be Opened for the use of Members on Monday, February 26th next, at 9 a.m.
February 1st, 1900.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:
The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.
Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.
HOTEL BEAU SITE.
SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.
GRAND HOTEL.
CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.
Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,
PICCADILLY.
THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director, V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.
EPPS'S
GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
COCOA
BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?
DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.
writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.
"I have now prescribed them for the last 8 years in my hospitals and private practice, and find them of great benefit. I certainly and most strongly recommend them."
Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Sir Redvers Buller and a War Correspondent	529
A Tribute to Empire. Our Gallant Slain. The Heroes We Mourn. (Illustrated)	530
Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories. Enfield Lock.—II. (Illustrated) ...	531
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	533
Editorial Notices	534
The Navy and Army Diary	534
Died for Their Country	534
Disposition of Troops in South Africa ...	535
The War in Natal. (Illustrated) ...	536
On the Tugela River. With the 2nd Devons in Natal. (Illustrated) ...	537
Maritzburg and Bombay. (Illustrated)	538
With Sir Redvers Buller in Natal. Scenes and Incidents in Natal. (Illustrated)	540
With General French at Arundel. (Illustrated)	541
Cape Town and Modder River. (Illus.)	542
In Camp on the Modder River. Waiting for a Further Advance. (Illus.)	544
The War in Cape Colony. (Illustrated)	545
Hints to Yeomanry	546
Gillespie's Gallop	546
Battlefields and Scenes of the War. (Illus.)	547
The Story of the War	548
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	549
Increasing the Japanese Navy. (Illus.)	552

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Second Week.]

THE CAVALRY, ROYAL ARTILLERY, AND ROYAL ENGINEERS.*

CAVALRY.

1st Life Guards	Lieut.-Col. C. N. Miles.	Windsor
2nd "	L.-Cl. J. A. Smith-Cuninghame	Regent's Park
Royal Horse Gds.	Lt.-Col. G. Lord Binning	Hyde Park
Composite Regt.—Househ. Cavalry	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Neeld	Cape Colony
1st Dragoon Gds.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Owen	Dublin
2nd "	Lieut.-Col. G. P. Douglas	York
3rd "	Lieut.-Col. U. G. C. de Burgh	Curragh
4th "	Lieut.-Col. G. D. F. Sulivan	Rawul Pindi
5th "	Lieut.-Col. St. J. C. Gore	Ladysmith, Natal
6th "	Lieut.-Col. T. C. Porter	South Africa
7th "	Lieut.-Col. W. H. M. Lowe	For South Africa
1st Dragoons	Lieut.-Col. J. F. Burn-Murdoch	Natal
2nd "	Lt.-Col. Hon. W. P. Alexander.	South Africa
3rd Hussars	Lt.-Col. W. N. Wogan-Browne.	Lucknow
4th "	Lieut.-Col. W. A. Ramsay	Bangalore
5th Lancers	Col. J. F. M. Fawcett	Ladysmith, Natal
6th Dragoons	Lt.-Col. H. C. Page-Henderson	Cape Colony
7th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. Hon. R. T. Lawley	Norwich
8th "	Lieut.-Col. P. L. Clowes	Aldershot
9th Lancers	Lieut.-Col. B. Gough	Cape Colony
10th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. R. B. W. Fisher	South Africa
11th "	Lieut.-Col. E. R. Courtenay.	Cairo
12th Lancers	Lt.-Col. D. S. W., Earl of Airlie	Cape Colony
13th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. H. J. Blagrove	Natal
14th "	Lieut.-Col. G. H. C. Hamilton	South Africa
15th "	Lieut.-Col. J. R. P. Gordon	Meerut
16th Lancers	Lieut.-Col. H. L. Aylmer	South Africa
17th "	Lieut.-Col. N. Fortescue	For South Africa
18th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. B. D. Moller	Ladysmith, Natal
19th "	L.-C. C. B. H. Wolseley-Jenkins	Ladysmith, Natal
20th "	Lieut.-Col. H. G. P. Beauchamp	Mhow
21st Lancers	L.-C. W. G. Crole Wyndham, C.B.	Newbridge

ROYAL REGIMENT OF ARTILLERY.

Royal Horse Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.
A.—South Africa
B.—Lucknow
C.—Mhow
D.—Umballa
E.—Kirkee
F.—Sealkote
G.—Cape Colony
H.—Meerut
I.—Umballa
J.—South Africa
K.—Rawul Pindi
L.—Secunderabad
M.—Newbridge
N.—Aldershot
O.—Cape Colony
P.—Cape Colony
Q.—For South Africa
R.—Cape Colony
S.—Aldershot
T.—For South Africa
U.—For South Africa

Royal Field Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.
1.—Ahmednugger
2.—For South Africa
3.—Campbellpore
4.—South Africa
5.—For South Africa
6.—Cawnpore
7.—Natal
8.—For South Africa
9.—For South Africa
10.—Aldershot
11.—Meean Meer
12.—Jullundur
13.—Natal
14.—Natal
15.—Meerut
16.—Kirkee
17.—Woolwich
18.—Natal
19.—Natal
20.—South Africa
21.—Natal
22.—Mhow
23.—Secunderabad
24.—Peshawur
25.—Bangalore
26.—Aldershot
27.—Neemuch
28.—Natal
29.—Kirkee
30.—Fyzabad
31.—Hyderabad
32.—Jhansi
33.—St. Thomas' [Mount
34.—Ahmedabad
35.—Kurrachee
36.—Nusseerabad
37.—South Africa
38.—South Africa
39.—For South Africa
40.—Bangalore
41.—Lucknow
42.—Natal
43.—Woolwich
44.—Colchester
45.—St. Thomas' [Mount
46.—Dinapore
47.—Ferozepore
48.—Barrackpore
49.—Belgaum
50.—Agra
51.—Rawul Pindi
52.—Jubbulpore
53.—Natal
54.—Meerut
55.—Saugor
56.—Egypt
57.—Meean Meer
58.—Kamptee
59.—Woolwich
60.—Allahabad
61.—For South Africa
62.—Natal
63.—Natal
64.—For South Africa
65.—South Africa
66.—Natal
67.—Natal
68.—For South Africa
69.—Natal
70.—Bareilly
71.—Mooltan
72.—Bellary
73.—South Africa
74.—Natal
75.—Natal
76.—For South Africa
77.—South Africa
78.—Woolwich
79.—For South Africa
80.—Nowgong
81.—For South Africa
82.—For South Africa
83.—For South Africa
84.—For South Africa
85.—For South Africa
86.—For South Africa
87.—For South Africa
88.—For South Africa
89.—Aldershot
90.—Aldershot
91.—Aldershot
92.—Aldershot
93.—Cahir
94.—Leeds
95.—Leeds
96.—Seaforth
97.—Ipswich
98.—Ipswich
99.—Longford
100.—
101.—
102.— 103.—

Royal Garrison Artillery.

MOUNTAIN DIVISION.

Battery.
1.—Lundi Kotal
2.—Khyra Gali
3.—Bara Gali
4.—Natal
5.—Kalabagh
6.—Jutogh
7.—Quetta
8.—Darjeeling
9.—Mandalay
10.—Natal

EASTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Dover).

Depôt No. 1, Dover. No. 2, Great Yarmouth.

Co.
1.—Calcutta
2.—St. Helena
3.—Rangoon (for
4.—Kurrachee[Aden)
5.—South Africa
6.—Dover
7.—(S.T.) Mooltan
8.—Aden
9.—Allahabad
10.—Shoeburyness
11.—Gibraltar
12.—Dover
13.—Bombay
14.—Isle of Wight
15.—Dover
16.—Egypt [Bermuda)
17.—Malta (for
18.—Gibraltar
19.—Gibraltar [Malta)
20.—Gibraltar (for
21.—Sheerness
22.—(H.) Sheerness
23.—Shoeburyness
24.—Delhi
25.—Hong Kong
26.—(S.T.) Bombay
27.—Sheerness
28.—Landguard Fort
29.—Leith Fort

SOUTHERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Portsmouth).

Depôt No. 1, Fort Rowner, Gosport. No. 2, Seaforth Barracks, Liverpool.

Co.
1.—Malta
2.—South Africa
3.—Portsmouth
4.—Malta
5.—Agra
6.—Roorkee
7.—Weymouth
8.—Bermuda (for [Halifax, N.S.)
9.—Roorkee
10.—Gibraltar
11.—Roorkee
12.—Singapore
13.—Malta
14.—Cork Harbour
15.—(S.T.)for S. Africa
16.—For South Africa
17.—Malta
18.—Aden
19.—Malta
20.—(S.T.)Ft. Fareh'm
21.—Portsmouth
22.—Jamaica
23.—Quetta
24.—(H.) Campbell- [pore
25.—Hong Kong
26.—Gibraltar
27.—Malta
28.—Weymouth
29.—Barrackpore
30.—Portsmouth
31.—Malta
32.—Gibraltar
33.—Thobba
34.—Trincomalee
35.—Singapore
36.—For South Africa
37.—Ceylon
38.—Hong Kong
39.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight
40.—Cork Harbour
41.—Portsmouth

WESTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Devonport).

Depôt No. 1, Citadel, Plymouth. No. 2, Scarborough.

Co.
1.—St. Lucia
2.—Plymouth
3.—Halifax
4.—Ferozepore
5.—Rawul Pindi
6.—Leith
7.—Jhansi
8.—Mauritius
9.—(H) Secunderab'd
10.—Devonport
11.—Fort St. George
12.—Jersey
13.—Pembroke Dock
14.—C. of Good Hope
15.—(S.T.) S. Africa
16.—Aden
17.—Devonport
18.—Bombay
19.—Esquimault
20.—Halifax, N.S. (for [Jamaica)
21.—Bermuda
22.—Rangoon
23.—Kimberley
24.—Malta
25.—Quetta
26.—Mauritius
27.—Pembroke Dock
28.—Londonderry
29.—Fort Bovisand, [Plymouth

H. Heavy.

ROYAL MALTA ART'Y. Malta

S.T. Siege Train.

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Co.
1st (F.) Cork Harbour
2nd (F.) Egypt
3rd (F.) Bermuda
4th (Sub.) Gosport
5th (F.) Portsmouth
6th (F.) South Africa
7th (Fd.) S. Africa
8th (Ry.) S. Africa
9th (Fd.) For S. Africa
10th (Ry.) S. Africa
11th (Fd.) S. Africa
12th (Fd.) S. Africa
13th (Sur.) Clifton, [Bristol
14th (Sur.) Dublin
15th (F.) Gibraltar
16th (Sur.) Bedford
17th (Fd.) S. Africa
18th (F.) Halifax, N.S.
19th (Sur.) Southamp- [ton
20th (F.) South Africa
21st (Sub.) Felixstowe
22nd (Sub.) I. of Wight
23rd (Fd.) Natal
24th (F.) Malta
25th (F.) Hong Kong
26th (Fd.) S. Africa
27th (Sub.) Bermuda
28th (Sub.) Malta
29th (F.) Cape Town
30th (Sub.) Plymouth
31st (F.) South Africa
32nd (F.) Gibraltar
33rd (Sub.) Cork Harb.
34th (Sub.) Gravesend
35th (Sub.) Pembroke [Dock
36th (F.) Bermuda
37th (Fd.) for S. Africa
38th (Fd.) S. Africa
39th (Sub.) Sheerness
40th (Sub.) Halifax, [N.S.
41st (F.) Hdqrs. and ½ Co. Ceylon; ½ Co. Singapore
42nd (F.) South Africa
43rd (F.) Mauritius
45th (F.) Steam Tr'p't, [Natal
46th (Fd.) Portsmouth
47th (F.) South Africa
A (D.) Chatham
B (D.) Chatham
C (D.) Chatham
D (D.) Chatham
E (D.) Chatham
F (D.) Chatham
G (D.) Chatham
M (Sub.) Chatham
N (D.) Chatham
H Army Hqrs., India

TELEGRAPH BATN.:
1st Div., South Africa
2nd Div., 28, Newgate [Street

BRIDGING BATN.:
A Troop, South Africa
B Troop, Aldershot
C Troop, South Africa
Field Troop, S. Africa
Field D., R.E. Troops, [Aldershot
Balloon D. and Sect., [South Africa

COAST BATTALION (Submarine Miners):

Sect.
1 (Tyne) N. Shields
2 (Severn) Cardiff
3 (Clyde) Greenock
4 (Humber) Paull
5 (Tees) Middlesbr'gh
6 (Tay) Broughty [Ferry
7 (Forth) Leith, ["Dido," hulk
8 (Mersey) Liverpool
9 (Falmouth) Falm'th
10 (Weymouth) [Weymouth

LOCAL COMPANIES ABROAD:
Singapore (Sub.)
Hong Kong (Sub.)
Ceylon (Sub.) [Trincomalee
Mauritius (Sub.)
Sierra Leone (F.)
West India (Sub.) Jamaica
W. India (F.)
½ Co. Jamaica, 1 Section at St. Lucia

F. Fortress. Fd. Field. Sub. Submarine. Sur. Survey. Ry. Railway. D. Depot.

* The Disposition of our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Digitized by Google

USEFUL PRESENTS.

FOR OUR SOLDIERS AT THE FRONT.

217, PICCADILLY, W. LONDON. ALLEN & WRIGHT 26, POULTRY, E.C. LONDON.

MAKERS OF FINEST QUALITY (ONLY) BRIAR ROOT & MEERSCHAUM PIPES

Distinct in QUALITY, FINISH & STYLE.

No. 123 - - 12/6.
2 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces. Short, light Pipes.

No. 98 - - 25/-.
4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto for indoor use.

No. 68 - 10/6.
2 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (medium size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems.

ALL IN BEST LONDON-MADE MOROCCO CASES.

TRADE A & W MARK

No. 143 - - 31/-.
6 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars, Horn and Vulcanite Mouthpieces (medium sized pipes, Army style).

HIGHEST CLASS GOODS MADE.

EVERY PIPE GUARANTEED.

No. 95 - - 29/-.
4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (large size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto for indoor use.

No. 108 - 15/6.
3 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars Horn and Vulcanite Stems.

No. 94 - - 32/-.
4 A & W Silver-Mounted Briars (large size), Horn and Vulcanite Stems, and 6 in. ditto.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF "A & W's SPECIALITIES IN FINE GOODS" POST FREE.

LAZENBY'S

ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT & PORTABLE

SOUP SQUARES

These squares are prepared in 13 Varieties (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.), and should find a place in every store-room, being invaluable for making soup at short notice or improving stock. They will keep good any reasonable length of time, and are packed in neat boxes containing 6 & 12 Squares.

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

LAZENBY'S

13 VARIETIES.

SOUP SQUARES

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,

AND

COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

"The Eyes of the Navy and Army."

ROSS' PATENT NEW MODEL Prismatic Binocular FIELD GLASSES.

The power and Field of a Telescope in the Compass of an Opera Glass. Supplied to hundreds of officers of

THE SOUTH AFRICAN FIELD FORCE.

8 Diameters,	£8 0 0	WITH SCREW FOCUSSING ADJUSTMENT,
10 ,,	£10 0 0
12 ,,	£10 0 0	£1 EACH EXTRA

ROSS, LTD.,

Manufacturing Opticians,

Established 1830.
LISTS FREE.

Contractors to Her Majesty's Governments, British and Colonial, also to the Principal Foreign Governments, 111, NEW BOND ST., LONDON, W.; & 31, COCKSPUR ST., CHARING CROSS, S.W.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., 9, STRAND, W.C.

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

JEWELLERS, CLOCKMAKERS AND SILVERSMITHS.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

5-stone all Diamond Half Hoop Rings, best quality Stones, from £5 to £150.

3 Pearl or Turquoise and 2 Diamonds, 18ct. Gold, £5 5 0

THE LARGEST VARIETY ALWAYS IN STOCK.

NO. 86 STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.
18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.
18ct. Gold Crystal, £13 15s.
Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s. Silver Crystal, £5. Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

ALSO JEWELLERY CATALOGUE

No. 138
STRAND CHRONOGRAPH
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0

Steel or Silver Cases ... each	8:8:0
With 30 Minute Recorder ...	5:5:0
18ct. Gold	15:15:0

Special Notice.— All Watches and Jewellery can be had upon our ("The Times" Enyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 2½d. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries, PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co., LIMITED,

115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Watch & Clock

MAKERS

To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, New Bond St.

LONDON, W.,

And Workshops,

11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

NOW READY. No. 2 of

THE SPHERE,

The Great New Weekly Illustrated Newspaper. Edited by CLEMENT SHORTER.

The first number of THE SPHERE has had a demand far beyond expectations. It could not have been foreseen that it would at once obtain a sale larger than that of any other sixpenny illustrated paper. It was thought that an edition of 100,000 copies would have met the requirements of the public. Yet more than double the quantity could have been sold on the day of publication, and consequently many persons failed to obtain copies. THE SPHERE was welcomed to an extent beyond record with a new publication of the kind.

Arrangements have been made to provide for a larger issue of No. 2, but to prevent disappointment, copies should be ordered at once. Tell your Newsagent to send you THE SPHERE weekly.

Amongst the Subjects dealt with in the Second Number of

THE SPHERE,

. . ARE . .

FULL-PAGE PORTRAIT OF GENERAL JOUBERT.
MR. RUSKIN'S FUNERAL AT CONISTON.
PHOTOGRAPHS BY OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE, THE EARL OF ROSSLYN.
PHOTOGRAPHS BY OUR MILITARY EXPERT, COLONEL HOSKIER.
THE PASSION PLAY AT OBER AMMERGAU.
FULL-PAGE REPRODUCTION OF THE VAN DYCK PICTURE LENT TO THE ROYAL ACADEMY BY H.I.M. THE TSAR.

DOUBLE PAGE OF THE QUEEN'S ROYAL WEST SURREY REGIMENT AT COLENSO.
SUPPLEMENT OF WAR PICTURES RECEIVED BY THE LAST MAIL FROM OUR SPECIAL WAR ARTISTS, MR. W. J. WOLLEN AND MR. ERNEST PRATER.

LITERARY CONTRIBUTIONS BY MAARTEN MAARTENS. AUSTIN DOBSON.
CHAS. WILLIAMS. And MAJOR ARTHUR GRIFFITHS.

Order at once No. 2 of THE SPHERE. Tell your Newsagent you want

THE SPHERE, spelt S - P - H - E - R - E,

WHICH IS NOW READY,

YOU MAY OTHERWISE BE OFFERED SOMETHING ELSE INSTEAD, WHICH YOU DO NOT WANT.

Post a Copy to your friend at the War. It will be very Welcome!

THE SPHERE, Price 6d. Weekly.

Publishing Office: GREAT NEW STREET, E.C.

Digitized by Google

"P. O. P."—The Victoria Cross has been won on three occasions by boys—in 1855, during the Crimean Campaign, by two young members of the famous Naval Brigade, and in 1867, when a combined fleet of British, French, and Dutch ships made war upon Japan, by a midshipman of the "Euryalus." The first of the trio was Edward Daniels, who, when the horses taking an ammunition waggon filled with powder were killed by a shell, rushed out and headed a party which safely brought in the ammunition under a rain of bullets in which it seemed impossible for anyone to live. The second act of bravery was performed by a young boatswain, named Sullivan, when the famous Malakoff battery was taken. He took out a flagstaff and placed it on a certain mound which hid a Russian battery from our gunners, having in so doing traversed the enemy's line of fire. On the mound he had to dig the hole for the flagstaff with his fingers and pile stones around it to keep it firm. His coolness so excited the Russians that they all aimed wide, and the man escaped to receive, in addition to the famous cross, the French Legion of Honour. The act which won the V.C. for Duncan Boyes, the middy of the "Euryalus," occurred when the combined fleets landed a contingent of men against the Japs. It was thought, however, that the Britishers alone could successfully tackle the situation, so the French and Dutch were sent back, whereupon a large body of Japanese came into view and made a determined attack. The middy, who was carrying the colours with the leading company, rushed ahead for some twenty yards towards the defences, as though about to attempt their capture single-handed. He was called back and severely reprimanded by his captain, but the spirit of daring he had displayed infected the others, and as one man they followed him and soon took the defences. Boyes's uniform was torn to rags by bullets, as were also the colours he carried, but he himself came out safe and sound, having well earned his reward.

* * * *

W. HUNTER.—The history of the battery of Field Artillery to which you refer is briefly as follows: The battery was raised in 1806 as No. 7 Company of the 9th Battalion. In 1819 it became No. 6 Company of the 9th Battalion; in 1859 the 8th Battery of the 14th Brigade; in 1860 the 8th Battery of the 13th Brigade; in 1862 the C Battery of the 14th Brigade; and in 1879 it was given the title by which you ask after it, viz., L Battery of the 3rd Brigade. In 1889 it became the 44th Battery Royal Artillery. This battery is now at Colchester. It may help you to understand the change of nomenclature if it is stated that before the introduction of the brigade system there was one regiment of Artillery divided into battalions, each of ten companies. These companies were converted into field batteries for service as occasion arose. The brigade system was done away with in 1889, and the present system of numbered batteries was introduced.

* * * *

"M. I."—The transport of cavalry horses by sea has always been attended by great difficulties. The horse is not adapted to a seafaring life, and being unable to vomit he is exposed to certain diseases of the brain from which he would otherwise be exempt. Moreover, he is necessarily confined while embarked in a very limited space, frequently near the engines, where he suffers from heat and defective ventilation. There is also the serious danger arising from the fittings giving way in bad weather, a fruitful source of damage, especially as horses under such conditions get panic-stricken. During the Russian War, one division of Artillery lost 8 per cent. of its horses on the way out, and the "Royals" 175 between Varna and Balaclava. In one case, in the voyage across the Black Sea, the whole of the fittings carried away, the horses being thrown from one side of the ship to the other, so that in one night more than 100 kicked and worried each other to death, while for two days and nights the troops were battened down among the dead and dying horses. Even when they survived the voyage the losses were heavy from bad shoeing, sore backs, etc., but it was found that horses that were put to hard work immediately on being landed were much more liable to break down than those which had a few days' rest, with gentle exercise, before being put to full work.

* * * *

"AN INTERESTED ENQUIRER."—Various opinions are held regarding the efficacy of different kinds of shells against entrenchments. It is evident, as Lord Methuen has stated, that the Boers have ceased to be alarmed by our shrapnel, but whether common shell fired from field guns would have a better effect has been disputed. Shrapnel shells are filled with bullets, and are timed to explode about forty yards short of the enemy. The liberated bullets then scatter, continuing their onward flight with deadly effect on troops in the open, but as against an enemy who has the knack of completely concealing himself they are comparatively useless. Common shells are shells filled with powder. They are intended to lodge, and then explode like a mine, and they are properly used against buildings and works; but to be of service they should, if possible, be of the heavier "natures." Common shells or lyddite shells fired from medium guns or howitzers have amply proved their value, but it is held by some gunners that a common shell fired from a field gun contains too little powder to have any appreciable effect on entrenchments.

* * * *

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "Whilst in France quite recently, I happened, in the course of a walk in a little seaport town, to see a sail-maker in the act of cutting holes in brand-new sails. This proceeding attracted my attention, and, on questioning the man, I elicited from him the following information: It appears that a few months since a Captain Vassalo conceived the idea of cutting holes in tain parts of the sails of a vessel. The theory of Captain Vass simple enough. 'The wind, after having acted on the sail,' says 'must find an outlet to allow a fresh layer of wind to act in its tur the same sail.' Hence the necessity of a sail having holes in it, to the wind to 'run out,' as it were, of the sail. On enquiring fur I found that the scheme has been actually tried and found extre satisfactory. I felt so interested in this new device that I hope to the experiment on a small scale next summer, and shall perhaps re to the subject later on and with greater details."

* * * *

"NORTH BRITON."—The Dundonald Galloping Gun Carriage is invention of Lord Dundonald, who recently commanded the 2nd L Guards, and is now, as everyone knows, actively engaged at the tr The carriage fulfils the following six conditions, which his Lord kept before him during its construction: 1. Is so light that one ho can gallop with it, and so strong that it will neither upset nor be down on rough ground. 2. Can be brought into action in a few seco 3. The harnessing is so simple that a disabled horse can be at o replaced. 4. Can be driven by one man, the gun in action being worke the same man without other help. 5. Carries ammunition and a shield the gunner. 6. Is light enough when unlimbered to be moved about one man. The carriage is made of steel, with hickory wheels hickory and steel shafts, its total weight, including 1,500 rounds of cartridge, boxes, belts, etc., being under 4-cwt. In combination wi good type of machine gun, it should prove effective, and is likely to heard of in the near future.

* * * *

"H. W. W."—The King's Merchant was formerly an officer the Admiralty, forming part of the establishment presided over by the Lord High Admiral. He received pay at the rate of £30 per annum, b unlike most of his confreres, had no "allowances," a circumstan which probably led him to trading on his own account, to the detrim of the public purse, a dereliction which, in its turn, led to the abolition of the office. His duty was to keep touch with "prices current," so far they affected Naval stores, and advise the King's officers as regarded the purchase of cordage, hemp, tar, pitch, etc. The knowledge he acquire in these researches tempted him to his fall, and he fell accordingly which is not surprising, considering the standard of morality in the public service in those days. A full description of his duties, together with those of sundry obsolete offices, such as Grand Pilot, Lieutenan of the Admiralty, and others, will be found in Sir W. Monson's Naval Tracts.

* * * *

P. GORDON BELL.—An experiment was made the other day in Edinburgh which will, I think, answer your question. Sir Thomas Lipton recently gave permission for a plate used in the "Shamrock" to be used as a test of the penetrativeness of the Lee-Metford bullet. The experiment took place at the range of Messrs. Henry and Co. The plate used was 1-ft. square, was 3-16-in. thick, and weighed 44-lb. The Lee-Metford bullets when fired at 100-yds. went clean through the plate When placed at an angle of 44-deg. the plate was also pierced. The result of the experiment seems to show that the stories from the front as to bullets glancing off helmets must refer to bullets which have lost their power through previous contact.

* * * *

"C. K. L."—The first regular sea fight worthy of the name between England and France was fought in 1215. Naval service had then become practically feudal service, and the English fleet consisted of vessels commanded by Barons, with Masters under them to sail the ships, a distinction which, probably, gave rise to the title formerly borne by the navigating branch of the Service. The scene of the battle was off the North Foreland, the English fleet of thirty-six ships being under the command of Hubert de Burgh. The French were in much greater force, the complement of their ships including many knights and soldiers; of the former 125 were captured and many more drowned, armour not being a convenient bathing dress. The English attacked first with arrows and then by boarding, making great havoc in the enemy's rigging, and bringing his sails down with a run. The battle is remarkable for the fact that it was fought in open waters, by vessels under sail and with a stiff breeze blowing, and that in the course thereof the English displayed that superiority in handling their ships which was destined to make the British Navy the foremost in the world.

* * * *

"ASPIRANT."—Yes, you can be taught how to mount your horse on the move, from one side or the other, also the best manner of rescuing a dismounted or wounded comrade. These and other feats of horsemanship are being learned now by members of the Imperial Yeomanry. Another most useful accomplishment of a mounted man is to be able to "hook in" and help a team in distress. In this way guns may be saved, ammunition brought up in time, and stranded waggons set going. But the foundation on which all such extra acquirements are built must necessarily be good, steady, well-instructed horsemanship to begin with. The next desideratum of the perfect horseman is to have a sympathetic understanding established between himself and his horse. When once this is done the horse will come to his rider's call, obey his orders, and even when free will never attempt to run away, but will rather wait for him. Many lives have been saved by horses so trained.

THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E. Lists Free.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY

Pickering's 'Blanco'

For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:

JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.

Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lerins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

Lemco

(Liebig Company's Extract)

ON THE BATTLE FIELD.

The quantity of Liebig Company's Extract (now labelled Lemco) already supplied to the British Forces and the Red Cross and Yeomanry Hospitals in South Africa is sufficient to provide

5,128,192

BREAKFAST CUPS.

This quantity represents the product of a herd of 4,000 Bullocks.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—It is still only from Malta that I hear of anything like gay doings, and even there it is a very quiet season as compared with those of other years. Nora in her last letter gave me an account of another of the "Gloamings," which are still going on merrily, the last one being so crowded that all late comers had to stand where they could, which in itself shows how popular such entertainments are. The programme of this particular evening began with feats of skill and strength by Colonel Bridgman and Captain James, who kept the audience amused for ten minutes or so, after which came a very clever and amusing musical sketch by Mr. W. B. L. Hopkins, R.N. This was followed by tea, and subsequently there were some beautiful tableaux arranged by the Misses Bernard, consisting of "Joan of Arc," "The Awakening of Love," "Roses have Thorns," and "The Dream." General O'Callaghan also contributed to the entertainment by a song, and the performance was brought to a close by Captain Oakshott, who charmed everyone by singing "When the swallows homeward fly." By that time the "Gloaming" had lasted half-an-hour longer than the time arranged for these little entertainments, but even then people were loth to leave, all having evidently enjoyed a very pleasant time. Since that everyone has been fully occupied with the rehearsals for "Pinafore," which it is hoped will be played before Lent, in which case the chorus will have to work very hard indeed.

In London there are no social engagements of any importance, and there are not likely to be any so long as all our thoughts are so anxiously turned towards South Africa. At the theatre, too, even if the house be full, there is an air of depression about everyone, which I should think must be most uninspiring for the actors and actresses. Of course, a very great deal is being talked about Mrs. Arthur Paget's tableaux, the proceeds from which are to be entirely devoted to the war fund. They are sure to be successful, for no trouble is being spared to make them so. And the supper at Princes' Restaurant is going to be very smart, I hear, so I hope that altogether a very large sum will be realised that evening.

As to personal things for the soldiers, I must tell you that Messrs. Robinson and Cleaver have laid in a large store of very inexpensive handkerchiefs purposely for them. Maud told me about them first, and she showed me a large consignment she was sending off, so I went and ordered a supply for myself. On my way out I saw some pretty tea-gowns, one of which I had sketched for you. It was made in a very fine voile, and was trimmed with a particularly delicate description of black lace, whilst the fichu was of pink mousseline de soie. Others were made in thin silks, which would be just the thing for sending to India or China, or other hot stations. And they were all so tastefully arranged with lace and chiffon that they took my fancy at once.

Yours affectionately,
CONSTANCE.

TEA-GOWN AT MESSRS. ROBINSON AND CLEAVER'S.

Digitized by Google

BOVRIL AFTER THE BATTLE

EXTRACT FROM

Sir Wm. MacCormac's

Report to the Lancet after the Battle of Tugela:

". . . Awaiting their turn "the wounded were lying outside "in rows which were being con- "tinually augmented by the civilian "bearers coming in from the field."

"As each wounded man "reached the hospital he was "served with a hot cup of "BOVRIL, large cans of which "were boiling outside the "tents."

The above report will be found in full in the "Lancet" of the 20th ult., and in most of the London papers of the 19th ult.

How to Speculate Successfully in War Time.

"How to Speculate Successfully in War Time." Important Article and Advice contained in this week's Stock Market Report, just issued, post free, by the

LONDON & PARIS EXCHANGE, LTD

Head Offices: 24, THROGMORTON STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Telephone: 1861 Avenue.

Telegrams: "PLENARILY, LONDON."

ADVANCES ON MINING SHARES AT 6 PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

The Army Assurance Association.

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES:

Life. (War Risks, World-Wide.)
Accidents and Diseases.
Fire. (Residence Abroad.)
Burglary, &c.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing without endorsement on removal.

SPECIAL QUOTATIONS FOR MESSES.

Refund of Income Duty obtained by arrangement with the War Office, on all Life and Accident Premiums.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due, on permanent order.

Apply for Prospectus, MANAGER,

217, PICCADILLY, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, W.

Branch Office: IMPERIAL BUILDINGS, GROSVENOR ROAD, ALDERSHOT.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS. SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

THE NEW
'Gem' Phonograph

LOOK CAREFULLY
AT THIS
AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.

As here Illustrated
£2 2 0

Will Talk, Sing, Play Cornet, Banjo, Piccolo,
and every other sound reproduced.

SPECIALLY PRODUCED BY MR. EDISON
For the Family circle.

Price, as here illustrated,
£2 2 0

IT IS THE ONLY INSTRUMENT IN THE WORLD TO DO THIS.

OBSERVE. It must not be imagined, because the price is exceptionally low, that this recent product of Mr. Edison's fertile brain is an inferior entertainer. It is, like all his products, a perfect wonder, and his ideal wish is to make the Phonograph the familiar and necessary equipment to EVERY HOME that it ought to be.

The Greatest Entertainer for your Fireside.
Most Versatile, Interesting and Instructive.

Our Full Illustrated Catalogue sent Post Free on application.

THE EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD.,
OR
EDISONIA, LTD.
39, Charing Cross Road, W.C.
25, 27, 29, Banner Street, E.C.
Depot and Showrooms—20, Cheapside, E.C
LONDON.

Digitized by Google

The BEST TOBACCO in the World.

MILD IN RED Packets and Tins.

When you ask for

MEDIUM IN BLUE Packets and Tins.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT

SEE THAT YOU GET IT, and do not be put off with something said to be just as good.

Printed by Hudson & Kearns, 83–87, Southwark Street, London, S.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 17th, 1900.

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

by COMMR CHAS N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette")
20, TAVISTOCK ST, COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Subscription Price, per annum, Post free.
Inland, 28s 2d Foreign, 34s 8d

Registered at the G.P.O as a Newspaper.

Published Weekly,
Price
6d.
Vol. IX.
No. 159

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS
assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,
217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.).

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
COLLIER'S
BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

FINEST LIQUEURS.
Devonshire Sloe Gin.
SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.
CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.

COLLIER & Co., 53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.
(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)
Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.
Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.
SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.
MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.
Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

RUBINAT (Llorach) APERIENT WATER.

RUBINAT for a CLEAR COMPLEXION.
Taken occasionally will remove all skin irritation.

RUBINAT is essentially adapted for people of sedentary occupation, and it removes all intestinal obstructions without pain, and has an immediate effect without interfering with occupations.

Sold in Quart Bottles by
E. GALLAIS & CO., Ltd., The Sole Agents,
90, PICCADILLY, LONDON, W.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY
Pickering's 'Blanco'
For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and it is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

THE "OSMAN"
Turkish Towels and Bath Mats

MADE BY

BARLOW & JONES, Limited,

MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.

And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

The Army Assurance Association.

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES:

Life. (War Risks. World-Wide.)
Accidents and Diseases.
Fire. (Residence Abroad.)
Burglary, &c.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing without endorsement on removal.

SPECIAL QUOTATIONS FOR MESSES.

Refund of Income Duty obtained by arrangement with the War Office, on all Life and Accident Premiums.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due, on permanent order.

Apply for Prospectus, MANAGER,

217, PICCADILLY, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, W.

Branch Office: IMPERIAL BUILDINGS, GROSVENOR ROAD, ALDERSHOT.

FLOR DE DINDIGUL
Cigars.

3D. each At all Respectable Tobacconists.

SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Exquisite Mild Flavour and Most Delicate Aroma, and leave no unpleasant taste in the mouth, and no bad after-effects.

- ALSO - -

Flor de Dindigul Cigarettes,

ALL TOBACCO LEAF—NO PAPER. A Delightful Wholesome Whiff, 1d. each at all Respectable Tobacconists, or at the SOLE IMPORTERS—

BEWLAY & CO., Ltd.,

49, 74, and 156, STRAND, and 143, CHEAPSIDE.

ESTABLISHED 1780. PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

TUG OF WAR
"FRAME FOOD" TEAM WINS EASILY

Four sturdy children.
Sure as you're alive.
Reared on "FRAME FOOD" Diet
Can beat any five.

COPYRIGHT.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 159. Saturday, February 17th, 1900.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	[illegible],01
34th	K. H. Benson	[illegible]302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

DECEMBER, 1899.

*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

Our Best Friends..

Are the long-time users of the

Smith Premier Typewriter,

those who from experience have learnt its merits, and who testify that its capacity for good . . . work all the time is unequalled, and that repair bills are reduced to a minimum.

SEND FOR ART CATALOGUE.

The Smith Premier Typewriter Co.,
14 Gracechurch Street, London, E.C.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "The Better Life."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "The School for Scandal."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "The Masked Ball."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Messenger Boy." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Snow Man."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
NEW OLYMPIC, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "A Trip to Midget Town.'
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "How London Lives."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W. "The Canary."
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. "Rupert of Hentzau."
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "Facing the Music."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "What Happened to Jones."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m.
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Dandy Dick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45. p.m. "Dorothy."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "Dick Whittington."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Dangers of London."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Tyranny of Tears.
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "The Belle of New York."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The Worst Woman in London."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Charley's Aunt."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Sorrows of Satan."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "The Manœuvres of Jane."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Is Life Worth Living."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Private Secretary.
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "Shadows of a Great City.
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "A Gaiety Girl."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Worst Woman in London."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FIVE YEARS' RECORD.

During the last five years 156 Pupils were prepared and 144 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—14 out of 16.
SANDHURST—53 out of 58.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—28 out of 29.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—10 out of 10.
COOPER'S HILL—4 out of 4.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—2 out of 2.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
20 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

We Season the World.

The Five Noted Seasons of the World — SPRING, SUMMER, AUTUMN, WINTER AND For Fish, Flesh, and Fowl of all kinds.

YORKSHIRE RELISH

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., & 2s. each. Beware of Substitutions. Sole Proprietors: GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & CO., LEEDS.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK,

SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.
TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.
STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK with full particulars, post free.
Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON."

FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

JEWSBURY & BROWN'S

ORIENTAL TOOTH PASTE.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL, HOLLOWAY.

Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.

The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 2,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £10,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED.

L. H. GLENTON-KERR, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.

£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.

Bankers, Messrs. Drummond.

ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

ENCORE RAZOR

Ask for "ENCORE" Pocket and Table Cutlery.

Send for Free List of Cases.

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & Co. make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:—Black, 4/-; Ivory, 6/-

From all Dealers, or write direct to Makers, T. TURNER & Co., Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD.

Who will supply through nearest Agents.

HOTELS, CLUBS, etc.

JUNIOR Naval & Military Club

96, PICCADILLY, W.

The Club House will be Opened for the use of Members on Monday, February 26th next, at 9 a.m.

February 1st, 1900.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle room. Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars, apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons, 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra, Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director, V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

F. MICHELLI, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Where the Late General Wauchope Lies Buried	553
Sea Power and the Situation. (Illustrated)	554
Attending to the Wounded. The Good Work at Wynberg Hospital. (Illustrated)	556
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	557
Editorial Notices	558
The Navy and Army Diary	558
Died for Their Country	558
Disposition of Troops in South Africa ...	559
The War in Natal. (Illustrated) ...	560
Imperial Yeomanry and C.I.V. Artillery. (Illustrated)	561
The Fortune of War. Boer Prisoners at Simon's Bay. (Illustrated) ...	564
With Our Soldiers in Natal. Comforts in Camp at Chieveley. (Illustrated)	565
With Clery and Warren on the Tugela. (Illustrated)	566
With General French at Colesberg. On the Orange Free State Frontier. (Illustrated)	568
The War in Cape Colony. (Illustrated)	569
Thrift in the Navy. (Illustrated) ...	570
Battlefields and Scenes of the War. (Illus.)	571
The Story of the War	572
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	573
Died for Their Country. The Heroes We Mourn. The Gallant Slain. (Illus.)	576

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Royal Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Third Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY IN HOME WATERS.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. h. Hulk. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. g.v. Gun Vessel. y. Yacht. T. Tender. s.s. Survey Ship. d.s. Depot-ship. P. Portsmouth. D. Devonport. C. Chatham. S. Sheerness. i. Instructional Torpedo Flotilla. c.g. Coast Guard. p.g. Port Guard. W.I. Whale Island.

Agincourt, cr.	Com. D. St. A. Wake	T. to Boscawen
Alarm, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. Powley	T. to Galatea, c.g.
Albacore, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. J. W. Steward	Ireland [Albert
Alberta, y.	Staff-Capt. G. A. Broad	T. to Victoria and
Alexandra, B.	Capt. Count F. C. Metaxa, A.D.C. (Vice-Adml. Sir Compton E. Domvile, K.C.B.).	Portland, c.g.
Algiers, h.	Capt. G. L. Atkinson, A.D.C. (Rear-Adml. S. C. Holland).	Medway Reserve C.
Angler, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. Tibbets	T. to Pembroke
Antelope, t.g.b.	Com. O. A. Stokes	Portishead (R.N.R)
Ariel, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. G. Webster	T. to Pembroke, i.
Arrogant, cr.	Capt. A. W. E. Protheroe	Channel Squadron
Asia, h.	Capt. A. A. C. Parr (Rear-Admiral P. Aldrich).	Portsmouth [Reserves
Australia, cr.	Capt. G. Neville	Southampton [Water, c.g.
Bat, t.b.d.	Com. P. A. I. Lloyd	T. to Vivid, i.
Benbow, B.	Capt. R. P. Humpage	Greenock, c.g.
Bittern, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. La J. Leatham	T. to Pembroke, i.
Black Prince, cr.	Com. W. J. Grogan	Queenstown (boys)
Boscawen, h.	Capt. T. H. M. Jerram	Portland (boys)
Britannia, h.	Capt. Hon. A. G. Curzon-Howe, C.B., C.M.G.	Dartmouth (cadets)
Briton, h.	Lieut.-Com. A. C. Spearman	Inverness (R.N.R.)
Caledonia, h.	Com. J. G. Hewitt	Queensferry (boys)
Calliope, cr.	Capt. H. P. Routh	T. to Northampton
Cambrian, cr.	Capt. R. K. McAlpine	Training Squadron
Cambridge, h.	Capt. R. W. Craigie	Gunnery School, D.
Chamois, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. G. Corbett	T. to Victory, i.
Circe, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. G. S. Q. Carr, C.M.G.	T. to Severn, c.g.
Clyde, h.	Com. J. P. Montgomery	Aberdeen (R.N.R.)
Collingwood, B.	Capt. F. Finnis	Bantry, c.g.
Colossus, B.	Capt. S. A. Johnson	Holyhead, c.g.
Conqueror, B.		T. to Cambridge
Coquette, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. C. P. Beaty-Pownall	T. to Pembroke
Crane, t.b.d.	Com. T. D. W. Napier	T. to Victory, i.
Curacoa, cr.	Com. H. Lyon	T. to Northampton
Curlew, g.v.		T. to Cambridge
Cygnet, t.b.d.	Com. C. S. Hickley	T. to Pembroke, i.
Dædalus, h.	Lieut.-Com. B. C. Barber	Bristol (R.N.R.)
Defiance, h.	Capt. F. T. Hamilton	Torpedo School, D.
Diadem, cr.	Capt. H. S. F. Niblett	Channel Squadron
Diana, cr.	Capt. H. C. A. Baynes	Particular Service
Dolphin, sloop	Lieut.-Com. J. Luce	T. to Boscawen
D. of Wellingt'n, h.	Capt. W. de V. Hamilton	Depôt Ship, P.
Durham, h.	Lieut.-Com. R. H. Curteis	Leith (R.N.R.)
Eagle, h.	Com. C. E. Gladstone	Liverpool (R.N.R.)
Edinburgh, B.	Com. W. G. Van Ingen	T. to Wildfire [(Gunnery School)
Elfin, y.	Staff-Com. J. E. Tully	T. to Victoria and [Albert
Enchantress, y.	Staff-Capt. P. D. Ouless	Admiralty Yacht, P
Europa, cr.	Capt. A. J. Pocklington	Particular Service
Excellent	Capt. W. H. May, M.V.O.	Gunnery Sch., W.I.
Fairy, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. N. Hunter	T. to Vivid, i.
Fawn, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. W. Dalgety	T. to Victory, i.
Ferret, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com.	T. to Vivid, i.
Fire Queen, y.	Staff-Capt. T. Hawkins Smith	T. to Victory
Flirt, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Thomas	T. to Victory
Flying Fish, t.b.d.	Com. M. Singer	T. to Victory, i.
Furious, cr.	Capt. L. E. Wintz	Channel Squadron
Galatea, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cross	Hull, c.g.
Ganges, h.	Com. W. V. Anson	Harwich (boys)
Gleaner, t.g.b.	Com. F. H. Peyton	Gravesend (R.N.R)
Gossamer, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. T. Cole	T. to Melampus, c.g.
Hannibal, B.	Capt. Sir B. W. Walker, Bart., C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Hearty, g.b.	Com. H. G. King Hall, D.S.O.	North Sea [(fisheries)
Hecla	Com. W. J. Scullard (N)	Torpedo Depôt, P.
Hero, B.	Com. C. G. Treherne	T. to Excellent
Highflyer, cr.	Capt. F. E. E. Brock	T. Squadron (Tem.)
Howe, B.	Captain H. L. Fleet (Rear-Adml. A. P. M. Lake).	Queenstown, p.g.
Impregnable, h.	Capt. A. C. B. Bromley	Devonport (boys)
Indus, h.	Capt. W. Marrack (Rear-Adml. T. S. Jackson).	D'nport Reserves
Jackal, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Tancred	Coast of Scotland [(fisheries)
Janus, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. G. de L. O. Johnson	T. to Pembroke
Jaseur, t.g.b.	Com. W. Carey	T. to Vernon
Jason, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Bruce	Particular Service
Juno, cr.	Capt. G. H. Cherry	Training Squadron
Jupiter, B.	Capt. J. Durnford, C.B., D.S.O.	Channel Squadron
Kite, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. P. W. Hope	T. to Excellent
Landrail, g.v.		T. to Wildfire
Leda, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. V. Maud	T. to Australia, c.g.
Liberty, brig.	Lieut.-Com. C. H. Morgan	T. to Lion
Lightning, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. L. Dundas	T. to Victory, i.
Lion, h.	Com. E. G. Shortland	Devonport (boys)
Locust, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. S. H. Radcliffe	T. to Vivid, i.
Lynx, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com.	T. to Vivid
Magnet, tug.	Lieut.-Com. J. Webber	T. to Victory
Magnificent, B.	Capt. J. Ferris (Rear-Adml. A. D. Fanshawe).	Channel Squadron
Majestic, B.	Capt. G. Le C. Egerton, C.B. (Vice-Admiral Sir H. H. Rawson, K.C.B.).	Channel Squadron
Mars, B.	Capt. H. J. May, C.B.	Channel Squadron
Martin, brig.	Lieut.-Com. S. M. Agnew	T. to St. Vincent
Medea, cr.	Com. C. G. May	Southampton [(R.N.R.)
Medusa, cr.	Com. A. L. K. Knapton	N. Shields (R.N.R)
Melampus, cr.	Capt. R. N. Gresley	Kingstown, c.g.
Mermaid, t.b.d.	Com. M. E. F. Kerr	T. to Pembroke, i.
Minerva, cr.	Capt. F. O. Pike	Training Squadron
Minotaur, cr.	Com. E. G. Barton	T. to Boscawen
Nautilus, brig	Lieut.-Com. H. H. D. Tothill	T. to Impregnable
Nile, B.	Capt. G. C. Langley	Devonport, p.g.
Northampton, cr.	Capt. H. A. W. Onslow	Recruiting Service
Northumberl'd, cr.	Com. C. E. Tower	Depôt Ship, C.
Onyx, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. Oliver	T. to Severn, c.g.
Osborne, y.	Capt. C. Windham	Royal Yacht, P.
Osprey, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. G. E. Corbett	T. to Vivid, i.
Pactolus, cr.	Capt. F. J. Foley	Channel Squadron
Panther, t.b.d.	Com. J. I. Graham	T. to Vivid, i.
Pembroke, h.	Capt. A. Macleod	Medway Res'ves, C
Pilot, brig	Lieut.-Com. W. J. S. Alderson	T. to Impregnable
President, h.	Com. A. C. Woods	W.I. Docks (R.N.R)
Prince George, B.	Capt. A. Barrow	Channel Squadron
Racer, sloop	Com. M. S. Beatty (N)	T. to Britannia
Raven, g.b.	Com. A. Meldrum	Channel Islands
Renard, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. H. Eyre	T. to Colossus, c.g.
Repulse, B.	Capt. R. F. O. Foote, C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Research, s.	Capt. W. U. Moore	Home Waters
Resolution, B.	Capt. C. R Arbuthnot	Channel Squadron
Rodney, B.	Capt. G. W. Russell	Queensferry, c.g.
St. George, cr.	Com. E. V. Poe, M.V.O., A.D.C.	Training Squadron
St. Vincent, h.	Com. C. F. Thursby	Portsmouth (boys)
Sans Pareil, B.	Capt. H. C. Bigge	Sheerness, p.g.
Seaflower, brig.	Lieut.-Com. E. G. H. Gamble	T. to Boscawen
Seagull, t.g.b.	Com. H. Grant-Dalton	Particular Service
Seahorse, s.	Staff-Com. G. S. Keigwin	Home Waters
Seal, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. A. J. Payne	T. to Vivid, i.
Severn, cr.	Capt. W. L. H. Browne	Harwich, c.g.
Shark, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com.	T. to Vivid, i.
Sheldrake, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. W. Pochin	T. to Rodney
Spanker, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. H. E. F. Worthington	T. to Alexandra, c.g.
Star, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. B. S. Evans	T. to Victory, i.
Sturgeon, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. McG. Lockhart	T. to Pembroke
Thrasher, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. T. D. Pratt	T. to Vivid, i.
Thunderer, B.	Capt. J. E. Blaxland	Pembroke, p.g.
Trafalgar, B.	Capt. G. A. Primrose	Portsmouth, p.g.
Traveller, tug	Lieut.-Com. R. A. Cathie	T. to Vivid
Triton, s.	Capt. G. E. Richards	Home Waters
Unicorn, h.	Lieut.-Com. E. L. Austen	Dundee (R.N.R.)
Vernon, h.	Capt. C. G. Robinson	Torpedo School, P
Vesuvius, g.b.	Lt.-Com. F. C. U. V. Wentworth	T. to Vernon
Victoria & Albert, y.	R.-Adml. Sir J. R. T. Fullerton, K.C.V.O., C.B., A.D.C.	Royal Yacht, P.
Victory, h.	Capt. F. C. B. Bridgeman (Adml. Sir M. Culme-Seymour, Bart., G.C.B.).	Portsmouth
Violet, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. B. Sparks	T. to Victory
Vivid, y.	Capt. Sir R. Poore, Bart. (Adml. Sir H. Fairfax, K.C.B.).	Devonport
Wanderer, barque	Lieut.-Com. L. de W. Satow	T. to Boscawen
Wildfire, y.	Capt. C. Campbell, C.B., D.S.O., A.D.C. (Admiral Sir N. Bowden-Smith, K.C.B.).	Sheerness
Wolf, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. C. Kemble-Lambert.	T. to Vivid
Wye, s.	Staff-Com. C. R. H. Robinson	Particular Service

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII., cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings each, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc. collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

LAZENBY'S

ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT & PORTABLE

SOUP SQUARES

These squares are prepared in 13 Varieties (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.), and should find a place in every store-room, being invaluable for making soup at short notice or improving stock. They will keep good any reasonable length of time, and are packed in neat boxes containing 6 & 12 Squares.

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

LAZENBY'S

13 VARIETIES.

SOUP SQUARES

HEATH & GEORGE,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Gymnastic Apparatus

TO HER MAJESTY'S ARMY & NAVY.

Calisthenic and Gun Drill Apparatus, the Italian Fencing Swords and Helmets, latest Aldershot pattern, and every description of Gymnastic Apparatus for public and private use.

Catalogues Free.

18, GOSWELL ROAD, LONDON, E.C.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.
DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.)
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W.
(On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

Digitized by Google

THE

No. 4 YOST Typewriter

Learnt more Quickly,

Prints Better,

Writes Faster,

Lasts Longer,

Needs Less Repairs

Than any other Typewriter on the Market.

CATALOGUE POST FREE.

50, HOLBORN VIADUCT, E.C., & 303, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—Lancet, July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from Wine."—Medical Press, August, '99.

South African Campaign.

217, PICCADILLY, W. ALLEN & WRIGHT'S 26, POULTRY, E.C.

FINE QUALITY SILVER-MOUNTED BRIAR-ROOT PIPES

FOR THOSE ON ACTIVE SERVICE.

Every Pipe guaranteed thoroughly well made to stand hard wear, and of finest material throughout.

TRADE "A. & W." MARK.

No. 42, New Golf Shape, 4/-.

No. 43, New Golf Shape, 4/-.

No. 177, Short Stem, to stand up, 3/6.

No. 173, Short, Light, Pull-out, 3/6.

No. 74, The Bantam, 5/-.

No. 156, Short Haiti, 4/-.

BEST ENGLISH MADE.

Grain Calf, AIDE-DE-CAMP CASES, with ring for attaching to belt, 2/6.

No. 34, Army Shape, 3/6.

No. 34a, Bent Army, 3/6.

SPECIAL TERMS FOR QUANTITIES.

ALLEN & WRIGHT'S Illustrated Catalogue of Specialities, Post Free.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER,

BELFAST and

164, 166, and 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS FREDERICK OF GERMANY.

Irish Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

		Per Doz.
Bordered.
Children's		1s. 3d.
Ladies'		2s. 3d
Gents'		3s. 3d.
Hemstitched.
Ladies'		2s. 9d.
Gents'		3s. 11d.

Linen Collars, Cuffs, & Shirts.

COLLARS.—Ladies' 3-fold from 3s. 6d. per doz.; Gents' 4-fold 4s. 11d per doz.

CUFFS.—For Ladies or Gentlemen, from 5s. 11d. per doz.

SHIRTS.—Fine quality Longcloth, with 4-fold pure Linen Fronts. 35s. 6d. per half-doz. (to measure 2s. extra). Old Shirts made good as new, with best materials in neckband, cuffs, and fronts, for 14s. the half-doz.

Irish Damask Table & House Linen.

Fish Napkins, 2s. 11d. per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5s 6d. per doz. Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 2s. 6d.; 2½ yards by 3 yards, 5s. 6d. each. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4s. 6d. per doz. Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1s. 4½d. each.

Monograms, Crests, Coats of Arms, Initials, &c. woven and embroidered.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

N.B.—To prevent delay all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., 9, STRAND, W.C.

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

JEWELLERS, CLOCKMAKERS AND SILVERSMITHS.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

ALSO JEWELLERY CATALOGUE

OUR 1900 BROOCH.
Registered No. 350921.
35 Clear Set Diamonds, 2 Whole Pearls, and Fine Gold £5 5 0
Exceptional value and strength.

NO. 86 STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.
18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.
18ct. Gold Crystal, £13 15s.
Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s. Silver Crystal, £5. Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

No. 138.
STRAND CHRONOGRAPH
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0
Steel or Silver Cases ... each 8:8:0
With 30 Minute Recorder ... 5:5:0
18ct. Gold 15:15:0

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times" Enyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

Digitized by Google

IN "A Secret of the North Sea" (Chatto), Mr. Algernon Gissing has written a novel of distinction. Its distinction is that of character, for the materials he handles are often of the roughest. The story is cast in the same Northumbrian land that was the scene of his "Scholar of Bygate," and I like the story just as well. There is something in it of convention, of old-fashioned convention if you will, for the opening part is but the introduction to a story that has its beginning earlier. Old story-writers would often find their subject in a dusty packet of letters, or in a forgotten diary discovered in the first chapter, and there may be advantages in the method sometimes. I think Mr. Gissing, consciously or unconsciously, is influenced by the Brontës. There is something in his rugged characterisation that reminds one of the stormy passions that surge through the pages of "Wuthering Heights." His theme is one of vengeance and unquenchable hatred. Two neighbouring Northumbrian farmers have their hatred engendered in boyhood, growing deeper as the years go by, and carried to its extreme in manhood by injury done. Crumstone, the greater fury, would wed the sister of the other, but Beadnell and the girl play a trick upon him. He has wronged another Janet, and by stratagem, at a border Gretna Green, he is made to marry her, veiled from recognition. There is something, perhaps, unreal in the incident, but it goes to the moulding of character. In this way does Crumstone express his fell purpose to his unwelcome bride in the homely Northumbrian tongue: "I can tell you, lass, I'll never forget this—I'll never forget it, day or night for a lifetime. I'll never rest for yae minute, if I live a hundred years, but I'll pay him out. Ay, I'll smash yon man, and a' that's about him, just like I smashed yon Shieldrake's eggs. I'll come in at the hinder end, I'll promise you." It is the evolution of this vengeance in acts that is Mr. Gissing's theme. Partly by the aid of money is it worked out, for in any and every contest money has power. The characterisation is extremely fine, and there is much convincing human portraiture in the book, though the personages are not at all such as most people are most familiar with. Peter Annett, Beadnell, and Crumstone the enemies; Lylliard the daughter and Peregrine the son of the former, and Janet the wife and the Kittiwake the unrecognised daughter of the latter, are all powerfully drawn. We see how the toils are gathered about the intended victim. His property dwindles, his dearly-loved home is wasted, his son is filched away. Into the boy's ear the villain pours all the fascination of the sea. The pulses of forgotten ancestry are stirred, and the lad goes away, to the agony of his parents, who have "aye liked the plough and the herding." "Come heame, my boy Perry, come heame, your mother wearies sair!" is her nightly cry to the wind and the firs as she stands at the farmhouse door.

And the boy hears, and returns on a terrible night to the cove. But here I must quote a little of Mr. Gissing's fine prose. The Kittiwake has a passionate love for the boy Peregrine, and she goes down among the rocks in the midst of the storm to discover if he be dead or alive. She chances upon his unconscious body washed up by the waves. "His eyes were closed; his great head of hair was like a wet mop over his forehead—like seaweed, Kitty thought, as she wiped the face with her handkerchief, for that was what he said hers was like, when he saved her on the Stagg rocks." Then she sees the villain wandering from among the searchers.

"'Help me!' she shouted. 'He's not dead; but he will be if we are not quick. Mr. Crumstone, help me!' Instead of answering her the man came down from the rock, and fixed his dark eyes upon the prostrate youth, and then upon the girl. He took up one of the man's hands and let it fall. 'He is, he must be dead,' he muttered. 'I'll go and tell somebody to fetch him.' But, as he turned away, Kittiwake at one spring, was upon him. Mistaking her purpose, Crumstone thrust her back, and she fell upon the prostrate body. Instantly she was again at the man's side, regardless of her own safety. 'You shall not leave him to die here,' she cried, clutching him by the arm. The girl's spirit thrilled the man, and she felt him tremble. 'Help me to carry him. Ye canna murder him. You'll find no rest for your soul if you do.' 'He is dead. . . . It's you that have murdered him, not me.' And he moved, dragging her with him. 'Leave me, or——' 'I'll never leave you, if you dinna turn and help me. I'll follow you and cling to you through the whole world, ay, through all eternity. You shall have no rest here or hereafter. I'll skirl through your soul, like a' the storms that ever swept over the North Sea since it was water. . . . You shall help me!'"

I have quoted this to show the passionate vehemence of much of Mr. Gissing's narrative. More might have been cited to illustrate his excellent descriptive style and the force with which he invests nature, seeming to penetrate its inner character. Excellent too, in its suggestive power, is the laconic reconciliation of the returned and restored seaman and his failing father. They shake hands. "'Well, lad.' 'Well, father.' 'It's a queer warld,' said Matthew Beadnell, resignedly, and Perry seemed to acquiesce." I shall not tell the story any further. It is thoroughly well written, the development of its plot—which I have only partially outlined—is good, and the style and character are excellent. This is far and away above most stories of the day, and I would willingly have devoted more space to it.

Other things, however, claim attention, and in these days we cannot get far away from the war. Look, for example, at the picture of "The Handy Man" on this page. It is a reproduction of the splendid plate by Mr. Caton Woodville, published by Messrs. Graves of Pall Mall. Such a notable figure, drawn with unmistakable power, and produced in photogravure and mezzotint by R. Wallace Hester, must be an admirable memorial of the present war, in the course of which our countrymen have learned to value the seaman-gunner so highly. This is one of the men who "saved the situation" at Ladysmith, and it is published as a companion to "The Absent-Minded Beggar," of which 200 treble remarque proofs were subscribed for within thirty-six hours, and 1,000 single remarque proofs within seven days of the first announcement. In the case of the new plate, the "remarques" are a midshipman seated against a sandbag battery, and the heads of Captains Lambton and Percy Scott. Mr. Rudyard Kipling and Mr. Caton Woodville sign the treble remarque proofs, and Mr. Woodville the single (midshipman only) remarque proofs. In either state the plate must be a highly valued possession. Those who would have the treble remarques must not delay, if in that state the plate is even now attainable.

Two notable books:

"Shameless Wayne." Halliwell Sutcliffe. (Unwin.) A fine North Country story, by the author of "Moor and Fell."

"In London's Heart." George R. Sims. (Chatto.) A very readable novel.

"SEARCH-LIGHT."

Digitized by Google

Bootmaker to the Royal Family.

M. Hoban,

LATE MANAGER TO SCAFE'S PATENT, 104, NEW BOND STREET, W. Now Established at

28, UPPER BERKELEY STREET, PORTMAN SQUARE, W.

(NEAR MARBLE ARCH)

Specialite: SCAFE'S PATENT.

For many years, while Manager of SCAFE'S PATENT Leather and Rubber Boot Company, Mr. HOBAN has been honoured with the patronage of the following Members of the Royal Family:—

H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.
H.I.M. The German Emperor and King of Prussia.
H.I.M. The German Empress and Queen of Prussia.
H.I.M. The Empress Frederick of Germany.
H.R.H. The Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, K.G.
H.R.H. The Duchess of Connaught and Strathearn
H.R.H. The Princess Christian (of Schleswig-Holstein).
H.R.H. The Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne).
H.R.H. Duchess of Albany.
H.R.H. The Princess Beatrice (Princess Henry of Battenberg).
H.R.H. The Princess Louise (Duchess of Fife).
H.R.H. The Prince Henry of Prussia.
H.R.H. The Princess Henry of Prussia.
H.R.H. The Princess Adolf (of Schaumburg-Lippe).
H.R.H. The Princess Victoria (of Schleswig-Holstein).
H.G.D.H. The Princess Alix of Hesse.

SCAFE'S PATENT SOLE has now been tested not only by several members of the Royal Family, but by almost every one interested in Sport, and it has now been proved, without a doubt, that the PATENT SOLE is most suitable for SHOOTING BOOTS. Because one may obtain a perfectly Waterproof Boot that is light in weight, which is the greatest comfort to anyone enjoying a long day's shooting.

GOLFING BOOTS. Because, not only are they waterproof and light, but they grip the ground in a solid way, which is of the greatest importance to Golfers.

FOR COUNTRY WALKING BOOTS AND SHOES. To avert a cold, leading medical men will advise you to wear SCAFE'S PATENT SOLES on all your boots.

IMPORTANT. SCAFE'S PATENT SOLE is a complete failure in a Waterproof Boot unless made up by an experienced workman.

Ladies' & Gentlemen's Riding, Shooting Military and Court Bootmaker.

J. W. ELVERY
And CO.'S
Waterproofs.
COATS
— FOR — PRESENTS.

SPÉCIALITÉ—

DRAB BOX CLOTH COATS

£3 3 0.

Thick Woollen Frieze Weather resisting Talma Coats

£2 2 0.

Waterproof Hunting Coats

£1 10 0.

DRIVING APRONS AND SERVANTS' WATERPROOFS.

31, CONDUIT STREET,
LONDON, W.

(One Door from New Bond Street.)

Also at 46 & 47, Lower Sackville Street; 18½, Nassau Street, DUBLIN. And at 78, Patrick Street, CORK.

"LÉRINA,"
The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY

The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lérins,

SITUATED ON

THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,

WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.

To be obtained from

ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED
SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E.

Lists Free.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—Last week a very successful entertainment was given in the Round Room, Rotunda, Dublin, in aid of Lady Roberts's fund, by the children of Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne's dancing class. About 400 of the pupils took part in the programme, which consisted of various fancy dances, such as the minuet, sailor's hornpipe, Scottish sword dance, Irish jig, skating dance, morris dance, etc., etc. But the event of the evening was the military dance, which was performed with great spirit by Miss Gladys Browne and Master Robin McArdle, who were dressed in the khaki uniform of the Dublin Fusiliers. It began with a march in single file and went on to scouting, assaulting and defending with the sword, and firing pistols, all to a step which was half march, half dance. It was very pretty, and was received most enthusiastically, and it ended with a tableau of "First Aid," as seen in the photograph here reproduced.

Master Robin McArdle then recited "The Absent-Minded Beggar," drawing forth a shower of coins from the audience, which, added to the sum collected in his helmet, amounted to £20.

The band of the Royal Hibernian Military School and Mr. Oscar May's string band played during the afternoon, and the entertainment proved a great success, the Round Room being full to overflowing, in spite of many people being kept away by influenza.

I saw some very smart little coats at Princes' the other day when I happened to be lunching there. The restaurant has been very full of late, amongst the well-known people being the Duchess of Sutherland, Lord Arthur Hill, Lord Coventry, Lord Westmorland, Lord Castlerosse, Lord Brackley, Captain and Mrs. Stewart, Lady Alice Leslie, Baron de Courcelle, General Cooper, Captain Ronald Greville, and a host of others.

APPLYING A BANDAGE.

This week I had a letter from Alice, and I hoped it was bringing me some Indian news, of which she has been very sparing indeed of late. The first part of the letter, however, was devoted to fervent requests that certain commissions she gave me should be carried out immediately without any delay. Particularly did she ask for cotton dressing-gowns, of which she wanted to lay in a stock before the hot weather. Luckily for my peace of mind, I remembered having seen a quantity of these at Robinson and Cleaver's last time I was there, so I went off to Regent Street to get her some. I found they had them in three or four varieties, some being quite plain zephyr very simply made, others elaborately trimmed with lace and cut with a long watteau back. All were really pretty and none expensive, so I bought half-a-dozen for Alice, and I expect she will find them a great comfort for the hot mornings, especially as they will wash like rags. At the end of her letter Alice told me about the Bengal polo tournament that came off at Calcutta in the middle of January before a large gathering of interested spectators, Lady Curzon being present from the very beginning of the game to watch the match for the Ezra Challenge Cup between the Viceroy's Staff and the Volunteers. Though the victory was to the Staff, with six goals and one subsidiary to the Volunteers' one goal and one subsidiary, there was some capital play, Major Williams and Major Cartwright doing splendid service for the Volunteers, whose team was further made up of Captain Apostolides and Captain Colville, whilst for the Staff there were Captain Marker, Major Baring, Captain Wilkinson, and Captain Grimstone.

Still more people were gathered together two days later to see the match between the Military and Civilian teams, though the play was by no means exciting or interesting. The game ended in victory for the Military with five goals and seven subsidiaries to one goal and one subsidiary, the respective teams being Captain Hood, Captain Iggulden, Captain Martin, and Major Kuper for the Military, and for their opponents Messrs. Sheepshanks, Russell, Bonham Carter, and Carlyle.

The "At Home" given by Admiral Bosanquet on the "Eclipse" at about that time was very enjoyable. The ship was made gay with flags, flowers, etc.; the band played all the afternoon, and many people could not resist a dance or two before they went home, the good music and the polished deck being irresistible.

The same evening everyone met again at the State Ball, which was one of the most successful that has ever taken place at Calcutta, dancing being very vigorously kept up till 2 a.m. Government House was really a lovely sight, being lit up with a myriad of electric lamps, each carefully shaded to as becoming a tint as possible. The usual brilliant uniforms and Court dresses of the men, with the bright silks and satins of the women's costumes, made the ballroom a very gay scene, a few black dresses here and there giving a contrast that was a relief amongst so many gay colours.

I have just had a note from Mrs. Robert Price telling me she would be most grateful for any flannel shirts, pyjamas, or natural wool socks for the Portland Hospital, which is greatly in need of such help for the many wounded there. Any contributions you feel inclined to send should be addressed to Mrs. Robert Price, 6, Sussex Mansions, S.W.; or to Mrs. Howard Tooth, 34, Harley Street, W.

Yours affectionately,

CONSTANCE.

Digitized by Google

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for

Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull."

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

GENRL. BULLER & PIONEER Cigarettes are in Everyone's Mouth and have Gone to the —Front— owing to their Superiority over all Others

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS
SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE
is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., LTD.
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

WOOL FOR THE WAR.

Khaki Drill spells Chill.

Write or wire for details of complete

PURE WOOL
REGULATION
FIELD SERVICE OUTFIT.

SPECIAL KHAKI WOOLLEN SERGE FOR YEOMANRY.

Jaeger

MILITARY AND SPORTING
PURE WOOL TAILORS,
42, CONDUIT STREET, W.
Telegrams: "Highmost, London."

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,

And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS.

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 83-87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Offices: 10, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C. Editorial Offices: 20, Tavistock Street, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 160. Saturday, February 24th, 1900.

The ART of . .

ROUGH RIDING

(MILITARY AND CIVIL)

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship and Rough Riding," 2/6.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

DECEMBER, 1899.

*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "The Better Life."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "In Spite of All."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. "His Excellency the Governor."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Messenger Boy." Sat. 2 p.m.
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Puss in Boots."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex." Sat. 2 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Henry V."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m. "Flora Dora." Thursday, 2.30 p.m.
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The Only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "How London Lives."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W. "Magda."
ST. JAMES'S, S.W. "Rupert of Hentzau."
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. "Facing the Music."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "What Happened to Jones."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Bishop's Eye."
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. "Dandy Dick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. and 1.30 p.m. "Sinbad the Sailor."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "Th Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45. p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m. "The Great Ruby."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Babes in the Wood."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Cinderella."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Great World of London."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m. and 2 p.m. "For the King."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "The Geisha."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. "Forty Thieves."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m., Thurs. at 2. "The Squire."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The Secret of the Harem,"
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "A Royal Family."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Driven from Home."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "The Manœuvres of Jane."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Is Life Worth Living."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W. "The Private Secretary.
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "The Broad Arrow."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Worst Woman in London."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FIVE YEARS' RECORD.

During the last five years 156 Pupils were prepared and 145 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—14 out of 16.
SANDHURST—54 out of 58.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—28 out of 29.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1
PROMOTION—10 out of 10.
COOPER'S HILL—4 out of 4.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—2 out of 2.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
20 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP

When you see that sign at a hairdresser's "Williams' Shaving Soap used here," you need not hesitate to enter. You may be sure of a good, clean, comforting shave. Above all you are safe from the dangers which lurk in cheap, inferior shaving soaps.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAPS are used by all first-class Hairdressers.

Sold by Chemists, Hairdressers and Perfumers, all over the world, or mailed to any address on receipt of price in stamps.

WILLIAMS' SHAVING STICKS, 1s. WILLIAMS' LUXURY SHAVING TABLETS, 1s.
WILLIAMS' AMERICAN SHAVING TABLETS, 6d. WILLIAMS' "JERSEY CREAM" TOILET SOAP, 6d.
Trial Tablet WILLIAMS' SHAVING SOAP for 1d. stamp, by addressing—

The J. B. WILLIAMS CO., 64 Gt. Russell St., LONDON, W. C., or 161 Clarence St., SYDNEY.
Chief Offices and Laboratories—GLASTONBURY, CONN., U. S. A.

ENCORE RAZOR

Send for Free List of Cases.

Ask for "ENCORE" Pocket and Table Cutlery.

STEEL.—MESSRS. THOMAS TURNER & CO., make their own steel, and are thus able to produce a guaranteed quality, which is especially suitable for hollow-ground razors.

FORGING.—"Encore Razors" are hand-forged, hardened and tempered by experienced workmen.

GRINDING.—"Encore Razors" are extra hollow-ground by workmen who have devoted practically the whole of their lives to the art.

HANDLES.—"Encore Razors" are hafted in the best African Ivory, or in polished Vulcanite in black.

SETTING.—"Encore Razors" are carefully set and whetted, and each razor is individually examined by experts before leaving the works.

PRICE.—"Encore Razors" are sold at a popular price, as follows:— Black, 4s.; Ivory, 6s.

From all Dealers, or write direct to Makers,

T. TURNER & Co., Suffolk Works, SHEFFIELD.

Who will supply through nearest Agents.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,
The Prince of Wales,
The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large ... hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine South sea view; nearest golf links.

BRIGHTON.

GRAND HOTEL.

CENTRE OF SEA FRONT.

Electric Light throughout. Lift to all floors. Bicycle ... Inclusive terms, if desired, from 12s. 6d. per day. Hobden's Royal Sea Water Baths, adjoining the Hotel, and recently purchased, are available on special terms to guests.—For particulars apply to A. D. HOOK, Manager.

PRINCES' RESTAURANT,

PICCADILLY.

THE most fashionable Society resort for Luncheons 4s. 6d.; Dinners a la Carte; Suppers, 5s. Best service, finest wines and cuisine. Bocchi's famous Orchestra. Banqueting rooms, and magnificent suite of picture galleries for balls and receptions.—G. FOURAULT, Managing Director. V. BENOIST, Administrateur.

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED KEATING'S LOZENGES FOR YOUR COUGH?

DR. GABRIEL, M.D., L.R.C.P.

writes from Routh Park, Cardiff, Sept. 28th.

"I have now prescribed them for the last 8 years in my hospitals and private practice, and find them of great benefit. "I certainly and most strongly recommend them."

Sold everywhere in Tins 1/1½ each.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED. F. MICHELLI, Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL, HOLLOWAY.

Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.

The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 4,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £40,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED. L. H. GLENTON-KERR, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.

£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited. ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

Bankers, Messrs. Drummond.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN And CHILDREN, MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.

Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for. W. GUNTRIP KING, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: A Gallant Bugler-boy ...	577
A Tribute to Empire. Our Gallant Slain. The Heroes We Mourn. (Illustrated)	578
Our Colonial Forces. New Zealand.—XI. (Illustrated)	579
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	581
Editorial Notices	582
The Navy and Army Diary	582
Died for Their Country	582
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	583
The War in Natal. (Illustrated) ...	584
Yeomanry and Volunteers for South Africa. (Illustrated)	585
With Sir Redvers Buller in Natal. Scenes in Springfield Camp. (Illus.)	588
Good Work Under the Red Cross. Nursing the Wounded Invalids Back to Health. (Illustrated)	590
The War in Cape Colony. (Illustrated)	593
Jack's Language	594
The Royal Canadian Grenadiers ...	594
Battlefields and Scenes of the War. (Illustrated)	595
The Story of the War	596
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	597
Between the Shells. At Springfield and Frere. (Illustrated)	600

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Fourth Week.]

THE QUARTERS OF THE INFANTRY REGIMENTS.

	Battn.
Grenadier G'ds	1.	Col. D. A. Kinloch	Windsor
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. Lloyd, D.S.O.	For South Africa
	3.	Lieut.-Col. E. M. S. Crabbe	Cape Colony
Coldstream G'ds	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. E. Codrington	Cape Colony
	2.	L.-C. Hon. A. H. Henniker-Major.	Cape Colony
	3.	Lieut.-Col. V. J. Dawson	Chelsea
Scots Guards	1.	Col. A. H. Paget	Cape Colony
	2.	Col. I. R. Jones	For South Africa
	3.	Major Hon. C. Harbord (tem.)	Wellington B'cks
Royal Scots (1st)	1.	Lt.-Col. E. P. Morgan-Payler	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. T. F. Ross	Poona
Queen's (Rl. West Surrey Reg., 2nd)	1.	Col. J. S. Collins	Rawal Pindi
	2.	Lt.-Col. E. O. F. Hamilton	Natal
The Buffs (East Kent Reg., 3rd)	1.	Col. A. E. Ommanney	Kamptee
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. A. Hickson	Cape Colony
King's Own (Rl. Lancaster 4th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. Rowlandson	Singapore
	2.	Col. M. E. Crofton	Cape Colony
Northumberland Fusiliers (5th).	1.	Lt.-Col. C. G. C. Money, C.B.	Cape Colony
	2.	Lt.-Col. G. Frend	Cape Colony
Ryl. Warwickshire Regiment (6th).	1.	Lt.-Col. W. E. G. Forbes, C.B.	Madras
	2.	Lieut.-Col. M. Q. Jones, C.B.	Cape Colony
	3.	Lieut.-Col. A. W. F. Jackson	Malta
	4.	Lieut.-Col. H. E. Irwin	Warwick
Royal Fusiliers (7th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. P. B. Rodick	Nusseerabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. C. Donald	Natal
	3.	Lieut.-Col. J. E. Briggs	Gibraltar
	4.	Lieut.-Col. F. C. Annesley	Hounslow
King's (Liverpool Regiment, 8th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. L. S. Mellor	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. S. H. Harrison	Dublin
Norfolk Regiment (9th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. L. Govan	Bombay
	2.	Lieut.-Col. L. H. Phillips	For South Africa
Lincolnshire Reg. (10th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. R. Lowth, C.B.	Secunderabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. R. Roberts	For South Africa
Devonshire Reg. (11th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. W. Park	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. M. Bullock	Natal
Suffolk Regiment (12th)	1.	Lt.-Col. G. F. C. Mackenzie	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. R. Townley	Quetta
Somersetshire L.I. (13th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. A. Walsh	Rawal Pindi
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. J. Gallwey	Natal
West Yorkshire Regiment (14th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. Grant-Dalton	Kurrachee
	2.	Col. F. W. Kitchener	Natal
East Yorkshire Regiment (15th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. F. Garnett	Belgaum
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. W. Ward	For South Africa
Bedfordshire Reg. (16th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. H. Riddell	Mooltan
	2.	Col. W. O. Cavenagh	Natal
Leicestershire Reg. (17th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. D. Carleton	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. W. McKinstry	For South Africa
Royal Irish Reg. (18th).	1.	Lt.-Col. H. W. N. Guinness	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. B. Forster	Mhow
Yorkshire Reg. (19th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Bowles	Cape Colony
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. J. Spottiswoode	Umballa
Lancashire Fus. (20th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. L. E. May	Crete
	2.	Lt.-Cl. C. J. Blomfield, D.S.O.	Natal
	3.	Lieut.-Col. R. G. Bruxner-Randall.	Malta
	4.	Lieut.-Col. C. M. Hutton	Bury
Royal Scots Fus. (21st).	1.	Lt.-Col. A. H. Abercrombie	Peshawur
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. E. Carr	Natal
Cheshire Regiment (22nd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. W. Bromfield	Secunderabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. F. Curteis	Cape Colony
Royal Welsh Fus. (23rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. C. H. Thorold	Natal
	2.	Lt.-Col. Hon. R. H. Bertie	Hong Kong
South Wales Borderers (24th).	1.	Lt.-Col. H. G. Mainwaring	Chakrata
	2.	Lieut.-Col. Hon. U. de R. B. Roche.	Cape Colony
K.O. Scottish Borderers (25th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. W. Godfray	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. T. W. Hewat	Cawnpore
Cameronians (Sct. Rifles, 26th-90th)	1.	Lieut.-Col. S. H. Lomax	Lucknow
	2.	Lieut.-Col. E. Cooke	Natal
Royal Inniskilling Fus. (27th-108th)	1.	Lt.-Col. T. M. G. Thackeray	Natal
	2.	Lt.-Col. R. L. Payne, D.S.O.	Meean Meer
Gloucestershire Reg. (28th-61st).	1.	Lieut.-Col.	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. F. Lindsell	Cape Colony
Worcestershire Reg. (29th-36th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. O. H. Oakes	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col.	Cape Colony
East Lancashire Reg. (30th-59th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. J. A. Wright	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. G. Watson	Ranikhet
East Surrey Reg. 31st-70th).	1.	Lt.-Col. W. J. H. Frodsham	Jhansi
	2.	Lieut.-Col. R. H. W. Harris	Natal
Duke of Cornwall's L.I. (32nd-46th).	1.	Col. C. F. A. Turnbull	Lucknow
	2.	Lt.-Col. W. Aldworth, D.S.O.	Cape Colony
D. of Wellington's (W. Riding Reg., 33rd-76th).	1.	Lt.-Col. G. E. Lloyd, D.S.O.	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. S. J. Trench	Rangoon
Border Regiment (34th-55th).	1.	Col. T. H. E. Hinde	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. S. Wood	Bareilly
Royal Sussex Reg. (35th-107th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. B. D. A. Donne	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. C. Young	Sealkote
Hampshire Reg. (37th-67th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. R. Parkinson	Cherat, Punjab
	2.	Lieut.-Col. W. E. Briggs	Cape Colony
South Staffords're Reg. (38th-80th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Savage	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. N. S. Allen	Subathu
Dorsetshire Reg. (39th-54th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. J. J. Kentish	Nowshera, Punjab
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Law	Natal
South Lancashire Reg. (40th-82nd)	1.	L.-C. W. McCarthy-O'Leary	Natal
	2.	L.-C. A. F. G. Richardson	Jubbulpore
Welsh Regiment (41st-69th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. J. F. Banfield	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. S. L. Penno	Ahmednugger
The Black Watch (Ryl. Highland's 42nd-73rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. G. Grogan	Sitapur
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. M. Carthew-Yorstoun.	Cape Colony
Oxfordshire L.I. (43rd-52nd).	1.	Lt.-Col. Hon. A. E. Dalzell	Cape Colony
	2.	Col. F. H. Plowden	Ferozepore
Essex Regiment (44th-56th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. E. Stephenson	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. T. Stock	Shwebo, Burma
Sherwood F'r'sters (Derbyshire Rg., (45th-95th).	1.	Col. H. L. Smith-Dorrien, D.S.O.	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Bulpett	Malta
Loyal North Lancashire Regim't. (47th-81st).	1.	Lieut.-Col. R. G. Kekewich	Cape Colony
	2.	Lt.-Col. B. A. Satterthwaite	Malta
Northamptonshire Reg. (48th-58th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. B. Capper	Allahabad
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Denny	Cape Colony
Rl. Berkshire Reg. (49th-66th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. C. Carter	Gibraltar
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. Evans-Gordon	Cape Colony
Queen's Own (Ryl. West Kent Reg., 50th-97th).	1.	L.-C. C. W. H. Evans, D.S.O.	Aden
	2.	Lt.-Col. E. A. W. S. Grove	For South Africa
King's Own Yorks. L.I. (51st-105th)	1.	L.-C. Sir H. A. W. Johnson, Bart.	Limerick
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. St. L. Barter	Cape Colony
King's (Shropshire L.I., 53rd-85th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. H. Collette	Poona
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. Spens	Cape Colony
Middlesex Reg. (57th-77th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. G. White	Welling'n, Madras
	2.	Lieut.-Col. A. W. Hill	Natal
King's Royal Rifle Corps (60th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Gore-Browne	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. G. G. Grimwood	Natal
	3.	Lieut.-Col.	Natal
	4.	Lieut.-Col. E. W. Herbert	Cork
Wiltshire Regim't. (62nd-99th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. C. Harford	Quetta
	2.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Carter	Cape Colony
Manchester Reg. (63rd-96th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. E. R. Curran	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. T. Reay	For South Africa
North Staffords're Reg. (64th-98th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. Currie, C.B.	Jhansi
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. E. Bradley	Cape Colony
York & Lancaster Reg. (65th-84th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. J. Kirkpatrick	Natal
	2.	Col. H. Boughey	Agra
Durham Light I. (68th-106th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. L. Woodland	Natal
	2.	Lt.-Col. A. de B. V. Paget	Mandalay
Highland Light I. (71st-74th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. R. Kelham	Cape Colony
	2.	Lt.-Col. R. D. B. Rutherford	Ceylon
Seaforth Highl'rs (72nd-78th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. J. A. Campbell	Egypt
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. W. Hughes-Hallett, D.S.O.	Cape Colony
Gordon Highl'rs (75th-92nd).	1.	Lt.-Col. M. A. Scott	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. F. Macbean	Natal
Q.O. Cameron H'rs (79th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. T. F. A. Watson-Kennedy.	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. M. Hunt	Gibraltar
Royal Irish Rifles (83rd-86th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. C. Haggard	Fort William, [Bengal
	2.	Lieut.-Col.	Cape Colony
Ryl. Irish Fusiliers (87th-89th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. F. R. C. Carleton	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. Reeves	Natal
Connaught Ran's (88th-94th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. L. G. Brooke	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. E. Harman	Meerut
Argyll & Sutherl'd H'rs (91st-93rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. Wilson	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. H. Campbell	Ranikhet
Leinster Regiment (100th-109th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Martin	For South Africa
	2.	Lieut.-Col. J. G. Glancy	Barbados
Ryl. Munster Fus. (101st-104th).	1.	Lieut.-Col. E. S. Evans	Cape Colony
	2.	Lieut.-Col. P. S. Druitt	Dinapore
Royal Dublin Fus. (102nd-103rd).	1.	Lieut.-Col. G. A. Mills	Natal
	2.	Lieut.-Col. C. D. Cooper	Natal
Rifle Brigade	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. E. W. Colville	Natal
	2.	Lt.-Col. C. T. E. Metcalfe	Natal
	3.	Lieut.-Col. W. R. Kenyon-Slaney.	Rawal Pindi
	4.	Lieut.-Col. A. R. Pemberton	Dublin
West India Reg.	1.	Lieut.-Col. A. L. Bayley	Bermuda
	2.	Lieut.-Col. D. M. Allen	Jamaica
	3.	Lieut.-Col. A. Bor	Sierra Leone
Hong Kong Reg.		Lieut.-Col. J. M. A. Retallick	Hong Kong
Chinese Regiment	1.	Lieut.-Col. H. Bower	Wei-hai-Wei
West African Reg.		Lieut.-Col.
B.C. Africa Rifles	1.	Lieut.-Col. W. H. Manning	Central Africa
	2.	Lt.-Col. H. E. J. Brake, R.A.	Mauritius
Provisional Batt.		Lieut.-Col. C. H. Kelly	Shorncliffe

Militia Battalions embodied for garrison service will be found elsewhere.

Digitized by Google

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., 9, STRAND, W.C.

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

JEWELLERS, CLOCKMAKERS AND SILVERSMITHS.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition. Free on application.

ALSO JEWELLERY CATALOGUE

No. 138
STRAND CHRONOGRAPH
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0
Steel or Silver Cases ... each 8:8:0
With 30 Minute Recorder ... 5:5:0
18ct. Gold 15:15:0

5-stone all Diamond Half Hoop Rings, best quality Stones, from £5 to £150.

3 Pearl or Turquoise and 2 Diamonds, 18ct. Gold, £5 5 0

THE LARGEST VARIETY ALWAYS IN STOCK.

NO. 86 STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.
18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.
18ct. Gold Crystal, £13 15s.
Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s. Silver Crystal, £5. Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times" Encyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING
OF
OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT
A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc. collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,
Manufacturers of
CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,
AND
COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,
Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,
152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

"The Eyes of the Navy and Army."

ROSS' PATENT NEW MODEL Prismatic Binocular FIELD GLASSES.

The power and Field of a Telescope in the Compass of an Opera Glass. Supplied to hundreds of officers of

THE SOUTH AFRICAN FIELD FORCE.

8 Diameters, £8 0 0
10 ,, £10 0 0
12 ,, £10 0 0
WITH SCREW FOCUSSING ADJUSTMENT, £1 EACH EXTRA

ROSS, LTD.,
Manufacturing Opticians,
Contractors to Her Majesty's Governments, British and Colonial, also to the Principal Foreign Governments,

Established 1830.
LISTS FREE.

111, NEW BOND ST., & 31, COCKSPUR ST.,
LONDON, W.; CHARING CROSS, S.W.

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 2rd. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries, PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

The Army Assurance Association.

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES:

Life. (War Risks. World-Wide.)
Accidents and Diseases.
Fire. (Residence Abroad.)
Burglary, &c.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing without endorsement on removal.

SPECIAL QUOTATIONS FOR MESSES.

Refund of Income Duty obtained by arrangement with the War Office, on all Life and Accident Premiums.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due, on permanent order.

Apply for Prospectus, MANAGER,

217, PICCADILLY, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, W.

Branch Office: IMPERIAL BUILDINGS, GROSVENOR ROAD, ALDERSHOT.

On the Field of Battle

Bovril is playing a conspicuous part in upholding the British flag and contributing to the success of British valour by assisting in the recovery of the wounded soldiers. Sir Wm. MacCormac in his interesting report to the "Lancet" after the Battle of Tugela, graphically pictures Bovril's important share in the campaign, when he writes:—

"As each wounded man "reached the hospital he "was served with a hot cup "of Bovril, large cans of "which were boiling out-"side the tents."

The nourishing, sustaining and stimulating properties of Bovril have long been endorsed by the medical authorities and recognised by the War Office, which is using it liberally in this campaign.

BOVRIL

Is Liquid Life.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS. SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE

is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & Co., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

J. H. STEWARD'S Binocular Field Glasses.

Renowned throughout the world for their fine definition, great power, and large field of view.

THE "ALDERSHOT" BINOCULAR
(AS ILLUSTRATED),
Has been supplied in large numbers to the IMPERIAL YEOMANRY.

This is one of the best small glasses for Military and general use.

£2 0s. 6d., in brown case, with belt loops. Illustrated Catalogues Gratis, Post Free.

J. H. STEWARD, Optician to the War Office, and the National Rifle Association by Appointment.
406, Strand; 457, West Strand, W.C.; 7, Gracechurch Street, E.C.
LONDON.

CHAS. FRODSHAM & Co.,
LIMITED,
115, NEW BOND ST., W.

Illustrated Catalogue free upon application.

Watch & Clock
MAKERS
To H.M. the Queen & H.R.H. The Prince of Wales.

(REMOVED FROM 84, STRAND)

Beg to say their only addresses are—

115, New Bond St.
LONDON, W.,
And Workshops,
11, DUKE ST., ADELPHI, W.C.

Watches guaranteed for all climates.

Digitized by Google

IT would not be difficult to remove the thin veil that shrouds the identity of the genial author of "At School and at Sea" (Murray). We have had something approaching a plethora of Naval reminiscences within the last few years, but nothing has issued from the press like this admirable book. If the gallant author had not succeeded as a seaman he might undoubtedly have gained high repute as a writer, for the easy flow of his pleasant style is united with convincing grasp of character, unmistakable power of description, and a strong vein of irresistible humour. Indeed, in its way, I do not remember ever to have read so wholly charming a book, because it presents to us an inimitable picture of life and character in the Fleet, in what the author happily describes as the "transitional Navy," at the time when the wooden walls were beginning to give place to the new creation. What is peculiarly admirable in the book is the fidelity with which the schoolfellows of the Harrovian and the shipmates of the Naval neophyte are pictured. There is a force in the manner that would not discredit Thackeray. "Martello Tower" is the chosen pseudonym—and not perhaps a very happy one, since martello towers upon the coast were something of a concession to the "old women" of a former time—under which the genial author describes his various experiences. These begin with a vivid picture of the Harrow days, and the influence of the public school training is marked in the author's later career. The sterner discipline of Vaughan was beginning, and there was activity in the birch department. We have a picture of the jealous guardian of the stinging rods, carrying them up under a well-directed fusillade of snowballs, and of a terrific fight with the "chaws" (or cads) beginning with an "Up guards and at 'em" cry, and ending with a rout and a sauve qui peut on the part of the discomfited "chaws." In Dr. Wordsworth's time the birches had been too big and bushy, but the educated eye of Dr. Vaughan saw the fault, and reduced their bulk to make them sting the more.

But the school days came to an end when the young Harrovian was appointed a cadet of the "Cuba." There was the examination to be undergone, and bluff, good-natured Captain Bunn presided—a man of "the old school." Seeing the boy in the throes of a difficulty arising out of the posing question as to the price of 2 16-64-lb. of sugar at a particular rate, Bunn, remembering that fractions had been his own personal enemies, came to his aid, and demanded indignantly of the trembling master why fractions had been set, who raised a protest that they were easy.

"'That's not the point,' roared Bunn, angrily, rapping the table with a vehemence which made the red, white, and blue wafers of the period vibrate in their receptacle. 'The point is, do the instructions say that this boy must pass in fractions, or—do—they—not? Bring me the instructions!' A terrified clerk produced the book, opened the page, and handed it to his chief, who, glancing at it, exclaimed, 'Ha! didn't I tell you so; nothing about fractions!'"

We are soon in the merry company of the denizens of the gun-room, who soberly take their new shipmate down to the purser's steward "to be measured for a spoon," which was gravely done by that functionary with a pair of calliper compasses applied to the corners of his mouth. A jovial crew they are—Tidkins, a "young Guardsman who had lost his way," and who at last made his début aloft through the "lubber's hole," amid the cheers and laughter of a guard of honour of his messmates; Mowry, with a jib-shaped nose, necessitating, "we used to declare, a constant application of lee helm to counteract its influence;" Dilwyn, the man of mystery, with a "haw-haw" style, and many more.

"My recollections of the prevailing style of conversation in the berth are that it mainly consisted of positive assertions met by flat contradiction and an angry wrangle, the intervals being filled up by chaff, and, as time went on, I regret to say, much degeneracy of language. Attempts at intelligent or professional talk were stifled, and long words were rebelled against, those of more than three syllables being styled 'line of battle-ships.'"

There was rollicking fun in this company, and the author never tires of recalling the light chaff, the witty sallies, the cheery jokes, and the practical pranks of his shipmates. It is a perfect picture of life in the ships of the older Navy, and I wish space would permit me to quote some of the capital stories in the book. "Martello Tower's" fun is irresistible, and his pages are full of amusement. With an eye to the instruction of his younger readers, he interpolates here and there pleasant disquisitions on trade winds, waterspouts, flying fish, locusts, and other like subjects. A most amusing account is given of the revels of Neptune at the crossing of the line, and the reader will roar with laughter at the dire experiences of the author and poor Chizzle, the purser's steward. Presently we arrive at Sydney, and there is a very racy account of the author's adventures in search of holy-stones. The gold fever was raging at the time, and he has much that is interesting to say concerning the consequent desertions. He records much that is interesting about his visits to Fiji, New Zealand, and Rio de Janeiro in the "Cuba." Some of his stories may, perhaps, be ben trovato, like that of "Ye Bytyre Bytte," but there is not one that is not good. I shall quote the following to illustrate the omnipotence of the post-captain. A certain officer had formed a Naval cemetery on an island in the Indian Ocean, and desired the chaplain to consecrate it, who pointed out that only a bishop could do that. But the captain was equal to the occasion, and called for his clerk.

"'Oh, Mr. Driver, be good enough to make out an acting order as bishop for Mr. Bands, and bring it up for my signature as soon as possible.' The experienced clerk, taken aback, and longing to explode, knew better than to express any symptoms of astonishment; so he simply saluted, controlled his inclinations, and answered, 'Yes, sir,' and disappeared to execute his instructions, with the result that an hour afterwards the document, duly signed, was handed to the perplexed clergyman. 'And now, my lord,' pursued this Naval Tsar, with an unruffled countenance, 'you will be kind enough to consecrate the new cemetery according to form for such cases made and provided.' And then, turning to the first lieutenant, he continued: 'Mr. Titun, you will be so good as to make up a consecration party, and send his lordship ashore under a regulation salute, and have this business properly carried out.'"

Let it not be supposed that "Martello Tower's" volume is only amusing. On the contrary, it gives an admirable insight into the interior economy of ships of war in his time. It contains a deeply interesting and hitherto unpublished account of the coming of Napoleon on board the "Bellerophon." It gives a most valuable picture of the work of the Naval Brigade in the Crimea, for their author was in the trenches and at Inkerman. It is extremely pleasing to read his account of the excellent qualities of the seaman, a "handy man" indeed, always cheerful, and a fine campaigner. It seems quite appropriate at the present time to quote the following account of the getting up of the Naval guns at Sebastopol. Evidently the seaman is still unchanged.

"The way in which we performed these duties was slightly different from the soldiers' way of doing the same thing, and caused no small surprise and amusement. To each gun were attached two long, stout drag-ropes; to each rope fifteen men stripped to their flannels; cross-legged upon the breech sat a fiddler, with a boat's ensign flying by his side. In the muzzle, which pointed to the rear, was a long handspike or wooden bar to steer with, worked by two or three men. 'Now then, lads, fall in!' 'All ready?' 'All ready, sir!' 'Off she goes,' and off she did to a 'stamp and go,' with a merry tune, much to the astonishment of the artillery, who took much longer to get under way even with their horses."

I shall say no more about this deeply interesting and wholly attractive book. It is an autobiography of the best, and, though the genial author leaves us when he becomes a "full-blown lieutenant," I am glad to say that he half promises an account of his later experiences.

Books to be asked for at the libraries:

"Shameless Wayne." Halliwell Sutcliffe. (Unwin.) A story of remarkable power, with strong and dramatic plot, and character vividly portrayed, thrown into strong relief on a North Country background. To this book I hope to recur.

"The Two Miss Jeffreys." David Lyall. (Hodder.) Discerning sketches of life and character by the author of "The Land o' the Leal."

"A Rise in the World." Adeline Sergeant. (White.) A readable and well-constructed story.

"Brave Men in Action." S. J. Mackenna and J. A. O'Shea. (Chatto.) A new edition of a capital book of thrilling narratives, mostly for boys.

"Modern Weapons and Modern War." (Richards.) An abridgment of M. Bloch's famous book, with a prefatory conversation with the author, by W. T. Stead.

"The Year's Art, 1900." (Virtue.) The twenty-first issue of a well-known annual.

"SEARCH-LIGHT."

Digitized by Google

BOOKS OF THE HOUR.

Published by CASSELL & COMPANY.

"THE DEATH OR GLORY BOYS." The Story of the 17th Lancers. By D. H. PARRY. With Frontispiece. 6s.

MEMORIES AND STUDIES OF WAR AND PEACE. By ARCHIBALD FORBES, LL.D. Cheap Edition. 6s.

THE BLACK WATCH. The Record of an Historic Regiment. By ARCHIBALD FORBES, LL.D. 6s.

BRITAIN'S ROLL OF GLORY; or the Victoria Cross, its Heroes, and their Valour. By D. H. PARRY. Illustrated. Cheap Edition. 3s. 6d.

PERIL AND PATRIOTISM: True Tales of Heroic Deeds and Startling Adventures. Profusely Illustrated. In Two Vols., 4s. each; or One Vol., 7s. 6d.

THE WARS OF THE 'NINETIES. A History of the Warfare of the Last Ten Years of the 19th Century. By A. HILLIARD ATTERIDGE. Profusely Illustrated. Complete in One Vol., 7s. 6d.

THE QUEEN'S EMPIRE. With nearly 700 Exquisite Illustrations. In Two Vols., 9s. each.

THE GARDEN OF SWORDS: A Story of the Siege of Strasburg. By MAX PEMBERTON. 6s.

JENETHA'S VENTURE. A Story of the Siege of Delhi. By COLONEL HARCOURT. 6s.

SCARLET AND BLUE; or Songs for Soldiers and Sailors. By JOHN FARMER. Cloth, 5s. Words only, paper, 6d.; cloth, 9d.

BRITISH BATTLES ON LAND AND SEA. By JAMES GRANT. With about 800 Illustrations. Cheap Edition. Complete in Four Vols., 3s. 6d. each.

HISTORY OF THE FRANCO-GERMAN WAR, CASSELL'S. Containing about 500 Illustrations. Cheap Edition. Complete in Two Vols., 6s. each.

IN A CONNING TOWER; or How I Took H.M.S. Majestic into Action. By H. O. ARNOLD-FORSTER, M.P. With Original Illustrations by W. H. OVEREND. 6d.

A GUN-ROOM DITTY BOX. By G. STEWART BOWLES. With a Preface by REAR-ADMIRAL LORD CHARLES BERESFORD, C.B., etc. 2s.

CASSELL & COMPANY, Limited, London; and all Booksellers.

SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

A THIRD EDITION is READY of

SIR HERBERT MAXWELL'S

NEW LIFE of WELLINGTON

Two Vols., 36s. net.

"An admirable book."—LORD SALISBURY.

A SECOND EDITION is READY of Side Lights on South Africa.

By ROY DEVEREUX. With Map. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 6s.

"Does not contain a single dull page."—PALL MALL GAZETTE.

A SECOND EDITION is IN PREPARATION of

The Downfall of Spain:

Naval History of the Spanish-American War.

By the Author of "Ironclads in Action." H. W. WILSON.

"These chapters on the Battles of Manila and Santiago probably represent the final statement of the case as far as the ordinary public are concerned."—SPECTATOR.

With many Illustrations, Maps, Charts, and Battle Plans. Demy 8vo, 14s. net.

A SECOND EDITION is READY of Captain A. T. MAHAN'S New Work,

Lessons of the War with Spain.

Crown 8vo, cloth extra, price 10s. 6d. net.

"Profoundly interesting . . . Of the highest importance to this country."—STANDARD.

A SECOND EDITION is NOW READY of

Our Navy for a Thousand Years.

By Captain S. EARDLEY WILMOT, R.N. Fully Illustrated. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, price 6s.

VOL. IV. is NOW READY of

The Royal Navy.

A History from the Earliest Times to the Present. Edited by WILLIAM LAIRD CLOWES. Fully Illustrated. Royal 8vo, price 25s. net.

*To be completed in Six Vols., but each volume has an Index and is sold separately.

THE TIMES, in reviewing Vol. IV., says this Great History of the Navy "Abundantly fulfils its promise. It is an admirable and indespensable work."

London: SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & CO., LTD.

EYRE & SPOTTISWOODE.

PAPERS Relating to the TRANSVAAL.

Complete List on Application.

Treaties relating to the Transvaal. (1) Sand River, 1852; (2) Pretoria Convention, 1881; (3) London Convention, 1884. 1s. 6d.

Correspondence respecting the London Convention of 1884. 1s 9d.

Correspondence on the subject of Recent Disturbances, 1896; Jameson Raid, etc. 2 Parts, 2s. 6d.

Report of the Select Committee of the Cape of Good Hope Assembly on the Jameson Raid, 1897. 2s. 5d.

Report from the Select Committee of the House of Commons, with Evidence. 3 Parts, 1897. 6s. 11d.

Correspondence on the Closing of the Vaal River Drifts. 3d.

Claim for Damages on account of Dr. Jameson's Raid, with Correspondence. 3 Parts, 1897-8. 1s. 10½d.

Imprisonment of Mr. W. D. Davies and Captain Woolls Sampson at Pretoria, 1897. 3½d.

Correspondence relating to the Explosives Monopoly, 1898. 3d.

Report for 1897 on the Trade, Commerce and Gold Mining Industry, 1898. 3d.

Correspondence relating to the Status of the South African Republic—Suzerainty. 3½d.

Alien Immigrants Law; Correspondence, 1898. 2½d.

Correspondence and Papers relating to the Complaints of British Subjects—Edgar Case—Uitlanders' Petition to the Queen—The Political Situation. 2s.

Papers relating to the Bloemfontein Conference, June—July, 1899. 7d.

Further Correspondence on the Proposed Political Reforms—The New Franchise Law. 8½d.

——, June—August, 1899—Proposal for Arbitration. 8d.

——, May—September, 1899—Alleged Conspiracy at Johannesberg, 7½d.

——, September—October, 1899—Ultimatum from South African Republic. 8d.

Further Correspondence relating to the affairs in South Africa down to the 18th January. 2s. 5½d.

Correspondence relating to the Defence of Natal. 4d.

LONDON: EAST HARDING STREET, E.C.

FREDERICK WARNE & CO.'s Publications.

Pocket Volume. Bound in Kharki.

Small 24mo, cloth, red lettered, gilt top, price 1/-.

Soldier Songs.

A new military song book, containing the latest popular songs, including—"The Soldiers of the Queen," "Private Tommy Atkins," "The Deathless Army," "The Old Brigade," "Who Carries the Gun," "The Union Jack," "To the Front," etc., etc., to which are added the collection edited by J. E. CARPENTER.

Crown 8vo, cloth gilt, gilt top, 3/6.

Red Coat Romances.

By E. LIVINGSTON PRESCOTT, author of "Scarlet and Steel." Illustrated by R. SIMKIN.

"There is humour and character as well as a touch of quiet pathos in these seven tales of garrison life. Among the best of them are 'Corporal by Purchase.' 'Judgment by Default,' 'The Blue-eyed Babe,' and 'Poor Little Jacky.' All of them have heart, all of them show an intimate knowledge of Tommy Atkins, and all are worthy to be read."—DAILY MAIL.

Crown 8vo, sewed, picture cover, 1/-.

MAX O'RELL'S GREAT WORK. Cheap Popular Issue.

John Bull & Co.

By MAX O'RELL.

"Max O'Rell's book will be read here with great interest. Always brilliant, and often shrewd and thoughtful, it will enhance the writer's reputation both as a satirist and an observer, and rightly appreciated it ought to benefit those whom it most severely lashes."—DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"MAX O'RELL is always shrewd and interesting, and his remarks on John Bull's progeny, if a trifle caustic in places, are kindly and good-humoured in the main, and display an insight and sympathy wanting in most foreign critics. . . . At the present time the hundred or so pages devoted to the South African tour will be read with special attention, as coming from an outside critic, and although written a couple of years ago are not without some bearing on the present condition of affairs."—MANCHESTER CITY NEWS.

A Complete Catalogue may be had Post Free on application from the Publishers.

London: FREDERICK WARNE & CO.,

CHANDOS HOUSE, BEDFORD ST., STRAND, W.C.; and NEW YORK.

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—Since I last wrote to you we have had quite a spell of cold weather, which may make the sketch I send you seem a little incongruous. It is the picture of a little coat that is essentially spring-like in appearance, and in material too, being made of royal blue velvet trimmed with porcelain buttons, whilst the revers are edged with a narrow trimming of silk or satin. Not a vestige of fur is seen on it to give it a warm and comfortable air for this wintry weather, so that for this country the idea must be severely left alone until the warmer weather sets in, which I have no doubt will be before very long, remembering the usual vagaries of our climate at this time of the year. My intention in sending it now is, of course, that you may recommend it to your many friends whose lives are for the most part spent under sunnier skies than ours.

I suppose you have read in the daily papers all about the great function at Her Majesty's Theatre which was arranged by Mrs. Arthur Paget for the widows and orphans of the Household troops. It was a most gorgeous spectacle, and well worth seeing indeed. The theatre looked so very gay, filled as it was with smartly-dressed people, every seat having been taken for weeks before. The second row of the stalls was reserved for the Ambassadors and their wives, whilst the Royal party took their places in the front row. Ladies in pretty grey dresses sold programmes, amongst them being Lady Florence Astley, Lady Hartopp, Lady Newtown Butler, Lady Lurgan, and Lady Falmouth, whilst tall men of the Guards stood about in various corners looking resplendent in full uniform.

The pictures arranged by Mrs. Arthur Paget and several of the well-known artists of the day were very beautiful, some of them, of course, more striking than others, but all very effective. They were shown in a broad oak frame, set far back on the stage, so that the pictorial effect was really wonderful. Of all the tableaux, the one showing the meeting of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough after Ramillies was the most striking, whilst another of the beautiful Misses Gunning walking in the Mall was very charming in both arrangement and colouring.

The full bands of the various regiments of Guards lined the stage during the representation of the great "Patriotic Picture of Great Britain and her Colonies and Dependencies," which was very gorgeous, both in dresses and scenery. The whole entertainment at Her Majesty's being over, many of the company adjourned to supper at Princes' Club. The Prince sat at Mrs. Arthur Paget's table, with whom were also Lord Lorne and the Princess Louise, Prince Louis of Battenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Tree, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, Miss Elspeth Campbell, Lady G. Curzon, Lady Dickson Poynder, the Count de Soveral, Captain Bourke, Colonel Corry, Colonel Miles, Lady Maud Verrinder, and Colonel Fludyer, whilst at various other tables were most of those who had taken part in the masque and tableaux, and many others of the audience, including Mrs. Asquith, Mr. Leopold de Rothschild, and Prince and Princess Dolgouroulki. This is the second time lately that the Prince has honoured Princes' Restaurant with his presence, though, indeed, numbers of well-known people are to be seen there continually, including Lord Castlerosse, Mrs. Ronalds, Captain Randolph Stewart, Sir Lewis McIvor, Lord Henry Vane-Tempest, Sir William and Lady Colville, Lady Claud Hamilton, Lady Hartopp, and a host of others.

A VELVET COAT.

As you are interested in all the entertainments now being organised for the various war funds, I must not forget to tell you of a patriotic concert recently got up at the Shrewsbury Music Hall by Miss Stuart and Miss Phillips to equip a "Proud Salopian" bed for the Imperial Yeomanry Hospital. The concert was altogether a most signal success, the hall being full to overflowing. No less than 650 persons were present, and £103 was cleared, and the balance handed over to the fund for the sick and wounded. I hear that the Duke of Abercorn sent off a large consignment of handkerchiefs the other day to South Africa, ordering them from Messrs. Robinson and Cleaver (who, I told you, had made a speciality of these necessities), and that Lord Iveagh, Lady Grey, the Dowager Lady Ashburton, and Lady Meux have sent out 100,000 more, whilst others have sent out sleeping helmets, night-shirts, Irish socks, dressing-gowns, and Royal Ulster fleece rugs, which Messrs. Robinson and Cleaver have also provided. All these things must be very much welcomed by our brave men at the front, whose fighting kit barely allows even for necessities.

Yours affectionately,
CONSTANCE.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, MARCH 3rd, 1900.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

A PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WORLD'S NEWS.

OFFICES—
, TAVISTOCK STREET,
LONDON, W.C.

VOL. IX.—No. 161. [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.] SATURDAY, MARCH 3rd, 1900.

Published Weekly, PRICE SIXPENCE.
Subscription Price, per annum, Post free,
Inland, 28s. 2d. Foreign, 36s. 10d.

PREVENT FRAUD

of CHEAP GERMAN air-tubes fitted to genuine outer covers of

DUNLOP TYRES

by examining Trade Mark of air-tube.

DOUBTFUL TYRES REPORTED ON AT ANY OF OUR DEPOTS. NO CHARGE.

The most expensive rubber made is employed in GENUINE Dunlop air-tubes.

ROMA STREET, COVENTRY; 14, REGENT STREET, S.W.;
160 TO 166, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C.

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS

assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,

217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.).

W. CATER & Co.,

To Her Majesty the Queen.
H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

6, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN. BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

COLLIER'S

FINEST LIQUEURS.

Devonshire Sloe Gin.

SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.

CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.

COLLIER & Co., 53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.

(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)

Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.

Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.

SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.

MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES

Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

To ensure a speedy recovery from Influenza take

ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE

A NATURAL TONIC.

"THE ORIGINAL ST. RAPHAEL TONIC WINE."

This Wine is prepared according to the recipes of Professors Pasteur and Bouchardat.

This Wine is the ONLY ONE USED in the Paris Hospitals for Anæmia, Debility, Convalescents, Bronchial Affections; also for Young Girls and Children.

ST. RAPHAEL TANNIN WINE is most efficacious as a Tonic, and must not be confounded with Coca, Kola, or Quin Quina preparations, which act on the nervous system without any nourishing properties.

To Ladies Nursing is much more beneficial than Stout.

To avoid spurious imitations each bottle bears on the neck the address of the SOLE AGENTS:

E. GALLAIS & CO. (Limited),
90, PICCADILLY, W.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.

LINEN COLLARS, CUFFS, AND SHIRTS.

COLLARS. LADIES' 3-fold from 3/6 per doz.
" GENTS' 4-fold, 4/11 per doz.
CUFFS for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5/11 per doz.

PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.

MATCHLESS SHIRTS. Fine quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Pure Linen Fronts, 35/6 per ½-doz. (to measure, 2/- extra).

N.B.—Old Shirts made good as new with best materials in neckbands, cuffs and fronts for 14/- per ½-doz.

N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

PIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY

Pickering's 'Blanco'

For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

Digitized by Google

"Ye ken! its PLAYER'S"

[Scene: A room in Auld Reekie.]

"Ye'll kill yersel' Jock," cried Mrs. McGurk,
"Ye smoke aw' the week, and snuff in the kirk,
"Ev'n at Prayers."

"Haud yer tongue," answered Jock, "A'm as sweet as a nut,
"For the baccy I smoke is the best Navy Cut,
"And it's Player's."

PLAYER'S Is the only genuine Navy Cut—all the others are imitations. Sold in 1-oz. packets and in sealed 2-oz., 4-oz., 8-oz., and 1-lb. tins.

MILD* in Red packages. MEDIUM in Blue packages.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 161. Saturday, March 3rd, 1900.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
CEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.
here are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives ividual tuition in all his subjects.

ecent Successes :—		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A. L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130
DECEMBER, 1899.
*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three dets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair were successful after three months' coaching in all their bjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with gard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address e Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

IT HAS NEVER BEEN SERIOUSLY QUESTIONED BY ANY HONEST TYPEWRITER INVENTOR, MECHANICAL EXPERT, OR USER, THAT THE FUNDAMENTAL LINES UPON WHICH THE SMITH PREMIER IS BUILT ARE FAR IN ADVANCE OF ANY OTHER TYPEWRITER. THAT ALONE WOULD NOT MERIT SUCCESS, BUT THAT FOUNDATION TOGETHER WITH BEST MATERIAL, BEST WORKMANSHIP, AND EXPERT INSPECTION OF ALL THE PARTS AS WELL AS THE FINISHED PRODUCT, HAVE CAUSED THE SMITH PREMIER TO WIN. THIS IS THE EXPLANATION OF ITS PHENOMENAL RECORD OF SUCCESS.

THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER CO.,
14, Gracechurch St., LONDON, E.C.

Send for Art Catalogue Post free.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Bonnie Dundee."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 3 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "In Spite of All."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. Sat. at 3 p.m. "His Excellency the Governor."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m., and Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m., and 1.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.30. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. Sat. 2.30 p.m. "The Messenger Boy."
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Bootles' Baby."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.15 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m., Sat., 2.30 p.m. "Floradora."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "The only Way."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "How London Lives."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W. "Magda."
ST. JAMES'S, S.W., 8.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "Rupert of Hentzau."
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W., 8 p.m. "The Mystical Miss."
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. Sat. at 3 p.m. "Facing the Music."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m. "What Happened to Jones."
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Bishop's Eye."
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "Dandy Dick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "Why Smith Left Home."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45 p.m. "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m. Sat. 2.30 p.m. The Carl Rosa Opera Co.
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Send Her Victorious."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Span of Life."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m., and Sat. at 2 p.m. "My Girl."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m., and Sat. at 2 p.m. "The Geisha."
GRAND, Islington, N., 7.30 p.m. and Sat. at 2 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m. "The Gay Lord Quex."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The Secret of the Harem."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "El Capitan."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "The French Spy."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "The Manœuvres of Jane."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Death or Glory Boys."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W., 8 p.m. "Niobe."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "The Shadows of a Great City."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Belle of New York."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Ladder of Life."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FIVE YEARS' RECORD.

During the last five years 156 Pupils were prepared and 145 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—14 out of 16.
SANDHURST—54 out of 58.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—28 out of 29.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1
PROMOTION—10 out of 10.
COOPER'S HILL—4 out of 4.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—2 out of 2.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
20 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

The Pall Mall Deposit

STORAGE AND FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE AND KIT

A SPECIALITY.

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc., collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, etc.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military and Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.,

Carlton Street, Regent Street, S.W.;

And Arthur Street, Aldershot.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

BIRKBECK BANK, SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

INVESTED FUNDS ... ... £10,000,000.

Number of Accounts, 85,094.

TWO-AND-A-HALF per CENT. INTEREST allowed on DEPOSITS, repayable on demand.

TWO per CENT. on CURRENT ACCOUNTS, on the minimum monthly balances, when not drawn below £100.

STOCKS, SHARES, and ANNUITIES purchased and sold for customers.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT.

SMALL DEPOSITS received and INTEREST allowed monthly on each completed £1.

Telephone No. 5 Holborn. THE BIRKBECK ALMANACK with full particulars, post free.

Telegraphic Address: "BIRKBECK, LONDON." FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL SOCIETY (Dreadnought), GREENWICH, S.E.

Dreadnought Hospital, Greenwich, 225 beds; Branch Hospital, Albert Dock, being enlarged to 50 beds. Dispensaries—51, East India Dock Road, and at Gravesend.

AID for the Society's Hospitals and Dispensaries is URGENTLY NEEDED.

F. MICHELLI, Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN CENTRAL HOSPITAL, HOLLOWAY.

Benefits restricted to the Sick Poor.

The local Hospital for the whole of North London; 2,000 in-patients and 25,000 out-patients annually. Expenses £10,000 annually. Practically no endowment. DONATIONS and LEGACIES specially INVITED.

L. H. GLENTON-KERR, Secretary.

CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, STRAND And CONVALESCENT HOME, LIMPSFIELD.

£15,000 required annually from voluntary sources. Contributions earnestly solicited.

Bankers, Messrs. Drummond. ARTHUR E. READE, Secretary.

Goddard's Plate Powder

Admitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro-Plate.

In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

SIX GOLD MEDALS.

JEWSBURY & BROWN'S

ORIENTAL TOOTH PASTE.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS.

EPPS'S

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

KENSINGTON HOTELS:

The De Vere,

The Prince of Wales,

The Broadwalk.

Opposite Kensington Palace. Lift. Electric Light. Everything up-to-date. Tariff on application.

CANNES.

HOTEL BEAU SITE.

SIX acres of sub-tropical gardens; lawn tennis; large new hall; billiards; certified sanitation; improved cuisine. South sea view; nearest golf links.

SAMARITAN FREE HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN And CHILDREN,

MARYLEBONE ROAD, N.W.

Unendowed. Patients admitted entirely free. Funds earnestly asked for.

W. GUNTRIP KING, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Convalescents Anxious to Rejoin Their Regiments	601
Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories. Enfield Lock.—III. (Illustrated) ...	602
Scenes in Johannesburg. (Illustrated)	604
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	605
Editorial Notices	606
The Navy and Army Diary	606
Little-known Duties of a Man-of-War. (Illustrated)	606
The War in Natal. (Illustrated) ...	608
An Embarkation at Tilbury. (Illus.)	609
With Baden-Powell at Mafeking. (Illus.)	610
A Present from India. Indian Horses and Horsemen for South Africa. (Illustrated)	611
To Fight Side by Side. (Illustrated)	613
Army Transport in South Africa. With Lord Roberts's Field Force. (Illustrated)	614
On the Lines of Communication. Scenes on the Cape Town-Kimberley Railroad. (Illustrated)	615
With the Flying Column from Arundel. In the Central Theatre of War. (Illustrated)	616
The War in Cape Colony. (Illustrated)	617
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	618
A Reconnaissance on the Tugela. (Illus.)	619
The Story of the War	620
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	621
The Torpedo-boat Destroyer "Virago" at Esquimalt. (Illustrated) ...	623
The 6th Lancashire Fusiliers. (Illus.)	624

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Royal Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

First Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY ON FOREIGN SERVICE.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. h.d.s. Harbour Defence Ship. d.v. Despatch Vessel. y. Yacht. sur.v. Surveying Vessel. d.s. Depot-ship. r.g.b. River Gun-boat. t.d.s. Torpedo Depot-ship.

Abyssinia, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Alacrity, d.v.	Com. C. G. F. M. Cradock	China
Alert, sloop	Com. H. Savile	North America
Algerine, sloop	Com. R. H. J. Stewart	China
Andromeda, cr.	Capt. J. L. Burr, C.M.G.	Mediterranean
Ardent, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. H. Richardson	Mediterranean
Astræa, cr.	Capt. A. W. Paget	Mediterranean
Assaye, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. O. U. Coates	East Indies
Aurora, cr.	Capt. E. H. Bayly	China
Banshee, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. H. L. Watts-Jones	Mediterranean
Barfleur, B.	Capt. J. S. Warrender (Rear-Admiral J. A. T. Bruce)	China
Barham, cr.	Com. H. L. Tottenham	Mediterranean
Barracouta, cr.	Com. R. H. Peirse	C. of Good Hope
Barrosa, cr.	Com. W. F. Tunnard	C. of Good Hope
Beagle, sloop	Com. Hon. H. A. S. Stanhope	S. E. C. America(on [pas. home)
Bonaventure, cr.	Ct. R. A. J. Montgomerie, C.B.	China
Boomerang, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. M. Hale	Australia
Boxer, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. J. Twiselton-Wykeham-Fiennes	Mediterranean
Brisk, cr.	Com. R. B. S. Wrey	China
Bruizer, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. L. Hulton	Mediterranean
Buzzard, sloop	Com. L. F. G. Tippinge	North America
Cæsar, B.	Capt. E. H. Gamble	Mediterranean
Canopus, B.	Capt. W. H. Fawkes	Mediterranean
Centurion, B.	Capt. J. R. Jellicoe (Vice-Adml. Sir E. H. Seymour, K.C.B.).	China
Cockatrice, g.b.	Com. H. N. Rolfe	Danube
Columbine, y.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Williamson	North America
Comus, cr.	Capt. G. A. Giffard	North America
Crescent, cr.	Capt. C. J. G. Sawle (Vice-Adl. Sir F. G. D. Bedford, K.C.B.).	North America
Cruiser, sloop	Com. L. G. Tufnell	Mediterranean
Daphne, sloop	Com. C. W. Winnington-Ingram.	China
Dart, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. C. E. Monro	Australia
Devastation, B.	Capt. F. S. Inglefield	Gibraltar
Dido, cr.	Capt. P. F. Tillard	Mediterranean
Doris, cr.	Ct. R. C. Prothero (Rear-Adml. Sir R. H. Harris, K.C.M.G.).	C. of Good Hope
Dragon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. M. Lambert	Mediterranean
Dryad, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. Dineley	Mediterranean
Dwarf, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. F. Shakespear	C. of Good Hope
Earnest, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Baird	Mediterranean
Eclipse, cr.	Capt. P. W. Bush (Rear-Admiral H. D. Bosanquet).	East Indies
Egeria, sur.v.	Com. C. H. Simpson	Pacific
Empress of India B	Capt. H. H. Dyke	Mediterranean
Endymion, cr.	Capt. G. A. Callaghan	China
Esk, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. Chadwick.	China
Fame, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. J. B. Keyes	China
Fearless, cr.	Com. H. R. P. Floyd	C. of Good Hope
Flora, cr.	Commodore R. L. Groome	S. E. C. of America
Foam, t.b.d.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Forte, cr.	Capt. E. P. Jones	C. of Good Hope
Griffon, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. Hon. H. G. Brand	Mediterranean
Halcyon, t.g.b.	Com. S. W. A. H. Gray	Mediterranean
Handy, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. A. Moreton	China
Hart, t.b.d.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Hazard, t.g.b.	Com. P. V. Lewes, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Hebe, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Taylor.	Mediterranean
Herald, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. Harvey	River Zambesi
Hermes, cr.	Capt. F. H. Henderson	North America
Hermione, cr.	Capt. R. S. D. Cumming	China
Hibernia, d.s.	Com. W. Ricketts (Rear-Adml. Burges Watson, C.V.O.).	Malta Reserves
Highflyer, cr.	Capt. F. E. E. Brock	East Indies (to relieve Eclipse)
Hood, B.	Capt. A. C. Corry.	M'dit'n (to be r. by
Hotspur, h.d.s.	Com. C. S. Elliot.	Bermuda [Ocean)
Humber, store-ship	Com. H. J. Davison	China
Icarus, sloop	Com. G. F. S. Knowling	Pacific
Illustrious, B.	Capt. F. Finnis	Mediterranean
Imogene, d.v.	Com. E. J. Bain	Mediterranean
Indefatigable, cr.	Capt. F. L. Campbell	North America
Iphigenia, cr.	Capt. H. N. Dudding (to be relieved by Pique).	China
Isis, cr.	Capt. G. M. Henderson	Mediterranean
Karrakatta, t.g.b.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Katoomba, cr.	Capt. H. L. F. Royle, D.S.O.	Sydney Reserves
Lapwing, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Lambert	East Indies
Leander, cr.	Capt. F. F. Fegen	Pacific
Liffey, d.s.	Staff-Com. P. H. Wright	Coquimbo
Linnet, g.b.	Com. W. W. Smythe	China
Lizard, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Watson	Australia
Magdala, h.d.s.	Capt. T. Y. Greet.	Bombay Reserves
Magicienne, cr.	Capt. W. B. Fisher	C. of Good Hope
Magpie, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. K. Laird	C. of Good Hope
Marathon, cr.	Capt. J. G. M. Field.	East Indies
Melita, sloop	Com. I. M. Fraser, D.S.O.	Mediterranean
Melpomene, cr.	Capt. J. Denison	East Indies
Mildura, cr.	Capt. H. C. A. Baynes	Australia
Mohawk, cr.	Com. F. H. P. W. Freeman	Australia
Monarch, B.	Capt. C. H. Bayly	Simon's Bay
Mosquito, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. L. Cox	River Zambesi
Ocean, B.	Capt. Hon. A. G. Curzon-Howe	Mediterranean (to [relieve Hood)
Orion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Orlando, cr.	Capt. J. H. T. Burke	China
Partridge, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. T. Hunt	C. of Good Hope
Peacock, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. S. G. Douglas	China
Pearl, cr.	Capt. F. G. Stopford	North America
Pegasus, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cochran	S. E. C. of America
Pelorus, cr.	Capt. H. C. B. Hulbert	C. of Good Hope
Penguin, sur.v.	Capt. J. W. Combe	Australia
Phaeton, cr.	Capt. F. G. Kirby	Pacific
Pheasant, g.b.	Com. H. G. Smith	Pacific
Philomel, cr.	Capt. J. E. Bearcroft	C. of Good Hope
Phœnix, sloop	Com. R. P. Cochran.	China
Pigeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. O. V. de Satge	East Indies
Pigmy, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. F. E. Green	China
Pique, cr.	(Will relieve Iphigenia)	China
Plassy, t.g.b.	(Reserve Bombay)	East Indies
Plover, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. V. de M. Cowper	China
Polyphemus, ram	Com. E. L. Lang	Mediterranean
Pomone, cr.	Capt. E. A. Simons	East Indies
Porpoise, cr.	Com. A. H. D. Ravenhill	Australia
Powerful, cr.	Capt. Hon. Hedworth Lambton	C. of Good Hope
Proserpine, cr.	Capt. J. L. Marx	North America
Psyche, cr.	Capt. F. R. Pelly	North America
Pylades, cr.	Com. R. G. O. Tupper	Australia
Quail, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. H. Rymer	North America
Racoon, cr.	Com. A. E. A. Grant	East Indies
Rambler, sur.v.	Com. H. E. P. Cust	West Indies
Ramillies, B.	Capt. R. S. Lowry	Mediterranean
Rattler, g.b.	Lt.-Com. Hon. G. A. Hardinge.	China
Redpole, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. C. F. Corbett	China
Renown, B.	Capt. D. McN. Riddel (Vice-Adl. Sir J. A. Fisher, K.C.B.).	Mediterranean
Revenge, B.	Capt. J. F. King Hall (Rear-Adl. Lord Charles Beresford, C.B.).	Mediterranean
Ringarooma, cr.	Capt. F. St. G. Rich	Australia
Ringdove, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. R. F. Ayscough	Australia
Rocket, t.b.d.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Royal Arthur, cr.	Capt. C. G. Dicken (Rear-Adml. H. L. Pearson).	Australia
Royal Oak, B.	Capt. W. H. B. Graham	Mediterranean
Royal Sovereign,	Capt. M. P. O'Callaghan	Mediterranean
Rupert, h.d.s.	Com. A. B. G. Grenfell.	Alexandria
Salamander, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. C. Villiers	Mediterranean
Sandfly, t.g.b.	(Reserve Malta)	Mediterranean
Sandpiper, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. C. Carr	China
Scorpion, h.d.s.	(Reserve Bermuda)	North America
Scout, cr.	Com. W. de Salis.	Mediterranean
Snipe, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. H. Oldham	China
Sparrowhawk, t.b.d	(Reserve Esquimault)	Pacific
Speedy, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. G. W. Davy	Mediterranean
Sphinx, s.	Com. H. A. Phillips.	East Indies
Surprise, d.v.	Com. F. W. F. Hervey	Mediterranean
Swallow, sloop	Com. E. F. Inglefield	S. E. C. of America
Swift, g.b.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Tamar, d.s.	Commodore F. Powell, C.B.	Hong Kong
Tartar, cr.	Com. F. R. W. Morgan	C. of Good Hope
Tauranga, cr.	Capt. L. C. Stuart	Australia
Terrible, cr.	Capt. Percy Scott	C. of Good Hope
Terror, d.s.	Capt. T. MacGill, C.B.	Bermuda
Theseus, cr.	Capt. V. A. Tisdall	Mediterranean
Thetis, cr.	Capt. W. S. Rees	C. of Good Hope
Thrush, g.b.	(Reserve Simon's Bay)	C. of Good Hope
Torch, sloop	Com. H. Preedy	Australia
Tribune, cr.	Capt. R. S. Rolleston	North America
Tyne, supply-ship	Com. K. Wade.	Mediterranean
Undaunted, cr.	Capt. A. C. Clarke	China
Urgent, d.s.	C'dore E. H. M. Davis, C.M.G.	Jamaica
Venus, cr.	Capt. H. M. T. Tudor	Mediterranean
Victorious, B.	Capt. A. Schomberg	China
Virago, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. G. T. F. Pike	Pacific
Vulcan, t.d.s.	Capt. H. B. Jackson	Mediterranean
Wallaroo, cr.	(Reserve Sydney)	Australia
Warspite, cr.	Capt. T. P Walker (Rear-Adml. Beaumont).	Pacific
Waterwitch, sur.v.	Lieut.-Com. W. O. Lyne	China
Whiting, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. Kelly	China
Widgeon, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. A. F. Gurney	C. of Good Hope
Wivern, h.d.s.	(Reserve Hong Kong)	China
Woodcock, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. D. R. Watson	China
Woodlark, r.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. E. Hillman.	China

Digitized by Google

South African Campaign.

217, PICCADILLY W. ALLEN & WRIGHT'S 26, POULTRY E.C.

FINE QUALITY SILVER-MOUNTED BRIAR-ROOT PIPES

FOR THOSE ON ACTIVE SERVICE.

Every Pipe guaranteed thoroughly well made to stand hard wear, and of finest material throughout.

TRADE "A. & W." MARK.

No. 42, New Golf Shape, 4/-.

No. 43, New Golf Shape, 4/-.

No. 177, Short Stem, to stand up, 3/6.

No. 173, Short, Light, Pull-out, 3/6.

No. 74, The Bantam, 5/-.

No. 156, Short Halti, 4/-.

BEST ENGLISH MADE.
Grain Calf, AIDE-DE-CAMP CASES, with ring for attaching to belt, 2/6.

No. 34, Army Shape, 3/6.

No. 34a, Bent Army, 3/6.

SPECIAL TERMS FOR QUANTITIES.

ALLEN & WRIGHT'S Illustrated Catalogue of Specialities, Post Free.

LAZENBY'S

ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT & PORTABLE

SOUP SQUARES

These squares are prepared in 13 Varieties (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.), and should find a place in every store-room, being invaluable for making soup at short notice or improving stock. They will keep good any reasonable length of time, and are packed in neat boxes containing 6 & 12 Squares.

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON, S.E.

LAZENBY'S

13 VARIETIES.

SOUP SQUARES

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.
DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.)
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W.
(On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY
The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lérins,
SITUATED ON
THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,
WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.
To be obtained from
ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.
WHOLESALE AGENTS.
COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

HEATH & GEORGE,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Gymnastic Apparatus

TO HER MAJESTY'S ARMY & NAVY.

Calisthenic and Gun Drill Apparatus, the Italian Fencing Swords and Helmets, latest Aldershot pattern, and every description of Gymnastic Apparatus for public and private use.

Catalogues Free.

18, GOSWELL ROAD, LONDON, E.C.

J. H. STEWARD'S TELESCOPES

FOR

Military Use and Deer Stalking,

MAXIMUM POWER, WITH CLEARNESS OF DEFINITION AND LARGE FIELD OF VIEW.

The No. 2 C, as illustrated above, with 2¼ object glass magnifying 25 diameters bronzed, brass, in sling case, £6 6s.; or in extra light metal, reducing weight by 1lb., £8 8s.

SLING TELESCOPES FROM £1 1s. TO £14 14s.

Illustrated Catalogues gratis, post free.

J. H. STEWARD, 406, STRAND; 457, WEST STRAND; 7, GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON.

Digitized by Google

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., 9, STRAND, W.C.

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

JEWELLERS, CLOCKMAKERS AND SILVERSMITHS.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

OUR 1900 BROOCH.
Registered No. 350921.
35 Clear Set Diamonds, 2 Whole Pearls, and Fine Gold £5 5 0
Exceptional value and strength.

NO. 86 STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.
18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.
18ct. Gold Crystal, £13 15s.
Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s. Silver Crystal, £5. Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

ALSO JEWELLERY CATALOGUE

No. 138.
STRAND CHRONOGRAPH
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0
Steel or Silver Cases ... each 8:8:0
With 30 Minute Recorder ... 6:6:0
18ct. Gold 15:15:0

Special Notice.—Any Watch can be had upon our ("The Times" Enyclopædia Britannica) novel plan of Monthly Payments.

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—Lancet, July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from Wine."—Medical Press, August, '99.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,
AND
COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

Over 120 YŌST Typewriters
Have Recently Been Purchased

BY Her Majesty's Government

FROM The YŌST Typewriter Company, Limited.

This is the LARGEST ORDER ever given for Writing Machines outside the U.S.A., and speaks volumes for the sterling merit of THE YŌST.

Catalogue, containing full particulars of this wonderful Instrument, post free.

The YŌST Typewriter Co., Ltd.,

50, HOLBORN VIADUCT, LONDON, E.C.

West End Depot: 303, OXFORD STREET.

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E.

Lists Free.

Digitized by Google

A. BROOK.—I do not think there is any want of respect shown or meant when the soldiers call Lord Roberts "Little Bobs." It is rather a sign of popularity and affection. The greatest commanders have had nicknames. The great Duke of Marlborough to his men was "Corporal John," just as Napoleon was "Le petit Caporal." Again, Frederick the Great was "Our Fritz" to his soldiers, and Wellington was "Old Nosey." Admiral Boscawen was "Old Dreadnought," and Blucher was "Marshal Vorwarts" to his men. These nicknames to commanders mean much. They are complimentary rather than disrespectful, and are really an eloquent testimony of the confidence and affection of the troops for their commander.

* * * *

"WHITEHALL."—The "foul anchor," which for some mysterious reason still remains as the Admiralty badge of the British Navy, first made its appearance on the Admiralty buildings erected in 1723-26. At about the same time the Seal of the Admiralty Office underwent a similar disfigurement, but it is curious to note that the old clear anchor was retained on all Admiralty Books of Instructions until 1859. It is difficult to understand how the Earl of Berkeley, who was then First Lord of the Admiralty, permitted such a change to be made, seeing that he himself, though he possibly owed something to his social position, was a smart seaman. The "foul" emblem was even introduced into the Admiralty flag, but disappeared shortly after the battle of Waterloo. It is to be hoped that since then sufficient time has elapsed to warrant a return to the old badge, the present discreditable one having had at least a fair trial.

* * * *

L. HOLLAND.—The best book for you to refer to is "The Historical Record of the 18th, or Royal Irish, Regiment, 1684-1848." It was published in London in 1848. It is probably out of print, and you would either have to buy a second-hand copy or consult the book in the reading-room of the British Museum. The volume was published by Parker. If a very brief account of the regiment (two quarto pages) would suffice, you might consult "Records and Badges of every Regiment and Corps in the British Army," by Henry Manners Chichester and Major George Burges-Short, published in 1895 by William Clowes and Sons.

* * * *

"SHAMMING ABRAHAM."—"Abram men" was a cant term applied to vagabonds who roamed about the country soliciting alms on the ground that they had been discharged in a destitute condition from men-of-war or hospitals. The Abraham Ward in Bedlam was allotted to such folk, who, in order to maintain their reputation, used to array themselves "with party-coloured ribbons, tapes in their hats, a fox tail hanging down, a long stick with streamers, etc." Nevertheless, it was shrewdly remarked that "for all their seeming madness they had wit to steal as they went along." On board ship the phrase was usually applied to malingerers who feigned sickness in order to shirk work by being on the doctor's list. The phrase has a pedigree which is deserving of respect. An allusion to it is to be found in "King Lear" (Act II., Scene 2). Aubrey describes them as going about the country wearing an iron ring on their left arm, which could not be removed, and having round their necks "the great horn of an ox in a string or bawdrick, which, when they came to a house, they did wind, and they put the drink given them into this horn, whereto they put a stopple." Dekker also describes the different species: The merry ones who sang songs of their own composition; the melancholy sort who strove to excite compassion by incessant weeping, and the sullen ones who were apt to make free with the contents of an unprotected house. References to them will also be found in Beaumont and Fletcher (Beggar's Bush), and in Burton's "Anatomy of Melancholy."

* * * *

"GOSPORT."—The word khaki is derived from khak, a Persian word, which means earth, dust. Khaki is literally earth-coloured. The material called by that name was originally made from cotton in India, where it is still manufactured, and it is sold at about 2d. or 3d. a yard. The cheapest quality made in England costs about 8d. a yard wholesale. The dye used to make khaki its peculiar colour is said to be a trade secret. The material in which most of our troops sent out to South Africa are clad is not cotton khaki, but serge dyed the same colour. The first contingent sent out, however, were given uniforms of cotton khaki.

* * * *

"E. G. B."—The sword-bayonet was introduced in 1888. You are right in supposing that it was given to the Guards before it was served out to the line regiments.

* * * *

"TRIREME."—The arrangement of the banks of oars in the trireme has always been a puzzle, and will probably remain an insoluble one. At least, such was the opinion of the famous head-master of Rugby, Dr. Arnold, no mean authority on the subject. That the banks or tiers must have been numerous is well known, for the admiral's vessel—prætoria puppis—had six tiers. Beyond this, all that is known for certain is that on the oars depended not only the propulsion to a large extent, since the sail power was elementary, but also the navigation of the vessel, as the paddle rudders affixed to the quarters had only very ineffectual control. So expert, however, did the Greeks and Romans become in the use of oars, generally worked by slaves or freedmen, who were quite distinct from the fighting crew, that galleys so handled were practically as well under control as modern steamships.

"C. B."—See the illustration on the front page of last week's issue. The name of Bugler John Dunne, No. 4606, A Company, 1st Battalion Dublin Fusiliers, will go down to history with that of Trumpeter Shurlock of the 5th Lancers, the boy hero of Elandslaagte. This little lad, who is only fourteen years of age, insisted on going into action at Colenso, though his colour-sergeant wanted him to stay at Chieveley. He was wounded in two places, and his right arm being helpless he used his left for his bugle until he fainted from loss of blood. Her Majesty, in her usual gracious way, recognised his gallantry by asking him to pay her a personal visit, and it is probably the first time that so young a soldier has been so honoured by his Sovereign. His reception at Portsmouth on his return from the front was enthusiastic, and our frontispiece showed him being shouldered through the streets by representatives of both Services, the soldier being his father, Sergeant Dunne, of the 3rd Battalion of the same regiment.

* * * *

"W. W."—The "Indefatigable" has just paid off after a commission which lasted from December 3, 1896, till December 31, 1899, on the North American and West Indies station. An interesting little story of her commission has been published, an example which might well be followed by other ships when paying off. There were no scenes of battle, or even the landing of a Naval brigade, to describe, but none the less does the story show the many and various duties that devolve on a man-of-war when in commission. In all during the 1,123 days of her commission she was in harbour 954 days 15 hours, and at sea 168 days 9 hours. During the latter time she steamed 12,598 miles, the first year, 15,497 the second, and 13,271 the third, in all 41,366 miles. And that she was well looked after in the engine-room is evidenced by the fact that on a four-hour full-power trial last August she steamed 18·5 knots. She also did well with her boats in the squadron regattas, for of sailing prizes she won 3 firsts, 3 seconds, and 1 third, and in pulling races 4 seconds and 8 thirds. That her new commission may prove as prosperous and happy as her last is my hearty wish.

* * * *

HENRY LUCAS DEAN.—I am obliged to you for pointing out the error in the paragraph answering "P. O. P.," where the name of the boy who won the Victoria Cross while serving with Captain Peel's famous Naval brigade in India is given as Edward St. John Daniels, instead of Henry St. John Daniel. Curiously enough two books on Victoria Cross heroes give the name as given in the answer to "P. O. P." The name does not appear in the Navy List, so I suppose the officer is dead. Daniel's record was certainly brilliant if, as you say, he possessed before he was twenty-one years of age not only the V.C., but the Burmese medal, the Crimean medal with three clasps, the Sardinian medal, the Turkish medal, the Legion of Honour, and the Order of the Medjidieh.

* * * *

"C. D. P."—The only battle-ships of the Royal Navy that to-day carry muzzle-loading guns as their main armament and figure in official returns as effective are the turret-ships "Inflexible," four 16-in.; "Dreadnought," "Ajax," and "Agamemnon," each four 12½-in.; "Neptune," four 12½-in., two 9-in.; and "Monarch," four 12-in., two 9-in., one 7-in.; and the central-battery ships "Téméraire," four 11-in., four 10-in.; "Superb," twelve 10-in.; "Alexandra" (in lower battery; she has breech-loaders in upper), eight 10-in.; "Sultan," eight 10-in., four 9-in.; "Hercules," eight 10-in., two 9-in., four 7-in.; and "Triumph," "Swiftsure," "Audacious," "Invincible," and "Iron Duke," each ten 9-in. Of these sixteen, probably the last six named would not be worth rearming, and the same is also true of the "Monarch," the port guard-ship at Simon's Bay. Then there are the coast defence ships "Belleisle" and "Orion," each four 12-in.; "Hotspur" and "Glatton," each two 12-in.; "Hydra," "Gorgon," "Hecate," and "Cyclops," each four 10-in.; and "Wivern" and "Scorpion," each four 9-in. These have no fighting value at all outside harbour defence. Of armoured cruisers there are the "Nelson" and "Northampton," each four 10-in. and eight 9-in.; "Northumberland," seven 9-in., twenty 8-in.; "Agincourt" and "Minotaur," each seventeen 9-in.; "Achilles," fourteen 9-in.; "Black Prince," four 8-in., twenty-two 7-in.; and "Warrior," four 8-in. and twenty-eight 7-in. None of these have a war value, and are now, when used, employed as training-ships. Finally there is one unprotected cruiser which carries twelve 7-in., and is no longer an efficient fighting ship in any sense of the word.

* * * *

"D. H. T."—The residence of the Commander-in-Chief in Ireland is Kilmainham Hospital, which is the Irish Chelsea Hospital. The Commander-in-Chief in Ireland is ex-officio Governor of the institution. The hospital was founded by Charles II., at the suggestion of Arthur, Earl of Granard, Marshal-General of the Army in Ireland in 1675, and the Duke of Ormonde laid the foundation-stone in 1680. Three years later the hospital was built from Wren's designs. It stands on ground that was once part of Phœnix Park. The number of pensioners provided for is 140.

* * * *

"ANDRE."—Marshal Bazaine ended his days in Madrid, where he lived after his exile. He sank very low before he died, and one of the most lucrative sources of income used to be the sale of his autograph. He was well known in Madrid, where he was pointed out to strangers as one of the sights of the city. It was difficult to believe that the shabby, wretched-looking old man who used to excite the pity of all he met was once the Marshal of France who surrendered Metz to the Germans. His widow died only recently in Mexico. THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

Never Fails.

Established 25 YEARS.

Have you a Cough?
A DOSE WILL RELIEVE IT.

Have you a Cold?
A DOSE AT BEDTIME WILL REMOVE IT.

Try it also for

Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Consumption.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

BE SURE YOU GET IT.

"To my most agreeable surprise, after the third dose, I was able to officiate with perfect ease. I resolved henceforth to add your valuable medicine to my household remedies, and certainly shall never be without it.
"(Rev.) F. C. S. KRŒNIG, Vicar of St. Barnabas, Hull."

"Permit me to thank you for being the author of 'A Boon to Mankind.' I refer to your Lung Tonic. I really believe that without it I could not possibly get through the heavy work I undertake each festive season.
"GEORGE BARRETT, Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway."

Prepared by
W. T. OWBRIDGE, Chemist, Hull.
Sold everywhere
in bottles, at 1*s.* 1½*d.*, 2*s.* 9*d.*, 4*s.* 6*d.*, and 11*s.*

COPYRIGHT.

Fox's New Patent Spiral Puttees.

Regd. No. 342,186-7.

Made in Two WEIGHTS (heavy and light), and in a VARIETY OF COLOURS
SHADE CARDS ON APPLICATION.

The Heavy Weight or "Regulation" Quality is the same as originally made for Her Majesty's Government, and now supplied in large quantities by FOX BROTHERS & Co., Ltd., for the use of Troops on active service.

FOX BROTHERS & CO.'S
NEW PATENT
SPIRAL PUTTEE
is so designed as to wind on spirally from Ankle to Knee, and to fit closely to the leg with even pressure without any turns or twists.

For Ladies and Children,
IN LIGHT WEIGHT. EXTRA FINE QUALITY.
Price, 10s. per pair.

For Rough Hard Wear, no Leg Covering has ever been invented equal to the PUTTEE.

MADE OF ALL WOOL.

FIT ANY LEG.

Price, without Spats, 6/- per pair; with Spats, 10/6.
(EITHER WEIGHT)

Sole Manufacturers and Patentees, FOX, BROTHERS & CO., LTD.,
WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

Agents, United States and Canada: BALE & MANLEY, New York.

THE "OSMAN"
Turkish Towels & Bath Mats.

MADE BY
BARLOW & JONES, Limited,
MANCHESTER, LONDON & BOLTON.
And sold by all high-class Drapers and Upholsterers.

Second Edition just Ready.

RECENT & COMING ECLIPSES

By SIR NORMAN LOCKYER, K.C.B., F.R.S.

Second Edition, containing an account of the observations made at Viziadrug, in India, in 1898, and of the conditions of the Eclipses visible in 1900, 1901 and 1905. 8vo, price 6s. net.

MACMILLAN & CO., LTD., LONDON.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—It is delightful to see the change that has come over everyone since we have had better news from the front. We all have shaken off the depression that would come upon us whether we would or no, and we hope it will have no opportunity of seizing us again. Of course there is plenty of time for many things to happen and many battles to be fought before you get this letter, but everyone looks cheerily for success in our next undertakings. Meanwhile London is still full of young men who have joined the Imperial Yeomanry. One meets them wherever one goes, marching about with their friends and relations, who like to see the most of them before they really leave for South Africa.

Many of these men, too, can be seen going into the riding school in Earl's Court, where Mr. Savigear is doing his best for our soldiers by giving each week sixty tickets to intending members of the Imperial Yeomanry. Each ticket represents an hour's lesson, which comprises riding without stirrups and bare-backed, mounting and dismounting at the walk and trot, picking up a stirrup at the gallop off a box a foot high, besides practical lessons in saving life.

Mr. Savigear's system does wonders for the men, many of whom are indifferent horsemen when they first go to the school, but I hear he gets them on wonderfully, and just at the present time, when it is necessary that every man in the Imperial Yeomanry should be a good rider, his generous assistance is very valuable.

I have had more than one letter from Nora since I last wrote to you. In them she tells me of the last two of the Malta Club dances, both of which she seems to have enjoyed immensely. At the latter she said everyone seemed to have come out in quite new frocks, some of which were very smart and pretty, white and pink being the prevailing colours. Sir John and Lady Fisher and the Misses Fisher were present, also Lord Charles Beresford and Miss Beresford, and Admiral and Miss Molyneux. Nora noticed a particularly pretty dress of lavender shot silk made with velvet revers turned back over a full vest of white chiffon, the velvet being edged with a beautiful embroidery in shades of lavender and green and gold. A very simple dress that was much admired was of a lovely shade of yellow satin, trimmed on the bodice with chiffon of the same colour, and finished with a shaped revers of cream guipure edged with mink, and fastened on one side with an old paste buckle.

A CLOTH DRESS FOR SMART OCCASIONS.

Another evening Mrs. Fraser gave a charming little dance at 28, Strada Mezzodi, when about sixty people were present, and the floor and music were quite excellent. Miss Eleanor Heneage, in a very pretty dress of pale green satin, and her sister, in white satin, looked after the guests admirably, so that all present enjoyed themselves and danced most vigorously. The next night there was a large dance at Morrell's Hotel, given by the ladies staying in the hotel. About 100 guests were present, and dancing was kept up till two in the morning, the music supplied by some of the band from the "Renown" being most inspiriting. The hostesses were all charmingly dressed—Mrs. Riddell in pale blue, Mrs. Colquhoun Grant in cream brocade trimmed with beautiful lace and jewelled embroidery, Mrs. Clark in red with black lace appliqué, and Miss Capel in black and white trimmed on the bodice with knots of red velvet. Supper was served at little tables in the dining-room, and all the hostesses gave up their sitting-rooms, which were very prettily arranged, for the evening as sitting-out places.

I now send you a sketch of a dress that I am despatching to Nora to-day. It is made in very fine cloth of a delicate shade of biscuit colour, with the fashionable bolero strapped and fastened with gold barrel-shaped buttons and little gold chains. The skirt is made with a loose plait in front, carefully shaped so as to sit flat at the waist and to flow out from about the knees to the feet. This also is caught at intervals with the same sort of buttons. The vest is of lace, finished with a silk tie and boa of chiffon and chenille. This style of dress would look well in any of the pretty pale shades of fine cloths that are still being made in great numbers for Cairo and other sunny places. On smart occasions they are worn in London, too, and I have seen a good many dresses of the kind at Princes' lately, where smart costumes are so often to be seen. The other night I saw Lady Craven there wearing a lovely cloak of pink panne trimmed with broadtail, panne being still a favourite material, although it is likely to be outdone by this new velours mermac, which is really beautiful.

Yours affectionately,
Constance.

 Communications, enquiries, and other correspondence relating to matters referred to in the above letter should be addressed to the Editor at this office, with "Fashions" written in the left-hand corner of the envelope.

Digitized by Google

A High-class Reproduction of the original picture (of which the above is a reduced copy), beautifully printed in Colours, will be sent by the FRAME FOOD Co., Ltd., Battersea, London, S.W., on receipt of 4d. stamps, if this Paper is mentioned. The size of the picture is 20¼ inches by 15¾ inches, and, to render it suitable for framing, the two lines of title will be printed on the margin.

WOOL FOR THE WAR.

Khaki Drill spells Chill.

Write or wire for details of complete

PURE WOOL REGULATION FIELD SERVICE OUTFIT.

SPECIAL KHAKI WOOLLEN SERGE FOR YEOMANRY.

Jaeger

MILITARY AND SPORTING PURE WOOL TAILORS,

42, CONDUIT STREET, W.

Telegrams: "Highmost, London."

FLOR DE DINDIGUL

Cigars.

3D. each At all Respectable Tobacconists.

SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Exquisite Mild Flavour and Most Delicate Aroma, and leave no unpleasant taste in the mouth, and no bad after-effects.

ALSO

Flor de Dindigul Cigarettes,

ALL TOBACCO LEAF—NO PAPER. A Delightful Wholesome Whiff, 1d. each, at all Respectable Tobacconists, or at the SOLE IMPORTERS-

BEWLAY & CO., Ltd.,

49, 74, and 156, STRAND, and 143, CHEAPSIDE.

ESTABLISHED 1780. PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

Digitized by Google

THE GOOD OLD

LIKE "ASPINALL'S ENAMEL,"

CANNOT BE BEATEN.

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL

USED ON H.M. SHIPS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

SPECIAL TERMS TO OFFICERS OF THE SERVICE.

The finest colors in the world.

SPECIAL QUALITIES FOR LARGE DECORATIVE WORK.

"O" QUALITY. For State Rooms, Cabins, and General Interior Work.

"INDIAN" QUALITY. For Deck Work, Guns, Turrets, and General Exterior Work.

HEAD OFFICES:—

ASPINALL'S ENAMEL, LTD., NEW CROSS, LONDON, S.E.

Digitized by Google

Printed by HUDSON & KEARNS, 83-87, Southwark Street, London, S.E. Publishing Office, 7-12, Southampton Street, London, W.C.

March 3rd, 1900. THE NAVY. MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

A PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WORLD'S NEWS

OFFICES—
O, TAVISTOCK STREET,
LONDON, W.C.

VOL. IX.—No. 162. [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.] SATURDAY, MARCH 10th, 1900.

Published Weekly, PRICE SIXPENCE.
Subscription Price, per annum, Post free,
Inland, 28s. 2d. Foreign, 36s. 10d.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

UNRIVALLED SITUATION IN LONDON.

THE
LANGHAM HOTEL,
PORTLAND PLACE & REGENT STREET, W.

SEPARATE APARTMENTS
FOR
Regimental, Hunt, & Private Dinners, etc.
MODERN IMPROVEMENTS. MODERATE TARIFF.

W. CATER & Co.,
To Her Majesty the Queen.
H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family.

NAVAL AND MILITARY
Tailors and Outfitters,
56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.
ESTABLISHED 1776.
Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

The Army Assurance Association.

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES:

LIFE. War Risks. World-wide.
ACCIDENTS AND DISEASES.
FIRE. Residence abroad.
BURGLARY, &c.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison, or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing, without endorsement on removal.

Special Quotations for Messes.
REFUND OF INCOME DUTY OBTAINED BY ARRANGEMENT WITH THE WAR OFFICE, ON ALL LIFE AND ACCIDENT PREMIUMS.
Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due, on permanent order.
Apply for Prospectus,
MANAGER, 217, PICCADILLY, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, W.
BRANCH OFFICE: IMPERIAL BUILDINGS, GROSVENOR ROAD, ALDERSHOT.

MARTELL'S
"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—Lancet, July, '99.

THREE STAR
BRANDY.
"A genuine old Brandy made from wine."—Medical Press. August, '99.

ST. ERMIN'S HOTEL,
WESTMINSTER.
LARGEST AND FINEST IN LONDON.
UNEXCELLED FOR CUISINE, LUXURY AND COMFORT.
INCLUSIVE TERMS,
FROM 10/6 PER DAY.
Telegraphic Addresses: For Management, "UNPARALLELED." For Visitors, "ERMINITES."

PALL MALL
SAFES & STRONG ROOMS FROM ONE GUINEA.
SAFE DEPOSIT.
ABSOLUTELY FIRE AND BURGLAR PROOF.
Handsomely-appointed Reading and Writing Rooms, &c.
OFFICERS' BAGGAGE
Collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c
Full information of the
PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING CO., Ltd.,
CARLTON STREET, REGENT STREET, S.W.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.
IRISH DAMASK
Fish Napkins, 2/11 per doz. Dinner Napkins, 5/6 per doz. Table Cloths (2 yards square), 2/6; 2½ × 3 yards 5/6. Kitchen Table Cloths, 11½d. each. Irish Linens Pillow Cases, 10/6 per doz. Real Irish Linen Sheeting, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1/11 per yard. Roller Towelling, 3d. per yard. Surplice Linen, 7d. per yard. Dusters from 3/3 per doz. Linen Glass Cloths, 4/9 per doz.
SAMPLES & PRICE LISTS POST FREE.
Frilled Linen Pillow Cases, from 1/4½ each. Fine Linens and Linen Diaper, 8½d. per yard. Strong Huckaback Towels, 4/6 per dozen,
TABLE AND HOUSE LINEN.
N.B.-To prevent delay, all Letters & Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

LEA & PERRIN'S SAUCE.
Lea & Perrins
Is printed in BLUE ink across the outside wrapper of every bottle of
THE ORIGINAL WORCESTERSHIRE.
AVOID CHEAP COPIES.

Digitized by Google

"Ye ken! its PLAYER'S"

[Scene: A room in Auld Reekie.]

"Ye'll kill yersel' Jock," cried Mrs. McGurk,
"Ye smoke aw' the week, and snuff in the kirk,
"Ev'n at Prayers."
"Haud yer tongue," answered Jock, "A'm as sweet as a nut,
"For the baccy I smoke is the best Navy Cut,
"And it's Player's."

PLAYER'S Is the only genuine Navy Cut—all the others are imitations. Sold in 1-oz. packets and in sealed 2-oz., 4-oz., 8-oz, and 1-lb. tins.

MILD* in Red packages. MEDIUM* in Blue packages.

Digitized by Google

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 162. Saturday, March 10th, 1900.

The ART of . .

ROUGH RIDING

(MILITARY AND CIVIL)

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship and Rough Riding," 2/6.

Our Best Friends . .

Are the long-time users of the

Smith Premier Typewriter,

those who from experience have learnt its merits, and who testify that its capacity for good . . . work all the time is unequalled, and that repair bills are reduced to a minimum.

SEND FOR ART CATALOGUE.

The Smith Premier Typewriter Co.,
14 Gracechurch Street, London, E.C.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Bonnie Dundee."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 3 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "In Spite of All."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. Sat. at 3 p.m. "His Excellency the Governor."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m., and Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m., and 1.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.30. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. Sat. 2.30 p.m. "The Messenger Boy."
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Bootles' Baby."
GLOBE, W.C.
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.15 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "Hamlet."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m., Sat., 2.30 p.m. "Florodora."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "Don Juan's Last Wager."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "Drink."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W. "Magda."
ST. JAMES'S, S.W., 8.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "Rupert of Hentzau."
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W.
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. Sat. at 3 p.m. "Facing the Music."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C.
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Bishop's Eye."
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "Dandy Dick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Sign of the Cross."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "The Magic Moonstone."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45. p.m. The Repertoire Co.
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m. Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Les Cloches de Corneville."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Famine."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m., and Sat. at 2 p.m. "La Poupée."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m., and Sat. at 2 p.m. "Dorothy."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m. "A Runaway Girl."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "The Golden Ladder."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "A Royal Family."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Two Orphans."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. "Why Smith Left Home."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "The French Spy."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W., 8 p.m. "El Capitan."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "After Dark."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "Leap for Life."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FIVE YEARS' RECORD.

During the last five years 156 Pupils were prepared and 145 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—14 out of 16.
SANDHURST—54 out of 58.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—28 out of 29.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—10 out of 10.
COOPER'S HILL—4 out of 4.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—2 out of 2.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
20 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: How Our Tars Received the Good News...	625
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	626
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	629
Editorial Notices	630
The Navy and Army Diary	630
The Tower of London. (Illustrated)	630
A New Gun for the Front. (Illustrated)	633
With Buller at Chieveley. (Illustrated)	634
Our Wounded Soldiers in Natal. (Illustrated)	636
With the Naval Brigades in South Africa. (Illustrated)	637
On Scouting Duty with Gatacre. (Illus.)	639
With the Inniskillings near Colesberg. (Illustrated)	640
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	642
Lord Roberts's Triumph. (Illustrated)	643
The Story of the War	644
Our Auxiliary Forces for South Africa. (Illustrated)	645

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Second Week.]

THE CAVALRY, ROYAL ARTILLERY, AND ROYAL ENGINEERS.*

CAVALRY.

1st Life Guards	Lieut.-Col. C. N. Miles.	Windsor
2nd ,,	L.-Cl. J. A. Smith-Cuninghame	Regent's Park
Royal Horse Gds.	Lt.-Col. G. Lord Binning	Hyde Park
Composite Regt.—
Househ. Cavalry	Lieut.-Col. A. D. Neeld	Cape Colony
1st Dragoon Gds.	Lieut.-Col. H. M. Owen	Dublin
2nd ,,	Lieut.-Col. J. E. Dewar	Aldershot
3rd ,,	Lieut.-Col. U. G. C. de Burgh	Dundalk
4th ,,	Lieut.-Col. G. D. F. Sulivan	Rawul Pindi
5th ,,	Lieut.-Col. St. J. C. Gore	Ladysmith, Natal
6th ,,	Lieut.-Col. T. C. Porter	South Africa
7th ,,	Lieut.-Col. W. H. M. Lowe	South Africa
1st Dragoons	Lieut.-Col. J. F. Burn-Murdoch	Natal
2nd ,,	Lt.-Col. Hon. W. P. Alexander.	South Africa
3rd Hussars	Lt.-Col. W. N. Wogan-Browne.	Lucknow
4th ,,	Lieut.-Col. W. A. Ramsay	Bangalore
5th Lancers	Col. J. F. M. Fawcett	Ladysmith, Natal
6th Dragoons	Lt.-Col. H. C. Page-Henderson	Cape Colony
7th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. Hon. R. T. Lawley	Norwich
8th ,,	Lieut.-Col. P. L. Clowes	For South Africa
9th Lancers	Lieut.-Col. B. Gough	Cape Colony
10th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. R. B. W. Fisher	South Africa
11th ,,	Lieut.-Col. E. R. Courtenay.	Cairo
12th Lancers	Lt.-Col. D. S. W., Earl of Airlie	Cape Colony
13th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. H. J. Blagrove	Natal
14th ,,	Lieut.-Col. G. H. C. Hamilton	South Africa
15th ,,	Lieut.-Col.	Meerut
16th Lancers	Lieut.-Col. H. L. Aylmer	South Africa
17th ,,	Lieut.-Col. J. R. P. Gordon	For South Africa
18th Hussars	Lieut.-Col. B. D. Moller	Ladysmith, Natal
19th ,,	L.-C. C. B. H. Wolseley-Jenkins	Ladysmith, Natal
20th ,,	Lieut.-Col. H. G. P. Beauchamp	Mhow
21st Lancers	L.-C. W. G. Crole Wyndham, C.B.	Newbridge

ROYAL REGIMENT OF ARTILLERY.

Royal Horse Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
A.—South Africa	J.—South Africa	S.—Aldershot
B.—Lucknow	K.—Rawul Pindi	T.—Cape Colony
C.—Mhow	L.—Trimulgherry	U.—Cape Colony
D.—Umballa	M.—For South Africa	V.—Woolwich
E.—Kirkee	N.—Aldershot	W.—Woolwich
F.—Sealkote	O.—Cape Colony	X.—Woolwich
G.—Cape Colony	P.—Cape Colony	Y.—Aldershot
H.—Meerut	Q.—Cape Colony	Z.—Aldershot
I.—Umballa	R.—Cape Colony	AA.—Curragh

Royal Field Artillery (Headquarters, Woolwich).

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
1.—Ahmednugger	41.—Lucknow	81.—Cape Colony
2.—Cape Colony	42.—Natal	82.—Cape Colony
3.—Campbellpore	43.—Woolwich	83.—Cape Colony
4.—Cape Colony	44.—Colchester	84.—Cape Colony
5.—Cape Colony	45.—Barrackpore	85.—Cape Colony
6.—Cawnpore	46.—Dinapore	86.—Cape Colony
7.—Natal	47.—Ferozepore	87.—Cape Colony
8.—Cape Colony	48.—St. Thomas' [Mount	88.—Cape Colony
9.—Cape Colony		89.—For South Africa
10.—Aldershot	49.—Belgaum	90.—For South Africa
11.—Meean Meer	50.—Agra	91.—For South Africa
12.—Jullundur	51.—Rawul Pindi	92.—Aldershot
13.—Natal	52.—Jubbulpore	93.—Cahir
14.—Natal	53.—Natal	94.—Clonmel
15.—Meerut	54.—Meerut	95.—Leeds
16.—Kirkee	55.—Saugor	96.—Seaforth
17.—Cape Colony	56.—Egypt	97.—Ipswich
18.—Cape Colony	57.—Meean Meer	98.—Ipswich
19.—Natal	58.—Kamptee	99.—Longford
20.—Cape Colony	59.—Cahir	100.—Athlone
21.—Natal	60.—Allahabad	101.—Hilsea
22.—Mhow	61.—Natal	102.—Hilsea
23.—Secunderabad	62.—Cape Colony	103.—Hilsea
24.—Peshawur	63.—Natal	104.—Shorncliffe
25.—Bangalore	64.—Natal	105.—Shorncliffe
26.—Aldershot	65.—Cape Colony	106.—Shorncliffe
27.—Neemuch	66.—Cape Colony	107.—Woolwich
28.—Natal	67.—Natal	108.—Woolwich
29.—Kirkee	68.—Cape Colony	109.—Woolwich
30.—Fyzabad	69.—Natal	110.—Newcastle
31.—St. Thomas' [Mount	70.—Bareilly	111.—Newcastle
	71.—Mooltan	112.—Newcastle
32.—Jhansi	72.—Bellary	113.—Colchester
33.—Hyderabad	73.—Natal	114.—Colchester
34.—Ahmedabad	74.—Cape Colony	115.—Weedon
35.—Kurrachee	75.—Cape Colony	116.—Woolwich
36.—Nusseerabad	76.—Cape Colony	117.—Woolwich
37.—Cape Colony	77.—Cape Colony	118.—Coventry
38.—Cape Colony	78.—Woolwich	119.—Exeter
39.—Cape Colony	79.—Cape Colony	120.—Exeter
40.—Bangalore	80.—Nowgong	121.—Dorchester

Royal Garrison Artillery.

MOUNTAIN DIVISION.

Battery.	Battery.	Battery.
1.—Lundi Kotal	5.—Kalabagh	8.—Darjeeling
2.—Khyra Gali	6.—Jutogh	9.—Mandalay
3.—Bara Gali	7.—Quetta	10.—Natal
4.—Natal

EASTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Dover).
Depôt No. 1, Dover. No. 2, Great Yarmouth.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—Calcutta	11.—Gibraltar	21.—Sheerness
2.—St. Helena	12.—Dover	22.—(H.) Sheerness
3.—Rangoon (for	13.—Bombay	23.—Shoeburyness
4.—Kurrachee[Aden)	14.—Isle of Wight	24.—Delhi
5.—Cape Colony	15.—Dover	25.—Hong Kong
6.—Shoeburyness	16.—Egypt [Bermuda)	26.—(S.T.) Bombay
7.—(S.T.) Mooltan	17.—Malta (for	27.—Sheerness
8.—Aden	18.—Gibraltar	28.—Landguard Fort
9.—Allahabad	19.—Gibraltar [Malta)	29.—Leith Fort
10.—Cape Colony	20.—Gibraltar (for	30.—Dover

SOUTHERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Portsmouth).
Depôt No. 1, Fort Rowner, Gosport. No. 2, Seaforth Barracks, Liverpool.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—Malta	15.—(S.T.) C. Colony	29.—Barrackpore
2.—Cape Colony	16.—Cape Colony	30.—Portsmouth
3.—Portsmouth	17.—Malta	31.—Malta
4.—Malta	18.—Aden	32.—Gibraltar
5.—Agra	19.—Malta	33.—Thobba
6.—Roorkee	20.—(S.T.)Ft.Fareh'm	34.—Trincomalee
7.—Weymouth	21.—Portsmouth	35.—Singapore
8.—Bermuda (for [Halifax, N.S.)	22.—Jamaica	36.—Cape Colony
	23.—Quetta	37.—Ceylon
9.—Roorkee	24.—(H.) Campbell- [pore	38.—Hong Kong
10.—Gibraltar		39.—Golden Hill, [Isle of Wight
11.—Roorkee	25.—Hong Kong
12.—Singapore	26.—Gibraltar	40.—Cork Harbour
13.—Malta	27.—Malta	41.—Portsmouth
14.—Cape Colony	28.—Weymouth

WESTERN DIVISION (Headquarters, Devonport).
Depôt No. 1, Citadel, Plymouth. No. 2, Scarborough.

Co.	Co.	Co.
1.—St. Lucia	13.—Pembroke Dock	24.—Malta
2.—Cape Colony	14.—C. of Good Hope	25.—Quetta
3.—Halifax	15.—(S.T.) C. Colony	26.—Mauritius
4.—Ferozepore	16.—Aden	27.—Pembroke Dock
5.—Rawul Pindi	17.—Cape Colony	28.—Londonderry
6.—Cape Colony	18.—Bombay	29.—Fort Bovisand, [Plymouth
7.—Jhansi	19.—Esquimault
8.—Mauritius	20.—Halifax, N.S. (for [Jamaica)	30.—Devonport
9.—(H) Secunderab'd
10.—Cape Colony	21.—Bermuda	ROYAL MALTA ART'Y.
11.—Fort St. George	22.—Rangoon
12.—Jersey	23.—Kimberley	Malta

H. Heavy. S.T. Siege Train.

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Co.	Co.
1st (F.) Cork Harbour	36th (F.) Bermuda	Field Troop, S. Africa
2nd (F.) Egypt	37th (Fd.) for S. Africa	Field D., R.E. Troops, [Aldershot
3rd (F.) Bermuda	38th (Fd.) S. Africa
4th (Sub.) Gosport	39th (Sub.) Sheerness	Balloon D. and Sect., [South Africa
5th (F.) Portsmouth	40th (Sub.) Halifax, [N.S.
6th (F.) South Africa		COAST BATTALION
7th (Fd.) S. Africa	41st (F.) Hdqrs. and ½ Co. Ceylon; ½ Co. Singapore	(Submarine Miners):
8th (Ry.) S. Africa
9th (Fd.) For S. Africa	42nd (F.) South Africa	Sect.
10th (Ry.) S. Africa	43rd (F.) Mauritius	1 (Tyne) N. Shields
11th (Fd.) S. Africa	45th (F.) Steam Tr'p't, [Natal	2 (Severn) Cardiff
12th (Fd.) S. Africa		3 (Clyde) Greenock
13th (Sur.) Clifton, [Bristol	46th (Fd.) Portsmouth	4 (Humber) Paull
	47th (F.) South Africa	5 (Tees) Middlesbr'gh
14th (Sur.) Dublin	48th (Sub.) Chatham	6 (Tay) Broughty [Ferry
15th (F.) Gibraltar	49th (F.) Chatham
16th (Sur.) Bedford	50th (F.) Chatham	7 (Forth) Leith, ["Dido," hulk
17th (Fd.) S. Africa	51st (F.) Chatham
18th (F.) Halifax, N.S.	A (D.) Chatham	8 (Mersey) Liverpool
19th (Sur.) S'th'pton	B (D.) Chatham	9 (Falmouth) Falm'th
20th (F.) South Africa	C (D.) Chatham	10 (Weymouth) [Weymouth
21st (Sub.) Felixstowe	D (D.) Chatham
22nd (Sub.) I. of Wight	E (D.) Chatham	LOCAL COMPANIES ABROAD:
23rd (Fd.) Natal	F (D.) Chatham
24th (F.) Malta	G (D.) Chatham	Singapore (Sub.)
25th (F.) Hong Kong	M (Sub.) Chatham	Hong Kong (Sub.)
26th (Fd.) S. Africa	N (D.) Chatham	Ceylon (Sub.) [Trincomalee
27th (Sub.) Bermuda	H Army Hqrs., India
28th (Sub.) Malta	TELEGRAPH BATN.:	Mauritius (Sub.)
29th (F.) Cape Town	1st Div., South Africa	Sierra Leone (F.)
30th (Sub.) Plymouth	2nd Div., 28, Newgate [Street	West India (Sub.) Jamaica
31st (F.) South Africa		W. India (F.)
32nd (F.) Gibraltar	BRIDGING BATN.:	½ Co. Jamaica, 1 Section at St. Lucia
33rd (Sub.) Cork Harb.	A Troop, South Africa
34th (Sub.) Gravesend	B Troop, Aldershot
35th (Sub.) Pembroke [Dock	C Troop, South Africa

F. Fortress. Fd. Field. Sub. Submarine. Sur. Survey. Ry. Railway. D. Depot.

* The Disposition of our Forces in South Africa is given in every number of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

HAMILTON'S IRISH HOMESPUNS

BEAT THE WORLD FOR HARD WEAR.

—:o:—

Guaranteed hand-spun and hand-woven from pure wool only. The only perfect material for Cycling, Golfing, Shooting, and sport and country wear generally. Beautifully soft, light, and warm. Equally suitable for Ladies or Gentlemen. Prices from 21d. per yard. All goods carriage paid. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Patterns free on application Address DESK 6.

THE WHITE HOUSE Depot for Irish Peasant Industries,

PORTRUSH, IRELAND.

J. H. STEWARD'S Binocular Field Glasses.

Renowned throughout the world for their fine definition, great power, and large field of view.

THE "ALDERSHOT" BINOCULAR

(AS ILLUSTRATED),

Has been supplied in large numbers to the IMPERIAL YEOMANRY.

This is one of the best small glasses for Military and general use.

£2 0s. 6d., in brown case, with belt loops. Illustrated Catalogues Gratis, Post Free.

J. H. STEWARD, Optician to the War Office, and the National Rifle Association by Appointment.

406, Strand; 457, West Strand, W.C.; 7, Gracechurch Street, E.C.

LONDON.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,

AND

COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,

152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

Over 120 YŌST Typewriters

Have Recently Been Purchased

BY . Her . Majesty's Government

YŌST No. 4.

FROM The YŌST Typewriter Company, Limited.

This is the LARGEST ORDER ever given for Writing Machines outside the U.S.A., and speaks volumes for the sterling merit of THE YŌST.

Catalogue, containing full particulars of this wonderful Instrument, post free.

The YŌST Typewriter Co., Ltd.,

50, HOLBORN VIADUCT, LONDON, E.C.

West End Depot: 303, OXFORD STREET.

SMOKE

GOLDEN

BUTTERFLY

CIGARETTES

Hand-Made

IN PACKETS AND BY WEIGHT.

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E.

Lists Free.

Digitized by Google

A STRANGE story is that which bears the title of "Shameless Wayne," by Halliwell Sutcliffe (Unwin). It is a book in which the elemental facts of human nature are powerfully embodied, and wherein the grip of vengeance is greater than the bond of love. It is, perhaps, significant of the character of Mr. Sutcliffe's latest story that the reader does not ask for date or circumstance; he is content to follow the engrossing story of a great vendetta as dramatic as that of the Montagues and the Capulets. Such ancestral hatreds were indigenous in our own soil, and have left their mark in many a part of England, for often in the stormy hearts of our sires did "ancient grudge break to new mutiny." Mr. Sutcliffe's previous volume, "Ricroft of Withens," at once brought him to the front as an individualised writer, whose work is far apart from much that we read. He is a native, I believe, of West Yorkshire, and "Shameless Wayne" speaks loudly of the soil, and is full of the sharp wit and the round speech of the upland country of the Pennine fringe. What Scott's tales are to the Border, or "Lorna Doone" to Exmoor, is Mr. Sutcliffe's work to the particular part of the country in which he casts his story. There is something of a difficulty for many readers, perhaps, in the rugged dialect which his characters employ, but it is an excellent thing—and the Dialect Society will appreciate the advantage—to have the primitive tongue of the North, rapidly fading now, embodied in good literature like this.

These Waynes and Ratcliffes cannot escape the curse that pursues them; they must "drie their weird," and appropriately—like the tragedy of Macbeth—the story begins with thunder, lightning, and with rain. The attention of the reader is gripped at once when he finds the sexton's wife knitting in the church tower, while with her foot she tolls the bell for the murdered Wayne. And here I must say that Mr. Sutcliffe possesses remarkable descriptive power, and the following may be quoted:

"Eerie as the night was in the belfry, it was wilder yet in the bleak kirkyard without, free to the moor as it was, and full of corners where the wind hid itself to pipe a shriller note than it could compass in the open. The wind, a moon three-quarters full, a sky close packed with rain and sleet, fought hard together; and now the moon gained a moment's victory, shimmering ghostly grey across the wet tombstones; and now the scudding wrack prevailed, hiding the moon outright. The sodden winter leaves were lifted from the mould and danced to the tune of the rain-drops pattering upward from the tombstones."

Into this scene comes the daughter of the murdered man, fingering the dagger of her vengeance, while the old woman says of her father, "'Tis a cold journey an' a long he's bound for, an' he'll feel th' lack o' flesh-warmth; ay, poor body! I could hev wished his soul fairer weather." The girl is raving against Nature with the struggle of a woman, remembering the fight through the summer days when the very skies strive against the seed crops, and the winter when the winds rail as if to batter the windows in. There is something of primitive pagandom in the story, and this plays a large part in the development of its feud, and is manifested in numberless ways in the book. The girl swears by the Brown Dog, the spectre beast, or Barguest, which gives tongue when danger threatens the Waynes, and when they never fail to loosen their blades in their scabbards. Shameless Wayne, himself, the son of the murdered man, is first heard roystering from a tavern by the churchyard while his father's body is not yet cold. The trouble had been stirred afresh by the Lean Man of Wildwater, the rugged chief of the rival clan, who had sought to humble the Waynes by strangling their pride through the dishonour of the dead man's wife. It illustrates what I say about pagandom when the Lean Man speaks of his son: "The lad will wed her as soon as they get free of Marshcotes, she thinks—but I know different, and 'twill eat the heart out of the Waynes."

But Shameless Wayne had learned to love a daughter of these Capulets, and the girl Janet, watching her rugged grandfather—the Lean Man—knows that he is planning mischief "as surely as a hawk meant death when it hung motionless above a cowering wild fowl." "Brave the Lean Man was, and crafty as a stoat; wiry of body, lank-jawed of face; and the hair stood up from his crown a rusty grey, like stubble when the first frost has nipped it." No wonder, therefore, that the voice of the hound is heard again—the mark of coming trouble, for, as the old woman says, "There's sorrow brewing thick, an' th' Brown Dog he's come to bid ye look to pistol primings an' th' like."

I shall leave the reader to pursue for himself the tragic events that follow. There is much bloodshed when the Waynes and the Ratcliffes gather together. Thus we have a struggle in the very churchyard, and Shameless Wayne, leading his kindred, strikes boldly: "A Wayne! in at them, lads! A Wayne! A Wayne!" So he called as he leaped at the Lean Man, and "sliced his left ear level with the cheek." But there is further carnage before the close, and a terrible battle in which men drop fast, and the story ends with the Lean Man on his death-bed jibing at Death, while Shameless Wayne wins the old man's granddaughter. "And then he gave a cry, and took her to him, so close he seemed to dare each whispering ghost of feud to snatch her from him." With this the hatchet is buried between these rugged Montagues and Capulets, and thus the end is brighter than the beginning. It will be surmised that Mr. Sutcliffe's book is a gloomy one. Indeed, the sunlight only occasionally brightens his vivid pages. But they are not without humour of the sharp and pungent kind which is found in these people, who have a subtle sense of the ludicrous and clothe their sarcasms with the vigour of speech which adds a good deal to the relish of the book. In the fidelity of one or two original beings I was reminded of Mrs. Poyser. It may be deemed a defect to some that no woman is in the book whom we can love or admire, but this is really in the nature of the story, which, for the rest, is a masterful presentment of hard and strong individuality manifesting itself in a way not common in modern fiction, and thrown with unmistakable power upon the background of local scenery and character. There are many more personages in the story than I have spoken of, but not one lacking in force or convincing personality.

From the work of one vivid writer I turn to that of another in a totally different sphere. The late Mr. Steevens, whose death was so widely lamented, brought to journalism a touch of the literary faculty in a new and original way, and his writings and descriptive volumes gave his work very wide popularity. It was, therefore, a source of sincere regret when intelligence of his death was received from Ladysmith. Very many will be glad to possess the book "From Capetown to Ladysmith" (Blackwood), being his letters reprinted from a contemporary, and forming "an unfinished record of events in South Africa." It has been edited by Mr. Vernon Blackburn, who, in a final chapter, gives a sound appreciation of Mr. Steevens's work. The letters are vivid and picturesque, like everything that came from the accomplished author's hand, though doubtless, had he lived, he would have given them a more finished character for the press. The book is assured of very wide popularity, and is appropriately clothed in khaki.

Books of Current Note.

"Field-Marshal Lord Roberts." By Horace G. Groser (Melrose). A well-told story of the famous soldier's career, published very cheaply for 1s., and a book bound to be popular at a time when Lord Roberts has won a new triumph.

"The Redemption of War." By Francis Paget, D.D. (Longmans). A little book of sermons by the Dean of Christ Church which may be commended to the thoughtful, and especially to those who regard war as intrinsically sinful, and wholly horrible.

"Nautisch-Technisches Wörterbuch der Marine." Bearbeitet von Julius Heinz (Gerold, Vienna). This is semi-officially published at Pola and Vienna, and is an admirable help to Naval students. It is a Naval word and phrase book, remarkably accurate and full, with all the references in the present volume classified in German and Italian with English and French equivalents.

"Search-Light."

Digitized by Google

Who wants the latest news from the Front?

Residents in the Suburbs, Provinces, and indeed in any part of the United Kingdom, anxious for the latest news from the seat of war before they can receive their usual newspaper may now be furnished (by telegram to their private address) with the Bovril War Bulletin on the following terms:—

1. These telegrams vary in length from half a dozen to fifty words. There are generally two a day; but the number and length of the messages are of course, dependent upon the news that may come in.

2. Subscribers must pay in advance for the bare cost of the telegram at the post-office rate of one halfpenny per word. They may send any sum they please from one sovereign upwards, and messages will be sent until the credit is exhausted. No account can be opened for less than £1.

3. Bovril Limited make no charge for their trouble; but subscribers must be customers, and to satisfy the Company on this point every sovereign remitted must be accompanied by the neck label torn from a bottle of Bovril of at least the 4-oz. size.

CAUTION.—In all cases give distinctly the shortest address that is sufficient for telegrams.

WAR CABLES.

N.B.—All communications on the above subject to be made to and all remittances to be in favour of the Company's Advertising Agent, S. H. Benson, 100, Fleet Street, London, E.C. (Envelopes to be marked "Cables.")

THE

PALL MALL DEPOSIT.

STORAGE & FORWARDING

OF

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE & KIT

A SPECIALITY

Experienced packers sent to all parts. Baggage, etc. collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c.

FULL INFORMATION FROM

Manager, Military & Naval Department,

PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING COMPANY, LTD.

Carlton St., Regent St., S.W. | Arthur Street, Aldershot.

WOOL FOR THE WAR.

Khaki Drill spells Chill.

Write or wire for details of complete

PURE WOOL REGULATION FIELD SERVICE OUTFIT.

SPECIAL KHAKI WOOLLEN SERGE FOR YEOMANRY.

MILITARY AND SPORTING PURE WOOL TAILORS,

42, CONDUIT STREET, W.

Telegrams: "Highmost, London."

Cigars.

3D. each At all Respectable Tobacconists.

SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Exquisite Mild Flavour and Most Delicate Aroma, and leave no unpleasant taste in the mouth, and no bad after-effects.

- - ALSO - -

Flor de Dindigul Cigarettes,

ALL TOBACCO LEAF—NO PAPER. A Delightful Wholesome Whiff, 1d. each, at all Respectable Tobacconists, or at the SOLE IMPORTERS—

BEWLAY & CO., Ltd.,

49, 74, and 156, STRAND, and 143, CHEAPSIDE.

ESTABLISHED 1730 PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

Digitized by Google

My dear Betty,—Norah wrote to me very regretfully this week, as her stay in Malta was drawing to an end, and she did not at all enjoy the thought that her four happy months in the bright little island were so nearly over. Just before she left she was busily engaged in the chorus of "H.M.S. Pinafore," which was got up by Captain James and Captain Oakshott as a grand finale to the winter season. And it was a tremendous success, for when the performances took place not a seat in stalls, boxes, or galleries was empty, the result being that a very substantial sum was handed over to the War Fund and to two of the local charities.

Captain Oakshott took upon himself the whole training of the chorus, besides conducting the orchestra; to Captain James fell the burden of the general arrangements; whilst Major-General O'Callaghan was a most business-like and energetic stage manager. As for the cast, Miss Bell was quite charming as Josephine, and Mrs. Nugent as Little Buttercup was greatly applauded, being indeed encored several times. Hebe was capitally played by Mrs. Clarkson, and Captain James played the part of Captain Corcoran as if he were indeed a Naval officer instead of belonging to the sister Service. Mr. Hopkins, R.N., was the First Lord of the Admiralty, and Mr. Newell played Ralph Rackstraw, whilst Mr. Philpott, R.N., was Dick Deadeye, and Mr. O'Donel Bill Bobstay, all of whom received their due share of applause. The performance of the chorus was in every respect excellent, quite rewarding the members for the long hours they stood at the rehearsals, whilst their dresses were charmingly pretty both in colouring and arrangement, and were well set off by the uniform of the Bluejackets, who were represented by the masculine members of the chorus.

In one way and another everything now has some reference to the war or to our Army, so, even if we would, we can scarcely for a moment get away from thoughts concerning them. Nearly every short story one takes up turns on some imaginary or heroic deed of the present or of past wars, whilst even theatrical managers in some cases choose what may be called topical plays. One of these, "The Bugle Call," was very harrowing, dwelling as it did on the partings that have been taking place almost daily during the last five months. But now the Garrick comes forward with the brighter side of the military subject, and "Bootle's Baby," which has been running about a fortnight, shows the cheery, happy-go-lucky life of the soldier when he is neither on active service nor in a station where he is commanded by an energetic general stirring him up to continual night attacks or field days.

Last week at 96, Piccadilly was opened the Junior Naval and Military Club, which has been established to meet the requirements of officers who are awaiting election to the older Service clubs. Six hundred members have already been enrolled, but as many of these are now absent on foreign service, it has been decided to keep open the original members' list longer than would otherwise have been the case. The club-house has been very comfortably furnished, and it is supplied with a large number of bedrooms, which are sure to be found useful by many of the members. There is also a ladies' dining-room, whilst the lift which runs from the basement to the top of the building is a convenience generally appreciated.

As I write the news comes of the relief of Ladysmith, news that, following closely on Lord Roberts's success, makes one very hopeful for the future. The whole campaign now is so intensely interesting, that if only we could study it in the cold-blooded manner in which we used to study bygone wars in our school days it would be most enjoyable. But the dark side comes too nearly home to all of us for that. Everyone, however, will be light-hearted to-day.

Are you coming up to town this month? For if so you must not forget to go to 17, Berners Street, W., to see a beautiful screen that Mr. Morris has presented to the fund of the hospital ship "Maine." It is a large screen, measuring 6-ft. 6-in. by 7-ft., and is made of cowhide leather painted with a representation of the ship as she was starting on her errand of mercy. The screen is put up for raffle for the benefit of the fund; tickets being offered at a guinea each up till the middle of April. In the meantime anyone is invited to call at Berners Street to see it, when none will be urged to take a ticket unless they declare their intention to do so. Yours affectionately,

Constance.

A DINNER DRESS.

Digitized by Google

"CELEBRITIES . . OF THE ARMY."

. . . A SERIES OF . . .

MAGNIFICENT COLOURED PHOTOS.

OF THE

MOST FAMOUS FIGHTING MEN . . . OF THE BRITISH ARMY.

IN ABOUT TWELVE FORTNIGHTLY PARTS. PRICE SIXPENCE EACH. BY POST, EIGHTPENCE EACH.

Each Part Contains Four Beautiful Coloured Photos. Worth Framing.

All the Principal Officers now in South Africa.

PART I. contains :–

Field-Marshal Viscount WOLSELEY, K.P.
Right Hon. Sir REDVERS BULLER, V.C., G.C.B.
Lieut.-General SIR FREDERICK W. E. F. FORESTIER-WALKER, K.C.B.
Colonel ROBERT S. S. BADEN-POWELL.

PART II. contains :–

Lieut.-General Sir GEORGE WHITE, V.C., G.C.B.
Lieut.-General Sir WILLIAM GATACRE, K.C.B.
Lieut.-General Lord METHUEN, K.C.V.O.
General Sir HENRY EVELYN WOOD, V.C., G.C.B.

PART III. contains :–

Field-Marshal Right. Hon. F. S. Lord ROBERTS, K.P., G.C.B., G.C.S.I.
Major-General HECTOR A. MACDONALD, C.B.
Field-Marshal Sir D. M. STEWART, Bart, G.C.B., G.C.S.I.
Lieut.-Colonel Sir F. R. WINGATE, K.C.M.G.

PART IV. will contain :– (Ready about 27th of March).

Major-General H. H. Lord KITCHENER OF KHARTOUM, G.C.B., K.C.M.G.
Major-General Sir H. E. COLVILLE, K.C.M.G.
Major-General Sir BINDON BLOOD, K.C.B.
General Sir R HARRISON, K.C.B, C.M.G.

GEORGE NEWNES, Ltd., 7 to 12, Southampton Street, Strand, London, W.C.

Digitized by Google

The Best Glass for South Africa

BECAUSE:

GLASS OPEN.

GLASS CLOSED.

It only Weighs Five Ounces.
It is only One Inch Thick when Closed.
It is as Powerful as many Glasses Five Times as Large.
It is the Most Rapid to Use and Focus.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular gives every satisfaction."

LORD LONSDALE writes—
"The Aitchison Patent Pocket Binocular is satisfactory in every way, and answers its purpose well."

CAPT. A. H. LEE, Royal Military College, Kingston, Canada, writes—
"I am immensely pleased with the Patent Pocket Binocular, power and definition little short of marvellous, and their extraordinary compactness and lightness makes them of especial value from a military point of view."

UNITED STATES WAR DEPARTMENT.—CAPT. CRAIG writes—
"I am directed by the CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICERS of the UNITED STATES ARMY to say that Aitchison's Patent Pocket Field Glasses are found to be extremely convenient and portable, and of good service."

Superior, Achromatic, 6 Lenses - - £3 3 0
Ditto extra power, 12 Lenses - - £5 5 0
Complete in Soft Leather Purse Case.

Hard Leather Sling Case, 5s. extra. Post Free to any part of the World.

Illustrations and Particulars Post Free from:

AITCHISON & CO., 428, STRAND, LONDON;

Also at 47, Fleet Street; 6, Poultry; and 46, Fenchurch Street, London.

W. CATER & CO.,

TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
And the ROYAL FAMILY.

NAVAL AND MILITARY

Tailors and Outfitters,

56, PALL MALL, (Opposite Marlborough House) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

Special attention given to Complete African Outfits.

Digitized by Google

SATURDAY, MARCH 17th 1900.

Dieu et Mon Droit

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

A PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WORLD'S NEWS.

OFFICES—
0, TAVISTOCK STREET,
LONDON, W.C.

VOL. IX.—No. 163. [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.] SATURDAY, MARCH 17th, 1900.

Published Weekly, PRICE SIXPENCE.
Subscription Price, per annum. Post free,
Inland, 28s. 2d. Foreign, 36s. 10d.

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS

RUBINAT (Llorach) APERIENT WATER.

RUBINAT for a CLEAR COMPLEXION.

Taken occasionally will remove all skin irritation.

RUBINAT is essentially adapted for people of sedentary occupation, and it removes intestinal obstructions without pain, and has an immediate effect without interfering with occupations.

Sold in Quart Bottles by

E. GALLAIS & CO., Ltd., The Sole Agents,
90, PICCADILLY, LONDON, W.

FIPECLAY SUPERSEDED BY

Pickering's 'Blanco'

For Whitening all Articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Cricket Pads and Shoes, and a multitude of similar articles.

Removes Stains and Discolourations, and ensures evenness of colour, and a soft, silky surface of glossy satin-like appearance.

Much better and more convenient than Pipeclay, as there is no trouble of preparation, and is much cheaper in the end.

BLANCO is put up in cup-shaped blocks (registered design), and with specially-made non-corrosive zinc box; it will be found the handiest article for the purposes named.

Sold at Canteens, also by Ironmongers, Saddlers, Brushmakers, etc.

MANUFACTURERS:
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
Branch Office: St. George's House, Eastcheap, London, E.C.

FIRE. UNION ASSURANCE SOCIETY. LIFE.

(Established in the Reign of Queen Anne, A.D. 1714.)

Head Office: 81, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.

Accumulated Funds, £3,250,000. Subscribed Capital, £450,000.
Annual Income - - - £900,000.

SPECIAL RATES FOR NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS.

MODERATE PREMIUMS. EXTENDED FREE LIMITS. INTERIM BONUSES.
LIBERAL CONDITIONS. PROMPT PAYMENT OF CLAIMS. NON-FORFEITABLE POLICIES.

Fire Manager—W. G. WILKINS. Sub-Fire Manager—A. F. BAILEY. Actuary—L. K. PAGDEN.
CHARLES DARRELL, SECRETARY.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST,
And 164, 166 & 170, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN.

CAMBRIC

CHILDREN'S	... ...	1/3 doz.
LADIES'	... ...	2/3 ,,
GENTLEMEN'S	...	3/3 ,,
Hem-stitched, LADIES', 2/9 doz.	,, ,, ...	3/11 ,,

PRICE LISTS POST FREE.

POCKET

Write for Samples of Damasks, etc.

"Cheapest handkerchiefs I have ever seen."—SYLVIA'S JOURNAL.

HANDKERCHIEFS.

N.B.—To prevent delay, all Letter Orders and Inquiries for Samples should be sent direct to Belfast.

THE EQUITY & LAW LIFE
Assurance Society.

ESTABLISHED 1844. FUNDS EXCEED £3,500,000.

NAVAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS

assured at Low Rates, covering all War and Climate Risks.

Rates and particulars of—The Army Assurance Association,

217, PICCADILLY (corner of Piccadilly Circus, W.).

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN. BY APPOINTMENT TO H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

COLLIER'S

FINEST LIQUEURS.

Devonshire Sloe Gin.

SUPPLIED TO THE ROYAL CELLARS.

CREST BRAND CHERRY BRANDY.
CREST BRAND CHERRY WHISKY.

COLLIER & Co., 53, SOUTHSIDE STREET, PLYMOUTH.

PALL MALL SAFE DEPOSIT.

SAFES & STRONG ROOMS FROM ONE GUINEA. ABSOLUTELY FIRE AND BURGLAR PROOF.

Handsomely-appointed Reading and Writing Rooms, &c.

OFFICERS' BAGGAGE

Collected, stored in fire-proof warehouse, and shipped to any part of the world. Passenger Bookings, &c

Full information of the
PALL MALL DEPOSIT AND FORWARDING CO., Ltd.,
CARLTON STREET, REGENT STREET, S.W.

The Army Assurance Association.

SPECIAL ARMY POLICIES:

LIFE. War Risks. World-wide.
ACCIDENTS AND DISEASES.
FIRE. Residence abroad.
BURGLARY, &c.

Lowest Rates of Premium, with unique features, have been granted by the Leading Companies in each Branch.

The "Special Army" Fire and Burglary Policies hold the insurer covered in any Barracks, Garrison, or Private Dwelling-house in which he may be residing, without endorsement on removal.

Special Quotations for Messes.

REFUND OF INCOME DUTY OBTAINED BY ARRANGEMENT WITH THE WAR OFFICE, ON ALL LIFE AND ACCIDENT PREMIUMS.

Premiums collected from Banker or Agents when due, on permanent order.

Apply for Prospectus,
MANAGER, 217, PICCADILLY, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, W.
BRANCH OFFICE: IMPERIAL BUILDINGS, GROSVENOR ROAD, ALDERSHOT.

Digitized by Google

W. CATER & CO.,

TO
HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.
And the ROYAL FAMILY.

Naval and Military Tailors and Outfitters.

56, PALL MALL, (OPPOSITE MARLBOROUGH HOUSE) LONDON, S.W.

ESTABLISHED 1776.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO COMPLETE AFRICAN OUTFITS.

The Original

MILD IN RED PACKETS & TINS.

MEDIUM IN BLUE PACKETS & TINS.

and the Best.

The FAVOURITE with All RANKS.

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

We Season the World.

The Five Noted Seasons of the World — SPRING, SUMMER, AUTUMN, WINTER AND

For Fish, Flesh, and Fowl of all kinds.

YORKSHIRE RELISH

The MOST DELICIOUS Sauce in the World.

Sold in Bottles, 6d., 1s., & 2s. each. Beware of Substitutions. Sole Proprietors: GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & CO., LEEDS.

Digitized by Google

NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY
ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS.

DIEU ET MON DROIT

NAVY & ARMY ILLUSTRATED.

Weekly, Price Sixpence.
EDITED BY COMMANDER CHAS. N. ROBINSON, R.N.
(Of "The Army and Navy Gazette,")
OFFICES: 20, TAVISTOCK ST., COVENT GARDEN, W.C.

Vol. IX.—No. 163. Saturday, March 17th, 1900.

Royal Naval Cadetships.

Mr. WALTER BUTLER, B.A.
(Several years Instructor on H.M.S. "Britannia"),
RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS to be prepared specially for the ROYAL NAVY.

There are Four Resident Instructors, and each Pupil receives individual tuition in all his subjects.

Recent Successes:—

		Marks.
19th	T. Fisher	1332
21st	P. J. Helyar	1324
3rd	C. B. Elwell	1618
*8th	C. R. Hemans	1501
34th	K. H. Benson	1302
57th	J. H. Young	1132
24th	J. M. Begg	2013
8th	C. G. L. Woollcombe	2636
46th	G. E. Cumming	2075
3rd	A. Baddeley	2923
*13th	A L. H. D. Coke	2568
33rd	S. St. L. Moore	2130

DECEMBER, 1899.

*3rd	H. Walker	2834
32nd	A. W. Vere Hopegood	2336

*First trial and earliest possible age.

At the Final "Britannia" Passing-Out Examination, Three Cadets—Messrs. H. S. Tennyson, F. F. Rose, F. C. G. St. Clair—were successful after three months' coaching in all their subjects at "Shortlands."

"Britannia" Cadets received in the holidays to be coached in all their Fourth Term Examination subjects.

For Prospectus, List of References, and all information with regard to regulations for entry into the Royal Navy, address the Principal,

"SHORTLANDS," EASTBOURNE.

The ART of . .

ROUGH RIDING

(MILITARY AND CIVIL)

TAUGHT AT

SAVIGEAR'S RIDING SCHOOL,

EARL'S COURT.

Read "Savigear's Guide to Horsemanship and Rough Riding," 2/6.

NAVY & ARMY ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE.

LONDON.

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C., 7.45 p.m. "Bonnie Dundee."
AVENUE, W.C., 8.45 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 3 p.m. "A Message from Mars."
COMEDY, Panton St., W. 8.30 p.m. "In Spite of All."
COURT, Sloane Sq., S.W., 8.30 p.m. "A Royal Family."
COVENT GARDEN, W.C., 8 p.m. Promenade Concerts.
CRITERION, W., 8.30 p.m. Sat. at 3 p.m. "His Excellency the Governor."
DALY'S, Leicester Sq., W.C., 8 p.m., and Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "San Toy."
DRURY LANE, W.C., 7.30 p.m., and 1.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. "Jack and the Beanstalk."
DUKE OF YORK'S, W.C., 8 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.30. "Miss Hobbs."
GAIETY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. Sat. 2.30 p.m. "The Messenger Boy."
GARRICK, W.C., 8 p.m. "Bootles' Baby."
GLOBE, W.C., 8 p.m. "Nurse."
HAYMARKET, S.W., 8.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.15 p.m. "She Stoops to Conquer."
HER MAJESTY'S, S.W., 8.15 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.15 p.m. "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
LYCEUM, W.C., 8 p.m. "Hamlet."
LYRIC, W., 8.30 p.m., Sat., 2.30 p.m. "Florodora."
PRINCE OF WALES'S, W., 8.15 p.m. "Don Juan's Last Wager."
PRINCESS'S, W., 8 p.m. "Drink."
ROYALTY, Dean St., W. "Magda."
ST. JAMES'S, S.W., 8.30 p.m. Wed. and Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "Rupert of Hentzau."
SAVOY, W.C., 8.15 p.m. Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "The Rose of Persia."
SHAFTESBURY, W.
STRAND, W.C., 9 p.m. Sat. at 3 p.m. "Facing the Music."
TERRY'S, Strand, W.C.
VAUDEVILLE, W.C., 9 p.m. "The Bishop's Eye."
WYNDHAM'S, W.C., 8 p.m. Sat. at 2.30 p.m. "Dandy Dick."

SUBURBAN

ALEXANDRA, Stoke Newington, N., 7.45 p.m. "Hearts are Trumps."
BRITANNIA, Hoxton, N., 7 p.m. "A Million of Money."
BRIXTON, S.W., 7.45. p.m. Sat. 2.30 p.m. "Florodora."
BROADWAY, Deptford, S.E., 7.30 p.m. Sat. 2.30 p.m. "The Dancing Girl."
CORONET, Nott. Hill Gate, W., 8 p.m. Sat. 2.30. p.m. "The Repertoire Co."
CROWN, Peckham, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "With Flying Colours."
DALSTON, N., 7.45 p.m. "The Famine."
ELEPHANT AND CASTLE, S.E., 7.45 p.m., and Sat. at 2 p.m. "The New Magdalen."
GRAND, Fulham, S.W., 7.30 p.m., and Sat. at 2 p.m. "El Capitan."
KENNINGTON (Princess of Wales's), 7.45 p.m. "The Absent-minded Beggar."
LYRIC, Hammersmith, 7.30 p.m. "Send Her Victorious."
METROPOLE, Camberwell, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Geisha."
MORTON'S, Greenwich, S.E., 8 p.m. "Sorrows of Satan."
OPERA HOUSE, Crouch End, N., 8 p.m. Sat. 2.30 p.m. "East Lynne."
ROYAL, Stratford, E., 8 p.m. "Soldiers of the Queen."
ROYAL DUCHESS, Balham, S.W., 8 p.m. "The Squire."
ROYAL WEST LONDON, W., 8 p.m. "A Fast Life."
SHAKESPEARE, Clapham Junction, S.W., 8 p.m. "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
SURREY, S.E., 7.45 p.m. "The Merciless World."

MUSIC HALLS.

ALHAMBRA, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
EMPIRE, Leicester Square, W.C., 8 p.m.
LONDON PAVILION, Piccadilly Circus, W., 8 p.m.
METROPOLITAN, 267, Edgware Road, W., 8 p.m.
OXFORD, 14, Oxford Circus, W., 8 p.m., Sat. 2.15 p.m.
PALACE, Cambridge Circus, W.C., 7.50 p.m.
PARAGON, 95, Mile End Road, E., 8 p.m.
ROYAL, Holborn, 8 p.m., Sat. 2.30 p.m.
TIVOLI, Strand, W.C., 8 p.m.

LIEUT.-COL. BOSWORTH
and
MR. H. A. STERN, M.A.
(Honours Oxford and Cambridge),

PREPARE RAPIDLY and INDIVIDUALLY for the ARMY, CIVIL SERVICE and UNIVERSITIES.

CEDAR COURT.

FIVE YEARS' RECORD.

During the last five years 156 Pupils were prepared and 145 passed, a result absolutely unapproached by any other establishment.

These include

WOOLWICH—14 out of 16.
SANDHURST—54 out of 58.
MILITIA COMPETITIVE—28 out of 29.
MILITIA LITERARY—30 out of 34.
DIRECT ARTILLERY COMMISSION—1 out of 1.
PROMOTION—10 out of 10.
COOPER'S HILL—4 out of 4.
CAMBRIDGE PREVIOUS—2 out of 2.
CAMBRIDGE ENTRANCE—2 out of 2.

Names and Marks will be forwarded on application.

HIGH PLACES OBTAINED by the above:
20 FIRSTS. 22 SECONDS. 18 THIRDS.
And all these with an average of 30 pupils only.

DOWNSHIRE HOUSE.

CEDAR COURT is one of the finest country houses in the kingdom, standing on 20 acres of land, reaching almost to Richmond Park, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. DOWNSHIRE HOUSE, on the adjoining estate, is another magnificent country residence, formerly the seat of the Marquis of Downshire. There are many grass tennis courts, as well as cricket and football grounds; there are stalls and boxes for 20 horses, and there is a tent-pegging ground. The Wimbledon Golf Links are within ten minutes' walk, whilst proximity to the river affords opportunity for boating.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that games are never under any conditions allowed to interfere with the work.

CEDAR COURT AND DOWNSHIRE HOUSE,
ROEHAMPTON, SURREY, for resident pupils.
Station—Barnes, S.W.R.

(TOWN HOUSE for promotion candidates and day pupils), 7, HOGARTH ROAD, EARL'S COURT, S.W. (150 yards from the Station).

Telegrams—"Exercitus London."

Telephone { Roehampton, "153, Battersea."
Earl's Court, "217, Kensington."

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

CONTENTS.

	Page
Frontispiece: Obeying His Country's Call	649
Round the World. Per Mare, Per Terram. (Illustrated)	650
Navies and Armies of the World. A Weekly Causerie by David Hannay	653
Editorial Notices	654
Leader: Imperial Patriotism	654
The Navy and Army Diary	654
Battlefields and Scenes of the War. (Illustrated)	655
More Yeomanry for South Africa. (Illustrated)	657
Gallant Deeds at Beleaguered Mafeking. (Illustrated)	658
With General Clements at Slingersfontein. (Illustrated)	660
Paardeberg and Durban. Illustrated)	661
Pushing on with Buller to Ladysmith. (Illustrated)	662
Disposition of Troops in South Africa	666
Colonel Baden-Powell	667
The Story of the War	668
To South Africa with the Sixth Division. (Illustrated)	669
On the Orange River Frontier. (Illus.)	671
Volunteer Engineers for Roberts. (Illus.)	672

The Distribution of Our Naval & Military Forces.

The first week of each month a list of the ships of the Navy on foreign service will be given on this page; the second week the quarters of the Cavalry, Artillery, and Royal Engineers; the third week the vessels stationed in home waters; the fourth week the quarters of the Infantry Regiments; and from time to time ships in reserve, and those being built.

Third Week.]

SHIPS OF THE ROYAL NAVY IN HOME WATERS.

B. Battle-ship. g.b. Gun-boat. h. Hulk. s. Special Service Vessel. cr. Cruiser. t.b.d. Torpedo-boat Destroyer. t.g.b. Torpedo-gun-boat. g.v. Gun Vessel. y. Yacht. T. Tender. s.s. Survey Ship. d.s. Depot-ship. P. Portsmouth. D. Devonport. C. Chatham. S. Sheerness. i. Instructional Torpedo Flotilla. c.g. Coast Guard. p.g. Port Guard. W.I. Whale Island.

Agincourt, cr.	Com. D. St. A. Wake	T. to Boscawen
Alarm, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. Powley	T. to Galatea, c.g.
Albacore, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. J. W. Steward	Ireland
Alberta, y.	Staff-Capt. G. A. Broad	T. to Victoria and Albert
Alexandra, B.	Capt. Count F. C. Metaxa, A.D.C. (Vice-Adml. Sir Compton E. Domvile, K.C.B.).	Portland, c.g.
Algiers, h.	Capt. G. L. Atkinson, A.D.C. (Rear-Adml. S. C. Holland).	Medway Reserve C.
Antelope, t.g.b.	Com. O. A. Stokes	Portishead (R.N.R)
Ariel, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. H. C. R. Brocklebank	T. to Pembroke, i.
Arrogant, cr.	Capt. A. W. E. Protheroe	Channel Squadron
Asia, h.	Capt. A. A. C. Parr (Rear-Admiral P. Aldrich).	Portsmouth
Australia, cr.	Capt. G. Neville	Reserves Southampton
Benbow, B.	Capt. R. P. Humpage	Water, c.g. Greenock, c.g.
Bittern, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. E. La J. Leatham	T. to Pembroke, i.
Black Prince, cr.	Com. W. J. Grogan	Queenstown (boys)
Boscawen, h.	Capt. T. H. M. Jerram	Portland (boys)
Britannia, h.	Capt. M. P. O'Callaghan	Dartmouth (cadets)
Briton, h.	Lieut.-Com. A. C. Spearman	Inverness (R.N.R.)
Caledonia, h.	Com. J. G. Hewitt	Queensferry (boys)
Calliope, cr.	Capt. H. P. Routh	T. to Northampton
Cambrian, cr.	Capt. R. K. McAlpine.	Training Squadron
Cambridge, h.	Capt. R. W. Craigie.	Gunnery School, D.
Chamois, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. G. Corbett	T. to Victory, i.
Circe, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. G. S. Q. Carr, C.M.G.	T. to Severn, c.g.
Clyde, h.	Com. J. P. Montgomery	Aberdeen (R.N.R.)
Collingwood, B.	Capt.	Bantry, c.g.
Colossus, B.	Capt. S. A. Johnson.	Holyhead, c.g.
Conqueror, B.		T. to Cambridge
Coquette, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. C. P. Beaty-Pownall	T. to Pembroke
Crane, t.b.d.	Com. T. D. W. Napier	T. to Victory, i.
Curacoa, cr.	Com. H. Lyon.	T. to Northampton
Curlew, g.v.		T. to Cambridge
Cygnet, t.b.d.	Com. C. S. Hickley	T. to Pembroke, i.
Dædalus, h.	Lieut.-Com. B. C. Barber	Bristol (R.N.R.)
Daring, t.b.d.		T. to Excellent
Defiance, h.	Capt. F. T. Hamilton	Torpedo School, D.
Diadem, cr.	Capt. H. S. F. Niblett	Channel Squadron
Diana, cr.	Capt. H. C. A. Baynes.	Particular Service
Dolphin, sloop	Lieut.-Com. J. Luce	T. to Boscawen
D. of Wellingt'n, h.	Capt. W. de V. Hamilton	Depôt Ship, P.
Durham, h.	Lieut.-Com. R. H. Curteis	Leith (R.N.R.)
Eagle, h.	Com. C. E. Gladstone	Liverpool (R.N.R.)
Edgar, cr.	Capt. E. J. Fleet	Particular Service
Edinburgh, B.	Com. W. G. Van Ingen	T. to Wildfire (Gunnery School)
Elfin, y.	Staff-Com. J. E. Tully.	T. to Victoria and Albert
Enchantress, y.	Staff-Capt. P. D. Ouless	Admiralty Yacht, P
Europa, cr.	Capt. A. J. Pocklington	Particular Service
Excellent	Capt. W. H. May, M.V.O.	Gunnery Sch., W.I.
Fairy, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. N. Hunter	T. to Vivid, i.
Fawn, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. W. Dalgety	T. to Victory, i.
Ferret, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com.	T. to Vivid, i.
Fire Queen, y.	Staff-Capt. T. Hawkins Smith	T. to Victory
Flirt, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. E. A. Thomas	T. to Victory, i.
Flying Fish, t.b.d.	Com. M. Singer	T. to Victory, i.
Furious, cr.	Capt. F. J. Foley	Channel Squadron
Galatea, cr.	Capt. C. H. Cross	Hull, c.g.
Ganges, h.	Com. W. V. Anson	Harwich (boys)
Gleaner, t.g.b.	Com. F. H. Peyton	Gravesend (R.N.R)
Gossamer, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. G. T. Cole	T. to Melampus, c.g.
Hannibal, B.	Capt. Sir B. W. Walker, Bart., C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Hearty, g.b.	Com. H. G. King Hall, D.S.O.	North Sea (fisheries)
Hecla	Com. W. J. Scullard (N)	Torpedo Depôt, P.
Hero, B.	Com. F. A. R. Bowles	T. to Excellent
Highflyer, cr.	Capt. F. E. E. Brock	T. Squadron (Tem.)
Howe, B.	Captain H. L. Fleet (Rear-Adml. A. P. M. Lake).	Queenstown, p.g.
Impregnable, h.	Capt. A. C. B. Bromley	Devonport (boys)
Indus, h.	Capt. W. Marrack (Rear-Adml. T. S. Jackson).	D'nport Reserves
Jackal, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. C. Tancred	Coast of Scotland (fisheries)
Janus, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. G. de L. O. Johnson	T. to Pembroke
Jaseur, t.g.b.	Com. W. Carey	T. to Vernon
Jason, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. H. H. Bruce.	Particular Service
Juno, cr.	Capt. G. H. Cherry	Training Squadron
Jupiter, B.	Capt. J. Durnford, C.B., D.S.O.	Channel Squadron
Kite, g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. P. W. Hope.	T. to Excellent
Landrail, g.v.		T. to Wildfire
Leda, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. V. Maud	T. to Australia, c.g.
Leven, t.b.d.	Com. P. A. I. Lloyd	T. to Vivid, i.
Liberty, rig.	Lieut.-Com. C. H. Morgan	T. to Lion
Lightning, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. L. L. Dundas	T. to Victory, i.
Lion, h.	Com. E. G. Shortland.	Devonport (boys)
Locust, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. S. H. Radcliffe	T. to Vivid, i.
Lynx, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com.	T. to Vivid
Magnet, tug.	Lieut.-Com. J. Webber	T. to Victory
Magnificent, B.	Capt. J. Ferris (Rear-Adml. A. D. Fanshawe).	Channel Squadron
Majestic, B.	Capt. G. Le C. Egerton, C.B. (Vice-Admiral Sir H. H. Rawson, K.C.B.).	Channel Squadron
Mars, B.	Capt. H. J. May, C.B.	Channel Squadron
Martin, brig.	Lieut.-Com. S. M. Agnew	T. to St. Vincent
Medea, cr.	Com. C. G. May	Southampton (R.N.R.)
Medusa, cr.	Com. A. L. K. Knapton	N. Shields (R.N.R)
Melampus, cr.	Capt. R. N. Gresley	Kingstown, c.g.
Mermaid, t.b.d.	Com. M. E. F. Kerr	T. to Pembroke, i.
Minerva, cr.	Capt. F. O. Pike	Training Squadron
Minotaur, cr.	Com. E. G. Barton	T. to Boscawen
Nautilus, brig	Lieut.-Com. H. H. D. Tothill	T. to Impregnable
Nile, B.	Capt. G. C. Langley	Devonport, p.g.
Northampton, cr.	Capt. H. A. W. Onslow	Recruiting Service
Northumberl'd, cr.	Com. C. E. Tower	Depôt Ship, C.
Onyx, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. G. Oliver	T. to Severn, c.g.
Osborne, y.	Capt. C. Windham	Royal Yacht, P.
Osprey, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. G. E. Corbett	T. to Vivid, i.
Pactolus, cr.	Capt. A. A. G. Tate	Channel Squadron
Panther, t.b.d.	Com. J. I. Graham	T. to Vivid, i.
Pembroke, h.	Capt. A. Macleod.	Medway Res'ves, C
Pilot, brig	Lieut.-Com. W. J. S. Alderson	T. to Impregnable
Porcupine, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. C. Tibbets	T. to Pembroke, i.
President, h.	Com. A. C. Woods	W.I. Docks (R.N.R)
Prince George, B.	Capt. A. Barrow	Channel Squadron
Racer, sloop	Com. M. S. Beatty (N)	T. to Britannia
Raven, g.b.	Com. A. Meldrum	Channel Islands
Renard, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. W. H. Eyre	T. to Colossus, c.g.
Repulse, B.	Capt. R. F. O. Foote, C.M.G.	Channel Squadron
Research, s.	Capt. W. U. Moore	Home Waters
Resolution, B.	Capt. C. R Arbuthnot.	Channel Squadron
Rodney, B.	Capt. G. W. Russell	Queensferry, c.g.
St. George, cr.	Com. E. V. Poe, M.V.O., A.D.C.	Training Squadron
St. Vincent, h.	Com. C. F. Thursby	Portsmouth (boys)
Sans Pareil, B.	Capt. H. C. Bigge	Sheerness, p.g.
Seaflower, brig.	Lieut.-Com. E. G. H. Gamble	T. to Boscawen
Seagull, t.g.b.	Com. H. Grant-Dalton	Particular Service
Seahorse, s.	Staff-Com. G. S. Keigwin	Home Waters
Seal, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. V. G. Gurner	T. to Vivid, i.
Severn, cr.	Capt. W. L. H. Browne	Harwich, c.g.
Shark, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com.	T. to Vivid, i.
Sharpshoot'r, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. F. W. Loane	T. to Vivid (Eng. Students)
Sheldrake, t.g.b.	Lieut.-Com. J. W. Pochin	T. to Rodney
Spanker, t.g.b.	Lt.-Com. H. E. F. Worthington	T. to Alexandra, c.g.
Spitfire, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. C. P. Beatty-Pownall	T. to Pembroke, i.
Star, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. B. S. Evans	T. to Victory, i.
Sturgeon, t.b.d.	Lt.-Com. M. McG. Lockhart	T. to Pembroke, i.
Thrasher, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. T. D. Pratt	T. to Vivid, i.
Thunderer, B.	Capt. J. E. Blaxland	Pembroke, p.g.
Trafalgar, B.	Capt. G. A. Primrose	Portsmouth, p.g.
Traveller, tug	Lieut.-Com. R. A. Cathie	T. to Vivid
Triton, s.	Capt. G. E. Richards	Home Waters
Unicorn, h.	Lieut.-Com. E. L. Austen	Dundee (R.N.R.)
Vernon, h.	Capt. C. G. Robinson	Torpedo School, P.
Vesuvius, g.b.	Lt.-Com. F. C. U. V. Wentworth	T. to Vernon
Victoria & Albert, y.	R.-Adml. Sir J. R. T. Fullerton, K.C.V.O., C.B., A.D.C.	Royal Yacht, P.
Victory, h.	Capt. F. C. B. Bridgeman (Adml. Sir M. Culme-Seymour, Bart., G.C.B.).	Portsmouth
Violet, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. J. B. Sparks	T. to Victory, i.
Vivid, y.	Capt. Sir R. Poore, Bart. (Adml. Sir H. Fairfax, K.C.B.).	Devonport
Wanderer, barque	Lieut.-Com. L. de W. Satow	T. to Boscawen
Wildfire, y.	Capt. C. Campbell, C.B., D.S.O., A.D.C. (Admiral Sir N. Bowden-Smith, K.C.B.).	Sheerness
Wolf, t.b.d.	Lieut.-Com. R. C. Kemble-Lambert.	T. to Vivid, i.
Wye, s.	Staff-Com. C. R. H. Robinson	Particular Service

The Volumes make handsome gift books. Volumes II., III., and V. are Twelve Shillings each, and Volumes VII. and VIII., cloth extra, gilt edges, Eighteen Shillings each, of Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand. Volumes I., IV., and VI. are out of print.

Digitized by Google

ALLEN & WRIGHT

Makers of FINE QUALITY (only), HIGHLY FINISHED

BRIAR-ROOT & MEERSCHAUM PIPES.

217, PICCADILLY, W., & 26, POULTRY, E.C., LONDON.

Our Pipes are held in great favor by best class of smokers, being well made to stand hard wear, and sold at LOWEST CASH PRICE FOR GOODS OF THIS CLASS.

SPORTING PIPES.
Silver Mounted Horn, or Vulcanite Stems.

No. 119 ... 3/6.
Fitted in Best Morocco Case, 5/6.

No. 74 ... 5/6.
Fitted in Best Morocco Case, 7/6.

No. 117 ... 3/6.
Fitted in Best Morocco Case, 5/6.

No. 156 ... 4/-.
Fitted in Best Morocco Case, 6/-.

ARMY STYLE.
Silver Mounted Horn, or Vulcanite Stems.

No. 42 ... ... 4/-.
New Golf Shape
(bent or straight.)
Fitted in Best Morocco Case, 6/-.

No. 34 ... ... 3/6.
(Bent or Straight.)
Fitted in Best Morocco Case, 5/6.

No. 38 ... ... 3/6.
Fitted in Best Morocco Case, 5/6.

No. 61 ... ... 3/6.
Fitted in Best Morocco Case, 5/6.

Allen & Wright's
ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE (110 pp.), POST FREE.

LAZENBY'S

ECONOMIC, CONVENIENT & PORTABLE

SOUP SQUARES

These squares are prepared in 13 Varieties (MULLIGATAWNY, JULIENNE, GRAVY, &c.), and should find a place in every store-room, being invaluable for making soup at short notice or improving stock. They will keep good any reasonable length of time, and are packed in neat boxes containing 6 & 12 Squares.

ONE 6D. SQUARE WILL MAKE A PINT & A HALF OF STRONG NUTRITIOUS SOUP

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING GROCERS & STORES.
Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the Squares, please communicate at once with the Manufacturers.

E. LAZENBY & SON, LTD., 18 Trinity St., LONDON. S.E.

LAZENBY'S

13 VARIETIES.

SOUP SQUARES

THRESHER & GLENNY,

MILITARY AND GENERAL OUTFITTERS,

Manufacturers of

CAMP & BARRACK FURNITURE,
AND
COMPLETE MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

ACTIVE SERVICE KITS,

Comprising all Requisites for Field use.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF CLOTHING FOR HOME & ABROAD.

TRUNKS and LEATHER GOODS.

Information concerning necessary Outfits and Price Lists sent on application.

THRESHER & GLENNY,
152 & 153, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

"LÉRINA,"

The FINEST LIQUEUR.

HIGHLY DIGESTIVE AND HYGIENIC.

MADE BY
The Monks of L'Abbaye de Lérins,
SITUATED ON
THE ISLE ST. HONORAT, OFF CANNES,
WELL KNOWN TO ALL VISITORS TO THE RIVIERA.
To be obtained from
ALL STORES AND WINE MERCHANTS.
WHOLESALE AGENTS.
COVERDALE, POHLMANN & CO., 5, MARK LANE, LONDON.

J. H. STEWARD'S TELESCOPES

FOR

Military Use and Deer Stalking.

MAXIMUM POWER, WITH CLEARNESS OF DEFINITION AND LARGE FIELD OF VIEW.

The No. 2 C, as illustrated above, with 2¼ object glass magnifying 25 diameters, bronzed, brass, in sling case, £6 6s.; or in extra light metal, reducing weight by 1lb., £8 8s.

SLING TELESCOPES FROM £1 1s. TO £14 14s.

Illustrated Catalogues gratis, post free.

J. H. STEWARD, 406, STRAND; 457, WEST STRAND; 7, GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON.

BY APPOINTMENT

J. GIEVE & SONS,

(LATE GALT & GIEVE)

ROYAL NAVAL TAILORS AND OUTFITTERS.

PORTSMOUTH:—High Street.
DEVONPORT:—44, Fore Street. (Late BATTEN & ADAMS.)
LONDON: At Messrs. C. SMITH and SONS, 5, New Burlington Street, W.
(On Fridays, or by special appointment.)

Digitized by Google

S. SMITH & SON, Ltd., 9, STRAND, W.C.

ESTABLISHED HALF A CENTURY.

Watchmakers to the Admiralty,

JEWELLERS, CLOCKMAKERS AND SILVERSMITHS.

Old Watches and Jewellery taken in exchange.

We hold the Record at Kew Observatory for 1899 with a Watch that gained 88·7 marks out of a possible 100

Our Exhibit at the Paris Exhibition, 1900, will be in Group 15, British Section.

Our Book F "Guide to the Purchase of a Watch," just published, 160 pp., 400 Illustrations, Third Edition, Free on application.

ALSO JEWELLERY CATALOGUE

OUR 1900 BROOCH.
Registered No. 350921.
35 Clear Set Diamonds, 2 Whole Pearls, and Fine Gold £5 5 0
Exceptional value and strength.

NO. 86 STRAND," ALL ENGLISH.
18ct. Gold Half or Full Hunting, £16 16s.
18ct. Gold Crystal, £13 15s.
Silver Full Hunter, £6 6s. Silver Crystal, £5. Silver Half Hunter, £6 15s.

No. 138.
STRAND CHRONOGRAPH
OUR OWN SPECIAL MAKE.

Stout 18ct. Gold Dust-proof Plain or Engine Turned Cases, Crystal Glass, Superior Finished, Extra Quality Movement Lever, Compensated Balance, Overcoil Spring, Chronograph Action on Best System. Examined, Tested, and Guaranteed £21:0:0
Steel or Silver Cases ... each 8:8:0
With 30 Minute Recorder ... 5:5:0
18ct. Gold 15:15:0

Special Notice.—Watches and Jewellery can be had upon "The Times" Enyclopædia Britannica plan of Monthly Payments.

MARTELL'S THREE STAR BRANDY.

"Particularly suitable for medicinal purposes."—Lancet, July, '99.

"A genuine old Brandy made from Wine."—Medical Press, August, '99.

CARRERAS' CELEBRATED SMOKING MIXTURES.

AGENTS IN MOST TOWNS, OR THROUGH ANY TOBACCONIST.

THE CRAVEN. (MILD.)
Invented by the 3rd Earl of Craven.
1 lb. Tin, 9/2; ½ lb. Tin, 4/8; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/5½. (Post Free.)

HANKEY'S. (MEDIUM.)
Invented by Major-General Hankey.
1 lb. Tin, 11/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/11; ¼ lb. Tin, 3/1. (Post Free.)

GUARDS. (FULL.)
Invented by J. J. Carreras.
1 lb. Tin, 10/8; ½ lb. Tin, 5/5; ¼ lb. Tin, 2/10. (Post Free.)

MUGGE'S. (SPECIAL.)
Invented by G. Mugge, Esq.
1 lb. Tin, 7/-; ½ lb. Tin, 3/7; ¼ lb. Tin, 1/11. (Post Free.)

"Tobaccos are of two kinds—the Arcadia and others."—MY LADY NICOTINE, p. 27.

J. JOAQUIN CARRERAS,
7, Wardour St., Leicester Sq., W.

GENRL. BULLER & PIONEER

Cigarettes are in Everyone's Mouth and have Gone to the —Front— owing to their Superiority over all Others

H. GRADIDGE & SONS,

Manufacturers and Exporters of Articles

HOCKEY, etc. FOR RACQUET,

USED AT ALL THE LEADING NAVAL AND MILITARY SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

USED AT ALL THE LEADING MILITARY COURTS IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

WOOLWICH, S.E. Lists Free.

Digitized by Google

"RESERVE."—The reserve of officers is composed of officers who have left the Service with further liability to serve up to a certain age, officers who have retired or resigned without further liability to serve, but who have been granted commissions in the Reserve at their own request, and officers of the auxiliary forces who have been granted commissions. Officers have to train for a month yearly at their own expense, but in peace-time at least have no organisation, and are not, as is often supposed, the officers who would rejoin the colours with the Army Reserve men of their former units. When called out, an officer of the Reserve receives £100 for his outfit. Some 300 of the Reserve of officers have recently volunteered for service, and over 100 are now employed both at the front and on garrison duty at home.

* * * *

"HERO."—Officers are not accorded a military funeral unless at the time of their death they are on full pay or in military employment. According to regulation, the troops told off to attend the funerals of officers are in the following proportions: A field-marshal, six battalions and eight squadrons; a general, four battalions and six squadrons; a lieutenant-general, three battalions and four squadrons; a major-general, two battalions and three squadrons; and a brigadier-general, one battalion and two squadrons. A colonel commanding a battalion is entitled to the presence of his own regiment, a lieutenant-colonel to 300, and a major to 200, rank and file. The remains of a captain are accompanied to the grave by his own company, or 100 men; those of a subaltern by forty rank and file; of a warrant officer, by twenty-five rank and file; of a sergeant, by nineteen rank and file, and of other ranks by thirteen rank and file.

* * * *

LET not "Slim Piet" flatter himself with the notion that he is the originator of the idea of deceiving British troops by British bugle calls. In an early stage of the battle of Khush-ab, near Bushire, in which Outram, on February 10, 1856, won a decisive victory over the Persians, under Shuja-ul-mulk, the enemy's buglers sneaked up close to the 78th and sounded the "Cease firing" and the "Incline to the left." But the Highlanders were too canny for the Persians—"She was Hieland, nae doot, but she wuz no that Hieland that she didna ken hoo the chiel's gat the meesic." In fact, officers of our own had quite recently been lent to the Shah to drill his troops. The Highlanders marched straight to the front, blazing away until the time came for the push of the bayonet, and won, as they ever have done, a full share of the honours of the day.

* * * *

"A. Y."—Various kinds of bridges are constructed by Engineers in the field; for instance, trestle bridges where the depth of water to be crossed is not too great, and lock bridges where the distance from bank to bank is small. There are also girder, sling, double lock, and other bridges, with modifications and combinations of the same, any or all of which the military engineer is prepared to erect, as circumstances and the officer in command may dictate. But I presume your question has reference principally to the bridging of rivers which are too deep and wide to be negotiated by the above-mentioned means. In such a case, a floating bridge would be built, its piers consisting of pontoons, ordinary boats, casks, or rafts of timber. The buoyancy of the materials has been accurately calculated, and limits of safety are prescribed. When boats are employed they are placed with their bows to the current, and the width of a boat is left for waterway between every two boats. The roadway is laid with planks from 1½-in. to 2-in. thick, and the road should be 8-ft. clear between the ribands which border it. This allows the passage of infantry in fours, of cavalry two abreast, and of military carriages. The bridge must, of course, be securely lashed and anchored.

* * * *

"ENQUIRER."—The socks provided for our soldiers are generally regarded as excellent for long marching, and complaints are rarely made. With a good pair of woollen socks and the feet well greased, a man ought to be able to get through a long march without suffering from tender feet. If the feet are already tender with marching, soft soap should be applied to the inflamed parts before beginning the next day's march, otherwise any grease will do. An excellent cure for blistered feet, and also a preventive, is the application of whisky and tallow. It is a favourite soldier's remedy, and, though a rather unpleasant one, it is the best I know. The method of application is as follows: Pour a little whisky into the hollow of the palm of your hand, and let the grease from a lighted tallow candle drop into the whisky. Then rub the mixture well in. The candle should be of the old-fashioned sort, real tallow. The smell of the melting tallow is not pleasant, but the remedy is so effective that it is worth while to put up with a little unpleasantness.

* * * *

"NAVALIS."—The first recorded Naval action by an English fleet in a foreign sea took place in 1195. Richard I. had embarked in the "Trench the Mer," having with him a considerable fleet, comprising forty galleys, many ships of "great burden," and sixty of "great excellence." Near Beyrout they fell in with an "immense ship, very stoutly built, with three tall, tapering masts, and sides painted in some places green and in others yellow so elegantly, that nothing could exceed her beauty." This wonderful craft is said to have had on board 1,500 men, including seven emirs and eighty picked Turks for the defence of Acre, besides a large supply of weapons of war. After some preliminary palaver the English attacked her hotly, Richard himself being prominent in the fight. The immense height of the sides rendered it, however, very difficult to board and the assailants were about to relinquish the attempt, when Richard assured them that in that case he would either hang them on the cross or otherwise put them to extreme torture. Being thus between the devil and the deep sea, they plunged overboard, dived under the vessel and affixed ropes to her rudder, and then made shift to climb on board. Even then they were nearly forced back by the overwhelming numbers of the enemy, when Richard hit upon the device of ordering the galleys to charge full tilt upon the unlucky ship—the first recorded use of the ram—when the iron beaks with which they were armed did such execution, that the quarry speedily sank, her sides being stove in in several places.

* * * *

MRS. MARY W—— (Galway).—As the wife of a sergeant in the 2nd Battalion of the Connaught Rangers—the old 94th—you have the privilege of belonging to the only regiment in Her Majesty's Service which has had the distinction of having a woman thanked in general orders. At Bronkhorst Spruit the Boers had treacherously fired upon the 94th, and in less than ten minutes all the officers had been hit. Mrs. Smith, the wife of the bandmaster, saw her husband killed before her eyes, and she and her little child were wounded almost immediately afterwards. Repressing her own personal grief, and heedless of the bullets flying round her, she tore up her own clothing to make bandages and to stanch the wounds of officers and men, many of whom owe their recovery to her "first aid" and assistance. This courageous lady was thanked in general orders, and on her return to England received the Cross of St. Catherine and a silver medal from the Knights of St. John. History was but repeating itself, for in the same regiment a woman had acted with equal heroism and bravery at the siege of Matagorda in 1810. Napier tells the story thus: Whilst the fire was hottest some water was required, and a drummer-boy was ordered to fetch some from a well near. The child—he was little else—hesitated, as well he might, for it seemed an errand of certain death. The order was repeated angrily; the boy was silent, but a woman's voice made answer, "The puir bairn is frightened, and no wonder; gie the bucket to me." Mrs. Marion Roston, the wife of a sergeant in the 94th, had been busily attending the wounded under a heavy fire, but seeing the child's nervousness, her motherly instinct at once tried to protect him, and heedless of the shot around her she went to the well and drew the water, but not before a shot had cut the slack of the rope she held in her hand in two pieces.

* * * *

MISS L. E—— (Bournemouth).—Your pay on first appointment would be Rs.175 per mensem, commencing from the day you embarked for India. You would be allowed, in addition, free quarters, fuel, light, and punkah-pullers in India. Your qualifications must be as follows: Your age at date of application must be over twenty-five and under thirty-five years. You must have had at least three years' training and service combined in a hospital where adult male patients receive medical and surgical treatment, and in which a staff of nursing sisters is maintained. The term for which you sign an agreement with the Government of India is for five years, capable of renewal for further periods of five years. You are entitled to six months' leave—on sick certificate—in the five years without forfeiting your appointment, but no longer. When on sick leave you receive two-thirds of your pay. Should you complete five years' service, and re-engage for another five years, you can be granted twelve months' leave home—such leave not to count as service—on two-thirds of your pay, with free passage by rail and sea home and out. On appointment, Government will give you an outfit allowance of £15.

* * * *

"THE CORPORAL."—A battery should consist of six guns permanently, whether in peace or in war. It is a mistake to say that four guns is the establishment in times of peace, and six in times of war. The mention of four-gun batteries in the Queen's Regulations, to which you draw attention, refers to newly-created batteries, which have, too often I fear, but four guns "temporarily," as authorities euphemistically say. This, so far as Government is concerned, is an excellent system, for in this way they gain the credit of having raised six batteries, when in reality—these being of four guns only—they have only fully equipped four of six guns each.

* * * *

I REGRET extremely that in the issue of the NAVY AND ARMY ILLUSTRATED of the 24th ult. a portrait of Captain Archibald Rice Cameron of the 2nd Black Watch appeared amongst a series of portraits headed "A Tribute to Empire," and that in the article "Died for the Flag" this officer should have been mentioned as having died from wounds received at the battle of Magersfontein on December 12. This happened through incorrect data being attached to the portrait of the officer that was sent to me. Luckily by the time the portrait appeared the friends and relatives of this officer knew that he was well on the way to recovery from the very severe wounds which he received at Magersfontein. None the less, however, am I extremely sorry that the mistake should have occurred, and I can only plead as excuse that in the very great pressure of work that the war has engendered in this office it is a very difficult matter to entirely avoid falling into error occasionally. I have to thank Captain Cameron's father for so kindly and courteously drawing my attention to the mistake that was made, and I would beg to tender him my most sincere congratulations on his gallant son's recovery.

THE EDITOR.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

MY DEAR BETTY,—Nearly every letter I get tells me of some entertainment organised for the benefit of our soldiers or their families. Now Alice, writing from Calcutta, describes a torchlight tattoo got up for this purpose, and with so much success that a sum of 2,700 rupees was handed over to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association. The entertainment was under the patronage of Lady Lockhart, and began with a march past of the combined bands of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry and the Royal Irish Rifles. Next came the physical drill of the 7th Rajputs, which was followed by the most picturesque item of the programme—the figure marching of the torch-bearers of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry. The musical ride by some of the Calcutta Light Horse was also very pretty, and, in fact, Alice said, the whole thing was very enjoyable and capitally carried out under the superintendence of Captain Drake Brockman. Next day the Ladies' Golf Club gave their annual "At Home," when the band of the 12th Bengal Infantry played on the lawn. The excitement of the afternoon was the putting match, for which eleven ladies entered, and their play being more or less even, there was a close struggle for the prize. In the end Mrs. Lovelock won with a score of ten, whilst Mrs. Lamond Walker was second with eleven.

A BLACK SATIN DRESS WITH RAISED FLOWER TRIMMINGS.

All the social events in February were of the same quiet character, Calcutta, like most other places, feeling it somewhat out of place to give dances whilst the news from South Africa was so serious. For this reason the ball arranged by the officers of the Calcutta Light Horse was given up, though their annual sports took place as usual. These included the usual sword competition and Victoria Cross races, the latter proving very exciting, especially in the final between Sergeant Orr and Troopers Stokes and Stewart, who contested it very closely. The tent pegging in sections was another interesting event, two teams from the Calcutta Polo Club entering and three from the Calcutta Light Horse, Major Baring's team proving successful, with Captain Grimston and Captain Beatty to make up the team. The ladies' driving team competition was won by Mrs. Barrow, the prize being four silver sweet dishes, whilst Miss Barber, who was second, carried off a pair of salt cellars.

Last week I went to see Mrs. Evelyn Cecil's water-colour drawings of the various places she saw in South Africa during the months she and her husband travelled in the country. They had a most interesting time, visiting every place from the Cape to Rhodesia and in Natal and Zululand. The pictures were well worth seeing, not only for their associations, which made them, of course, especially attractive, but because they so cleverly gave the colour and atmosphere of the country. The exhibition will be closed to-day, and no doubt by this time a large sum will have been collected for the War Fund, the receipts from money taken at the door and by the sale of the pictures all being devoted to that purpose.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught met with a great reception in Dublin last week when they attended the Levée at the Castle, large crowds of people turning out to greet them as they passed through the streets, escorted by a troop of the 1st Dragoon Guards. The Drawing Room took place next evening. Ethel tells me it was a most brilliant and pleasant function, and there were many very beautiful dresses on which she could feast her eyes, which always revel in pretty things of any kind. Lady Cadogan wore pale primrose satin with a train of beautiful old lace and a coronet of diamonds. The Duchess of Connaught was in pale pink satin with an over-dress of lace, and her train was of shawl-patterned silk of a lovely design, yellows and reds being the colours that predominated. Princess Victor Dhuleep Singh, who was presented by Lady Lurgan, was beautifully dressed in opal-coloured silk worn with a green train, whilst her jewels were emeralds and diamonds. Lady Bathurst was also presented, and so was Mrs. Curtis, the wife of the D.A.G. Mrs. Skinner wore black embroidered with white over a train of white chiffon lined with pink. Miss Skinner was entirely in white, and Mrs. Caddell in white satin with a black velvet train edged with sable. Mrs. Treffy was in yellow with a train of yellow brocade trimmed with exquisite lace. Mrs. Inman was in black and white brocade with a beautiful diamond tiara, Mrs. Archer in white satin, and Mrs. Arthur Owen Lewis in black sequinned lace with a black velvet train. Descriptions of many other dresses does Ethel send me, for all of which I have not room, so I have picked out a few that will particularly interest you from their wearers being connected with the Army.

The sketch I enclose to-day is of a black satin reception dress embossed and embroidered with raised flowers and jewels in various shades and draped with silk chiffon. In cut, trimming, and design the dress is quite according to the latest ideas from Paris.

Yours affectionately, CONSTANCE.

Digitized by Google

rockman.
olf Club gave when the band of the 17th Bengal
n. The excitement of the afternoon r which eleven ladies entered and s even, there was a close struggle for Lovelock won with a score of ten er was second with eleven.
February were of the same great st other places, feeling it somewhat whilst the news from South Africa reason the ball arranged by the ght Horse was given up through ace as usual. These including d Victoria Cross races the last ally in the final between Major d Stewart, who contested the sections was another interesting
Calcutta Polo Club entering ht Horse, Major Burnside
Captain Grimston and Captain
m. The ladies' drawing
s. Barrow, the prize being Miss Barber, who was
s.
Mrs. Evelyn Cecil's
she saw in South Africa and travelled in the ime, visiting every n Natal and Zululand ng, not only for the urse, especially among he colour and will be closed to will have been money taken at the ing devoted to the Connaught en they attended people turning e streets, escorted e Drawing Room
t was a more
many very beautiful which always n wore pale and a corona n pale pink s of shaul eing the Singh, who dressed in her jewels
also
.G. Mrs.
a train entirely black velvet with a Mrs. antiri
Arthur
at the ne
the

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

FEB 2 - 1953

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google